Wherfore this parte of phisike, is not to be contempned or neglected in the education of chyldren, and specially from the age of xiiii. yeres vppewarde, in whiche tyme strength, with courage increaseth.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governor, b. i. c. 16.

False to thy gods, thy brother, and thy father,
Conspirant 'gainst this high illustrious prince
And from th' extremest vpward of thy head,
To the discent and dust below thy foote
A most toad-spotted traitor.
Shakespeare. K. Lear, Act iv. sc. 7.

She then remember'd to his thought the place
Where he was going; and the upward race
Of kings, preceding him in that high court;
Their laws, their ends. B. Jonson. A Panegyre.

There from the chace Jove's tow'ring eagle bears,
On golden wings, the Phrygian to the stars:
Still as he rises in th' etherial height,
His native mountains lessen to his sight;
While all his sad companions upward gaze,
Fix'd on the glorious scene in wild amaze.
Pope. Statius. Thebaid, b. i.

What would this man? now upward will he soar,
And little less than angel, would be more:
Now looking downwards, just as griev'd appears
To want the strength of bulls, the fur of bears.
Id. Essay on Man, Ep. i.

UP-WHI'RLED. Carried up by a rapid rotatory motion.

—— All these upwhirld aloft
Fly o're the backside of the world farr off
Into a Limbo large and broad, since calld
The paradise of fools.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iii.

UP-WOUND. Dut. Op-wind-en. Rolled up.

And, as shee lay vpon the durty ground,
Her huge long taile her den all ouerspred,
Yet was in knots and many boughs vpwound,
Pointed with mortall sting.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 1.

URBA'NE. } Fr. Urbanité; It. Urbàno, urba-
URBA'NITY. } nità; Sp. Urbano, urbanidad; Lat. Urbanus, of, or pertaining to a city (urbs). Civil, civilized, polite, polished, courteous or courtly, gentle or genteel.

Now as touching their vrbanity, it is much vnlike vnto ours in Japan, and vnto that of Europe: howbeit vnder two principal kindes the rule of their vrbanity or courtesie may be comprehended: whereof one is observed betweene equals, and the other betweene superiours and inferiours.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 96.

So will they keep their measures true,
And make still their proportions new,
Till all become one harmony,
Of honour, and of courtesy,
True valour and urbanity.—B. Jonson. Love Restored.

Moral doctrine, and urbanity, [says Casaubon] or well-mannered wit, are the two things which constitute the Roman satire.—Dryden. Juvenal, Ded.

You cannot read and taste his [Horace] beauties, without improving your urbanity of manners, together with your knowledge of polite literature.
Knox. Letter to a Young Nobleman, Let. 5.

U'RCHIN. Fr. Hérisson; It. Riccio; Sp. Erizo; Lat. Erinaceus; Gr. Χηρ. See the quotation from Pliny. Met.—
Cross, fractious, peevish, mischievous children.

Like sharpe vrchons his haire was grow.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

But the fift troupe most horrible of hew,
And fierce of force, was dreadfull to report
For, some like snayles, some did like spiders shew,
And some like vgly vrgins thicke and short.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 11

Some [fish] are armed with shels, some with hard skales, and diuers round as a ball skinned like an yrcheon or hedg-hog.—Holinshed. Description of Scotland, c. 9.

The fox in Æsop's Fables, would not suffer the urchin to take off the tiques that were setled upon her body: for if (quoth shee) thou take away these that be already full, there will come other hungry ones in their plaee.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 323.

Of the same sort that crabs be, are the urchins of the sea called echini; and these instead of feet have certain pointed prickles. Their maaner of going is to roll themselves up and tumble round.—Id. Plinie, b. ix. c. 31.

Croaker. You did indeed dissemble, you urchin you; but where's the girl that wont dissemble for an husband?
Goldsmith. Good-Natured Man, Act ii.

URE, Skinner thinks, is contracted from usura, usage. See USE.

If that I might in any wise espy,
What was the cause of his deedly wo,
Or why that he so pitously gan cry
On his fortune and on ure also,
With all my might I layd an eare to.
Chaucer. Complaint of the Black Knight.

And in my selfe Ime assured,
That in my body I was well ured,
Sith I might haue such a grace,
To see the ladies and the place.—Id. Dreame.

—— Whider in deed don,
Or meekely feined to our instruction,
Let clerkes determine, but this am I sure,
Much like thing I haue had in vre.—Id. Rem. of Loue.

URE. Lat. Urius; Gr. Ουρος.

The third kind is of thē that are are named ures. Theis are of bignes somwhat lesse than elephantes, in kind and color and shape like a bull.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 163.

As for the plowing with vres (which I suppose to be vnlikelie) because they are (in mine opinion) vntameable and alkes a thing commonlie vsed in the east countries; here is no place to speak of it, since we want these kind of beasts.
Holinshed. Description of England, b. iii. c. 4.

URGE, v. } Fr. Urger; It. Urgere; Sp.
U'RGENT. } Urgente; Lat. Urgere, (from the U'RGENTLY. } Gr. Εργον, opus, opus excitare, aut U'RGENCY. } stimulare,) to rouse, to spur on to U'RGER. } work, (Vossius.)
To press on in any work or labour; to excite, to stimulate, to encourage, to be earnest—in pressing forward or persevering; to labour earnestly; to pursue, to seek—eagerly; to impress, to impel.

And [he] vrged the tribute, saying if it were worth but one haire, that he would not remit it.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 225.

During the two houres of those two dayes the heat is very vrgent, and so perhaps it will be in foure or fiue dayes more an houre euery day, vntill the sunne in his proper motion haue crossed the equinoctiall.—Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 49.

And therefore the Jewes called more vrgently vpon the matter, vnwittynly doing therby seruice to the thing that God appointed: that is, to haue this sacrifice made in time conuenient, and in due season.—Udal. John, c. 19.

Anger and pitty, in his manly brest,
Urge, yet restraine his teares.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 4.

The second is, when of diuers things euill, all being not euitable, wee are permitted to take one; which one sauing only in case of so great vrgency were not otherwise to bee taken; as in the matter of diuorce amongst the Jewes.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. i. § 8.

Yet take heed, worthy Maximus, all ears
Hear not with that distinction mine do, few
You'll find admonishers, but urgers of your actions.
Beaum. & Fletch. Valentinian, Act i. sc. 3.

Lo hapless Tydeus, whose ill-fated hand
Had slain his brother, leaves his native land,
And, seiz'd with horror, in the shades of night,
Thro' the thick deserts headlong urg'd his flight.
Pope. Statius. Thebaid, b. i.

If the Sultan understands that any man has money, if it be but 20 dollars, which is a great matter among them, he will send to borrow so much money, pretending urgent occasions for it; and they dare not deny him.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1686.

Were a probable way suggested to us of acquiring great wealth, honour, or pleasure, should we not quickly run about it? could we contentedly sleep, till we had brought the business to a sure or hopeful issue? and why with less expedition or urgency should we pursue the certain means of our present security and comfort, of our final salvation and happiness?—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 16.

But time is urgent; haste we to consult
Priest, prophet, or interpreter of dreams
For dreams are also of Jove) that we may learn
What crime of ours Apollo thus resents.
Cowper. Homer. Iliad, b. i.

URINA'TOR. Lat. Urinator, from urinare, to dive, (of unsettled etymology;) perhaps Gr. Αφυσσειν, to dip or dive.
A diver.

And it is more than ten years since his majesty's urinator, Mr. Curtis, published in the Gazette, how he had practised, and was furnished with instruments, divers, and shipping, to recover permanent goods which are lost by shipwreck; which minds me how easy it were, and advantageous for our merchants, in all their voyages, to be furnished with such urinators.—Boyle. Works, vol. vi. p. 446.

As pearl, coral, mines; with innumerable other things of great value, which may be much more easily found out by the help of this, than by any other usual way of the urinators.—Wilkins. Dædalus, c. 5.

U'RINE, n. / U'RINE, v. / U'RINAL. / U'RINARY. / URINA'TIVE. / U'RINOSE. } Fr. Urine, uriner; It. Orina, orinare; Sp. Urina, urinar; Lat. Urina; Gr. Ουρον, from ορ-ειν, pellere, expellere, to drive out. Water—driven out (from animals.)

I pray to God so save thy gentil corps,
And eke thyn urinals, and thy jordanes.
Chaucer. Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,240.

And we find also, that places where men urine commonly have some smell of violets: and urine, if one hath eaten nutmeg, hath so too.—Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 835.

These follies are within you, and shine through you like the water in an urinall.
Shakespeare. Two Gentlemen of Verona, Act ii. sc. 1.

Those medicines being opening and piercing, do fortifie the operation of the liver, in sending down the wheyey part of the bloud to the reines. For medicines urinative do not work by rejection, and indigestion, as solutive do.
Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 43.

——— As hot, as at the muster
Of all your night-tubs, when the carts doe cluster,
Who shall discharge first his merd-urinous load.
B. Jonson, Epig. 134.

The urachos or ligamentous passage is derived from the bottom of the bladder, whereby it dischargeth the waterish and urinary part of its contents.
Brown. Vulgar Errours, b. v. c. 5.

In the kidneys there should be such innumerable little siphons or tubes conveying the urinose particles to the pelvis and ureters, first discover'd by Bellini, and illustrated by Malpighi.—Ray. On the Creation, pt. ii.

URN, n. / URN, v. } Fr. Urne; It. Urna; Sp. Urna; Lat. Urna, a vessel for dipping (into the water), from urinare. (See URINATOR.) Cotgrave calls it—
"A narrow-necked pot or pitcher of earth, to fetch or keep water in." Also used for various other purposes; to contain the ashes of the dead; to receive the names of candidates, votes, &c.

The poudre in which min herte shall turn
That pray I thee thou take and it conserve
In a vessell that men clepeth an vrne
Of gold. Chaucer. Troil & Cres. b. v.

And some of hem with vrnes made of gold,
Whan the ashes fully were made cold,
To enclose of hem of great affection,
And beare hem home vnto hir region.
Lidgate. Story of Thebes, pt. iii.

If fortune grant recourse to Italy,
Not here shall these so sacred ashes ly:
But from my hand Cornelia shall take,
And vrne thy reliques.—May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. viii.

He will not suffer us to burn their bones,
To urne their ashes, nor to take th' offence
Of mortal loathsomness from the blest eye
Of holy Phœbus, but infects the winds
With stench of our slain lords.
Beaum. & Fletch. Two Noble Kinsmen, Act i. sc. 1.

When the pile was burnt down, they put out the remains of the fire, by sprinkling wine, that they might the more easily gather up the bones and ashes: this gathering up the bones and ashes, and putting them into the urn, was the next office paid to the deceased.
Kennett. Roman Antiquities, pt. ii. b. v. c. 10.

URTICA'TION. This seems to be a word coined by Bp. Taylor, and by him only used. From Lat. Urtica, a nettle; and intended to denote, merely—Stingings.

And as a body may be said to be lustful though it be asleep, or eating, without the sense of actual urtications and violence, by reason of its constitution: so may the soul by the reason of its habit, that is, its vicious principle and base effect of sin be hated by God, and condemn'd upon that account.—Bp. Taylor. Of Repentance, c. 5. § 3.

US. / US-SELF. } Goth. Uns; A. S. Us; Dut. Ons; Ger. Uns. Wachter notices the similarity (by transposition) of the Lat. Nos. Us, as in instances from P. Plouhman and Chaucer, was used nominatively to the verb. See WE.
For the etymology, see WHO.

The folke of the lond hadde to ows onde [fear of us]
And that to grete maistres nere [might neuer be their masters] drive ous out of the londe.
R. Gloucester, p. 40.

Sire, heo seiden, for Gode's loue bryng us [out] of this wrechede [ness].—Id. p. 85.

Sir, for this hie feste, and for the Trinite,
Suffre us nouht to lese, for defeaute of the.
R. Brunne, p. 16.

He settes the terme & stage bi vs, whan & why.
Id. p. 258.

And if we grutche of hys [the rat's] game, he wol greve ous [the rats] sarrer,
To hus clees clawen us, and in hys cloches holde
That ous lotheth [loseth] the lyf, er he let ows passe.
Piers Plouhman, p. 9.

On ous he lokyde wt̄ love, and leth [let] us sone deye
Meeklike for oure mysdedes, to amendy ous alle.
Id. p. 21.

Ich shal by seche for alle synfulle our Savyour of Grace
To a menden ous of our mysdedes. Do mercy to ous alle
God of thy goodnesse.—Id. p. 116.

That holy bread that lasteth ay
Thou sende it ous this ilke day,
Forgive ous all that we have don,
As we forgivet uch other mon.—Lord's Prayer. Hen. II.

Give to us this day oure breed ovir other substaunce. And forgive to us our dettis as we forgiuen to our dettourin.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 6.

Therfore among ghou manye ben sike and feble, and manye sleper. and if we demyden wiseli ussilf, we schulen not be demed.—Id. Corynth. c. 11.

And thei seiden what yit desiren we witnessing? for we us silf han herd of his mouth.—Id. Luk, c. 22.

Gret chere made our hoste everich on,
And to the souper sette he us anon:
And served us with vitaille of the beste.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales.

Our conseil was not longe for to seche;
Us thought it was not worth to make it wise.—Id. Ib.

——— Good is that we also
In our time among us here
Do write of newe some mattere
Ensampled of the olde wise.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

The Lord is not slacke to fulfill hys promise, as some men count slacknes: but is pacyent to us ward, and wold haue no mā lost, but would receaue all mennę to repentaunce.
Bible, 1551. 2 Pet. c. 3.

——— Heir of all my might,
Neerly it now concernes us to be sure
Of our omnipotence, and with what arms
We mean to hold what anciently we claim
Of deitie or empire. Milton. Paradise Lost, b. v.

This inaccessible high strength, the seat
Of deitie supream, us dispossest,
He trusted to have seis'd, and into fraud
Drew many, whom thir place knows here no more.
Id. Ib. b. vii.

O Sons, like one of us man is become
To know both good and evil, since his taste
Of that defended fruit; but let him boast
His knowledge of good lost, and evil got:
Happier, had it suffic'd him to have known
Good by itself, and evil not at all.—Id. Ib. b. xi.

USE, v. / USE, n. / U'SAGE. / U'SAGER. / U'SANCE. / U'SEFUL. / U'SEFULLY. / U'SEFULNESS. / U'SELESS. / U'SELESSLY. / U'SELESSNESS. / U'SER. / U'SUAL. / U'SUALLY. / U'SUALNESS. } Fr. User, usage, usance; It. Usare, uso, usaggio, usante, usuale; Sp. Usar, uso, usanza, usual; Lat. Usus, past part. of Uti, which (Vossius thinks) is from Gr. Εωθα, Attice, for ειωθα, pret. per. of εθ-ειν frequenter et sic ex more facere: to do frequently, and thus customarily.
To do, to practise—customarily, or habitually; to be wont to do, to accustom, to habituate; to employ, to exercise, as an instrument suited or adapted; to employ; to act with; to act towards; to resort to frequently or habitually; to frequent.
Useful,—suited or adapted to the purpose, serviceable, beneficial; promoting the ends, objects or advantages; advantageous, profitable.
Usual,—customary, habitual, frequent, common.

Vor hii hulde the olde vsages, that men wyth men were
By hem sulue, and wymmen by hem sulue al so there.
R. Gloucester, p. 191.

But I uside noon of these thingis, and I wroot not these thingis that tho be doon so in me.—Wiclif. 1 Cor. c. 9.

Thei weren disseyved first of false profetis that is false techeris, and under the name of oure Lord Jhesu Crist thei weren brought into the lawe and profetis, that is into cerymonyes either fleischli kepyng of Moises lawe, and of profetis accordynge with the cerymonyes, which usyng is contrarie now to the treuthe and fredom of Cristis gospel.
Id. Prol. to Romaynes.

Of wood-craft coude he wel alle the usage.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 111.

My father ye by sainct Julien:
But I vntrewe wordes vse,
I maie me not therof excuse.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

It was that tyme suche vsance,
That euery man the conysaunce
Of his contre bare in his honde,
Whan he went into straunge londe.
And thus was euery man therfore
Well knowe where that he was bore.—Id. Ib. b. vi.

After the riall olde vsance,
A tombe of laton noble and riche,
With an ymage vnto hir liche
Liggynge, aboue thervpon;
Thei made, and set it vp anon.—Id. Ib. b. viii.

And in this court [Chancerie] the vsuall and proper forme of pleading of England is not vsed, but the forme of pleading by writing, which is vsed in other countries according to the ciuill law.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. ii. c. 12.

The world had farre swarued from the right vsage of the lawe of nature, which God hath grauen and planted in all mens hertes.—Udal. Marke, c. 1.

But that I was by the commaundement of the law forbydden to syn, my synfull vsage was not onely not restrayned, but also seemed quyckened and to take strength.
Id. Romaines, c. 7.

He signified vnto him by his interpreter, that the case so happened to him was a thing vsuall and common: as to loose townes and lordships, and that hee should not take ouer-much thought for it.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 95.

When we were ready to depart, he demanded whether we wanted any Vrapo, which is the wood, that is vsually carried from these parts to Trinidad in canoas, and is there sold to the French for trade.—Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 674.

Heere the Scotch writers report, that king Edward vsed himselfe nothing vprightlie in this matter.
Holinshed. Historie of Scotland, an. 1286.

The Pict (saith Herodian) hath generallie no vse in apparell, howbeit the nobler sort of them doo wrap their heads and wombs in hoops of iron.
Id. Description of Scotland, c. 14.

The Jews were forbidden to take use one of another, but they were not forbidden to take it of other nations.
Selden. Table-Talk. Usury.

He consum'd the common treasury;
Whereof he being the simple usager
But for the state, not in propriety,
Did alien at his pleasure, and transfer
The same t' his minions.—Daniel. Civil Wars, b. iii.

Nor was this excellent man a stranger to the more light and airy parts of learning, as music and poetry; all which he had digested, and made useful.—Walton. Life of Hooker.

True and brave friendships are between worthy persons; and there is in mankind no degree of unworthiness, but is also a degree of usefulness, and by every thing by which a man is excellent, I may be profited.
Bp. Taylor. Of Friendship.

——— Let your deeds
Make answer to me: useless are all words
Till you have writ performance with your swords.
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act i. sc. 1.

"Pity! to build, without a son or wife:
Why, you'll enjoy it only all your life."
Well, if the use be mine, can it concern one,
Whether the name belong to Pope or Vernon?
Pope. Imitation of Horace, b. ii. Sat. 2.

Stokesley of London took him aside in the gallery at Lambeth, at their departure from the archbishop (who stood against them), and was very earnest with him for the usages of the church, when it seems Cranmer had well nigh persuaded him on the other side.
Strype. Eccles. Mem. Hen. VIII. an. 1538.

Nature never makes excellent things for mean or no uses; and it is hardly to be conceived, that our infinitely wise Creator should make so admirable a faculty which comes nearest the excellency of his own incomprehensible being, to be so idle and usetessly employed, at least a part of its time here, as to think constantly, without remembering any of those thoughts, without doing any good to itself or others, or being any way useful to any other part of the creation.—Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 1.

Without it [industry] we cannot in any state act decently, or usefully, either to the benefit and satisfaction of others, or to our own advantage and comfort.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 19.

"The act of perspicuous, as far forth as perspicuous," is another peripatetic definition of a simple idea; which, though not more absurd than the former of motion, yet betrays its uselessness and insignificancy more plainly, because experience will easily convince any one, that it cannot make the meaning of the word light (which it pretends to define) at all understood by a blind man.
Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. iii. c. 4.

There are many companies, sports, and recreations, (I shall not mention particulars, no doubt in themselves very lawful; but yet they may chance to prove the bane of the bold user of them.)—South, vol. vi. Ser. 11.

These trees commonly grow here, as indeed usually where-ever they grow, in a champion dry ground, such at least as is not drowned or morassy.
Dampier. Voyages, vol. ii. c. 1.

So that, absolutely speaking, in this strict and philosophical sense; either nothing is miraculous, namely, if we have respect to the power of God; or, if we regard our own power and understanding, then almost every thing, as well what we call natural, as what we call supernatural, is in this sense really miraculous; and 'tis only usualness or unusualness that makes the distinction.
Clarke. Evidences of Religion, Prop. 14.

Still you will say perhaps, that, explain and limit it as we will, it is very hard after all, that in order to obey God, and demonstrate our love to him, we must disobey the dictates of the strongest and usefullest principle he hath planted in our nature, the love of ourselves, and adopt others, often of very undeserving characters, in our room.
Secker, vol. i. Ser. 16.

The concluding book of scripture, the Revelation of St. John, is accused of obscurity, and consequently of uselessness, perhaps beyond any other.—Id. vol. vi. Ser. 31.

I would my son, that thou wouldst use the pow'r,
Which thy discretion gives thee, to control
And manage all.—Cowper. Homer. Odyssey, b. xix.

U'SHER, v. U'SHER, n. See HUSHER. Fr. Huissier; It. Usciere; Sp. Usier, from Fr. Huis; It. Uscio, a door:—One who issues, an issuer; one who lets out at the door, a door-keeper.

One who attends the entrance or departure; who admits or introduces, leads the way, precedes as introducer; one who introduces, (sc.) to the elements of learning.

That dore can none usher shette,
In whiche he list to take entre.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

Sir Thomas Luke may be said to have ushered him [George Villiers] into the English court, whilest the lady Lucy County of Bedford led him by the one hand, and William earl of Pembroke by the other.
Fuller. Worthies. Leicestershire.

Authority [is] given to the said governors to appoint the schoolmaster and usher thereof.
Strype. Eccles. Mem. Edw. VI. an. 1550.

Up with the jocund lark (too long we take our rest)
Whilst yet the blushing dawn out of the chearful east
Is ushering forth the day to light the muse along.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 3.

Nor will it be but of your gain to make love to her too, so she follow, not usher to her lady's pleasure.
B. Jonson. Silent Woman, Act iv. sc. 1.

Yet death must usher and unlock the door,
Think further on thy self, my soul.
Donne. Progress of the Soul, Act ii.

Every fast portended some villany, as still a famine ushers in a plague.—South, vol. v. Ser. 2.

As if his traitor's father's haggard ghost,
And Somerset, fresh bleeding from the axe,
On either hand had usher'd him to ruin.
Rowe. Lady Jane Gray, Act iv.

We had no sooner got on board, than an old gentleman came along-side, who, I understood from Attago, was some king or great man. He was accordingly ushered on board.
Cook. Second Voyage, b. ii. c. 2.

USTULA'TION. Lat. Ustulatus, past part. of Ustulare, to burn all around, formed upon Ustum, past part. of Urere, to burn.

A burning.

As giving all our goods to the poor hinders us from making provision for our relatives, a state of cælibate exposes us to a perpetual ustulation.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iii. c. 4.

It is not certain that they took the better part when they chose ustulation before marriage, expresly against the apostle.—Id. Ib.

U'SUFRUCT. USUFRU'CTUARY. Fr. Usufruict; It. Usufrutto; Sp. Usufruto, the use, employment, or possession of the fruit, produce, or profit.

But if in the marriage hee haue a childe by her, which is heard once to cry, whether the childe liue or die, the husband shall haue the vsufruite of her landes, (that is the profit of them during his life) and that is called the curtesie of England.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. iii. c. 8.

Laws indeed have introduced a way of speaking, by which the property and the usufruct are distinguish'd; but in truth the usufructuary has a temporary, or limited property; and the proprietary has a perpetual usufruct, either at present, or in reversion.—Wollaston. Religion of Nat. s. 6.

U'SURE, v. U'SURER. U'SURY. USU'RIOUS. USURA'RIOUS. Fr. Usure; It. Usura; Sp. Usura; Lat. Usura. Usurer is generally applied to—

One who demands and takes interest (excessive interest) for the use or loan of his money. See USE, and the quotation from Selden.

The chartres & the scris that noied Cristen men,
That lay for vsure in pris elleuen als for ten,
Were casten in fire & brent in podels vilaynly,
Of Jues slayn & schent a hundred & sexty.
R. Brunne, p. 224.

Hit ys nogt semly forsoth. in cyte ne in borwton
That usurers oth regratours, for eny kynne getes
Be fraunchised for a free man. and have fals name.
Piers Plouhman, p. 43.

For an vsurere, so God me se
Shall neuer for richesse rich be
But euer more poore and indigent
Scarce and gredy in his entent.—Chaucer. R. of the Rose.

But sertes suche vsure vnliche,
It falleth more vnto the riche,
Als well of loue, as of beyete,
Than vnto hem, that ben nought great
And as who saith ben simple and poeere.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

To you my fader, that ben here,
Myn hole shrifte for to here,
I dare myn herte well disclose,
Touchende vsurie. Id. Ib.

By such vsurers and licentious liuers as belonged to him, the realme had alreadie beene sore corrupted.
Holinshed. Chronicles of England. Hen. III. an. 1251.

Leon. She writes to me here, that one Cacasago
An usuring jewellers son (I know the rascal)
Is mortally faln in love with ye.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act v.

Nur. You should not need to fear me, madam,
I do not love the usuring Jew so well.
Id. The Night Walker, Act iv.

These thoughts when usurer Alphius, new about
To turn mere farmer, had spoke out;
'Gainst the ides, his moneys he gets in with pain,
At the calends puts all out again.
B. Jonson. Praises of a Country Life.

Would it not look odly to a stranger, that should come into this land, and hear in our pulpits usury preach'd against, and yet the law allow it?—Selden. Table-Talk. Usury.

I refer me to your usurious cannibals, or such like.
B. Jonson. Every Man out of his Humour, Act v. sc. 4.

Though it be ordinarily true here also that he that doubts speculatively, does also doubt practically; as if he doubts concerning all usurarious contracts, whether it be lawful or no to use any, he doubts all concerning this which himself uses, if it be usurarious.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. i. c. 5.

So that if a common wealth permits an usurarious exchange or contract, it is not unjust, because the laws are the particular measures of justice and contracts.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 2.

For the enemies to interest in general make no distinction between that and usury, holding any increase of money to be indefensibly usurious.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. ii. c. 30.

I know of but two definitions that can possibly be given of usury: one is the taking of a greater interest than the law allows of: this may be stiled the political or legal definition. The other is the taking of a greater interest than it is usual for men to give and take: this may be stiled the moral one: and this, where the law has not interfered, is plainly enough the only one.
Bentham. Defence of Usury, Let. 2.

USU'RP, v. USURPA'TION. USU'RPER. USU'RPING, n. Fr. Usurper; It. Usurpare; Sp. Usurpar; Lat. Usurpare, by syncope for usuripare, (Vossius,) to use much.

To seize the use or possession; to arrogate the possession; to seize possession of the right or property of another.

See the quotation from Locke.

Their name of godlihede, thei [deuils] han by vsurpacion, as the prophete saieth.—Chaucer. Testament of Loue, b. i.

The cities adhearing vnto the king vsurped diuers castles belonging to the master, tooke certain commanders and knights, yea, and some they slewe also.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 146.

Whiche dispyte to hym was doone, after some auctours, for so moche as he had vsurpyd of the comon grounde of ye cytie, in settynge of the sayd toure.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1325.

The Tyrians diuinyng that Neptune in reuengyng the vsurpacion that the Macedõs had made vpon the sea would shortly destroy yᵉ worke that they had made.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 61.

And the vsurping of a few, as of the senators after the death of Tarquinius, and before the succession of the tribunate, and manifestly in the Decemuirate, but more perniciously in the Triumuirate of Cæsar, Crassus, and Pompeius.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. i. c. 4.

Thanne durynge this parliament kynge Edwarde was proclaymed vsurper of the crowne.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1471.

Euerie one which either by flattering had god rithes togither, as by seditious partaking was had by estimation, sought to haue the gouernement, and to vsurp the title of king.—Holinshed. Historie of England, b. vi. c. 8.

But whether these gouernors (whose names we haue recited) were kings or rather rulers of the common wealth, or tyrants and vsurpers of the gouernment by force, it is vncerteine.—Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 10.

That the assignation of such offices, and appropriating them to the ministery of certain persons may be a cancel to secure the inclosures of the clerical orders from the usurpings and invasions of pretending and unhallowed spirits.
Bp. Taylor. Pol. Disc. Pref.

As conquest may be called a foreign usurpation, so usurpation is a kind of domestick conquest, with this difference, that an usurper can never have right on his side, it being no usurpation, but where one is got into the possession of what another has a right to.
Locke. Of Civil Government, c. 17.

Too well I know her blandishments to gain,
Usurper-like, till settled in her reign;
Then proudly she insults, and gives you cares
And jealousies; short hopes and long despairs.
Dryden. 1 Pt. Conquest of Granada, Act iii.

Then answer thus Ulysses wise return'd:
Yes—and I would that vengeance from the gods
Might pay their insolence, who thus usurp
Dominion here, and in another's house,
With no respect of right, or dread of shame,
Much evil daily work, and purpose more.
Cowper. Homer. Odyssey, b. ii.

UTE'NSIL. Fr. Utensil; Sp. Utensilios; Lat. Utensilia, (ab utendo.)

Any article necessary for use.

They bete out the heddes and let the wyne ronne in the stretes, and al formys, stolys and other vtensilis in the howse by theym foundyn, all to brake in peces.
Fabyan. Chronycle. Phil. IV. an. 20.

But if he can go beyond this limit, then it can have no natural limit, but may extend to sumptuousness, to ornaments of churches, to rich utensils, to splendor, to majesty; for all that is decent enough, and in some circumstances very fit.—Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iii. c. 4.

The inhabitants of Ægypt doe use the root in stead of wood, not for fewell onely, but also to make thereof sundrie vessels and utensils in an house.
Holland. Plinie, b. xiii. c. 11.

Multitudes [were] employing themselves upon ingenious handicrafts with the souls of departed utensils, for that is the name which in the Indian language they give their tools when they are burnt or broken.—Spectator, No. 56.

Of all the utensils which necessity and ingenuity have concurred to produce among other savage nations, they saw only a basket to carry in the hand, a satchel, to hang at the back, and the bladder of some beast to hold water, which the natives drink through a hole that is made near the top for that purpose.—Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 5.

U'TERINE. Fr. Uterin; It. Uterino; Sp. Uterino; Lat. Uterinus.

Of or pertaining to the womb (uterus).

As for women, their inward parts are answerable to mens in all these respects abovesaid: and besides they have by themselves adjoyning close unto the bladder, another little bag or purse; whereupon it is called in Latine uterus: and it hath another name beside, to wit, loci; which we call the matrice, the mother, or the wombe: and in other creatures it is tearmed vulva.—Holland. Plinie, b. xi. c. 37.

Sulphur; in regard whereof, they dry, resolve, mollifie, attract, and are good for uterine effects, proceeding from cold and windy humours.—Fuller. Worthies. Somersetshire.

Walter Pope, uterine brother to Dr. Joh. Wilkins sometime bishop of Chester, was born at Faulsley in Northamptonshire.—Wood. Athenæ Oxon. vol. ii.

UTI'LITY. Fr. Utilité; It. Utilità; Sp. Utilidad; Lat. Utilitas, (from utilis,) that may be used. See USE, USEFULNESS.

Utilitarian, (sub. and adj.) are words now in common use.

The utilities to knowe the ascencions of sygnes in the right circle is this.—Chaucer. Astrolabie.

For suche is the beneficial goodness of God, that he whiche gaue vs muche before, doeth in most ample wise augment his giftes, beecause he right wel perceyueth, that whatsoeuer was geuen, the same is distributed & bestowed to the great vtilitie of manye.—Udal. Marke, c. 4.

Where, I say, the attractive pleasure and sweetnesse of speech is not without some fruit, nor void of utility, there let us bring in withall the reason of philosophy, and make a good medly of pleasure and profit together.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 16.

Others have contended, that all difference of good and evil, and all obligations of morality, ought to be founded originally upon considerations of publick utility.
Clarke. On the Evidences, Prop. 1.

In common life we may observe, that the circumstance of utility is always appealed to; nor is it supposed that a greater eulogy can be given to any man, than to display his usefulness to the public, and to enumerate the services, which he has performed to mankind and to society.
Hume. On the Principles of Morals, pt. I. § 5.

A theory founded on utility, therefore requires that we should cultivate, as excitements to practice, those other habitual dispositions which we know by experience to be generally the source of actions beneficial to ourselves and our fellows; habits of feeling, productive of habits of virtuous conduct, and in their turns strengthened by the re-action of these last.
Sir J. Mackintosh. Progress of Ethical Philosophy, s.6.

U'TIS. The octave of a legal term or of any festival, from A. S. Eahta, eight, (Skinner,) or, he adds, in another place, the Fr. Huit.

Shakespeare is supposed to mean festivity, jollity, according to old usage, without restraint.

This knyght straunger, for the loue of these tydynges yt he had brought pleasaunt to the duke of Lancastre, and to the erle of Cambridge, he was feasted and dyned with the kynge, and so taried the space of xv. dayes, tyll the vtas of saynt George.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 380.

Than this mater was determyned, and to assemble the vtas of saint George at Westmynster.—Id. Ib. vol. ii. c. 92.

1 Draw. Then here will be old vtis: it will be an excellent stratagem.—Shakespeare. 2 Pt. Hen. IV. Act v. sc. 4.

U'TLARY, i. e. Outlawry, (qv.)

By the statute the first yeere of king Henry the fift and fift chapter, it was ordained, that in suites or in actions where processe of vtlary lieth, such addition should be to the name of the defendant, to shew his estate, mystery, and place where he dwelleth, and that such writs shall abate, if they haue not such additions, if the defendant do take exception thereat, they shall not abate by the office of the court.—Camden. Rem. Surnames.

UTO'PIAN. Fr. Utopie. An imaginary place or country, (Cotgrave.) A place of imaginary happiness; (Gr. Οὐ, and τοπος.)

I think if men, which in these places live,
Durst look in themselves, and themselves retrieve,
They would like strangers greet themselvs, seeing then
Utopian youth grown old Italian.
Donne. Let. to Sir Henry Wotton.

But let no idle Donatist of Amsterdam dreame hence of an utopicall perfection.—Bp. Hall. Works, vol. ii. p. 368.

U'TTER, adj.
U'TTER, v.
U'TTERANCE.
U'TTERER.
U'TTERING, n.
U'TTERLESS.
U'TTERLY.
U'TTERMOST.
U'TMOST.

See OUT. The verb to utter is formed upon the adj. utter, in the A. S. Ût-œrre, exterior.

Out-er or outward,—situate on the outer or exterior side; at a distance from the centre; at a great distance, a remote or an exceeding distance: and thus, generally,—remote, exceeding or excessive, extreme, beyond which nothing is; unlimited, unrestricted, unqualified.

To utter,—to put out, to expel, to eject; to come, put or send forth, to vent, to emit; to produce publicly: (met.)—to speak, to tell, to pronounce, to proclaim, to publish.

For he vtterliche leueth the kepyng of hem, and neuer, but whenne he bereth haukes, ne vseth he gloues.
R. Gloucester, p. 482.

But the sones of the rewme schal be cast out into utmer derknessis, there schal be weepynge and grynstyng of teeth.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 8.

And the children of the kyngedome shal be caste oute into vtter darcknes: there shal be wepynge and gnasshynge of teth.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

With danger uttren we all our chaffare.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 6104.

Among al this, after his wicked usage,
This markis yet his wif to tempten more
To the vttereste prefe of hire corage.
Id. Clerkes Tale, v. 8664.

And whan they herden the sentence
Of his malice, and the manace,
Anone tofore his owne face
Thei haue him vtterly refused.—Gower. Con. A. b. vii.

Also this yere was an acte of Parliament for wood and coal to kepe the fulle sise, after the purification of our ladie, that shall be in the yere of our Lorde, M. D. xliii. that no man shall bargaine, sell, bryng, or conueigh of any other sise, to be vttred or solde, vpon pain of forfaiture.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1543.

Yet did he hide within him a secret power of the nature of the godhed, which than & neuer afore vttred it self, whã the graine of his bodi was bruised on the crosse, and was in death (as it wer) buried within ye grounde.
Udal. Luke, c. 17.

Folowyng the wyl and pleasure of Jesus Chryste, whose worke I labour in to the vtterest of my power, that by the auauncyng of the glorie of his ghospell among you, whiche are Gentiles, I maye vnto hym offer a pure sacrifice.
Id. Romaines, c. 15.

Longe it were to shewe vnto you the circumstaunce of the vtterans of ye vnkyndnesse of his ii. doughters and of ye wordes of comfo[illegible]te gyuen to hym by Aganippus and Cordeilla.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 15.

And thãne they wolde haue fought with axes, but the erle wolde nat suffre theym, and sayde he wolde nat se them fight at vttraunce. sayeng, they had done ynough.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 373.

And whan he sawe his maister almost at vttraunce, he was sorie.—Id. Ib. vol. ii. c. 24.

For the lawe is not authour of synne, but the vtterer and apeacher therof.—Udal. Romaines, c. 7.

But peas was to theym vtterly denyed, except they wolde submytte theym hooly to the correccion of the pope.
Fabyan. Chron. Lowys IX. an. 3.

Anone with all ordinaunce and shot that they myght make, they dyd ye vttermost of theyr poures to let ye perfytynge of this brydge and passage of the Cristen host.
Id. Ib. Lowys X. an. 22.

Than kyng Rycharde [I.] callynge to mynde, that the vttermoste daye of the trewys, taken atwene hym and the Frenshe kynge, approched, made hym redy and sayled into Normandy.—Id. Ib. an. 1198.

The verie vtter part of Saint Adelmes point, is fiue miles from Sandwich—Holinshed. Description of Britaine, c. 12.

The name of faith being properly and strictly taken, it must needs haue reference vnto some vttered word, as the object of beliefe: neuerthelesse sith the grounde of credit is the credibilitie of things credited; and things are made credible, eyther by the knowne condition and qualitie of the vtterer, or by the manifest likelihood of truth which they haue in themselues; hereupon it riseth that whatsoeuer wee are perswaded of, the same we are said generally to beleeue.—Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. ii. § 4.

Yet if by chance, in utt'ring things abstruse,
Thou need new terms, thou mayst, without excuse,
Feign words unheard of to the well truss'd race
Of the Cethegi.—B. Jonson. Horace. Art of Poetry.

Such flights also haue the alewiues for the vtterance of this drinke, that they will mixe it with rosen and salt.
Holinshed. Description of England, b. ii. c. 6.

There be also certaine flaming torches shining out in the skie, houbeit, never seen but when they fall. Such a one was that, which at the time that Germanicus Cæsar exhibited a shew of sword-fencers at utterance, ran at noonetide in the sight of all the people.—Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 26.

Nor to be obtained by the invocation of dame Memory and her siren daughters, but by devout prayer to that eternal Spirit, who can enrich with all utterance and knowledge, and sends out his seraphim, with the hallow'd fire of his altar, to touch and purify the lips of whom he pleases.
Milton. Reason. of Church Government, b. ii.

Vtterers of secrets he from thence debard,
Babblers of folly, and blazers of crime.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 9.

O heaven! that any thing in the likeness of man should suffer these rack'd extremities, for the uttering of his sophisticate good parts.—B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act i. sc. 1.

That woman whose honour is not appeach'd, is less injur'd by a silent dismission, being otherwise not illiberally dealt with, than to endure a clamouring debate of utterless things, in a business of that ciuil secrecy and difficult discerning, or not to be overmuch question'd by nearest friends.
Milton. Doct. & Disc. of Divorce, b. ii. c. 21.

Howbeit those had forsaken his father, and taken part with him against his said father, he seemed now so much to mislike, that he remooued them vttertie from his presence.
Holinshed. Chron. of England. Rich. I. an. 1189.

That which is of God wee defend, to the vttermoste of that habilitie which he hath guen: that which is otherwise, let it wither euen in the root from whence it hath sprung.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. ii. § 1.

Why doe wretched men so much desire
To draw their dayes vnto the utmost date,
And doe not rather wish them soone expire,
Knowing the misery of their estate.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 3.

Inflam'd with these words, they all vow thir utmost, with such undaunted resolution as amaz'd the Roman general; but the souldier less waighing, because less knowing, clamour'd to be led on against any danger.
Milton. History of England, b. ii.

They are naturally mischievous to their power; and if they speak not maliciously, or sharply of witty men, 'tis only because God has not bestow'd on them the gift of utterance.—Dryden. Aurenge-Zebe, Ep. Ded.

Achilles, plunging in that part his spear,
Impell'd it through the yielding flesh, beyond
The ashen beam his pow'r of vtt'rance left
Still unimpair'd, but in the dust he fell.
Cowper. Homer. Iliad, b. xxii.

They brandished their weapons, and seemed resolved to defend their coast to the uttermost, though they were but two, and we forty.—Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 1.

——— Lo! the night is long—
A night of utmost length; nor yet the hour
Invites to sleep.—Cowper. Homer. Odyssey, b. xi.

Then, on the utmost headland of the coast
We timber fell'd, and sorrowing o'er the dead,
Water'd his fun'ral rites with many tears.—Id. Ib. b. xii.

U'VEOUS. Fr. Uvée; It. Uvea. Cotgrave calls it—"The grapie membrane (Lat. Uvea, a grape), tearmed so because it resembles the skin of a black grape."

The uveous coat or iris of the eye hath a musculous power, and can dilate and contract that round hole in it, called the pupil or sight of the eye.—Ray. On the Creation, pt. ii.

VU'LGAR, adj.
VU'LGAR, n.
VULGA'RITY.
VU'LGARLY.
VU'LGARIZE, v.
VU'LGARISM.

Fr. Vulgaire; It. Volgàre; Sp. Vulgar; Lat. Vulgaris, from Vulgus; which (Vossius thinks) may be from Gr. Οχλος, turba; Æol. Βοχλος, by transposition, βολχος, vulgus.

Of or pertaining to the multitude or many, the common people:—common, usual, ordinary, mean, low, gross; common, public.

Whiche olde Englishe wordes and vulgars no wise man because of their antiquitee will throwe aside.
Gower. Con. A. Ep. Ded.

Are not here the statelye princes of this worlde ashamed, who wyll haue nothing common with the vulgar people.
Udal. Marke, c. 1.

He that forbereth to speke, all thoughe he can doo it bothe wysely and eloquentely bycause neyther in the tyme nor in the herers, he findeth opportunitie, so that no fruite maye succede of his speche, he therfore is vulgarely called a dyscrete personne.—Sir T. Elyot. The Governovr, b. i. c. 25.

But as to the author of these soliloquies, whether it were the late king, as is vulgarly believ'd, or any secret coadjutor, and some stick not to name him; it can add nothing, nor shall take from the weight, if any be, of reason which he brings.—Milton. Ans. to Eikon Basilike, Pref.

She tells you too, how that it bounded is,
And kept enclosed with so many eyes,
As that it cannot stray and break abroad
Into the private ways of carelessness;
Nor ever may descend to vulgarise,
Or be below the sphere of her abode.
Daniel. To Lady Anne Clifford.

If they say that the variety of deities, worshipped by the heathen world, were but figurative ways of expressing the several attributes of that incomprehensible Being, or several parts of his providence: I answer, what they might be in the original, I will not here inquire: but that they were so in the thoughts of the vulgar, I think nobody will affirm.

Locke. Hum. Underst. b. i. c. 4.

If the world vulgarly doth account and call the rich man happy, a better author has pronounced the poor man such: blessed are the poor, doth march in the van of the beatitudes.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 31.

[Fletcher] without losing sight of the characters of his speakers, has never descended to vulgarism or affected obscurity.—P. Fletcher. Pisc. Ecl. Ecl. 1. Note.

Verses which a few years past, were thought worthy the attention of children only, or of the lowest and rudest orders, are now admired for that artless simplicity which once obtained the name of coarseness and vulgarity.
Knox. Ess. No. 47.

But Mrs. Cole lived in polished society, and would have turned with contempt from the reprobate vulgarity of the frequenters of Bartholomew fair.
B. Jonson. Bartholomew Fair, Act ii. sc. 1. Note by Gifford.

Their decent mode of preaching, raises a respectful attention to their doctrine, far more favourable to the advancement of religion, than learning sullied with pedantry, exhortation vulgarized by low wit, argument perplexed by scholastic subtilty, exposition spoiled by quaintness, and pious declamation rendered ludicrous by humour and ill-placed pedantry.—Knox. Ess. No. 38.

All violations of grammar, and all vulgarisms, solecisms, and barbarisms, in the conversation of boys, and also in their most familiar letters, must be noticed and corrected.
Id. Liberal Education, § 14.

VU'LGATE. The old Latin version of the Scriptures; the greater portion of which is ascribed to St. Jerome.

These translations were all of them, as has been already hinted, from the Latin Vulgate, according to which, at that time, were the lessons, which were taken out of the bible, &c. commonly read and used in our churches, which therefore gave the greater offence to the zealots of these times.
Lewis. English Translations of Bible, c. 1.

Some of the ancients, and particularly Jerom, translated the epithet Epiousios, "supersubstantial and superessential," instead of "daily," and at this hour it stands so translated in the vulgate bible, for ages the only bible of the people.—Knox. On the Lord's Supper.

VU'LNERABLE. } Fr. Vulnéraire; It. Vulnerabile; Sp. Vulnerable; Lat. Vulnerarius, vulnerare, vulnus, a wound.
VU'LNERARY, adj. }
VU'LNERARY, n. }
VU'LNERATED. }
VULNERA'TION. }
Vulnerable,—that may be wounded, hurt, harmed, or injured.

Vulnerary,—pertaining to, suited to, healing wounds.

Let fall thy blade on vulnerable crests,
I beare a charmed life, which must not yeeld
To one of woman borne.
Shakespeare. Macbeth, Act v. sc. 7.

Highly commended by Hicesius a physician of great name and authoritie, also by Aristogiton, for an excellent vulneraria.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxvii. c. 4.

Some have ordained a vulneraria drinke to be made therof for those that be wounded.—Id. Ib. b. xxvii. c. 4.

The aspect of his eye alone does sometimes become not only vulnerary, but mortal.—Feltham, pt. ii. Res. 56.

It is enough for me that, de facto, there is such an entercourse between the magnetick unguent and the vulnerated body, and I need not be solicitous of the cause.
Glanvill. Vanity of Dogmatizing, c. 21.

When God foretels by the prophet Zachary what he should suffer from the sons of men, he says expressly, "they shall look upon me whom they have pierced;" and therefore shews that he speaks of the son of God, which was to be the son of Man, and by our nature liable to vulneration; and withal foretels the piercing of his body.
Pearson. On the Creed Art. 4.

So in the right hand of Achilles beam'd
His brandish'd spear, while, meditating wo
To Hector, he explor'd his noble form,
Seeking where he was vulnerable most.
Cowper. Homer. Iliad, b. xxii.

Offer yourself as a candidate for a seat in parliament, be promoted to honour and emolument, or in any respect attract the attention of mankind upon yourself, and if you are vulnerable in your character you will be eeply wounded.
Knox. Ess. No. 85.

The gentler, the kinder, the more Christian mode of expostulation and rational concession, whatever concession can be made, may, like a balsamic vulnerary, heal the sore which opposition would cause to rankle.
Id. Christian Philosophy, § 38.

If I had not known no application had been made to it, I should certainly have enquired, with a very interested curiosity, after the vulnerary herbs and surgical art of the country.—Cook. First Voyage, b. ii. c. 9.

VU'LPINE. Fr. Vulpin,—fox-like, of a fox, (vulpes.) Lat. Vulpinus.

It requires as much policy to grow good, as great. There is an innocential providence, as well as the slyness of a vulpine craft.—Feltham, pt. i. Res. 12.

VU'LTURE. } Fr. Vaultour; It. Avvoltojo;
VU'LTUROUS. } Sp. Buitre; Lat. Vultur, a volando, ob crebrum volatum; because constantly on the wing.
Vulturous,—ravenous, voracious.

And a strange thing it is to consider, that the greedie and rauenous vultures disdeined to praye vpon any of the reliques, which remained.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 21.

The blacke vultures are the best of that kind. No man could ever meet with their nests: whereupon some have thought (but untruly) that they flie unto us out of another world, even from the antipodes, who are opposite unto us.
Holland. Plinie, b. x. c. 6.

Mont. Ye dregs of baseness, vultures amongst men
That tyre upon the hearts of generous spirits.
1 Cred. You do us wrong sir, we tyre no generous spirits - we tyre nothing but our hackneys.
Beaum. & Fletch. Honest Man's Fortune, Act ii.

——— On his bosome sat
Two vultures, digging through his caule of fat,
Into his liuer, with their crooked beakes;
And each by turnes, the concrete entraile breakes
As smith their steale beate, set on either side.
Chapman. Homer. Odyssey, b. xi.

He was shut up alone in the bladder, his vulturous stomach lets loose upon himself, and within few minutes more, one half of him devours the other.
Hammond. Works, vol. iv. p. 473.

In fine, the censorious humour, argueth ill nature to be predominant, (a vulturous nature, which easily smelleth out, and hastily fiyeth toward, and greedily feedeth on carrion.)
Barrow, vol. ii. Ser. 20.

There also Tityus on the ground I saw
Extended, offspring of the glorious earth;
Nine acres he o'respread, and, at his side
Station'd, two vultures on his liver prey'd,
Scooping his entrails; nor his hands were free
To chase them thence.—Cowper. Homer. Odyssey, b. xi.

U'VULA. Fr. Uvule; It. Ugola, from Lat. Uva; and so called (uva) quia luteo colore subrubescat, acini referens figuram, (Vossius.)

By an instrument bended up at one end, I got up behind the uvula.—Wiseman. Surgery.

UXO'RIOUS. } Lat. Uxorius, of or pertaining to a wife, (uxor.)
UXO'RIOUSLY. } Usually denoting—
UXO'RIOUSNESS. }
Too fond of a wife, too yielding, conceding and complying to a wife.

But he's an ass that will be so uxurious to tie his affections to one circle.—B. Jonson. Silent Woman, Act iv. sc. 1

Trust nothing that the boy lets fall,
My lords, he hath plots upon you all.
A pensioner unto your wives,
To keep you in uxorious gyves.—Id. Time Vindicated.

What if I had writ as your friend the author of the aforesaid Minæ, Mundus alter and idem, to have been ravish'd like some young Cephalus or Hylas, by a troop of camping housewives in Viraginea, and that he was there forced to swear himself an uxurious varlet.
Milton. An Apologie for Smectymnuus, Introd.

If thou art thus uxoriously inclin'd,
To bear thy bondage with a willing mind,
Prepare thy neck, and put it in the yoke;
But for no mercy from thy woman look.
Dryden. Juvenal, Sat. 6.

To say nothing of the carnality and uxuriousness of the Jews.—More. Mystery of Godliness, (1660,) p. 100.

W.

W hath taken his name (says Butler) not of his force, as other letters, but of his shape, which consisteth of two U's (UU); or (B. Jonson), according to our present mode of writing, it is V geminated (W) in full sound. B. Jonson adds,—Though it have the seat of a consonant with us, the power is always vowelish, even where it leads the vowel in any syllable; as, if you mark it, pronounce the two uu, like the Greek ϒ, quick in passage; and these words, uu-ine, ϒ-ine, uu-ant, ϒ-ant, suu-am, sϒ-am, will sound, wine, want, swam. Put the aspirate before, and huu-at, hϒ-at, &c. will be what, &c.

WAD. A. S. Wad, i. e. woad, (qv.)

I find also that rape olle hath beene made within this land. But now our solle either will not or at the leastwise may not beare either wad or madder: I saie not that the grounde is not able so to doo, but that we are negligent, afraid of the pilling of our grounds, and carelesse of our owne profits.—Holinshed. Description of Britaine, c. 18.

WAD, v. } Lye calls it a coarser kind of cloth, to stuff cloaths; from the Isl. Vad, vod. Skinner,—A wad of straw, fascis straminis, from A. S. Weod, straw, (i. e. weed.) Holland translates manipulus—a wad or bottle, (i. e. bundle.) Ihre says—Wad is Scythian, and to be found in every dialect of that tongue. Ger. Wad (Wachter) is,—tela, opus textum, (perhaps any thing weaved, weav'd, wead, wad,) sive pannus, sive linteum. (See WEED.) Applied first to a quantity, mass of weft or wad; then to a lump, package, bundle. Wad is now used to denote any thing pressed, squeezed, stuffed in; into a gun, clothes, &c.
WAD, n. }
WA'DDING, n. }

But to saye the trouthe, they were but poorelye armed; many had no armure but their cootes of wadmoll, and course grose clothe.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 215.

When it [lupines] is cut downe, make it into wads or bottles, [manipula,] and so burie them at the roots of trees, and vines especially.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 9.

This accident (supposed to be caused by the Centurion's wade) threw the enemy into the utmost terror, and also alarmed the commodore; for he feared lest the galeon should be burnt.—Anson. Voyages, b. ii. c. 8.

His skin with sugar being wadded,
With liquid fires his entrails burn'd.
Cowper. Ver-Vert. c. 4.

And o'er the seat with plenteous wadding stuff'd,
Induc'd a splendid cover, green and blue,
Yellow and red, of tap'stry richly wrought
And woven close, or needle-work sublime.
Cowper. Task, b. i.

WADE, v. } A. S. Wad-an; Ger. Wad-en;
WA'DDLE, v. } Dut. Waed-en; Sw. Wada, ire, ambulare,—to go, to walk, (to make way.) Generally, as now, applied,—

To walk through water, high grass, any thing impeding the motion; and hence, to move slowly and laboriously.

To waddle, (Lye thinks is a frequentative of wade,)—to move with frequent efforts on each side alternately.

Wadeth wel in the water, and wasche gow wel there.
Piers Ploulman, p. 122.

He made that the river was so smal,
That wimmen might it waden over al.
Chaucer. The Sompnours Tale, v. 7611.

Whan might is joined unto crueltee,
Alas! to depe wol the venime wade.
Id. The Monkes Tale, v. 14,413.

And this geant also gladde is,
And toke this ladie vp alofte,
And set hir on his shulder softe:
And in the floode began to wade.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

And [wee] were driuen to wade vp to the arme-holes 60 paces into the sea before wee coudde get into the boate, by reason of the shoalnesse.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol.iii. p. 811.

Deepe was he drenched to the vpmost chin,
Yet gaped still, as coueting to drinke
Of the cold liquor, which he waded in.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

Nor let the water rising high,
As thou wad'st in, make thee crie
And sob, but ever liue with me,
And not a wave shall trouble thee.
Beaum. & Fletch. Faithful Shepherdess, Act iii.

This having learnt by such as were tak'n, or had run to him, he first commands his horse to pass over; then his foot, who wadeing up to the neck went on so resolutely, and so fast, that they on the furder side, not enduring the violence, retreated and fled.
Milton. Historie of England, b. ii.

They tread and waddle all the goodly grass,
That in the field there scarce a corner was Left free by them. Drayton. The Moon-Calf.

And since that time it is a eleuen yeeres, for then she could stand alone, nay bi th' roode she could haue runne, & wadled all about.—Shakespeare. Rom. & Jul. Act i, sc. 3.

As children wading from some river's bank
First try the water with their tender feet;
Then shruddring up with cold, step back again.
Dryden. Secret Love, Act v.

Foreseeing a necessity of wading through rivers frequently in our land-march, I took care before I left the ship to provide myself a large joint of bambo, which I stopt at both ends, closing it with wax, so as to keep out any water.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1681.

As when a dab-chick waddles through the copse
On feet and wings, and flies, and wades, and hops;
So labouring on with shoulders, hands, and head,
Wide as a wind-mill all his fingers spread.
Pope. Dunciad, b. ii.

He turns, and they turn; big with care,
He waddles to his elbow-chair,
Squats down, and silent, for a season,
At last with Crape begins to reason..
Churchill. Ghost, b. iv.

We shall look upon the states of suffering as sinks and cess-pools of the universe, to drain off the evil therein from all the rest, and the drudgery of wading thro' them as a necessary service to be shared in rotation by all alike.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. iii. c. 27.

WA'FER, n. } Fr. Gauffre, goffre; Dut.
WA'FER, v. } Waefel. In Low Lat. Gafrum, (Vossius, De Vit. b. ii. c. 8.) Martinius (in voce) derives from the Gr. Καυρωιον, crustulum, a small cake. Skinner,—from the verb to wave, q.d. to raise, and when raised, moved backward and forward with the hand—in reference to the elevation of the Host.

Mynstralcie can ich nat muche. bote make men murye
As a waffrer with waffres.—Piers Ploukman, p. 253.

Wyte God quath a wafrestre. wist ich the sothe
Ich wolde no forther afot. for no freres prechinge.
Id. p. 125.

He sent hire pinnes, methe, and spiced ale,
And wafres piping hot out of the glede.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3380.

And right anon in comen tombesteres
Fetis and smale, and yonge fruitesteres,
Singers with harpes, baudes, wafereres.
Id. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,414.

Thy cheek, now flush with roses, sunk and lean,
Thy lips with rage, as any wafer thin,
Thy pearly teeth out of thy head so clean,
That when thou feedst thy nose shall touch thy chin.
Drayton, Idea 8.

John. Let's go I say:
A womans oaths are wafers, break with making.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Chances, Act ii. sc. 1.

To say nothing of the curious worke in pastrie, the fine cakes, wafers, and marchpaines, artificially carved, engraved, and painted in imagerie, as if these wantons could not live forsooth but of such devises.
Holland. Plinie, b. xix. c. 4.

The vse of wafer-cakes, the custome of godfathers and godmothers in baptisme, are things not commanded nor forbidden in the scripture, things which haue bin of old, and are retained in the church of Rome, euen at this very houre.—Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie. b. iv. § 6.

WAFT, n. } Waft, n. is the past part. of WAFT, v. } the verb to wave, (qv.)—waved,
WA'FTAGE. } wav'd, waft; and the verb,
WA'FTER. } (formed upon the noun,) To
WA FTING, n. } waft, is—
WA'FTURE. } To move, or cause to move; to impel by a waving motion, or motion of the waves, of the wind; to blow, to inflate; to move or float over or upon the waves or water; to make a waving motion, as a sign or notice; to beckon.

For all this while he waft about,
Both one day and othir,
On purpose for to hire the quest
To hangin his brothir.—Chaucer. Cokes Tale of Gamelyn.

Neither was it thought that they should get any passage at all, till the ships at Middleborough were returned into our kingdome, by the force whereof they might be the more strongly wafted ouer.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 175.

And thus marching towards our botes, we espied certaine of the countrey people on the top of Mount Warwick with a flag wafting us backe againe and making great noise.
Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 63.

And good men are tossed in a tempest, crying and praying for a safe conduct, and the sighs of their fears, and the wind of their prayers, waft them safely to their port.
Bp. Taylor, vol. i. Ser. 8.

He rather prays you will be pleas'd to see
One such to-day, as other plays shou'd be;
Where neither chorus wafts you o'er the seas,
Nor creaking throne comes down the boys to please.
B. Jonson. Every Man in his Humour, Prol.

Charon denies me waftage with the rest,
And says, my soul can never pass the river,
Till lovers' sighs on earth shall it deliver.
Daniel. Complaint of Rosamond.

The ships appointed wherein they should go,
And boats prepar'd for waftage to and fro.
Drayton. Battle of Agincourt.

Whence fir'd with hope, yet freezing with despair,
She nearer fearfully approach'd; and there
Sent him by the light waftage of the wind,
A sigh, an "Ah me," nuncios of her mind.
Sherburne. Salmacis.

Orph. Charon O Charon,
Thou wafter of the souls to bliss or bane.
Beaum. & Fletch. Mad Lover, Act iv. sc. 1.

Yet I insisted, yet you answer'd not,
But with an angry wafter of your hand
Gaue signe for me to leaue you.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar, Act ii. sc. 1.

For so have I seen the rays of the sun or moon dash upon a brazen vessel, whose lips kissed the face of those waters that lodged within its bosom; but being turned back, and sent off with its smooth pretences or rougher waftings, it wandred about the room, and beat about the roof, and still doubled its heat and motion.
Bp. Taylor. Holy Dying, c. 3. § 4.

Methought I heard a confused noise of soft complaints, gentle ecstacies, and tender sighs of lovers, vows of constancy and as many complainings of perfidiousness; all which the winds wafted away as soon as they had reach'd my hearing.
Spectator, No. 425.

In this dire season, oft the whirlwind's wing
Sweeps up the burthen of whole wintery plains
At one wide waft; Thomson. Winter.

Troil. No, Pandarus, I stalk about your door,
Like a strange soul upon the Stygian banks
Staying for waftage.—Dryden, Troil. & Cress. Act ii. sc. 2.

Though choice of follies fasten on the great,
None clings more obstinate than fancy, fond
That sacred Friendship is their easy prey;
Caught by the wafture of a golden lure,
Or fascination of a high-born smile.
Young. Complaint, Night 2.

It was calm only while we were upon the rock, except once; and even the gale that afterwards wafted us to the shore, would then certainly have beaten us to pieces.
Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 3.

WAG, v. } Goth. Wag-yan; A. S.
WAG, n. } Wag-ian; Dut. Waeghen;
WA'GGERY. } Ger. Wacken; Sw. Wagga,
WA'GGING, n. } movere, motitare, to move, to WA'GGISH. } move frequently. See WADE,
WA'GGISHLY. } WAY.
WA'GGISHNESS. } To move, to go; to move
WA'GGLE, v. } frequently, to and fro; to WA'GGLING, n. } shake. A wag,—
One who makes playful, merry motions, plays merry, frolicsome tricks or antics; a droll, a joker.

That al wagged his fleish, as a quick myre.
Piers Ploukman. Crede.

Let brynge a man in a bot. in myddes a brode water
The wynde and the water. and waggynge of the bote
Waketh the man meny tyme. to stomble yf he stande.
Id. Vision, p. 167.

By God, right by the hopper wol I stand,
(Quod John) and seen how that the corn gas in,
Yet saw I never by my fadir kin,
How that the hopper wagges til and fra.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4038.

Ouer that he had power of strength to pull vp the spere, that Alisander the noble might neuer wagge.
Chaucer. Testament of Loue, b.i.

Whanne Roberde hadde harde that message to the ende, he wagged his hede, as he that conceyued some doublenesse in this reporte.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 223.

And in the towne of Bruges, where as moost resorte was of the Frensshmen, they murmured, and were redy for waggyng of a ryasshe to make debate and stryfe.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 59

So these two champions to the ground were feld
Where in a maze they both did long remaine,
And in their hands their idle troncheons held,
Which neither able were to wag, or once to weld.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 4.

Just. Go to, go to, you have a merry meaning, I have found you sir, i' faith, you are a wag, away.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Coxcomb, Act v.

—— Look all these ladies eyes,
And see if there he not concealed lies;
Or in their bosoms, 'twixt their swelling breasts.
The wag affects to make himself such nests,
Perchance he hath got some simple heart, to hide
His subtle shape in.—B. Jonson. Hue & Cry after Cupid.

My lord Digby having spoken something in the house of commons, for which they would have question'd him, was presently called to the upper house. He did by the Parliament as an ape when he hath done some waggery; his master spies him, and he looks for his whip, that before he can come at him, Whip (says he) at the top of the house.
Selden. Table-Talk, p. 102.

As for the white poplar or aspen tree, it maketh little or no shade at all, the leaves keepe such a wagging and trembling, and never hang still.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 12.

Now blushing, now smiling, which you may help much with a wanton wagging of your head, thus, (a feather will teach you.)—B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act ii. sc. 1.

As waggish boys in game themselves forswear
So the boy Love is perjur'd every where.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream, Act i. sc. 1.

Cler. Faith, now we are in private, let's wanton it a little, and talk waggishly.—B. Jonson. Silent Woman, Act v. sc. 1.

A Christian boy in Constantinople, had like to have been stoned, for gagging, in a waggishnesse, a long billed fowle.
Bacon. Ess. Of Goodness of Nature.

Nor that the herne on her smooth wing relying
Presumes to reach the skyes with lofty flying;
Nor that the crow wagging along the shore
Dives downe, and seemes t' anticipate a shoure.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. v

Ursula. I know you by the wagling of your head.
Shakespeare. Much Adoe about Nothing, Act ii. sc. 1.

With us all order and decency in this point is perverted by the insipid mirth of certain animals we usually call wags. A wag is the last order even of pretenders to wit and good humour.—Tatler, No. 184.

The road being obstructed by a gate, the dog was commanded to open it: the poor cur looked up and wagged his tail: but the master, to shew the impatience of his temper, drew a pistol and shot him dead.—Id. No. 231.

Whether or no the pastry-cook had made use of it through chance or waggery, for the defence of that superstitious viande, I know not; but upon the perusal of it, I conceived so good an idea of the author's [Mr. Baxter] piety, that I bought the whole book.—Spectator, No. 85.

John Birkenhead, who pleased the generality of readers with his waggeries and buffoonaries, far more than Heylin.
Wood. Athenæ Oxon. vol. ii.

There was a waggish and merry ballad that went from hand to hand in MS. concerning these petty controversies between the two baronets, and great sport there was made among idle and vain gentlemen concerning the punctilio's and minute things they insisted on.—Id. Ib.

And own the Spanish did a waggish thing,
Who crept our ears, and sent them to the king.
Pope. Epil. to Sat. Dial. 1.

Nothing can be more harmless than wagging your finger considered in it self, yet if the finger rest against the trigger of a loaded musket and a man stand just before, you cannot do a wronger thing, and why?
Search. Light of Nature, vol. i. pt. ii. c. 28

The heir has of late, by the instigation of his sisters, began to harass her with clownish jocularity; he seems inclined to make his first rude essays of waggery upon her.
Rambler, No. 149.

WA'GES. } By the mere change of g into WAGE, v. } w is the Fr. Gage, a pawn or WA'GER, n. } pledge, in English also a Gage.
WA'GER, v. } (See GAGE.) Plural, "gages, WA'GERER. } wages, hire, stipend," (Cot-WA'GING, n. } grave.) Wages, plural—

That for which any persons gage, or engage, or bind themselves to perform certain duties.

Wage, wager, or gage,—a pledge, a stake; a pledge of battle, or to maintain or carry on battle; and—

To wage is—to gage, or—

To engage, (in battle, or war;) to engage in, to undertake, to commence, to carry on.

A wager is also—a pledge, a stake; and to lay a wager,—to lay down a pledge or surety; to bet.

"Sir Rauf thou resceyued tho, bi taile & bi scrite, Thou did vs more trauaile, ilk man thou reft his wage."
R. Brunne, p. 319.

Symon was austere, to Rauf spak fulle grim:
"That mad the Tresorere thou has desceyued him, & me & many mo, fro our wages gede quite."—Id. Ib.

& wild gif no wages to the folk ther ware,
Therfor gomen & pages home gan alle fare—Id. p. 207.

And yf thei wage men to werre. thei wryten hem in nūbre
Wol ne treserour take hem wages. travayle thei neve so sore.—Piers Plouhman, p. 405.

For the wagis of synne is deeth, the grace of God is euerlastynge lyf in Crist Jesu oure Lord.—Wiclif. Rom. c.6

And good wagers among us there we laid,
Which of us was atired most goodlest,
And of us all which should be praised best.
Chaucer. Assemblie of Ladies.

The Saxons as theyr sowdiours shul defende the lande from incursion of all enemyes. For the whiche the Brytons shulde gyue to theym competent mete and wages.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 83.

And ye same season there was a wage of batell before the Frenche kyng, bytwene two noble and expert knyghtes, syr Aymon of Pommiers, and syr Fouques of Archiai.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 216.

And holding them [the wiues and children of their poore tenants] in such slauery as though they had beene no better then dogges, would wage them against a grayhound or spaniell, and he who woon the wager should euer after holde them as his proper goods and chattels, to do with them as he listed, being Christians as well as themselues, if they may deserue so good a name.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 309.

Which to express, who could refrain from tears?
What Myrmidon, or yet what Dolopes?
What stern Ulysses waged soldier?
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Well, quod the kyng, laye a wager you and I who shall be there sonest. I am content, quod the duke; for he was euer redy to wyn money of the kyng.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 165.

The which offer ye kynge acceptyd, and after entryd the towne, of whome the kynge receyuyd xl. M. frankys, or iiii. M. li. sterlynge, towarde the wagynge of his knyghtys.
Fabyan. Chronycle. Charlys VII. an. 8.

Where by Tom Thum a fairy page
He sent it, and doth him engage,
By promise of a mighty wage,
It secretly to carry.—Drayton. Nymphidia

Then had not that confus'd succeeding age
Our fields ingrain'd with blood, our rivers dy'd
With purple streaming wounds of our own rage,
Nor seen our princes slaughter'd, peers destroy'd,
Then had'st not thou, dear country, com'd to wage
War with thyself, nor those afflictions try'd
Of all consuming discord here so long.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. iii.

——— Till at the last
I seem'd his follower, not partner; and
He wadg'd me with his countenance, as if
I had bin mercenary.
Shakespeare. Coriolanus, Act v. sc. 5.

I am not able to wage war with him,
Yet must maintain the thing, as my own right.
B. Jonson. Staple of News, Act v. sc. 1.

Qu. And who shall be the champions?
Sel. I beg the honor, for Eubulus cause
To be ingag'd, if any for Macarius,
Worthy to wager heart with mine, accept it.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Coronation, Act i.

Full fast she fled, ne euer lookt behind,
As if her life vpon the wager lay.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 3.

We do not (like those in the prophet) spend our labour for that which satisfieth not, nor spend our money for that which is not bread; for both temporal prosperity and eternal felicity are the wages of the labour which we take therein.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 3.

In knots they stand, or in a rank they walk,
Serious in aspect, earnest in their talk:
Factious, and fav'ring this or t'other side,
As their strong fancies, and weak reason guide:
Their wagers back their wishes.
Dryden. Palamon & Arcite, b. iii.

Among many other things which your own experience must suggest to you, it will be very obliging if you please to take notice of wagerers.—Spectator, No. 145.

The produce of labour constitutes the natural recompence or wages of labour.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 8.

The war in which the Saviour is engaged is very different from the wars which the princes of the world wage upon one another; it is not for the destruction of the lives of men, but for the preservation of their souls.
Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 6.

WA'GON, or Wa'ggon. Wa'ggoner. Wa'ggonry. A. S. Wæg-en; Dut. Waeghen; Ger. Wagen; Sw. Wagn, from the verb Wæg-an, to carry, to bear. (See WEIGH.) As currus, a currendo, so with the Ger. Wagen, from weg-en, movere, (says Wachter.) See WAG, and WAIN; and the quotation from Goldinge's Cæsar.

A carriage, used in war, to carry loads, &c.

And whan these lordes sawe none other remedy, they trussed all their harnes in waganes, and retourned to the hoost before Tourney.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 62.

In the meanewhile the wagoners withdrawe themselues somewhat out of the battell, and set their wagons in such order, that if they be ouercharged by the ennemye, they may haue spedye and handesome recours vnto them.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 165.

One of the wheeles of the wagon wherin I was, brake, so that by that meanes the other wagons went afore, and the wagon-man that had charge of me set an Indian carpenter a worke to mend the wheele.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 484.

The Phrygians invented first the waggon and chariot with foure wheeles.—Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 56.

And backe returning tooke her wonted way,
To runne her timely race, whilst Phœbus pure
In westerne waues his weary wagon did recure.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 5.

By this, the Northern wagoner had set
His seuenfold teme behind the stedfast star,
That was in ocean waues yet neuer wet.—Id. Ib. c. 2.

And he that sets to his hand, though with a good intent to hinder the shogging of it, in this unlawful waggonry wherein it rides, let him beware it be not fatal to him as it was to Uzza.
Milton. Reason. of Church Government, b. i. c. 1.

Thus o're the Elean plains thy well-breath'd horse
Impels the flying car, and wins the course,
Or, bred to Belgian waggons, leads the way
Untir'd at night, and chearful all the day.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iii.

Begin when the slow waggoner descends,
Nor cease your sowing till Mid-winter ends.—Id. Ib. b. i.

The waggoner soon understands that the road is as free for him as for the coachman,—that if the magistrate connives at the one he cannot enforce the other; and the Sunday traveller now breaks the sabbath without any advantage gained in the safety or pleasure of his journey.
Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 23.

WAIL, v. Wail, n. Wa'ilful. Wa'iling, n. Serenius,—from the Goth. Wail, planctus, waila, vociferari; and this is probably the A. S. Gyllan, giellan, gal-an, ejulare, ululare, to yell; and hence also the It. Giulare, and Lat. Ejulare.

To utter loudly, (sc.) grief, sorrow; to complain, to lament, to moan, to deplore.

By for the crois on my knees knocked ich my brest
Sykinge for my sennes. segginge my paternoster
Wepynge and wailinge. tyl ich was a slepe.
Piers Plouhman, p. 81.

But to whom shal I gesse this generacioun lyk? it is lyk to children sittynge in chepynge that crien to her peeris, and seyn we have sungen to you: and ye han not daunsid, we have mourned to you: and ye han not weyled [planxistis.]
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 11.

Or hast thou some remorce of conscience?
And art now fall in some deuocion
And wailest for thy sinne and thine offence..
Chaucer. Troil. & Cres. b. i.

Weping and wailing, care and other sorwe
I have ynough, on even and on morwe,
Quod the marchant, and so have other mo,
That wedded ben.—Id. Marchantes Prologue, v. 9089.

Cassandra whan she herde of this,
The whiche to Paris sister is:
Anone she gan to wepe and wayle.—Gower Con A. B.

We haue played you pleasaunt thynges vpon our pypes, and ye haue not daunced: we haue played you sorowfull thynges, and ye haue not wayled.—Udal. Matthew, c. 11

And with their bloody hands, in cruelty do frame
The wailful works that scourge the poor, without regard of blame.—Surrey. Paraphrase on Psalm 73.

——— O queen! it is thy will
I should renew a woe, can not be told,
How that the Greeks did spoil, and ouerthrow
The Phrygian wealth, and wailful realm of Troy.
Id. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

And happiest is the seed that never did conceive;
That never felt the wailful wrongs that mortal folk receive.
Id. Paraphrase on Ecclesiastes, c. 4.

But the palace within confounded was
With wailing, and with rueful shrieks and cries.
Id. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Who now has time to waile Plebeian fates?
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. ii.

O what availes it of immortall seed
To been ybred and neuer borne to die!
Farre better I it deeme to die with speed,
Then waste in woe and wailefull miserie!
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 4.

——— Dost thou come to mock me?
Del. I do, and I do laugh at all thy sufferings:
I that have wrought 'em, come to scorn thy wailings.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Prophetess, Act iii. sc. 3.

To fret and wail at that, which, for all we can see, proceedeth from good intention, and tendeth to good issue, is pitiful frowardness.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 23.

This is her house, where the sun never dawns,
The bird of night sits screaming o'er the roof,
Grim spectres sweep along the horrid gloom,
And nought is heard but wailings and lamentings.
Rowe. Jane Shore, Act v.

——— The females, I suppose,
Whom Athelwood has left my child's attendants;
That, when she waits the absence of her lord,
Their lenient airs, and sprightly-fancied songs,
May steal away her woes. Mason. Elfrida.

WAI'MENT, v. Wai'menting, n. Waimenta'tion. In Fr. Guementer, guermenter, to lament, mourn, complain, groan; also, to fret, afflict, or vex himself, (Cotgrave.)

Menage endeavours to form it from the Lat. Quærere or quæritare.

But swiche a crie and swiche a wo they make,
That in this world ni's creature living,
That ever herd swiche another waimenting.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 905.

But it were all to long for to devise
The grete clamour, and the waimenting,
Whiche that the ladies made at the brenning
Of the bodies. Id. Ib. v. 998.

For as sayth Salomon; Who so that had the science to know the peines that ben established and ordeinned for sinne, he wold forsake sinne. That science, saith Seint Austin, maketh a man to waimenten in his herte.
Id. Persones Tale.

Till at the last of briddes a score,
Come and sembled at the place
Where the window broken was,
And made swiche wamentacioun,
That pity was to heare the soun.—Id. Dreame.

But soone as life recouered had the raine,
She made so pittious moane and deare wayment,
That the hard rocks could scarce from teares refraine.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 4.

WAIN. A corruption of wagon,—wag'n, wan, or wain.

And so gret forst in wynter there com al so god,
That ther nas non so heuy charge of wagn, ne of other thyng,
That me ne mygte ouer grete wateres bothe lede & brynge
R. Gloucester, p. 416.

——— Go back again,
Bootes, thou that driv'st thy frozen wain
Round as a ring, and bring a second night
To hide my sorrows from the coming light.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act iv.

I vse the word carrucata or carruca, which is a waine load, and, as I remember, vsed by Plinie, lib. 33. cap. 11.
Holinshed. Chron. Description of Britaine, c. 18.

As when the fiery mouthed steeds, which drew
The sunnes bright waine to Phaeton's decay.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 8.

So when the never settled Scythian
Removes his dwelling in an empty wain.
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 8.

Cypress provides for spokes, and wheels of wains.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. ii.

The wain goes heavily, impeded sore
By congregated loads adhering close
To the clogg'd wheels. Cowper. Task, b. iv.

WA'INSCOT, n. / WA'INSCOT, v. / WA'INSCOTTING, n. } Dut. Waeghen - schot, waege-schot, from waeghe, fluctus, (see WAG,) a wave, (says Kilian:) and Skinner inclines to an opinion, that wainscot was so called from the waving veins or fibres of the material. The quotation from Pliny in some degree confirms this. Scot, in Dut. Schot, beschot, which Kilian calls contignatio intermedia, and Ger. Ge-schoss, are from the A.S. Scitt-an, Dut. Schiet-en, schutten, Ger. Schiessen; schutten, to shut; and hence,—to close, to inclose. And hence, wainscot,—

Any inclosure, side of a room or other building, formed of materials (deals) resembling or presenting the resemblance of waving lines, now commonly of any kind of boards, and sometimes even of other materials.

The deals of oaks are especially called wainscot.

This rascal fears neither God nor man, he has been so beaten: sufferance has made him wainscot.
Beaum. & Fletch. A King & No King, Act v.

Also in all seelings and wainscot whatever it be, whether Greekish, Campaine, or Sicilian, it [firre] runs alwaies round and winding, like the tendrils of a vine, as the ioyer runneth over the painels and quarters with his plainer.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 42.

He replyed smiling, that complements were not in use in Bensalem; and taking me by the hand, he led me into an handsome square chamber wainscotted with cedar, which fill'd the room with a very grateful odour.—Glanvill, Ess. 7.

After the king was murdered, he laid by all his collections of the pleas of the crown; that they might not fall into ill hands, he hid them behind the wainscotting of his study.
Burnet. Life of Hale.

When he is pleased with any thing that is acted upon the stage, [he] expresses his approbation by a loud knock upon the benches or the wainscot, which may be heard over the whole theatre.—Spectator, No. 235.

When the important day arrives, the two doughty disputants go into a large dusty room full of dirt and cobwebs, with walls and wainscot decorated with the names of former disputants, who, to divert the tedious hours, cut out their names with their pen-knives, or wrote verses with a pencil.
Knox. Ess. No. 77.

WAIST. See WASTE.

WAIT, v. / WAIT, n. / WA'ITER. / WAITS. } Fr. Guetter, aguetter; Ger. Wachten, is the same word as watch, differently written and pronounced.

To watch or be on the watch; to be vigilant, attentive, observant; to attend, to observe; to lie, stay, or keep—upon the look out, in attendance, in observation, in expectation; to stay, to expect.

Waits, is a name applied to musicians, who go round in the night, and wake the neighbourhood with their music and the congratulations of the season.

Hir frendes fulle faste waited aboute & woke,
& Mald at the last kyng Steuen scho toke,
& led him to Bristow. R. Brunne, p. 120.

And al the Lordeshep of Lecherye. in lengthe and in brede
As in workes and in wordes. waitinges of eyes.
Piers Ploughman, p. 29.

Britheren, be ghe my foloweris, and waite ghe hem that walken so as ghe han oure fourme.—Wiclif. Filipensis, c. 3.

For whether that he paide, or toke by talle,
Algate he waited so in his achate,
That he was ay before in good estate.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 574.

For all thy song, and all thy minstralcie,
For all thy waiting, blered is thin eye,
With on of litel reputation.
Id. The Manciples Tale, v. 17,202.

And certes, lord, to abiden your presence
Here in this temple of the goddesse Clemence
We han ben waiting all this fourtenight.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 932.

And this maner of vsage in my seruice, wisely nedeth to be ruied, from waiters with enuie closed, from speakers full of langeling wordes, from proude folke and hautin, that lam.es and innocentes both scornen and despisen.
Id. Testament of Loue, b. iii.

is cardinall his time hath waited.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

And these varlettes, whan thei had brought hym home to his house, than they shulde go to dyner where they lyst, and after dyner returne agayne into the strete before his lodgyng, and there abyde tyll he come out, and to wayt on him tyll souper tyme.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 29.

If such Pharisees beeyng duelyt olde of their ill doinges thei dooe not emende, their coumpaignie must be shunned, seeing thei are vneurable: and the simple are to be warned that thei beware of the same secte, liyng in a waite for them.—Udal. Luke, c. 21.

The erle departed, and going his way sate downe at the galleries ende in the halfe place upon a forme, that was standing there for the waiters ease, and calling his sonne thither said unto him to this effect.
Wyat. Account of Q. Anne Bulleine.

One day, as he forepassed by the plaine
With weary pase, he farre away espide
A couple (seeming well to be his twaine,)
Which houed close vnder a forest side,
As if they lay in wait, or else themselues did hide.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 10.

Fab. The touch is excellent, let's be attentive.
Jac. Hark, are the waits abroad?
Fab. Be softer prethee,
'Tis private musick.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Captain, Act ii. sc. 2.

There's two shillings,
Let's have the waits of Southwark,
They are as rare fellows as any are in England.
Id. Knight of the Burning Pestle, Prol.

Pha. What sawcy groom knocks at this dead of night?
Where be our waiters? by my vexed soul,
He meets his death, that meets me, for this boldness.
Id. Philaster, Act ii.

You have bestowed; a ribbon, or a glove.
Cla. Nay, those are tokens for a waiting-maid
To trim the butler with.—Id. Love's Cure, Act ii. sc. 2.

In dinner time he twice chang'd his crown, his waiters thrice their apparel; to whom the emperor in like manner gives both bread and drink with his own hands: which they say is done to the intent that he may perfectly know his own houshold.—Milton. History of Muscovia, c. 5.

On the east side of this channel all our fleet lay waiting for the Lima fleet, which we were in hopes would come this way.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1685.

The waits often help him through his courtship; and my friend Banister has told me, he was proffered five hundred pounds by a young fellow, to play but one winter under the window of a lady, that was a great fortune, but more cruel than ordinary.—Tatler, No. 222.

We change our taverns according as he suspects any treasonable practices in the settling the bill by the master, or sees any bold rebellion in point of attendance by the waiters.
Spectator, No. 508.

Entering the tavern where we met every evening, I found the waiters remitted their complaisance, and, instead of contending to light me up stairs, suffered me to wait for some minutes by the bar.—Rambler, No. 26.

WAKE, v. / WAKE, n. / WA'KEFUL. / WA'KEFULLY. / WA'KEFULNESS. / WA'KEN, v. / WA'KENER. / WA'KENING, n. / WA'KER. / WA'KING, n. } See AWAKE, and WATCH. A.S. Awacian, wac-ian; Ger. Wachten; Dut. Waeken; Sw. Waka, vigilare, excubare, to be vigilant; to raise, rise, or rouse.

To rouse, (sc.) the senses from inertness or inaction, from dormancy, from sleep; to rouse, to be or cause to be alert, to excite, to quicken.

A wake is a feast kept on the first day of the consecration of a church, and on the anniversary of it; and so called because the night is spent awake (in watching), and partly in singing; they were subsequently transformed into meetings of amusement and pastime, conviviality and licentiousness.

Liche-wake,—a watching of the dead.

Wake of a ship,—course kept or watched.

The Scottis did first mys, thei wakend alle that wouh.
R. Brunne, p. 271.

He fond fulle wele & sone, that Harald nought ne slepe,
To proue with dede to done fulle wakand on him lepe.
Id. p. 71.

Hir frendes fulle faste waited aboute & woke,
& Mald at the last kyng Steuen scho toke,
& led him to Bristow. Id. p. 120.

And he cam to hise disciplis and founde hem slepinge and he seide to Petre, so wher ye myghten not oon our wake with me? Wake ye and preie ye that ye entre not into temptacioun, for the spirit is redy but the flesch is syk.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 26.

Tweyne in a bed the toon schal be taken and the tother left. Therfore wake ye, for ye witen not in what our the Lord schal come.—Id. Ib. c. 24.

Two shal be grindinge at the myll the one shal be receaued, & the other shal be refused. Wake therfore, because ye knowe not what houre your master wil come.
Bible, 1551. c. 24.

In pereils in the sée, in pereils among false britheren, in trauell and nedynesse, in manye wakingis, in hungur and thirst, in manye fastyngis, in coold and nakidnesse.
Wiclif. 2 Corynth, c. 11.

But in the fourthe wakyng of the nyght he cam to hem walkynge above the see.—Id. Matthew, c. 14.

For in his herte he could well divine,
That Troilus al night for sorow woke,
And that he would tell him of his pine,
This knew he well ynough without boke.
Chaucer. Troil. & Cres. b. v.

The waker gose, the cuckowe euer vnkind.
Id. Assemblie of Fowles.

Lordings, the time it wasteth night and day,
And steleth from us, what prively sleping,
And what thurgh negligence in our waking,
As doth the streme, that turneth never again.
Id. Man of Lawes Prol. v. 4443.

For as sayth Seint Bernard, while that I live, I shal have remembrance of the travailes that our Lord Jesu Crist suffered in preching, his werinesse in traveling, his temptations whan he fasted, his long wakinges whan he prayed, his teres whan he wept for pitee of good peple: the wo and the shame, and the filthe that men sayden to him.
Id. The Persones Tale.

Ne how Arcite is brent to ashen cold;
Ne how the liche-wake was yhold
All thilk night, ne how the Grekes play
The wake-places—ne kepe I not to say.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2962.

Of all my life in to nowe.
Als ferforth as I can vnderstonde,
Yet toke I neuer slepe on honde,
What it was tyme for to wake.—Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

But netheles to speake it playne,
All this that I haue sayde you here,
Of my wakynge, as ye maie here,
It toucheth to my lady swete. Id. Ib.

Johan Lyon was well aduertysed of all these matters: than he began a lytell to wake, and sayd to hymselfe, I haue slept a season: but it shall apere that for a small occasyon I shall wake.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 348.

Great solemnytes were made in all churches, and great fyers and wakes, throughout all Englande.—Id. Ib. c. 69.

The cõstable caused to be made in Bretaygne of tymbere a closure of a towne, or lyke a parke, yt whē they had take lande in Englãde, to close in theyr felde, to lodge therī more at theyr ease, wtout wakyng or skries.
Id. Ib. vol. ii. c. 49.

I woulde ye shoulde be more worthie mẽbres of Christes body, continue in prayer, not as dull and heauye people by reason of any surfetyng, but as sober & wakefull.
Udal. Colossians, c. 4.

Even of vices he made his profit, making the cowardly Clinias to have care of the watch, which he knew his own fear would make him very wakefully perform.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. iii.

And every village smokes at wakes with lusty cheer.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 27.

Clo. Faith some pretty fellow,
With a clean strength, that cracks a cudgel well
And dances at a wake, and plays at nine-holes.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Captain, Act i. sc. 2.

The wood-nymphs deck'd with daisies trim,
Their merry wakes and pastimes keep.—Milton. Comus.

It is not iron bands, nor hundred eyes,
Nor brazen walls, nor many wakefull spyes
That can withhold her wilfull wand'ring feet;
But fast good will with gentle courtesies,
And timely seruice to her pleasures meet
Make her perhaps containe, that else would algates fleet.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 9.

"But after, bolden'd with my first successe,
I durst essay the new-found paths, that led
To slavish Mosco's dullard sluggishnesse;
Whose slotheful Sunne all winter keeps his bed
But never sleeps in summer's wakefulnesse."
P. Fletcher. Piscatory Eclogues, Ecl. 1.

Look with the eyes of heaven that nightly waken,
To view the wonders of the glorious Maker,
And not the weakness.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act v.

He therefore with a wak'n'd spirit, to the extent of his fortune dilating his mind, which in his mean condition before lay contracted and shrunk up, orders with good advice his military affairs.
Milton. Historie of England, b. ii.

——— Reason, the power
To guess at right and wrong, the twinkling lamp
Of wand'ring life, that winks and wakes,
Fooling the follower betwixt shade and shining.
Congreve. Mourning Bride, Act iii.

——— Ingrateful woman!
Who follow'd me, but as the swallow summer,
Hatching her young ones in my kindly beams,
Singing her flatt'ries to my morning wake.
Dryden. All for Love, Act v.

The warlike wakes continu'd all the night,
And fun'ral games were plaid at new-returning light.
Id. The Knight's Tale, b. iii.

In a storm they will hover close under the ship's stern, in the wake of the ship (as 'tis call'd) or the smoothness which the ship's passing has made on the sea.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1699.

About noon the commodore was little more than a league from the galeon, and could fetch her wake, so that she could not now escape.—Anson. Voyages, b. iii. c. 8.

Should wakeful Dulness, if she ever wake,
Write sleepy nonsence but for writing's sake,
And, stung with rage, and piously severe,
Wish better comforts to your dying ear.
Lloyd. Epis. to C. Churchill.

Perhaps, to each individual of the human species, nature has ordained the same quantity of wakefulness and sleep.
Adventurer, No. 39.

It was therefore necessary that this universal reluctance should be counteracted, and the drowsiness of hesitation wakened into resolve; that the danger of procrastination should be always in view, and the fallacies of security be hourly detected.—Idler, No. 43.

WAKE-ROBIN. So called (Skinner) because its acrimony will awake the sleeping.

And the bear so soon as she is gon out of her den, seeketh out the first thing that she doth, the wilde herbe called Aron, that is to say wake-robin, for the acrimony and sharpness thereof openeth her bowels.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 793.

WALK, v.
WALK, n.
WA'LKER.
WA'LKING, n.

Ger. Wall-en, ire, egredi, ambulare, (Wachter.) Skinner thinks walk is from the A. S. Wealc-an, to roll; and Somner suggests the same origin, in v. Wealc-an, to rowle, to turne, to tumble, to revolve, to rowle back, to turne up and downe, to returne often; hereof (he adds) probably our to walk, ambulare.

To walk, as a species of voluntary motion, is distinguished in bipeds from to run; in quadrupeds from to run, to trot, to canter, to gallop.

To walk yarne (in Rastall), is—to tread it, to press it, (Skinner.)

Walk, n.—is applied to the motion, the gait; the way or path, the course or track.

He seyde of swich folke that so aboute wente,
Wepyng, I warne you of walkers aboute.
Piers Plouhman. Crede.

Al ich sauh slepyng as ge shullen hure after
Bothe bakers & buyers, bouchers & othere
Webbesters and walkers, an wynners wt handen.
Id. Vision, p. 11.

What is lightere to seye to the syk man in palesye, synnes be forghiven to thee; or to seye, rise, take thi bed and walke?
Wiclif. Mark, c. 2.

Whether is it easyer to saye to the sycke of the palsye, thy synnes are forgeuen the: or to say, arise, take vp thy bed, and walcke?—Bible, 1551. Ib.

But in the fourthe wakyng of the nyght he cam to hem walkynge above the see, and thei seyinge him walkinge on the see weren disturblid and seiden that it is a fantum and for drede thei crieden.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 14.

And in the fourth watche of the night Jesus came vnto theym walckynge on the sea. And when his disciples sawe him walckynge on the sea, they were troubled, saying: it is some sprite, and cryed out for feare.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

God hath taken this kyngdome into the handes of enemyes for a tyme, and fyndes [fiends] walke and destoble ye people.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 214.

The great indignacion of God prouoked by our sinne & wretchednes, shal suffer the head of al heretikes Antechrist (of whō these folke bee thefore walkers) to come into thys wretched world.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 287.

Item. That the walker, and fuller shall truly walke, ful, thicke, and worke every webbe of woollen yarne, which he shall have to walke, ful, thicke & worke, without any flocks, &c.—Rastal. Coll. of Stat. Hen. VIII. an. 6.

Zacharias the preste and Helizabeth hys wyfe, were both chast, the gospell sayeth, if chastyte be a perfeccyon, and a walkynge in the lawes and ordynaunces of God wythout reproue.—Bale. Apology, fol. 35.

From euery coast that heauen walks about,
Haue thither come the noble martiall crew,
That famous hard atchiuements still pursew.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 7.

How long might I have walkt without a cloak,
Before I should have met with such a fortune.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Custom of the Country, Act ii.

And all without were walkes and all eyes dight,
With diuers trees, enrang'd in euen rankes.
And here and there were pleasant arbors pight,
And shadie seats, and sundry flouring bankes,
To sit, and rest the walkers' weary shankes.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 10.

Simus took pleasture in painting a yong man lying asleepe in a waulke-mill or fullers worke-house.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxv. c. 11.

And [he] presently delivered into his hand a walking-staff with which he professed he had travelled through many parts of Germany. And he said, Richard, I do not give, but lend you my horse.—Walton. Life of Hooker.

You might have spar'd your drum, and guns, and pikes too,
For I am none that will stand out sir, I.
You may take me in with a walking-stick,
Even when you please, and hold me with a packthred.
Beaum. & Fletch. Beggar's Bush, Act v. sc. 1.

He [child] is become able perhaps to walk by himself, but what path to choose he knows not, cannot distinguish his safety and danger, his advantages and disadvantages; nor, in general, good and evil.—Wollaston. Relig. of Nature, s. 8.

Mr. Banks in his morning walk this day met a number of the natives whom, upon enquiry, he found to be travelling musicians; and having learnt where they were to be at night, we all repaired to the place.
Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 14.

The forms and turnings of the streets of London, and other old towns, are produced by accident, without any original plan or design: but they are not always the less pleasant to the walker or spectator.
Reynolds, vol. ii. Dis. 13.

WALL, n.
WALL, v.

Dut. Ger. and Sw. Wall, A. S. Weal, which the etymologists derive from the Lat. Vallum. Tooke, on the other hand, derives vallum, and the northern word wall, from the A. S. Wil-an, to join together, to consolidate, to cement. We apply the word to—

Any materials, brick, stone, mud, clay, wood, &c. consolidated, cemented, or fastened together.

The A. S. Weal was not only so applied, but also to the mortar, or that by which the materials are cemented or connected.

Wall-flower, wall-wort, &c.—so called (Skinner) because they principally grow on or near walls.

Agen Alle Halwe churche, the verste dich hii nome,
& brake the otemoste wal, & withinne come.
R. Gloucester, p. 549.

The engyns with oute, to kast were thei sette,
Wallis & kirnels stoute, the stones doun bette.
R. Brunne, p. 326.

He made a maner morter. and mercy hit hihte
And ther with grace, by gan to make a good foundement
And watelide hit and wallyde hit with hus peynes and hus passion.
Piers Plouhman, p. 383.

For he is oure pees that made bothe oon and unbyndynge the myddil wal of a wal withouten morter.
Wiclif. Effesies, c. 2.

For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath brokē doune the wall that was a stoppe betwene vs.
Bible, 1551. Ib

I saw a garden right anone
Full long and brode, and eueridele
Enclosed was, and walled well
With hie wales enbatailed.—Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Certes the king of Thebes, Amphioun,
That with his singing walled the citee,
Could never singen half so wel as he.
Id. Manciples Tale, v. 17,067.

The stronge walles downe thei bete,
So that in to the large strete
This horse with great solemnitee
Was brought within the citee.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

The whiche byssbop had made there a stronge garyson, so that this castell doubted none assaute, for therī was a square toure thick walled, and fensably furnisshed for the warre.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 209.

And it was seated in an island strong,
Abounding all with delices most rare,
And wall'd by nature gainst invaders wrong.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 10.

In three [battels] he beat the thunder-bolt his brother,
Forc'd him to wall himself up.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act i.

They gave them also thir help to build a new wall, not of earth as the former, but of stone (both at the public cost, and by particular contributions) traversing the ile in direct line from east to west, between certain cities placed there as frontiers to bear off the enemy, where Severus had wall'd once before.—Milton. Historie of England, b. iii.

The smoke or perfume also of walwort (a common hearbe and known to every man) chaseth and putteth to flight any serpents.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxv. c. 10.

That castle, were it wall'd with adamant,
Can hide thy head, but till to-morrow's dawn.
Dryden. King Arthur, Act ii.

Having mentioned a house, it may not be amiss to observe, that some here differ from those I saw at the other isles; being inclosed or walled on every side, with reede neatly put together, but not close.
Cook. Second Voyage, b. iii. c. 2.

WALL. Skinner writes—"Wall or whall ey, a disease of horses; I know not whether from any likeness to the eyes of the whale fish." Mr. Brocket says—"In those parts of the north, with which I am best acquainted, persons are said to be wall-eyed, when the white of the eye is very large, and to one side. On the Borders, sic folks, are considered unlucky." The author of the Craven Glossary explains wall-een, to mean white or green (grey). Grose defines it,—"An eye with little or no sight, all white like a plaistered wall." Cooper, in his Thesaurus, 1573, renders glauciolus—

A horse with a waicle eye.

Wall-eyed wrath, in Shakespeare, seems to correspond with the Lat. Glauci, oculi, which Cooper renders, eyes with furie (fierie) ruddinesse.

Wall or whall, whally, whally-eyed, are from the A. S. Hwel-an, contabescere, putrescere.

And next to him rode lustful Lechery
Upon a bearded gote, whose rugged heare,
And whally eies, (the signe of gelosy)
Was like the person selfe whom he did beare.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 4.

——— This is the bloodiest shame
The wildest sauagery, the vildest stroke
That euer wall-ey'd wrath, or staring rage
Presented to the teares of soft remorse.
Shakespeare. King John, Act iv. sc. 3.

Say, wall-ey'd slave, whither wouldst thou convey
This growing image of thy fiend-like face?
Id. Titus Andronicus, Act v. sc. 1.

Mor. A pair of wall-eyes in a face forced.
B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act v. sc. 2.

WA'LLET. From Ger. Wallen; Dut. Wallen; A. S. Weall-ian, to go, to go abroad, to travel.

A traveller's bag or pouch; any thing hanging like a bag.

But hode, for jolite, ne wered he non,
For it was trussed up in his wallet.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 684.

With all readinesse goe ye to the buisinesse of the ghospel: neither carying scrip nor wallet, nor yet shooes with you.—Udal. Luke, c. 10.

But tell me lady, wherefore do you beare
This bottle thus before you with such toyle,
And eke this wallet at your backe areare,
That for these carles to carry much more comely were.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 8.

Gon. Faith sir, you neede nor feare: when wee were boyes
Who would beleeue that they were mountayneeres,
Dew-lapt, like buls, whose throats had hanging at 'em
Wallets of flesh? or that they were such men
Whose heads stood in their brests.
Shakespeare. Tempest, Act iii. sc. 3.

Having looked about him for some time, he entered into a long gallery, where he laid down his wallet, and spread his carpet, in order to repose himself upon it, after the manner of the eastern nations.—Spectator, No. 290.

WA'LLOW, v.
WA'LLOW, n.
WA'LLOWER.
WA'LLOWISH.

A. S. Walw-ian, wealow-ian; Dut. Wallen, wellen; Ger. Wellen, to roll. Skinner derives from the Lat. Volv-ere. Tooke—the Lat. from the A. S.

To roll,—usually applied to—rolling for indulgence or enjoyment, as swine in the mud; men in sensual gratifications.

Wallowish,—rolling or tossing; as any thing nauseous in the stomach or bowels; and hence, nauseous, quia (sc.) talia ingrata volutantur et fluctuant in ventriculo.

And whanne the bodi was taken, Joseph lappide it in a clene sendel, and leide it in his newe biriel that he had hewen in a stoon, and he walewide a gret stoon to the dore of the biriel & went awey.—Wiclif. Matthew, c 32.

And thei broughten him and whanne he hadde seyen him anoon the spiryt troublide hem and he was throwen doun to the grounde and walewide and fomede.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 9.

For thilke verrei prouerbe bifelde to hem, the hound turnyde agen to his castyng, and a sowe to waischen in walewing in fenne.—Id. 2 Petir, c. 2.

It is happened vnto them accordyng to the true prouerbe: The dogge is turned to his vomet againe, and the sowe that was washed, to her wallowing in the myer.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

For whan thou wenest for to slepe
So ful of paine shalt thou crepe
Stert in thy bed about ful wide
And turne ful oft on euery side
Now dounward grosse, and now vpright
And walow in wo the long night.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Him thinketh verally that he may see
Noes flood comen walwing as the see
To drenchen Alison, his hony dere
Id. The Milleres Tale, v. 3617.

——— And with that word
At the altar him trembling gan him draw
Wallowing through the bloodshed of his son.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Therfore who so euer backbiteth his neighbour, he either condemneth the lawe, in that it correcteth not filthynes, or backbiteth it as though it were to muche myngle mangled, and walowyshe, the office wherof the backbytour taketh vpon hym.—Udal. James, c. 4.

For yet you never liv'd, but in the sty
Of vice have wallow'd, and, in that swine's strife,
Been buried under the offence of life.
B. Jonson. Pleasure reconciled to Virtue.

Lust's votaries, who live and die
Eternal wallowers in Circe's sty.
Neville. Imitation of Juvenal.

'Tis reported the commanders do keep bathing-troughs full of water to lye and wallow in, and hide their bodies from the noisom hot blooms.
Dampier. Discourse of Winds, c. 5.

His various modes from various fathers follow;
One taught the toss, and one the new French wallow.
Dryden. The Man of Mode, Epil.

The sluggard is sent to the ant for instruction — the intemperate man to the sow, that walloweth in the mire— and the proud man is put in mind of the worm, which is destined, one day, to banquet upon him.
Gilpin, vol. i. Ser. 20.

WALM, v. i.e. Whelm, (qv.)

When they encounter a cloud, there ariseth a vapour with a dissonant sound (like as when a red hot yron maketh a hissing being thrust into water) and a smokie fume walmeth up with many turnings like waves.
Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 43.

Oile being new drawn and pressed, yeeldeth a noise as it burneth in lamps, by occasion that the heat causeth the windiness and spirit thereof to evaporate and walm out.
Id. Plutarch, p. 642.

And the same [gulf] not quiet and still, but turbulent and oftentimes boyling and walming upward, out of which there might be heard innumerable roarings and groanings of beasts, cries and wailings of an infinite number of children, with sundry plaints and lamentations.—Id. Ib. p. 993.

WA'LNUT. Dut. Walsche-not, wal-not; Ger. Wall-nuss; A. S. Walh-hnutu, nuces exoticæ, from A. S. Weal, Ger. Wale, peregrinus, alienus. See Skinner and Wachter.

——— In a walnote. with oute ys a byter barke.
And after that biter barke. be the shale aweye
Ys a curnel of comfort. Piers Ploughman, p. 209.

There saw I Coll Tragetour
Upon a table of sicamour
Play an vncouth thing to tell,
I saw him carry a wind mell
Under a walnote shale.—Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii.

Walnuts. There are two kinds of walnuts, and of them infinite store: in many places, where are very great woods for many miles together, the third part of trees are walnut trees.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 273.

How haue I wearied with many a stroke,
The stately walnut tree, the while the rest
Vnder the tree fell all for nuts at strife.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. December.

The wild nut-meg tree is as big as a walnut-tree; but it does not spread so much.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1687.

WA'LTER, v. Perhaps Welter, (qv.)

But then shall ye sometime see there some other whose body is so incurablye corrupted, that they shall walter and tolter, & wrynge theyr handes, and gnashe the teeth, and theyr eyen water, their head ake, theyr bodye frete, their stomake wamble, and al their bodye shiuer for paine, and yet shall neuer vomete at all.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 322.

I shall euery nyghte wasshe my bedde with my wepynge teares. And by this sayde bedde is vnderstande the fylthy voluptuousnes of the body, wherin the sinner waltereth and wrappeth him selfe, like as a sowe waloweth in the stinkyng gore pit or in ye puddel.—Fisher. Seuen Psalmes, Ps. 6.

WA'MBLE, v. } From A. S. Womb, the womb
WA'MBLE, n. } or belly.
To be ill at ease, in a state of tumult in the belly, (Skinner.)

But then shall ye sometime see there some other, &c. theyr bodye frete, their stomake wamble, and al their bodye shiuer for paine.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 322.

If tenne daies after that a woman hath had the companie of a man, she feele an extraordinarie ach in the head, and perceive giddinesse in the braine, seeming that all things went round; find a dazeling and mistinesse in the eies, abhorring and loathing of meate, and withall, a turning and wambling of the stomacke: it is a signe that she is conceived, and beginneth to breed.—Holland. Plinie, b.vii. c. 6.

And your cold sallets without salt or vineger
Be wambling in your stomachs.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act i.

Our meat going down into the stomack merrily, and with pleasure dissolveth incontinently all wambles, reducing and restoring nature again into her own estate; as if faire weather and a calme season were come againe.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 575.

Sos. I was never good at swallowing physick; and my stomach wambles at the very thought of it.
Dryden. Amphitryon, Act iii.

WAN, adj. } See WAND and WANT, the verb.
WANE, v. } A. S. Wan, past part. of wanian,
WANE, n. } (ge-wan-ian, see GAUNT,) to de-
WA'NNED. } crease, to fall away. The moon
WA'NNISH. } in the wane, is the moon in a decreased state. "The waters were wan," (Skelton,) i.e. decreased. (See Tooke.) To wane,—
To decrease, to fall away, to decline, to diminish, to decay, to faint.

Wan-hope, — wanned, decreasing, decaying, dying—hope.

Wan,—faint, languid, worn out, or exhausted.

And God sende wynd god ynou, that the bet yt was ydo;
That wythynne was sorwe ynou, & her folc wanede vaste.
R. Gloucester, p. 410.

The kyng by an laddre to be ssyp clam an hey,
An threu vp to doun in the see, & adrenct the, as ych ysey,
An hys men, as in wanhope, wende hem agen blyue.
Id. p. 333.

And waxen to werly, and waynen the trewethe
And leuen the loue of her god, and the werld seruen.
Piers Ploughman. Crede.

For he [Wyclif] in goodnesse of gost, graythliche hem warned
To waynen her wikednesse, and werkes of synne.—Id. Ib.

——— Tyl thei ben fallen in slewthe
And awake wt wanhope. and no wil to amende.
Id. Vision, p. 29.

——— And fast on hym criede
And seide war fro wanhope, that wol the by traye.
Id. Ib. p. 113.

And he hymsilff baar oure synnes in his bodi on a tree. that we be deede to synnes and lyue to rigtuisnesse, bi whos wan wounde [vibices, Mod. Ver. stripes] we ben heelid.
Wiclif. 1 Pet. c. 2.

Yea frend (qd he) doe ye your heddes ake
For loue, and let me liuen as I can,
But lord that he for wo was pale and wan,
Yet made he tho as fresh a countenaunce,
As though he should haue led ye newe daunce.
Chaucer. Troilus, b. ii.

This goddesse on an hart ful heye sete,
With smale houndes al aboute hire fete,
And undernethe hire feet she hadde a mone,
Wexing it was, and shulde wanen sone.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2081.

O stormy peple, unsad and ever untrewe,
And undiscrete, and changing as a fane,
Delighting ever in rombel that is newe,
For like the mone waxen ye and wane.
Id. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8877.

These thynges also on right side and lefte, haue me so enuolued with care, that wanhope of helpe is throughout me ronne truelie, and leue that gracelesse is my fortune.
Id. Testament of Loue, b. iv.

Now cometh wanhope, that is, despeir of the mercy of God, that cometh somtime of to moche outrageous sorwe, and somtime of to moche drede, imagining that he hath do so moche sinne, that it wolde not availe him, thoughe he wolde repent him, and forsake sinne: thurgh which despeire or drede, he abandoneth all his herte to every maner sinne, as sayth Seint Augustine.—Id. The Persones Tale.

Whoom deth soo stern wyth his wannyd hewe
Hath now pursuyd.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1489.

With visage wan
As swart as tan.—Skelton. Boke of Philip Sparow.

The waters were wan.—Id. Why come ye not to Court?

For want of will in woe I plain,
Under colour of soberness;
Renewing with my suit my pain,
My wan-hope with your steadfastness.
Wyat. The Lover lamenteth his Estate.

As pale and wan as ashes was his looke,
His body leane and meagre as a rake,
And skin all withered like a dryed rooke.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 11.

But in her wane of pride, as she in strength decreast
Her nymphs assum'd the names, each one to her delight.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 17.

Sejanus must go downward! You perceive
His wane approaching fast!
B. Jonson. Sejanus, Act v. sc. 8.

They endeuour to shew how women were admitted vnto that function [to bee ministers of baptisme] in the waine and declination of Christian pietie.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. v. § 62.

Am I, because I am in bonds, and miserable,
My health decay'd, my youth and strength half blasted,
My fortune like my waining self, for this despis'd?
Am I for this forsaken? a new love chosen,
And my affections, like my fortunes, wanderers?
Beaum. & Fletch. The Sea Voyage, Act iv.

This earthly moone the Church hath her fuls and wanings, and sometimes her eclipses; whiles the shadow of this sinfull masse hides her beauty from the world.
Bp. Hall. Epistles, Dec. 4. Ep. 10.

Moreover, in the warres of Antonie, the sunne continued almost a yeere long with a pale and wan colour.
Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 3.

The day lillie Hemerocalles, hath leaves of a pale and wannish greene colour, otherwise soft and gentle.
Id. Ib. b. xxi. c. 21.

That heaven and earth are colour'd with my woe;
My sorrows are too dark for day to know:
The leaves should all be black whereon I write,
And letters where my tears have wash'd a wannish white.
Milton. Ode on the Passion.

Is it not monstrous that this player heere,
But in a fixion, in a dreame of passion,
Could force his soule so to his whole conceit,
That from her working, all his visage warmd [wan'd.]
Shakespeare. Hamlet, Act ii. sc. 2.

——— All the charmes of loue,
Salt Cleopatra soften thy wand lip.
Id. Anthony & Cleopatra, Act ii. sc. 1.

L. Jane Gray. Yes, Guilford, well dost thou compare my presence
To the faint comfort of the waning moon:
Like her cold orb, a chearless gleam I bring.
Rowe. Lady Jane Gray, Act i.

Nor equal light th' unequal moon adorns,
Or in her wexing or her waning horns.
For ev'ry day she wanes, her face is less,
But gath'ring into globe, she fattens at increase.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. xv.

Vent. I'm waining in his favour, yet I love him.
Id. All for Love, Act iii.

WAN. See WIN.

WAND. A waned stick or staff, a small, thin, slender, stick or staff; a rod.

Then the Corrigidor hauing an officer with him which bare a white wand in his hand, sayd to the master of the ship: yeeld your selfe, for you are the kings prisoner.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 118.

When he [Octavius] saw that the king [Antiochus] made no haste to give him his dispatch presently, but said he would make him an answere another day; made no more adoe, but with a wand or rod that he had in his hand, drew a circle about the king, and compelled him perforce to give him his answere before he stirred his foot without that compasse.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxiv. c. 6.

——— Lighted by the beamy hand
Of Truth, that searcheth the most hidden springs,
And guided by Experience, whose straight wand
Doth mete, whose line doth sound the depth of things.
B. Jonson. Underwoods.

Where acting the monk rather than the captain, with a single wand in his hand, he was slain with Egric, and his whole army put to flight.
Milton. Historie of Britaine, b. iv.

Above the rest, as chief of all the band,
Was Picus plac'd, a buckler in his hand;
His other wav'd a long divining wand.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. vii.

When the wands of the magicians were cast upon the ground and became serpents, the fact, considered in itself, was as much a miracle as when Aaron's rod was cast upon the ground and became a serpent; for it was as much a miracle that one dry stick should become a live serpent as another.—Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 11.

WA'NDER, v. / WA'NDERER. / WA'NDERING, n. / WA'NDERINGLY. / WA'NDERMENT. } Ger. Wand-ern; Dut. Wandeln, wanderer; Sw. Wandra; A. S. Wand-rian, (from the verb wend-an, ire, abire, to go;) to go about from place to place.

To move or go from place to place, from (met.) thought to thought; to move or go in an unsettled course, without certain or direct aim or object; to rove, to ramble, to stray, to deviate.

And angerich I wandrede the Austyns to proue
And mette with a maistre of tho men.
Piers Ploughman. Crede.

Worchynge and wandrynge. as the worlde asketh
Somme pute hem to plow. Id. Vision, p. 2.

And he sygh hem travelinge in rowinge for the wynd was contrarye to hem, and aboute the fourthe waking of the night he wandring on the see came to hem and wolde passe hem.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 6.

Whanne an unclene spirit goith out of a man, he wandrith by drie placis and sekith reste, and he fyndinge not, seith I schal turne agen into myn hous fro whennes I cam out.
Id. Luk, c. 11.

From Mauritania or Barbary toward the South is Getulia, a rough and sauage region, whose inhabitants are a wild and wandering people.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 19.

Consider ye what the prophete Baruch did prophecie of the soonne, whom, God takyng pietie and compassion on mankynde, did euen for the verai purpose sende into the yearth, that vnto the straighyng wandreers, and to the blinded he shoulde shewe the waye of health and saluacion.
Udal. Luke, c. 24.

It is not iron bands, nor hundred eyes,
Nor brazen walls, nor many wakefull skyes,
That can withhold her wilfull wand'ring feet;
But fast good will with gentle courtesies,
And timely seruice to her pleasures meet
May her perhaps containe, that else would algates fleet.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 9.

Am I, because I am in bonds, and miserable,
My health decay'd, my youth and strength half blasted,
My fortune like my waining self, for this despis'd?
Am I for this forsaken? a new love chosen,
And my affections, like my fortunes, wanderers?
Beaum. & Fletch. The Sea Voyage, Act iv.

It is a practice that has turn'd penances into a fair, and the court of conscience into a Lombard, and the labours of love into the labours of pilgrimages, superstitious and useless wanderings from place to place.
Bp. Taylor. Dissuasive from Popery, pt. i. § 3.

Were thy prayers made in fear and holiness, with passion and desire? were they not made unwillingly, weakly, and wandringly, and abated with sins in the greatest part of thy life?—Id. vol. i. Ser. 3.

Genus and species long since barefoote went
Upon their ten-toes in wilde wanderment.
Bp. Hall, b. ii. Sat. 3.

That not in Fancy's maze he wander'd long,
But stoop'd to truth, and moraliz'd his song.
Pope. Prol. to Sat.

If thou shouldst prove unkind to me, as Altamont,
Whom shall I find to pity my distress,
To have compassion on a helpless wanderer,
And give her where to lay her wretched head.
Rowe. Fair Penitent. Act iii.

In this sweet retirement I naturally fell into the repetition of some lines out of a poem of Milton's, which he entitles Il Penseroso, the ideas of which were exquisitely suited to my present wanderings of thought.—Spectator, No. 425.

Alas! where at this moment is the church of France?—her altars demolished—her treasures spoiled—her holy things profaned—her persecuted clergy and her plundered prelates wanderers on the earth!—Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 13.

WANG. / WA'NGER. } A. S. Wang, wænge, wenge; Dut. Wanghe; Ger. Wang, "the mandible or jaw wherein the teeth are set: hence, with Chaucer, we call the cheeke-teeth, great teeth, or grinders, wangs or wang-teeth; as in that old rime:—

And in witnes that this is sooth
I bite the wax with my wang-tooth."

Wanger,—A. S. Wangere; Dut. Wengher, a piilow for the cheek, (Somner.) Maxilla, (Matt. v. 39,) is in the A. S. version Wenge.

Our manciple I hope he wol be ded,
Swa werkes ay the wanges in his hed.
Chaucer. Reves Tale, v. 4029.

And of this asses cheke, that was so dreye,
Out of a wang toth sprang anon a welle,
Of which he dranke ynough, shortly to seye,
Thus halp him God, as Judicum can tell.
Id. Monkes Tale, v. 14,051.

And for he was a knight auntrous,
He n'olde slepen in non hous.
But liggen in his hood,
His brighte helm was his wanger.
Chaucer. The Rime of Sire Thopas.

WA'NION. / WA'NTY. } Not in any of our dictionaries. Mr. Nares had met only with the phrase—"with a wanion." Sir T. More writes—"in the waniand." Nares thinks it evidently either from the A. S. Wanung, detriment, (see WANE,) or Wanian, plorare, to deplore: he produces an instance from Fox's Ecclesiastical History, where it is written Wanie.

Wang, whang, or wheang, is in Suffolk and the North—a thong: and to wang is—to bang; in Devonshire also. (See Grose. Brocket, and Moore.)

A wanty is—a leather girth.

Waniand, in Sir T. More, seems to have some reference to cart furniture.

A pannell and wanty, pack saddle, and ped,
A line to fetch litter, and halters for head.
Tusser. Husbandry Furniture, p. 11.

He would of lykelyhood bynde them to cartes and beate them, and make theym wed in the waniand.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 306.

Wife. But let him go. I'll tell Ralph a tale in's ear, shall fetch him again with a wanion, I warrant him, if he be above ground.
Beaum. & Fletch. Knight of the Burning Pestle, Act ii.

We shall have painfull good ministers to keep school, and catechise our youth, and not teach them to speak plays, and act fables of false news, in this matter, to the super-vexation of town and country with a wannion.
B. Jonson. Staple of News, Act iii. sc. 2.

All I desire of you is but harbour for a minute: you cannot in humanity deny that small succour to a gentlewoman.
Franc. A gentlewoman! I thought so, my house affords no harbour for gentlewomen: you are a company of proud harlotries; I'll teach you to take place of tradesmen's wives with a wannion to you.—Dryden. Wild Gallant, Act iii.

WANT, v. / WANT, n. / WA'NTLESS. } Dut. Wan; Ger. Wan. "Want, the noun, (Tooke,) is—Waned, wan'd, want, the past part. of to wane, (qv.) to fall away;" and the verb is formed upon the noun.

To be or become less, diminished, or decreased; to fail, to be deficient; to be without (sc. a something to complete a whole;) to be without, to be destitute, to need, to be in need of; to feel the need of: and, consequentially, to seek or long for, to desire, or covet.

Want,—A. S. Wand, talpa, a mole. Skinner derives from A. S. Wend-an, to turn, a vertendo terram.

For ther is no creature so good, that him ne wanteth somwhat of the perfection of God that is his maker.
Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

For the tyme was so short, and the enemy so earnest to feight and so nere at hand, that there wanted leysure not only to place theym vnder theyr ante-signes, but also to put on theyr skuls, and to put their tergats out of their cases.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 57.

Some creatures albeit they be alwaies covered within the ground, yet live and breath nevertheless, and namely the wanty or mold-warpes.—Holland. Plinie, b. ix. c. 7.

Vpon whose fruitful bancks therefore,
Whose bounds are chiefly said,
The want-les counties Essex, Kent,
Surrey, and wealthy glade
Of Hartfordshire.—Warner. Albion's England, b. iii. c. 14.

——— For being deprest a while,
Want makes us know the price of what we avile.
B. Jonson. Prince Henry's Barriers.

And with him wastefulness, that all expended,
And want that still in theft and prison ended,
A hundred foul diseases close at backs attended.
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 7.

He is forced to have recourse to that prodigiously absurd supposition, that all matter as matter, is endued not only with figure and a capacity of motion, but also with an actual sense or perception; and wants only the organs and memory of animals to express its sensation.
Clarke. On the Attributes, Prop. 8.

When we apply to the mercy of God, and beg of him to pity our infirmities and wants, the design is not to move His affections as good speakers move their auditors by the pathetic arts of rhetoric, or hearty beggers theirs by importunities and tears.—Wollaston. Religion of Nature, s. 5.

There is yet another cause of necessity, which has occasioned great speculation among the writers upon general law: viz. whether a man in extreme want of food or cloathing may justify stealing either, to relieve his present necessities?—Blackstone. Commentaries, b. iv. c. 2.

WA'NTON, v. / WA'NTON, n. / WA'NTON. / WA'NTONIZE, v. / WA'NTONLY. / WA'NTONNESS. } Lascivus, (q.d.) he or she, that wanteth one, (Junius, and to the same purport Minshew.) Skinner prefers the Dut. Waenen, (to ween,) to think, to imagine, to fancy; one who has a fancy or wish, who lightly wishes for; or from Dut. Wendelen, to wander, to rove, (sc.) from pleasure to pleasure. It is perhaps formed upon the verb To want; to seek or long for, to desire, to covet; and applied to—

One who pursues or follows, indulges his own desires, his wish for pleasure, his lusts; loosely or dissolutely, mirthfully or playfully, licentiously, luxuriantly.

His flesshe wolde haue charged him with fatnesse, but that the wantonesse of his wombe with trauaile and fastyng he adaunteth, and in ridyng & goyng trauayleth myghteliche his youthe.—R. Gloucester, p. 482.

That alle women wantowen. shulleth be war by the one
And bitterliche banne the. and all that bereth thy name.
Piers Ploughman, p. 45.

Ich have ywedded a wyf quath he. wel wantowen of maners. Id. p. 126.

Wyves & wodewes. wantonness hue techeth.—Id. p. 46.

A frere ther was, a wanton and a mery,
A limitour, a ful solempne man.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 209.

If one be ful of vilanie
An other hath a licorous eie,
If one be ful of wantonesse
An other is a chideresse. Id. Rom. of the Rose.

Somwhat he lisped for his wantonnesse,
To make his English swete upon his tonge.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 267.

Whom vpon mennes amendemente he wyll not fayle to serue at the laste, as doeth the tender mother which when she hath beaten her chylde for hys wantones, wypeth his yien and kisseth hym, and casteth the rodde in the fyre.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 922.

But so it was one day yt for a cause this Sadragesyle wolde haue chastyzed this Dagobert, wherof he beyng ware, associate vnto hym certeyn wanton persones, & beta his mayster.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 127.

He put out of his court nyce and wanton men.
Id. Ib. c. 226.

Whā the yonge man begynner of all this busynesse sawe this inconuenyēce ensue of his wantonesse, were it by coūceyll or otherwyse, feryng yᵉ sequell of yᵉ mater, yode streyght vnto Westmynster, and there taryed as a seȳtwary man, tyll all yᵉ mater was endid.—Id. Ib. an. 1457.

And in somuche the more peryll and hasarde of the sayde diseases doe the prynces stande, as they are more than others made wantons and derelynges of fortune.
Udal. Luke, Pref.

There are some among you, whiche because I am absente, are paste shame, and so wantonly behaue themselves as though I would neuer returne.—Id. 1 Corinthians, c. 4.

Hee wantons away his life foolishly, that, when he is well, will take physick to make him sick.
Bp. Hall. The Defeat of Crueltie.

Thu. What saies she to my face?
Pro. She saies it is a faire one.
Thu. Nay then the wanton lyes: my face is blacke.
Shakespeare. Two Gentlemen of Verona, Act v. sc. 2.

——— Shall a beardlesse boy,
A cockred silken wanton braue our fields,
And flesh his spirit in a warre-like soyle,
Mocking the ayre with colours idlely spred,
And finde no checke?—Id. K. John, Act v. sc. 1.

Imo. So sicke I am not, yet I am not well:
But not so citizen a wanton, as
To seeme to dye, ere sicke.
Id. Cymbeline, Act iv. sc. 2.

Pleasure hath set my well-school'd thoughts to play,
And bid me use the virtue of mine eyes,
For sweetly it fits the fair to wantonize.
Daniel. Complaint of Rosamond.

So when the prettie rill a place espies,
Where with the pebbles she would wantonize.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 4.

I speake not of this carrion-flesh which thou wantonly infectest with the false colours of thy pride.
Bp. Hall. Pharisaisme & Christianitie.

And now was all disorder in th' excess,
And whatsoever doth a change portend;
As idle luxury and wantonness,
Porteus-like varying pride, vain without end.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b.

K. Em. By this we plainly view the two imposthumes
That choke a kingdom's welfare; ease, and wantonness
Beaum. & Fletch. Moral Representations

It [the mind of man] would, if let alone, launch out, and wantonize in a boundless enjoyment and gratification of all its appetites and inclinations.—South, vol. iii. Ser. 6.

The will of men may be sometimes so depraved, that dissolute persons wantonly and heedlessly may scoff at and seem to disparage goodness.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 3.

This letter may be forg'd; perhaps the wantonness
Of his vain youth, to stain a lady's fame;
Perhaps his malice to disturb my friend.
Rowe. Fair Penitent, Act ii.

It [patriot] has been wantonly lavished on those, who, from the worst motives, have fomented faction, and kindled the flames of rebellion.—Knox. Ess. No. 9.

The violent and malignant passions of men, released from the restraints which religion, even in its worst estate imposes, wantoned in every species of disorder, and committed every species of cruelty.
Cogan. On the Passions, Dis. 3. c. 3.

WAN-TRUST. Waned or decreased, trust, want of trust, distrust.

But ones nil thou, for thy coward hert
And for thine ire, and folish wilfulnesse
For wantrust tellen of thy sorows smert
Ne to thine owne helpe, do besinesse.
Chaucer. Troilus, b. i.

" Neuer the later," (quod she) " I saie not these thynges for no wantruste that I haue, in supposyng of thee otherwise than I should."—Id. Test. of Loue, b. i.

WA'NTY. See WANION.

WA'PED. See AWHAPED. A. S. Waf-ian, to be amazed or astonished, (Somner.) See WAVE, and WAVER.

Or as the culver, that of the egle is smitten,
And is out of his ciawes forth escaped,
Yet it is aferde, and a waped,
Lest it be hent eftsones.—Chaucer. Leg. of Philomene.

Mine herte bare of blisse, and blacke of hew
That turned is to quaking all my daunce,
My sewerty is a waped countenaunce,
Sens it avayleth nought to ben trew.
Id. Com. of Q. Annelida to False Arcite.

And as she ran, her wimple let she fall,
And toke none hede, so sore she was a whaped.
Id. Leg. of Tisbe of Babilon.

WA'PEN-TAKE. A. S. Wæpen-getace; Ger. Wapentalk, from A. S. Wæpen, weapons (arma), and tac, a touch, (q.d.) concussio armorum, a shaking or striking of the arms (a custom recorded by Tacitus), or from the same wæpen, and tac, a taking or receiving of the vassal's arms by a new lord, in token of subjection; or because the people, in confirmation of union, touched the weapon of the lord. See Somner, Spelman, and Wachter; and the quotation from Holinshed.

The bisshop of Durham bouht Saberg, with the wapentake.
R. Brunne, p. 145.

The hundred and the wapentake is all one, as I read in some. and by this diuision not a name appertinent to a set number of townes (for then all hundreds should be of equal quantitie) but a limited jurisdiction.
Holinshed. Description of England, b. ii. c. 4.

At their first comming, bicause they perceiued they could not liue without lawes and ciuill gouernment, they seuered themselues into tribes, or as it were into hundreds, or wapentakes, euery of the same hauing a speciall gouernor to see their lawes ministred, and iustice mainteined.
Id. Historie of Scotland. Brechus.

And let them get but ten mile out of town,
They out-swagger all the wapentake.
B. Jonson. New Inn, Act iv. sc. 2.

The people, in imitation of their ancestors, the ancient Germans, assembled there in arms; whence a hundred was sometimes called a wapentake, and its courts served both for the support of military discipline, and for the administration of civil justice.—Hume. Hist. of England, vol. i. c. 2.

As ten families of freeholders made a town or tithing, so ten tithings composed a superior division, called a hundred, as consisting of ten families. In some of the northern counties these hundreds are called wapentakes.
Blackstone. Commentaries, Introd. §. 4.

WA'PPERED. See UNWAPPERED.

WAR, v.
WAR, n.
WA'RRAY, v.
WA'RRIOUR.
WA'RRIOURRESS.
WA'RFARE, n.
WA'RFARE, v.
WA'RLY, or WA'RLIKE.
WA'RLING, n.

Fr. Guerre; It. Guèrra; Sp. Guerra; Dut. Werre; Ger. Wer; Dut. Wer-en; Ger. War-en; A. S. War-ian, wer-ian, werigan, to ware or beware.

To defend, to protect, to guard or ward; and, further, to act offensively, to attack or assail.

To warray or werrey,—Fr. Guéroyer,—to attack hostilely. And see WORRY.

The kyng of Hungri seththe com, Homber was ys name,
In to Scotlond to werre, and do Albanak schame,
And werrede vp hym faste, and at the laste hym slog.
R. Gloucester, p. 23.

Eft sone get tho Romaynes power hyder sende,
Knygtes and other werrours, that to this lond wende.
Id. p. 98.

Whan Alfrid & Gunter had werred long in ille,
Thorgh the grace of God, Gunter turned his wille.
R. Brunne, p. 25.

I haf kept thi lande, I se that dishonoure
Is now the nerhand, thorgh this conquerour,
That [is] an Inglis kyng, a wys werreour.
Id. p. 166.

For woot no whight what werre is. ther as Pees regneth.
Piers Ploughman, p. 352.

They ben wilde werwolues, that wiln the folke robben.
Id. Crede.

For worthy was he in his lordes werre,
And therto hadde he ridden, no man ferre,
As wel in Cristendom as in hethenesse,
And ever honoured for his worthinesse.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 48.

If any man be now, or euer was,
Ayen the peace thy preuy counsailour,
Let God be of thy counsaile in this caas,
And put away the cruel warriour.
Id. A Ballade to K. Hen. IV.

How longe, Juno, thurgh thy cruelteе
Wilt thou werreien Thebes the citee.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 1546.

At Sarra, in the lond of Tartaree,
Ther dwelt a king that werreied Russie.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10,324.

And thus fortune her deadly whele
Fro werre turneth into pees.
Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

The remenant of folk about
Unnethe stonden in any dout
To werre each other, and to slea.
Id. Ib.

I praie you tell me naye or yea
To passe over the great sea
To warre and sle the Sarasen
Is that the lawe.
Id. Ib.

They drewe to them great power, and warred vpon the landes and castelles of sir Roger Mortymer.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1263.

For euery man is easily and naturally brought, from labour to ease, from the better to the worse, from diligence to slouthfulnesse, and after warres it is commonly seene, that a great number of those that went out honest, returne home again like roisters.—Sir J. Cheeke. Hurt of Sedition.

In this passe tyme, John duke of Normandy and sone of Phylyp de Valoys, which, as in the precedynge yere is towchyd, layd his syege vnto the castell of Aguyllon, herynge that his fader was thus warreyed with the kynge of Englõde, brake vp his syege and came with his strengthe vnto his fader.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1346.

The duke of Lancastre laded at Caleys, with a stronge company of archers & other warryours.—Id. Ib. an. 1368.

And the kynge of Scottes wente into the wylde Scottyshe, bicause he was nat ī good poynt to ryde a warfare, and ther he taryed all the warre durynge, and lette his men aloue.
Bernèrs. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 13.

The erle of Huntyngdon also this yere was sent into Fraunce with a warly company and dyd there great feates, as sayth ye Englysshe Cronycle.—Fabyan. Chron. an. 1433.

And [a mercers seruaũt] questenyd wt hym how he was so bolde to bere such a warely wepyn [a dagger].
Id. Ib. an. 1456.

But was by tempests, winds, and seas, debarr'd
As if they likewise had against him warr'd.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. i.

Love and Ambition in their glory sat,
And tyranniz'd on his divided heart,
Warring each other with a pow'rful part.—Id. Ib. b. viii.

Gelon, after he had most valiantly warred against the Carthaginians, and defeated them in a great battel: when they craved peace, would never grant it unto them, unlesse this might be comprised among the articles and capitulations: that they should no more sacrifice their children unto Saturn.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 447.

O yet a nobler task awaits thy hand,
(For what can war, but endless war still breed?)
Till truth and right from violence be freed,
And public faith clear'd from the shameful brand
Of public fraud.—Milton. Son. to Fairfax.

When was the prince with her? answer me directly.
Gov. Not since he went a warring.
Beaum. & Fletch. Humorous Lieutenant, Act ii. sc. 1.

Of these a mighty people shortly grew,
And puissant kings, which all the world warrayd,
And to themselues all nations did subdew.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 10.

Six yeeres were runne since first in martiall guize,
The Christian lords warraid the Eastren land.
Fairefax Godfrey of Bovloyne, b. i. c. 6.

The weary Britons, whose war-hable youth
Was by Maximian lately led away,
With wretched miseries, and wofull ruth,
Were to those pagans made an open pray.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 10.

Eftsoones that warriouresse with haughty crest
Did forth issue, all ready for the fight:
On th' other side her foe appeared soone in sight.
Id. Ib. b. v. c. 7.

So that between the Son of Man and his brethren, over whom he reigneth now in this their warfare, there shall be then, as touching the exercise of that regiment, no such difference; they not warfaring any longer under him, but he together with them under God, receiving the joys of everlasting triumph, that so God may be all in all.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. viii.

How many make a glorious shew in the warfaring church, which, when they shall see danger of persecution, shall shrink from the standard of God?
Bp. Hall. Cont. Gideon's Preparation & Victory.

With that, out of his bouget forth he drew
Great store of treasure, there-with him to tempt;
But he on it lookd scornefully askew,
As much disdeigning to be so missdempt,
Or a war-monger to be basely nempt.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 10.

—— On, on you noble English,
Whose blood is fet from fathers of warre-proof:
Fathers that like so many Alexanders,
Haue in these parts from morne till euen fought,
And sheath'd their swords, for lack of argument.
Shakespeare. Hen. V. Act iii. sc. 1.

Better be an old man's darling, then a yong man's warling.—Camden. Remaines. Proverbs.

Oft have I seen a sudden storm arise,
From all the warring winds that sweep the skies:
The heavy harvest from the root is torn,
And whirl'd aloft the lighter stubble born.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. i.

While the devouring fire was burning fast,
Rich jewels in the flames the wealthy cast;
And some their shields, and some their lances threw,
And gave the warriour's ghost a warriour's due.
Id. Palamon & Arcite, b. iii.

In order to make war compleatly effectual, it is necessary with us in England that it be publicly declared and duly proclaimed by the king's authority; and, then, all parts of both the contending nations, from the highest to the lowest, are bound by it.—Blackstone. Commentaries, b. i. c. 7.

When two of these canoes, in which there might be about sixty men, came near enough to make themselves heard, they sung their war-song; but seeing that we took little notice of it, they threw a few stones at us, and then rowed off towards the shore.—Cook. First Voyage, b. ii. c. 4.

WA'RBLE, n.
WA'RBLE, v.
WA'RBLER.
WA'RBLING, n.

Fr. Werble, parole, propos, discours. Werbler,—parler à haute voix, reciter, discourer, (Roquefort.) Warble (says Skinner) is perhaps from the Dut. Wervelen, (to whirl,) gyros agere, and hence applied to music—vocem reciprocantibus modulis circumagere, vocem vibrare, vibrissare; and Junius—cantum crebro vocis inflexu variare ac subinde mutare.

To sing, with quick and varied voice, with vibrations of tone; to quaver or shake. It is applied, as well to the loud and rapid notes of the nightingale, as to the low, gentle, but quick notes of the linnet.

That pity was to heare the soun,
And the warbles of their throtes,
And the complaint of their notes,
Which from joy cleane was reuersed.—Chaucer. Dreame.

Certes they were wonder swete of sowne, and they were touched al in lamentacion wise, and by no werbelles of mirthe.—Id. Testament of Loue, b. ii.

There shalt thou here and see all kinds of birds ywrought,
Well tune their voice with warble small, as nature hath them taught.
Surrey. Having defied the Power of Love, &c.

And all the while sweet music did apply
Her curious skill, the warbling notes to play,
To driue away the dull melancholy.
Spenser. Faerie Queene b. i. c. 12

The waters fall with difference discreet,
Now soft, now loud, vnto the wind did call:
The gentle warbling wind lowe answered to all.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 12.

Suffic'd at length, she warbled in her throat,
And tun'd her voice to many a merry note,
But indistinct, and neither sweet nor clear,
Yet such as sooth'd my soul, and pleas'd my ear.
Dryden. The Flower and the Leaf.

So the sweet warbler of the spring, alone,
Sings darkling, but unseen her note is known.
Pope. Essay on Man. Verses on.

While th' old apart, upon a bank reclin'd
Attend the tuneful carol, softly mixt
With every murmur of the sliding wave,
And every warble of the feather'd choir.
Dyer. The Fleece, b. i.

I give you thanks for your warble, and wish
You could sing yourself to rest.
Gray. To Mr. West, April 1742.

The attic warbler pours her throat,
Responsive to the cuckoo's note,
The untaught harmony of spring:
While, whispering pleasure as they fly,
Cool zephyrs through the clear blue sky
Their gather'd fragrance fling.—Id. Ode on the Spring.

Ten thousand warblers cheer the day and one
The live-long night. Cowper. The Sofa.

A voice as of the cherub-choir,
Gales from blooming Eden bear;
And distant warblings lessen on my ear,
That lost in long futurity expire.—Gray. The Bard.

WARD, v.
WARD, n.
WA'RDEN.
WA'RDENRY.
WA'RDENSHIP.
WA'RDER.
WA'RDLESS.
WA'RDSHIP.

A. S. Ward-ian, or weard-ian; Dut. Weeren, waeren, waerden; Ger. Waren, to guard, (qv. and see WAR and WARE.) The primary meaning seems to be—

To look at, (tueri,) to look after; and, consequentially, to defend, to protect, to keep harmless.

To look at or after; to watch, to look vigilantly; to defend, to protect, to save or keep harmless; to keep or hold off; to keep in custody.

A ward,—a district under its own guardianship or protection, that appoints its own guards or protectors. Also—

Any one under the protection of another.

A ward of a lock,—that guards or secures it, constitutes its security or strength.

Ward: term "may be joined to the name of any person, place, or thing, to or from which our view or sight may be directed." In our old writers are found—to God-ward, to Rome-ward, to me-ward, to her-ward, &c. &c.

A wardecorps,—Fr. Garde-corps.
A ward-robe,—Fr. Garde-robe.

—— & that heo wolde, heo seyde,
Warde hem from alle men, that hem bi tidde no drede.
R. Gloucester, p. 41.

Gentyl men that he vond in prison ek ydo,
Other in warde myd vnrygt, he bogte hem out also.
Id. p. 323.

And thritty thousand knygtes here wardeynes he sette.
Id. p. 94.

Of wardes & releſe that barons of him held,
Ther ne was ore of chefe, tille him no thing suld geld.
R. Brunne, p. 214.

Under him kyng Guyon had tham alle in ward.
Id. p. 192.

These wer in his wardes, & auht & tuenti mo.
Id. p. 278.

The wardeyn herd it telle of the castelle biside,
A monke of a celle bare him wele that tide.—Id. p. 267.

Wardeyns gode he sette, to stabille the lond & mende,
Justise that the lawe gette to vnkonand thei kende.
Id. p. 244.

Somme serven the kynge. and hus selver tellen
In the chekkere. and the chauncelrie, chalengynge hus dettes
Of wardes & of wardemotes.—Piers Ploughman, p. 5.

For rightfulliche reson. sholde ruele gow alle
And kynde wit be wardeyn. goure welthe to kepe
And tutour of gowre tresoure. Id. p. 15.

This is the point, to speke it plat and plain,
That eche of you to shorten with youre way,
In this viage, shal tellen tales tway,
To Canterbury ward.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 796.

The wardein of the yates gan to call
The folk, which that without the yates were.
Id. Troil. & Cres. b. v.

Though thou pray Argus with his hundred eyen
To be my wardecorps, as he can best,
In faith he shal not kepe me but me lest.
Id. Wif of Bathes Prol. v. 5942.

"Haste you not" (quod she) "lerned in thy youth that Jupiter hath in his warderobe bothe garmentes of ioye and of sorowe?"—Chaucer. Testament of Loue, b. ii.

And whan Idomeneus the kynge
Hath vnderstonding of this thynge,
Whiche that this knight him hath tolde,
He made sorowe manifolde,
And toke the childe vnto his warde,
And saide, he wolde hym kepe and warde,
Tyll that he were of suche a might,
To handle a swerde, and be a knight,
To vengen him at his owne will.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

Yet the Frenchmen recouered the toune of theim, till the lorde deputie commaunded sir Thomas Poininges to take certain men with hym, for his menne warded in Base Boleine that night.—Fabyan. Chron. Hen. VIII. an. 1545.

And in the mornyng, they approched in thre wardes, their baners before thē right ordynatly.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 45.

In the which parlyamēt amonge other actes, was ordeyned, that what prisoner y^t for graūde or pety treason was comytted to warde, and after wylfully brake or escaped y^e same, it shulde be demyd pety treason.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1424.

And, sir, the capytaine of the towne hath sente me hyder to you, to gyue you knowledge therof, seyng ye be warden of all this countre.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, c. 323.

The sayd John Manshell chargyd the mayre that euery aldreman in his warde, shulde, vpon the morowe folowynge, assemble his wardemote, and that all those wardemootys shuld assemble in one place and chose of theym selfe, without any counsayll or aduyse of any of theyr aldremē, xxxvi. persones.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1257.

Thus the kinge tooke the wardeshyppe of his cosyn, the duke of Gloucestres herytour, and the kynge tooke the possession and profytes of all the dukes lande, and kepte the chylde with hym.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 226.

Lyke as in a seculer commen welthe he is called to be a mayor, that before vsed himselfe stowtely in the wardenshyp.
Udal. 1 Timothye, c. 3.

18 Item, that John Brooke our marchant for the ward-house take good aduise of the rest of our agents, how to vse himselfe in al affaires, whiles the ship shal be at the ward-house.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 261.

Long while they then continued in that wise,
As if but then the battell had begonne:
Strokes, wounds, wards, weapons, all they did despise,
Ne either car'd to ward, or perill shonne,
Desirous both to haue the battell donne.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 3.

He is the prelate of the parish here,
And governs all the dames, appoints the cheer,
Writes down the bills of fare, pricks all the guests,
Makes all the matches and the marriage feasts
Within the ward.—B. Jonson. Magnetick Lady, Act i. sc. 1.

—— If I were by
I might do hurt, for they would glance their eies
Toward my seat, and in that motion might
Omit a ward, or forfeit an offence
Which crav'd that very time.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Two Noble Kinsmen, Act v. sc. 3.

Dori. Faith I would have had him rosted like a warden in a brown paper, and no more talk on't.
Id. Cupid's Revenge, Act ii.

Eftsoones his page drew to the castle gate,
And with his iron flaile at it let fly,
That all the wards it did sore amate.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 2.

For of the wardmote quest, he better can
The mystery, than the Levitic law.
B. Jonson. Magnetick Lady, Act i. sc. 1.

The third had of their wardrobe custodie,
In which were not rich tires, nor garments gay,
The plumes of pride, and wings of vanity,
But clothes meet to keepe keene cold away,
And naked nature seemely to array.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 10.

Hereof be bags and quilts made, and those if they bee laid in a ward-robe amongst clothes and apparell, causeth them to smell sweet.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxi. c. 19.

I do not think, Numps, but thou'lt say, it was the wisest act that ever I did in my wardship.
B. Jonson. Bartholomew Fair, Act iii. sc. 1.

Full oft the rivals met, and neither spar'd
His utmost force, and each forgot to ward.
Dryden. Palamon & Arcite, b. iii.

No better can any man ward himself from blame, by imputing the neglect of devotion to some indisposition within him thereto.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 7.

Some of the soldiers are employed in keeping watch and ward, for the security of private men, as well as in the king's business.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1688.

The warders of the gate but scarce maintain
Th' unequal combat, and resist in vain.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. ii.

Beware, my friend, and what I now reveal,
As the great secret of thy life conceal;
A lustful pathick, when he turns a foe;
He gives like destiny a wardless blow.
Id. Juvenal, Sat. 9.

In the wardenship of Mert. Coll. succeeded Nat. Brent, LL. D. afterwards a knight, who minding wealth and the settling a family more than generous actions, that colledge did nothing near so well flourish as under the government of Sir Henry.—Wood. Athenæ Oxon, vol. i.

The merchants gild, the most antient in Coventry, licensed by Edward III. in 1340, for a fraternity of brethren and sisters, with a warden, or master, to be elected out of the body, who might make chauntries, bestow alms, and do other works of piety.
Pennant. Journey from Chester to London, p. 203.

It irks, high dame, my noble lords,
'Gainst ladye fair to draw their swords;
But yet they may not tamely see,
All through the western wardenry
Your law-contemning kinsmen ride
And burn and spoil the border-side.
Scott. Lay of the Last Minstrel, c. 4.

The wardship consisted in having the custody of the body, and lands of such heir, without any account of the profits, till the age of twenty-one in males, and sixteen in females.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. ii. c. 5.

WARE, v.
WARE, n.
WA'RELY.
WA'RELESS.
WA'RY.
WA'RILY.
WA'RINESS.
WA'REFULNESS.
WA'RIMENT.

A. S. War-ian, war-ian. See WAR, WARD, AWARE and BEWARE, and also WARN.

To look at or after; to be prudent or provident; to provide, to take heed or care; to be careful or cautious; to be on the watch; to be vigilant.

He was sone forth y went, er any mon were war.
R. Gloucester, p. 104.

Thanne he bigan to warye and to swere that he knew not the man. and anoon the cok crew.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 26.

Whi undirstonden ye not, for I seyde not to you of breed: be ye war of the sour dough of Farisees and of Saducis: thanne thei undirstonden, that he seide not to be war of sour dough of looves: but of the techyng of Pharisees and Saducees.—Id. Ib. c. 16.

She was not nice, ne outrageous,
But wise and ware, and vertuous
Of faire speche, and faire answere.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

And at the day before appoynted y^e kyng with a certayne of Brytons nat ware of this purposed treason, came in a peacyble wyse to the place before assygned.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 89.

Thou muste take so much care therwithal, to haue hym wel and warely caried, for feare after he were taken, hee might scape from thiem againe.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 1382.

In the mean season hee came to Darius, and gaue him thankes that he had so warely and with suche wisedome auoided the treason of that false Grecian.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 131.

The patron as warie & wise in the businesse of the sea, thought in himselfe that the Turkes made such prolonging to some euill intent.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 76.

Doubt is his sleep, he walketh in invention,
Fancy his food, his cloathing is of carefulness.
Beauty his book, his play lover's dissention:
His eyes are curious, search but vail'd with warefulness.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. ii.

Ware they bee what offensive weapons they have, and of what force they are.—Holland. Plinie, b. viii. c. 24.

But they him laid full lowe in dungeon deepe,
And bound him hand and foot with iron chaines,
And with continuall watch did warely keepe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 12.

Both they vnwise, and warelesse of the euill,
That by themselues, vnto themselues is wrought,
Through that false witch and that foule aged dreuil,
The one a fiend, the other, an incarnate deuill.
Id. Ib. b. iv. c. 2.

For warelesse insolence (whilst undebarr'd
Of bounding awe) runs on to such excess,
That following lust, and spoil, and blood so hard,
Sees not how they procure their own distress.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. vi.

Counsels their heat with calm grave words, and fit,
Words well fore-thought, that from experience springs,
And warns a warier carriage in the things,
Lest blind presumption work their ruining.—Id. Ib. b. iii.

But sleepe full faire away from her did flie:
In stead thereof sad sighes and sorrowes deepe
Kept watch and ward about her warily;
That nought she did but waile, and often steepe
Her dainty couch with tears, which closely she did weepe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 2.

Volp. How might I see her?
Mos. O, not possible;
She's kept as warily as is your gold;
Never does come abroad, never takes air,
But at a window.—B. Jonson. The Fox, Act i. sc. 1.

There was bred in the minds of the penitent, through long and daily practice of submission, a contrary habit unto that which before had been their ruin, and for ever afterwards wariness not to fall into those snares out of which they knew they could not easily wind themselves.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. vi.

Full many stroakes, that mortally were ment,
The whiles were enterchanged twixt them two:
Yet they were all with so good wariment
Or warded, or avoyded and let goe,
That still the life stood fearelesse of her foe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 3.

[We should] read that sacred volume, with a wise jealousy, and a wary distrust of our own selves; not with a conceited opinion of our own gifts and parts, as if we alone were able to fathom all depths, and to grasp all mysteries.
Atterbury, vol. iii. Ser. 10.

We are warily to decline the particular acquaintance of men of contentious dispositions, mischievous principles, and factious designs.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 30.

The inclination and tendency of their nature to happiness is an obligation and motive to them, to take care not to mistake or miss it; and so necessarily puts them upon caution, deliberation and wariness, in the direction of their particular actions, which are the means to obtain it.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 21.

Should beauty's soul-enchanting smile,
Love-kindling looks, and features gay,
Should these thy wandering eye beguile,
And steal thy wareless heart away.—Langhorne, Fab. 5.

The bear hunts them by scent, till he come in sight, when he advances warily, keeping above them, and concealing himself among the rocks, as he makes his approaches, till he gets immediately over them, and nigh enough for his purpose.—Cook. Third Voyage, b. vi. c. 5.

He that is forming himself, must look with great caution and wariness on those peculiarities or prominent parts, which at first force themselves upon view; and are the marks, or what is commonly called the manner, by which that individual artist is distinguished.—Reynolds, Disc. 6.

WARE, n. } A. S. Ware; Dut. Waere;
WARE-HOUSE, } Ger. War; Sw. Wara, (Wachter,) from an obsolete verb wæren, æstimare, to set a price upon. Skinner,—from Dut. and Ger. Waeren, verificare, i. e. veras et sinceras esse merces polliceri, to warrant the articles to be genuine and sound. Junius,—from waeren, (to ware or ward,) to guard carefully; because wares are anxiously guarded or warded; perhaps,— Articles warely or carefully made or manufactured, (sc.) for sale.

Also you shall suffer them to lay their wares and commodities in their warehouses, and to sell their commodities to whom they please without let or hinderance.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 507.

O, why should fortune make the city proud,
To give that more, than is the court allow'd,
Where they (like wretches) hoard it up to spare,
And do ingross it, as they do their ware.
Drayton. Edw. IV. to Mrs. Shore.

——— I believe
You men of wares, the men of wars will nick ye,
For starve nor beg they must not.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act i.

Bya. There are the other papers: when they come
Begin you first, and let the rest subscribe
Hard by your side; give 'em as little light
As drapers do their wares.
Id. Woman's Prize, Act v. sc. 1.

You know it in common practice, in your trades and merchandize, that, when a man hath bought a parcel of commodities, he sets his mark upon them, to distinguish them from the rest in the warehouse: so doth our God.
Bp. Hall. Ser. Eph. iv. 30.

The earthen ware of this country is course and of a grey colour, yet they make great quantities of small earthen dishes, that will hold half a pint or more.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1688.

A capricious man of fashion might sometimes prefer foreign wares, merely because they were foreign, to cheaper and better goods of the same kind that were made at home.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iv. c. 2.

WA'RISH, v. To heal, to recover from sickness, (Tyrwhitt.)
To be ware or wary, to take care of, and, consequentially, to cure, to heal, to recover.

Youre doughter, with the grace of God, shal warish and escape.—Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

——— Said she
Is ther no ship, of so many as I see,
Wol bringen home my lord? than were my herte
Al warished of his bitter peines smerte.
Id. Frankeleines Tale, v. 11,169.

And Varro testifieth, that even at this day there be some there who warish and cure the stinging of serpents with their spittle, but there are but few such as he saith.
Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 2.

But ever after it is warished and safe ynough, howbeit, they cannot abide a glut of raine, at any time following.
Id. Ib. b. xvii. c. 10.

Then without faile, the foresaid cattaile shal be warished and secured from all diseases.—Id. Ib. b. xxiv. c. 11.

WA'RISON. } Appears to be the same
WA'RNESTORE, v. } word as Garrison or garnison. (See GARNISH, and WARISH.) And to be applied to—
Preparation, provision, supply, possession, acquisition, gain, guerdon, or reward.
To warnestore and to garneson, are used by Chaucer indifferently.

Hengist, that here maistre was, he gaf in Lyndeseye
Londes faire, and rentes and townes grete and heye,
War thoru hym & ys men in fair wareson he brogte.
R. Gloucester, p. 114.

In eche stude heo sette there strong warnesture and god
Of folk of this lond here, and of here owne blod.—Id. p. 94.

His douhter with the quene was for hir warisoun.
R. Brunne, p. 198.

Thre hundreth marke he hette vnto his warisoun,
That with him so mette, or bring his hede to toun.
Id. p. 325.

The duke wrote to the kyng, in luf withouten loth,
Bisout him ouer alle thing, that he wild hold his oth,
& geld him the coroun of Inglond ilkadele,
Or Marie to warisoun wed hir, & joy it wele.—Id. p. 69.

Elfride thorgh heritage toke him the coroune,
& gaf Alfride his brother Surray to warisoune.—Id. p. 21.

His vitaile he has purueid in Brigges forto be,
His wynes were ther leid, & warnised that cite.—Id. p. 293.

The castelle hight Pilgrym, of alle it bare the flour;
The Sarazins kept it that tym for ther chefe warinstour.
Id. p. 180.

Over alle thinges ye shuln do youre diligence to kepe youre persone, and to warnestore your house.
Chaucer. The Tale of Melibeus.

Warnestoring of heighe toures and of grete edifices, is with grete costages, and with grete travaille: and whan that they ben accompliced, yet ben they not worth a stre but if they ben defended by trewe frendes, that ben old and wise.—Id. Ib.

He lost his witte, right in that place
And deyed within a litell space,
And thus his warison he toke
For the lady that he forsooke.—Id. Rom. of the Rose.

But yet his herte in other stede
Amonge his beades most deuoute,
Goth in the worldes cause aboute
How that he might his warison
Encrease, and in comparison.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

My liege lorde God mote you quite,
My father here hath but a lite
Of warison, and that he wende
Had all be lost, but nowe amende
He male well through your noble grace.—Id. Ib.

Either receive within thy towers
Two hundred of my master's powers,
Or straight they sound their warrison
And storm and spoil thy garrison.
Scott. Lay of the Last Minstrel, c. 4.

WAR-LOCK. A wizzard; Dr. Jamieson thinks has strong marks of affinity to the Is. Vardlok-r, an incantation. Dryden explains his own meaning.

He [Æneas] was no warluck, as the Scots commonly call such men, who they say are iron free or lead free.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, Ded.

WARM, v. } A. S. Wearm-an, wearm-ian;
WARM, adj. } Dut. Waermen; Ger. Wærmen;
WA'RMFUL. } Sw. Wærma, calefacere, calefieri.
WA'RMLY. } Warm is applied to a less degree
WA'RMNESS. } than heat. Met.—
WARMTH. } To inflame; to be or become ardent; to enkindle; to animate; to inspirit.

Thei brak in tuo his schankes, to mak the toumbe mete,
The blode was bothe warme & fresh, that of the schankes lete.
R. Brunne, p. 36.

And whit wharme water of hus eyen, worketh hit he white.
Piers Ploughman, p. 282.

And whanne sche hadde seyn Petir warmynge him, sche bihelde him, and seide, and thou were with Jhesus of Nazareth.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 14.

And when she sawe Peter warmynge hym selfe, she loked on him, and sayde: waste thou not also with Jesus of Nazareth?—Bible, 1551. Ib.

It may not be, sayth he, ther as gret fire hath long time endured, that ther ne dwelleth som vapour of warmnesse.
Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

And so it felle vpon a daie,
That he this thyng so slightly ledde,
He fonde hem both two a bedde
All warme.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

Thei leied hir on a couche softe,
And with a shete warmed ofte
Hir colde breste began to heate.
Id. Ib. b. viii.

Before the sunne hath warmed the ayre, and dissolued the yce, eche one well knoweth that there can be no sailing.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 25.

They [the Indians] began to talke among themselues, but in a low voyce, and ioyned together 6 and 6 and 8 & 8 in a company, and made a fire and warmed themselues, and we stood quietly beholding what they did.—Id. Ib. p. 410.

Yet heare we sometime our wiues pray for vs more warmely.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 336.

An other porcion therof fell vpon a stony ground, which because there laye many stones vnderneath, couered with a litle mould or dust, spraug vp to tymely. For the warmnesse of the weather brought it out of the ground.
Udal. Marke, c. 4.

And the roofes to rise in length aboue proportion, and to be packed thick with timber, seeking there through onely strength and warmenesse.
Carew. Survey of Cornwall, fol. 53.

The winters hurt recovers with the warm;
The parched green restored is with shade;
What warmth, alas! may serve for to disarm
The frozen heart, that mine inflame hath made?
Surrey. Having endeavoured to subdue his Passion.

Petre ferthermore abiured the Lorde (that is to saie, swore that he knewe him not, nor had naught to doe with him, nor naught would he medle with him,) while being throughly taken with colde, he taketh warmth and heate by the coles of the wicked Jewes.—Udal. Luke, c. 24.

This grace they will haue to be applyed by infusion: to the end, that as the body is warme by the heate, which is in the body, so the soule might be righteous by the inherent grace.—Hooker. Discourse of Justification, § 5.

Thus put he on his arming trusse, fair shooes upon his feet,
About him a mandilion, that did with buttons meet,
Of purple, large, and full of folds, curl'd with a warmeful nap,
A garment that gainst cold in nights, did soldiers use to wrap.
Chapman. Homer. Iliad, b. x.

The Creator is willing mankind should serve themselves of all his creatures' various excellencies, in their strength, weight, light, sweetness, warmness.
Bp. Taylor. Artificial Handsomeness.

Many persons, from vicious, and dead, and cold, have passed into life and an excellent grace, and a spiritual warmth, and holy fires: but from lukewarm and indifferent never any body came to an excellent condition, and state of holiness.—Id. vol. i. Ser. 13.

This I take to be properly enthusiasm, which, though founded neither on reason nor divine revelation, but rising from the conceits of a warmed or over-weening brain, works yet, where it once gets footing, more powerfully on the persuasions and actions of men, than either of those two, or both together.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iv. c. 1.

Then marble, soften'd into life grew warm,
And yielding metal flow'd to human form.
Pope. Imitation of Horace, b. ii. Ep. 1.

All stand amaz'd, a second jav'lin flies,
With equal strength, and quivers through the skies;
This through thy temples, Tagus, forc'd the way,
And in the brain-pan warmly bury'd lay.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. ix.

The soul with great and manly feelings warm'd,
Panting for knowledge, rests not till inform'd:
And shall not I, fir'd with the glorious zeal,
Feel those brave passions which my subjects feel?
Churchill. Gotham, b. iii.

The young plainly need [admonition] it most: as they are just entering into the world; with little knowledge, less experience, and yet scarcely even any distrust; with lively spirits and warm passions to mislead them, and time to go a great way wrong, if they do not go right.
Secker, vol. ii. Ser. 3

The third circumstance to be remarked in this profession of the Sycharites, is the great warmth and energy of expression with which they declare their conviction that Jesus was that universal Saviour whose arrival at this season they expected.—Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 24.

WARN, v. / WA'RNER, n. / WA'RNING, n. } A. S. Wærn-ian, wearn-ian; Dut. Waern-en; Ger. Warn-en; Sw. Warna; formed upon the verb war-ian, or wer-ian, to cause to look or take notice; to cause to be aware — waren, war'n, or warn.

To cause to look, observe, or take notice; to put upon guard or defence; to give notice of that which is to be guarded against, of that which ought or ought not to be done; to caution, to admonish; also, to protect, to defend, to deny.

A Warner was the first soteltie, and which preceded or gave warning of the courses, (Pennant, London.)

In Leland (iv. 226,) The Coronation of Lady Elizabeth, the warner before the course is twice mentioned.

We schul hem warne of oure thogt, er we to hem wende.
R. Gloucester, p. 45

Now goe this Thomas, his treson to purchace,
But how Edward was warned thorgh Gode's grace.
R. Brunne, p. 268.

And he herde that Archelaws regnyde in Judee for Eroude his fadir and dredde to go thidur, and he was warned in sleep: and went into the partis of Galilee.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 2.

But whē he hearde yt Archelaus dyd raigne in Jewrye, in the rowme of his father Herode, he was afrayed to go thyther. Not withstandynge after he was warned of God in a dreame he turned asyde into the partyes of Galyle.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

—— "Sires, now in the morwe tide
Out of your hostelrie I saw you ride,
And warned here my lord and soverain,
Which that to riden with you is ful fain,
For his desport; he loveth daliance."
"Frend, for thy warning God yeve thee good chance,"
Than said our hoste.
Chaucer. The Chanones Yemannes Prologue, v. 16,059.

He is to gret a nigard that wol werne
A man to light a candel at his lanterne;
He shal have never the lesse light parde.
Id. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5916.

She said: "Sir, what is the cause
Ye ben of port so daungerous
Unto this louer, and dainous,
To graunt him nothing but a kisse?
To warne it him, ye done amisse."—Id. Rom. of the Rose.

Long I abode there sooth to say,
Till Bialacoil I gan to pray,
Whan that I saw him in no wise
To me warnen his seruice,
That he me would graunt a thing,
Which to remember is well sitting. Id. Ib.

For all his purpose, as I gesse
Was for to make great dispence
Withouten warning or defence. Id. Ib.

—— And sent anon
By letters, and by messengers,
And warned all his officers,
That euery thynge be well araide.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

Thoughe it be not the houndes kinde
To eate chaffe, yet woll he werne
An oxe, whiche cometh to the berne
Therof to taken any foode. Id. Ib. b. ii.

That other thought, and helde hym stille,
And thanked hym of his warnyng.—Id. Ib. b. viii.

And the gates were shyt at ix. of the clocke, and opened agayne at vii. on the morowe, and euery cytezyn warnyd to haue his harneys by hym, that he myght be redy with shorte warnynge, when so euer he were callid.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1320.

The first course at my lorde's table in the great hall. First, a warner, conveyed upon a rounde boorde, of viii. panes with vii. toures, enbatteled, &c.
Leland. Coll. Inthronization of Warham.

O native gods! your family defend;
Preserve your line. This warning comes of you;
And Troia stands in your protection now.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

As two broad beacons, set in open fields,
Send forth their flames farre off to euery shire,
And warning giue, that enemies conspire,
With fire and sword the region to invade;
So flam'd his eyne with rage and rancorous ire.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 11.

Once warn'd is well bewar'd; not flattering lies
Shall sooth me more to sing with winking eyes
And open mouth;—for fear of catching flies.
Dryden. The Cock and the Fox.

He must be warned, and directed, and watched still by his parents, or some body intrusted by them, or else it might have been possibly much better for him to have expired under the midwife's hands, and prevented the effects of his own ignorance.
Wollaston. Religion of Nature, s. 8.

—— Oh! should'st thou wrong her
Just Heaven shall double all thy woes upon thee,
And make 'em know no end—Remember this
As the last warning of a dying man.
Rowe. Jane Shore, Act iv.

Dr. Solander himself was the first who found the inclination, against which he had warned others, irresistible; and insisted upon being suffered to lie down.
Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 4.

WARP, v. / WARP, n. / WA'RPING, n. } Dut. Werp-en, worp-en; Sw. Warp-a; A. S. Weorp-an, to cast, to hurl. "When planks or boards are awry, we say they cast, or they warp," (Verstegan.)

To cast, to throw, to shoot; to cast or throw, to project, (sc.) out of its course or direction, out of a right line; indirectly, crookedly, crossly; to move, or cause to move, to force, in an indirect, crooked, cross line; to wind, to cross, to bias.

Then he layd out one of those ankers, with a hawser which he had of 140 fadom long, thinking to haue warpt in, but it would not be: for as we shorted vpon ye said warpe the anker came home, so that we were faine to beare the end of the warpe, that we rushed in vpon the other small anker that Gabriel sent aboord, and layd that anker to seawards.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 277.

Calchas by sea then bade us haste our flight:
Whose engines might not break the walls of Troy,
Vnless at Greece they would renew their lots,
Restore the god that they by sea had brought
In warped keels [curvis carinis].
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Shall not my men do on their armour prest,
And eke pursue them throughout all the town?
Out of the road soon shall the vessel warp.
Id. Ib. b. iv.

She stretcheth a thread, and warpeth in length from the top of the tree downe to the very ground; and up again she whirles most nimbly by the same thread; so as at one time, she spinneth and windeth up her yarne.
Holland. Plinie, b. xi. c. 24.

By reason of which excessive heat, the very body thereof groweth naturally crooked, after the manner of wood that curbeth and warpeth with the fire.—Id. Plutarch, p. 561.

So Hereford for her says, Give me woof and warp.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 23.

Your hair wove into many a curious warp,
Able in endless errour to infold
The wandring soul.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act ii.

The cobwebs that spiders weave, which serve for patterns, as well for our women to make their webs of cloth, as for fishers to knit and work their nets, are in many respects very admirable: first in regard of the fine threads, and the subtile weaving thereof, which are not distinct one from another, nor ranged after the order of the warpe and woofe in our artificial webs upon the loom, but are continued and run all into one.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 786.

She acquainted the Greeks underhand with this treason, which was a warping against them, and advised them to look unto themselves, and stand upon their own guard.
Id. Ib. p. 409.

The heart upright without any sinful warpings.
Bp. Taylor. Artificial Handsomeness.

see your father's soul, like glowing steel
Is on the anvil; strike, while he's hot:
Turn him, and ply him, set him straight betimes,
Lest he for ever warp.
Dryden. Love Triumphant, Act v. sc. 1.

And the next morning July 1, 1741, being favoured with the wind in gentle breezes, we warped the ship in again, and let go the anchor in forty one fathom.
Anson. Voyages, b. ii. c. 2.

And of all arts sagacious dupes invent,
To cheat themselves and gain the world's assent,
The worst is—Scripture warp'd from its intent.
Cowper. Progress of Errour.

They are then called upon to "Weave the warp, and weave the woof, perhaps with no great propriety;" for it is by crossing the woof with the warp that men weave the web or piece.—Johnson. Life of Gray.

WA'RRANT, v. / WA'RRANT, n. / WA'RRANTABLE. / WA'RRANTABLENESS. / WA'RRANTABLY. / WA'RRANTING, n. / WA'RRANTY. / WA'RRANTISE, v. / WA'RRANTISE, n. } See GUARRANTEE. Fr. Garantir; It. Guarentire, from A. S. Warian, werian. See WAR, &c.

To defend, to protect, to secure, or assure, give assurance or security; to give credit, or affiance; to authorise, to sanction.

Many menne saine that in sweuenings
Ther nis but fables and lesings
But menne may some sweuen sene
Which hardly that false ne bene
But afterward ben apparaunt
This may I draw to warraunt.—Chaucer. Rom. of the R.

Our liege lordes sele on my patente,
That shew I first my body to warrente,
That no man be so bold, ne preest ne clerk,
Me to disturbe of Cristes holy werk.
Id. Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,273.

Your chekes embolned like a mellow costard
Colour of orenge, your brestes Satournad,
Gilt vpon warrantise, the colour wil not fade.
Id. An other Ballade.

And haue hym thilke letter rad,
Whiche he them sent for warrant.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

For in thys life no man ought to warrant and assure hym selfe, and lyue thereby out of feare.
Fisher. A Godlie Treatise, &c.

He afterwards transported parcel thereof in a small barke vnto London, there to be solde, and caried a warrant also with him, that he had at Sandwich paid the custome due vnto our lord the king.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 172.

Manye things pricked forward the Galles in this deuice: as the pawsyng of Sabinus the dayes before: the warranting of the runagate: the want of victualles, &c.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 77.

In regard hereof you wil vndertake to warrantize, and make good vnto vs those penalties and forfaitures which shal vnto vs appertaine.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 144.

[A doue] had many hundred yeres afore broughte a braunche of an oliue tree into ye arke of Noe, for a token that ye wrath of God was pacified, & also a caucion or pledge of warantise yt the floud was at an end.—Udal. Luke, c. 3.

But least hee shoulde forthynke that beleued me: ye shall vnderstand that the matter was first shewed mee by a light felowe, who coulde not bring anye witnes or warraunty of his tale.—Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 165.

—— Spread sailes, and if the sky
Warrant thee not to goe for Italy,
He warrant thee; the iust cause, why thou fear'st
Is this, because thou know'st not whom thou bear'st.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. v.

That error was not great, but always excusable, if not warrantable.
Bp. Taylor. Dissuasive from Popery, pt. ii. b. ii. § 6.

But it is the warrantable and necessary duty of S. Peter, and all his true evangelicall successors, when they meet with a froward generation, to call it so.
Bp. Hall. Ser. Feb. 18, 1634.

Conjugal love requires not only moral, but natural causes to the making and maintaining; and may be warrantably excus'd to retire from the deception of what it justly seeks, and the ill requitals which unjustly it finds.
Milton. Tetrachordon.

If these things come from God, let them shew their warranty, and their books of precedents.
Bp. Taylor. Dissuasive from Popery, pt. i. c. 2. § 10.

Whereof the one doth warrantize vnto vs their faith, the other their loue, till they fall away, and forsake either the one or the other, or both.—Hooker. Ser. on Jude.

Is it because there is nothing else but necessity alone, doth warrantize the killing of a man: and he who unlawfully and without expresse commandment of a superior [unconstrained] doth it, is a meer homicide and manslayer.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 706.

We (to our great shame and rebuke be it spoken) are so unhappie, as to commit our selves to other men's tuition, and live under their warrantize and assurance.
Id. Plinie, b. xxii. c. 6.

Thus they prescribe with great warrantize, to take all the naile parings of toes and fingers of man, &c.
Id. Ib. b. xxviii. c. 7.

My hours my own, my pleasure unrestrain'd.
So bred, no wonder if I took the bent
That seem'd ev'n warranted by thy assent.
Dryden. Sigismonda & Guiscardo.

—— This confirms
The king in full belief of all you told him
Concerning Osmyn, and his correspondence
With them who first began the mutiny.
Wherefore a warrant for his death is granted.
Congreve. Mourning Bride, Act iv.

His intentions were pure and right, his actions warrantable, and the tenor of his life conspicuously blameless.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 2.

A man's pen may be very warrantably and usefully employed, though it be not directly so, to teach a theological truth, or incite the reader's zeal.
Boyle. Works, vol. ii. p. 433.

The warrantableness of this practice may be inferred from a parity of reason.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 1.

Next may follow the clause for warranty; whereby the granter doth, for himself, and his heirs, warrant and secure to the grantee the estate so granted.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. ii. c. 20.

The ship herself remained in the harbour with only the warrant officers on board for many years.
Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 11.

Can'st thou, and honour'd with a Christian name,
Buy what is woman-born, and feel no shame;
Trade in the blood of innocence, and plead
Expedience as a warrant for the deed?—Cowper. Charity.

It is a necessary and warrantable pride to disdain to walk servilely behind any individual, however elevated his rank.
Reynolds, vol. i. Dis. 6.

WA'RREN. } See WAR, WARE, &c. Fr. WA'RRENER. } Garenne; Dut. Waerende, (locus septus,) from the A. S. verb War-ian, wer-ian, tueri, defendere, protegere.

A place for the protection, safe custody or preservation (of rabbits or other animals).

Sesse the sywester. sat on the benche
Watte the waryuere. and hus wife dronke.
Piers Ploughman, p. 106.

We found the whole countrey to bee a warren of a strange kinde of connies, their bodies in bignesse as be the Barbary connies, their heads as the heads of ours, the feete of a want, and the taile of a rat being of great length.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 738.

Wheras in parks and warrens we haue nothing else than either the keepers & wareners lodge, or at least the manor place of the cheef lord and owner of the soile.
Holinshed. Description of England, b. ii. c. 19.

There's nothing loves him: his own cat cannot endure him,
She had better lye with a bear, for he is so hairy
That a tame warren of fleas frisk round about him.
Beaum. & Fletch. Women Pleas'd, Act ii. sc. 4.

Fulvius Hirpinus was the first inventor of warrens as it were for winkles, which he caused to be made within the territorie of Tarquiny, a little before the civile warre with Pompey the great.—Holland. Plinie, b. ix. c. 56.

And to this effect [Alexander] commanded certaine thousands of men, one or other, throughout all the tract, as well of Asia and Greece, to give their attendance, and obey him: to wit, all hunters, faulconers, fowlers and fishers, that lived by those professions. Item, all forresters, park-keepers, and wariners.—Id. Ib. b. viii. c. 16.

Like a young puppy in a warren, they have a flirt at all, and catch none.—Vanburgh. The Relapse, Act ii. sc. 1.

Free warren is a similar franchise, erected for preservation or custody (which the word signifies) of beasts and fowls of warren; which being feræ naturæ, every one had a natural right to kill as he could.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. ii. c. 3.

WART. A.S. Wearh, wearte; Dut. Waertte, wartte; Dan. Warte; A.S. Wear, hardness of the hands or feet caused with labour. A knot, a knurbe. Dut. Weer, wier, (Somner.)

We mountains to the land, like warts or wens to be,
By which, fair'st living things disfigur'd oft they see.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 7.

Another burgen there is close unto him, bearing out like a knob, of the bignesse of a wert.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 22.

A little freckle, mole or pendant wert in the face of man or woman, is more offensive than black and blew marks, than scars or maimes in all the rest of the body.
Id. Plutarch, p. 288.

Tiberius the emperor being troubled with a fellow that wittily and boldly pretended himself to be a prince, at last when he could not by questions, he discovered him to be a mean person by the rusticity and hardness of his body: not by a callousness of his feet, or a wart upon a finger, but his whole body was hard and servile, and so he was discovered.—Bp. Taylor. Of Repentance, c. 3. § 7.

When the picture of Achilles is drawn in tragedy, he is taken with those warts, and moles, and hard features, by those who represent him on the stage, or he is no more Achilles: for his creatour Homer has so describ'd him.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, Ded.

Such in paintings are the warts and moles, which, adding a likeness to the face, are not, therefore, to be omitted.
Reynolds. Parallel of Poetry & Painting.

WAS. } Goth. Wis-an; A.S. Wes-an; Dut. WERE. } Wesen; Ger. Wesen; Dan. Wæren; Sw. Wæra, esse, fieri, vivere, to be or continue to be. See WIS, WISE.

Was and were are grammatically arranged as tenses under the verb to be.

The Kyng Saul was of Ysrael kyng.
This was (as mē may in bok rede and se)
Ar God were bore a thousand ger. and fourscore & thre.
R. Gloucester, p. 27.

Thilke tyme our lord was in Bedleem ybore,
Of Marie, to saue men, that arst were for lore.—Id. p. 61.

Alle that nyght the kynges folk full ille were thei led
Many on was slayn. R. Brunne, p. 17.

So fals a traytour in erth was non as he.—Id. p. 41.

Thei gaf him the coroune, & were of him full blive.
Id. p. 54.

Anon it was ytold hyme thⁱ the children of Israel
Weren disconfit in battaile.—Piers Ploughman, p. 6.

Ac Wiles and Wit weren aboute faste
To overcome the kynge. Id. p. 68.

God wot quath a wis on. that were nat the beste.—Id. Ib.

Than Eroude seynge that he was dissēyved of the astronomyens was ful wrooth, and he sent & slowgh alle the children that weren in Bethleem and in alle the coostes thereof fro two yeer age and within.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 2.

And whanne hise twelve disciplis weren clepid togidre he gaf to hem power of unclene spirits to cast hem out of men.
Id. Ib. c. 10.

For this thi brother was deed, and lyuyde agen, he perisshede and is foundun.—Id. Luk, c. 15.

Me thinketh it accordant to reson,
To tellen you alle the condition
Of eche of hem, so as it semed me,
And whiche they weren, of what degre;
And eke in what arale that they were inne.
Chaucer. Prologue, vv. 41, 42.

And shortly, whan the sonne was gon to reste
So hadde I spoken with hem every one.
That I was of his felawship anon.—Id. Ib. v. 31.

Thise riotours three, of which I tell
Long erst or prime ring of any bell,
Were set hem in a taverne for to drinke.
Id. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,595.

What wolt thou sayn? thou wisted nat right now.
Whether she were a woman or a goddesse.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 1159.

And natheles by daies olde
Whan that the bokes weren leuer,
Writyng was beloued euer
Of them, that weren vertuous.
For here in erthe amonge us
If no man write howe it stode
The pris of them that were good
Shulde (as who sayth) a great partie
Be loste. Gower. Con. A. Prol.

Ros. Not true in loue?
Cel. Yes, when he is in, but I thinke he is not in.
Ros. You haue heard him sweare downright he was.
Cel. Was is not is.
Shakespeare. As You Like It, Act iii. sc. 4.

Oh, that estates, degrees, and offices,
Were not deriu'd corruptly, and that cleare honour
Were purchast by the merit of the wearer.
Id. Merchant of Venice, Act ii. sc. 9.

WASH, v. WASH, n. WASH, adj. WA'SHER. WA'SHING, n. WA'SHY. } Dut. Waschen; Ger. Waschen; Sw. Washa; A.S. Wæscan, wacs-an, lavare, abluere.

To wet or water; to touch, cover, dip, soak, in any way act upon—with water, with any fluid; to perform a lavation or ablution; to cleanse with any fluid. Wash, n. is also applied,—

A wet place; a bog, marsh, &c.; any thing collected by washing; that which washes or is washed.

Wash, or washy, adj.—watery or moist; thin, as diluted substances; wanting firmness or solidity.

For heo wolde the stones wasch, & ther inne bathe y wis.
For ys no ston ther among, that of gret vertu nys.
R. Gloucester, p. 146.

Thei washe hym and wypede hym. and wonde hym in cloutes. Piers Ploughman, p. 35.

And whanne thei turnen agen fro chepyng thei eten not but thei be wajschen and manye othere thingis ben that ben takun to hem to kepe, wayschingis of cuppis and of watere vessels and of vessels of bras and of beddis.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 7.

And whē they come from yᵉ market, excepte they washe, they eate not. And many other thynges there be, whiche they haue taken vpon to obserue, as yᵉ wasshynge of cuppes and cruses, & of brazen vessels, and of tables.
Bible, 1551 Ib.

Men loue ghe ghoure wyues as Crist louyde the chirche, and ghaf hymsilf for it to make it hooli and clenside it with the waisschyng of watir in the word of lyf to ghyue the chyrche glorious to hymsilf.—Wiclif. Effesies, c. 5.

And Pylate seynge that he profytide nothing, but that the more noyse was maad toke water and waischide his hondis bifore the puple & seide I am giltles of the blood of this rightful man, bysee you.—Id. Matthew, c. 27.

When Pylate sawe that he preuayled nothynge, but yᵗ moore busynes was made, he toke water & washed his handes before the people sayinge: I am innocent of yᵉ bloude of this iust persone, and yᵗ ye shal see.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Hire forehead shone as bright as any day,
So was it washen, whan she lete hire werk.
Chaucer. Milleres Tale, v. 3312.

For so it was that for his feblenesse or debylyte of age, he, by councell of physycyons, was sowyd in a shete wesshyd with aqua vite, to the ende to cause his olde body to catche naturall hete.—Fabyan. Chronycle. Charlys VII. an. 1380.

Yᵉ coyne of gold at those dayes was greatly mynysshed with clyppynge & wasshynge, to the great hurt of the comynaltie.—Id. Ib. an. 1422.

Upon this iland was found good store of the ore, whiche ih the washing helde gold to our thinking plainly to be seene.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 66.

If a table be foule and fylthy of a longe contynuaunce, fyrst we rase it, after whan it is rased we washe it, and laste after the washynge we wipe and make it cleane.
Fisher. Seuen Psalmes, Ps. 5. pt. i.

Ser. 'Tis a lustie wench: now could I spend my forty pence
With all my heart, to have but one fling at her;
To give her but a washing blow.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Wild Goose Chase, Act v. sc. 4.

For the raine that fell, [in Egypt] caused all the washes arising from the river Nilus which watered the grounds, to be bitter, whereupon ensued a great plague and pestilence to the whole region.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxi. c. 4.

Such is the nature of the sea, full of shelves and washes, with narrow chanels running between.—Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 26.

The wretched, bloody, and vsurping boare,
(That spoyl'd your summer-fields, and fruitfull vines,)
Swilles your warm blood like wash, & makes his trough
In your embowel'd bosomes.
Shakespeare. Rich. III. Act v. sc. 2.

They're only made for handsome view, not handling;
Their bodies of so weak and wash a temper.
Beaum. & Fletch. Bonduca, Act iv. sc. 1.

—— Altea, he looks lean,
'Tis a wash knave, he will not keep his flesh well.
Id. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act iii.

And there dwels one Mistris Quickly, which is in the manner of his nurse; or his dry-nurse; or his cooke; or his laundry; his washer, and his ringer.
Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor, Act i. sc. 2.

But they, all about, or under ground, or circuit wide
With serpent errour wandring, found their way,
And on the washie ooze deep channels wore.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. vii.

The shall be a palish clearness, evenly and smoothly spread, not overthin and washy, but of a pretty solid consistence.—Reliquiæ Wottonianæ, p. 79.

It renders the face delightfully handsome; is not subject to be rubbed off, and cannot be paralleled by either wash, powder, cosmetic, &c.—Spectator, No. 547.

Indeed, as different as the silence of an Archimedes in the study of a problem, and the stillness of a sow at her wash.—South, vol. i. Ser. 1.

The Jews, as soon as they came from markets, or any other such promiscuous resorts, would be sure to use accurate, and more than ordinary washings.—Id. vol. ii. Ser. 8.

Alas! our women are but washy toys,
And wholly taken up in stage employs;
Poor willing tits they are: but yet I doubt
This double duty soon will wear them out.
Dryden. Epil. On the Union of the Companies

WASP. } A.S. Wæfs, wæps; Dut. Wespe; WA'SPISH. } Ger. Wespe; Fr. Guespe; It. Vespa; Sp. Abispa; Lat. Vespa.

Met.—apt or quick to be angry, or resentful; irritable; easily provoked.

Ther ne is no waspe in this world that wil folloke styngen
For stappyng on a too, of a stynand frere.
Piers Ploughman. Creds.

I saw a waspe, that fiercely him defide,
And bad him battaile euen to his iawes;
Sore he him stung, that it the blood forth drawes,
And his proud hart is fild with fretting ire.
Spenser. Vistons of the World's Vanitie.

Waspes use to build them nests on high, of earth and clay, and therin doe make their roomes and cells of wax. Hornets, in caves and holes under the ground.
Holland. Plinie, b. xi. c. 21.

And she that sent it, is so waspish too,
There's no-returning to her till't be gone.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Sea Voyage, Act iv.

As he [S. Jerome] was naturally a waspish and hot man, so now being vexed with some crosse proceedings (as he thought) of John Bishop of Hierusalem, he flew out into some expressions indeed, but yet such as in other places he doth either salve or contradict.
Bp. Hall. Episcopacy by Divine Right, pt. ii. § 20.

Hornets and wasps have strong jaws, toothed, wherewith they can dig into fruits, for their food; as also gnaw and scrape wood, whole mouthfuls of which they carry away to make their combs.
Derham. Physico-Theology, b. iv. c. 11. Note 21.

Much do I suffer, much, to keep in peace
This jealous, waspish, wrong-head, rhyme in grace;
And much must flatter, if the whim should bite
To court applause by printing what I write.
Pope. Imitation of Horace, b. ii. Ep. 1.

Every one of these virtuosos looked on all associates as wretches of depraved taste and narrow notions. Their conversation was, therefore, fretful and waspish.
Rambler, No. 177.

WA'SSAIL, v. / WA'SSAIL, n. / WA'SSAILER. } A. S. Wæs-hale. See Somner, and the quotations from Robert of Gloucester, and Drake.

Wassailers, — applied, generally, to — merry, jovial, drinkers; to revellers, rioters.

This mayde out of chambre com, tho thei hadden y gete,
With a coppe of gold, fol of wyn, syde drow hire tail
A kne to the kyng heo seyde, lord kyng wasseyl.
R. Gloucester, p. 117.

Then indeed did all arise, and went to the women, where spending all the day, and good part of the night, in dancing, carolling, and wassailing.—Sidney. Arcadia, b. iii.

At such a time that men should be pluck'd from their saddest thoughts, and by bishops, the pretended fathers of the church, instigated, by publick edict, and with earnest endeavour push'd forward to gaming, jiggling, wassailing, and mixt dancing, is a horror to think.
Milton. Of Reformation in England, b. ii.

Gond. Have you done your wassayl? 'tis a handsome drowsie dittie I'll assure ye.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman Hater, Act iii. sc. 1.

The pope, in sending relicks to princes, does as wenches do by their wassels at new years-tide, they present you with a cup, and you must drink of a slabby stuff, but the meaning is you must give them moneys, ten times more than it is worth.—Selden. Table-Talk.

A jolly wassel bowl,
A wassel of good ale,
Well fare the butler's soul
That setteth this to sale:
Our jolly wassel.
Ritson. Ancient Songs. A Carrol for a Wassel Bowl.

—— The woods, or some near town,
That is a neighbour to the bordering down,
Hath drawn them thither, 'bout some lustie sport,
Or spiced wassel-bowl, to which resort
All the young men and maids of many a cote,
Whilst the trim minstrel strikes his merry note.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act v.

—— I should be loath
To meet the rudeness, and swill'd insolence
Of such late wassailers.—Milton. Comus.

Geoffry of Monmouth relates, on the authority of Walter Calenius, that this lady [Rowena], the daughter of Hengist, knelt down on the approach of the king, and presenting him with a cup of wine, exclaimed, "Lord king, wæs-heil!" that is literally, "Health be to you."
Drake. Shakespeare and his Times.

WASTE, v. / WASTE, adj. / WASTE, n. / WA'STEFUL. / WA'STEFULLY. / WA'STEFULNESS. / WA'STENESS. / WA'STER. / WA'STING, n. / WA'STRELL. } Fr. Gaster; It. Guastàre; Sp. Gastar; Lat. Vastare, which is derived by Tooke from the A. S.—In Dut. Woësten, verwoesten; Ger. Wusten, verwusten; A. S. Westan, awestan, in desertum redigere, exterminare, vastare, demolire; to reduce to a desert, to exterminate, to demolish.

To desolate, to destroy, to demolish, to consume, to expend, to squander; to apply to useless purposes; to use or employ lavishly, profusely, prodigally; as of no use or value, as refuse; to decrease, to diminish, to decay.

And this lond, that was riche, wastede al to nogte.
R. Gloucester, p. 136.

& slouh our Inglish men, wasted toun & feld.
R. Brunne, p. 29.

Lincolne & Lyndeseie thei stroied & wasted.—Id. p. 42.

It lies now waste & lorn, half may thei not tille.—Id. p. 239.

—— Swonken ful harde
And wonne th' thuse wasters.—Piers Ploughman, p. 2.

He bad wastours go worche. and wynne here sustenaunce
Thorw some trewe travail.—Id. p. 82.

Therfore we resseyuynge the kyndom unmouable, haue we grace bi which serue we plesynge to God with drede and reuerence, for oure God is fier that waastith.
Wiclif. Ebrewis, c. 12.

For what is youre lyf? as smoke apperynge at a litle, and aftirward it schal be waastid.—Id. James, c. 4.

Lordings, the time it wasteth night and dey,
And steleth from us, what prively sleping,
And what thurgh negligence in our waking,
As doth the streme, that turneth never again.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Prologue, v. 4441.

They that folily wasten and dispenden the goodes that they han, whan they han no more propre of hir owen, than they shapen hem to take the goodes of another man.
Id. Tale of Melibeus.

Men must enqueren (this is min assent)
Wheder she be wise and sobre, or dronkelewe,
Or proud, or elles other waies a shrew,
A chidester, or a wastour of thy good.
Id. Marchaunles Tale, v. 9410.

The wall and all the citie within
Stante in ruine, and in decaies,
The felde is where was the palais,
The towne is wast.
Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And he by name Bacchus hight,
Whiche afterwarde, whan that he might,
A wastor was, and all his rent
In wyne and bordell he dispent.—Id. Ib. b. v.

But yet, that notwithstandynge, though the siege were withdrawen, and the cytie spareyd, yet the countre thereaboute they pylled and wasted withoute.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 102.

The Greeks chieftans all irked with the war
Wherin they wasted had so many years;
And oft repuls'd by fatal destiny,
A huge horse made, high raised like a hill,
By the divine science of Minerva.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

And so passed by a lyttell streyght way through a maryse, and rested hym in certayne olde wast and broken howeses.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 269.

We trauailed directly eastward, hauing a sea on the south side of vs, and a waste desert on the north.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 103.

Then be not like a rough and violent wind,
That in the morning rends the forrests downe,
Shoues vp the seas to heauen, makes earth to tremble,
And toombes his wastfull brauery in the euen.
Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 669.

But when I made my count, with how great care of mind
And hearts unrest, thus I had sought so wastefull fruit to find;
Then was I stricken straight with that abused fire;
To glory in that goodly wit that compass'd my desire.
Surrey. Paraphrase on Ecclesiastes, c. 2.

How can men be fedde then or beastes liue, when as such wastefull negligence is miserablye vsed, and mispending the time of their profite, in shamefull disorder of inobedience, they care not greatly what becomes of their owne, bicause they intend to liue by other mens?
Sir J. Cheeke. Hurt of Sedition.

An other no lesse is, that such plentie of vittayle, as was aboundauntly in euery quarter, for the reliefe of vs all, is nowe all wastfully and vnthriftfully spent, in mainteyning you vnlawfull rebelles.—Id. Ib.

But what is a loyteror? a sucker of honie, a spoyler of corne, a destroyer of fruite, naye a waster of money, &c.
Id. Ib.

And why should not such hurtfull wasting and heeringe of countries, be iustly punished with great seueritie, seeing robbing of houses, and taking of purses, doe by lawe deserue the extremitie of death?—Id. Ib.

Who so is slouthfull & slacke in hys laboure, is the brother of hym that is a waster.—Bible, 1551. Prouerbes, c. 18.

Their [tynners] workes, both streame and load, lie either in seueral or in wastrell, that is, in enclosed grounds or in commons. The wastrell workes are reckoned among chattels, and may passe by word or will.
Carew. Survey of Cornwall, fol. 13.

But through long anguish, and selfe-murdring thought,
He was so wasted and fore-pined quight,
That all his substance was consum'd to nought.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 10.

Now he exacts of all, wastes in delight,
Riots in pleasure, and neglects the law,
He thinks his crown is licens'd to do ill:
"That less should list, that may do what it will."
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. i.

For neuer two such kingdomes did contend,
Without much fall of blood, whose guiltlesse drops
Are euery one, a woe, a sore complaint,
'Gainst him, whose wrongs giues edge vnto the swords,
That makes such waste in briefe mortalitie.
Shakespeare. Hen. V. Act i. sc. 2

Satan with less toil, and now with ease
Wafts on the calmer wave by dubious light,
And like a weather-beaten vessel holds
Gladly the port, though shrouds and tackle torn;
Or in the emptier waste, resembling air,
Weighs his spread wings, at leisure to behold
Farr off th' empyreal heav'n.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. ii.

—— Embassies thou shew'st
From nations far and nigh; what honour that,
But tedious wast of time to sit and hear
So many hollow compliments and lies,
Outlandish flatteries?—Id. Paradise Regained, b. iv.

Long so they trauelled through wastefull waies,
Where dangers dwelt, and perils most did wonne,
To hunt for glory and renowmed praise.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 1.

Ah! but said crafty Trompart, weet ye well,
That yonder in that wastefull wildernesse
Huge monsters haunt, and many dangers dwell.
Id. Ib. c. 10

Others also who having wastfully eaten out of their owne patrimony, would be glad to repaire, if they might, their decayed estates, with the ruine they care not of what nor of whom, so the spoile were theirs.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. v. § 79.

For as Judas his care for the poore was meere couetous nesse, and that franck-hearted wastfulnesse spoken of in the gospell, thrift; so there is no doubt but that going in rags may be pride, and thrones bee challenged with vnfained humilitie.
Id. A learned Sermon on the Nature of Pride.

Even so be those wretches more odious and worthy to be hated of us, who by their miserable parsimony and pinching do mischiefe, than those by their riot and wastefulnesse be hurtfull to a common-weale, because they take and catch from others that which they themselves neither will nor know how to use.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 175.

—— Shee of nought affraid
Through woods and wastnesse wide him daily sought,
Yet wished tydings none of him vnto her brought.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 3.

And what needs that (quoth he) cannot Pompey recover and live, if Lucullus were not a waster, and a delicate given to belly-cheare?—Holland. Plutarch, p. 361.

Haply straw or rushes and such like stuffe might catch fire and suddenly flame, so thereupon might ensue much losse, and a publike wasting of many faire buildings.
Id. Ib. p. 313.

And thou art a wast-thrift, and art run away from thy master, that lov'd thee well.
Beaum. & Fletch. Knight of the Burning Pestle, Act i.

In homely guise their honest hearts express,
And bless the warriour who protects the peace,
Who keeps the foe aloof, and drives afar
The dreadful ravage of the wasting war.
Rowe. On the Success of Q. Anne.

I from the root thy guilty race will tear,
And give the nations to the waste of war.
Pope. Statius. Thebaid, b. i.

For it is hardly to be hoped, but that our negligence about their conduct, will tempt them, either to be dishonest, or idle, or wasteful, in our service.—Secker, vol. ii. Ser. 7.

Wastefulness also, and even mere negligence, approach to the same sin; for by both you injuriously diminish what is not your own.—Id. Ib. Ser. 11.

WASTE, or WAIST, n. } Skinner says,—perhaps from the Lat. Vastus, q. d. vastior corporis pars, the larger part of the body, which appears to be the reverse of the fact; compared with the breadth across the shoulders, and across the hips, it is the smaller, the wasting, diminishing part. See WASTE, ante.

They are clothed with beastes skinnes as well the men as women, but that the women go somewhat straiter and closer in their garments then the men do, with their waistes girded.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 203.

And the women weare of the sayd turqueses at their nostrils and eares, and very good wast-coats and other garments.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 369.

At last that mighty chaine, which round about
Her tender waste was wound, adowne gan fall,
And that great brazen pillour broke in peeces small.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 12.

Host. No gauling [dear spouse] no gauling, every days new vexation abates me two inches in the waste, terrible pennance for an host.
Beaum. & Fletch. Fair Maid of the Inn, Act iii.

And with her armes graceth a wast-coate fine
Imbracing her as it would ne'er untwine.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 5.

I'll write a play, says one, for I have got
A broad brim'd hat, and waste belt towards a plot.
Dryden. 1 Pt. Conquest of Granada, Prol.

'Twas a sad sight before they march'd from home
To see our warriours in red wastecoats, come,
With hair tuck'd up, into our tiring room.
Id. Marriage A-la-Mode, Prol.

He had a sky coloured silk pair of breeches, and a piece of red silk thrown cross his shouldiers, and hanging loose about him; the greatest part of his back and waist appearing naked.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1687.

The waist of a ship of this kind is an hollow space of about five feet in depth, contained between the elevations of the quarter-deck and the fore castle, and having the upper deck for its base, or platform.
Falconer. Shipwreck, c. 2. Note 37.

Conscious of age she recollects her youth,
And tells, not always with an eye to truth,
Who spann'd her waist, and who, where'er he came,
Scrawl'd upon glass miss Bridget's lovely name.
Cowper. Truth.

WA'STEL. Perhaps (Spelman) from Dut. Vasten, to fast. Skinner prefers the Fr. Gasteau, a cake; and Mr. Tyrwhitt assents to Skinner. In Picardy, Gasteau is called Ouastel; and the French etymologists consider the name to be given to a kind of bread from the size (a vastitate), baked in one mass.

Wastel-bread is repeatedly mentioned in our old statutes regulating the assize of bread.

For thou hast no good by good faith to bygge the with a wastell.—Piers Ploughman, p. 104.

Of smale houndes hadde she, that she fedde
With rosted flesh and milk, & wastel brede.
Chaucer. Prol. v. 147.

The shilling too seems originally to have been the denomination of a weight. When wheat is at twelve shillings the quarter, says an ancient statute of Henry III. then wastel-bread of a farthing shall weigh eleven shillings and four pence.—Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 4.

WATCH, v.
WATCH, n.
WA'TCHER.
WA'TCHFUL.
WA'TCHFULLY.
WA'TCHFULNESS.
WA'TCHING, n.

See WAKE. Wake and watch are the same word (k changed into tch).

To be wakeful or vigilant; to look, to observe—vigilantly, attentively, heedfully, carefully, cautiously, warily; to attend, to heed, to regard, to guard.

A watch,—a machine by which to watch or observe time.

Whan thei hadde alle eten, & watches mad alle preste,
To grete that thei had geten, R. gede to reste.
R. Brunne, p. 182.

And scheperdis weren in the same cuntre, wakinge and kepinge watchis of the night on her flok.—Wiclif. Luk, c. 2.

And there were in ye same region shepherdes abidynge in the felde & watchige their flocke by night.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

The man whiche hathe his lond tilled,
Awaiteth nought more redily
The heruest, than thei gredily
Ne make than warde and watche,
Where thei the profite mighten catche.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

As Dauid in his boke recordeth
How Polyphemus, whilom wrought
When that he Galathe besought
Of loue, whiche he maie not latche,
That made him for to waite and watche.—Id. Ib. b. ii.

Hengiste beynge mynded to execute his former purposed treason, shewyd his watche-word, by reason wherof anon the Brytons were slayne as shepe amonge wolues.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 89.

Thus they stode styll kepynge watche and ward, redy at their defence.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. p. 433.

And on ye moũtaynes and hylles costyng the see on the fronters agaynst Flaũders and Fraũce were set watche me and watchers in dyuers maners, I cã not tell how.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 49.

This erande of the watcher, is a cõmaundement grounded and sought oute in the councell of him, that is most holye.
Bible, 1551. Daniel, c. 4.

Of men obliuious, he shall make you of good remembraunce: of slowe witted, easie to be taught: of sleapishe sluggardes, vigilant & watchefull: of sorowful men, chereful: of earthly folke, heauenlie.—Udal. John, c. 14.

The kinge himselfe being shot thorow by the Colonell with a pistoll, lying on the ground for dead, & I looking as watchfully for the sauing of Manteos friends, as others were busie that none of the rest should escape.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 263.

Now wil I let passe my continual labours and trauayls taken for the gospels sake, and not rehearse my continual and often watchinges, my hũger and thurst suffered oftentimes, my often fastynges, nor the payne of coldenesse and nakednes.—Udal. 2 Cor. c. 1.

Some keepe aboute the prison with lanterns and watchbels answering one another fiue times euery night.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 74.

Upon the walles euery night doe watch fifteene men in watch houses, for euery watch house fiue men, and in the market place 30 souldiers continually.—Id. Ib. vol. ii. p. 108.

Our souldyers assone as the watcheword was geuen, stept quikly to the wall, and passing slightlye ouer it, tooke three campes.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 207.

Lu. Are they all a bed?
Boy. I think so, and sound asleep, unless it be
Some women that keep watch in a low parlor
And drink, and weep, I know not to what end.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Night-Walker, Act ii.

The souldier may not moue from watchfull sted,
Nor leaue his stand, vntill his captaine bed.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 9.

For dangerous things can hardly to their end,
Whereon so many watchfully attend.
Drayton. Q. Isabell to Mortimer.

Thus she all night wore out in watchfulnesse,
Ne suffred slouthfull sleepe her eye-lids to oppresse.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 6.

And call their diligence, deceit;
Their virtue, vice;
Their watchfulness, but lying in wait:
And blood, the price?
B. Jonson. Catiline, Act iv. sc. 7.

And this it doth not by such a kind of choice, deliberation and forecast as the watch-maker makes his watch; for as yet this vital rational principle doth not exercise an actual ratiocination or discursive deliberation, neither hath those organs of heart, and brain, and spirits, and vessels (by the help of which we exercise our acts of reason) till it hath made and framed them.—Hale. Origin. of Mankind, p. 26.

The use of this watch-tower, is to shew light as a lanthorne, and give direction in the night season to ships, for to enter the hauen, and where they shall avoid barrs and shelves.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxvi. c. 13.

When he sent Demetrius his sonne into Greece with a puissant armada, and a great power of men for to deliver the Greeks from servitude, he made a reason thereof and said: that his glory would from Greece shine out into all continents and habitable parts of the earth, no lesse than a burning light from some high watch-tower.
Id. Plutarch, p. 341.

We know how great an absurdity our Saviour accounted it, for the blind to lead the blind; and to him that cannot so much as see, to discharge the office of watch.
South, vol. i. Ser. 5.

Heavy with age, Entellus stands his ground,
But with his warping body wards the wound.
His hand, and watchfull eye keep even pace;
While Dares traverses, and shifts his place.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. iv.

He must watchfully look to his own steps, who is to guide others by his authority and his example.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 19.

These volunteers in politics, undergo all the pain, watchfulness, and disquiet of a first minister, without turning it to the advantage either of themselves or their country; and yet it is surprising to consider how numerous this species of men is.—Tatler, No. 160.

Watching, for the most part, imports hostility, and no man observes the motions of his enemy, but that he may advantagiously find a time to fight him.
South, vol. v. Ser. 10.

But suppose I had found a watch upon the ground; and it should be inquired how the watch happened to be in that place; I should hardly think of the answer which I had before given, that for any thing I knew, the watch might have always been there.—Paley. Natural Theology, c. 1.

Amongst the various societies of Christians, there are some, in which the holy ordinances are more regularly administred; discipline more equitably inforced; and Christian liberty more watchfully protected.
Warburton, vol. ix. Ser. 11.

It is not at all wonderful, that what depends on man, should be so liable to error, and negligence, as to demand the strongest exhortations to care and watchfulness.
Gilpin, vol. i. Hint 19.

WA'TCHET. Chaucer writes waget; and Skinner thinks it may be wad-chet, the colour of wad or woad, Fr. Guesde; and Cotgrave says the French dyers call the coarser sort of stuff guesde, and the finer, pastel.

Yclad he was ful smal and proprely,
All in a kirtel of a light waget.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3322.

We saw birds of all colours, some carnation, some crimson, orenge-tawny, purple, watchet, and of all other sorts both simple and mixt.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 645.

They him disarm'd, and spredding on the ground
Their watchet mantles fring'd with silver round,
They softly wip't away the lelly'd blood
From th' orifice.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 4.

But he their sonne full fresh and iolly was,
All decked in a robe of watchet hew,
On which the waues, glittring like crystall glass,
So cunningly enwouen were, that few
Could weenen whether they were false or trew.
Id. Ib. b. iv. c. 11.

Then follows an armed knight bearing a crimson baneret in hand, with the inscription Valour: by his side a lady bearing a watchet banneret, the inscription Clemencie.
Beaum. & Fletch. Moral Representations.

Beneath that, another flowing garment of watchet cloth of silver, laced with gold.—B. Jonson. Masque of Hymen.

As in the rainebowe's many coloured hewe
Here see we watchet deep'ned with a blewe.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 3.

Grim Auster, drooping all with dew,
In mantle clad of watchet hue.
Warton. Ode on the Approach of Summer.

WA'TER, n.
WA'TER, v.
WA'TERER.
WA'TERING, n.
WA'TERISH.
WA'TERY.
WA'TERINESS.
WA'TERLESS.

Goth. Wato; A. S. Wæter, wætere; Dut. Waeter; Ger. Wassen; Sw. Watn, from wæt-an, to wet.

Applied to sea, river, rain, spring, or well. To water,—To wet, to flow or pour water.

Vortiger ys y flowe, for drede of hym ywis,
To an castel in Yrchenfeld, in the est ende of Walis,
A boue the water of Wye, vp an hul on heyg.
R. Gloucester, p. 135.

Tho yt was ney to hym ycome, baldelyche spac
An sturnelyche to thys water, tho yt alles out brac.
"Water," he seyde, "wat thencst on? ych rede ne com no ver."
Id. p. 321.

A wondere were, tuo watres ther er togidir gon,
& tuo kyngdames, with tuo names, now er on.
R. Brunne, p. 282.

That light folwede the Lorde. in to the lowe erthe
The water whitnessed that he was God for God wente on hym drye.
Piers Ploughman, p. 352.

Honger hent in hast wastour by the mawe
And wrang hym by the wombe. that al watered huse yen.
Id. p. 137.

After sharpest showres quath Pees. most sheene is the sonne
Ys no weder warmer. than after watery cloudes
Nother love levere. ne levere freondes
Than after warre in this worlde. Id. p. 364.

And the same harm do somtime the smal dropes of water, that enteren thurgh a litil crevis in the thurrok, and in the botom of the ship, if men ben so negligent, that they discharge hem not by time.—Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

That she my lady on the sond
Met, and in armes so constraine,
That wonder was behold them twaine,
Which to my dome during twelue houres,
Neither for heate ne watry shoures,
Departed not no company. Id. Dreame.

Ne that a monk, whan he is rekkeles,
Is like to a fish that is waterles;
That is to say, a monk out of his cloistre.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 181.

And from the fire he toke up his matere,
And in the ingot it put with mery chere:
And in the water-vessel he it cast.
Id. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,702

From heuen out of the water-gates
The reynie storme feile downe algates,
And all hir tacle made vnwelde,
That no man might him selfe bewelde.
Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

But after that the high wreche,
The waterweyes let out seche
And ouergo the hilles hie,
Whiche suery kynde made die,
That vpon middell erth stoode,
Out take Noe, and his bloode. Id. Ib. b. vii.

The countrey throughout is very well watred with springs, riuers, and Ozeraes, or lakes.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 476.

Yf the husband manne be of thys dysapoynted, nothyng in maner preuayleth, the gardiner, nor yet the waterer; but yf heauen bee seasonable, the whole increase ought to be aknoweleged to come thence, and from God.
Udal. 1 Corinth. c. 3.

Also take charge of the stuffe wrought, & to foresee that neither the yarne be burnt in tarring, nor the hempe rotted in the watering.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 298.

For now was the time come, that in steade of the vnsauoury and waterishe lettre of Moses lawe, we should drinke the pleasaunt wine of the spirite of the ghospell.
Udal. John, c. 2.

——— To thy house
Receive him, and forge causes of abode:
Whiles winter frets the seas, and wat'ry Orion;
The ships shaken, unfriendly the season.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

For asmuch as he [an vnclene spirite] hath an obstinate wil to dooe hurt, he goeth walking vp & down by places barain & waterlesse, seking rest.—Udal. Luke, c. 11.

Alas! the snow shall be black and scalding,
The sea waterless, fish in the mountain.
Wyat. How unpossible to find quiet in Love.

But yet if the waterboughes, that sucke and feede on the iuice and nourishment that the fruitefull branches should liue by, are to bee cut downe from the tree, and not regarded: luckie and prosperous bee that right hande, that shall plant and possesse a soyle, where they may fructifie, increase, and growe to good.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 687.

Waters devoure and swallow-up the earth: waters quench and kill the flames of fire: they mount up aloft into the aire, and seeme to challenge a seignorie and dominion in the heavens also; whiles by a thick seeling and floore as it were of clouds, caused by the dim vapors arising from them, that vitall spirit which giveth life unto all things, is debarred, stopped and choked.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxi. c. 1.

Raleigh having thus landed, after he had watered, marched forward with his men through dangerous and difficult ways to the town, and finding it empty, seized on it.—Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, b. iv.

——— Here for her sake,
My pipe in silence as of right shall mourne,
Till from the wat'ring we againe returne.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 2.

[It] is excellent to bee applied unto the eyes, for to stay their continuall watering.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxiii. c. 4.

Plums have a waterish taste.—Id. Ib. b. xv. c. 28.

When I awoke, and found her place devoid,
And nought but pressed grass where she had lyen,
I sorrowed all so much, as earst I joy'd,
And washed all her place with watry eyen.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 9.

But a peculiar vertue they [violets] have besides to stay the running and waterie eyes.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxi. c. 19.

Lys. Yes but this lady
Walks discontented, with her watry eyes
Bent on the earth.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Maid's Tragedy, Act i.

——— Give your petitions
In seemly sort, and keep your hat off, decently.
For scowring the water-courses thorow the cities?
A fine periphrasis of a kennel-raker.
Id. The Prophetess, Act iii. sc. 1.

Their reason is but a low, obscure and imperfect shadow thereof, as the water-gall is of the rain-bow.
Hale. Origin. of Mankind, p. 50.

My sweet facetious rascal, I could eat water-gruel with thee a month for this jest, my dear rogue.
B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act ii. sc. 1.

Mean while with his legatts and tribuns consulting, and giving order to fitt all things for what might happ'n in such a various, and floating water-fight as was to be expected.—Milton. History of England, b. ii.

And [I] remember a neighbouring gentleman's son was among us five years, most of which time he employed in airing and watering our master's grey pad.
Spectator, No. 313.

——— Nor dare they stray
When rain is promis'd, or a stormy day:
But near the city walls their watring take,
Nor forrage far, but short excursions make.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iv.

Sobriety in our riper years is the effect of a well-concocted warmth; but where the principles are only phlegm, what can be expected from the waterish matter, but an insipid manhood, and a stupid old infancy?—Id. Ib. Ded.

Or wilt thou Cæsar, chuse the wat'ry reign,
To smooth the surges, and correct the main?
Then mariners, in storms, to thee shall pray,
Ev'n utmost Thule shall thy pow'r obey;
And Neptune shall resign the fasces of the sea.
Id. Ib. Georgics, b. i.

A pendulous sliminess answers a pituitous state, or an acerbity, which resembles the tartar of our humours, or waterishness, which is like the serosity of our blood.
Floyer.

They order'd the water-men to let fall their oars more gently; and then every one favouring his own curiosity with a strict silence, it was not long ere they perceiv'd the air breaking about them like the noise of distant thunder, or of swallows in a chimney.
Dryden. Essay of Dramatic Poesie.

From behind both these defences, the natives kept perpetually harassing our waterers with stones.
Cook. Third Voyage, b. v. c. 4.

And the nicety with which this is done, may be inferred from their being sufficiently water-tight for use without caulking.—Id. First Voyage, b. i. c. 18.

Alas from circling horrours thus combin'd,
Our method of relief alone we find:
Thus water-logg'd, thus helpless to remain
Amid this hollow, how ill-judg'd! how vain!
Falconer. Shipwreck, c. 2.

WA'TTLE, n. WA'TTLE, v. WA'TLING, n. } A. S. Watelas, wætl, wethel, perhaps from Withhte, a withie.

Any thing (a fence, hurdle,) made of withs or withys. See WITH, n.

Skinner thinks,—the wattles of a cock are so called from Waddle, or waggle.

He made a maner morter, and mercy hit hihte
And ther with Grace, by gan to make a good foundement
And watelide hit and wallyde hit, with hus peynes and hus passion.—Piers Ploughman, p. 383.

Which the rebels had barricado'd and cumbred on each hand with trenches, palisadoes, wattles joyned together, with stones and turf cast between, using great art, but greater industry.—Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, b. iv.

Nor are his comb and his wattles in vain, for they are an ornament becoming his martial spirit.
More. Antidote against Atheism, b. ii. c. 11.

This [the loach] is not unlike the shape of the eel: he has a beard or wattles like a barbel.
Walton. Angler, pt. i. c. 18.

——— Might we but hear
The folded flocks penn'd in their watled cote,
Or sound of past'ral reed with oaten stops.
Milton. Comus.

The walls are either mud, or watle bedawbed over.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1688.

The sides and top of the house are filled up with boughs coursely wattled between the poles, and all is covered over with long grass, rushes, and pieces of hides; and the house at a distance appears just like a hay cock.—Id. Ib. an. 1691.

The houses are too low to admit of chambers; yet they have here 2 or 3 partitions on the ground floor, made with a watling of canes or sticks, for their several uses.
Id. Ib. an. 1688.

There thro' the dusk but dimly seen,
Sweet ev'ning-objects intervene:
His wattled cotes the shepheard plants,
Beneath her elm the milk-maid chants.
Warton. Ode on the Approach of Spring.

WAVE, v. WAVE, n. WA'VER, v. WA'VERER. WA'VERING, n. WA'VERINGLY. WA'VERINGNESS. WA'VY. } Anciently written Wawe. Fr. Vague; It. Vago, vagare; Dut. Waeghe; Ger. Wage; Sw. Wæg; A. S. Wæg; Goth. Wego; from the verb Wagian, to move. Waf-ian, to move as the sea up and down. Applied to—

The rising and falling surface of the sea; any similar motion; or line, as if formed by such motion. And to wave or waver—

To move up and down, to and fro; (to make such motion as a sign or token;) to rise and fall in curved lines; to curl; to move unsteadily, as water agitated; to fluctuate; to be unsteady, unfixed, unsettled, or undetermined.

Als William ther on suld go, he stombled at a nayle,
Into the waise tham fro he tombled top ouer taile.
R. Brunne, p. 70.

And while thei rowiden: he slepte, and a tempeste of wynd cam doun into the watir: and thei weren dryuen hidir and thidir with wawis, and weren in perel.
Wiclif. Luk, c. 8.

But axe he in feith, and doute no thing, for he that doutith is lyk to a wawe of the see which is moued and borun aboute of wynd.—Id. James, c. 1.

But let him aske in fayeth and wauer not. For he that doubteth, is lyke the waues of the sea, tost of the wynd, and caried with violence.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And herken this ensample: A gret wawe of the see cometh somtime with so gret a violence, that it drencheth the ship.—Chaucer. Persones Tale.

Whan he came in his countree,
And passed had the wauy see,
In an hauen deepe and large
He left his rich and noble barge,
And to the court shortly to tell,
He went. Id. Dreame.

And whan a ship hath loste his stere
Is none so wise, that maie hym stere
Ageine the waues in a rage.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

The mast to brake, the sayle to roofe,
The ship vpon the wawes droofe,
Till that thei see the londes coste.—Id. Ib. b. viii.

Whanne those fotemen felt the arowes lyght among theym, and sawe the baners and standerdes waue with the wynde, the which they had nat bene acustomed to se before, than thei reculed backe among their owne mē of armes.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 103.

And for none other cause verayly, but for his sounde and constaunt profession, by yᵉ which whan the people wer in a wauering and mammering what he was, Peter being as the voice of al the apostles together, pronounced the sētence, that Jesus was the sonne of the liuing God.
Udal. Luke, c. 6.

Loke not waueringly about you, haue no distrust, be not afrayed, lest you be tossed in yᵉ sourges of sorowes, as thoughe you were vndefended and set naught by.
Id. 1 Peter, c. 5.

Yet towardes night a great sort came downe to the water side, and waued vs on shoare with a white flag.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 33.

In the midst of a great quadrangle railed about hanged with course linnen, and agreeably vnto the foure partes of the world made with foure gates to goe in and out at, is digged a hole: in the hole is laied good store of wood, whereon is raised gallantly a waued roofe.—Id. Ib. p. 86.

And eche parte thought to fyght, for euery day they shewed themselfe in the felde, with baners and penons wauerynge with the wynde; it was great pleasure to beholde thē.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 333.

For putting his hande to the holy shryne, that was called Archafederis, whan it was broughte by kynge Dauid from the citie of Gaba, though it were wauerynge and in daunger to fall, yet was he stryken of God, and fell deed immediately.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governour, b. i. c. 11.

Which to behold, he clomb vp to the banke,
And looking downe, saw many damned wights,
In those sad waues; which direfull deadly stanke,
Plonged continually of cruell sprights.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

The waved water chamelot was from the beginning esteemed the richest and bravest wearing.
Holland. Plinie, b. viii. c. 48.

As Cynthia from her wave-embatil'd shrouds
Op'ning the west, comes streaming thro' the clouds,
With shining troops of silver-tressed stars,
Attending on her as her torch-bearers.
Drayton. Duke of Suffolk to the French Queen.

In which amazement, when the miscreant
Perceived him to wauer weake and fraile,
Whiles trembling horror did his conscience daunt,
And hellish anguish did his soule assaile;
To driue him to despaire, and quite to quaill,
Hee shew'd him painted in a table plaine,
The damned ghosts, that doe in torments waile.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 9.

——— Still he stroue,
Yet still the little hands were bloudy seene,
The which him into great amaz'ment droue,
And into diuers doubt his wauering wonder cloue.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 1.

For liberty of will is like the motion of a magnetick needle toward the north, full of trembling and uncertainty till it were fixed in the beloved point; it wavers as long as it is free, and is at rest when it can choose no more.
Bp. Taylor, vol. iii. Ser. 7.

Fri. O she knew well,
Thy loue did read by rote, that could not spell:
But come young wauerer, come goe with me,
In one respect, Ile thy assistant be.
Shakespeare. Romeo & Juliet, Act ii. sc. 3.

Notwithstanding hee with wauering replying, that hee would some other time deale more largely in the matter.
Hooker. Wal. Travers his Sup to the Council.

This court disease is excellently described by the wiseman, The dalliance with trifles, darkeneth to us better sights; and the waveringness of our cupidities, turneth the minde into a diziness unawares to itself.
Montague. Devoute Essayes, Pref.

The vale an iron harvest seems to yield
Of thick sprung lances in a waving field.
Dryden. Aurenge-Zebe, Act i.

No more the lab'ring hind regrets his toil,
But cheerfully manures the grateful soil:
Secure the glebe a plenteous crop will yield,
And golden Ceres grace the waving field.
Congreve. To Lord Halifax.

What though I am delighted with the wavings of thy forests, and those breezes of perfumes which flow from the top of Tirzah; are these like the riches of the valley?
Spectator, No. 585.

And God be thanked that he did so! since by thus settling his wavering disciples in an unshaken belief of this truth, he enabled them, with the utmost firmness and constancy, to propagate their belief of it, and even to seal their testimony with their blood.—Atterbury, vol. iii. Ser. 7.

This is called by a peculiar name, revelation; and our assent to it faith: which as absolutely determines our minds, and as perfectly excludes all wavering, as our knowledge itself; and we may as well doubt of our own being.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iv. c. 16.

But, farmer, look where full-ear'd sheaves of rye
Grow wavy on the tilth, that soil select
For apples: thence thy industry shall gain
Ten-fold reward. J. Philips. Cider, b. i.

At length two appeared on the banks of the river, a man and a woman; and the latter kept waving something white in her hand as a sign of friendship.
Cook. Second Voyage, b. i. c. 4.

WAVE, or Waive, v. Waif. Weft. Also written Weive and Veive. (See Skinner, and Veined.) Fr. Guesver, to waive, to refuse, abandon, give over; also, to surrender, give back, resign, redeliver, (Cotgrave.)

Mr. Tyrwhitt explains it,—to forsake, to decline, to refuse, to depart. The Fr. Guesver (Menage thinks) is from guespir, werpire; Dut. Werp-en, (to warp,) to cast or throw.

Waifs, — Law Lat. (Weife,) waivium, bona waiviata, are those which thieves may have thrown away in their flight, (Spelman.)

Fr. Choses guaives, or guesves,—waifes or straies, or things quitted, abandoned, forsaken, left at random, (Cotgrave.) See the quotation from Blackstone. It is used (met.) by Cowper, to denote one who has gone astray.

Whan Thomas was perceyued, his lettres wer away,
The kynge's courte he weyued, for he dred to deie.
R. Brunne, p. 269.

—— For ay as besy as bees
Ben they us sely men for to deceive,
And from a sothe wol they ever weive.
Chaucer. Squieres Prologue, v. 10,299.

But if he nill take of it no cure
Whan that it cometh, but wilfully it weiven:
Lo, neither case nor fortune him deceiven
But right his own slouth and wretchednesse.
Id. Troil. & Cres. b. ii.

So that with vaine honour deceiued
Thou haste the reuerence weiued
From hym, whiche is thy kynge aboue.
Gower. Con. A. b. i.

In heuen he felle out of his stede,
And Paradise him was forbede,
The good men in erthe him hate,
So that to helle he mote algate,
Where euery virtue shall be weiued,
And euery vice be resceiued. Id. Ib.

And ouer that in suche a wise
She hath hem with hir wordes wise
Of Christes feith so full enformed,
That thei therto ben all conformed,
So that baptisme thei receiuen,
And all hir false goddes weyuen. Id. Ib. b. ii.

There as no man his counseyll wist
But thou, by whome he was deceiued
Of loue, and from his purpose weiued.—Id. Ib.

The kynges were ayene receiued,
And pees was take, and wrath weiued.—Id. Ib. b. iii

Tell in what wise Agamemnon
Through chance, that maie not be weiued,
Of loue vntrewe was deceiued.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

And therefore now I will resume those testimonies of Clemens Alexandrinus, of Eusebius, S. Basil, S. Hierome and S. Bernard, which I wav'd before.
Bp. Taylor. Real Presence, § 19.

Notwithstanding all which importunity, he resolved not to wave his way upon this reason, perhaps more generous than provident, that if, as he said, he should but once, by such a diversion, make his enemy believe he were afraid of danger, he should never live without.
Reliquiæ Wottonianæ, p. 229.

To whom she answerd; then it is by name,
Proteus, that hath ordayn'd my sonne to die;
For that a waift, the which by fortune came
Vpon your seas, he claym'd as property:
And yet nor his, nor his in equity,
But yours the waift by high prerogatiue.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 12.

The gentle lady, loose at random left,
The greene-wood long did walke, and wander wide
At wilde adventure, like a forlorne weft,
Till on a day the satyres her espide
Strayen alone withouten groome or guide.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 10.

Whom overtaking, loude to him he cride;
Leaue faytor quickly that misgotten weft,
To him that hath it better iustifide,
And turne thee soone to him, of whom thou art defide.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 1.

Clar. The lord of the soil has all wefts and strays here, has he not?—B. Jonson. Every Man out of his Humour.

All the dispute is about the precise and adequate notion of the word justification: whence those questions might well be waved as unnecessary grounds of contention.
Barrow, vol. ii. Ser. 5.

Waifs, bona waviata, are goods stolen, and waived or thrown away by the thief in his flight, for fear of being apprehended.—Blackstone. Commentaries, b. i. c. 8.

'Twas hard perhaps on here and there a waif,
Desirous to return, and not receiv'd:
But was a wholesome rigour in the main.
Cowper. Task, b. iii.

WAWL. Acriter et incondite vociferari, from the Gr. Αυειν, clamare, (Junius.) It appears to be the same word as—

To wail.

Jabbering and wawling according to the office of Saynt Antonyne's personage.
Bale. Yet a Course, &c. (1548.) fol. 43.

Thou must be patient; we came crying hither:
Thou know'st, the first time that we smell the ayre
We wawle and cry.—Shakespeare. K. Lear, Act iv. sc. 6.

WAX, v. Goth. Wahsjan, crescere; A. S. Weax-an, wex-an; Dut. Wassen; Ger. Wachsen; Sw. Wæxa.

To grow, to increase; to be or become larger, greater; to grow or become.

—— Knoute's poer vaste
Wexynge was, that he wan the maystrie atte laste.
R. Gloucester, p. 304.

Tho Adam was first y mad, & hys of spryng wex wyde,
Heo by gonne at the on ende of the world al in the est syde.—Id. p. 9.

For now bigynnes Dauid to wax a werreour,
With Leulyn gan he kiđi to be the kynge's traytour.
R. Brunne, p. 240.

That al the whit of this worlde. ys woxen in to gyle.
Piers Plouhman. Vision, p. 48.

Thei wiln wexon pure wroth wonderliche sone.
Id. Crede.

And whanne it is sprungen up it wexith into a tre, and is maad gretter thanne alle erbis, and it makith grete braunchis: so that briddis of hevene moun dwelle vndir the schadewe therof.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 4.

And of clothing what ben you bisy? biholde ye the lilies of the feeld hou thei wexen, thei traveilen not neither spynnen.—Id. Matthew, c. 6.

And thei woxen strongir & seiden, he moueth the puple: techinge thorough al Judee, biginnynge fro Galilee til hidur.
Id. Luk, c. 23.

For he that is the former principal,
Hath maked me his vicaire general
To forme and peinten erthly creatures
Right as me list, and eche thing in my cure is
Under the mone, that may wane and waxe.
Chaucer. The Doctoures Tale, v. 11,958.

As whan a man hath ben in poure estat,
And climbeth up and wexeth fortunat,
And ther abideth in prosperitee.
Id. The Nonnes Preestes Prol. v. 14,783.

For you wo.te well, that besyde the very full nyght, whiche is the diepe darke, there are two times of darkenesses; the tone ere the morning waxe lyght, the tother when the euening waxeth derke.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 1202.

When as the English, whose o'er-weary'd arms
Were with long slaughter lately waxed sore,
These unexpected and so fierce alarms
To their first strength do instantly restore.
Drayton. Battle of Agincourt.

For coblers (in old time) have prophesied, what may they do now then, that have every day waxed better, and better?
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act ii. sc. 1.

We may observe it growing with age, waxing bigger and stronger together with the increase of wit and knowledge, of civil culture and experience.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 4.

WAX, n. Wax, v. Wa'xen. Wa'xy. A. S. Wac, wäce, gentle, soft, tender, flexible, pliant, pliable, limber, (Somner.) Hence the A. S. Wæx; Dut. Wachs; Ger. Wachs. Wachter refers to the verb weichen, cedere, to yield, to give way. (See Weak.) Applied to—

Various substances, yielding to pressure; that prepared by the bee; that discharged from trees.

We perceiue by youre letters that the prices of waxe doe rise there with you, by reason that the Poles and Lifelanders doe trade into Russia by licence.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 306.

This is generally observed, that all sorts of wax be emolitive, heating and incarnative: but the newer and fresher that they are, the better they are thought to be.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxii. c. 24.

High time it seemed then for euery wight
Them to betake vnto their kindly rest;
Eftsoones long waxen torches weren light,
Vnto their bowres to guiden euery guest.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 1.

Finally, he [the unconstant] is servile in imitation, waxey to perswasions, witty to wrong himself, a guest, in his owne house, an ape of others, and in a word, any thing rather than himself.—Bp. Hall. Characterisms, b. ii.

He had one man drowned, and several lost all their arms, and some of them that had not wax'd up their cartrage or catouche boxes, wet all their powder.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1685.

He form'd the reeds, proportion'd as they are,
Unequal in their length, and wax'd with care,
They still retain the name of this ungrateful fair.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. i.

To pitch the waxen flooring some contrive:
Some nurse the future nation of the hive.
Id. Virgil. Georgics, b. iv.

To him [Plato] we owe a similar combination in the great orator and philosopher of Rome, who formed his style on the model of Plato, and has given us a resemblance scarcely less exact than that of the bust to its mould, or the waxen seal to the sculptured gem.—Know. Ess. No. 124.

WAY. Way-fare. Wa'yfarer. Wa'yfaring, n. Wa'ylay, v. Wa'yless. Wa'yward. Wa'ywardly. Wa'ywardness. Lat. Via; A. S. Weg, wæge, wegfaran; Dut. Weaghe; Ger. Weg, from wag-ian; Dut. Waeghen; Ger. Wegen, to move. Applied to—

The path, road, course, track, on, or in which we move, or go, or pass; to the mode, manner or means, method, plan, regular or habitual course, in which we move or act, in which we proceed or advance.

Way-ward,—regarding, or having regard to his own way, course, or practice; and hence—wilful self-willed; perverse, peevish, petulant.

This kyng, tho he sey then deth, ys knygtes he let of sende,
And schewede hem al the wey wyder he schulde wende.
R. Gloucester, p. 122

We see nouther whidere thou may haf sikerer weie.
R. Brunne, p. 257

And fulle myche peple spredden her clothis in the wey, other kittiden braunchis of trees and strewiden in the weye
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 21

And many of ye people spred their garmētes in ye way. Other cut doune braūches from the trees, & strawed thē in the waye.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

The lanterne of thi bodi is thin iye, if thin iye be symple, al thi bodi schal be ligtful. But if thin yghe be weyward al thi bodi schal be derk.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 6.

That thei do tho thingis that ben not conenable, that thei be fulfillid with al wickidnesse, malice, fornycacioun, couetyse weiwardnesse, &c.—Id. Romayns, c. 1

Your loue and true hertes he coueyted aye,
He preched, he teched, he shewed the right way,
Wherefore ye like tyrants wood and wayward,
Now haue him thus slaine for his reward.
Chaucer. Lament. of Mary Magdalen.

Then eyther prynce sought the wayes & meanys howe eyther of theym myght dyspōtent other.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1335.

Thys is a common custome amonge the Galles to compell euen wayfairyng menne to stay whether they will or no, and to enquire what euery of them hath hard or knoweth of euery matter.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 87.

Strangers occasioned to trauaile through the shire, were wont, no lesse sharply than truly, to inueigh against the bad drinke, course lodging, and slacke attendance which they found in those houses that went for innes: neither did their horses better entertainment, proue them any welcomer ghests then their masters: but instead of remedy, they receyued in answere, that neither such an outcorner was frequented with many wayfarers, nor by hanging out signes, or forestalling at the townes end, like the Italians, did they inuite any.—Carew. Survey of Cornwall, fol. 66.

But life is so doubtfull, and fortune so wayward, that she doeth not alway threate in strikyng, nor striketh in threatnyng.—Golden Boke, Let. 4.

He loued his enemies, yea those that turned waywardly from him and that were worthy of euyll.
Udal. 1 John, c. 2.

But certes the waywardnes of some persons towardes bokes, when they come newly furth, is so great, that they wil bidde away with the bokes out of theyr syght, ere they take any assay or tast of the same.—Id. Luke, Pref.

A certain Laconian as he way-fared, came unto a place where there dwelt an old friend of his, who the first day, of purpose avoided him, and was out of the way, because he was not minded to lodge him.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 390.

Met he any passengers or waifaring men, he would fawn upon them and wag his tail; contrariwise he barked eagerly at the thief, and was readie to flie upon him.—Id. Ib. p. 789.

Once only, O blessed Jesu, whiles thou wert wayfaring upon this globe of earth, didst thou put on glory; even upon Mount Tabor, in thy heavenly transfiguration.
Bp. Hall. The Great Mystery of Godlinesse, § 3.

The prophet hath what he would, what he must will, a sight of his owne blood: and now disguised herewith, and with ashes upon his face, he way-laies the king of Israel.
Id. Cont. Ahab & Benhadad.

Dost thou way-lay me with ladies?
Beaum. & Fletch. The Little French Lawyer, Act ii.

When on upon my wayless walk
As my desires me draw,
I like a madman fell to talk
With every thing I saw.—Drayton. Quest of Cynthia.

—— Where Cowen in her course
Tow'rds the Sabrinian shores, as sweeping from her source,
Takes Towa, calling then Karkenny by the way,
Her through the wayless woods of Cardiff to convey.
Id. Poly-Olbion, s. 5.

I cannot but affirm thy pride hath been
A special means this commonwealth to mar;
And that thy wayward will was plainly seen
In vain ambition to presume too far.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. v.

Therefore, in great condescension to the waywardness of our natures, he is often pleased to keep the treasury of outward blessings in his own hands, [and] deliver them out by little and little, according to our present exigencies.
Hale. Cont. Meditations upon the Lord's Prayer.

The gates of hell are open night and day;
Smooth the descent, and easie is the way:
But to return and view the chearful skies,
In this the task, and mighty labour lies.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. vi.

The scripture aptly resembles our life to a wayfaring, a condition of travel and pilgrimage.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 15.

It is ordinary to feed their humours into unnatural excrescences, if I may so speak, and make their whole being a wayward and uneasy condition, for want of the obvious reflection that all parts of human nature is a commerce.
Spectator, No. 202.

Other miseries which waylay our passage through the world, wisdom may escape, and fortitude may conquer.
Rambler, No. 69.

We, at all adventures, resolve to disregard him whenever we please, and boldly pursue our worldly interests, our sensual appetites, our ill-natured passions, our wayward humours, our wildest fancies, right or wrong, let who will be the worse for it.—Secker, vol. i. Ser. 24.

He takes the field, the master of the pack
Cries—"Well done Saint!" and claps him on the back.
Is this the path of sanctity? Is this
To stand a way-mark in the road to bliss?
Cowper. Progress of Errour.

WE. Goth. Weis; A. S. We; Dut. Wy; Ger. Wir; Sw. Wy. See Who.

We is used by the person speaking for or instead of the names (nouns) by which they are called, to fix the action of the verb, expressed or understood, upon the persons so speaking; and is, in grammar, denominated the first personal pronoun in the plural number.

It is sometimes used by a single person, by kings, &c.

Lord, he seyde, we beth men wyde ydriue aboute
From contrey to contrei. R. Gloucester, p. 39.

Ther fore we wolde bidde the, that thou vs sum plase geue,
That amty were in thi lond. Id. p. 40.

I rede we chese a hede that us to warre kan dight
& to that ilk hede I rede we us binde.—R. Brunne, p. 2.

—— Consailest thou ous to gelde
Al that we owen eny wyght. er we go to housele.
Piers Plouhman, p. 386.

Lord, whanne sighen we thee hungry, and we fedden thee? thirsty and we gaven thee drynke? And whanne sighen we thee herbories, and we herboriden thee? or nakid and we hiliden thee?—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 25.

Master, whē saw we the an hongred, & fedde the? or a thurst, & gaue the drincke? when saw we the herbourlesse and lodged the?—Bible, 1551. Ib.

When saw we thee an hungred and fed thee? or thirsty and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger and took thee in? or naked and clothed thee.
Common Version. Ib.

And if we sechen to be iustified in Crist, we ouresilf ben foundun synful-men, whether Crist be mynyone of sin? God forbede.—Wiclif. Galathies, c. 2.

If then whyle we seke to be made ryght wyse by Christ, we ourselves are founde sinners, is not then Chryst the minister of synne? God forbyd.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

But if while we seek to be justified by Christ, we our selves also are found sinners, is Christ the minister of sin? God forbid.—Common Version. Ib.

So that wesilf glorien in ghou in the chirchis of God for ghoure pacience and feith in alle ghoure persecuciouns and tribulaciouns which ghe susteynen into the ensaumple of the iust doom of God.—Wiclif. 2 Tessal. c. 1.

So that we our selues reioyce of you in the congregaciouns of God, ouer your pacience and faythe in all youre persecucions and trybulacyons that ye suffre, whyche is a token of the ryghtwes iudgement of God.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Therfor alle seiden. Thanne art thou the sone of God? and he seide, ye seyen that I am. And thei seiden, what yet desiren we witnessing? for we us silf han herd of his mouth.—Wiclif. Luk, c. 22.

What need we any further witness? For we our selves haue heard of his own mouth.—Common Version. Ib.

We seken fast after felicite,
But we go wrong ful often trewely,
Thus we may sayen alle, and namely I.
Chaucer, vv. 1268, 69, 70.

—— Good is, that we also
In oure time amonge us here
Do write of newe some mattere
Ensampled of the old wise
So that it might in such a wise
Whan we be deade and els where
Beleue to the worldes ere
In tyme comyng after this.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

To morrow ere fresh morning streak the east
With first approach of light, we must be ris'n,
And at our pleasant labour, to reform
Yon flourie arbors, yonder allies green,
Our walk at noon, with branches overgrown,
That mock our scant manuring, and require
More hands than ours to lop thir wanton growth.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iv.

WEAK, adj. WEAK, v. WEA'KEN, v. WEA'KENER. WEA'KLY. WEA'KLING, n. WEA'KNESS. A. S. Wac, wace; Dut. Wack, week, weyk; Ger. Weich; Sw. Wek; from A. S. Wic-an; Ger. Weichen, labare, to totter, to fail. See Wax. Tottering, failing or falling, faint; feeble, frail, debilitated; without power, strength, or firmness.

Ac the vel & fless was so bard, & the scolle hard & thycke,
That, vor they yt ne com nogt thoru, the dunt nas nogt wycke. R. Gloucester, p. 208.

The lengthe of a lenton, flesh moot I leue,
After that Estur is ycome, and that is hard fare,
And Wednesday ich wyke withouten fleshmete.
Piers Plouhman. Crede.

A mantel hong her fast by,
Upon a bench weake and small.—Chaucer. Rom. of the R.

Somwhat to weken gan the paine
By length of plaint.—Chaucer. Troyl. & Cres. b. iv.

Thus we did remaine the sixt day: then we were very weake and wished all to die sauing onely my selfe which did comfort them and promised they should come soone to land by the helpe of God.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 164.

We also finde double the perill in the reciduacion, that was in the first sicknes, with which disease nature being forelaborid, foreweried and weaked, waxeth the lesse able to beare out a new surfet.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 49.

By mean wherof, his people were so sore mynesshed & wekyd, that he was forced to take peas wt his enemyes.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 171.

But in the ende, thorough the prayer of the holy byshop Wolstān, the Walshe men were so weked and febled, that a fewe knyghtes scomfyted of theym a great hoost.
Id. Ib. c. 223.

It filleth our persones full of vices, strengtheth our sinewes to wickednes, weaketh our hertes in vertues, &c.
Golden Boke, Let. 3.

In number we were diminished, and in strength greatly weakned, both by reason of our sicknesse and also of the number that were dead.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p.228.

The Lord perceyuing that his disciples (who were as yet but rude, & weaklynges) did geue no credence vnto his doctrine, attempted many wayes to bring forth in them, and stablish this faith.—Udal. Mark, c. 4.

Emong christian spouses let there not be greuous displeasures & offences, neyther lette hym nor her seke any diuorce or separacion for lyght displeasures, but the one must be reconciled vnto the other yf any thyng chaunce through humaine frailtie, and weakenesse.—Id. Matt. c. 5.

But she now weighing the decayed plight
And shrunken sinewes of her chosen knight,
Would not a while her forward course pursew,
Ne bring him forth in face of dreadfull fight,
Till he recouer'd had his former hew:
For, him to be yet weake and weary, well she knew.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 9

But when as him (all in bright armour clad)
Before her standing she espied had,
As one out of a deadly dreame affright,
She weakely started, yet she nothing drad.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 1.

The condition of man in this world is so limited and depressed, so relative and imperfect, that the best things he does he does weakly, and the best things he hath are imperfections in their very constitution.
Bp. Taylor, vol. iii. Ser. 7.

He [Æschines] was but weakling and very tender, and therefore his mother would not much let him go to school, neither also durst his masters keep him too hard to it, because he was but a sickly child at the first, and very weak.
North. Plutarch, p. 700.

The error of the judge does not make the sentence invalid; his authority prevails above his error: but in the other it is the case of souls, and therefore is conducted by God only as to all real and material events, and depends not upon the weakness and fallibilities of men.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iii. c. 4.

We are furnished with faculties (dull and weak as they are) to discover enough in the creatures to lead us to the knowledge of the Creator, and the knowledge of our duty.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 23.

How strangely is the force of this motive weakened by those who make Christ a mere man, not the Eternal Son of God, sent out to us from the bosom of his Father!
Atterbury vol. iii. Ser. 3.

The like instances may be given in the fastings and mortifications used by many people, which, no question, rightly managed, are huge helps to piety, great weakners of sin, and furtherances to a man in his Christian course.
South, vol. vi. Ser. 11.

Plato, after having delivered very noble and almost divine truths concerning the nature and attributes of the Supream God, weakly advises men to worship inferiour gods, dæmons and spirits.—Clarke. On the Evidences, Prop. 6.

This very thirst after fame naturally betrays him into such indecencies as are lessening to his reputation, and is itself looked upon as a weakness in the greatest characters.
Spectator, No. 255.

That the power and consequently the security of the monarchy, may not be weakened by diversion, it must descend entire to one of the children.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iii. c. 2.

If others [coasts] were landed upon, the visits were, in general, so transient, that it was scarcely possible to build upon a foundation, so weakly laid, any information that could even gratify idle curiosity.
Cook. Third Voyage, Introd.

WEAL, n. / WEALTH. / WEA'LTHY. / WEA'LTHILY. / WEA'LTHINESS. / WEA'LTHFUL. / WEA'LTHFULLY. } A. S. Wel-an, opes; welegian, ge-welegian, locupletare; to enrich, to make or wax rich or wealthy, (Somner.) Wealth, — that which enricheth, (the third person of the verb.) Dut. Welde, weelde. See WELL.

That which causes or produces riches, prosperity; good, or good fortune or happiness; affluent or abundant property or possession; affluence, abundance.

Bot do crie thorgh the toun, that non for wele no wo,
In strete walk vp & doun bot to ther innes go.
R. Brunne, p. 334.

Ther nys squier ne kyght. in contreye a boute
That he nel bowe to that bonde. to bede hure an hose-bonde
And wedden hure fro hure welthe.—Piers Ploukman, p. 180.

But he is ryche and well bego,
To whome that God wol sende wele.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

Madame, I am a man of thyne,
That in thy courte have longe serued,
And aske that I haue deserued,
Some wele after my longe wo Id. Ib. b. i.

For what so falle or wele or wo,
That thought foryete I neuermo. Id. Ib. b. iv.

So ben thei commonly diseased.
There maie ne welth ne pouerte
Attempren them to the deserte
Of buxomnes by no wise. Id. Ib. b. i.

Wherfore taking comfort & boldnes, partly of your graces most beneuolent inclination towarde the vniuersall weale of your subiectes, partly inflamed with zeale, I haue nowe enterprised to describe in our vulgar tunge, the forme of a iuste publike weale.—Sir T. Elyot. The Governovr.

Great is the loue of the countrey, syth that many leaue dyuers wealthes that they haue in straunge landes, and lyue straitly, for to lyue on their owne land.
Golden Boke, Let. 16.

There mirthful wealth; there kingdome is for thee;
There a king's child prepar'd to be thy make.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

This in tracte of tyme made him welthy, and by meane of this welthines ensued pryde.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 56.

They [yeomen] haue a certain preheminence and more estimation than labourers and artificers, and commonly liue wealthily, keepe good houses, aad doe their busines, & trauaile to acquire ritches.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. i. c. 23.

Nowe be those griefes passed, and all is (Godde bee thanked) quiete, and likelie righte wel to prosper in wealthfull peace.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 39.

For a great part of this matter resteth in thy hand: either with pure chastitie, meekenes, buxume vsing of thy seife to haue thy husband pleasant and louing to thee, and to lead thy life wealthfully.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. ii. c. 2.

Esteem not fame more than thou dost thy weal.
Daniel. Complaint of Rosamond.

Then bows and bills were only in request,
Such rage and madness doth possess the land:
Set upon spoil on either part they were,
Whilst the weal-publick they in pieces tear.
Drayton. Miseries of Q. Margaret.

Beneath him with new wonder now he views
To all delight of human sense expos'd
In narrow room nature's whole wealth, yea more,
A heav'n on earth. Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iv.

I come to wiue it wealthily in Padua:
If wealthily, then happily in Padua.
Shakespeare. Taming of the Shrew, Act i. sc. 2.

Meeting two such weales-men as you are (I cannot call you Licurgusses,) if the drinke you giue me, touch my palat aduersly, I make a crooked face at it.
Id. Coriolanus, Act ii. sc. 1.

Where men are to act by rules or laws for the public weal, some must of necessity be appointed to judge, when those laws are transgrest, and how far; to decide doubtful cases, and the like.—Wollaston. Religion of Nature, s. 7.

Besides merchants and others that trade by sea from this port, here are other pretty wealthy men, and several artificers and trades-men of most sorts, who by labour and industry maintain themselves very well.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1699.

It were better for us to live under a kind beneficent governour, though a little defective in knowledge and ability, than one unlimited in either, but regardless of our weal or woe.—Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. i. c. 16.

That wealth consists in money, or in gold and silver, is a popular notion which naturally arises from the double function of money, as the instrument of commerce, and as the measure of value.—Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iv. c. 1.

WEAL, or / WALE, n. & v. } A. S. Wal-an, vibices. The marks or prints of stripes or strokes remaining in the flesh, (Somner.) And—A. S. Hwel-an, contabescere, putrescere. Hwele, putrefactio,—putrefaction, rottenness, corruption, whence our wheale, (Id.)

Also wtin a while his cheekes and his chin brake out of scabbs, wheales, and of skales, that no barbour, neyther well could, nor gladly would shaue him.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. ii. c. 4.

[It] represseth and keepeth downe all wheales and itching pimples which are readie to breake forth.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxii. c. 25.

O my blessed Saviour, was it not enough that thy sacred body was stripped of thy garments, and waled with bloudy stripes; but that thy person must be made the mocking stock of thine insulting enemies?
Bp. Hall. Cont. Christ before Pilate.

Mar. Rough, stubborn Cynick.
Soph. Thou art rougher far.
And of a courser wale fuller of pride,
Less temperate to bear prosperity.
Beaum. & Fletch. Moral Representations.

The wales, marks, scars, and cicatrices of sine and vice remaine to be seen, in some more, in others less.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 459.

Aridices one of the philosophers there in place, asked him presently again, what the reason was, that the wales or marks of stripes and lashes were all red indifferently whether the whippes were made of white or black leather thongs?
Id. Ib. p. 547.

WEALD. / WEA'LDISH. } A. S. Weald; Dut. Wald, woud. A wood, a forest, a woody place, (Somner.)

The bischopriche of Salesbury & al South sex, he hadde also,
The welde, & al the bischopriche of Chichestre ther to.
R. Gloucester, p. 5.

A considerable part of this county [Kent] is called the Wealde, that is the Woodland Ground, the inhabitants whereof are called the Wealdish men.
Fuller. Worthies. Kent.

WEAN, v. / WEA'NEL. / WEA'NING, n. / WEA'NLING, adj. } A. S. Wen-an, awen-an; Dut. Wennen; Ger. Ent-wennen. Perhaps the same word as wun-ian, assuescere, to accustom, to inure, (sc. as applied to infants,) to other food; generally, to other things: or from wen-an, to ween, to think; ge-wæn-ian, inclinare animum, to bend one's mind, (Somner,) to incline it. And hence—

To entice, allure, withdraw, disengage, (sc.) from any habit, any former pursuit, or enjoyment.

And her vowe was to offer that child of her owne bodye vnto God for terme of lyfe. And her vowe lasted no lōgar, than tyll her chylde was wened.—Bale. Apologie, fol. 33.

After that shee is once weaned and beginneth to speake and goe, let al her play and pastime be with maides of her owne age, and within the presence either of her mother or her nurce.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. i. c. 2.

Pinch never thy wennels of water or meat,
If ever ye hope to have them good neat.
Tusser. Husbandry. May.

Know. How happy yet should I esteem myself,
Could I, by any practice, wean the boy
From one vain course of study he affects.
B. Jonson. Every Man in his Humour, Act i. sc. 1.

——— And before
The tender impe was wained from the teat
The Princesse Maud him tooke.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bovlogne, b. i. c. 59.

Tho when as Lowder was farre away,
This wooluish sheepe would catchen his pray,
A lambe or a kid, or a weanell wast.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. September.

——— Whose nigh starved flocks
Are always scabby, and infect all sheep
They feed withal; whose lambs are ever last,
And dye before their waining.
Beaum. & Fletch. Faithful Shepherdess, Act i.

Let us not stand upon a formal taking of leave, but wean ourselves from them [the allurements of the world] while we are in the midst of them.—Spectator, No. 27.

For he of joys divine shall tell,
That wean from earthly wo,
And triumph o'er the mighty spell
That chains his heart below.—Beattie. Retirement.

What could I do? for I was left alone,
My Phyllis and Alcippe both were gone,
And none remain'd to feed my weanling lambs,
And to restrain them from their bleating dams.
Beattie. Virgil, Past. 7.

WEA'PON. / WEA'PONED. / WEA'PONLESS. } Goth. Wepna; A. S. Wæpun; Dut. Wæpen; Ger. Waffen; Sw. Wæpna; telum, arma, armatura. A. S. Wæpnian, ge-wæpnian; Dut. Waepenen; Ger. Wafnen, to arm, to harness, to put on weapons. Applied to—

Any instrument of defence or offence; arms of defence or offence.

& alle that suerd mot bere, or other wapen weld,
Were sette R. to dere enbussed thorgh the feld.
R. Brunne, p. 187.

She hath a warde in redy aie,
Whiche is so wounderfull a wight,
That hym ne maie no mans might
With swerd, ne with no wepon daunte.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

He sette a lawe for the pees,
That none but he be wepenles
Shall come into the counseyle hous.—Id. Ib. b. vii.

That whiche they call their phalanx, is an immouable square of footemen, wherin euery one stande close to other, ioyning weapon to weapon.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 22.

Than Jesus turnyng to the multitude that wer come to take hym, sayed: now weponed with swerdes & clubbes, ye come forth to take me.—Udal. Matt. c. 26.

There shal moreouer come great pestilences, whiche by their infeccion shal wast awai and cōsume a mightie greate noumbre of people, in sort as though the aier wer armed & weaponed to doe vengeaunce vpō the euil sort.
Id. Luke, c. 21.

He sent them out weaponlesse, leste that mannes aydes should chalenge any thyng in this heauenly busynesse.
Id. Mark, c. 6.

Thir weapons were a short spear and light target, a sword also by thir side, thir fight somtimes in chariots phang'd at the axle with iron sithes.
Milton. History of Britaine, b. ii.

Thick upon shoar stood several gross bands of men well weapn'd, many women like furies running to and fro in dismal habit with hair loose about thir shoulders, held torches in thir hands.—Id. Ib.

Soone as the knight she there by her did spy,
Standing with emptie hands all weaponlesse,
With fresh assault vpon him she did flie,
And gan renew her former cruelnesse.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 5.

Lam. Mine, Sir, and had my will rank'd with my power,
And his obedience, I could have sent him
With more ease, weaponless to you, and bound,
Than have kept him back, so well he loves his honour
Beyond his life.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Little French Lawyer, Act iii.

Why is the part of the weapon, the beginning of the wound is made with, taken notice of to make the distinct species called stabbing, and the figure and matter of the weapon let out.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iii. c. 5.

Now both these weapons, the sword and the arrow, are emblems of one and the same thing; which is no other than the word of God, in its different effects and different manners of operation on the minds of men, represented under these two different images.—Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 7.

WEAR, v. / WEAR, n. / WEA'RER. / WEA'RING, n. } A. S. Wer-an, awer-an, induere, gerere, gestare, to wear, to put on clothes; also as the Dut. Weren, weyren, to defend. (See WAR, WARE, &c.) And Wachter thinks the Ger. Weren is applied to the clothing, because the body is defended and protected by it. To wear, is—

To protect, to clothe, to invest; to bear or carry, clothing or vestment; generally, to bear, bring, or carry; then, to bear or endure use, to endure, to last; further, with a subaudition or implication of injury by use,—to waste, to decay; to consume, to spend, to spoil, to tire.

But whan God woll, it shall weare out.
Gower. Con. A. Prol.

This kyng also to reforme the greuous correccyons that he sawe there, executyd to Englysshe men for spirituall offencis, as in werynge of irons and guyues, he grauted of euery fyre house of his lande i. d. as Iue beforesayde had done.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 162.

Or if thou hast not sat as I doe now
Wearing thy hearer in thy Mistris praise,
Thou hast not lou'd.
Shakespeare. As You Like It, Act iii. sc. 4.

Win 'em, and wear 'em, I give up my interest.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Wild Goose Chase, Act ii. sc. 2.

Pet. Would they were setled
To give me some new shoos too; for I'll be sworn
These are e'en worn out to the reasonable souls
In their good worships' business.
Id. The Chances, Act i. sc. 1.

Marg. You must not look to be my Mr. Sir,
Nor talk i' th' house as though you wore the breeches,
No, nor command in any thing
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act ii.

And they do so commend and approve my apparel, with my judicious wearing of it, its above wonder.
B. Jonson. Every Man out of his Humour, Act ii. sc. 2.

The waved water chamelot, was from the beginning esteemed the richest and bravest wearing.
Holland. Plinie, b. viii. c. 49.

The Chinese in other countries still keep their old custom, but if any of the Chinese is found wearing long hair in China, he forfeits his head; and many of them have abandoned their country to preserve their liberty of wearing their hair, as I have been told by themselves.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1687.

Indeed 'tis [iron] fit for armour, to bear off insults, and preserve the wearer in the day of battle.
Dryden. Palamon & Arcite, Ded.

Indeed as it is, are not some ready to say or imagine, though very unjustly, that the credit of the gospel history is less for its being so ancient; and wearing out continually, as time runs on?—Secker, vol. ii. Ser. 25.

"A mask," says Castiglione, "confers a right of acting and speaking with less restraint, even when the wearer happens to be known."—Rambler, No. 208.

The frequent loss of those metals from various accidents by sea and by land, the continual waste of them in gilding and plating, in lace and embroidery, in the wear and tear of coin, and in that of plate, require, in all countries which possess no mines of their own, a continual importation, in order to repair this loss and this waste.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 5.

WEAR, v. To wear ship. Dut. Wieren, to veer, (qv.)

As our ship kept the wind better than any of the rest, we were obliged in the afternoon, to wear ship, in order to join the squadron to the leeward, which otherwise we should have been in danger of losing in the night.
Anson. Voyages, b. i. c. 8.

WEAR, n. See WEAR, v. A. S. Wer-an, ante. A. S. Wær, wïer.

A place or engine for catching or keeping fish, (Somner;) also a dam, to keep up, keep back the flow of water.

All weares from hencefoorth shall be utterly put downe by Thames and Midway, (Magna Charta, c. 23.)

This worlde also hath nettes of its own, & Sathan hath fishers of his owne too: who dos wt flatteryng enticemētes allure the miserable solles of men, and towe them into the were & net of damnacion, and so bring thē at last to perishyng for euer.—Udal. Luke, c. 5.

All our feare was of the two moneths betwixt in which meane space if the sauages should not helpe vs with Cassaui, and Chyna, and that our weares should faile vs, (as often they did,) we might very well starue, notwithstanding the growing corne, like the staruing horse in the stable, with the growing grasse, as the prouerbe is.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 261.

With strength incredible, the scaly race
O'er rocks and weires their upward passage trace;
Bent head to tail, in an elastic ring,
Safe o'er the steepest precipice they spring.
Moses Browne. Piec. Ecl. Ecl. 4.

When a weire or a flood gate comes in their way, they will not take their leap immediately, but remain still for a while in some pool, till they gather strength after the fatigue of swimming, and then coming below the flood-gate, they bend themselves in a circle, with their tail in their mouth, and, exerting their utmost force, spring upwards sometimes to the height of eight feet perpendicular.
P. Fletcher. Pis. Ecl. Ecl. 5. Note 2.

WEA'RISH, or WE'RISH. Skinner thinks it may be Wegerish; from Ger. Wegern, recusare; applied to a taste causing nausea and dislike. It is probably formed upon the adj. Weary,—A. S. Werig,—which Somner explains, not only lassus, fessus, but naught, malicious, cursed.

Werish opinions,—opinions of naught, or no worth.

A wearish elf, a wearish man, a weerish countenance,—malicious, evil, cursed, shrewish.

But it must nedes be an excellēt & a notable high thing, which by his strength and vertue muste moue and draw the whole world, being ouerwhelmed with werishe opinions, & with vaine lustes & appetites.—Udal. Matt. c. 5.

Of all whiche neuerthelesse, not one hath there beene so eloquente or so well learned, that he hath beene hable to bryng anye one nacyon in the mynde that he woulde haue them in, so weryshe and vneffectual was the vertue of the medicine of phisicke which they brought.—Id. Luke, Pref.

[He has] a voice not softe, weake, piping, womanishe, but audible, stronge, and manlike; a countenance not werishe and crabbed, but faire and comelie; a personage not wretched and deformed, but taule and goodlie.
Ascham. The Schole-master, b. i.

There entring in, they found the good man selfe,
Full busily vnto his work ybent;
Who was to weet, a wretched wearish elfe,
With hollow eyes and raw bone cheeks for-spent,
As if he had in prison long been pent.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 5.

Beside the old lean jade, he set a lusty tall fellow; and behind the goodly horse he placed a little wearish man, and seeming to sight to have but small strength.
North. Plutarch, p. 492.

WEA'RY, adj. WEA'RY, v. WEA'RILY. WEA'RINESS. WEA'RISOME. WEA'RISOMELY. WEA'RISOMENESS. A. S. Werig, werignesse, fatigatus, lassus, fessus, defessus, (Somner,) seem to be used consequentially from the verb—To wear; to wear out, to destroy (sc.) the strength; and thus—

Tired, fatigued, exhausted; exhausted of strength, power of action or exertion, of endurance or patience. Also, as—

Wearisome,—tiresome, fatiguing; tedious, irksome.

So that the Cristynemen adde there the maystrye,
And treasour founde & stor ynou, & astored hem wel there,
And reste her gode bodyes, that so wery were.
R. Gloucester, p. 395.

As hys chamberleyn hym brogte, as he ros aday,
A morwe vorto werye, a peyre house of say.—Id. p. 390.

So that aslep atte laste vor werynysse hym nome.
Id. p. 240.

Werie and weitschode. wente ich forth after.
Piers Ploughman, p. 339.

Ac on a May morweynyng. on Malverne hulles
Me by fel for to slepe. for weyrynesse of wandryng.
Id. p. 1.

The dede slepe, for wery besinesse,
Fell on this carpenter, right as I gesse.
Chaucer. Milleres Tale, v. 3644.

Of the travailes that our Lord Jesu Crist suffered in preching, his werinesse in travelling, his temptations whan he fasted, his long wakinges whan he prayed, his teres whan he wept for pitee of good peple.—Id. Persones Tale.

This Narcissus had suffred paines
For renning all daie in the plaines
And was for thurst in great distresse
Of herte, and of his werinesse
That had his breth almost benomen.—Id. Rom. of the R.

For if thy lawe be certeyne,
As thou hast tolde, I dare well seyne,
Thou wolt beholde my distresse,
Whiche am so full of werinesse,
That I ne maie vaeth go.—Gower. Con. A. b. vii.

Our ship was so sore beaten with shot from our enemies and brused with shooting off our owne ordinance, that our wearie and weake armes were scarce able to defende and keepe out water.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 525.

So that in conclusion many hauing a long time wearied their armes, chose rather to cast their targets out of their hands, and to feight wyth their bodies naked.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 19.

But herin they had the dysaduauntage, that our ennemies when they were wearyed wyth continuance of feyghting, wold wythdrawe them out of the presse, and other succeeded fresh and lustye in theyr steades.—Id. Ib. fol. 67.

Thane they retourned homewarde without array or good order, for they thought then to haue no trouble, and so they went weryly by heapes.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 186.

For werinesse he was constrayned to entre into an olde barne, without the citie, where he castinge him selfe on the bare gronde, with wepynge and dolorous cryenge bewayled his fortune.—Sir T. Elyot. The Governour, b. ii.

Whether by fate, or missing of the way,
Or that she was by wearinesse detain'd,
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Wee found it a wearisome way backe from the borders of Emeria, to recouer vp againe to the head of the riuer Carerupana.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 659.

I confesse indeede that I endeuour to be briefe, not so much in regard of wearisomnesse, as for feare least I haue bene ouer tedious vnto you.—Id. Ib. vol. ii. p. 96.

Their scope was obedience, ours is skill; their endeauour was reformation of life, our vertue nothing but to heare gladly the reproofe of vice; they in the practise of their religion wearied chiefly their knees and hands, we especially our eares and tongues.
Hooker: Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. v. § 81.

But the condemnation of his sin he received,—weariness and labour, and to eat in the sweat of his brows, and to turn to dust again.—Bp. Taylor. Deus Justificatus.

O turne thy rudder hitherward awhile:
Here may thy storme-bet vessell safely hide;
This is the port of rest from troublous toyle,
The world's sweet inn from paine and wearisome turmoyle.—Spenser Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 12.

The roote hereof, diuine malediction; whereby the instruments being weakened wherewithall the soule (especially in reasoning) doth worke; it preferreth rest in ignorance, before wearisome labour to know.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. i. c. 7.

But no worthy enterprise can be done by us without continuall plodding and wearisomeness to our faint and sensitive abilities.—Milton. Tetrachordon.

It is a calling, the business whereof doth so exercise as not to weary, so entertain as not to cloy us.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 16.

Thus with a flowing tongue old Nestor spoke:
Then, to full bowls each other they provoke;
At length with weariness, and wine oppress'd;
They rise from table; and withdraw to rest.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. xii.

There was once a time when wreaths of bays or oak were considered as recompences equal to the more wearisome labours and terrific dangers, and when the miseries of long marches and stormy seas were at once driven from the remembrance by the fragrance of a garland.—Idler, No. 6.

In the whole of this work, we must be careful, neither to hurry over any part thoughtlessly, nor lengthen it wearisomely.—Secker, vol. vi. Lect. 38.

A duty so hard, as undergoing sharp torments, or continued wearisomeness, may well admit of some imperfection in the performance, and yet entitle us, through our merciful Father's bounty, to a large recompence.—Id. vol. ii. Ser. 14.

WEA'SEL. A. S. Wesle; Dut. Wesel; Ger. Wisel; said to be so called from the noise it utters.

Fayre was this yonge wif, and therwithal
As any wesel hire body gent and smal.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3225.

The serpent aspis also, the wezill and the fly called the bettill, they reverence, because they observe in them I wot not what little slender images (like as in drops of water we perceive the resemblance of the sun) of the divine power.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 1070.

In hollow caverns vermine make abode,
The hissing serpent, and the swelling toad:
The corn-devouring weezel here abides,
And the wise ant her wintry store provides.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. i.

WEA'SY. WEA'SINESS. WEA'SAND. A. S. Hweosan, difficulter respirare, to breathe with difficulty.

Weasand,—that which breathes, or through which we breathe.

Weasy and weasiness,—applied, (met.) to—

That which causes or accompanies it; full feeding, sensual indulgence, carnal pride.

And the peple of Israell as oft as they wexed weasy and fatte as saith the song of Moses & were dilated, so ofte did thei kik ayenst, forsake, and forget their Lorde God.
Joye. Exposicion of Daniel, c. 4.

Let sioke fewer weasy rulers beware of a soden fall; for when they crye peace and securite then is there present a soden destruccion.—Id. Ib. c. 5.

But he acknowledged not God to be the auctor of them. And therfore of pryde and weasynes gaue himselfe vp vnto his owne lustis.—Id. Ib. c. 11.

The other is more inward, called properly the gullet, or the wezand, by which we swallow downe both meate and drinke, and it goeth to the stomacke first, and so to the belly.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxvii.

And to him driuing strongly downe the tide,
Vpon his iron coller griped fast,
That with the straint, his wesand nigh he brast.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 2.

Ant. I say cut his wezand, spoil his piping;
Have at your love-sick heart, sir.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Chances, Act ii.

He might have thought thus much: That this wezill of the throat, otherwise called Epiglottis, was not made for nothing, and to no purpose, but ordained for this, that when we swallow any food it might keep down and close the conduit of the wind-pipe.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 609.

Now this wezill abovesaid, being placed just in the midst, and indifferent to serve both passages, when we speake, doth shut the mouth of that conduit or wezand that leadeth to the stomack.—Id. Ib.

——— The wheasing swine
With coughs is choak'd; and labours from the chine.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iii.

——— The Britons squeeze the works
Of sedulous bees, and mixing odorous herbs
Prepare balsamic cups, to wheezing lungs
Medicinal, and short-breath'd ancient sires.
J. Philips. Cider, b. ii.

He fell: the shaft that slightly was impress'd,
Now from his heavy fall with weight increas'd,
Drove through his neck aslant, he spurns the ground;
And the soul issues through the weazon's wound.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. xii.

WEA'THER, n. WEA'THER, v. WEA'THERING, n. } Anciently also written Weder. A. S. Weder, wether; Dut. Weder, wedder; Ger. Wetter; perhaps from Ger. Wehen; Goth. Waian, to blow. (See Wachter.) Weather, is applied to—

The state of the atmosphere, as—either windy or calm, wet or dry, hot or cold, stormy or tempestuous, still or quiet. To weather,—

To bear up against, to endure, to overcome, the difficulties, the stress of weather; any stress or difficulty.

Ac that heo mygte ofte y se, in cler weder, there
Est ward as the sonne a ros, a lond as yt were.
R. Gloucester, p. 41.

The weder was fulle soft, the wynde held tham stille,
The saile was hie o loft, thei had no wynde at wille.
R. Brunne, p. 169.

Thorwe flodes and foule wederes. frutes shallen faile.
Piers Ploughman. Vision, p. 146.

Faunceys bad his brethern barfot to wenden
Now han they buclede shone, for blenyng of her heles
And hosen in harde weder.—Id. Crede.

Therefore I rede ye take them as ye find,
For they are sad as wedercocke in wind.
Chaucer. Complaint of Creseide.

And yet the wynde to mans ere
Is softe, and as it semeth oute,
It maketh clere weder all aboute.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

Then he after syttyng vnder a busshe in the felde, the kynges herdemen passyd by, and seynge this bysshop with his company syttyng in the weder desyred hym to his howse to take there such poore lodgynge as he had.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 83.

In this yere, that is to saye, ye v. yere of kyng John, by reason of the vnreasonable wederynge, as in ye laste yere fell, yt whete was solde for xvs. a quarter.—Id. Ib. an. 1204.

He did consider what time he should spend yet he should get so far to wind-ward againe, which would haue bene, with the weathering which we had, ten or twelve dayes worke.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 515.

Yt most of our shyps were thus brossed and weatherbeaten and the residew vnmeete to sayle in.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 103.

As the cathedrall church of Holen hauing a bodie the fiue pillars whereof on both sides be foure elnes high, and aboute fiue elnes thicke, as also beames and weather-bourdes.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 577.

In this mayres yere also, but the .x. yere of the kynge, and .x. day of August, a newe wedyr-cok was satte vpon the crosse of seynt Paulys steple of Lõdon.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1422.

I marualled why he departed so suddenly, and went ouer the shoales amongst the islands where it was impossible for vs to follow them. But after I perceaued them to be weather-wise.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 281.

Then whom no better on a boistrous sea
Could guide a ship, none better knew then he
To morrow's weather, if the sunne he spy'de,
Or moone, and could for future stormes prouide.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. iii.

3 Guard. Well, well, you have built a nest
That will stand all storms, you need not mistrust
A weather-wrack.
Beaum. & Fletch. Wit at several Weapons, Act ii.

These men came hither, as my vision tells me,
Poor weather-beaten, almost lost, starv'd, feebled,
Their vessels like themselves, most miserable.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Island Princess, Act iv.

——— Say my spirit,
How fares the king, and 's followers?
Ar. Confin'd together
In the same fashion, as you gaue in charge,
Just as you left them; all prisoners sir
In the line-groue which weather-fends your cell.
Shakespeare. Tempest, Act v. sc. 1.

And sooner may a gulling weather-spy,
By drawing forth Heav'n's scheme, tell certainly
What fashion'd hats or ruffs, or suits, next year
Our giddy-headed antic youth will wear,
Than thou, when thou depart'st from me, can shew
Whither, why, when, or with whom, thou would'st go.
Donne, Sat. i.

The flowers of Pimpernel, the opening and shutting of which are the countryman's weather-wiser; whereby Gerard saith, he foretelleth what weather shall follow the next day; for saith he, if the flowers be close shut up, it betokeneth rain and foul weather; contrariwise, if they be spread abroad, fair weather.—Derham. Physico-Theology, b. x.

When the wind is thus settled, we have commonly fair weather, and a clear sky, especially if the sun is in the southern sign; but if in a northern sign, the weather is usually cloudy.—Dampier. Discourse of Winds, c. 1.

In weathering this point all the squadron, except the Centurion, were very near it; and the Gloucester being the leewardmost ship, was forced to tack and stand to the southward, so that we lost sight of her.
Anson. Voyages, b. ii. c. 7.

To repair these defects the caulkers were set to work, as soon as we got into fair and settled weather, to caulk the decks and inside weather-works of the ships; for I would not trust them over the sides while we were at sea.
Cook. Third Voyage, b. i. c. 3.

Peace to the artist, whose ingenious thought
Devis'd the weather-house, that useful toy!
Fearless of humid air and gath'ring rains,
Forth steps the man—an emblem of myself!
Cowper. Task, b. i.

After much delay by contrary winds, we weathered Pulo Pare on the 29th [December] and stood in for the main.
Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 13.

WEAVE, v. WEA'VER. WEFT, n. WE'FTAGE. WOOF. } Goth. Waib-yan, biwaib-yan, amicire; A. S. Wef-an, wef-can, weof-an; Dut. Weven; Ger. Weben; Sw. Wæf-wa, tegere, texere. See WEB.

To cover, (by crossing one over another;) to infold, to insert, to interpose; to intermix so as to form into one substance.

Weft, (A. S. Wefta,)—weaved, weav'd, weaft, weft.

Woof,—that which is woven; the texture. See the quotation from Cook.

Weaver-fish,—called by Holland the dragon or spider of the sea, (Draco Araneus.) It has webs connecting its sharp spines.

And the coote was without seem and wouun al aboute, therfore thei seiden togidre, kitte we not it, but caste we lott whos it is.—Wiclif. Jon, c. 19.

And whan she taketh hir werke on honde
Of weuyng, or of embroudrie,
That can I not but muse and prie
Upon hir fingers longe and small.—Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

Then shaking a pike of fire in defiance of the enemie, and weauing them amaine, we had then come aboord: and an Englishman in the gallie made answer, that they would come aboord presently.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 566.

Neither is the fleete itselfe onely transported thence, but also diuers & sundry stuffes wouen thereof, for the Chinians do greatly excel in the art of weauing, and do very much resemble our weauers of Europe.—Id. Ib. vol. ii. p. 91.

The commodities which we brought home were pepper and elephants teeth, oyle of palme, cloth made of cotton wooll very curiously wouen, and cloth made of the barke of palme trees.—Id. Ib. pt. ii. p. 128.

I woulde shee shuld be euer among her maids: whether they be in her kitchin dressing of meate, or els spinning, weauing, sowing, or brushing: For while ye maistres is by, al things shal be better done.
Vives. Instruc. of a Christian Woman, b. ii. c. 10.

The meane craftes wolde haue euery thyng at their pleasure, and the great men wolde nat suffre it, and so they rebelled; and a certayne weyuers and fullers were slayne, and the other apeased.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 375.

And Demetrias, which was as great of birth, as mighty of possessions as shee, he had haue wooll in her hands, and her selfe either to spinne, to warpe, or else winde spindles in a case for to throwe woofe off, and to winde on clewes the spinning of others, and to order such as should bee wouen.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. i. c. 3.

The cobwebs that spiders weave, which serve for patterns, as well for our women to make their webs of cloth, as for fishers to knit and work their nets, are in many respects very admirable: first in regard of the fine threads, and the subtile weaving thereof, which are not distinct one from another, nor ranged after the order of the warpe and woofe in our artificial webs upon the loom, but are continued and run all into one.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 786.

Not any damzell, which her vaunteth most
In skillfull knitting of softe silken twine;
Nor any weauer, which his worke doth boast
In diaper, in damaske, or in lyne.—Spenser. Muiopotmos.

The weaver, which although his prickles venom be
By fishers cut away, which buyers seldom see:
Yet for the fish he bears, 'tis not accounted bad.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 25.

Now lyest thou of life and honour reft;
Now lyest thou a lumpe of earth forlorne,
Ne of thy late life memory is left,
Ne can thy irrevocable destiny be weft.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 4.

The whole muscles, as they lie upon the bones, might be truly tanned; whereby the weftage of the fibres might more easily be observed.—Grew. Museum.

So Herford for her says, give me woof and warp.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 23.

It [Industry] taught us from the wool of the sheep, from the hair of the goat, from the labours of the silk worm, to weave us clothes to keep us warm, to make us fine and gay.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 19.

Can they receive and assent to adventitious notions, and be ignorant of those which are supposed woven into the very principles of their being, and imprinted there in indelible characters, to be the foundation and guide of all their acquired knowledge, and future reasonings?
Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. i. c. 2.

Then weavers stretch your stays upon the weft.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. i.

The silk-worm weaves her web for a safeguard to herself, and at the same time furnishes us with materials for our cloathing and ornament.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. i. c. 19.

The capital which employs the weavers, for example, must be greater than that which employs the spinners; because it not only replaces that capital with its profits, but pays, besides, the wages of the weavers.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 6.

It is made in a kind of frame of the size of the cloth, generally about five feet long, and four broad, across which the long threads, which lie close together, or warp, are strained, and the cross threads, or woof, are worked in by hand, which must be a very tedious operation.
Cook. First Voyage, b. ii. c. 9.

WEB, n. WE'BBED. WE'BBY. WE'BSTER. } A. S. Webba, by change of f into v, and v into b; Wef-an, wev-, web. That which is woven or weaved; the texture, intertexture or involution, the stuff woven.

Fairefax seems to apply it to the material of which the sword was wrought.

Al ich sauh slepyng. as ge shullen hure after
Bothe bakers & brywers. bouchers & othere
Webbesters and walkers. an wynners wt handen.
Piers Ploughman, p. 11.

And ouer them Arachne high did lift
Her cunning web, and spred her subtile net,
Enwrapped in foule smoak & clowds more black than iet.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

What should I speake of the strength that this web hath to resist the puffes and blasts of wind? of the toughnesse to hold and not breake, notwithstanding a deale of dust doth weigh and beare it downe? Many a time ye shall see a broad web reaching from one tree to another: and this when she learneth to weave and beginneth to practise and trie her skill.—Holland. Plinie, b. xi. c. 24.

Go you then, in; and take your worke in hand;
Your web, and distaffe, and your maids command
To plie their fit worke.
Chapman. Homer. Odyssey, b. i. c. 13.

Neuerthelesse with in the same tymt, enteringe into the handes of a chaplaine, it hath bene handeled and tosed amonge the spyders webbe weuers of Babylon the greate cytie.—Bale. Apologie, fol. 16.

The sword was broke, therein no wonder lies,
If earthly tempred metall could not hold
Against that target forged in the skies,
Downe fell the blade in peeces on the mold.—
The brittle web of that rich sword he thought
Was broke through hardnesse of the counties sheeld.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bovlogne, b. vii. s. 4.

And there with stately pompe by heapes they wend,
And Christians slaine rolle up in webs of led.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bovlogne, b. viii. s. 26.

As for such as are whole-footed, or whose toes are webbed together (excepting some few) their legs are generally short, which is the most convenient size for swimming.
Derham. Physico-Theology, b. vii. c. i. Note 9.

A weaver cannot apply himself entirely to his peculiar business, unless there is before hand stored up somewhere, either in his own possession, or in that of some other person, a stock sufficient to maintain him with the materials and tools of his work, till he has not only completed, but sold his web.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. ii. pt. ii. Introd.

They scatter abroad fire-brands and arrows, and cry, Are we not in sport? they delight to trip up the unwary, or entangle the feeble in their webby filaments, and then chuckle with joy to see the perplexities they have occasioned.—Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. iii. c. 27.

There blinks through paper'd panes the setting sun;
There noisy sparrows, perch'd on penthouse near,
Chirp tuneless joy, and mock the frequent tear;
Bats on their webby wings in darkness move,
And feebly shriek their melancholy love.
Crabbe. Parish Register.

WED, v. / WED, n. / WE'DDING, n. / WE'DLOCK. A.S. Wed, a pledge, a gage, a pawne, (Somner.) Dut. Wedde; A.S. Weddian, to bargain, to make a contract, to promise, to vow. Belg. Wedden. Hence our wedding, i. e. contract of matrimony, sponsalia, and also Nuptiæ, (Somner.) The original word may be the Goth. and A.S. With-an, to join, to bind, and from it wed the noun; (met.)—

A bond or obligation, a gage or surety; an engagement. Our common usage is—

To join or unite.

To join or bind, in marriage; to marry; to take or choose as an inseparable, a beloved companion.

[He] leyde [to] Wyllam hys brother to wedde Normandye,
And borwede of hym thervppe an hondred thousend marc.
R. Gloucester, p. 393.

Suththe he weddede another wyf, tho ydo was al thys,
The Wyttesonetyd at Wyndelsore, a womman of gret fame.—Id. p. 439.

The emperour in this lond weddede tho a wyf.—Id. p. 75.

Sir Adam of Stretton fulle hard was he led,
Nouht without encheson, I lay my gloue to wed.
R. Brunne, p. 246.

He wedded the Duke's douhter, faire Emme the blaunche.
Id. p. 40.

The next gere folowand of Edward coronment,
Leulyn of Walsland in to France he sent,
The Mountford douhter to wedde.—Id. p. 236.

Now has kyng Henry, thorgh his weddyng,
Grete power and party ageyns a lordyng.—Id. p. 105.

Whan it were done in grayth the weddyng of Margarete,
To mak the purale, it suld not be delaied.—Id. p. 307.

If it be so no brauche in wedlaike of tham be nomen,
If Blanche ouer lyue Edward, scho salle haf hir lyue
Goscoyn afterward, ageyn that non salle stryue.
Id. p. 254.

For Treuth plyghe hure treuthe. to wedde on of hure douhtres
And God grauntede it were so.—Piers Ploughman, p. 30.

——— Now sorwe thow mote have Such a weddyng to worche.—Id. Ib.

For that derne dede. do no man sholde
Bot wedded men with here wyves. as holy writ telleth.
Id. p. 181.

Thenne a love is a betere frut. ac bothe to ben goode
Widewehode more worthier. than wedlok.—Id. p. 309.

Thanne he seide to his servauntis the weddyngis ben redy but thei that weren clepide to the feeste weren not worthi.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 22.

Then sayd he to his seruauntes: the weddyng was prepared. But they whiche were bydden, were not worthy.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And be ye lyk to men that abiden hir lorde; whanne he schal turne agen fro the weddingis, that whanne he schal come and knocke: anoone thei opene to him.
Wiclif. Luk, c. 12.

And ye youre selues lyke vnto mē, yt waite for theyr master, when he wyll returne from a weddynge that assone as he commeth and knocketh, they may opē vnto him.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Let him beware, his nekke lieth to wedde.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1220.

Men shulden wedden after hir estate,
For youth and elde is often at debate,
But sithen he was fallen in the snare,
He most endure (as other folk) his care.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3230.

But me was told, not longe time agon is,
That sithen Crist ne went never but onis
To wedding, in the Cane of Galilee,
That by that ilke ensample taught he me,
That I ne shulde wedded be but ones.
Id. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5594.

Boweth your nekke under the blisful yok
Of soveraintee, and not of servise;
Which that men clepen spousaile or wedlok.
Id. The Clerkes Tale, v. 7992.

——— If that none other chance
Maie make my deliuerance,
But onely thilke same speche
Whiche (as thou seist) thou shalt me teche
Haue here min honde, I shall the wedde:
And thus his trouth he leyth to wedde.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

——— And a wicked wife
He weddeth, whiche in sorowe and strife
Ageinst his ease was contrarye. Id. Ib. b. iii.

——— But firste er thou be spedde
Thou shalt me leaue such a wedde
That I woll have thy troth on honde
That thou shalt be myn husbonde.—Id. Ib.

In better far estate stand children, poor and wise
Than aged kings, wedded to will, that work without advice.
Surrey. Paraphrase on Ecclesiastes, c. 3.

Howe be it she kept but euyll the sacramēt of matrimony, but brake her wedloke.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. . c. 21.

On to thir morning's rural work they haste
Among sweet dewes and flours; where any row
Of fruit trees overwoodie reachd too farr
Thir pamperd boughes, and needed hands to check
Fruitless imbraces: or they led the vine
To wed her elm. Milton. Paradise Lost, b. v.

Haile wedded love, mysterious law, true source
Of human ofspring, sole proprietie
In paradise of all things common else.—Id. Ib. b. iv.

I pray'd for children, and thought barrenness
In wedlock a reproach; I gain'd a son,
Such a son as all men hail'd me happy;
Who would be now a father in my stead?
Id. Samson Agonistes.

In gaining him, I gain that fortune too
Which he has wedded, and which I but wooe.
Dryden. 2 Pt. Conquest of Granada, Act iii.

Is mirth seasonable on the day of marriage? behold the greatest wedding that ever was is this day solemnized: heaven and earth are contracted; divinity is espoused to humanity; a sacred, an indissoluble knot is tied between God and man.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 43.

But man in general, wedded to the world, despises its call [Christianity].—Gilpin, vol. i. Hint 2.

The relation between Christ and his church, it is evident, must be of a nature not to be adequately typified by any thing in the material world; and nothing could be found in human life which might so aptly represent it as the relation of husband and wife in the holy state of wedlock.
Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 8.

WEDGE, n. / WEDGE, v. Dut. Wegghe, massa, cuneus; Ger. Wecke, which Martinius (in v. Cuneus) thinks is from weichen, cedere (see WAX) quia ea, in quæ adigitur sibi cedere cogit; because it forces those things into which it is driven to give way or yield to it.

The A.S. Wæge, wecge, is applied as the Dut. Wegghe, to a weight, a mass, a wedge; of some called a way or weigh, (Somner.) But the A.S. Ge-eggian, to sharpen, to give an edge, seems to account more easily for the uses of a wedge, or edged piece (of wood or metal). (See the quotation from Wilkins.) To wedge,—

To drive, or force, asunder or together, as with a wedge, and thus either to cleave or fix; to drive or force in.

Than they without had redy axes and wedges, and hewed ye gate lyke carpenters; and as soone as they coulde gette in a hole, they put in axes and wedges to Geronet, that he and his company shuld hewe asonder the barres of the gate.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 120.

His name was Care, a black-smith by his trade,
That neither day nor night from working spared,
But to small purpose iron wedges made.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 5.

The legion when they saw thir time, bursting out like a violent wedge, quickly broke and dissipated what oppos'd them.—Milton. Historie of Britaine, b. ii.

Troy. I was about to tell thee, when my heart,
As wedged with a sigh, would riue in twaine,
Least Hector, or my father should perceiue me:
I haue (as when the sunne doth light a-scorne)
Buried this sigh in wrinkle of a smile.
Shakespeare. Troyl. & Cress. Act i. sc. 1.

Which way do you iudge my wit would flye?
3 Cit. Nay your wit will not so soone out as another man's will, 'tis strongly wedg'd vp in a blocke-head.
Id. Coriolanus, Act ii. sc. 3.

1. God saue you sir. Where haue you bin broiling?
3. Among the crow'd i' th' abbey, where a finger
Could not be wedg'd in more.
Id. Hen. VIII. Act iv. sc. 1.

In Thessaly there be 34, whereof the most famous are, Cerceti, Olympus, Pierus, Ossa: just against which is Pindus and Othrys, the seat and habitation of the Lapithæ: and those lie toward the west: but eastward, Pelios, all of them bending in manner of a theatre: and before them stand raunged wedge-wise, 72 cities.
Holland. Plinie, b. iv. c. 8.

And thus wedge-wise by little and little they spread broader and broader behind, and beare a great length besides with them: by which meanes also they gather more wind to heave them up and set them forward.
Holland. Plinie, b. x. c. 23.

The fifth mechanical faculty is the wedge, which is a known instrument, commonly used in the cleaving of wood.
Wilkins. Archimedes, c. 8.

Besides what gold and sand they take up together, they often find great lumps, wedg'd between the rocks, as if it naturally grew there.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1685.

Are all such teachers? would to heav'n all were!
But hark—the doctor's voice! fast wedg'd between
Two empirics he stands, and with swol'n cheeks
Inspires the news, his trumpet.—Cowper. Task, b. ii.

Forth goes the woodman, leaving unconcern'd
The cheerful haunts of men; to wield the axe,
And drive the wedge, in yonder forest drear,
From morn to eve his solitary task. Id. Ib. b. v.

WE'DNESDAY. A.S. Wodnes-dæg; Dut. Woens-dagh. See the quotations, and WOOD, adj.

In honour of hym [Woden] y clepud in oure tonge Wednesday. R. Gloucester, p. 112.

They worshipped at that dayes a god named Woden, and a goddesse named Fria. In the worshyp of the whiche god, the thirde feryall daye in the weke they named Wodnesday, whiche at this day we call Wednysday.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 83.

WEE. Dr. Jamieson has produced many instances of the usage of wee, with the adj. little, whence he seems inclined to suspect that wee is way; and, from its frequent union with the adj. little, it may itself have been used to denote—little, small. But the A.S. Wac, wace, our own English weak, may, by dropping the c or k, have given us this word.

Si. No forsooth: he hath but a little wee-face; with a little yellow beard.
Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor, Act i. sc. 4.

WEED, n. / WEED, v. / WE'EDER. / WE'EDERY. / WE'EDY. / WE'EDLESS. In Matt. vi. 30,—The grass of the field, fænum agri, is in A.S. Aceres weod. Weod also denoted vestis, vestimentum; and the meaning of the word, whether applied to the grass, the herbage (the verdant clothing) of the field, (subsequently restricted to useless or hurtful plants) or to a clothing of the human body, is, probably,—

A covering; that which covers, spreads over: a vest or vestment, clothing or garment.

To weed,—applied to the destruction of particular plants, covering or overspreading the ground, is—

To hoe, or cut up or out; to eradicate, or root out; to extirpate.

Chaucer contrasts wicked weeds with wholesome herbs.

Hiy sende her feble messagers in poüere monne wede,
That at doles in the court her mete myd othere bede.
R. Gloucester, p. 165.

And wenten as workmen to weden and mowen.
Piers Ploughman, p. 137.

On fat londe and ful of donge. foulest wedes groweth.
Id. p. 213.

And al the lordeshep of Lecherye. in lengthe and in brede
As in workes and in wordes. waitinges of eyes
In wedes and wisshenges. Id. p. 22.

For thilke ground, yt beareth vp wedes wicke
Beareth eke these holsome herbes.
Chaucer. Troilus, b. ii.

Thy mantel of mercy on our misery sprede
And er wo awake wrap vs vnder thy wede.
Chaucer. A Ballade in Com. of our Lady.

An other againe, sheweth towardes another of the Pharisaicall sorte goyng in a white wede, and saieth: Beholde, here is Chryste: an other felowe shewyng many sondrie coulours and shapes of vestures, crieth: Here is Chryst, here, here, here.—Udal. Luke, c. 19.

They were faine to eate grasse, and such weedes as they coulde finde then aboue grounde, but fresh water they had plentie, but the meate with some of them could scant frame by reason of their queazie stomackes.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 276.

And thereupon his weeds [exuvias] and sword y-left,
And, on a bed, his picture she bestows.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

They of whome we spake of before, came into hys gardeyne with garmentes to apparell hym like a kyng, and founde hym weadyng of hys grounde.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 50.

Faire sir, said then the Palmer suppliant,
For knighthoods loue doe not so foule a deed,
Ne blame your honour with so shamefull vaunt
Of vile revenge. To spoyle the dead of weed
Is sacrilege, and doth all sinnes exceed.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 8.

Gov. To my house now, and suite you to your worths;
Off with these weeds, and appear glorious.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Pilgrim, Act v. sc. 6.

——— By whose orient light
The nymph [Cerce] adorn'd me with attires as bright;
Her owne hands putting on both shirt and weede,
Robes fine and curious.—Chapman. Homer. Odyssey, b. x.

Here pilgrims roam that stray'd so far to seek
In Golgotha him dead who lives in heaven:
And they who to be sure of Paradise
Dying put on the weeds of Dominic,
Or in Franciscan think to pass disguis'd.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iii.

But now an aged man in rural weeds,
Following as seem'd, the quest of some stray ewe,
Or wither'd sticks to gather.—Id. Paradise Regained, b. i.

Or have their woods and plaines so overgrowne
With poysnous weeds, roots, gums, and seeds unknowne.
That they would hire such weeders as you be
To free their land from such fertilitie.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 5.

I was a packe-horse in his great affaires:
A weeder out of his proud aduersaries,
A liberall rewarder of his friends,
To royalize his blood, I spent mine owne.
Shakespeare. Rich. III. Act i. sc. 3.

Hard by there was a place all cover'd o'er
With stinging nettles, and such weedery.
More. Life of the Soul, b. ii. s. 141.

At sight thereof she was with terror queld,
And said no more: but I which all that while
The pledge of faith, her hand engaged held,
Like wary hynd within the weedy soyle,
For no intreaty would forgoe so glorious spoyle.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 10.

Let never spring visit his habitation,
But nettles, kix, and all the weedy nation,
With empty elders grow, sad signs of desolation.
G. Fletcher. Christ's Triumph over Death.

For all assum'd unto this dignity,
So many weedless paradises be,
Which of themselves produce no venomous sin,
Except some foreign serpent bring it in.
Donne. Anatomy of the World, Act i.

Soon was his labour doubl'd to the swain,
And blasting mildews blackned all his grain.
Tough thistles cloak'd the fields, and kill'd the corn,
And an unthrifty crop of weeds was born.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. i.

There are a great number of negro slaves brought from other parts of the world; some of which are continually weeding, pruning, trimming and looking after it.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1691.

All hate the rank society of weeds,
Noisome, and ever greedy to exhaust
Th' impov'rish'd earth; an overbearing race,
That like the multitude made fashion-mad,
Disturb good order, and degrade true worth.
Cowper. Task, b. iii.

Leaving 'twixt each a spacious interval,
To introduce with ease, while yet the grain
Expanding crown'd the intermediate ridge;
His new machine; form'd to exterminate
The weedy race. Dodsley. Agriculture, c. 2.

Our Saviour's parable of the seed scattered upon the surface of a weedy soil, applies directly to such penitents.
Gilpin, vol. iii. Ser. 19.

WEEK. } Dut. Weke; Ger. Woch; Sw.
We'ekly. } Wecka; A. S. Weoc, wuc, wuca, wuce; and also wic, which (Wachter thinks) brings us to the Goth. Wik, ordo: quia hebdomas, est septem dierum ordo continuo recurrens:—the continually recurring order or series of seven days. May it not have originated in Wic-dagas, the days on which markets are kept: "the people then leaving the fields or country, and resorting to the wic or towne to market?" (Somner.) And Wic being applied to the space of time intervening between the market days.

Aftur hym we honoureth Venus mest, that Frie y clepud ys
In oure tonge, & in the wyke Friday for hym y wys.
R. Gloucester, p. 112.

Unto Kyngeston the first wouke of May
Com S. Dunstan, open a Sonenday.—R. Brunne, p. 37.

The kynge these thre demandes axeth,
To the knight this lawe he taxeth,
That he shall gone and come ageine
The thirde weke, and tell him pleine
To euery point, what it amounteth.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

The feest of Ester came, and the kynge held a great court at Berwyke: for the chiefe of the lordes and knyghtes of England were ther, and there taryed the space of thre wyckes.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 91.

In token wherof he sent the Jewes double manna, wekely the day before the sabbaot day, to be prouided for before ye had.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 90.

These souldyours had eche of them foure grotes flemmysshe by the day, and were truely payd, wekely.
Id. Ib. c. 29.

Nor were the race of Brute, which ruled here before,
More zealous to the gods they brought unto this shore,
Then Hengist's noble heirs; their idols that to raise,
Here put their German names upon our weekly days.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 11.

For at Cheripe, there is a constant store of provisions prepared for the vessels who go thither every week from Panama being chiefly supplied from thence.
Anson. Voyages, b. ii. c. 8.

So liv'd our sires, e'er doctors learn'd to kill,
And multiply'd with theirs, the weekly bill:
The first physicians by debauch were made:
Excess began, and sloth sustains the trade.
Dryden. To John Driden, Esquire.

[Use] diligence in forming the youth to a sense of their Christian duty, in bringing your people to the holy communion; and, where it can be, to week-day prayers.
Secker. Charge to the Clergy of the Diocese of Canterbury.

The observation therefore of the Sunday in the Christian church is a public weekly assertion of the two first articles in our creed,—the belief in God the Father Almighty, the Maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord.—Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 23.

WEEL, n. A weel, or as Holland calls it,—a bow net, which Skinner suggests may be from the Dut. Wiel, a wheel, and so called from its shape; and Junius,—from Willow, because made of willow twigs.

They [trowte and peall] are mostly taken with a hooke-net, made like the Easterne weelyes, which is placed in the stickellest part of the streame (for there the fish chiefely seeketh passage) and kept abroad with certaine hoopes, having his smaller end fastened against the course of the water, and his mouth open to receiue the fish, while he fareth vp by night.—Carew. Survey of Cornwall, fol. 28.

These rushes are used to make leaps and weels for fishers at sea, and fine and daintie wicker vessels.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxi. c. 18.

No, nor the companions of Ulysses in that great and long voiage of theirs which they had at sea, euen laid hook, leape, or weele, or cast net into the sea, for fish, so long as they had a bit of bread, or handfull of meal left.
Id. Plutarch, p. 639.

So that in the end fashioned it is in forme round, yet extendeth only in length like unto a fishers weele or bow net.
Id. Ib. p. 800.

WEEN, v. } Dut. Waenen; Ger. Wanen, wenen; A. S. Wen-an; Goth. Wenjan, ga-wen-yan, opinari, arbitrari, putare.
Ween, n. }
We'ening, n. }

"To think, suppose, or deeme," (Somner.) See To Wend. Also,—to mean; to intend; to signify; to make known.

To wene is now only used in imitation or affectation of antiquity.

Yt was as in gere of grace that God was bore, ich wene,
That Certik com first, four hundred ger & four score & tene.—R. Gloucester, p. 164.

Ther come out of Germanie vnder that, ych wene,
Y charged mid gode knygtes, schippes eigtetene.
Id. p. 116.

Whan William was comen, & wende no tresoun,
Sone was he nomen, & don in prisoun.
R. Brunne, p. 317.

Then wennede I to wytten and with a whight I mette.
Piers Plouhman. Crede.

But sche schal be more blessid, if sche dwellith thus aftir my counseil, and I wene that I haue the spyryt of God.
Wiclif. 1 Corynth. c. 7.

What, wenest thou to make an idiot of our dame.
Chaucer. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5893.

Mine harme is hard withouten wene.
Id. Rom. of the Rose.

Which maketh wene that he shall be
Deliuered and come to libertie.—Id. Ib.

It is but folly and wrong wening
To aske so outrageous a thing.—Id. Ib.

But sire of that ye wolde mene,
That I shulde otherwise wene
To be beloued, than I was:
I am beknowe. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

Full ofte it hath befall er this
Through hope, that was not certaine
My wenyng hath he set in vaine,
To trust in thing, that helpe me nought
But onely of mine owne thought.—Id. Ib.

But wolde God that grace sende,
That towarde me my lady wende,
As I towardes hir wene,
My loue shulde so be sene,
There shulde go no pride a place.—Id. Ib.

And whā it was ageynst nyght, they came to the ryuer of Tyne, to the same place where as the Scottis hadde passed ouer in to Inglande, wenyng to them, that they must nedis repasse agayne the same waye.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 18.

For the crye euer arose by the resyng of hartis, hyndis, and other sauage beastis, that were seen by them in ye forewarde, after the whiche beastis they made such showtyng and criyng, that they that came after, went they had ben a fyghtyng with theyr ennemies.—Id. Ib.

And than he thought rather to be with the formest than with the hyndemoost, and strake his horse with the spurres, and al his company also, and dashte into the batelle of the kyng of Granade, criyng, "Duglas, Duglas:" wenyng to hym, the kyng of Spaigne and his host had folowed, but they dyd nat.—Id. Ib. c. 20.

They wene to wery me, but they shall nat.
Id. Ib. vol. ii. c. 177.

So when he saw his flatt'ring arts to faile,
And subtile engines bet from batterie,
With greedy force he gan the fort assaile,
Whereof hee weend possessed soone to bee.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

They (quoth he) who think that this scholasticall life and idle life of students even from the first beginning, is most of all beseeming and agreeable to philosophers, in my conceit, seem much deceived, weening as they do, that they are to philosophize for their pastime or recreation.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 866.

Not by that coarser expedient of modern levellers—a reference to the judgment and the sentence of the multitude—wise judgment, I ween, and righteous sentence!
Bp. Horsley, vol. iii. Ser. 44.

WEEP, v. } A. S. Weop-an, beweopan, bewepan, flere, deflere, plorare, deplorare, "to bewail, to bemoan, to lament, to deplore," (Somner.) From Goth. Wop-yan, clamare, to make a noise or clamour. As now used, it is most commonly—
We'eper. }
We'eping, n. }
We'epingly. }

To utter or express sorrow, grief, or other passion—by tears; to utter, shed or drop tears or other moisture.

Weeper is also applied to a part of the dress, betokening mourning.

He thogte on the noblei, that he hadde in y be;
He wep, the terus rouns doun, that deol it was to se.
R. Gloucester, p. 34.

Tho he com vp the hul an hey, he hurde atte bygynnyng
Of a womman a deoluol cry, and a pytos wepynge.
Id. p. 204.

Than praied Athelstan to Criste & sore wepe.
R. Brunne, p. 31.

Christ bad blissen bodies on erthe
That wepen for wikkednesse, that he byforn wroughte.
Piers Plouhman. Crede.

A voice was herd an high weepynge & myche weilynge, Rachel by weepynge her sonnes and sche wolde not be comfortid for thei ben not.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 2.

In ye hylles was a voice hearde, mournynge, wepynge, and greate lamentacion: Rachel wepynge for her children, and woulde not be comforted, because they were not.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And therfore whanne Jhesus saygh hir wepinge and the Jewis wepinge that weren with hir, he made noise in spiryt, and troublid himsilf, and seide, where han ye leyd him? thei seyen to him, Lord, come and se. And Jhesus wepte. Wiclif. Jon, c. 11.

When Jesus sawe her wepe, and the Jewes also wepe, whych came wyth her, he groned in the sprite, and was troubled in him selfe, & sayde: where haue ye layed him? They sayde vnto him: Lorde come and se. And Jesus wepte.—Bible, 1551 Ib.

She was so charitable and pitous,
She wolde wepe if that she saw a mous
Caughte in a trappe, if it were ded or bledde.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 145.

For many a man so hard is of his herte,
He may not wepe although him sore smerte,
Therfore in stede of weping and praieres,
Men mote give silver to the poure freres.—Id. Ib. v. 231.

For whan he wepte, he sawe hir wepe,
And whan he cried, he toke good kepe,
The same worde she cried also.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

To conclude, by this her prayer (of hart I say, without speache outwardlye pronounced, she obtayned the thyng she required of God, and had a sonne, whiche she so greatly desyred, and had begged of God, with many sighes and aboundaunce of wepyng teares, and yet no wordes by her mouth uttered.—Fisher. A Godlie Treatise, &c.

And euery day encreased the complayntes, wepynges, and cryes, made to Phylyp Dartwell, their souerayne capitayne, who had of them great pytie and compassyon, and made many good orders.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 396.

Whan the noble kyng Charles of Fraūce had harde his suster's lamentation, who wepyngly had shewed hym all her nede and besynesse, he sayd to her, Fayre suster appease your selfe.—Id. Ib. c. 7.

The little babe vp in his armes he hent;
Who with sweet pleasance and bold blandishment
Gan smile on them, that rather ought to weep,
As carelesse of his woe, or innocent
Of that was doen.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

But woman they are dangerous drops, deceitfull,
Full of the weeper, anger and ill nature.
Beaum. & Fletch. Thierry & Theodoret, Act i.

Indeed, my lord, it were more proportionable to your needs to bring something that might alleviate or divert your sorrow, than to dress the hearse of your dear lady, and to furnish it with such circumstances, that it may dwell with you, and lie in your closet, prayers and your retirements more sad and full of weepings.
Bp. Taylor. Ser. On the Death of Lady Carbery, Ep. Ded.

She took her son into her arms, weepingly laughing.
Reliquiæ Wottonianæ. From Homer.

One pity'd, one contemn'd the woful times,
One langh'd at follies, one lamented crimes:
Laughter is easie; but the wonder lies
What stores of brine supply'd the weeper's eyes.
Dryden. Juvenal, Sat. 10.

The relations of the deceased attend the funeral ceremony, with a considerable number of women that are hired to weep.—Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 12.

The sides of the tombs are often embellished with figures of the offspring of the deceased; frequently with figures of mourners, pleurers, or weepers, generally in monastic habits, as whole convents were wont (and still are accustomed, in Catholic countries) to pour out their pious inhabitants to form processions at the funerals of the great.
Pennant. London.

Others there are, and not a few,
Who place it in the bugbear view!
Think it consists in strange severities:
In fastings, weepings, and austerities.—Dodsley. Religion.

WE'RISH. See WEARISH.

WEET, v. WE'ETING, n. WE'ETINGLY. WE'ETELESS. } Dut. Weten, or witen; Ger. Wissen; A. S. Wit-an, to wit. See WIT, and WISE. To know, to perceive, to understand.

And it was donne whanne Jhesus hadde endid alle these wordis, he seide to hise disciplis, ye weten that aftir tweyn dayes, Paske schal be maad & mannes sone schal be bitakun to be crucified.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 26.

The noblest of the Grekes that ther were
Upon hir shuldres carrieden the bere,
With slacke pas, and eyen red and wete.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2901.

Another Romaine told he by name,
That for his wife was at a sommer game
Without his weting, he forsoke hire eke.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 6232.

Nether be there any kingdōs vnder the sonne more contrary to Cryste, then Gog and Magog, that is to weit the Mahumetik beast and the false prophete of Rome.
Joye. Exposicion of Daniel, c. 8.

And there, on the altare that stoode in the secrete inner parte of the temple, laye holy incense, made of certayne swete odours in the olde law appoynted: that is to wete, of baulme, onicha, swete galbanum, and frankencense of the clerest sort.—Udal. Luke, c. 1.

Doe ye not plainly declare, that being blinded with lucre, ambicion, enuie and hatered, ye doe wetingly allow the wicked actes of youre forefathers.—Id. Ib. c. 11.

You saye, [Sir T. More,] that yf we se the thynge disordered by the prieste, and Christes institucion broken, and wetingly receyve it, we make ourselfes partakers of the cryme.—Fryth. The Consecration of the Sacrament, p. 75.

Lo (quoth he) my maisters all, this I doe you to weet, it is not yet full three daies past, since this figge was gathered at Carthage: see how neare to the wals of our cittie wee have a mortall enemie.—Holland. Plinie, b. xv. c. 18.

Where he through fatall errour long was led
Full many yeeres, and weetelesse wandered
From shore to shore, emongst the Lybicke sandes
Ere rest he found.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 10.

Which when the lady sawe, she cried amaine;
Stay, stay, sir knight for loue of God abstaine,
From that vnwares yee weetlesse do intend;
Slay not that Carle, though worthy to be slaine.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 8.

WE'EVIL. Dut. Weuel, weuel-worm; Ger. Webel; A. S. Wefl. A grub; so called because—in se ipsum involutus: from the verb To weave.

As for the Frument or wheat Triticum, apt it is most of all other to engender and breed weevils and such like wormes, because it soone catcheth a heate, and is quickly enchaufed, by reason of the thicke and fat substance of the owne, and besides enclosed and clad it is within a thicke and grosse skin which is the bran.
Holland. Plinie, b. xviii. c. 30.

WEIGH, v. WE'IGHER. WE'IGHING, n. WEIGHT. WE'IGHTY. WE'IGHTILY. WE'IGHTINESS. WE'IGHTLESS. } Dut. Weghen; Ger. Wægen; Sw. Wæga; A. S. Wæg-an, to bear, to carry, to raise. A weight, a burthen, a cargo; quantity borne or carried; a settled quantity by which to measure other quantities. Weight,—gravity, heaviness; (met.) importance, moment.

To bear, to carry, to raise; to heave, to hold up, to put, hold, keep in suspense, upon the balance; to consider, to examine, (sc.) the quantity, quality, value, importance; to ponder, to estimate.

Hire couerchiefs weren ful fine of ground;
I dorste swere, they weyeden a pound.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 457.

And right so there ben many of these
Louers, that though thei loue alite,
That skarsly wolde it weye a mite;
Yet wolde thei haue a pound ageyn.—Gower. Con. A. b.v.

I will you by my trouth assure,
My weight of loue, and my mesure:
Hath be more large, and more certeyne,
Than euer I toke of longe ageyne.—Id. Ib.

Wherefore sodaynly serche was made, and theyr weyghtes founde and prouyd false, and ouer that all suche wares, as they shulde haue weyed at the kynges bealme, they weyed moche therof in theyr sayde houses, to the hynderaunce of the kynges custome.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1286.

The Reuenge had in her diuers faire brasse pieces that were all sunke in ye sea, which they in the island were in good hope to waigh vp againe the next sommer after.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 186.

They waied also that bothe theire sauegarde and the kinges lay in the handes of one that was a prisoner.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 115.

Before tyme ye weyer vsyd to lene his draught towarde the marchaundyse, soo that the byar hadde by that meane .x. or xii. li: in a draughte to his aduauntage, and the seller so moche dysauauntage.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1257.

They haue spent [theyr tyme] lesse fruitfully heretofore, in ouerrunnyng a multitude of wordes with small consideracion or weyghing of them.—Fisher. A Godlye Treatise, &c.

There is no cause than, to make vs afrayde of the waightye importaunce of the thing.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, fol. 54.

This having said, she left me all in tears,
And minding much to speak; but she was gone,
And subtly fled into the weightless air.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Fr. You are light gentlemen,
Nothing to weigh your hearts, pray give me leave,
I'll come and see, and take my leave.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Night Walker, Act i.

Inflam'd with these words, they all vow thir utmost, with such undaunted resolution as amaz'd the Roman general; but the soldier less waighing, because less knowing, clamour'd to be lead on against any danger.
Milton. History of England, b. iii.

I shall endeavour to give it a right understanding, and describe the truth that lies between the two extremes, and was yet never affirm'd and describ'd by any one that I know of, but is determinable by a just weighing of all that which very many wise men have said, being put together.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iii. c. 5.

Ostorius sending more after, could hardly stay thir flight; till the waighty legions coming on, at first poys'd the battel, at length turn'd the scale.—Milton. Hist. of England, b. ii.

Pleasing to God, or not pleasing, with them weighed alike; and the worse most an end was the weightier.—Id. Ib. b iii.

His industry was great, his soul large, and fit for the weightiest businesses.
Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1590.

The cane in which these beares lay sleeping sound,
Was but of earth, and with her weightinesse
Vpon them fell. Spenser. Ruines of Time.

And so [they] are oft-times emboldned to roule upon them as from aloft very weake and weightlesse discourses.
Bp. Hall. An Apology against Brownists, § 1.

Thomas Gargrave therefore, speaker of the lower house, with some few selected men, after leave obtained, came unto the queen, and making his excuse by his office, the queen's courtesie, and the weightiness of the matter, went forward to this purpose.
Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1559.

When we went to weigh our anchor, it was hooked in a rock, and we broke our cable, and could not get our anchor, though we strove hard for it, so we went away and left it there.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1687.

The water for the squadron being the same day completed, and each ship supplied with as much wine and other refreshments as they could take in, we weighed anchor in the afternoon, and took our leave of the Island of Madera.
Anson. Voyages, b. i. c. 2.

When to demonstration on the one side, there are opposed on the other, only difficulties raised from our want of having adequate ideas of the things themselves; this ought not to be esteemed an objection of any real weight.
Clarke. On the Attributes, Prop. 1.

The cares of empire are great, and the burthen, which lies upon the shoulders of princes, very weighty; and, on this account, therefore, they challenge, because they particularly want, our prayers, that they may have an understanding heart, to discern between good and bad, and to go out and in before a great people.—Atterbury, vol. i. Ser. 8.

Is his poetry the worse, because he makes his agents speak weightily and sententiously?—Broome. On the Odyssey.

It is a very wrong and irrational way of proceeding to venture a greater good for a less, upon uncertain guesses, and before a due examination be made proportionable to the weightiness of the matter, and the concernment it is to us not to mistake.—Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 21.

I exhort you to spend a due share of the remainder of this day in what, I trust, hath employed not a little of your time already; weighing diligently the nature and importance of the undertaking, in which you are about to engage; forming suitable resolutions; and earnestly begging that grace of God, which alone can make you able ministers of the New Testament.
Secker. Ser. Instructions to Candidates for Orders.

We know the weight of a given quantity of matter on the surface of the sun as well as we know its weight upon the surface of the earth.—Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 11.

WEIRD, or WERD. The word occurs frequently in G. Douglas; and the Glossarist says—it comes certainly from the A. S. Wyrd, fatum, (a word spoken,) wyrde, fata. Fate, the fates. See FATE.

But O Fortune, executrice of wierdes.
Chaucer. Troilus, b. iii.

And seith, it were a wonder wierd
To seen a kynge by comen an hierd.
Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

The weirds withstand, and God stops his meek ears.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

The scene then chang'd from this romantic land,
To a bleak waste by bound'ry unconfin'd,
Where three swart sisters of the weird band
Were mutt'ring curses to the troublous wind.
Cooper. Tomb of Shakespeare.

WEIVE. See WEAVE.

WE'LAWAY, or WA'LAWAY. A. S. Wela-wa, or wa-la-wa: alas, for pitty (Somner). Perhaps wo, lo, wo.

And yet now the olde Creon, waia wa!
That lord is now of Thebes the citee,
Fulfillid of ire and of iniquitee,
He for despit, and for his tyrannie,
To don the ded bodies a vilanie,
Of all our lordes, which that ben yslawe,
Hath alle the bodies on an hepe ydrawe.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 941.

And at her feete her selfe most humbly feld,
Crying with pittious voyce, and count'nance wan;
Ah weal-away! most noble lords, how can
Your cruell eyes endure so pittious sight,
To shed your liues on ground?
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 6.

Traytour what hast thou doen? how euer may
Thy cursed hand so cruelly haue swayd
Against that knight? Harrow and weal-away!
After so wicked deed why liv'st thou lenger day!
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 8.

WE'LDER. Perhaps the Wielder or manager. See To WIELD.

Such immediate tenants have others under them, and so a third or fourth in subordination, till it comes to the welder, as they call him, who sits at a rack-rent, and lives as miserably as the Irish farmer upon a new lease from a lay landlord.—Swift. Against the Power of Bishops.

WE'LEW. See To WELK.

Other felde doun on stony places where it hadde not myche erthe, and anoon it sprong up: for it hadde not depnesse of erthe. and whanne the sunne roos up it welewide for hete, and it driede up, for it hadde no roote.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 4.

For as the flour of grass he schal passe, the sunne roos up with heete and driede the gras, and the flour of it felde doun, and the fairnesse of his cheer perischide, and so a riche man welewith in hise weies.—Id. James, c. 1.

WELK, v. WE'LKIN. A. S. Wealc-an, volvere, revolvere, to roll, to revolve. Welkin,—A. S. Wealcynde, as Wealcynde ea, revolvens aqua. To welk,—

To turn, to roll, to revolve; also—to devolve, to roll, turn or cause to roll or turn, to go down. The welked Phœbus is Phœbus having completed his revolution: to welke in west,—to devolve, to turn or go down, to set. Winter welked hath the day; completed the revolution of day.

Welkin, adj.—rolling; the rolling sea, the rolling sky, a rolling eye: used, substantively, to denote—

The sky. In A. S. Welcn, wolcn.

Thus hath this pitous day a blisful ende;
For every man and woman, doth his might
This day in mirth and revel to dispend,
Til on the welkin shone the sterres bright.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Tale, v. 9001.

Right now the highe windes blowe:
And anon after thei ben lowe.
Now cloudie, and now clere it is,
So maie it prouen well by this
A mans sinne is for to hate,
Whiche maketh the welken to debate,
And for to see the propertee
Of euery thynge in his degree.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And lo! moist night now from the welkin falls;
And stars declining counsel us to rest.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

As gentle shepheard and in sweet euen-tide,
When ruddy Phœbus gins to welke in west,
High on an hill, his flock to viewen wide,
Marks which doe bite their hastie supper best.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 1.

By that the welked Phoebus gan auaile
His wearie waine.—Id. Shepheard's Calender. January.

But now sad Winter welked hath the day,
And Phoebus weary of his yeerely taske,
Ystablisht hath his steeds in lowely lay,
And taken vp his inne in fishes haske.—Id. Ib. November.

Now seven times Phoebus had his welked wain
Upon the top of Cancer's tropick set,
And seven times in his descent again
His fiery wheels had with the fishes wet.
Drayton. Barons' Wars, s. 1.

There comes proud Phaeton tumbling thro' the clouds,
Cast by his palfreys that their reigns had broke,
And setting fire upon the welked shrouds,
Now through the heav'n run madding from the yoke.
Id. Ib. s. 39.

The grasse now ginnes to be refresht,
The swallow peepes out of her nest,
And clowdie welken cleareth.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. March.

Come, sir page,
Looke on me with your welkin eye.
Shakspeare. Winter's Tale, Act i. sc. 2.

By Jove, and three or four of the gods more, I am right of mine old master's humour for that; this villainous poetry will undo you, by the welkin.
B. Jonson. Poetaster, Act i. sc. 1.

—— Others in frantic mood
Run howling through the streets; their hideous yells
Rend the dark welkin. J. Philips. Cider, b. i.

WELK, v. Lye explains—marcere, elanguescere. Dut. Welcken, ver-welcken;—In Ger. Welken, ver-welken. See Kilian, and Wachter.

To decay, to fade, to wither, to decrease, to descend. Mr. Brocket has preserved this word in his Glossary; and Grose observes, that "mown grass, in drying for hay, is said to welk."

Welk, and welew, (wel-ic, ig, ew,) appear to be the same word, and have probably their origin in the A. S. Wæl, wæle, cædes, clades.

And yet to me she wol not don that grace,
For which ful pale and welked is my face.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,672.

With wild thonder dint and firy leven
Mote thy welked nekke be to broke.
Id. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5859.

The sea nowe ebbeth, and nowe it floweth
The lond now welketh, and now it groweth.
Gower. Con. A. Prol.

WELL, v. WELL, n. Dut. Well-en, wallen; Ger. Wallen; Sw. Wælla; A. S. Willan, wyll-an, effluere, ebullire;—

To spring or flow out or up. A well,—

A place where water or other fluid hath sprung or flowed out; (met.) the source, spring, origin.

And than welled water for wicked workes
Egrely ernyng [running] out of mens eyen.
Piers Ploughman. Vision, Pass. 20. fol. 109.

Of welles swete and colde ynou, of lesen and of mede.
R. Gloucester, p. 1.

And the welle of Jacob was there, and Jhesus was wery of the iourney, and sat upon the welle.—Wiclif. Jon, c. 4.

And there was Jacobs well. Jesus then weryed in his iorney, sat thus on the well.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Whether a welle of the same hole bringeth forth sweete and salt watir? my britheren whether a fige tree mai make grapis, eithir a vyne figis? so neither salt watir may make sweet watir.—Wiclif. James, c. 3.

For which might she no longer restrayne
Her teares, they gan so up to well.
Chaucer. Troylus, b. iv.

The mother of the Soudon, wel of vices,
Espied hath hire sones pleine entente.
Id. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4743.

But Crist, that of perfeccion is welle,
Ne bade not euery wight he shulde go selle
All that he had, and yeve it to the poure,
And in swiche wise folow him and his lore.
Id. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5690.

The woordes whiche proceded from the mouthe of Jesus, bee cause they welled foorthe from a breste replenished with the heauenly spirite of God, wer not only amiable and swete vnto al good folkes, but also pithie and effectual towarde saluacion.—Udal. Luke, c. 4.

[They] came to ye ryuer of Oxus, whyche beeyng a water vnholesome to be dronke (because it is euer troubled and full of mudde) the Macedons fell to dyggyng of welles.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 203.

Jesus perceiuyng that the fond peticion of the two, & the disdainful wrath of the others, issued both out of one welspring, called them al vnto hym, because he would minister phisicke vnto them all with one medicine.
Udal. Marke, c. 10.

—— So her shee soone appeased,
With sugred words and gentle blandishment,
Which as a fountaine from her sweet lips went,
And welled goodly forth, that in short space
Shee was well pleasd.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 6.

If wee have regard to the coldnesse of water, necessarie it is that the well should stand in some coole and shadowie place not exposed to the sunne, and nathelesse open to the broad aire, that it may have the full view and sight (as it were) of the skie.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxi. c. 3.

He [Homer] drank off all, nor let one drop be spill'd;
Since when, his brain that had before been dry,
Became the well-spring of all poetry.—Davies. Orchestra.

With this his distant friends he beckons near,
Provokes their duty, and prevents their fear:
Himself assists to lift him from the ground,
With clotted locks, and blood that well'd from out the wound.—Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. x.

From his two springs, in Gojam's sunny realm;
Pure welling out, he through the lucid lake
Of fair Dambea rolls his infant streams.
Thomson. Summer.

The book of Genesis (the most venerable monument of antiquity, considered merely with a view to history,) will furnish us with frequent instances of violent contentions concerning wells; the exclusive property of which appears to have been established in the first digger or occupant, even in such places where the ground and herbage remained yet in common.—Blackstone. Comm.entaries, b. ii. c. 1.

Defend me therefore, common sense, say I,
From reveries so airy, from the toil
Of dropping buckets into empty wells,
And growing old in drawing nothing up.
Cowper. Task, b. iii.

The stream, that feeds the wellspring of the heart,
Not more invigorates life's noblest part,
Than Virtue quickens with a warmth divine
The pow'rs, that Sin has brought to a decline.
Id. Table-Talk.

WELL. WEL-COME, adj. WE'LCOME, n. WE'LCOME, v. WE'LCOMENESS. WE'LCOMER. WELLBE'ING, n. WE'LFARE, n. See WEAL. Dut. Wel; Ger. Wol; Sw. Wæl; A. S. Wæl, wel; Goth. Wail a, bene, recte, probe; from the verb welegian, welgian, locupletare, ditare.

Well-come, A. S. Wilcumian,—it is well that you are come; good, grateful, pleasing—that you are come.

Welfare,—good, prosperous, successful—fare or doing; prosperity, success, happiness.

Well-being,—good or happy being; happiness.

Well is prefixed before nouns as an adjective; before adjectives and verbs, adverbially.

In good health, in good situation or condition; and good, serviceable, beneficial, advantageous, efficient or effectual, favouring, promoting, or advancing.

So wysliche he made yt & so wel, that me leuede hym faste.—R. Gloucester, p. 151.

So many douhty dyntes was bituex tham tueye,
Wele thei did togidere, better may noman seye.
R. Brunne, p. 24.

In Ingland neuer before was kyng lufed so wele,
Ne of the folk strange non honourd so mykelle.—Id. p. 36.

"Traitoure," said Rogere, "what salle the werre auaile,
Now I find the here, wele set is my trauaile."—Id. p. 242.

Ne no thing suld it greue vnto the Cristiente,
The barons said bi leue, welcom mot he be.—Id. p. 192.

Ac he hath leve to lepen out. as ofte as hym lyketh
And ys welcome wanne he commeth. and woneth wt hem ofte.—Piers Ploughman, p. 36.

Conscience knew hym wel. and welcomede hym fayre.
Id. p. 243.

But after that his wynnyng is, is his welfare.—Id. Crede.

Ypocritis, Ysaie the prophet profeceide wel of you and seide this peple honourith me with lippis: but her herte is fer fro me.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 15.

Ypocrites, well prophesyed of you Esayas saying: This people draweth nye vnto me with their mouthes, & honoureth me with their lyppes, how be it their heartes are farre from me.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

The prestis that ben wel gouernouris be thei had worthi to double onour, moost thei that traueilen in word and teching.—Wiclif. 1 Tymo. c. 5.

The elders that rule well, are worthy of double honoure, most specially ye whyche laboure in the worde and teachyng.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

At night was come into that hostelrie
Wel nine and tuenty in a compagnie
Of sondry folk, by aventure yfalle
In felawship, and pilgrimes were they alle.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 25.

Short was his goune, with sleves long and wide,
Wel coude he sitte on hors, and fayre ride.—Id. Ib. v. 95.

And saide thus; Nowe lordinges, trewely
Ye ben to me welcome right hertily.—Id. Ib. v. 765.

And eke Arviragus, in all this care,
Hath sent his lettres home of his welfare,
And that he wol come hastily again,
Or elles had this sorwe hire herte slaine.
Id. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11,151.

Welcome the sonde of Crist for evermore
To me, that am now lerned in this lore.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5181.

For all shall die, and all shall passe,
As well a lyon as an asse:
As well a begger as a lorde
Towardes deathe in one accorde
Thei shall stonde. Gower. Con. A. b. v.

And thus of that thei brewe soure
I drinke swete, and am well eased
Of that I wote thei ben deseased. Id. Ib. b. iii.

And she whych was hym nothyng loth,
Welcomed hym in to that londe. Id. Ib. b. i.

The kynge cam with his knightes alle,
And made hym glad welcomynge. Id. Ib.

So ouercaste is my welfare
That I am shapen all to strife. Id. Ib. b. iv.

But I fond cause neuer none
But daunger, whiche me welnie slough. Id. Ib. b. i.

Whan Goddes sonne was also bore,
He sent his angell downe therfore,
Whom the shepeherdes herden singe
Pees to the men of welwillynge
In erthe among vs here. Id. Ib. b. iii.

It semeth loue is welwillende
To hem that be continuende
With besie herte to pursue
Thynge, whiche that is to loue due. Id. Ib. b. iv.

In the tyme of whiche dyner came to the castell the erle of Flaundres, whom ye Frenshe kyng welcomyd in moste luynge maner.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1359.

And in euery place they were welcome and brought to their lodgynes, and their names presented to the capitayne.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 105.

She was named Valentyne; she had neuer before ben at Parys, therfore the burgesses of Parys gaue her her welcome.
Id. Ib. c. 57.

The duchesse of Burgoyne and the coūtesse of Neuers her doughter receyued the kyng ioyfully, and all other lordes for loue of the kyng: and to his welcomynge to Dygnon many ladyes and damosels were come thyder to se hym.—Id. Ib. c. 160.

Dyuerse auctours testyfye that he was fayre and welfarynge of body and sterne of looke and of face.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 156.

The Sontiats for the trust they had in theym selues by reason of their former vyctoryes, thynk that the welfare of Acquitaine consisted in their manhod and prowesse.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 79.

Therefore, faire damzell, be ye well aware,
Lest that too farre ye haue your sorrow sought:
You and your countrey both I wish welfare,
And honour both; for each of other worthy are.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 2.

Say. A gallant undertaking and a happy;
Why this is noble in you: and will be
A welcomer present to our master Philip
Than the return from his Indies.
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act v. sc. 3.

Sylla of Carthage, upon my return to Rome, after I had been long absent, invited me to a supper for my welcome home; for so the Romans tearmed such a courtesie.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 636.

My brother wisht thee here, and thou art here; he will be too kind, and weary thee with often welcomes; but the time doth give thee a welcome above this or all the world.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Maid's Tragedy, Act i.

Dor. Farewell, thou wofull welcomer of glory.
Shakespeare. Rich. III. Act iv. sc. 1.

Other painters his concurrents, and no well-willers of his, gave it out, that he made choice of this kind of worke, because such painting went but slowly away, and required no quicke and nimble hand.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxv. c. 11.

Cla. Forsooth,
'Tis ill for a fair lady to be idle.
Say. She had better be well-busied, I know that.
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act iii. sc. 4.

——'Tis now welnigh morning,
No matter, would it were perpetual night.
Id. Two Noble Kinsmen, Act iii. sc. 2.

I was aboard twice or thrice, and very kindly welcomed both by the capt. and his lieutenant, who was a cavalier of Malta.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1682.

I'll hire another's; is not that my own,
And yours, my friends? thro' whose free-op'ning gate
None comes too early, none departs too late;
For I, who hold sage Homer's rule the best,
Welcome the coming, speed the going guest.
Pope. Imit. of Horace, b. ii. Sat. 2.

Whose nature [eternity] is such, that though our ioys, after some centuries of years, may seem to have grown elder, by having been enjoyed so many ages, yet will they really still continue new, not only upon the scores of their welcomness and freshness, but by their perpetually equal (because infinite) distance from a period.
Bogle. Works, vol. i. p. 291.

A necessity indeed of fitness; that is, that things could not have been otherwise than they are, without diminishing the beauty, order, and well-being of the whole; there may be, and (as far as we can comprehend) there certainly is.
Clarke. On the Attributes, Prop. 9.

As he [our Saviour] was a man, he surely was endued with the best of human affections, universal charity and compassion, which would excite him to promote the welfare of all.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 39.

One that is so much a well-willer to the satire, that he spares no man; and though he cannot strike a blow to hurt any, yet ought to be punish'd for the malice of the action.
Dryden. Essay of Dramatick Poesie.

Well-being in its more permanent state, is distinguished by the appellation of happiness.
Cogan. Ethical Treatise, Dis. 3. c. 1.

A rescue from some imminent danger gives a stronger apprehension of kindness than a thousand good offices, and pleasure never comes so welcome as when preceeded by pain.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. i. c. 16.

WELT. A. S. Wælt-an, volvere.
Gard or edge of a garment, which, turned over on itself (in se convolutam), they sow together to strengthen the hem or border, (Lye.) See WELTER.

Now let us take a view of deadly tokens. In sicknesse and furious madnesse, to laugh is a mortall signe. In phrensie, wherein men are bestraught of their right wits, to have a care of the skirts, fringes, and welts of their garments, that they be in good order; to keepe a fumbling and pleiting of the bed-cloths.—Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 51.

This makes Amphidius welcome to good cheere,
And spend his master fortie pounds a yeere,
And keep his pleise mouth'd wife in welts and gardes.
A Satire by T. Lodge.

WE'LTER, v. Goth. Waltjan; A. S. Wælt-an; Dut. Welteren; Ger. Wezlen; Sw. Wælta, volvere, volutare, to roll. See WALTER.
To roll, to enroll, to toss and turn; to wallow.

With sound of broken waves they gat the strand,
With glowing eyen, tainted with blood and fire
Whose waltring tongues did lick their hissing mouths.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

——And foamy Nereus
Raging in fury, with three forked mace
From bottom depth doth welter up the seas,
So came the Greeks. Id. Ib.

Oftentimes he [a superstitious person] will welter and wallow in the mire, confessing and declaring (I wot not) what sinnes and offences he hath committed.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 217.

Full on his neck he drives the fatal sword:
The gasping head flies off; a purple flood
Flows from the trunk, that welters in the blood.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. ix.

Whilst his Redeemer on his canvass dies,
Stabb'd at his feet his brother weltering lies:
The daring artist, cruelly serene,
Views the pale cheek and the distorted mien.
Young. On Michael Angelo's Piece of the Crucifix.

WEM, n. WEM, v. WE'MLESS. } A. S. Wemman — Ge-wemman, to corrupt, vitiate, violate, marre, make foule or defile;—
Wem, wemme, macula, labes,—a spot, a blot; a blemish, a fault, a speck, (Somner.)

——He wolde thys tendre thyng wemmy foule y nou.
R. Gloucester, p. 206.

That thou kepe the commaundement withoute wemme withoute repreef into the comyng oure Lord Jesu Crist whom the blessid and aloone myghti Kyng of kyngis and Lord of lordis schal schewe in hise tymes.—Wiclif. 1 Tyme. c. 6.

——And thou, vergine wemmeles,
Bare of thy body (and dweltest maiden pure)
The creatour of every creature.
Chaucer. Second Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15,516.

The verie crounes and scepters of best monarks, and princes had bene rustie, wembde, and warpde with obliuion, hadd not they with the goodly eloquence of greate clarkes, and poettes ben stroked and filed.
Drant. Horace. Arte of Poetrie, Ded.

WEN. WE'NNISH. WE'NNY. } A. S. Wenn. Any tumour, big or little, like a wart, (Somner.)

It would be tried with corns and wens, and such other excrescences.—Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 997.

The earl of Northampton having, after a lingring fever, spent more spirits than a younger body could well have born, by the incision of a wennish tumor grown on his thigh, yesternight between eleven and twelve of the clock departed out of this world.—Reliquiæ Wottonianæ, p. 434.

[Sloth] disposeth a man to live gratis [precariously] and ingratefully on the public stock, as an insignificant cypher among men, as a burthen of the earth, as a wen of any society; sucking aliment from it, but yielding no benefit or ornament thereto.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 19.

Some persons, so deformed with these, have suspected them to be wenny.—Wiseman, Surgery.

So likewise is the poet to reject all incidents which are foreign to his poem, and are naturally no parts of it: they are wens, and other excrescences, which belong not to the body, but deform it.
Reynolds. Parallel between Poetry & Painting.

WENCH, n. WENCH, v. WE'NCHER. } Skinner and Junius,—from A. S. Wencle, ancilla, filia,—a wench, a daughter, (Somner.) Tooke,—from the A. S. Winc-ian, to wink; i. e.—
One that is winked at; and, by implication, may be had by a nod or wink.
The change of wink, to wench, is similar to drink, drench, stink, stench.
See the quotation from Skelton, and those from B. Jonson, and Dryden's Persius, in v. Wink.

But for the Gentyl is in estat aboue
She shal be called his lady & his loue,
And for that tother is a poure woman
She shall be cleped his wenche & his lemman.
Chaucer. Manciples Tale, v. 17,170.

Of an heli prechoure's word heo nolde not so ofte thenche,
As of the muri word, that hem thinketh of the sely wenche.—R. Gloucester, p. 119.

And in the wombe of that wenche. he was fourty wokes
And man by cam of that mayde. to save man kynde.
Piers Plouhman, p. 311.

By wissynge of this wenche ich dude. hure wordes were so swete.—Id. p. 201.

Sleuthe wax wonder gerne. and sone was of age
And wedded an Wanhope. a wenche of the stywes.
Id. p. 400.

So blowen out of all kinds
So loud, that he should drench
Lord, lady, groome, and wench
Of all the Troyans nation.—Chaucer. House of Fame, b. i.

Senecke witnesseth openly
Howe that ennie properly
Is of the court the comon wench.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

With wanton wenches winkyng.
Skelton. Boke of Colin Clout.

Howe moche worthyer had he ben, to haue had Homere the trumpe of his fame immortal, than Achilles? who for a lytell wenche contended with Agamemnon onely.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governour, b. iii.

Arellius, a renowned painter, had one notable foule fault which marred all and discredited his art; given he was exceedingly to wenching.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxv. c. 10.

What a dull ass was I, I could not see this wencher from a wench.—Beaum. & Fletch. The Scornful Lady, Act v.

But to talk of that, is like the fellow that was a great wencher; he wished God would forgive him his leachery, and lay usury to his charge.—Selden. Table-Talk. Clergy.

Can. Love alone, is either plain wenching, where every curtizan is your mistriss, and every man your rival; or else, what's worse, plain whining after one woman.
Dryden. Assignation, Act ii. sc. 1.

Thou art a dainty wench, good faith thou art, and 'tis a mettled action thou hast done.
Vanburgh. The Mistake, Act v.

WEND, v. WE'NDING, n. WENT, n. } Goth. Wand-jan; A. S. Wendan; Dut. Wend-en; Ger. Wenden; Sw. Wænda, to turn, to go, to bend, to wind; it seems to be applied generally to—motion.
To move, to go, to pass. And went, n. (the past tense and part. still in common use,)—
A way or passage.
Junius explains, went,—a turning or tossing, a turning backwards and forwards, a turning out of a straight way, a passage;—it appears always to mean,—
A way, passage; utterance.

Twey dayes heo wende in the se fro the lond of Grece.
R. Gloucester, p. 14.

Thei hed redy wendyng, at Douer thei toke lond.
R. Brunne, p. 260.

Ther withouten numbir, ther names I may not telle,
Alle thei gede tille encumbir, & er went to Helle.
Id. p. 317.

In luf thei departed, Hardknout home-west.—Id. p. 52.

——— From every shires ende
Of Englelond, to Canterbury they wende,
The holy blisful martyr for to seke,
That hem hath holpen, whan that they were seke.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 17.

At last he chese hem for to wende
And come agen right at the yeres ende.
Id. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6598.

For he was late ycome fro his viage,
And wente for to don his pilgrimage.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 79.

——— For which in wo to bedde he went:
And made, er it were day, full many a went.
Id. Troil. & Cres. b. ii.

Upon the walles made he many a went.—Id. Ib. b. v.

In the forest as they went
How at a turning of a went
How Crusa was ylost.—Id. House of Fame, b. i.

This Troilus is by a privy went
Into my chamber come in al this reine:
Id. Troil. & Cres. b. iii.

The Grekes token leaue tho,
With all the hole felaushippe
And foorth thei wenten in to shippe.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

And still, her thought, that she was left alone
Uncompanied, great voyages to wend
In desert land, her Tyrian folk to seek.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

Farre under ground from tract of living went,
Downe in the bottom of the deepe abysse
——— their dreadful dwelling is.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 2.

But here my weariе teeme nigh over-spent,
Shall breath itselfe awhile after so long a wente.
Id. Ib. c. 5.

——— Addicted more
To contemplation and profound dispute
As by that early action may be judg'd,
When slipping from thy mother's eye thou went'st
Alone into the temple.—Milton Paradise Regained, b. iv.

WEST, adj. WEST, n. WEST, v. WE'STING, n. WE'STER, v. WE'STERLY. WE'STERN. WE'STY. A. S. West, occidens; Dut. West; Ger. West; Sw. Wester. Junius derives from Gr. Εσπερος. Wachter,—from Πεσ-ειν, cadere. Tooke,—that it is Wesed, wes'd, west, the past part. of Wes-an, macerare, to wet. Thus applied to—

The wind, usually accompanied with wet, with rain.

Engelond ys a wel god lond, ich wene of eche lond best,
Y set in the ende of the world, as al in the west.
R. Gloucester, p. 1.

Seththe he drow hym westward, & werrede in mony londe,
And wan lond aftur other, hym ne mygte non at stonde.
Id. p. 44.

Thou shouldest knely bifore Christ in compas of gold,
In the wyde window westward wel neigh in the myddel.
Piers Plouhman. Crede.

The daies honour, and the heauens eye
The nights foe, all this clepe I thee sunne
Gan westren fail, and downward for to wrie
As he that had his daies course yronne.
Chaucer. Troilus, b. ii.

Estward ther stood a gate of marbel white,
Westward right swiche another in th' opposite.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 1897.

When ye se a cloud ryse out of ye west straight waye ye saye: we shall haue a shower & so it is.
Bible, 1551. Luke, c. 12.

And tourned downewarde and westwarde to the ryuer of Mercea.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 83.

Whether the sun predominant in Heav'n
Rise on the earth, or earth rise on the sun,
Hee from his east his flaming rode begin,
Or shee from west her silent course advance
With inoffensive pace that spinning sleeps
On her soft axle. Milton. Paradise Lost, b. viii.

Oft till the star that rose, at evening, bright,
Toward heav'n's descent had slop'd his west'ring wheel.
Id. Lycidas.

As the bright sunne, what time his fiery teame
Towards the wesaterne brim begins to draw,
Gins to abate the brightnesse of his beame,
And feruour of his flames some-what adaw.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 9.

If our love's faint and westwardly decline.
Donne. Lect. upon the Shadow.

Yet all day sits she simpring in her mew,
Like some chast dame, or shrined saynct in shew;
While hee lies wallowing with a westy hed
And palish carkasse, on his brothel-bed,
Till his salt bowels boyle with poysonous fite.
Bp. Hall, b. iv. Sat. 1.

Mark how the shifting winds from west arise,
And what collected night involves the skies!
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. iv.

Now chang'd the jarring noise to whispers low,
As winds forsaking seas more softly blow;
When at the western gate, on which the car
Is plac'd aloft, that bears the God of war,
Proud Arcite entring arm'd before his train,
Stops at the barrier, and divides the plain.
Id. Palamon & Arcite, b. iii.

From October till March there are westerly winds, not constant, nor violent, but blowing moderately sometimes 2 or 3 days or a week.—Dampier. Discourse of Winds, c. 3.

The navigator has no choice but to stand to the southward, close upon a wind, and by keeping upon that tack, he will not only make southing but westing; and, if the wind varies towards the north of the west, his westing will be considerable.—Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 6.

From noon to three P. M. running along shore east by north, at which time we were abreast of the westernmost point of a very deep bay, called by Tasman, Stormy Bay.
Id. Second Voyage, b. i. c. 7.

WET, v. WET, n. WET, adj. WE'TNESS. A. S. Wæt-an, madefacere, humectare, irrigare, to wet, water or moisten. (Somner.) To moisten with any liquid or fluid.

An watle hys ssone & hys vet. so longe yt wax an hey,
That yt watte hys brych al aboute, & euere vpard yt stey,
So that thys hupes smourte, & of cold were ney.
R. Gloucester, p. 322.

He sauh kyng Philip als he lay in the water,
"Sir kyng rise vp & skip, for thou has wette thi hatel"
[attire].—R. Brunne, p. 204.

Thou woldest nought wetten thy fote & woldest fich kachen.—Piers Plouhman, Crede.

Ich have ysouht goode seyntes. for my soules helthe
And walked ful wide. in wete and in drye.
Id. Vision, p. 126.

And gut [yet] is wynter for hem wors. for whetshod thei gangen. Id. p. 261.

Werie and wetschode. went ich forth after.—Id. p. 339.

Than he charged the water that he shulde flowe no hygher, and that, in no wyse, he shulde towche his lordes clothes; but the water kepte his course, and wette at length, the kynges thyes: wherwith ye kynge abasshed, sterte backe and sayde.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 206.

So they taryed and couered and their horses vnder the trees tyll the day began to apere, and suche as were wete and colde made fyers to warme them; but or they coulde make any fyre, they endured moche payne, for ye wod was grene and the grounde wete.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 324.

And now the sun with more effectual beams
Had chear'd the face of earth, and dri'd the wet
From drooping plant, or dropping tree.
Milton. Paradise Regained, b. iv.

Whether to deck with clouds the uncolourd skie,
Or wet the thirstie earth with falling showers,
Rising or falling still advance his praise.
Id. Paradise Lost, b. v.

The valley all did swimme with streames of bloud,
So great that time a slaughter was there made:
It staindе the mightie mouthes of Nilus floud,
And on the shores you might bloud wetshod wade.
Mirrour for Magistrates, p. 182.

As summer and winter are the two most different seasons in our climate; so the dry and the wet are within the torrid zone; and are always opposite to each other.
Dampier. Discourse of Winds, c. 7.

Our chiefest care is to keep the head of the canoa towards her; for if she should strike against the broad side, it would endanger oversetting it, and consequently wetting our arms and ammunition.—Id. Voyages, an. 1676.

The wetness of these bottoms often spoils them for corn.
Mortimer. Husbandry.

Among other decorations peculiar to this canoa, was a line of small white feathers, which hung from the head and stern on the outside, and which, when we saw them, were thoroughly wetted by the spray.
Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 20.

WE'THER, or WE'DDER. Dut. Weder, weer; Ger. Wider; A. S. Weder, wether. Aries castratus, ab adversando dictus, (Kilian, and Junius;) from the Dut. Wederen; Ger. Wideren; A. S. Witheran, resistere, adversari; to resist, withstand, turn against.

She was wel more blisful on to see
Than is the newe perjenete tree;
And softer than the wolle is of a wether.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3250

Lo, Troilus, men saine, that ful hard it is
The wolfe ful, and the wedder hole to have.
Id. Troil. & Cres. b. iv.

At length to lay my head and hollow pledge
Of all my strength in the lascivious lap
Of a deceitfull concubine who shore me
Like a tame weather, all my precious fleece,
Then turn'd me out ridiculous, dispoil'd,
Shaven and disarm'd among mine enemies.
Milton. Samson Agonistes

How cam'st thou here, good swain? hath any ram
Slipt from the fold, or young kid lost his dam,
Or straggling weather the pent flock forsook?—Id. Comus.

WEX. See WAX.

WHALE. A. S. Whæl; Dut. Wal; Ger. Wal; Sw. Hwal. Junius suggests wal, abyssus, but with other etymologists prefers the Gr. Βαλαινα, or φαλαινα. It is more immediately from the Dut. and Ger. Wallen; A. S. Walw-ian, to roll, to wallow: Part huge of bulk, wallowing, unwieldy, (P. L. vii. 411.)

Wherfore, like as death was of might to swallow him, so was it not able to holde him, beeing once deuowred, but cast him vp again, as it was therto constreined, ye third daie, euen as the whale did re-uomit the prophete Jonas.
Udal. Actes, c. 2.

While you take in hand to schoole others, & to teach them by what name a whale-fish is to be called in our tongue, leauing out through ignorance the letter H. which almost alone maketh vp the signification of the worde, you deliuer that which is not true: for val in our language signifieth not a whale, but chusing or choice of the verbe Eg-vel, that is to say, I chose, or I make choise.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 568.

And as he pranced before, still seeking for a make,
As who would say, "There is none here, I trow will me forsake;"
I might perceive a wolf, as white as whales-bone.
Surrey. Renounces all Affection for Geraldine.

The Indian sea breedeth the most and the biggest fishes that are: among which, the whales, and whirlepooles called Balænæ, take up in length as much as foure acres or arpens of land.—Holland. Plinie, b. ix. c. 3.

Which to recure, no skill of leaches art
Mote him auaile, but to returne againe
To his wounds worker, that with louely dart
Dinting his breast, had bred his restlesse paine,
Like as the wounded whale to shore flies frō the maine.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 10

A goodly lady did foreby them rush,
Whose face did seeme as cleere as crystall stone,
And eke (through feare) as white as whales bone.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 1.

They [the small craft] are sailed chiefly with negro slaves; and about Christmas these are mostly imployed in whale-killing: for about that time of the year a sort of whales, as they call them, are very thick on this coast.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1699.

The whale is the largest animal of which we have any certain information; and the various purposes to which, when taken, its different parts are converted, have brought us tolerably acquainted with its history. Of the whale, properly so called, there are no less than seven different kinds; all distinguished from each other by their external figure, or internal conformation.
Goldsmith. Animated Nature, pt. iv. b. i. c. 3.

WHARF. WHA'RFAGE. WHA'RFINGER. A. S. Hwyrf-an; Dut. Werfan, jacere, projicere. A place, thrown out, projected, (sc.) from the bank, on which to land goods.

The quene Margerete with childe than was sche,
The kyng bad hir not lete, bot com to the North cuntre
Unto Brotherton, on wherfe ther scho was & lighter of a sonne, ther child hight Thomas.
R. Brunne, p. 310

First, that all marchants of the sayd kingdomes and countreys may come into our kingdome of England, and any where else into our dominion with their marchandises whatsoeuer safely and securely vnder our defence and protection without paying wharfage, pontage, or pannage.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 135

There sees his crowded kwarfs, and people-pestred shores
His bosom over-spread with shoals of labouring oars.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 17.

Near the town a wharf of wood is run out to a proper distance for the convenience of landing and shipping goods.
Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 14.

WHAT. Goth. Hwas, hwa; A. S. Hwæt, hwæs; Ger. Was; Dut. Wat; Sw. Hwæd.
What is,—who-ad, whad, what, the past part. of the A. S. verb Hwian, formare, fingere. See WHO.

Thider heo gonne ryue, and Brut sende vp there
Thre hondred men yarmed wel, to loke wat lond yt were.
R. Gloucester, p. 14.

Ac thē he wiste wad he was. Id. p. 91.

The kyng askede wad heo were. Id. p. 39.

So that moo than syx thousend of the Saxon aslawe were Wat aslawe—wat adreynt. Id. p. 170.

Of Marche the first day at the New castelle
Our kyng ther he lay, his purueiance so fel,
To Scotland for to go, to-wite why & what wise,
Ther kyng & other mo withsaid him his seruise.
R. Brunne, p. 271.

What man that me loveyth. and my wylle follweth
Shal have grace to good ynow. and a good ende.
Piers Plouhman, p. 25.

Truly I seye to you that who ever seith to this hil be thou taken and cast into the see and doutith not in his herte but bileveth that whatever he seye schal be don, it schal be don to him.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 11.

And Jhesus answeride and seide. Ye witen not what ye axen.—Id. Matthew, c. 20.

And thei axiden him, and seiden to him, what thanne baptisest thou if thou art not Crist, neither Elye, neither a profete.—Id. Jon, c. 1.

And then she a little what smiling said, (paullisper arridens.)—Chaucer. Boecius, b. iv.

Men weren wonte to maken questions. Of the simplicitie of the purueighaunce of God, and of the order of destinie, and of sodaine happe, and of knowing of predestinacion diuine, and of the libertie of free will, the whiche thinges thou thy self apperceiuedst wel, of what weight thei been.
Id. Ib.

And everich cride, "What thing is that?"
And some seide, "I not never what."
Id. House of Fame, b. iii.

For ye be like the slepie cat
That would haue fish: but wost thou what?
He woll nothing weate his clawes. Id. Ib.

But what they weren nothing he ne wote.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 1705.

But for all that I was not gladde
For I ne sawe no cause why:
And ofte she asked, what was I.
I saide a caitife, that lieth here.
What wolde ye my ladie dere?
Shall I be wholle, or elles die?—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

What shall befalle here afterward
God wote. Id. Ib. Prol.

Lo! now my sonne what it is
A man to caste his eye amis. Id. Ib.

What man on them his chere caste,
And them behelde, he was als faste
Out of a man in to a stone
Forshape. Id. Ib.

Then the kynge anone called his seruaunt, that hadde but one lofe and a lytell whatte of wyne, and bad hym gyue the halfe therof vnto the poore man.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 172.

For at the last question they will eyther accept it or dash it, as it shall seeme good, notwithstanding that whatsoeuer the committees haue done.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. ii. c. 3.

But if thee lust, to holden chat
with seely shepheards swaine:
Come downe, and learne the little what,
that Thomalin can saine.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. July.

And thither also came all other creatures,
What-euer life or motion do retaine,
According to their sundry kinds of features.
Id. Faerie Queene, b. vii. c. 7.

—— So adowne
They prayd him sit, and gaue him for to feed
Such homely what as serues the simple clowne
That doth despise the dainties of the towne.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 9.

WHEAT, n. } Goth. Hwait; A. S. Hwæt;
WHEA'TEN. } Dut. Weyt; Ger. Weitzen; which Wachter composes of the Ger. Witt, and Gr. Ζεα. Junius, Skinner, and other etymologists, agree to derive from the colour "white," ob farinæ candorem, (Martinius;) and Wachter refers to the passage quoted below from Pliny.

Of whyte and of wolle god, betere ne may be non
R. Gloucester, p. 2.

The tuo [schippes] charged with whete, the tother with other corn,
& fiue other galeis with alle ther apparaile.
R. Brunne, p. 154.

The hungre was so grete, & the cold so stark,
That a quarter whete was at tuenty mark.—Id. p. 174.

Whos wynewynge cloth is in his hond, and he schal fully clanse his corne flore, and he schal gadre his whete into his berne: but the chaff he schal brenne with fire that may not be quenchid.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 3.

Which hath also hys fanne in his hand, & wyl pourge his floure & gather the wheat into his garner, & wil burne the chaffe with vnquencheable fyre.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

—— It were a shorte beyete
To winne chaffe, and lese whete.—Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

Dysgysed as they were, [they] went a lytell before, and came to the porter, (and sayd,) sir, in gret fere we haue brought hyther otes and wheteneele; and if ye haue any neele therof, we woll sell it to you gode chepe.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 55.

—— Your wheaten wreath
Was then not thrash'd, nor blasted; fortune at you
Dimpled her cheeks with smiles.
Beaum. & Fletch. Two Noble Kinsmen, Act i. sc. 1.

Howbeit, for my part I thinke verily, that there is no wheat in the world comparable to ours here in Italie, for it surpasseth all others both in whitenesse and also in weight: by which two marks especially, it is knowne from the rest, so it is reputed for the verie best.
Holland. Plinie, b. xviii. c. 7.

One is engaged deeply in the usurers books, by laying corn-grounds and wheat-fields to his own demains, another, because he would be possessed of fruitfull vineyards.
Id. Plutarch, p. 172.

He that but saw you wear the wheaten hat,
Would call you more than Ceres, if not that.
B. Jonson, Ep. 105.

But if your care to wheat alone extend,
Let Maja with her sisters first descend,
And the bright Gnosian diadem downward bend
Before you trust in earth your future hope;
Or else expect a listless lazy crop.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. i.

In the household book of Henry the fifth earl of Northumberland drawn up in 1512, there are two different estimations of wheat. In one of them it is computed at six shillings and eight pence the quarter, in the other at five shillings and eight pence only.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 11.

In some parts of Lancashire, it is pretended, I have been told, that bread of oatmeal is a heartier food for labouring people than wheaten bread, and I have frequently heard the same doctrine held in Scotland.—Id. Ib.

WHEE'DLE, v. A. S. Wædl-ian, indigere, mendicare, to want, to begge, or go a begging, (Somner.) As now applied, it is—
To beg, (with importunity, with appeal to the affections,) to persuade (by an assumed degree of fondness); to cajole, to coax.

He that first brought the word sham, or wheedle, or banter in use, put together as he thought fit those ideas he made it stand for.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iii. c. 9.

I have already a deed of settlement of the best part of her estate, which I wheedled out of her; and that you shall partake at least.—Congreve. Way of the World, Act iii.

A laughing, toying, wheedling, whimp'ring she,
Shall make him amble on a gossip's message,
And take the distaff with a hand as patient
As e'er did Hercules.—Rowe. Jane Shore, Act i.

Hence goodnature is often called and sometimes really proceeds from folly, which gets no thanks when it proves most beneficial; for men applaud themselves for having gained a compliance by wheedling or pressing, and secretly laugh at the silly thing that could be won by such artifices.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. i. pt. ii. c. 34.

WHEEL, v. } A. S. Hweogul; Dut. Wiel;
WHEEL, n. } Ger. Wiel; Sw. Hiul; from the WHEE'LER. } A. S. verb A-wylian, (wyl-ian, WHEE'LY. } willigan, wealc-an, see WELKIN,) volvere, revolvere, to roll, to revolve.
To roll or turn round, to revolve; to take or make a circular or rotatory movement.

Hii lete hem gynnes make, as vorst of the toure
Of tre, ymade strong ynou vppe weoles foure.
R. Gloucester, p 410.

The tunge is ordeyned in oure membris which defoulith al the bodi, and it is enflawmed of helle, and enflawmeth the wheel of oure birthe.—Wiclif. James, c. 3.

Townes they [Tartars] plant none, nor other standing buildings, but haue walking houses, which the Latines call Veii, built vpon wheeles like a shepheards cottage.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 489.

Who [Flemmings] had brought their horses and cartes, and wheele-barrowes, and plankes for their barrowes to runne vpon.—Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 693.

Unc. He has deceived me.
Lan. I told you howsoever he wheel'd about, he would charge home at length.
Beaum. & Fletch. Wit without Money, Act iii.

A carpenter or wheele-wright will not with so good a will lay his hand to make a plough, or a chariot, as he would to frame those tables or boords in which he wist that Solon was to engrave his laws.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 240.

After these locall names, the most names in number haue beene deriued from occupations or professions, as Taylor, Potter, Smith, Wheeler, &c.—Camden. Remaines. Surnames.

And others drawn off the front, were commanded to wheel about and charge them on their backs.
Milton. Historie of England, b. ii.

Yet did they comply so much with the Presbyterians and Independents, that they kept their places: tho' they deserved ejection over and over: and in the change at the restoration, they wheel'd about and acted like Protei.
Wood. Athenæ Oxon. vol. ii.

A buzzing noise of bees his ears alarms,
Straight issue through the sides assembling swarms.
Dark as a cloud they make a wheeling flight,
Then on a neighb'ring tree, descending, light.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iv.

—— Now exhort
Thy hinds to exercise the pointed steel
On the hard rock, and give a wheely form,
To the expected grinder. J. Philips. Cider, b. ii.

Thus, in lower life, whilst the wheel, the needle, &c. imploy her, the plough or some trade perhaps demands the muscles and hardiness of him.
Wollaston. Religion of Nature, s. 8.

I have seen a curious engine compounded of wheels, screws and pulleys whereby a lady with a single hair of her head might raise a stone of two hundred weight: the hair was fastened to a wheel something like the flyer of a jack.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. i. pt. i. c. 3.

WHEEZE. See WEASE.

WHELK. } There is a shelfish so called
WHE'LKED. } (from its twisted shell?) and may
WHE'LKY. } have received its name from weal-can, to turn. (See WELK.) So also whelky pearls, and whelked horns: but welk, the noun, applied to Bardolph's face, may be from weal, (weal-ig, weal-ic, welk.) See WEAL, or WALE.

Ne ought the whelky pearles esteemeth hee,
Which from Indian seas brought far away.
Spenser. Virgil. Gnat.

Edg. As I stood heere below, me thought his eyes
Were two full moones: he had a thousand noses,
Hornes wealk'd, and waued like enraged sea:
It was some fiend.—Shakespeare. K. Lear, Act iv. sc. 6.

One Bardolph, if your maiestie know the man: his face is all bubukles and whelkes, and knobs, and flames a fire.
Id. Hen. V. Act iii. sc. 6.

And all having their lights burning out of whelks, or murex-shells.—B. Jonson. Masque of Blackness.

WHELK. See WELK.

WHELM, v. Junius says "the A. S. Welman, is—to boil over," (see To WELL.) Skinner thinks from the A. S. Ahwylf-an, obruere; Chaucer writes—overwhelve, (qv.) Perhaps formed upon the verb hel-an, to cover. See HELM.
To cover; to pour over; to flow or rise over; to overflow, or overflood.

For of the well, this is the fine
In world is none so clere of hewe
The water is euer fresh and newe
That whelmeth vp, with waues bright
The mountenaunce of two finger hight.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

By the mysgydynge of the sterysman he was set vpon the pylys of the brydge, and the barge whelmyd, so that all were drowned.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1429.

No bodie lighteth a candle (saieth he) and hideth it in a priuie derke corner, or couereth it by whelming a bushell ouer it.—Udal. Luke, c. 11.

There this old Palmer shewed himselfe that day,
And to that mighty princesse did complaine
Of greeuous mischiefes, which a wicked fay
Had wrought, and many whelmd in deadly paine,
Whereof he crav'd redresse.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

Thrice was he seen; at length his courser plung'd,
And threw him off; the waves whelm'd over him,
And helpless in his heavy arms he drown'd.
Dryden. Don Sebastian, Act i. sc. 1.

Some accidental gust of opposition
Blasts all the beauties of his new creation,
O'erturns the fabrick of presumptuous reason,
And whelms the swelling architect beneath it.
Johnson. Irene, Act ii. sc. 3.

WHELP, n. } Dut. Welpe, wulpe; A. S.
WHELP, v. } Hwelp, from the Dut. Ghillen; A. S. Gyll-an, giellan, to yell; gelp-an, to yelp. See CALL, and GALE.

That which (a young animal which) yelleth or yelpeth, or howleth; any noisy young creature.

To whelp,—to bear or produce whelps.

Cambinhoy beres him coy, that fende's whelp,
Ther with craft he has tham raft, it may not help.
R. Brunne, p. 281.

And sche answerde and seyde to hem, ghis Lord, for litil whelpis eten vndir the bord of the crummys of children.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 7.

She answered and said vnto him: euen so master. neuertheles, the whelpes also eate vnder the table of the childrens crõmes.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

As by the whelpe chastised is the leon,
Right for that cause and that conclusion,
While that I have a leiser and a space,
Min harme I wol confessen er I pace.
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10,816.

My father ye shall well beleue
The yonge whelpe, which is affaited,
Hath not his maister better awaited
To couche, whan he saith go lowe
Than I anone. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

For the soule it selfe, whyche is the substance of a man, is so surely fẽsed in round about with the shield on ye patuyce of God, that as longe as he wyll abyde faythfully in adiutorio altissimi, in the hope of Gods helpe, the lyons whelpes shal not be able to hurt it.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 1180.

Like as some mastiff-whelp, dispos'd to play,
A whole confused herd of beasts doth chase,
Which with one vile consent run all away.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. ii.

Per. Yes, and your lion's whelping in the Tower.
B. Jonson. Fox, Act ii. sc. 1.

The cubs of bears, a living lump appear,
When whelp'd, and no determin'd figure wear,
Their mother licks them into shape, and gives
As much of form, as she her self receives.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. xv.

The rest in shape a beagle's whelp throughout,
With broader forehead, and a sharper snout.
Id. The Cock & the Fox.

Or, having whelp'd a prologue with great pains,
Feels himself spent, and fumbles for his brains.
Cowper. Table-Talk.

WHEN. } Goth. Hwan; A. S. Hwænne;
WHENCE. } Ger. Wann, wenn, (wannen, whence;) Dut. Wan, quando, tum.

Then,—is the (or that,) one (sc. moment, time;) and—

When,—who, (what or which,) one (sc. moment, time.)

Whence, (i.e. when-es),—is applied to time and place. See WHO.

Wen ge habbe forme of men, beth men on all wise
And turneth gour hond to manhede.
R. Gloucester, p. 101.

Whan that kyng William tho tithinges herd say,
To the toun of Durham fulle fast he toke the way.
R. Brunne, p. 74.

Whenne alle tresour ben tryed. treuth ys the best.
Piers Ploukman, p. 23.

And whanne the Sabot was come Jhesus bigan to teche in a synagoge and manye herden and wondriden, in his teching: and seiden, of whennes to this alle these thingis, and what is the wisdom that is goven to him, and siche vertues which ben maad by hise hondis.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 6.

And when the Sabboth day was come, he begã to teach in the synagoge. And many that heard him were astonyed, and sayd: from whence hath he these thynges? & what wisdome is this that is geuen vnto him: & such vertues that are wrought by hys handes?—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Now it is reson and time that I shewe you whan, and wherfore, that ye moun chaunge your conseil, withouten repreve.—Chaucer. The Tale of Melibeus.

He blameth that is nought to blame,
And preiseth that is nought to preise,
Thus whan he shall the thinges peise
Ther is deceit in his balance.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And therupon hir herte droughe
To leue Englond for euer,
And go where she had leuer
To Rome, whens that she came.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

So whensoeuer they fall from fayth to heresyes, or from good workes to deadly sinne, then leese they the seede of Godde and be borne of the deuill and become hys children.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 546.

Before them stands the God of seas in place,
Clayming that sea-coast citie as his right,
And strikes the rocks with his three-forked mace;
Whenceforth issues a warlike steed in sight,
The signe by which he challengeth the place.
Spenser. Muiopotmos.

I'll not offend thee with a vain tear more,
Glad mention'd Roe; thou art but gone before,
Whither the world must follow: and I, now,
Breathe to expect my when, and make my how.
B. Jonson, Ep. 33.

WHERE. Goth. Hwar; A. S. Hwær; Ger. War, (in composition Wor;) Dut. Waer; Sw. Hwar, ubi.

There, is the-er, i. e. the place, that place; and where, is who-er, i.e. which or what place, at or in which or what place.

Where is much used in composition: whereby; by which or what place; by which or what. See WHO.

And lete ys dogter spousi mid richesse ynow
To an other prince elles ware.—R. Gloucester p. 89.

War thoru he wiste, how mony men in al the world were.
Id. p. 60.

Ware by the schippes mowe come fro the se and wende,
And brynge on lond god ynow. Id. p. 2.

Ther where he was schotte a nother chapelle standes.
R. Brunne, p. 22.

The lest lad that longeth to hym. be the lond wonnen
Loketh after lordship. othr othere large Mede
Werby he may as a man for evermore lyve after.
Piers Plouhman, p. 50.

Wherfore he het the elemens. to helpe gow alle tymes
And bryng forth goure bylyve bothe lynnen and wollen.
Id. p. 13.

And the disciplis seyn to him, wheroff thanne so many looves among us in desert to fulfille so greet a peple?
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 15.

Tweye wymmen schulen be gryndinge togidire, the ton schal be takun: and the tother left. Thei answerden and seyden to him, where lord? which seyde to hem, whereuer the body schal be, thidur schulen be gaderid togider also the eglis.—Id. Luk, c. 17.

Two shal be also a grinding together: the one shal be receaued, and the other forsaken. And they answered, and sayde to hym: where Lorde? And he sayde vnto them: whersoeuer the body shal be, thither wil the egles resorte.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

The womman seith to him, sire, thou hast not whereinne to draw, and the pitt is deep.—Wiclif. Jon, c. 4.

Wheroff ben bateils and cheestis among you? whether not of youre coueitisis that figten in youre membris?
Id. James, c. 4.

And whanne Jhesus had seen her thoughtis: he seid wherto thenken ye yvel thingis in youre hertis?
Id. Matthew, c. 9.

Now it is reson and time that I shewe you whan, and wherfore, that ye moun chaunge your conseil, withouten repreve.—Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

Remember wheresoeuer that ye go,
Alway to search and make due enquerence
After my loue, mine hertes sustenaunce,
In euery towne and in euery village.
Id. Lam. of Mary Magdalen.

This kynge with noble purueiance
Hath for him selfe his chare araied,
Wherin he wolde ride amaied,
Out of the citee for to plaie.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

And netheles good is to here,
Suche thing, wherof a man maie lere,
That to vertue is accordant. Id. Ib.

And wherupon the worlde mote stonde,
And hath done sith it began. Id. Ib.

Wherfore to thende ye maye the better vnderstande whereaboute he goeth, and that he longeth to leade vs in darkenes, and fede vs furth with his high solemne folies that he would wer not vnderstanden: let vs a little examyne the parties of his deffinicion and descripcion of the churche.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 525.

Wherewithall unto the hartes forest he fleeth,
Leaving his enterprise with pain and cry,
And there him hideth, and not appeareth.
Wyat. The Lover for Shame-fastness, &c.

Bid them farewell Cordelia, though vnkinde
Thou loosest here, a better where to find.
Shakespeare. K. Lear, Act i. sc. 1.

She sawe bestrowed all with rich array
Of pearles and precious stones of great assay,
And all the grauell mixt with golden oure;
Whereat she wondred much, but would not stay.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 4.

At length he spide, whereas that wofull squire,
Whom he had reskewed from captiuance
Of his strong foe, lay tombled in the mire,
Vnable to arise, or foot or hand to stire.—Id. Ib. c 7.

For neuer man he suffred by that same
Rich strond to trauell, whereas he did wonne,
But that he must do battell with the sea-nymphes sonne.
Id. Ib. c. 4.

Such famous men, such worthies of the earth,
As Joue will haue aduaunced to the skie,
And there made gods, though borne of mortal berth,
For their high merits and great dignity,
Are wont, before they may to heauen flie,
But then a read, thou gentle child, wherefore
Betwixt you two began this strife and sterne vp-rore.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 2.

And stouping downe to her in drery swound,
Vpreard her from the ground, whereon she lay,
And in his tender armes her forced vp to stay.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 3.

But, when his foe he still so eager saw,
Vnto his heeles himselfe he did betake,
Hoping vnto some refuge to with-draw:
Ne would the prince him euer foote forsake,
Where-so he went, but after him did make.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 6.

Whom when my knight did see so lowly faire,
He inly gan her louer to enuy,
And wish that he part of his spoyle might share,
Where-to when as my presence he did spy
To be a let he bade me by and by
For to alight. Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 2.

With that great chaine, wherewith not long ygo
He bound that pitious lady prisoner, now releast,
Himselfe she bound, more worthy to be so.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 12.

——— I'le turn my drunkards,
Such as are understanding in their draughts,
And dispute learnedly the whyes and wherefores,
To grass immediately, Ile keep all fools.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act iii.

WHE'RRIT. A wherret on the ear, ictus pugni, a blow of the fist. "I believe," says Skinner, "from the sound." Perhaps from Worry or werry.

To attack, to assault; to attack unceasingly; to harass, to tease.

A teaser, is a name now well known among boxers, and seems to be given to a blow, calculated to perplex and try the temper of the receiver.

Lap. How sweetly does this fellow take his dowst?
Stoops like a cammel, that heroick beast,
At a great load of nutmegs; and how meekly
This other fellow here receives his whirrit.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Nice Valour, Act iv.

Then there's your souce, your wherit, & your dowst.
Id. Ib. Act iii. sc. 1.

Find some other road; can't you; and dont keep wherreting me with your nonsense.
Bickerstaff. Love in a Village, Act i. sc. 5.

WHE'RRY. From—to ferry, or to hurry; or from the Lat. Vehere, or the A.S. Far-an, to go. (See Skinner.) It seems to be very plainly from the A. S. verb Weri-an, werig-an, lacessere, incitare, to werry; to urge on, (sc.) at all speed. It is the name of—

A light boat, adapted for speed or swiftness; for the quick impulse of the oars.

For hourely the riuer ranne more violently then other against vs, and the barge, wheries, and shippes boate of Captaine Gifford and Captaine Calfield, had spent all their prouisions.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 645.

I tooke a resolution with my selfe, hauing dismissed Menatonon vpon a ransome agreed for, and sent his sonne into the pinnesse to Roanoak, to enter presently so farre into the riuer with two double whirries, and fortie persons one or other, as I could haue victuall to cary vs.—Id. Ib. p. 257.

What was his club he made his boat,
And in his oaken club doth float,
As safe as in a wherry.—Drayton. Nymphidia.

The boat was about the bigness of a Gravesend wherry, and was used purposely to carry passengers, having a small covering over head to keep them dry when it rained.
Dampier. Voyages an. 1688.

While Thales waits the wherry that contains
Of dissipated wealth the small remains,
On Thames' banks, in silent thought we stood
Where Greenwich smiles upon the silver flood.
Johnson. London.

WHERVE. There is no corresponding word in the original, nor has the word occurred elsewhere: but it is probably formed from the A. S. Hweorf-an, volvere.

So fine, so round, and even a thread she [the spider] spinnes, hanging thereunto herselfe, and using the weight of her own bodie instead of a wherve; that a wonder it is to see.—Holland. Plinie, b. xi. c. 24.

WHET, v. WHET, n. WHE'TTER. } Dut. Wetten; Ger. Wetzen; A. S. Hwettan, acuere, incitare, instigare;—

To sharpen; to give sharpness or acuteness, an acute or sharp edge; to edge or egg; to stimulate, to incite.

And oft time (I finde) that they mette
With bloody strokes, and with wordes great,
Assaying how hir speares were whette.
Chaucer. Troil. & Cres. b. v.

A whetstone is no keruing instrument
But yet it maketh sharpe keruing tolis.—Id. Ib. b. i.

Come let's to dinner, and when I am well whetted with wine, have at her.
Beaum. & Fletch. Wit without Money, Act ii.

Empe. No more, I have too much on't,
So much by you, you whetters of my follies,
Ye angel formers of my sins, but devils;
Where is your cunning now?
Id. Valentinian, Act iv. sc. 1.

For if euery housholde haue one or two to cracke nuts, grinde shels, whet copper, and sometimes other stones for hatchets, they have ynough.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 275.

The rashenesse of their tongues is turned to swordes, which (beleue me) Philotas hath whetted to my destructiō.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 162.

——— I'ad rather, I,
Be like a whet-stone, that an edge can put
On steele, though't selfe be dull, and cannot cut.
B. Jonson. Horace. Art of Poetrie.

One who at sight of supper open'd wide
His jaws before, and whetted grinders try'd;
Now only yawns and waits to be supply'd.
Dryden. Juvenal, Sat. 10.

An iv'ry table is a certain whet
You would not think how heartily he'll eat.—Id. Sat. 11.

Diligence is to the understanding, as the whetstone to the razor; but the will is the hand that must apply one to the other.—South, vol. i. Ser. 6.

The air upon Banstead Downs is nothing to it for a whetter; yet I never see it, but the spirit of famine appears to me.—Congreve. Love for Love, Act i.

For want of this capacity, the world is filled with whetters, tiplers, cutters, sippers, and all the numerous train of those, who for want of thinking, are forced to be ever exercising their feeling, or taste.—Spectator, No. 222.

The ends of them [teeth], both in the under and upper jaw, are rubbed with a kind of whetstone, by a very troublesome and painful operation, till they are perfectly even and flat, so that they cannot lose less then half a line in their length.—Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 12.

WHE'THER. Goth. Hwathar; A. S. Hwæther, hwæthere; Dut. Weder; Ger. Weder.

Thither, is, that there, (that, the place; that specific place;) and Whither is, what or which place; what, which end, or object moved to or from:—Whether, the same word (with the mere difference of a letter), implies a noun—

Whether daughter, whether side,—which daughter, which side, of the daughters there, the side there, before him, in the sight or view, in the mind or thought; what or which of two or several.

See WHO.

Tho this sell mon this herde, to sorwe ys herte drowe.
He nuste to wether dogter beter truste tho,
And notheles he wende ageyn to the other with muche wo.
R. Gloucester, p. 33.

Wether of hem betere were, strong it was to wyte.
Id. p. 217.

& whedir thei wild to werre, or thei wild nouht.
R. Brunne, p. 135.

And wether hii be saf. othr nat saf the sothe wot nat clergie.
Piers Plouhman, p. 240.

For if ye loven him that loven you, what meede shulen ye have? whether pupplicans don not this?—Wiclif. Matt. c. 5.

Thei wondriden & seiden, fro whennes this widom and vertues comen to this? Whether is not this the sone of a carpenter? Wher his modir be not seid Marie.
Wiclif. Matt. c. 13.

If ony man wole do his wille he schal knowe of the techinge: wher it be of God or I speke of mysilf.
Id. Jon, c. 7.

For she that doth me all this wo endure
Ne receeth never, whether I sinke or frete.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2400.

Now chese yourselven whether, that you liketh, [of these thinges twey.]—Id. Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 6810.

Wher me was wo, it is no question
I cannot make of it description.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10,893.

——— And so wrought,
That whan the father him bethought,
And sighe to whether side it drough,
Anone he wiste well enough,
Howe Perse after his false tonge
Hath so thenvious belles ronge,
That he hath slayne his owne brother.
Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

Whil'st thus the case in doubtfull balance hong,
Vnsure to whether side it would incline,
And all mens eyes and hearts which there among
Stood gasing, filled were with ruefull tine,
And secret feare to see their fatall fine.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 3.

When who-so list to fight, may fight his fill:
Till then your challenges yee may prolong;
And then it shall be tried if ye will,
Whether shall haue the hag, or hold the lady still.
Id. Ib. c. 4.

WHEY. WHE'YEY. WHE'YISH. } See WHIG. A. S. Hwæg; Dut. Wey. Martinius (says Junius) suspects from the Lat. Uvidus, as whey is the watery portion of milk. Perhaps from the Ger. Weich, Dut. Weyck, maceratus. It is applied to—

The watery portion of milk; to any thing pale, (as if steeped or sodden,) as a whey face.

——— How he shook the king,
Made his soul melt within him; and his blood
Run into whay! it stood upon his brow,
Like a cold winter dew.
Beaum. & Fletch. Philaster, Act i.

If it be fresh and sweet butter; but say it be sour and wheyish?—B. Jonson. Staple of News, Act ii. sc. 1.

He told his confessor with a tender conscience and great sorrow of heart that he had broken the holy fast of Lent, by chance indeed, but yet with some little pleasure; for when he was pressing of a new cheese, some of the wey started from the vessel and leap'd into his mouth, and so went into his stomach.—Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. ii. c. 3.

Those medicines being opening and piercing, fortify the operation of the liver, in sending down the wheyey part of the blood to the reines.—Bacon. Naturall Historie.

Nor last forget thy faithful dogs: but feed
With fat'ning whey the mastiffs gen'rous breed;
And Spartan race: who for the fold's relief
Will prosecute with cries the nightly thief.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iii.

The must, of pallid hue, declares the soil
Devoid of spirit; wretched he that quaffs
Such wheyish liquors; oft with colic pangs,
With pungent colic pangs distress'd he'll roar,
And toss, and turn, and curse th' unwholesome draught.
J. Philips. Cider, b. i.

——— Immediate now
Her spreading hands bear down the gathering curd,
Which hard and harder grows; till, clear and thin,
The green whey rises separate.—Dodsley. Agriculture, c. 3.

WHICH. WHILK. } Goth. Hwiteiks; A. S. Hwilc; Ger. Welch, welche; Dut. Welck, welche; Sw. Hwilken.

Which is composed of who-each. See WHO.

——— Me [men] nuste [wist not,]
Wuch was on, ne wuch was other, ne to wam mē mygte truste.—R. Gloucester, p. 120.

He gaf londes bityme, of whilk ther successoure,
Hold git the seisyne, with full grete honoure.
R. Brunne, p. 72.

Whan thei wer inowe, on whilk thei mot afie.—Id. p. 224.

Meeknesse and mylde speche. and men of on wil
The wiche wil love ledeth to oure Lordes place.
Piers Plouhman, p. 257.

And leele men loven as law techeth. and love thr of aryseth,
The wich is hefd of charite. and hele of mannes soule.
Id. p. 292.

As ghe witen whiche we weren among ghou for ghou.
Wiclif. 1 Tess. c. 1.

As ye knowe after what manner we behaued ourselves amonge you, for youre sakes.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

For he biheelde himsilff, and went awei and anoon he forgat which he was.—Wiclif. James, c. 1.

For as sone as he hath loked on himself, he goeth his way and forgetteth immediately what his fashion was [what maner of one hee was, 1583].—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And now I am not in the world, and these ben in the world, and I am come to the hooli fadir, kepe hem in thi name whiche thou ghauest to me, that thei be oon as we ben.
Wiclif. Jon, c. 17.

And nowe am I no more in the worlde, but they are in the world, and I come to thee. Wholy father kepe in thyne owne name, them whiche thou haste geuen me, that they maye be one, as we are.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

The Lord of that servaunt schal come in the dai whiche he hopith not and in the our that he knowith not.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 24.

This Alein al forgat both mele and corn.
Al was out of his mind his husbandrie;
What, whilke way is he gon? he gan to crie.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4076.

But herkeneth me, and stenteth noise a lite
Whiche a miracle ther befell anon.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2677.

I shall him tellen whiche a gret honour
It is. Id. The Freres Prologue, v. 6875.

I elepe him so by Seint Denis of France
To han the more cause of acquaintance
Of you, which I have loved specially
Aboven alle women sikerly.
Id. The Shipmannes Tale, v. 13,083

In London was a preest, an annuellere,
That therein dwelled hadde many a yere,
Which was so plesant and so servisable.
Id. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,482.

He shall draw into remembrance
The fortunes of the worldes chance,
The whiche no man in his persone
Male knowe, but the God alone.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

I sende vnto mine owne lorde
Whiche of Lancaster is Henry named. Id. Ib.

For all reason wolde this,
That vnto him, whiche the head is,
The membres buxom shall bowe,
And he shulde eke their trouth alowe
With all his herte. Id. Ib.

To make peace betwene kynges
After the lawe of charitee,
Whiche is the propre dewtee
Belonged vnto the priesthood. Id. Ib.

When they had gone thorow out the yle vnto the city of Paphos, they foūd a certayne sorcerer, a false prophete whiche was a Jewe, named Bariesu, whiche was with the ruler of the countrey, one Sergius Paulus, a prudent man.
Bible, 1551. Acts, c. 13.

And foorth they passe with pleasure forward led,
Joying to heare the birdes sweete harmony,
Which, therein shrouded from the tempest dred,
Seem'd in their song to scorne the cruell sky.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 1.

In the first and best prayer children are taught, they learn to misuse us [who and which]: our father which art in heaven, should be, our father who art in heaven: and even a convocation after long debates refused to consent to an alteration of it.—Spectator, No. 78.

WHIFF, n. WHIFF, v. WHI'FFLE, n. WHI'FFLE, v. WHI'FFLER. WHI'FFLING, n. } A. S. Wæfl-an, to speak foolishly; wæfl-ere, an idle-headed fellow; perhaps formed upon the verb to waff or wave. A whiff,—

A waff or waft; as much air as is produced by waving (e.g. a fan); a slight blast, a puff. To whiff,—

To breathe, exhale, expire, emit—a slight blast or puff. To whiffle,—

To move; to stir with a slight blast; to puff or blow about or away; to change or turn, to veer with every wind; to blow a slight wind-instrument, as a fife, a pipe. A whiffler,—

A blower, a piper; one who changes with every wind, who makes frequent noise to little purpose.

The smoke took him [Empedocles], and whift him up into the moon, where he lives yet waving up and down like a feather, all soot and embers, coming out of that coal-pit.
B. Jonson. News from the New World.

Doe we not laugh at the groome that is proud of his masters horse, or some vaine whiffler, that is proud of a borrowed chaine?—Bp. Hall. The Righteous Mammon.

If there do but an earthly prince come over, what pressing there is to see him! so as there is need of ushers or whifflers, to stave off the multitude.—Id. Ser. on James, iv. 8.

Mill. 'Tis a phrase a-la-mode, sir, and is us'd in conversation now, as a whiff of tobacco was formerly, in the midst of a discourse, for a thinking while.
Dryden. Sir Martin Mar-All, Act iii.

I lighted it at a little wax candle that stood before them; and, after having thrown in two or three whiffs among them, sat down and made one of the company.
Spectator, No. 568.

But if the winds also whiffle about to the south, with fair flattering weather, it [a storm] never fails.
Dampier. Discourse of Winds, c. 6.

Two days before this storm began, the wind whiffled about to the south, and back again to the east, and blew very faintly.—Id. Ib.

Our fine young ladies readily fall in with the direction of the graver sort, to retain in their service by some small encouragement as great a number as they can of supernumerary and insignificant fellows, which they use like whifflers, and commonly call "shoeing horns."
Spectator, No. 536.

He will not defile his fair intentions by sordid means of compassing them; such as are illusive simulations and subdolous artifices, treacherous collusions, sly insinuations and sycophantic detractions, versatile whifflings and dodgings, &c.—Barrow, vol. i. Ser. 5.

——— Ev'ry twentieth pace
Conducts th' unguarded nose to such a whiff
Of stale-debauch, forth issuing from the styes,
That law has licenc'd, as makes temp'rance reel.
Cowper. Task, b. iv.

For, just as int'rest whiffled on his mind,
He Anatolians left, or Thracians join'd;
Caught ev'ry breeze, and sail'd with ev'ry tide;
But still was mindful of the lee-ward side.
Harte. Eulogius.

WHIG, or Wig. } See Whey. Applied to whey; to any thing made with whey. In Nottinghamshire—
A kind of bun or light cake is so called.

Some were dronke in lent of wigges & cracknels, & yet ye would not I truste yᵗ lent were for done.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 198.

Hauing been longe accustomed to yᵉ olde soure whig of Moses law, thei could not awai with the must of euangelicall charitee.—Udal. Luke, c. 6.

Now by good luck, I know not how,
There thither came a strange stray cow,
And we had milk and water:
To nine good stomachs, with our wigg,
At last we got a roasting pigg,
This dyet was our bounds.
A Poem attributed to Browne.

WHIG. Whi'ggish. Whi'ggishly. Whi'ggism. } See the quotation from Burnet. Dr. Jamieson mentions a MS. poem called, The Whiggamer Road into Edinburghe, Nov. 1628. He also cites at length from Burnet; and as follows from Woodrow:—
"The poor honest people, who were in raillery called whiggs, from a kind of milk they were forced to drink in their wandrings and straits, became name-fathers to all who espoused the interest of liberty and property through Britain and Ireland." Hist. vol. i. p. 263.

From a word whiggam, used in driving their horses, all that drove were called the whiggamors, and shorter the whiggs.—Burnet. Own Times, b. i.

This was called the whiggamors' inroad; and ever after that, all that opposed the court came in contempt to be called whiggs: and from Scotland the word was brought into England, where it is now one of our unhappy terms of distinction.—Id. Ib.

A noise was made of arbitrary sway;
But in revenge, you whiggs, have found a way,
An arbitrary duty now to pay.
Dryden. Duke of Guise, Prol.

Not whiggs, nor tories they; nor this, nor that;
Not birds, nor beasts; but just a kind of bat:
A twilight animal; true to neither cause,
With tory wings, but whiggish teeth and claws.
Dryden. Duke of Guise, Prol.

[Thomas Cox] was a physician in the parliament army, afterwards fellow of the Coll. of Physicians, and president thereof, but being whiggishly inclined, was deprived of that office in Oct. 1683.—Wood. Fasti Oxon. vol. ii.

In 1685 fell out a controversy between him [Fowler] and some of his parishioners, because, as they said, he was guilty of whiggism, that he admitted to the communion excommunicated persons before they were absolv'd, &c.
Id. Athenæ Oxon. vol. ii.

The author was known indeed to have been warmly, strenuously, and affectionately, against all allurements of ambition, and all possibility of alienation from pride or personal pique, or peevish jealousy attached to the whig party.
Burke. Appeal from the New to the Old Whigs, (1791.)

WHILE, n. While, v. While, ad. Whiles. Whilst. } See Awhile. A. S. Hwile; Dut. Wile. See Wheel. While is applied generally to time; strictly, it is—
A turn, or time of taking a turn.
Whil-es,—time, that or which.
Whilst,—a corruption of whiles. To while,—
To pass away, or spend time, in doing something merely to pass it away; without languor or wearisomeness.

A batayle ther was while in the contre of Rome.
R. Gloucester, p. 9.

Tho was Traheu al a lord, the wyle yt wolde laste.
Id. p. 88.

To London he went, a while to mak soioure.
R. Brunne, p. 244.

To while our men were out, for to mak the pes,
Men of armes stout the kyng to Gascoyn ches.—Id. p. 271.

For whilom thouh wrote him tille, & cald him in thi brefe,
Thi kynde, faythfulle & leale of Gascoyn noble duke,
Therto thou set thi seale. Id. p. 259.

Wat sholde we women. worche the whiles.
Piers Ploughmân, p. 128.

Helpeth me now, as I did you whilere;
Put in your hond, and loketh what is there.
Chaucer. Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,797.

Fortune stant no while still.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And he dispeired for the while
Disguised in a poore wede
To Rome goth. Id. Ib. b. ii.

——— So maie we knowe
This ymage is nighe ouerthrowe,
By whiche this worlde was signified,
That whilom was so magnified,
And nowe is olde, and feble, and vile.—Id. Ib. Prol.

In this whyle and season that Vter was thus gone agayne Pascencius, a Saxon or other straūger, fenyng hym a Bryton and a cūnynge man in physike, by the intycement of Pascencius came vnto Aurey.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 95.

That Paris now, with his unmanly sort
With mitred hats, with ointed bush and beard,
His rape enjoy'th: whiles to thy temple we
Our offrings bring, and follow rumors vain.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

——— Love may be
Brought forth thus little, live a while alone,
But ne'er will prosper, if he have not one
Sent after him to play with.
B. Jonson. Love's Welcome at Bolsover.

Come, chicken, let's go seek some place of strength
(The countrey's full of scouts) to rest a while in.
Beaum. & Fletch. Bonduca, Act iv. sc. 2.

Eustace, be happy, whiles poor Charles is patient.
Id. The Elder Brother, Act iii. sc. 3.

Whilst with delight of that he wisely spake,
Those guests beguiled, did beguile their eyes
Of kindly sleepe, that did them ouertake.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

Isa. Let it suffice you have it, it was never mine, whilest good men wanted it.
Beaum. & Fletch. Wit without Money, Act iv.

But thou art gone, and these are gone with thee,
And all are dead but thy dear memorie;
That shall out-live thee, and shall ever spring
Whilest there are pipes, or jolly shepherds sing.
Id. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act i.

——— You did kneel to me,
Whilest I stood stubborn and regardless by,
And like a god incensed, gave no ear
To all your prayers.—Id. A King & No King, Act iii.

Fr. Well make your mirth, the whilst I bear my misery:
Honest minds would have better thoughts.
Id. The Night Walker, Act i.

But his sad fathers armes with bloud defild,
An heauy load himselfe did lightly reare,
And turning to that place, in which whyle-are
He left his lofty steed with golden sell,
And goodly gorgeous barbes him found not theare.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

Therein three sisters dwelt of sundry sort,
The children of one sire by mothers three;
Who dying whylome did diuide this fort
To them by equall shares in equall fee.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

Seb. This money I do give ye, because of whilom
You have been thought my son, and by my self too,
And some things done like me.
Beaum. & Fletch. Monsieur Thomas, Act iv. sc. 2.

They are immediately sated with possession, and must necessarily fly to new acquisitions of beauty to pass away the whiling moments and intervals of life: for with them every hour is heavy that is not joyful.—Spectator, No. 522.

It is wonderful that men guilty this way could never have observed, that the whiling time, the gathering together, and waiting a little before dinner, is the most awkwardly passed away of any part in the four-and-twenty hours.
Id. No. 448.

WHIM, n. & v. Whi'mling, n. Whi'msey. Whi'msied. Whi'msical. Whi'msically. Whi'msicalness. } Dut. Wemelen, circumagere, circumversare, frequenter et leviter movere; to drive or turn about, to move or change frequently, lightly.
A light turn of fancy; a fancy, a wilful thought of the moment; a caprice, a freak.

With a whim wham
Knit with a trim tram
Uppon her brayne panne.—Skelton. Elinour Rumming.

Caca. Be cozen'd by a thing of clouts, a she moth,
That every silk man's shop breeds; to be cheated,
And of a thousand duckets by a whim wham?
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife & have a Wife, Act v.

Viola. I pray forgive me, and let me have no wages this first quarter.
Moth. Go, whimling, and fetch two or three grating loaves out of the kitching, to make ginger-bread of.
Id. The Coxcomb, Act iv.

But I forget my business, I thank ye Monsieurs,
I have a thousand whimseys in my brain now.
Id. Women Pleased, Act iii. sc. 2.

'Tis such a trouble to be married too,
And have a thousand things of great importance,
Jewels and plates, and fooleries molest me,
To have a man's brains whimsied with his wealth,
Before I walk'd contentedly.
Id. Rule a Wife & have a Wife, Act ii.

Make it a point, dear Marquis! or a pique.
Once for a whim, persuade yourself to pay
A debt to reason, like a debt at play.
Pope. Essay on Man, Ep. 2.

Now Petulant? all's over, all's well! gad, my head begins to whim it about—why dost thou not speak? thou art both as drunk and as mute as a fish.
Congreve. Way of the World, Act iv.

Less mad the wildest whimsy we can frame,
Than ev'n that passion, if it has no aim;
For though such motives Folly you may call,
The folly's greater to have none at all.
Pope. Moral Essay, Ep. 3.

A fellow that lives in a windmill has not a more whimsical dwelling than the heart of a man that is lodg'd in a woman.—Congreve. Way of the World, Act ii.

I am not for adding to the beautiful edifices of nature, nor for raising any whimsical superstructure upon her plans.
Spectator, No. 98.

I thought it was whimsically said of a gentleman, that if Varilas had wit, it would be the best wit in the world.
Id. No. 100.

From this and their [penguins'] white bellies, Sir John Narborough has whimsically likened them to little children standing up in white aprons.—Anson. Voyages, b. i. c. 6.

Every one values Mr. Pope, but every one for a different reason; one for his grave behaviour; another for his whimsicalness, &c.—Pope. Letter to M. Blount.

Let every man enjoy his whim;
What's he to me, or I to him?—Churchill. Ghost, b. iv.

WHIMP, v. Whi'mper, v. Whi'mpering, n. } Latimer writes—Whimpe. The Ger. Wimmern (Wachter says) is Jammern (prefixo W); in A. S. Geomrian (gemere), to moan, sigh or sob.
To cry fretfully, peevishly (without clamour.)

S. Paul said, there shall be intractabiles, that will whimpe and whine, there shall be also Vaniloqui, vaine speakers. For the which S. Paul appointeth the preacher to stop their mouth, and it is a preacher's office to be a mouth-stopper.
Latimer. Ser. before K. Edw. VI. 22d March.

We be not in spirit mery therewith, but liue in puling and whimpering & heuines of hert, to ye discõfort of our self & thẽ yt are about vs.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 90.

Cock. What was there in thy purse, thou keep'st such a whimpering? was the lease of thy house in it?
B. Jonson. The Gipsies Metamorphosed.

If they were sensible of their sins indeed, they would use the grace of God to overcome them, till at last they arriv'd at victory; and not still continue in a state of whimpering and complaining.—Glanvill, Ess. 7.

A laughing, toying, wheedling, whimp'ring she,
Shall make him amble on a gossip's message,
And take the distaff with a hand as penitent
As e'er did Hercules. Rowe. Jane Shore, Act i.

WHIN. The thorny broom; usually derived from the Welsh Chwynn.

With whins or with furzes, thy hovell renew,
For turf and for sedge, for to bake and to brew.
Tusser. Husbandry. June.

WHINE, v. / WHINE, n. / WHI'NER. / WHI'NING, n. Goth. Cainon; A. S. Wanian; Dut. Weenen, plorare, deflere, vagire, to moan or bemoan. As applied, it is—

To drawl out the tone, the murmur of lamentation or complaint; to murmur out prolonged notes of moaning.

For as an hors, I coude bite and whine.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5969.

And scrapid the dorr welplich. and wynyd wyth his mowith
After a doggis lyden, as ner as he couith.
Id. Pardonere & Tapstere.

And yet moreouer did they murmour and whine against others, yt were willing to ẽbrace saluacion whan it was offered.—Udal. Luke, c. 7.

And women be full of whining for the most part, and ill to entreat, and oft times when they haue chidden their husbandes for a light matter, it commeth at last vnto great disturbance.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. ii. c. 5.

2 Sold. Here will be trim piping anon & whining,
Like so many pigs in a storm,
When they hear the news once.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Loyal Subject, Act i. sc. 3.

This wimpled, whyning, purblinde waiward boy,
This signior Junios gyant dwarfe, don Cupid.
Shakespeare. Loue's Labour Lost, Act iii. sc. 1.

That was a speciall grace that she had, to make joy and pleasure, and the same without any mixture at all of curstnesse, or frowardnesse, and nothing giving to whining or complaint.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 439.

By a few demure looks, and affected whines, set off with some odd, devotional postures and grimaces, and such other little arts of dissimulatiõn, cunning men will do wonders, and commence presently heroes for sanctity, self-denial, and sincerity.—South, vol. ii. Ser. 11.

I like a dog, could bite, as well as whine,
And first complain'd, whene'er the guilt was mine.
Pope. Wife of Bath's Prologue.

These pageant forms are whining Obed's scorn,
Who seeks religion at Geneva born.
Id. Donne Versified, Sat. 3.

Since Mr. Cant's time, it [Cant] has been understood in a larger sense, and signifies all sudden exclamations, whinings, unusual tones, and, in fine, all praying and preaching, like the unlearned of the Presbyterians.
Spectator, No. 147.

The eloquence dictated by an unfeeling heart, mistakes bombast for sublimity, rant for strong feelings, the cant and whine of a mendicant for the pathetic.
Cogan. On the Passions, pt. ii. c. 3.

The sect of whiners or grumblers (for it deserves to be stigmatized by no very honourable name), furnishes a very proper subject for ridicule.
Knox. Winter Evenings, Even. 14.

WHI'NIARD;—Ensis, Gladius. Various etymologies are proposed for this word. See Skinner, and Minshew.

Whinger (Dr. Jamieson), is a sort of hanger.

(But Ralpho) looking about, beheld pernicion
Approaching knight from fell musician;
He snatch'd his whinyard up. that fled
When he was falling off his steed.—Hudibras, pt. i. c. 2.

His pistol next he cock'd anew,
And out his nut-brown whinyard drew.—Id. c. 3.

He loos'd [al. lost] his whinyard. and the rein,
But laying fast hold on the mane
Preserv'd his seat. Id. Ib.

And whingers, now in friendship bare
The social meal to part and share,
Had found a bloody sheath
'Twixt truce and war; such sudden change
Was not unfrequent, nor held strange.
Scott. Lay of the Last Minstrel, c. 5.

WHI'NNY, v. In Lat. Hinnire, to neigh, (qv.)

And tho he were as naked as my nail,
Yet he could whinny then, and wag the tail.
Drayton. The Moon-Calf.

WHIP, v. / WHIP, n. / WHI'PPER. / WHI'PPING, n. / WHI'PSTER. A. S. Weop-an; Dut. Wiepen, to scourge. To scourge, to lash; to throw out, to strike with a lash; to fasten or confine; to enwrap or enfold by any thing (lash, string, thread) thrown or cast; to put or patch, to stitch, hastily together; to do or perform any thing with a mere throw or cast, by a quick active movement.

And whan that I have told thee forth my tale
Of tribulation in mariage,
Of which I am expert in all min age,
(This is to sayn, myself hath ben the whippe,)
Than maiest thou chesen wheder thou wolt sippe
Of thilke tonne, that I shal abroche.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prol. v. 5758.

And therfore, sire, the best rede that I can,
Despeire you not, but haveth in memorie,
Peraventure she may be your purgatorie;
She may be Goddes mene and Goddes whippe.
Id. Marchantes Tale, v. 9546.

And thus myn honde ayene the pricke
I hurte, and haue done many a daie,
And go so forth as I go maie
Full ofte bityngе on my lippe,
And make vnto my selfe a whippe.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

And then wee were constrained to beate and whip on our horses.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 112.

Whose ignorance is perceiued to come of negligence and default, such a one is whipped, and sometimes sent to prison.
Id. Ib. vol. ii. p. 71.

In fight, he sets up his taile, & whips aboute, turning his taile to the enemie, & therin catcheth and receiveth all the strokes of the aspis, and taketh no harme thereby.
Holland. Plinie, b. viii. c. 24.

——— Back to thy punishment
False fugitive, and to thy speed add wings,
Least with a whip of scorpions I pursue
Thy lingring. Milton. Paradise Lost, b. ii.

There was in the time of Gregory Xth, about 1275, as our histories tell us, a brood of mad hereticks, which arose in the church; whom they called Flagellantes, "the whippers;" which went about through France and Germany, lashing themselves to blood.—Bp. Hall. The Women's Vail.

Neither shall you, at any time, ambitiously affecting the title of the untrussers or whippers of the age, suffer the itch of writing to over-run your performance in libel.
B. Jonson. Poetaster, Act iv. sc. 1.

Barnaby Riche also mentions it, "whipsters, that having spent the greatest part of their stocke to be paid two or three for one, upon their return from Rome," &c. Thus too, Shakspeare.
Id. Every Man out of his Humour, Act ii. sc. 1. Note.

Pup. Jade! cart! and clown! O for a lash of whip-cord.
Three knotted cord!—Id. Tale of a Tub, Act ii. sc. 1.

——— Phebus when
He broke his whipstock, and exclaim'd against
The horses of the sun, but whisper'd to
The loudness of his fury.
Beaum. & Fletch. Two Noble Kinsmen, Act i. sc. 2.

Can'st thou give way to dotage? and become
The jest of fools? No! 'tis impossible:
Revenge shall rouze, and with her iron whips
Lash forth this lazy ague from my blood.
Rowe. Ambitious Step-mother, Act iii.

Let rules be fix'd that may our rage contain,
And punish faults with a proportion'd pain;
And do not flay him who deserves alone
A whipping for the fault that he hath done.
Creech. Horace, b. i. Sat. 3.

An' if she had stirr'd out of doors, there were whipsters abroad, i' faith.—Dryden. Sir Martin Mar-All, Act iv.

They must first prove that the body cannot be kept under by a vertuous mind, and that the mind cannot be made vertuous, but by a scourge; and consequently that thongs and whipcord are means of grace and things necessary to salvation.—South, vol. i. Ser. 1.

Lear. Now what say you, Mr. Flame-fire? I shall have the whip-hand of you presently.—Vanburgh. Esop, Act v.

He had two whip-saws on board, which he brought out of England, and four or five men that knew the use of them, for they had been sawyers in Jamaica.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1686.

But while I was musing on the sudden altercation of the sea, our vessel struck on a rock. with such force that the whipstaff threw me down on my back.—Id. Ib. an. 1675.

Among other trifling curiosities which Dr. Solander purchased of them, was a boy's top, shaped exactly like those which children play with in England; and they made signs, that to make it spin it was to be whipped.
Cook. First Voyage, b. ii. c. 2.

WHIR, v. / WHIR, n. To turn or move rapidly; to hurry along, around, away; to whirl, (qv.)

"To whir or whirry away, is to fly off with such a noise as a partridge or moor-cock makes when it springs from the ground," (Jamieson, Supplem.)

——— When the stone, sprung back againe and smote
Earth, like a whirle-winde gathering dust, with whirring fiercely round.—Chapman. Homer. Iliad, b. xiv.

——— In the steedes he blowes
Excessive spirits; and through the Greeks and Ilans they rapt
The whirring chariot. Id. Ib. b. xvii.

This world to me is like a lasting storm,
Whirring me from my friends.—Pericles, Act iv. sc. 1.

Clow. This is one of his magical raptures.
Foro. I do vilifie your censure, you demand if I am guilty, whir says my cloak by a trick of legerdemain, now I am not guilty, I am guarded with innocence, pure silver lace I assure you.
Beaum. & Fletch. Fair Maid of the Inn, Act v.

And so with that, they flapt the door full in my face, and gave me such a whurr here—I thought they had beaten my brains out!—Vanburgh. A Journey to London, Act ii. sc. 1.

See from the brake the whirring pheasant springs
And mounts exulting on triumphant wings.
Pope. Windsor Forest.

The partridge bursts away on whirring wings.
Beattie. The Minstrel, b. i.

WHIRL, v. / WHIRL, n. / WHIRL-POOL. / WHI'RLWIND. A. S. Wærl-an, ymb-wærlan, circumire, circumagere, to go or run round, to drive round; Ger. Wirbel, vortex, werlen, vertere; Dut. Wervel, wervelen, werven; Sw. Hwirf-wel, hwerf-wa; A. S. Hwirflan, hweorflan. The frequentative of hwerflan would be hwirfelan, and this, by dropping the aspirate and the letter f, would become wirl, or wærl-an. See To HURL.

To run round; to drive, or force, or hurry round; to throw or cast round.

These hen wellis withouten watir, and mystis dryuun with whyrlynge wyndis, to whiche the thicke myst of derknessis is reserued.—Wiclif. 2 Pet. c. 2.

But ghe han not come to the fier able to be touchid, and able to come to, and to the whirlewynd and myist and tempest and soun of trumpe, and voice of wordis, which thei that herden excusiden hem, that the word schulde not be maad to hem.—Id. Ebrewis, c. 12.

We had oftentimes, as we sailed along the coast, great ruttes, the water as it were whirling and ouerfalling, as if it were the fall of some great water through a bridge.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 113.

And the vse of the eares coulde not serue for one to receiue counsell & comfort at another, ye wynde whyrled so emongest the leaues, and the shaking of ye bowes made suche a noyse.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 116.

Whirlpooles and fluxions are caused of such other vehement motions, not only in the middest of the sea, but also in creeks & streights.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol ii. p. 21.

But when wee would haue entred into an harbour, the land being very high on euery side, there came such flawes of winde and terrible whirlewinds, that we were not able to beare in.—Id. Ib. vol. i. p. 235.

Merch. 'Tis well, it should be so, I'm glad the girl
Is found so tractable.
Hum. Nay she must whirl
From hence, and you must wink.
Beaum. & Fletch. Knight of the Burning Pestle, Act ii.

Phi. Tis a strange turne.
Lisa. The whirligigs of women.
Id. The Coronation, Act iii.

The hollow hetchell or whirlebones of their hips, about which their hucklebones turne, worke the like effect if they be brought into ashes.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxviii. c. 11.

If the clift or breach bee not great, so that the wind be constrained to turn round, to rol and whirle in his descent, without fire, that is to say lightning, it makes a whirlepuffe or ghust called Typhen.—Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 48.

——— Would to heaven,
In wreak of my misfortunes, I were turn'd
To some fair water-nymph, that, set upon
The deepest whirl-pit of the rav'nous seas,
My adamantine eyes might headlong hale
This iron world to me, and drown it all.
B. Jonson. Every Man out of his Humour, Act ii. sc. 2.

In the French ocean there is discovered a mightie fish called Physeter, (i. a whirelpoole) rising up sloft out of the sea in manner of a columne or pillar, higher than the very sailes of the ship: and then he spouteth and casteth forth a mightie deale of water, as it were out of a conduit, ynough to drowne and sinke a ship.—Holland. Plinie, b. ix. c. 4.

All suddenly a stormy whirlwind blew
Throughout the house, that clapped euery dore:
With which that iron wicket open flew,
As it with mighty leuers had beene tore.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 12.

Whirl'd from a sling, or from an engine thrown,
Amid the foes, so flies a mighty stone.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b.

The rapid motion, and whirl of things here below, interrupts not the inviolable rest and calmness of the noble beings above.—South, vol. ii. Ser. 3.

The cæstus, or whirlbatts, describ'd by Virgil, in his fifth Æneid: and this was the most dangerous of all the rest.
Dryden. Persius, Sat. 4. Note 8.

Round the rough castle shrilly sung
The whirling blast, and wildly flung
On each tall rampart's thundering side
The surges of the tumbling tide.
Warton. Ode on the Grave of K. Arthur.

He might give the earth a twirl as easily as a child twirls round his whirligig to produce the vicissitudes of day and night.—Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. ii. c. 22.

WHISK, v. WHISK, n. WHI'SKER. WHI'SKERED. WHI'SKING, n. WHI'SKY. Dut. Wisch, wischen; Ger. Wischen; Sw. Wisca, tergere, detergere; to wipe away. To wipe away; to brush, to sweep away (by a quick, light motion or action); to move with quick, sweeping, brushing action.

A whisk is applied to a quick, sweeping motion; also to a kind of brush or broom adapted to its use.

A whisker of hair,—so called from its resemblance to a whisk; formed of long slender materials.

A whisky,—a carriage moving quickly, easily moved.

Now God amende that is amis
For I suppose that he is
Of Jeremy the whisking rod
The flayle, the scourge
Of Almighty God.—Skelton. Why come ye not to Court?

If it happen [I say] that when every man makes reckoning that winter is gone, it come upon them againe and whiske with his taile, their buds pinched with cold will loose their vigor, their wounds will cleave and make rifts.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 22.

Page. I think it be my master.
Ser. Who he that walkes in gray, whisking his riding rod?
Beaum. & Fletch. The Noble Gentleman, Act ii.

Therefore he bids thee stand, thou proud man,
Whilst with the whisking of my sword about,
I take thy honors off: this first sad whisk
Takes off thy dukedom, thou art but an earl.
Id. Ib. Act v.

No thought advances, but her eddy brain
Whisks it about, and down it goes again.
Pope. Moral Essays, Ep. 2.

The white of an egg, though in part transparent, yet, being long agitated with a whisk or spoon, loses its transparency.—Boyle.

Achilles kiss'd her, and Patroclus kiss'd her: nay, and old Nestor put aside his gray beard and brush'd her with his whiskers.—Dryden. Troyl. & Cres. Act iv. sc. 2.

——— There whisks his brush,
And perks his ears, and cries and stamps aloud,
With all the prettiness of feign'd alarm,
And anger insignificantly fierce.—Cowper. Task, b. vi.

From his helmet is a guard of mail, which covers his neck, and rises to his lips; over which flow two great whiskers.—Pennant. Journey from Chester, p. 29.

Nor with less waste the whisker'd vermin race,
A countless clan, despoil the lowland cane.
Grainger. The Sugar-Cane, b. ii.

The omnipotent magician, Brown, appears!
Down falls the venerable pile, th' abode
Of our forefathers—a grave whisker'd race,
But tasteless.
Cowper. Task, b. iii.

——— Without there was an air
Of lavish cost; no littleness was there;
But rooms for servants, horses, whiskies, gigs,
And walls for peaches ———
Crabbe. Tales of the Hall, b. viii.

WHI'SPER, v. WHI'SPER, n. WHI'SPERER. WHI'SPERING, n. WHI'SPERINGLY. Dut. Wisperen, wispelen, insusurrare; Ger. Wispeln, (which Wachter derives from the Lat. Sibilare,) Sw. Hwiska, A. S. Hwisprian, submisse loqui, murmurare.

To speak in a low voice. See the quotation from Bacon.

Ne euer rest is in that place,
That it nis filled full of tidings,
Eyther loude or of whisperings.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii.

At these wordes ye people began to whisper amonge themselfe secretely, that the voyce was neyther loude nor distincke, but as it were the sounde of a swarme of bees.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 64.

At all these wordes that he spake before euery man helde their peace; but whan he spake of the whyte hattes, ther wer suche a murmurynge and whysperynge, that it might well be parceyued that it was for that cause.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 357.

The officers then whisperig together, thought the examinacion to be sufficient, & returned therewithall to the king.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 169.

And me, whom late the dart which enemies threw,
Nor press of Argive routs could make amaz'd:
Each whisp'ring wind hath power now to fray,
And every sound to move my doubtful mind.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Who shall praise you, who admire?
Who shall whisper by the fire
As you stand, soft tales? Who bring you
Pretty news, in rhymes who sing you?
B. Jonson. Love freed from Folly.

If I know he will listen to my whispers to another person, and watch my secret talk to others; I am not bound to say what will inform him.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iii. c. 2.

Flattery is midwife unto prince's rage:
And nothing sooner doth help forth a tyrant,
Than that and whisperers' grace, who have the time,
The place, the power, to make all men offenders.
B. Jonson. Sejanus, Act i. sc. 2.

In the speech of man, the whispering, which they call susurrus in Latine, whether it be louder or softer, is an interiour sound: but the speaking out is an exteriour sound: and therefore you can never make a tone, nor sing in whispering.—Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 188.

Lintot, dull rogue! will think your price too much:
"Not sir, if you revise it, and retouch."
All my demurs but double his attacks;
At last he whispers, "Do, and we go snacks."
Pope. Prol. to Satires, v. 66.

The list'ning world each whisper will befriend
That breathes his name, and ev'ry ear attend.
Congreve. To K. William.

Next to these bawlers, is a troublesome creature who comes with the air of your friend and your intimate, and that is your whisperer. There is one of them at a coffee-house which I myself frequent, who observing me to be a man pretty well made for secrets, gets by me, and with a whisper tells me things which all the town knows.
Spectator, No. 148.

The one is uttered vocally, the other whisperingly.
Dalgarno. Deaf & Dumb Man's Tutor.

Bishop Patrick says, its grandeur is as much above all other poetry, as thunder is louder than a whisper.
Young. Parody on Job, Note.

WHIST. WHUST. Hist, hust, hush, are the same word, with a little variation in sound. See HUSH.

To be, or cause to be, to keep, silent; to be still or quiet.

Whist,—a game at cards, at which silence is to be kept.

A whisht is when we bid them hold their peace, that have least cause to speake, and can doe little good with their talking.—Wilson. Arte of Rhetorique, p. 202.

They whisted all, with fixed face attent:
When prince Æneas from the royal seat
Thus gan to speak.—Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

They whusted all and fixt with eyes ententive, &c.
Phaer. Id. Ib.

In silence then y-shrowding him from sight,
For days twice five days he whisted; and refused
To death, by speech, to further any wight.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Æneas now about the walles she leades,
The toune prepared and Cartage welth to shew:
Offring to speke amid her voice she whistes.—Id. Ib. b. iv.

Then whisted she. Id. Ib.

So was the Titaness put downe and whist,
And Jove confirm'd in his imperiall see.
Spenser. Faerie Queene. Of Mutabilitie, c. 7.

Court'sied when you have, and kiss'd—
(The wild waues whist)
Foot it featly.—Shakespeare. Tempest, Act i. sc. 2.

The winds with wonder whist,
Smoothly the waters kist,
Whispering new joys to the wild ocean.
Milton. Ode on the Nativity.

I need not tell you that I would have these sports and pastimes not only merry, but innocent; for which reason I have not mentioned either whist or lanterloo, nor indeed so much as one and thirty.—Spectator, No. 245.

Endeavour to allure him on a vernal evening, when, after a shower, every leaf breathes fragrance and freshness, to saunter with you in the garden, and he pleads an engagement at whist or at the bottle.—Knox. Ess. No. 147.

WHI'STLE, v. WHI'STLE, n. WHI'STLER. The A. S. Hwistlian, whitlan, sibilare. Wistle, fistula, the etymologists agree to be formed from the sound—whis. or hwis, (in whisper, whist, and whistle,) Lye thinks was used by our Northern ancestors to express—lenem susurrum.

A wind-pipe, either natural or artificial; the sound emitted or issued from it; any similar sound.

And whan he rode, men might his bridel here
Gingeling in a whistling wind as clere,
And eke as loude, as doth the chapell belle.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 171.

Lo the birde is begiled with the mery voice of the foulers whistell.—Id. Testament of Loue, b. ii.

Than he began a lytle to whystell softely; and whā they without herde that they came nerer to the wall.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 119.

There was no warlike musicke in the Spanish gallies, but onely their whistles of siluer, which they sounded foorth to their owne contentment.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 169.

Thinke you that our popishe pharisaical prestes excede not thē in wickednesse? yes, theirs wer but benche whistlers, in comparison of ours.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience. To the Reader.

Each trembling leafe, and whistling wind they heare,
As gastly bug their haire on end does reare.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 3.

I must have jovial guests to drive my ploughs,
And whistling boys to bring my harvest home,
Or I shall hear no flails thwack.
B. Jonson. The New Inn. Act i. sc. 1.

At last, to Tryphon shee for helpe did hie:
This Tryphon is the sea-gods surgeon hight
Whom shee besought to find some remedy:
And for his paines, a whistle him behight,
That of a fishes shell was wrought with rare delight.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 11.

——— Let's to th' tavern,
I have some few crowns left yet: my whistle wet once
Ile pipe him such a paven.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act ii.

The Ægyptian villains hung a tumbler's rope upon their prince, and a piper's whistle; because they called their Ptolomy by the name of Apollo, their god of musick.
Bp. Taylor, vol. i. Ser. 24.

The whistler shrill, that whoso heares, doth dy.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 12.

The whistling air among the branches roars,
Which all at once bow to the earth her crops,
The stock once smit.—Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. iv.

The prize was a guinea, to be conferred upon the ablest whistler, that is, on him who could whistle clearest, and go through his tune without laughing, to which at the same time he was provoked by the antic postures of merry-andrew, who was to stand upon the stage, and play his tricks in the eye of the former.—Spectator, No. 179.

This unlucky wag danced to it with such variety of distortions and grimaces, that the countryman could not forbear smiling upon him, and by that means spoiled his whistle, and lost the prize.—Id. Ib.

Jack knew his friend, but hop'd in that disguise
He might escape the most observing eyes,
And whistling, as if unconcern'd and gay;
Curried his nag, and look'd another way.
Cowper. Retirement.

WHIT, or WIT, n. A. S. Awiht, (aught,) wiht, or hwit; Goth. Waiht.

Any thing known, seen, felt; any thing that can be seen or perceived; any thing, however small or minute; a point, a bit, a moment.

For she was fal aslepe a litel wight.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4282.

Dyuers gaue good eare to hym, and some neuer a whytte, suche as hadde rather haue warre than peace.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 357.

He had a sharp fore-sight, and working wit,
That neuer idle was, ne once could rest a whit.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 9.

He was very much the worse man for it, but no whit the worse painter.—Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iv. c. 1.

None of them were decrepit, and though not equal to the young in muscular strength, were not a wit behind them in cheerfulness and vivacity.—Cook. First Voyage, b. ii. c. 9.

WHITE, adj. WHITE, n. WHITE, v. WHI'TELY. WHI'TEN, v. WHI'TENESS. WHI'TISH. } Go. Hweit, Hweit-jan; A. S. Hwit; Dut. Wit; Ger. Weiss; Sw. Hwitt. Wachter suggests from Wissen, videre, because white things are most conspicuous. Tooke,—from the Goth. Hwath-jan, spumare, to foam.

Having the colour of foam or froth; of snow. Applied (met.) to denote—

Pure, unspotted, unstained, unblemished, innocent, harmless. Also—

Colourless, pallid, pale. And—

White, n.—the white (mark) of a target, the white (part) of an egg, distinguished from the yolk, i. e. the yellow.

Whitel,—A. S. Hwitel, a white vest or covering.

Twei grete dragones out of this stones come,
That on was red, the other wyte.—R. Gloucester, p. 131.

Neither thou schalt swere bi thin heed, for thou maist not make oon heer whyt ne black.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 5.

Neither shalt thou swere by thy heade, bycause yᵘ canst not make one whyte heere or blacke.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And his clothis weren maad ful schynyng & whight as snowe which maner whighte clothis a fuller may not make on erthe.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 9.

And hys rayment dyd shyne, and was made very white, euen as snow: so white as no fuller can mak vpon the erth.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Thanne Poul seide to him, thou whitid wal, God smyte thee, thou sittist and demest me bi the lawe, and aghens the lawe thou commaundist me to be smytun.
Wiclif. Dedis, c. 23.

Their berdes weren hore and white.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

The yolke of the egge can not be without the whyte, nor the whyte without the yolke, no more maye the clergy and the lordes be one without another.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 42.

The life of the price is but a white, for all other to shote at, and as a glasse, wherin all the worlde dooeth beholde.
Golden Boke, c. 4.

Woe be to you Scribes and Phariseis, hypocrites, whiche be so farre from true cleapesse, that ye be more lyke vnto whyted graues.—Udal. Matt. c. 23.

It is shewyd that Gallia, whiche now is Fraunce, hadde that name Gallia of whytnesse of people.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 77.

What doth purpurice or ceruse in a christian bodies face, of whom the one counterfaiteth the redde of pretious stones in the lippes, the other whitenesse of face and necke, which is a fire vnto young men.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. i. c. 9.

In the mean time a proclamation was set forth to restrain the covetousness of some private men in England, who converted arable lands and the richest pasture-grounds to the sowing of the herb Isatis, commonly called woad, for the use of diers, with great prejudice to cloathiers, and the country-men which fed on white-meats made of milk.
Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1585.

The immortality of my fame is the white I shoot at.
Massinger. Emperour of the East, Act iv. sc. 4.

In which time, it is to be supposed, your passion hath sufficiently whited your face.
B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act iii. sc. 3.

Then bring'st his vertue asleep, and stay'st the wheel
Both of his reason and judgment, that they move not,
Whit'st over all his vices; and at last
Dost draw a cloud of words before his eyes,
Till he can neither see thee nor himself.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Bloody Brothers, Act iv. sc. 1.

Mir. They will infect my house with cowardize, if they breath longer in it; my roof covers no baffl'd Monsieurs, walk and air yourselves; as I live they stay not here. White-liver'd wretches.—Id. Elder Brother, Act iv. sc. 3.

Elder Lo. Hast thou so much moisture in thy whitleather hide yet, that thou canst cry?—Id. Scornful Lady, Act v.

You shall see the court ladies move like goddesses, as if they tröde air; they will swim you their measures, like whiting-mops, as if their feet were finns, and the hinges of their knees oil'd.
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act ii. sc. 2.

Our blessed Saviour was pleas'd to call it the glory of Solomon, when he was cloth'd in the purest linen of Egypt, whose whiteness though very bright, yet it fell short of the natural whiteness of the lilly.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. iii. c. 4.

And with a clear and whitish inundation,
Restrains the noble spirits from their too quick evasion.
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 5.

And among three, to loue the worst of all,
A whitly wanton, with a veluet brow,
With two pitch balls stucke in her face for eyes.
Shakespeare. Loue's Labour Lost, Act iii. sc. 1.

The walls of churches and rich men's houses are whitened with lime, both within and without.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1684.

He tells what strumpet places sells for life,
What 'squire his lands, what citizen his wife:
And last (which proves him wiser still than all,)
What lady's face is not a whited wall.
Pope. Sat. on Donne, Sat. 4.

Who raise thy temples where the chariot stood
Of fierce Oenomaus, defil'd with blood;
Where once his steeds their savage banquet found,
And human bones yet whiten all the ground.
Id. Statius. Thebaid, b. i.

I own the folly of my enterprize,
The rashness of this action, and must blush
Quite through this veil of night, a whitely shame,
To think I could design to make those free
Who were by nature slaves.
Southerne. Oronooko, Act iv. sc. 2.

Why are whiteness and coldness in snow, and pain not, when it produces the one and the other idea in us; and can do neither, but by the bulk, figure, number, and motion of its solid parts?—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 8.

I have by contusion obtained whitish powders of granates, &c. . . . the subtile powder will comparatively exhibit a very considerable degree of whiteness.
Boyle. Works, vol. i. p. 703.

Such as are strict and formal in their outside behaviour, while their secret thoughts and intentions, like whited sepulchres, are full of all corruption and uncleanness.
Gilpin, vol. iv. Ser. 23.

The plaisterer having, at her entrance, obliterated, by his white-wash, all the smoky memorials which former tenants had left upon the ceiling, and perhaps had drawn the veil of oblivion over politicians, philosophers, and poets.
Rambler, No. 161.

WHI'THER. Goth. Hwath; A. S. Hwæder, wider; Sw. Hwart.

Which or what place; to which or what place. See WHETHER and WHO.

——— Wyder schal y be brogt?—R. Gloucester, p. 34.

Tho ho wende from al hire kyn, & from al thing that heo knewe,
And nuste on erthe whiderward, bute as the wynd hem blew. Id. p. 13.

We see nouther whidere thou may haf sikerer weie.
R. Brunne, p. 257.

Now gos kyng R. his purueianee to make,
How & whider ward he hoped Isaac to take.—Id. p. 164.

And (asked) weder warde he wolde.
Piers Ploughman, p. 105.

And whidir ever he entrith seye ye to the lord of the hous, that the maistre seith where is myn etynge place? where Y schal ete pask with my disciplis.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 14.

And whither soeuer he goeth in; saye ye to the good man of the house: the master asketh where is the gest chäber, where I shall eat the Easter lambe with my dyscyples.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And thus they met of aventure or grace
And he saluteth hire with glad entent,
And axeth of hire whiderward she wente.
Chaucer. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11,815.

For than he leseth his lustie weie,
With dronkeship, and wote not whither
To go, the waies bene so slider.—Gower. Con. A. b. vi.

But whetherward thin happes wende
Shall this planete shewe at ende,
As it hath do to many mo. Id. Ib. b. vii.

Vile miscreant (said he) whither doest thou flie
The shame and death, which will thee soone inuade?
What coward hand shall doe thee next to die,
That art thus foully fled from famous enemie?
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 6.

He thus departeth as God would harmlesse,
And forth of a venture his way he is went,
But whitherward he draw, he conceitlesse
Was, he nat knew to what place he was bent.
Browne. Shepheard's Pipe, Ecl. 1.

WHI'TING. Dut. Wytingh, wittingh.

A fish. Some think so called from its whiteness.

But well I wot he tasteth no such dish
Of rotchets, whitings, or such common fish,
That with his net he drags into his boate.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 1.

Whitings appear in vast shoals in our seas in the spring, keeping at the distance of about half a mile to that of three miles from the shore.—Pennant. British Zoology.

WHI'TLOW;—written by Holland and Wiseman a Whitflaw; is called by Skinner a hybrid word, from A. S. Wite, pain, and Fr. Loup, lupus. Lupus tum ob doloris sævitiam, tum quod vicinas partes depascitur. Lye more rationally composes of white (albus), and low (flamma); and considers it to be so called from the colour of the ulcer, and the burning heat of the pain.

Moreover a liniment thereof applied with vinegre, is good for whitflawes and the callosities of the feet.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxii. c. 25.

They cure whitflawes, risings, and partings of the flesh and skin about the nalle roots.—Id. Ib. b. xxiv. c. 4.

Paronychia, so called by the Greeks, is a small swelling about the nails and ends of the fingers, known among the Latins by the name of Panaritium; by the vulgar people amongst us it is generally called a whitflaw.
Wiseman. Surgery, b. i. c. 11.

WHI'TSTER, i. e. a whitener or bleacher.

Trudge with it in all haste, and carry it among the whitsters in Dotchet mead, and there emptie it in the muddie ditch, close by the Thames side.
Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor, Act iii. sc. 3.

WHITSUNDAY. Ger. Weisse sonntag, dominica alba (Wachter), so called from the white vests in which the candidates for baptism appeared. Skinner speaks to the same effect.

But I schal dwelle at Effesi tilto witsontide, for a greet dore and an open is opened to me, and manye aduersaries.
Wiclif. 1 Corynth. c. 16.

I wil tarye at Ephesus vntyll wytsontyde. For a greate dore and a fruitful is opened vnto me: and there are many aduersaryes.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Haue hatte of floures fresh as May,
Chaperet of roses of Whitsondaie,
For such araie ne costneth but lite.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

There be cathedrall churches into which the countre cometh wᵗ processiö at whytsontyde, & the women folowing the crosse wyth many an vnwomanly songe.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 198.

WHI'TTLE. A.S. Hwitel, or Hwittle. Cultellus, a knife,—Skinner derives from—to whet (or sharpen).

A Sheffield whittle is still a common name.

To whittle,—to whet, to sharpen; to be or become sharp or eager.

——— For their knives care not,
While you haue throats to answer. For my selfe,
There's not a whittle, in th' vnruly campe,
But I do prize it at my loue, before
The reuerendst throat in Athens.
Shakespeare. Timon of Athens, Act v. sc. 2.

Certain Chians there were, who being come to see the city of Sparta, chanced to be well whittled and stark drunk, who after supper went to see also the consistory of the Ephori.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 387.

Now when they are come to that once [drinking wine] & be throughly whittled, then shall ye haue them cast their wanton eyes upon mens wiues.—Id. Plinie, b. xiv. c. 22.

Stand still like a good Christian, and offer his weeson to a butcher's whittle.—Dryden. Duke of Guise, Act iv.

WHIZ, n. WHIZ, v. } Stridere, manifestly (says Skinner) from the sound. See HISS.

To make a noise,—between humming and hissing.

As wrestling winds, out of dispersed whirl
Befight themselves, the west with southern blast,
The gladsome east proud of Aurora's horse;
The woods do whiz. Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

But when the whizzing bells the silent air do cleave,
And that their greatest speed, them vainly do decline;
And the sharp cruel hawks, they at their backs do view,
Themselves for very fear they instantly ineaw.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 20

The sailers softly spread their sailes, nor dare
Shake their strong shrowds within the whizzing aire.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. ii.

Fierce Turnus first to nearer distance drew,
And poiz'd his pointed spear before he threw:
Then, as the winged weapon whiz'd along;
See now, said he, whose arm is better strung.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. x.

But what he especially values himself upon is, that in all the campaigns he has made, he never once duck'd at the whiz of a cannon-ball.—Guardian, No. 92.

By your superior skill—the goat was won!
Have you a jointed pipe, indecent clown!
Whose whizzing straws with harshest discord jarr'd,
As in the streets your wretched rhymes you marr'd.
Beattie. Horace, Past. 3.

WHO. } Goth. Hwas; A.S. Hwa, hua;
WHOM. } Dan. Huo; Dut. Wie; Ger. Wer;
WHOSE. } Sw. Ho, (anciently Huo, hua, hue and ha, Ihre.)

It has been suggested in v. that How is from the A.S. Hiwan, to hew; hiwe, effigies; the form or fashion; the manner or means; the state or condition: How (quo modo) does he look? how does he do? how does he feel?—are questions all applied to the form or fashion, &c. of the person concerning whom the inquiry is made. How, in A.S. is Hu, and also Hwu. Who is Hwa, hwa; and this latter, by a mere change of place in the aspirate, is Wha (a broad, whaw), whoo, who. R. Gloucester and others, following the A.S. form, Hu, hua (without the aspirate), write—Ho, hoso; and Ihre tells us how variously the Sw. Ho was written. The transposition hw into wh is common. See Lye.

Who, then, may be explained to denote,—the form or frame, the model, the image, of some person or thing spoken of; latterly restricted to the person only, to the identification of the individual person.

From Who, are composed, who-se, who-m, by the addition of the term. és, and ém.

What, is,—who-ad, or who-ed, whad, what: the past part. Hiw-ad, hiwed, hwad, hwat, of the verb Hiw-an.

Which, is,—who, each. See SUCH.

When, is,—who (or what) one, (sc.) moment. See THEN.

Where, is,—who (or what) ere, i.e. place. See THERE.

Whither, is,—who (or what) there (the ere), i.e. what the place.

Wiclif writes,—"Ye witen which we were." Bible, 1551,—"Ye know after what maner we behaved." Wiclif,—"He forgat which he was." Bible, 1551,—"He forgetteth what his fashion was." Bible, 1583,—"What maner of one he was."

The Scotch corresponding words are,—

Quha, quhilk, quhen, quhar. The Scotch etymologists have written largely to account for this Q. Some learned persons have suggested that it may be the "ancient Æolic digamma, aspirated in pronunciation." This digamma must be accounted for from a different letter, viz.: B, and its cognates, p, f, v. Q, is the common Gothic or prefix, Ga, Ge, or Ce, united in pronunciation with the vowel following; thus in A.S. we find Wicc-ian, and Cwicc-ian, in Ger. Wecken, and Quicken; and Wick, equivalent to Quick, is, among our northern countrymen, now in common use. Lennep does not attempt to give any reason for the Greek prefixes K and Γ, and Scheide misnames them literas serviles.

Some other pronouns, not hitherto traced to their source, seem to claim an origin in common with How and Who; and it may be prudent to place them in connexion here.

Why (qua re)—A.S. and Sw. Hwy, Dut. Wy, Dan. Hvi.

We (pron.), differing little in form from the Dut. Wie, who, or the Ger. Wie, how, has been applied to denote the person speaking; in grammatical arrangement called the first person plural, and nominative case.

We (oue), with the common term. es, forms, we-es; by contraction, wes; by change of vowel, wos, or wus; and it is, by transposition, variously written,—ows, ous, us.

Our,—Sw. Wa-or, Dan. V-or, is,—we, or ou, with the common term. er.

The pron. You, ye, must be ascribed to the same root. You, in A.S. is Eow; your is eower; and anciently they are respectively written,—owe, ow or ou, ower or oure: they are also written,—gow, ghou, goure, and the g must be accounted for as in the Scottish Quha; it is the common prefix, ge-; thus, ge-ow, gow or ghou, and the g softened, as in numberless other instances, into y. And this y may have been preserved, prefixed, to discriminate the identification of persons spoken to from those speaking.

Your (A.S. Eow-er), is,—you, with the common term. er. It has been noticed under different pronouns (he, it), that they were not anciently confined to gender or number; and it is equally clear, that we, ou, and you, were not restricted to person. Chaucer writes,—It am I; and the expressions,—I am he, we are they, you are they, are current in modern speech.

For he nadde bote a dogter ho mygte ys eir be.
R. Gloucester, p. 89.

And oft wo so coveyteth al, al leseth ywys.—Id. p. 306.

"Brut," he seyde, "thou art now the beste body that ys.
For the noble kyn, of wom thou art, & for thi prowes y wis,
Ych obligi me to the, and my kyndom al so."—Id p. 12.

First lord he [Bruyt] was in Engolond, of wham me speketh yet.—Id. p. 11.

So long he lay on bere, for doute of his lynage,
Tille men the soth mot here, who suld haf the heritage.
R. Brunne, p. 109.

To grete hunger him cam, & mete had he none,
Ne he ne wist to wham, that he mot mak his mone.
Id. p. 93.

The Bisshop of S. Nicholas, whos help is ay redie
To schipmen in alle cas, whan the on him crie.—Id. Ib.

Was [whose] wyf hue were. and what was hure name.
Piers Ploughman, p. 25.

But the justice answeride and seide to hem, whom of the two wolen ye that be delyvered to you? and thei seiden Barabas.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 27.

But by the feeste day he was wont to leeve to hem oon of men boundun whome ever thei axiden.—Id. Mark, c. 15.

At that feast Pylate was wonte to delyuer at their pleasure a prysoner: whome soeuer they woulde desyre.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And a litel kyng was, whos sone was syk at Cafarnaum.
Wiclif. Jon, c. 4.

And there was a certayne rular, whose sonne was sycke at Capernaũ.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And whoever seith a word agens mannes sone: it schal be forgoven to him, but who that seyth a word agens the Hooli Goost, it schal not be forgoven to him neither in this world ne in the tother.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 12.

And whosoeuer speaketh a worde against the sonne of man, it shal be forgeuen him. But whosoeuer speaketh agaynst the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgeuen him, neyther in this worlde neither in the worlde to come.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Who feleth double sorwe and heviuesse
But Palamon? * * * *
Who coude rime in English proprely
His martirdom? Forsoth it am not I.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, vv. 1456, 1461.

For at an hole in shone the mone bright
And by that light she saw them both two
But sikerly she n'iste who was who.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 4294.

Whos is that faire child that stondeth yonder?
I n'ot, quod he.—Id. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5438.

Fraunceis Petrark;—whos rethorike swete
Enlumined all Itaille of poetrie.
Id. The Clerkes Prologue, v. 7908.

So fare trauailed and so faint (I was)
That neither knew I kirke ne saint,
Ne what was what, ne who was who.—Id. Dreame, v. 1306.

And who that otherwise troweth,
Beholde the people of Israel,
For euer while thei didden well,
Fortune was them debonaire:
And when thei didden the contraire,
Fortune was contrariende. Gower. Con. A. Prol.

Therę bene also somme (as men saie)
That folowen Symon at heles,
Whose carte goth vpon wheles
Of couetise and worldes pride,
And holy church goth beside. Id Ib.

And hosé nil not cristned be
Hong hem heighe uppon a tre,
Withouten any dwellyng.
Ritson, vol. i. The King of Tars.

And hosé wolde here maumetes forseke
Cristene men let hem take,
And weore hem lef and dere;
And ho that nolde do by heore red,
Cristen men tak of heore hed,
Fast by the swere [neck]. Id. Ib.

Now whoso seeth not, that his laughter is more madde than the laughter of the mad man, I hold him madder than they both.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 73.

Who-euer doth to temperaunce apply
His stedfast life, and all his actions frame,
Trust me, shall find no greater enemy,
Then stubborne perturbation to the same.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 5.

Her face was vgly, and her mouth distort,
Foming with poyson round about her gils,
In which her cursed tongue (full sharp and short)
Appear'd like Aspis sting, that closely kills,
Or cruelly does wound whom-so she wills.
Id. Ib. b. v. c. 12.

Him shaped thus she deckt in garments gay,
Which Florimell had left behind her late,
That whoso then her sawe, would surely say,
It was herselfe, whom it did imitate,
Or fairer then herselfe, if ought algate
Might fairer be. Id. Ib. b. iii c. 8.

Who first seduc'd them to that foul revolt?
Th' infernal serpent; he it was whose guile,
Stird up with Envy and Revenge, deceiv'd
The mother of mankind.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

In the first and best prayer children are taught they learn to misuse us [who and which]; Our father, which art in heaven, should be, Our father, who art in heaven; and even a convocation, after long debates, refused to consent to an alteration of it. In our general confession we say: Spare thou them, O God, which confess their faults: which ought to be, who confess their faults.—Spectator, No. 78.

WHO'BUB. See HUB-BUB. Probably formed from the reduplication of whoop—whoop-whoop, whoop-oop, whob-ub.

Lan. The windows clattering
And all the chambermaids in such a whobub.
Beaum. & Fletch. Monsieur Thomas, Act iv. sc. 2.

——— Within this hour the whoobub
Will be all o'er the prison.
Id. Two Noble Kinsmen, Act ii. sc. 6.

WHODE, i.e. Hood.

But I maruell that he sent not therwith, a foxes tayle for a scepture, and a whode with two eares.
Bale. English Votaries, fol. 104.

WHOLE, adj. } A.S. Walg, walig, hal, halig; Dut. Heel, ge-heel;
WHOLE, n. } from A.S. Hal-ian, ge-halian, halan, ge-halan,
WHO'LLY. } sanare, sanescere, to heal,
WHO'LESOME. } from the v. hel-an, to
WHO'LESOMELY. } cover; and hence, to close, (sc.) a breach, a solution of continuity; to make, or cause to be or become—entire. Whole, also written hole, is (if not the same word) equivalent to all.
WHO'LESOMENESS.

Total, entire, sane or sound, complete, perfect.

Whole-some, (also written hole-some)—conferring, conducing to, preserving — soundness (health); healthy, salutary, or salubrious. See v. TEAR, and the quotation from Chaucer.

Whole-sale,—distinguished from retail; sale of the gross.

Tooke says,—whole, the same as hale, i.e. covered. As a wound or sore is healed or whole, that is, covered over by the skin.

For in the world n'is dogge for the bowe,
Than can an hurt dere from an hole yknow
Bet than, &c.—Chaucer. The Freres Tale, v. 6954.

They seiden, lord, the knight ne hath not slain
His felaw, here he stondeth hol alive.
Id. The Sompnoures Tale, v 7615.

I had hem holly in min hand.
Id. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5793

——— And Dido she was hote,
Whiche loueth Eneas so hote
Upon the wordes, whiche he saide,
That all hir herte on hym she laide:
And did all wholy, what he wolde.—Gower. Con. A. L. iv.

But I am worse content with you, because I neuer see boke in your handes: ye thincke it great trauaile, to a sycke man to rede, & I repute it a very perillous thyng, for a wholle man, to reste and be idle.—Golden Boke, c. 29.

We eate diuers thynges by morsels, which if we should eat wholl, would choke vs.—Id. Let. 3.

One killeth twenty himselfe alone, another killeth thirty, another wounded with a hundred woundes, and left dead, riseth vp againe, and on the next day made whole and strong, ouercommeth two gyants.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. i. c. 5.

Neither shall he take the laude and praise vnto himselfe, but referre the same entierly and wholiye vnto God.
Udal. Luke, c. 22.

But whereas strangers boast that all their victuals are more pleasant and wholesome; yet we denie that to be a sufficient reason, why they should vpbraid vs in regard of ours: neither do we thinke God to be a debter vnto our deinty mouthes.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 588.

As thou puttest it fourth here, it is seasonable and good and may wholsomly feade the flocke of Jesus Christ.
Bale. Apologie, fol. 42.

Still as his wound did gather and grow hole,
So still his hart woxe sore, and health decayd:
Madnesse to save a part and lose the whole.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 5.

There he remaind with them right well agreed
Till of his wounds he wexed hole and strong.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 1.

At his departing out of Creta, he [Thales] went into Asia, with intent (as it is said) to compare the manner of life and policy of those of Creta (being then very straight and severe) with the superfluities and vanities of Ionia: and thereupon to consider the difference between their two manners and governments, as the physitian doth, who to know the whole and heathfull the better, doth use to compare them with the sick and diseased.—North. Plutarch, p. 35.

Moreover, some quarters and coasts there be, which at some times of the yeare stand sound and healthie enough: but I will count none holesome, but such as be healthfull all the year long.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 5.

—— Back to the thicket slunk
The guiltie serpent, and well might, for Eve
Intent now wholly on her taste, naught else
Regarded, such delight till then, as seemd
In fruit she never tasted.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. ix.

—— Ask him a question,
He blushes like a girl, and answers little,
To the point less, he wears a sword, a good one,
And good cloaths too, he is whole skin'd, has no hurt yet.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife & have a Wife, Act i.

The Spirit of God hath royally and wholesomely tempered the holy scriptures so, as both by the plaine places he might prevent our hunger, and by the obscure he might avoid our nice slothfulnesse.—Bp. Hall. Dissuasive from Popery.

Much might be said to this purpose for the convenience of out-funerals, without respect of those Jewish grounds, who held a kind of impurity in the corpses of the dead: but that, which might be said, is rather out of matter of wholesomnesse, and civill considerations, than out of the grounds of theology.—Id. Ser. preached at Exeter, Aug. 24, 1637.

Upon this question what supported or kept up this chain: would it be a sufficient answer to say, that the first (or lowest) link hung upon a second (or that next above it), the second or rather the first and second together upon the third, and so on ad infinitum? for what holds up the whole?
Wollaston. Religion of Nature, s. 5.

The people distasted, and contemn'd all the doctrines, and instructions that were not deliver'd after their own fashion, though otherwise never so seasonable, and wholesome.—Glanvill, Ess. 7.

The wholesomness of his meat or drink would not give him reason to venture on it: and I would fain know, what it is he could do upon such grounds, as are capable of, no doubt, no objection.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iv. c. 11.

When they came on board they congratulated each other upon their safety, with a joy that no man can feel who has not been exposed to equal danger; and as I had suffered great anxiety at their not returning in the evening of the day on which they set out, I was not wholly without my share.—Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 4.

Not only grain has become somewhat cheaper, but many other things, from which the industrious poor derive an agreeable and wholesome variety of food, have become a great deal cheaper.—Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 8.

In a small sea-port town a little grocer will make forty or fifty per cent. upon a stock of a single hundred pounds, while a considerable wholesale merchant in the same place will scarce make eight or ten per cent. upon a stock of ten thousands.—Id. Ib. c. 10.

WHOOP, n.
WHOOP, v.
WHOO'PING, n.
} See HOOP, and WHOOBUB.

The damzell wakes: then all attonce vp-start,
And round aboute her flocke, like many flies,
Whooping and hallowing on euery part,
As if they would haue rent the brasen skies.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 8.

And that they may be more secure, I'll use
My wonted whoops, and hollows, as I were
A hunting for 'em; which will make them rest
Careless of any noise.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Beggar's Bush, Act v.

Hee makes the maid to answere, whoop, doe me no harme good man: put's him off, slights him, with whoop, doe me no harme good man.
Shakespeare. Winter's Tale, Act iv. sc. 3.

When nought was heard but now and then the howle
Of some vile curre, or whooping of the owle;
Pan, that the day before was farre away
At shepheards sports return'd.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 4.

Let them breathe a-while, and then
Cry whoop, and set them on again.—Hudibras, pt. i. c. 2.

While he trusts me, 'twere so base a part
To fawn and yet betray; I shou'd be hiss'd
And whoop'd in hell for that ingratitude.—Dryden.

WHOOT, v.
WHOO'TING, n.
} See HOOT. In Young it is in some editions written with the w, and in others without.

And satyrs, that in shades and gloomy dimbles dwell,
Run whooting to the hills to clap their ruder hands.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 2.

—— If ever woman
Of the most subtile mould went beyond me,
I would give the boys leave to whoot me out o' th' parish.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife & have a Wife, Act i.

Lean. I am wretched:
Opened, discovered, lost to my wishes.
I shall be whooted at.
Id. The Spanish Curate, Act ii. sc. 4.

Meg. I dare my lord; your whootings and your clamors,
Your private whispers, and your broad fleerings,
Can no more vex my soul, than this base carriage.
Id. Philaster, Act ii.

The world's all title-page; there's no contents;
The world's all face; the man who shows his heart
Is hooted for his nudities, and scorn'd.
Young. Complaint, Night 8.

WHORE, n.
WHORE, v.
WHO'REDOM.
WHO'RISH.
WHO'RISHNESS.
} Dut. Hoere; Ger. Hur; Sw. Hoera; A. S. Hure, meretrix; a whore, as we at this day write it, idly prefixing w to the Saxon word, it being neither in the sound nor in the original, which is derived of hyr-an, conducere, (i.e. to hire,) as the Lat. Meretrix, a merendo, (Somner.) And Tooke considers it to be the past part. of the verb To hire, meaning—
One hired. See HARLOT.

No poynt of nobylyte were it, nor yet of learned worthinesse, to be as ye haue bene of late yeares, styll seruaunte slaues to a most filthye whore, and to her whoredome and whoremongers.—Bale. English Votaries, Pref.

Marke how abhominable whorysbnesse in all these whorish frutes, is auaunced of that whorish Rome churche, to the great blemyshynge of godly marryage.—Id. Ib. fol. 18.

Nether haue they mynde of any thing elles, than vpon whoremonging, and other kyndes of wikednes.
Udal. 2 Peter.

—— Go, keep thy oath:
For chaste, and whore, are words of equal length.
Beaum. & Fletch. Moral Representations.

Evad. Thou kep'st me brave at court, and whor'd me;
Then married me to a young noble gentleman;
And whor'd me still.—Id. The Maid's Tragedy, Act v.

Di. Mark but the king how pale he looks with fear.
Oh! this same whorson conscience, how it jades us!
Id. Philaster, Act i.

At length uneasie justice upwards flew,
And both the sisters to the stars withdrew;
From that old Ætna whoring did begin,
So ven'rably ancient is the sin.—Dryden. Juvenal, Sat. 6.

What revolution can appear so strange,
As such a leacher, such a life to change?
A rank notorious whoremaster, to choose
To thrust his neck into the marriage noose!—Id. Ib.

WHOT, i. e. Hot, (qv.)

When thencounter waxed somewhat to whot, he himselfe brought fresh men to their succor.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 236.

For when the whote sande entred betwene the harneis and the body, there was no meanes to auoyde it awaye.
Brende. Quintus Curtius fol. 61.

WHY. A. S. Hwi, hwyg; Sw. Hwi, cur, quare, quam ob rem.
For what, or which cause or reason; wherefore, See WHO.

—— "Sire, Maximian,
Whi art thou so sore a drad of this Gracian."
R. Gloucester, p. 90.

Ac whi the worlde was a drente holy writ telleth.
Piers Ploukman, p. 179.

Of Marche the first day at the new castelle
Our kyng ther he lay, his purueiance so fel,
To Scotland for to go, to wite why & what wise,
Ther kyng & other mo withsaid him his seruise.
R. Brunne, p. 271.

Of whennes was the baptym of Jon, of hevene, or of men? and thei thoughten withynne hem silf seiynge, if we seyn of hevene he schal seye to us, whi thanne bileeven ye not to him? if we seyn of men: we dredden the puple, for all hadden Jon as a prophete.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 21.

The baptyme of John: whence was it? frō heauen or of men? Then they reasoned amonge them selues sayinge: yf we shall saye from heauen, he wyll saye vnto vs: why dyd ye not then beleue hym? But and yf we shal say of men, then feare we the people. For all men helde John as a prophet.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

It mighte be no bet, and cause why,
Ther was no roumer herberwe in the place.
Chaucer. Reves Tale, v. 4143.

She sawe hir father sorowe and sike,
And wist not the cause why. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

Daughter, said she, what need ye be dismayd,
Or why make ye such monster of your mind?
Of much more vncouth thing I was affrayd.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 2.

—— I'le turn my drunkards,
Such as are understanding in their draughts,
And dispute learnedly the whyes and wherefores,
To grass immediately, I'le keep all fools.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife & have a Wife, Act iii.

WICK, adj.
WICK, n.
} Dut. Wiecke; A. S. Weoce; perhaps from the A. S. verb Wic-an, manere; habitare, vivere; ge-wiccian, cwiccian, to quicken.
That which quickens, catches fire, keeps the light.

Wick, adj. i. e. quick, — very common in the northern parts of England.

And the wicke and the warme fuyr. wol make a fayr flamme
For to murthen men with. that in meerk sytten.
Piers Ploukman, p. 331.

For to a torche oth'r to a taper. the trinitie is likenede
As wexe and wike. and warme fur to gederes
And flaumed fuyr. forth of hem bothe.—Id. p. 330.

But true it is, that when the oyle is spent,
The light goes out, and wike is throwne away.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 16.

The pith whereof [rushes] when the rind is pilled, maketh wicke for watch-candles, and funerall lights to burne by a dead corps whiles it lieth above grounde.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 37.

This was not, as Alcæus said, to paynt a lyon by measure of his claw or paw, but to move and alter heaven, and earth, and all the world, by the conjecture onely of a weik and lamp.—Id. Plutarch, p. 1075.

It once had got a stately wick,
When in its patent candlestick
The revolution put it. Mason. Ode.

WI'CKED.
WI'CKEDLY.
WI'CKEDNESS.
} Our old authors write also wick. Junius says—the A. S. Wicca was an enchanter, veneficus; and that, with the Latin comic poets, veneficus was applied to—persons of infamous character. Skinner, among other suggestions, proposes the A. S. Wiccian, incantare, q. d. bewitched; and Tooke considers wicked to be merely witched (k for ch) and (as witch also) to be the past tense, used as a participle of the A. S. Wiccian. "All atrocious crimes," he observes, "were attributed by our ancestors to enchantment, sorcery, and witchcraft; and in indictments at this day the crime is attributed to the instigations of the devil."
Tempted, allured, enticed, drawn, led,—to vice, to the commission of any vice, sin, or crime; to viciousness, sinfulness, criminality: and, hence,—vicious, sinful, criminal, flagitious, depraved; also—mischievous, pernicious, baneful.

The prouest of the toun, a wik traytour & cherle,
He thouht to do tresoun vnto his lord the erle.
R. Brunne, p. 294.

"Sir," the bisshop said, "of this we pray the,
That no wikked braid of minystres that be,
Tille vs ne non of ours, ne nouht of our lay fe
Be taxed with non of gour's grante it per charitie."
Id., p. 285.

He had what he wild, & was of weirdyng gare,
& had a schipe well filled, ouer the flode to fare.
Ther in was wif & childe, & tresore wikly wonnen.
Id. p. 124.

Grete was the wikkednes, that T. had wrouht.—Id. p. 265.

If any man mad pleynt of clerk for hastiuenesse,
Or if thei were atteynt in other wikkednesse.—Id. p. 129.

Loth [Lot] in hus lyve. thorowe lecherouse drenké
Wickedlich wroghte.—Piers Plouhman, p. 14.

And the scripture was fulfilld that seith, and he is ordeyned with wikkide men.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 15.

And the scripture was fulfylled whiche sayeth: he was counted among y^e wicked.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Thanne his lord clepide him and seide to him, wickide servaunt I forgaf to thee alle the dette, for thou preiedist me; therfore wher it bihoved not also thee to have mercy on thin even servaunt as I hadde mercy on thee?
Wiclif. Matt. c. 18.

Lo the Lord cometh with hise hooli thousyndis to do doom agens alle men, and to repreue alle unfeithful men of alle the werkis of the wickidnesse of them bi whiche thei diden wickidle, and alle the harde wordis that wickide synneris han spoke agens God.—Id. Judas, c. 2.

And many false prophetis schulen ryse and disseyve manye, and for wickidnesse schal be plenteous, the charite of manye schal wexe cold, but he that schal dwelle stable into the ende schal be saaf.—Id. Ib. c. 24.

But certainly no word ne writeth he
Of thilke wicke ensample of Canace,
That loved hire owen brother sinfully.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Prologue, v. 4499.

This bacheler stood beholding
The daunce, and in his hand holding Turke bowes two, full well deuised had he
That one of hem was of a tre
That beareth a fruit of sauour wicke.—Id. Rom. of the R.

If loue be good, from whence cometh my wo
If it be wicke, a wonder thinketh me
Whan euery turment and aduersite
That cometh of him, may to me sauery thinke.
Id. Troilus, b. i.

Thus saith this king, that knewe your wikkednesse.
Id. Marchantes Tale, v. 10,124.

And Progne than began the worde
And seide: O werst of all wikke,
Of conscience whom no prikke
Maie stere, lo what thou hast do.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

Wicke is to striue, and haue the worse.—Id. Ib.

And saide, O derke hypocrisie,
O false imagination
I am thus wickedly disceiued. Id. Ib. b. i.

You see therefore (friendly readers) what an incurious notary we haue, affirming that adultery and whoredome in Island deserueth not the name of sinne and wickednesse.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 587.

——— Well thou didst advise,
Yet not for thy advise or threats I fly
These wicked tents devoted, least the wrauth
Impendent, raging into sudden flame
Distinguish not.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. v.

Those tents thou sawst so pleasant, were the tents
Of wickedness, wherein shall dwell his race
Who slew his brother; studious they appear
Of arts that polish life, inventers rare,
Unmindful of thir Maker, though his spirit
Taught them, but they his gifts acknowledg'd none.
Id. Ib. b. xi.

Self preservation requires all men not only barely to defend themselves against aggressors, but many times also to persecute such, and only such, as are wicked and dangerous.—Woltaston. Religion of Nature, s. 1.

But they, who get wickedly, spend for the most part, foolishly, perhaps wickedly too: and so all that stays by them is their guilt.—Secker, vol. vi. Lect. 26.

Yet, as all this arose from infirmity, not wickedness, they met with an easy pardon; and so will others like them.
Id. vol. i. Ser. 2.

WI'CKER, adj. WI'CKER, n. WI'CKERED. Skinner thinks from Ger. Wickeln, to roll over; because wicker-work is formed by twining or turning one (twig) over another. Perhaps from the A. S. verb Cwiccian, to quicken. See QUICK.

Quick twigs, or twigs quickly grown,—cut soon, or before grown too large.

And even at this day in the British ocean, there be made certaine wicker boats of twigs covered with leather and stitched round about.—Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 56.

Now his sides look like two wicker targets, every way bended.—Beaum. & Fletch. A King and no King, Act v.

Glasses that look like broken promises, tied up with wicker protestations.—Id. Wit without Money, Act iv.

[With] the white [willows] husbandmen make their wicker paniers and baskets, with other such vessels for their use.
Holland Plinie, b. xvi. c. 37.

He looks like a musty bottle new wicker'd, his head's the cork, light, light!
B. Jonson. Every Man out of his Humour, Act i. sc. 1.

Thir ships of light timber wicker'd with oysier between, and cover'd over with leather, serv'd not therefore to transport them far, and thir commodities were fetch't away by foren merchants.—Milton. Hist. of Britaine, b. ii.

The three vows of obedience, wilful poverty and chastity are bound together as with hoops, by their rules:—which hoops are knit as with wickers, with the holy ceremonies of religion.—Wood. Athenæ Oxon. vol. i.

The goblin plies his wicker wings,
And in a trice returns to ask
Another and another task.
Congreve. An Impossible Thing.

To receive the fish when it is caught, and to hold their other provisions, they have baskets of various kinds and dimensions, very neatly made of wicker-work.
Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 10.

WI'CKET. Fr. Guichet, a wicket or hatch of a door. Dut. Wichet, winchet. Menage considers it a dim. of Huis, (a door):—huis, huisset, wisset, guisset, guichet.

The sticks set up at cricket—not sufficiently apart to allow the ball bowled at them to pass through—is called the wicket.

Tho gan I go a full great pass
Enuiron, euen in compas
The closing of the square wall
Till that I found a wicket small
So shette, that I ne might in gone
And other entre was there none.—Chaucer. R. of the R.

And so went into the hygh strete with his penon before hym, and came to the great toure, but the gate and wycket was fast closed.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 37.

Pan. He knows all.
Pin. Your trap doors,
To pop fools in it, that have no providence,
Your little wickets, to work wise men, like wires, through at,
And draw their states and bodies into cobwebs.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Island Princess, Act iii.

The cave was now become a common way,
The wicket often open'd, knew the key.
Dryden. Sigismonda & Guiscardo.

WIDE. WI'DELY. WIDTH. WI'DEN, v. WI'DENESS. A. S. Wid, wide, latus, amplus; Dut. Wiid; Ger. Weit; Sw. Wid; Dut. Wiiden; Ger. Weiten; A. S. Wad-an, vad-ere, procedere, to proceed, to extend, to expand.

Wide is not accurately distinguished from broad. The one might be restricted to superficial extent, where no depth, and the other where depth existed; as a broad plain, a wide river or gulf;—both are distinguished from long. Extended, expanded, distant, remote.

"Lord," he seyde, "we beth men wyde y driue aboute
From contrey to contrei."—R. Gloucester, p. 39.

The folk that ascaped on Malcolme side,
To Scotland tham raped, & puplised it fulle wide.
R. Brunne, p. 90.

And eke amidde this purprise
Was made a tour of great maistrise
A fairer saugh no man with sight
Large and wide, and of great might.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Thus hast thou herd in what degree
Of Grece, Egypte, and Chaldee
The misbeleue whilom stood,
And howe so thei be not good
Ne trewe, yet thei sprongen oute,
Wherof the wyde worlde aboute
His part of misbeleue toke.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

Wheras the rockes cessed, there beganne a dike of a wounderfull deapth and wydenesse.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 237.

The gates thus widen'd with the breath of war,
Their ample entrance to the English gave.
Drayton. Battle of Agincourt.

Valerian then he crops, and purposely doth stamp,
T' apply unto the place that's haled with the cramp.
As centory, to close the wideness of a wound.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 18.

Now where both armies got upon that ground,
As on a stage, where they their strengths must try,
Whence from the width of many a gaping wound,
There's many a soul into the air must fly.
Id. Battle of Agincourt.

——— Th' ascending pile
Stood fixt her stately highth, and strait the dores
Op'ning thir brazen foulds discovers wide
Within, her ample spaces, o're the smooth
And level pavement.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

We pass'd Selinus, and the palmey land,
And widely shun the Libybean strand
Unsafe for secret rocks, and moving sand.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. iii.

So let thy vines in intervals be set,
But not their rural discipline forget:
Indulge their width, and add a roomy space,
That their extreamest lines may scarce embrace.
Id. Ib. Georgics, b. ii.

They cultivate the natural grandeur of the soul, raise in her a generous ambition, feed her with hopes of immortality and perfection, and do all they can to widen the partition between the virtuous and the vicious, by making the difference betwixt them as great as between gods and brutes.
Tatler, No. 108.

To widen the market, and to narrow the competition, is always the interest of the dealers.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 11.

By the equity and benevolence of its precepts, and the attractive example of its founder, moral principles have been more widely diffused.
Cogan. On the Passions, Dis. 2. c. 3.

WI'DOW, n. WI'DOW, v. WI'DOWER. WI'DOWHOOD. WI'DUAL. A. S. Wid-wa; Dut. Wedduwe, witwe; Ger. Witwe. All from the Lat. Vidua.

A wife whose husband is deceased is called a widow. A husband whose wife is deceased is called a widower.

And hys dogter wyth hym, that wedew was, he nome.
R. Gloucester, p. 444

Thenne a bové is a betere frut. ac bothe to ben goode
Widewehode more worthier. than wedlok.
Piers Plouhman, p. 309

Bote maydenes and maydones marrien gow to gederes
And wydewers and wydewes. weddeth ay thothe
And loke that love be more the cause. than lond oth
noobles. Id. p. 180.

And he clepide togidir hise disciplis and seyde to hem, treuly I seye to you that this pore widowe keste more than alle that kesten in to the tresorye.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 12.

And he called vnto hym hys discyples and sayde vnto them: verelye I saye vnto you, that this poore wydowe hath cast moare in, then all they whiche haue caste into the treasury.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Woo to you Scribis and Parisees, ypocritis: that eten the housis of widiwis and preien bi long preier, for this thing ye schulen take the more doom.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 23.

Wo be vnto you Scribes and Phariseis ypocrites: ye deuoure wyddowes houses: and that vnder a coloure of prayinge longe prayers: wherfore ye shal receaue the greater damnacion.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

For though a widewe hadde but a shoo,
(So plesant was his In principio)
Yet wold he have a ferthing as he went.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 256.

This duke of Lancastre was a wydower without a wife, for the good lady Blanche of Lancastre and Derby, was disceassed.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 295.

And better were it for them to be holden vnder at the commaundement of a husbande and to be occupyed in charge of householde, than vnder pretence of wydowhead to sinne more licenciouslye.—Udal. 1 Timothye, c. 5.

The estate of wydual clennesse is than most fytt, whan for the vowe and profession therof, women maye put aparte that is both lykynge and lefull.—Bale. Apologie, fol. 38.

To me, sad maid, or rather widow sad,
He was affianced long time before,
And sacred pledges he both gaue, and had,
False errant knight, infamous, and forswore.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 12.

Sleepelesse she spent in her now widow'd bed,
Cold; and alone the night that follow'd.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. v.

Let there be widowers which you call releevers, appointed every where to the church-service.
Bp. Hall. An Apologie against Brownists, § 19.

Ne weene my right with strength adowne to tread,
Through weakenes of my widowhed, or woe:
For, truth is strong, his rightfull cause to plead,
And shall find friends, if need requireth so.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 12

They [doves] abandon not their owne nests, unlesse they be in state of single life or widowhead by the death of their fellow.—Holland. Plinie, b. x. c. 34.

So faire and fresh, as freshest floure in May;
For she had layd her mournfull stole aside,
And widow-like sad wimple throwne away,
Where-with her heauenly beauty she did hide,
Whiles on her weary iourney she did ride.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 12.

—— Oh it grieues my soule,
That I must draw this mettle from my side
To be a widdow-maker.
Shakespeare. King John, Act v. sc. 2.

Poor wretch, on stormy seas to lose thy life,
Unhappy thou, but more thy widdow'd wife!
At this she paus'd; for now the flowing tide
Had brought the body nearer to the side.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. x.

If I am so forgetful of my passion as to sleep I will dream of her, and betwixt sleeping and waking, put out my foot towards her side for midnight consolation; and not finding her I will sigh, and imagine myself a most disconsolate widower.—Id. Marriage A-la-Mode, Act iv. sc. 1.

Short as her [Lady Cutts] life was, she had time enough to adorn the several states of virginity and marriage; and to experience the sadness of a kind of widowhood too: for such she accounted it, when her Lord was long absent from her.
Atterbury, vol. i. Ser. 6.

At that sad hour, when all thy hopes decline;
When pining Care leads on her pallid train,
And sees thee like the weak, and widow'd vine,
Winding thy blasting tendrils o'er the plain.
Mason. Ode to Independence.

WIELD, v. WIE'LDANCE. WIE'LDING, n. WIE'LDLESS. WIE'LDSOME. WIE'LDY. } Goth. Wald-an; A. S. Wealdan; Ger. Walten, to command, to rule, to govern, (Somner.) To manage, to sway, to control; to bear or move in full command, with full or complete effect, with activity, with energy.

For heo schal not habbe here no ston, wyle ich may wolde [M.S. welde] myn hond.—R. Gloucester, p. 147.

Sex yere was he kyng, with were welded the scheld.
R. Brunne, p. 23.

No childe had he neuer, his heritage myght to wende,
Bot welth inou to welde, vntille his lyue's ende.
Id. p. 10.

For the luf of the thi brother did scho slo,
Therfor thou & thine salle weld it with wo.—Id. p. 37.

For so hette S. Dunstan, he suld alle his lyue
With werre his lond welde, & with his suerd stryue.
Id. p. 40.

And this is no more to mene, bote ho so muche good weldeth
Be large ther of while hit laste, to leedes [people] that ben needy. Piers Ploukman, p. 187.

Nile ye welde golde neither silver ne money in youre girdils.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 10.

Whanne a strong armed man kepith his hous, alle thingis that he weldith ben in pees.—Id. Luk, c. 11.

In youre pacience ye schulen welde youre soulis.
Id. Ib. c. 21.

I say than that ye shuln flee avarice, using youre richesses in swiche manere, that men sayn not that your richesses ben yberied, but that ye have hem in youre might, and in youre welding.—Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

And eke to seen him in his yeare dresse
So freshe, so yong, so weldy seeemed he,
It was an heaven vpon him for to se.
Id. Troil. & Cress. b. ii.

But he [Abraham] founde out the right weie,
Howe onely men shulde obeie
The high God, which weldeth all,
And euer hath done, and euer shall,
In heuen, in erth, and eke in helle,
There is no tonge his might maie telle.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

Wherfore Swanus lafte the cytie, and drewe into Kent, and so towarde Caunterbury without lette, weldyng ye countre at his wyll, and lastly beseged that cytie.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 199.

They could haue no more but theyr shoulders and armes free aboue the water to wielde their harnesse and weapons wythall.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 214.

The whych thing when Cesar perceyued, he commaunded that the galleyes wherof the facion was more straunge to the sauage Britons, and the mouing more redy and wieldsome, should be remoued a lytell from the shyps of burthen.
Id. Ib. fol. 100.

In his right hand an iron club he held,
But he himselfe was all of golden mold,
Yet had both life and sense, and well could weld
That cursed weapon, when his cruell foes he queld.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

For surely they that cannot so do, would never be able with wisdom and moderation to weld any great prosperity.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 420.

Edward the Third being dead, had left this child
(Son of his worthy son deceas'd of late)
The crown and sceptre of this realm to wield.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. i.

[We shall still find] that this spiritual edge shall either turne againe, or (through our weake weildance) not enter the stubburne and thick hide of obdured hearts.
Bp. Hall. St. Paul's Combat, pt. ii. A Sermon.

The wary fowle, that spies him toward bend,
His dreadfull souse avoydes, it shunning light,
And maketh him his wing in vaine to spend;
That with the weight of his owne weeldiesse might,
He falleth nigh to ground, and scarce recouereth flight.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 3.

He will find that to wield power innocently, to brandish the sword of justice discreetly and worthily, for the maintenance of right, and encouragement of virtue, for the suppression of injury, and correction of vice, is a matter of no small skill or slight care.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 22.

Argyll, the state's whole thunder born to wield,
And shake alike the senate and the field.
Pope. Epil. to Sat. Dial. 2.

The common military sword is a heavy massive weapon, for close engagement: wielded by a strong and skilful arm, it stabs and cuts, opens dreadful gashes where it falls, severs limbs, lops the head, or cleaves the body.
Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 7.

WIFE. WI'FELESS, or WI'VELESS. WI'FELY, or WI'VELY. WIVE, v. WI'VING, n. WI'FEHOOD, or WI'VEHOOD. } A. S. Wif, wif-ian; Dut. Wijf, wiiven; Ger. Weib, mulier nupta et innupta: so called (see Wachter, and Serenius), from Web-en, texere, to weave. In the A. S. version, Matt. xix. 4,—He worhte wæpman and wif-man, masculum et feminam fecit: here, the male is called wæp-man, the weapon man; and the female—wif-man, the web or woof-man. (And see SPINSTER.) The word wife is now legally applied to the married woman (fœmina nupta): in common speech to others. To wive,—To wed a wife, or as a wife.

A dogter ich haue of gret prys, & noble & god al so,
Y gene here the to thi wyf, & gef thou wolt by leue here,
The thridde del my kyndom y gene the to be my fere.
R. Gloucester, p. 12.

The emperour of Alymayne wylede to wyue
Mold the kynge's dogter, & to rygte lyue.—Id. p. 433.

Home forto wend to childe & to wife,
To visitte ther londes, to solace ther life.
R. Brunne, p. 4.

Wyves & wodewes. wantonness hue techeth.
Piers Ploukman, p. 46.

Thou sayst, we wives wol our vices hide,
Til we be fast, and than we wol hem shewe.
Chaucer. The Wif of Bathes Prol. v. 5865.

Not only this Grisildis thurgh hire wit
Coude all the fete of wifly homlinesse,
But eke whan that the cas required it,
The comune profit coude she redresse.
Id. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8306.

So shortly to conclude, Agea was interid,
And Fawnus livid wyfies.
Id. The Marchantes Second Tale.

A, good sire hoste, I have ywedded be
Thise monethes two, and more not parde;
And yet I trowe that he, that all his lif
Wifles hath ben, though that men wolde him rife
Into the herte, ne coude in no manere
Tellen so much sorwe, as I you here
Coud tellen of my wives cursednesse.
Id. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9113.

Penelopee, and Marcia Catoun,
Make of your wifehode no comparisoun,
Hide your beauties, Isoude and Helein,
My lady cometh, that all this may distain.
Id. Prol. to Legend of Good Women.

And that was proued well by night
Whilom of the maidens fiue
Whan thilke lorde came for to wiue.—Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

Wyfeles he was, Florent he hight,
He was a man, that mochell might.—Id. Ib. b. i.

But who that hir [Penelope] goodship vnderstood,
Fro fyrst that she wifehode toke,
Howe many loues she forsoke,
And howe she bare hir all aboute,
There whiles that hir lorde was oute.—Id. Ib. b. vi.

For howe knowest thou, that art a wyfe, whether thou shalt by familiar communicacion, by sobre and gentle behauiour, by wyuely loue, cause thy husbande to amende, that both of you be saued.—Udal. 1 Corinthians, c. 7.

Notwithstanding we are thoroughly assertayned by innumerable scriptures and argumentes, that matrimonye is of God, and by their innumerable examples of fylthynesse, that their vowed wyuelesse and husbandelesse chastyte altogyther of the deuyll.—Bale. English Votaries, Pref.

So that they in their wivelesse state runne into open abhominations, without any grudge of their conscience.
Homily, p. 239. Of Matrimony.

If this wiuinge [thought they] might be brought to an yll opinion, that the people might recke it nought, thā shuld we make that office of pastorall cure, whiche afore serued God in paineful study of his wurd to serue vs in all vanitees and plesures of the fleshe.—Bale. English Votaries, fol. 117.

—— Oh! careless wight!
Both of thy realm, and of thine own affairs!
A wife-bound man now dost thou rear the walls
Of high Carthage? and build a goodly town.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

Peres. Doe, I dare trust thee, I am asham'd I am angry.
I find thee a wise young wife.
Estif. I'le wife your worship
Before I leave ye, pray ye walk by and say nothing.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act ii.

She [Rowen] by commandment of her father, who had invited the king to a banquet, coming in presence with a bowle of wine to welcome him, and to attend on his cup till the feast ended, won so much upon his fancy, though afread wiv'd, as to demand her in mariage upon any conditions.—Milton. Hist. of England, b. iii.

Wooing and wiving, hang it: give me mirth,
Witty and dainty mirth.
Beaum & Fletch. The Wild Goose Chase, Act iii.

That girdle gaue the vertue of chaste loue,
And wiuehood true, to all that did it beare:
But whosoeuer contrarie doth proue,
Might not the same about her middle weare,
But it would loose, or else asunder teare.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 5.

—— Bid her for wife-hood,
For honesty, if she have any in her,
Even to avoid the shame that follows her.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman's Prize, Act v. sc. 2.

—— You know I met you,
Kist you, and prest you close within my arms,
With all the tenderness of wifely love.
Dryden. Amphitryon, Act iii.

By marriage the husband and wife are one person in law: that is the very being or legal existence of the woman is suspended during the marriage, or at least is incorporated and consolidated into that of the husband.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. i. c. 15.

WIG. A peruke or periwig, (qv.)

Booth enters—hark! the universal peal!
But has he spoken? Not a syllable.
What shook the stage, and made the people stare?
Cato's long wig, flowr'd gown, and lacquer'd chair.
Pope. Imitation of Horace, b. ii.

WI'GEON, or WI'DGEON. } Skinner writes it Widging; and suggests that it may be so called because it is—avis pugnax: from wigend—past part. of wig-ian, to fight.

If you give any credit to this jugling rascal, you are worse than simple widgins, and will be drawn into the net by this decoy duck, this tame cheater.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Fair Maid of the Inn, Act iv.

Tho. Why, I shall answer it, you fearful widgeon,
I shall appear to th' action.
Id. Monsieur Thomas, Act iii. sc. 3.

You are some constable's egg, some such widgeon of authority, you are so easily effected.
B. Jonson. Masque of Augurs.

Wigeon and teal are also said to be in great plenty here in the wet season.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1699.

WIGHT, n. WIGHT, adj. WI'GHTLY. } A. S. Wiht, from wit-an, sentire, scire. A sensitive being; one who feels, perceives, knows, lives. Wight, adj.—lively, quick, sprightly, active.

The clerkes seide, that yt is in philosophie y fonde,
That ther beth in the eir an hey, fer fro the gronde,
As a maner gostes, wygies as it be,
And me may hem ofte on erthe in wylde studes yse.
R. Gloucester, p. 130.

Right in the mornyng in aldermost nede
Com the kynge's sonnes tuo, als Criste wild it rede,
Out of Germinie with folk inouh of myght,
Adelwolf & Ethelbert, knyghtes bothe fulle wyght.
R. Brunne, p. 17.

The kynge tho as hus kynde wolde
Lackede here a lyte wyht, for that hue lovede gyle.
Piers Ploukman, p. 44.

Alas, she saith, that ever I was yshape
To wed a milksop, or a coward ape,
That wol ben overladde with every wight!
Thou darst not stonden by thy wives right.
Chaucer. The Monkes Prologue, v. 13,918.

——— And she coud eke
Wrastlen by veray force and veray might
With any yong man, were he neuer so wight.
Id. The Monkes Tale, v. 14,273.

I is ful wight, God wate, as is a Ra [roe.]
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 4084.

My sonne it sit well euery wight
To kepe his worde in trouth vpright.
Gower. Con. A. b. i.

And cried was that thei shulde come
Unto the gam all and some
Of hem that ben deliuer and wight
To do such maistrie as thei might. Id. Ib. b. viii.

He was so wimble, and so wight
From bough to bough he lepped light,
And oft the pumies latched.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. March.

Where, companing with fiends and filthy sprights,
Through vaine illusion of their lust vncleene,
They brought forth giants and such dreadfull wights
As farre exceeded men in their immeasur'd mights.
Id. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 10.

The poet Homer speaketh of no guirlands and chaplets but due to the celestiall & heavenly wights, or at leastwise in the name of a whole armie, for victorie atchieved in some notable battell.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 4.

Her was her while it was daylight,
But now her is a most wretched wight
For day that was, is wightly past,
And now at earst the darke night doth haste.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. September.

Such was the wight: Th' apparel on his back,
Tho' coarse, was rev'rend, and tho' bare, was black.
Pope. Donne Versified, Sat. 4.

WILD, adj. WILD, n. WI'LDLY. WI'LDNESS. WI'LDER, v. WI'LDERNESS. WI'LDING, n. Dut. Wild; Ger. Wild; Sw. Wild; A. S. Wild, awildan; Ger. Wilden, sylvescere. Wachter says,—it is spoken, 1. of beasts; 2. of plants; 3. of any things that are in sylva, and then, allegorically, of the manners of animals. Tooke begins where Wachter ends—with the manners or dispositions of the animals, (sc.) "as willed, will'd, (or self-will'd), in opposition to those (whether men or beasts) who are tamed or subdued (by reason or otherwise) to the will of others or of societies." (See the quotation from Beam. & Fletch.) The word would then be extended to the places inhabited by such animals, to the natural productions of such places. Wild, adj. thus, will denote—

Self-governed or directed, in a manner to gratify or please self; untamed, unsubdued, ungoverned, uncultivated, uncivilized, irregular, disorderly, inordinate, extravagant; licentious, turbulent, ferocious, savage.

Wilder,—see BE-WILDER.

"The prynce," he seide, "other kyng nys to preyse nogt,
That in tyme of werre as a lomb ys bothe meke & mylde,
And in tyme of pes as a lyon bothe cruel & wylde.
R. Gloucester, p. 57.

The decyples, that he hyder sende, Cristendom to brynge,
Byleuede in a wyldernesse, after her prechynge,
That me cleputh nou Glastynbury, that desert was thou.
Id. p. 232.

The kyng no man suld deme in courte for wilde dere.
R. Brunne, p. 110.

Paule primus heremite, put vs hym selue
Awey into wildernesse, the wold to despisen.
Piers Ploughman. Crede.

For if thou art kit doun of the kyndelie wielde olyue tree, and aghens kynde art set into a good olyue tree, hou mych more thei that ben bi kynde schulen be sett in her olyue tree?—Wiclif. Romayne, c. 11.

Thoughe some of the braunches be broken of, and thou beynge a wylde olyue tree, arte grafte in amonge them, and made partaker of the rote and fatnes of the olyue tree.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And hise discipils answeriden to him, wherof schal a man nowe fille hem with looues here in wildernesse?
Wiclif. Mark, c. 8.

And his disciples answered him: where should a man haue breade here in the wyldernesse to satisfye these?
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Although the cage of gold be never so gay,
Yet had this brid, by twenty thousand fold,
Lever in a forest, that is wilde and cold,
Gon eten wormes, and swiche wretchednesse.
Chaucer. The Manciples Tale, v. 17,120

It is so full of wildnesse
So oft it doth shame and domage
To him or to his linage. Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Hate is a wrath, not shewende,
But of longe tyme gatherende,
And dwelleth in the herte loken,
Till he see tyme to be wroken
And than he sheweth his tempest
More sodeine than the wilde best,
Whiche wote nothyng, what merry is.
Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

And whan the citee was a slepe,
A wilde fyre in to the depe
Thei caste amonge the tymber werke,
And so forth while the night was derke
Desguised in a poore araie
Thei passeden the towne er daie. Id. Ib. b. v.

So cruel, alas! is nought alive,
So fierce, so froward, so out of frame,
But some way, some time may so contrive
By means the wild to temper and tame.
Wyat. That Time, &c.

Thei might haue liued in other places wildly & wantonly neither should thei forsake the papistris for this end, that thei shuld leade a dissolute life not comely for the gospel in the church of God.
Caluin. Foure Godlye Sermons, Ser. 3.

And after, as affermeth my sayde auctour, nat ferre from Warwyke, in a wyldenesse, he [Guy] purchased, by Goddes puruyaunce, a lodgyne in an heremytage, where by the terme of ii. yeres & more he dwelled & kepte an harde lyfe.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 185.

Lo, sirs, quoth Soltier, ye may se well, sōtyme ryot dothe good: we haue well aduaūsed forthe our payment with a lytell wyldnesse: he dothe euer well that is feared.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 393.

It is the greatest prayse to a citye, to haue their borders a great way of wasted, in such sort that it may seme like a wyldernes.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 161.

I glory not in cruelty, ye wrong me;
Nor grow up water'd with the tears of women;
This let me tell ye, howsoe'r I shew to ye,
Wild, as ye please to call it, or self-will'd;
When I see cause I can both do and suffer
Freely, and feelingly, as a true gentleman.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Wild Goose Chase, Act iv. sc. 3.

Next Chemos, th' obscene dread of Moab's sons,
From Aroar to Nebo, and the wild
Of southmost Abarim, in Hesebon
And Honoraim, Seons realm, beyond
The flowry dale of Sibma clad with vines,
And Eleale to th' Asphaltick pool.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

——— We sometimes
Who dwelt this wild, constrain'd by want, come forth
To town or village nigh (nighest is far)
Where ought we hear, and curious are to hear
What happ'ns new. Id. Paradise Regained, b. i.

Moreover, that none of the inhabitants there are seene all day long: all is still and silent, like the fearefull horror in desert wildernesse.—Holland. Plinie, b. v. c. 1.

Near whom fair Sherwood, wildly bent to rove,
Twines her loose arms about the flatt'ring tow'rs,
By the mild shadows of her scatter'd grove,
Lends winter shelter, and gives summer bow'rs.
Drayton. Barons' Wars, s. 19.

Oft from the forrest wildings he did bring,
Whose sides empurpled were with smiling red,
And oft young birds, which he had taught to sing
His mistresse prayses sweetly caroled.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 7.

There is a kind of crab tree also or wilding, that in like manner beareth twice a yeere.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 27.

Di. Sure she has a garrison of devils in her tongue, she uttereth such balls of wild-fire.
Beaum. & Fletch. Philaster, Act ii.

Then sheep first saw the sun in open fields;
And salvage beasts were sent to stock the wilds.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. ii.

You who with haggard eyes stare wildly on me,
If (as by your attendance here you seem)
You serve the king, my father, lead me to him.
Rowe. Ambitious Step-mother, Act ii.

There is the same irregularity in my plantations, which run into as great a wildness as their natures will permit.
Spectator, No. 477.

Osw. The night has wilder'd us; and we are faln
Among their foremost tents.—Dryden. K. Arthur, Act ii.

Oh thou who freest me from my doubtful state,
Long lost and wilder'd in the maze of fate!
Be present still. Pope. Statius. Thebaid, b. i.

I view'd thee first; how fatal was the view!
And led thee where the ruddy wildings grew,
High on the planted edge, and wet with morning dew.
Dryden. Virgil, Past. 8.

The king of glory, he, whose glory fill'd
Heaven with amazement at his love to man;
And with divine complacency beheld
Powers most illumin'd, wilder'd in the theme.
Young. Complaint, Night 4.

Acting thus, we shall only cut off occasion from those who desire occasion to speak evil of us, and be able to re-monstrate with authority and effect against their excesses and wildnesses.—Secker. Works, vol. v. p. 470.

WILE, v. WILE, n. WI'LY. WI'LILY. WI'LINESS. See BE-GUILE, and GUILE. A. S. Wigl-ian, to bewitch; Dut. Wieche-len, wiichelen. To cheat, to impose upon; to deceive, to delude; to practice deceit or delusion; to give a false colour or appearance to: and wily—

Deceitful, delusive; sly, cunning, crafty, subtle, insidious.

Philip bote on his lyppe, & perceyued R. thouht.
Whi that it ment, Philip gan aspie:
A wiles to R. sent, how long he wild ther lie.
R. Brunne, p. 155.

Leulyn wend no gile had bien ther so nere,
He went to play a wile with fo of his banere.—Id. p. 242.

And wolde wynne hure away. with whiles yf he myghte.
Piers Ploughman, p. 173.

I dwell with hem that proude be
And full of wiles and subteltie
What worship of this worlde coueiten
And great nede connen expleiten
And gon and gadren great pitaunces.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Carthage sigh the stronge astate
Of Rome in thilke mirrour stonde,
And thought all priuely to fonde
To ouerthrowe it by some wile.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

And yet the persecucyon of Danys seased nat: for in one countre of Englande or other, they euer in wylys robbed and pylled the Englysshmen.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 199.

By such like wiles of Sinon, the forsworn,
His tale with us did purchase credit; some,
Trapt by deceit; some, forced by his tears.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

And yet is it a better sport to see, howe in the verye poynte in which he weneth hymselfe to deale the moste wylily therin vttreth he his foly most folyshly.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 607.

Is not the act of a person playne or symple, or of a man honeste, iuste, or good: but rather of a person crafty, vngentyll, subtylle, deceytefull, malicious, and wyly.
Sir T. Elyot, The Governour, b. iii. c. 4.

Thus our ennemies through their flight which was full both of feare and wilynesse, escaping without any losse, went but ten miles of, and encamped themselues in a very strong grounde.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 251.

So perfect in that art was Paridell,
That he Malbeccoes halfen eye did wile:
His halfen eye he wiled wondrous well,
And Hellenors both eyes did eke beguile.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 10.

Next him, went Wylibourne with passage slye,
That of his wylinesse his name doth take,
And of himselfe doth name the shire thereby:
And Mole, that like a nousling Mole doth make
His way still vnder ground, till Thamis he ouertake.
Id. Ib. b. iv. c. 11.

The God whose ensign scars the birds of prey,
And old Silenus, youthful in decay,
Employ'd their wiles and unavailing care,
To pass the fences, and surprise the fair.
Pope. Vertumnus & Pomona.

Pierce the soft lab'rinth of a lady's ear
With rhymes of this per cent, and that per year?
Or court a wife, spread out his wily parts,
Like nets or lime-twigs, for rich widow's hearts.
Id. Donne Versified, Sat. 2.

The enemies he [our Lord] had to engage are the wicked passions of men, the devil in his wiles and machinations, and the persecuting powers of the world.
Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 6.

I mark'd her wily messenger afar,
And saw him skulking in the closest walks.
Johnson. Irene, Act v. sc. 9.

WILL, v. WILL, n. WI'LLER. WI'LFUL. WI'LFULLY. WI'LFULNESS. WI'LLINGLY. Goth. Wil-jan; A. S. Willan; Dut. Willen; Ger. Wollen; Sw. Wilja. All (says Wachter) from wol, bonum, well or good; because men wish for, or desire that which is well or good. Skinner from the Lat. Vol-o; Junius, from the Gr. Βουλ-ομαι. But βουλ, vol, wol, are evidently the same word. The Gr.

Βελτερος, Lat. Optimus, are derived from βουλεσθαι, and optare. See the quotations from Chaucer, Davies, Locke, and Search.

Will is used with verbs to denote futurity, and does so, inasmuch as that which is still an object of will or desire, which we still are willing or desirous to do, is not yet had or done. See SHALL.

Vor muche of thys lond wylled Roberte Courthese
To be kyng of Engelond, gyf hii mygte chese.
R. Gloucester, p. 384.

He by gan to loue Brut so muche, for ys faire cheiance,
That he wyllede, mest of alle thynge, to hym enlyance.
Id. p. 12.

The kyng send word a geyn, that it was ys wille:
Ac he nolde with hire geue tresour, ny lond.—Id. p. 31.

To hym he sende of acord, gef it were his wille,
That he wolde to Rome abowe, & lete alle strif be stille.
Id. p. 83.

He ne let nogt clupye al hys folc, so wyllefol he was,
And al vor in the other batayle hym vel so vayr cas.
Id. p. 359.

This false mon wende tho mid ys cartre a boute,
And of willesful men hym gederede a gret route.
Id. p. 77.

Ther londes & ther rentes were at his wille.
R. Brunne, p. 34.

At Wynchestre he lies, so himself willed.—Id. Ib.

To Leulyn forgaf he alle his euelle wille.—Id. p. 237.

Wolle thow ne wolle thow, we wolleth habbe oure wil.
Piers Plouhman, p. 186.

Aren none hardur ne hongryour, than men of holy churche
Averouse and yvele willed, wanne thei ben avaunsed.
Id. p. 22.

And fulliche folweth the feith and feyneth non other
That no worldeliche wele wilneth no tyme.—Id. Crede.

Thei wiln wexon pure wroth wonderliche sone,
And shewen the a sharp wil, in a short tyme.
To wiln wilfully wrathe, and werche ther after.—Id. Ib.

For Eroude hadde holden Jon, and bounden him, and puttide him into prisoun, for Erodias the wyf of his brothir: For Jon seide to him, it is not leeful to thee to have hir, and he willynge to sle him, dredde the peple.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 14.

And he biheeld thilke that saten aboute him and seide, lo my medir and brethren. For who that doith the wille of God he is my brother, and my sistir, and modir.
Id. Mark, c. 3.

And he loked roũd about on his disciples, which sat in compasse aboute hym, sayde: beholde my mother, and my brethren. For whosoeuer doeth the wyll of God, he is my brother, my syster and mother.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And sodeinly there was maad with the aungel a multitude of hevenly knyghood, heryinge God and seiynge; Glorye be in higheste thingis to God, and in erthe pees be to men of good wille.—Wiclif. Luk, c. 2.

And he seide, God of oure fadris hath before ordeyned thee that thou schuldist knowe the wille of hym, and schuldest se the rightful man, and heere the voice of his mouth.—Id. Dedis, c. 22.

And he sayde, the God of oure fathers hathe ordeyned the before, that thou shouldest know his will, and shouldest se that which is ryghtful, and shuldest heare the voyce of hys mouthe.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

For whi now a sacrifice for synnes is not left to us that synnen wilfulli aftir that that we han take the knowyng of treuthe.—Wiclif. Ebrewis, c. 10.

And whanne we camen to Jerusalem britheren resseyuyden us wilfulli.—Id. Dedis, c. 21.

Ech good gifte and ech parfyt gifte is from above and cometh doun fro the fadir of ligtis anentis whom is noon ouer chaungyng or ouerschadewing of reward, for wilfulli he bigat us bi the word of treuthe, that we be a bigynnyng of his creature.—Id. James, c. 1.

Yes (quod she) there is libertie of free will, ne there ne was neuer no nature of reason, that it ne had libertie of free will.—Chaucer. Boecius, b. v.

In all thinges that reason is, in hym also is libertie of willyng and of nllyng. [volendi nolendique libertas.]
Id. Ib.

Soche willers witte is not worth a nelde.
Id. Plowman's Tale, b. iii.

And Salomon sayth; welful is he that of alle hath drede.
Id. Tale of Melibeus.

What, trowen ye? that whiles I may preche
And winnen gold and silver for I teche
That I wol live in poverte wilfully?
Id. Pardoneres Tale. v. 12,376.

Who ben they, and which ben they, and how many, that consenten to thy conseil in thy wilfulnesse, to don hastif vengeaunce.—Id. Tale of Melibeus.

For as me thinketh by thy speche,
Thy wittes be right far to seche,
As of thyn eare, and of thine eie
I woll no more specifie. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

For certes whanne that betitte,
My wyll, myn herte, and all my witte
Ben fully sette to herken and sper
What any man woll speke of hir. Id. Ib. b. ii.

And thus by weie of couenant
Will is my man, and my seruant,
And euer hath bee, and euer shall.
And thi wil is thy principal,
And hath the lordship of thy wit
So that thou couthest neuer yet
Take a daie rest of thy laboure. Id. Ib. b. iii.

I speake not of this worlde, whiche God made, wherin we liue, wil we nil we.—Udal. 1 John, c. 2.

Then Gregory cõforted the sayd companye, & sent them with letters to the bysshop Arelatensis, wyllynge hym to helpe and ayde Austyne in all that hym nedid.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 119.

Wherfore it semeth, that it, wherein the one deliteth, is repugnãt to the others nature. And where is any repugnaunce, may be none amitie, sens frendeshyp is an entier consent of wylles and desyres.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governor, c. 11.

And where as by his euyll wyllers he was reportyd that he shulde gether men of armys to greue the cytie, he sayd & sware it was neuer his entencion.
Fabyan. Chronycle. John of France, an. 1358.

After theis wordes there was rising on all handes: and holde was layde vpon them both, entreatãce was made that they wold not throughe theyr wilful dyssention, cast all into vtter daunger.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 127.

If they wylfully would renounce the sayd place and put them in his grace, he wolde vtterlye pardon theyr trespace.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 114.

Nowe shall a man be lorde and ruler, that is replenysshed with sapyence and reason, and shall gouerne the people by skylfull domys, settynge aparte all wylfulnesse and pleasure of hymselfe.—Id. Ib. an. 1399.

Wherfore eftsoones in his name, I charge you desyste of your wylfulnes and vnlaufull enterprise, & from hensforth giue good example to those, whyche hereafter shall be your propre subiectes.—Sir. T. Elyot. The Governor, b. ii. c. 6.

And worthy ye be to suffer the extremitie in a common welth, which seeke to doe the extremity, and by reason must receiue like ye offer, and so be contented to byde the ende willingly, which set on the beginning wilfully.
Sir J. Cheeke. The Hurt of Sedition.

This same text whiche we haue recited, being well vnderstanded maye bring vs to that indifferencye of minde, yea to that willingnes, that we shall nat refuce to suffer death for Goddes name.—Caluyne, Foure Godlye Sermons, Ser. 2.

——— For this to me
Shall be a second marriage: send for musique,
And will the cooks to use their best of cunning
To please the palat.
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act i. sc. 2.

Lucullus afterwards considering with himself, that there was no riches nor provision so great in the world, that could suffice to victuall so many thousands of people as Mithridates had in his camp any long time together, having his enemies camp so lying before them; willed that one of the prisoners should be brought into his tent, and first of all he enquired of him, how many of them lay together in a cabbin, then what corn he had left in their cabbin.
North. Plutarch, p. 426.

Will puts in practice what the wit deviseth:
Will ever acts, and wit contemplates still:
And as from wit the pow'r of wisdom riseth,
All other virtues daughters are of will.
Davies. Immortality of the Soul, s. 27.

Bear witness heaven, this man destroys his brother
When he may save him, his last breath may save him:
Can there be wilfuller destruction?
Beaum. & Fletch. The Nice Valour, Act v. sc. 2.

Why then doost thou, O man, that of them all
Art lord, and eke of nature soueraigne,
Wilfully make thy selfe a wretched thrall,
And waste thy ioyous houres in needelesse paine.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 6.

——— Deare sonne, thy causelesse ruth suppresse,
Ne let thy stout hart melt in pitty vaine:
He that his sorrow sought through wilfulnesse,
And his foe fettred would release againe,
Deserues to taste his follies fruit, repented paine.
Id. Ib. c. 5.

Many of them besotted with continual drunkenness; or swoln with pride and willfulness, full of contention, full of envy, indiscreet, incompetent judges to determine what in the practice of life is good or evil, what lawful or unlawful.
Milton. Hist. of England, b. ii.

I could have watch'd as well as they, have serv'd him
In any use, better, and willinger.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman's Prize, Act iv. sc. 1.

He that says, an action which God hath not commanded is of it self necessary, he that says, God is rightly worshipped by an act or ceremony concerning which himself hath no way express'd his pleasure, is superstitious, or a will-worshipper.—Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. ii. c. 3.

Two things he [God] willeth, that we should be good, and that we should be happy; the first in order to the second, for that vertue is the certain way, and a necessary qualification to felicity.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 4.

We find in ourselves a power to begin or forbear, continue or end several actions of our minds, and motions of our bodies, barely by a thought or preference of the mind ordering, or, as it were, commanding, the doing or not doing such or such a particular action. This power which the mind has thus to order the consideration of any idea, or the forbearing to consider it; or to prefer the motion of any part of the body to its rest, and vice versa in any particular instance, is that what we call the will. The actual exercise of that power by directing any particular action, or its forbearance, is what we call volition or willing.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 21.

But farther to enforce these duties, be pleased to cast a glance on two considerations. 1. What the will is to which, 2. Whom the willer is to whom, we must submit.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 4.

For the same reason that a man is obliged not to depart wilfully out of this life, which is the general station that God has appointed him; he is obliged likewise to attend the duties of that particular station or condition of life; whatsoever it be. wherein Providence has at present placed him; with diligence, and contentment.
Clarke. On the Evidences, Prop. 1.

'Tis impossible but they must wish, God would be pleased particularly, to signify expressly the acceptableness of repentance, and his willingness to forgive returning sinners.
Id. Ib. Introd.

This discovers to us the expedient of a steadiness and consistency of conduct, and renders the having willed a thing a motive with us to will it still until some cogent reason shall occur to the contrary.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. i. pt. ii. c. 23.

If we listen to the common discourses of mankind, we shall find them speaking of several wills, several agents in the same persons resisting, counteracting, overpowering and controuling one another: hence the so usual expression of the spiritual and carnal wills of the man, and of the beast, of self-will and reason, of denying our wills, subduing our passions, or being enslaved by them, of acting unwillingly or against our will, and the like.
Id. Ib. vol. ii. pt. iii. c. 26.

WI'LLOW. WI'LLOWED. WI'LLOWY. } A.S. Welie, weliye; Dut. Wilighe, wilghe; A.S. Wilhig; Ger. Weide; a withy, (qv.) Kilian thinks Willighe is so called because it grows promptly and willingly (i. e. freely), as the Lat. Salix, a saliendo, from the rapid shoots it makes.

Here comes poor Frank, nay we are friends, start not Sir,
We see your willow and are sorry for't,
And though it be a wedding we are half mourners.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Night Walker, Act i.

A willow, the more it is cut or lopt, the better spring will it shoot at root, and beare the fairer head.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 37.

Of vegetable woods are various kinds,
And the same species are of sev'ral minds.
Lotes, willows, elms, have diff'rent forms allow'd,
So fun'ral cypress rising like a shrowd.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b ii.

First for a May-fly: you may make his body with greenish coloured crewel or willowish colour.
Walton. Angler, pt. i. c. 5.

"Ye brown o'er-arching groves,
That Contemplation loves,
Where willowy Camus lingers with delight!
Oft at the blush of dawn
I trod your level lawn,
Oft woo'd the gleam of Cynthia silver-bright,
In cloisters dim, far from the haunts of Folly,
With Freedom by my side, and soft-ey'd Melancholy."
Gray. Ode for Music.

The pensive poet thro' the green-wood steals,
Or treads the willow'd marge of murmuring brook,
Or climbs the steep ascent of airy hills.
Warton. Ode to Morning.

Sweet Teviot! on thy silver tide
The glaring bale-fires blaze no more;
No longer steel-clad warriors ride
Along thy wild and willowed shore.
Scott. Lay of the Last Minstrel, c. 4.

WI'MBLE, n. WI'MBLE, adj. WI'MBLE, v. } "Wimpel, vet. terebellum. Weme; Sax. Sicamb. Wemelen, perforare terebra, terebrare." Kilian,—to bore or perforate. See GIMLET.

A tool to bore, pierce or perforate (by the joint action of turning and pressing).

Wimble, adj.—sharp, keen, quick.

Carpenters art was the invention of Dedalus, as also the tooles thereto belonging, to wit, the saw, the chip, axe, and hatchet, the plumbe line, the augoer and wimble, the strong glew, as also fish-glew, and stone-saudre.
Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 56.

Strong axle-treed cart, that is clouded and shod,
Cart-ladder and wimble, with perser and pod.
Tusser. Husbandry Furniture.

To take away bishops votes, is but the beginning to take them away; for then they can be no longer useful to the king or state. 'Tis but like the little wimble, to let in the greater augur.—Selden. Table-Talk. Bishops in Parliament.

Which tho' it be little or nothing, in respect that this latter age we have wimbled even into the bowels of Plutus's treasury (the Western Indies) yet it is so much, as our historiographers, both new and ancient, have thought it worth the noting.
Spelman. Dial. concerning the Coin of the Kingdom.

It is commonly said, that the wood of the wild olive, box, mast-holme, elme, and ash, are excellent good for awgre-handles and wimble-stocks.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 43.

He was so wimble, and so wight,
From bough to bough he lepped light,
And oft the pumies latched.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. March.

Then nought can be achiev'd with witty shewes,
Sith griefe of elde accloyen wimble wit.
Browne. Yonge Willie & Old Wernock.

He says the wimble often draws it back,
And deals to thirsty servants but a smack.
Dryden. Persius, Sat. 4.

The sexton did his best to clear the chappell, nevertheless Isaac the sexton's man said that a foot soldier had hid himself, so as he was not discern'd; and, being greedy of prey, crept into the vault, and cut so much of the velvet pall that covered the great body, as he judged would hardly be missed, and wimbled also a hole thro' the said coffin that was largest, probably fancying that there was something well worth his adventure.—Wood. Athenæ Oxon. vol. ii.

WI'MPLE, n. } Dut. Wimpelen, to veil or WI'MPLE, v. } cover. Wimpel, Fr. Guimpel, from vinculum, (see Menage, Old French Words,) or from the Lat. Umbella, (Skinner.) The verb and noun were in common use with old Scotch writers, G. Douglas, and others. See the Glossary, and Jamieson.

A veil or covering; a hood.

Hyre body wyth a mantel, a wympel aboute her heued.
R. Gloucester, p. 338.

And as she ran, her wimple let she fall,
And toke none hede, so sore she was whaped.
Chaucer. Legende of Tisbe of Babilon.

She that yet couereth and wymplethe her to other folke, hath shewed herself euery dele to thee.
Id. Boecius, b. ii. p. 414.

Ful semely hire wimple ypinched was.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales.

But vnleful lustie habite, with softe speche and mery, and with faire honied wordes, heretikes and misse-mening people skleren and wimplen their errours.
Id. Testament of Loue, b. ii.

In this booke be many priuie thinges wimpled and fold, vnneth shall leude men the plites vnwinde.—Id. Ib. b. iii.

And fell, while that she there laie,
This Piramus cam after soone
Unto the well, and by the moone
He fonde hir wymfill blodie there.—Gower. Cōn. A. b iii.

A louely ladie rode him faire beside,
Vpon a lowely asse more white then snow;
Yet she much whiter, but the same did hide
Vnder a veile, that wimpled was full lowe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 1.

Yet certes by her face and physnomy,
Whether the man or woman inly were,
That could not any cfeature well descry:
For, with a veile that wimpled euery where,
Her head and face was hid, that mote to none appeare.
Id. Ib. b. vii. c. 7.

Ber. This wimpled, whyning, purblinde waiward boy,
This signior Junios gyant dwarfe, don Cupid.
Shakespeare. Loue's Labour Lost, Act iii. sc. 3.

Her mantle wimpled low, her silken hair,
Which loose adown her well turn'd shoulders stray'd,
Lloyd. Progress of Envy.

WIN, v. } Goth. and A. S. Winn-an;
WI'NNER. } Dut. Winnen; Ger. Winnen;
WI'NNING, n. } Sw. Winna;—
To acquire; to conquer, (conquirere;) to attain or obtain; to reach, to get, to procure; (to gain, qv.)

——— For mon thou art ywys,
To wynne get a kyndom, wel beter than myn ys.
R. Gloucester, p. 13.

The fyfte tyme won Engelond tho folc of Normandie,
That a mong vs woneth get, and schulleth euer mo.
R. Gloucester, p. 3.

For the kyng of West sex'al the other wan y wys,
And was seththe al one kyng, as oure kyng now ys.
Id. p. 6.

Ther may ne write be brouht, to wynne ageyn his right,
Bot thorgh force he souht, thorgh dynt of suerd & fight.
R. Brunne, p. 255.

He hopes to wynne that land with dynt of douhty kyght.
Id. p. 259.

If he the coroun mot wynne, his heyre suld I be.
Id. p. 69.

Tuo & tuenty batailes he wanne the first gere.—Id. p. 24.

He bad wastours go worche. and wynne here sustenaunce Thorw some trewe travail.—Piers Plouhman, p. 82.

I haue no good ne no golde, but go thus abouten
And trauaile ful trewely. to wynnen with my fode.
Id. Crede.

Al ich sauh slepyng. as ge shullen hure after
Both bakers & buyers. bouchers & othere
Webbesters and walkers. an wynners wt handen.
Id. Vision, p. 11.

Whanne I was free of alle men I made me seruaunt of alle men to wynne the mo men. and to Jewis I am maad as a Jew to wynne the Jewis.—Wiclif. 1 Cor. c. 9.

For though I be fre from all mē, yet haue I made my selfe seruaunte vnto all men, that I might wynne the moo. Unto yᵉ Jewes, I be came as a Jewé, to wynne the Jewes.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And he that hadde fyve besauntis wente forth and wroughte in hem & wanne othir fyve.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 30.

Thē he yᵗ had receaued yᵉ fiue talētes, wēt and bestowed thē & wanne other fyue talentes.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And he that hadde takun tweye talentis, came & seide, Lord thou bitokist to me tweye besauntis, lo I have wonen ovir othir tweyne.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 30.

Also he that receaued two talentes, came and sayde: Master, thou delyueredst vnto me two talentes: beholde, I haue wonne two other talētes with them.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And the lordis of hir sighen that the hope of her wynnynge wente awei, and thei tooken Poul and Silas and ledden in to the doom place to the princes.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 16.

But whiche thingis weren to me wynnyngis I haue demed these apeyryngis for Crist.—Id. Filipensis, c. 3.

But langwischith aboute questiouns and stryuyng of wordis of the whiche ben brought forth envies, stryues, blasfemyes, yuele suspiciouns, fightingis of men that ben corupte in soule, and that ben pryued fro treuthe that demen wynnyng to be pitee. but a greet wynnyng is pitee with pacience.—Id. 1 Tymo. c. 6.

Anon the fend into his herte ran,
And taught him sodenly, that he by sleight
This maiden to his purpos winnen might.
Chaucer. Doctoures Tale, v. 12,067.

At Alisandre he was whan it was wonne.—Id. Ib. v. 52.

His resons spake he full solempnely,
Souning alway the encrese of his winning.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 278.

The noble Cesar Julius
Whiche tho was kynge of Rome londe
With great battaile, and stronge honde
All Grece, Perse, and Chaldee
Wan, and put vnder.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

If that he do it for to winne:
Firste to accompte his great coste,
Forth with the folke that he hath loste,
As to the worldes rekenynge
There shall he finde no winnynge. Id. Ib. b. iii.

The duke of Athenesse or Athens, with suche other nobles as were with hym in the Frenshe kynges vaweward, set vpon yᵉ Englysshe hoste, the whiche was myghtely fensyd with wood and trees in suche wyse, yᵗ the Frenshe sperys myght nat wyn vnto them.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1455.

——— Little got with ease
More thankful is, than kingdoms won by travail and misease.—Surrey. Paraphrase on Ecclesiastes, c. 4.

The pricke is a great blanket spread on certaine long poles, he that striketh it, hath of the best man there standing a piece of crimson Taffata, the which is knit about his head: in this sort the winners be honoured.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 71.

But who that well consydereth the sequell of this story, shall fynde lytell wynnynge or weale ensuyng of this dede.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1455.

Thou wan'st my money too, with a pair of base bones,
In whom there was no truth, for which I beat thee.
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act i.

And whereas religion is the greatest winner of mens affections, he [Essex] endeavoured to allure unto him the puritans and their ministers, whom the queen did not at all like of; and withall the papists, by seeming to pitty their afflicted condition.
Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1601.

The same Africanus afterwards, upon the winning and finall ruine of Numantia, gave among his souldiors in a triumph, 17,000 pound weight of silver.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxiii. c. 11.

He [Aristides] represented in a table the winning of a towne by force, wherein was pourtraied most lively a little infant winding it selfe and making prettie means to creepe unto the mothers pap, who lay a dying upon a mortall wound received in her breast.—Id. Ib. b. xxxv. c. 10.

All the work of our redemption was in a moment achieved, when our Saviour did appear; his incarnation was the great step toward it, as being an act of the humblest obedience, and of the highest merit, that could any wise be performed, for satisfying the justice of God, and winning his favour toward us.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 43.

Poets are bubbles, by the town drawn in,
Suffer'd at first some trifling stakes to win
But what unequal hazards do they run!
Each time they write, they venture all they've won.
Congreve. Way of the World, Prol.

Cyth. Still it is a game, and consequently one of us must be a loser.
Mell. Not at all; only a friendly trial of skill, and the winnings to be laid out in an entertainment.
Id. Double Dealer, Act ii

Slow melting strains their queen's approach declare:
Where'er she turns, the Graces homage pay.
With arts sublime, that float upon the air;
In gliding state she wins her easy way.
Gray. Progress of Poesy.

WINCE, or } Fr. Guincher, to wriggle or WINCH, v. } writhe, (Cotgrave.) Probably
WINCH, n. } formed upon the A. S. verb
WI'NCER. } Winnan, to strive, to contend, to resist, to withstand, to oppose.
To strive or struggle against; to start away from, to shrink from; to try to get rid of, to kick, to plunge.

Fort it his the won of Wil, to wynse and to kyke.
Piers Plouhman, p. 65.

Whanne the sone of perdicioun was deed and the apostlis hadden maad her preier thorough lott of the Lordis electioun, the noumbre of the apostlis were fulfillid, and also that Poul schulde enden the doyngis of the apostlis whom the Lord hadde chosun that long tyme wynside aghen the pricke.—Wiclif. Dedis, Prol.

Winsing she was, as is a joly colt,
Long as a mast, and upright as a bolt.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3264.

I heard a voice speake vnto me, that said in the Hebrue tongue: Saule, Saule, why doest thou persecute me? It is hard for thee to winche against the pricke?
Udal. Actes, c. 26.

For let see who that dare
Shoe the mockish mare
They make her winch and kicke.
Skelton. The Boke of Colin Clout.

There with slinges that went wyth wynches and stakes whych they had pitched in a readinesse, & wyth pellets, they put the Galles in feare.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 232.

Room! room! for my horse will wince,
If he come within so many yards of a prince.
B. Jonson. Masque of Owls.

Which Plato doth lively represent unto us by a proper similitude, saying, that there be two draught beasts which draw the chariot of our soules, whereof the worse doth both winse and strive against the other fellow in the same yoke, and also troubleth the coach-man or charioter, who hath the conduct of them.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 58.

I beseech ye, friends, ere the brick-bats fly; resolve me and yourselves, is it blasphemy, or any whit disagreeing from Christian meekness, when as Christ himself, speaking of unsavoury traditions, scruples not to name the dunghill and the jakes, for me to answer a slovenly wincer of a confutation, that if he would needs put his foot to such a sweaty service, the odour of his sock was like to be neither musk, nor Benjamin?
Milton. An Apology for Smectymnuus, Pref.

The angry beast did straight resent
The wrong done to his fundament,
Began to kick, and fling, and wince
As if he 'ad been beside his sense.—Hudibras, pt. i. c. 2.

Whether that still more glibly hits
The fancies of our rambling wits,
Who wince and kick at all oppression,
But love to straggle in digression.—Lloyd. The Poet.

WIND, v. } Goth. and A. S. Wind; Dut.
WIND, n. } Wind; Ger. Wind; which Junius
WI'NDLESS. } derives from Goth. Waian, flare,
WI'NDY. } spirare, to blow, to breathe.
WI'NDINESS. } Dut. Waeyen; Ger. Wehen.—

Skinner from the Lat. Vent-us, which Martinius thinks is more probably from the German.

That which bloweth, or breatheth, or which we breathe; which we inspire or expire, inhale or exhale. To wind,—

To blow, to breathe; to inspire, to inhale, (by the nostrils,) to scent, to smell.

Ac com here to Engolond mid the nexte wynd.
R. Gloucester, p. 55.

The king of Alemaine was in a windmulle inome.
Id. p. 547.

& sent Richard to say. the next Marche folowand
He suld take that way, if wynd wild with him stand,
At Marsile to aryue.—R. Brunne, p. 145.

As wroth as the wynd. waxe Mede ther after.
Piers Ploughman, p. 62.

And men wondriden and seiden, what maner man is he this, ior the wyndis and the see obeischen to him!
Wiclif. Matt. c. 8.

And the men marueyled and sayde: what man is thys, that bothe wyndes and sea obey hym?—Bible, 1551. Ib.

There saw I Coll Tragetour
Upon a table of sicamour
Play an vncouth thing to tell,
I saw him carry a wind mell
Under a walnote shell.—Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii.

This king of which thou hast herde sein,
From Troie as he goth home ageine
By ship, he founde the sea diuerse,
With many a windie storme reuerse.
Gower. Con. A. b. vi.

Herein his mercifull prouidence is most admirable, that vpon a lee-shore subiect vnto a perpetuall easterly gale, neither much wind can endanger shipping, by reason that the foule heanie water is not capable of vehement motion, and the soft light oaze, if they touch, cannot bruise them: nor is there any ieopardie in beeing wind-bound, or imbayed.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 673.

At a southeast sunne we weyed, and turned to the windwards, the winde being at eastsoutheast.
Id. Ib. vol. i. p. 276.

Whan the kynge with his company was comyn into the feelde where the sayd wynde-mylle stādith, he houyd there well vpon halfe an houre, to see what the other company wolde doo.—Fabyan. Chronycle. John of France, an. 1364.

Anaximander is of opinion, that the wind is a fluxion of the aire; when as the most subtile and liquid parts thereof be either stirred, or melted and resolved by the sun.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 679.

Semblably it fareth with those who are fallen to decay and be down the wind.—Id. Ib. p. 90.

All clad in Lincoln green, with caps of red and blue,
His fellow's winded horn, not one of them but knew,
When setting to their lips their little beagles shrill,
The warbling echoes wak'd from every dale and hill.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 26.

When hee [Protogenes] had done the dog in all parts to the contentment of his owne mind (and that ywis was a verie hard and rare matter with him) hee could not satisfie and please himselfe in expressing the froth which fell from his mouth as he panted and blowed almost windlesse with running.—Holland. Pline, b. xxxv. c. 10.

For, still he far'd as dancing in delight,
And in his hand a windy fan did beare,
That in the idle aire he mov'd still here and there.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 12.

As when a windie tempest bloweth hie,
That nothing may withstand his stormy stoure,
The clowdes (as things afraid) before him fly.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 8.

In this disease, it were better for to represse the said windinesse and flatuositie.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxviii. c. 19.

Like as the wearie hounds at last retire,
Windlesse, displeased, from the fruitlesse chase,
When the slie beast tapisht in bush and brire,
No art nor paines can rowse out of his place.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Boylogne, b. vii.

But the horse whose appointed shipping lay wind-bound eight mile upward in another hav'n, had much trouble to imbark.—Milton. History of England, b. ii.

It is said, that the egges laid by foules, called wind-egges, as they proceed of imperfect and false conceptions, so they are the rudiments and beginnings of such fruits as never will quicken and have life.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 43.

That [pipe] which beareth more outward, and is called the rough arterie, or the wind-wipe, reacheth unto the lungs and heart.—Id. Plinie, b. xi. c. 25.

Pab. Come, we'll consider more; stay, this Should be another wind-fall of the wars.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Captain, Act ii. sc. 1.

—— White as chaste, and pure
As wind-fan'd snow, who to thy femal knights
Allow'st no more blood than will make a blush,
Which is their order's robe.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Two Noble Kinsmen, Act v. sc. 1.

So soone as the grasse is cut downe and laid in swath, it must bee tedded, brought into windrowes, and turned eftsoones with the sunne.—Holland. Plinie, b. xviii. c. 28.

To pass by other considerations, whereby I might demonstrate the winds to be the infinite Creator's work, I shall insist only upon their great usefulness to the world. And so great is their use, and of such absolute necessity are they to the salubrity of the atmosphere, that all the world would be poisoned without those agitations thereof.
Derham. Physico-Theology, b. i. c. 2.

No consideration there will be had of their windy titles, of their gay attire, and glittering pomp.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 38.

He gave me, furnish'd by a bullock flay'd
In his ninth year, a bag; ev'ry rude blast
Which from its bottom turns the deep, that bag
Imprison'd held; for him Saturnian Jove
Hath offic'd arbiter of all the winds,
To rouse their force, or calm them, at his will.
Cowper. Homer. Odyssey, b. x.

Or where the beetle winds
His small but sullen horn,
As oft he rises 'midst the twilight path,
Against the pilgrim borne in heedless hum.
Collins. Ode to Evening.

In obedience, appeared the marquis of Barlo, and the marquis of Clerkenwell, with hunters who wound their horns.—Pennant. London.

His whisper'd theme, dilated and at large,
Prov'd after all a wind gun's airy charge,
An extract of his diary—no more,
A tasteless journal of the day before.
Cowper. Conversation.

WIND, v. Wi'NDER, Wi'NDING, n. Wi'NDLE. WIND-LACE. } Dut. Wynden, wenden; Ger. Winden, wenden; Sw. Wænda; Goth. Wand-jan; A. S. Wendan, or wind-an, vertere, flectere, torquere, to turn, to twist.

To turn or twist; to involve, to intwine, to wreath; to move, or cause to move, to guide—in a turning or bending line or course; to insinuate; to convert.

To wind up,—to close or conclude the convolution; to come or bring to a period, to a state of tension or tightness, fit for re-volution or re-action; to tighten.

Thou art so lothly, and so olde also,
And therto comen of so low a kind,
That litel wonder is though I walwe and wind.
Chaucer. The Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6685.

Ther may no man out of the place it drive
For non engine, of windlas, or polive.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10,499.

And with the clothes of hir loue
She hillid all her bedde aboute,
And he, whiche nothyng had in doute,
Hir wimple wonde aboute his cheke.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

He yode and mette with ye sayd Normans and slewe of theym the more nombre; for vpon Guylde Downe he slewe alway ix. and saued the x. and yet for he thought to many by that meane laft alyue, he eft agayne tythed agayne the sayd tythe, & slewe euery tenth knyght of theym, and that by cruel deth, as wyndynge theyr guttes out of theyr bodyes.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 209.

The Hollanders that rode in the mouth of the harborow, seeing our resolution, layd out haulsers, and wound themselues out of the way of vs.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 710.

By this wai he shewed furth his woord, by whom he would be knowen, as thoughe himselfe had spoken vnto vs: that being so knowē by the wonderfulnes of his meste fayre woorkemanship, he might wind himself into our inward mocions.—Udal. John, c. 1.

Amonge theis be appoynted a fewe horsemen to raunge som what abrode for the greater appearance, bidding them fetche a windlasse a great waye about, and to make al toward one place.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 206.

Peraduenture thys were more tolerable, in those that were perswaded of theyr elders, that there is nothing remaining of man after he is lapped in his wyndyng-shete.
Udal. James, c. 4.

He [Aristides] represented in a table the winning of a towne by force, wherin was pourtraied most lively a little infant winding it selfe and making prettie means to creepe unto the mothers pap, who lay a dying upon a mortall wound received in her breast.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxv. c. 10.

Davis followed the trail hereof which winded first towards the west and then towards the north.
Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1585.

Wife. What are you mad, to make me
Dress, and undress, turn and wind me,
Because you find me plyant?
Beaum. & Fletch. The Noble Gentleman, Act ii.

—— Let me wind thee in these arms,
Till I have banisht sickness.
Id. The Maid's Tragedy, Act ii.

About the mossie trunk I wound me soon,
For high from ground the branches would require
Thy utmost reach or Adam's.—Milton. Par. Lost, b. ix.

Wherein the winder shews his workmanship so rare
As doth the fleece excel, and mocks her looser clew
As neatly bottom'd up as nature forth it drew.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 6.

All plants that put forth their sap hastily, have their bodies not proportionable to their length, and therefore they are winders and creepers, as ivy and briony, hops, woodbine.—Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 536.

Berenice standeth upon the utmost winding and nouke of Syrtis.—Holland. Plinie, b. v. c. 5.

I come not to eat with ye, and to surfeit
In these poor clownish pleasures; but to tell ye
I look upon ye like my winding-sheet,
The coffin of my greatness, nay, my grave.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Prophetess, Act v. sc. 3.

To force the water which came upon the pioners from under the ground with devise of engines and windles up to the top of the hill.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxvi. c. 15.

The course lean gravel, on the mountain sides,
Scarce dewy bev'rage for the bees provides:
Nor chalk, nor crumbling stones, the food of snakes,
That work in hollow earth their winding track.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. ii.

It was called Dionysius's Ear, and built with several little windings and labrynths, in the form of a real ear.
Spectator, No. 439.

Vera. Just like the winding up of some design
Well form'd, upon the crowded theatre.
Dryden. Love Triumphant, Act v.

The windlass is a sort of large roller, used to wind in the cable, or heave up the anchor.
Falconer. Shipwreck, c. 1. Note 3

WI'NDOW, n. Wi'NDOW, v. Wi'NDOWY. } Skinner thinks the people of Lincolnshire more properly pronounce,—Windore: the door or passage for the wind. In A. S. it is Eaghthyrl, eah-thyrl: a bore, or hole bored for the eyes, or sight. In Sp. Ventana, from Viento, the wind; and the purpose of—

A window is,—to admit air and light; to permit sight or vision: the word is applied to the opening, and to the transparent material placed within it.

For we buldeth a burwgh, a brod and a large,
A chirch and a chapitle, with chaumbers alofte.
With wide wyndowes ywrought.—Piers Ploughman. Crede.

And many laumpis weren in the soler where we weren gaderid togidre, and a ghoung man Euticus bi name sat on the wyndowe.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 20.

And there were many lyghtes in the chamber where they were gathered together, and there sate in a wyndow a certayne yonge man named Eutichus.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Foure of his olde foos han it espied, and setten ladders to the walles of his hous, and by the windowes ben entred.
Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

And if the dore be so shette,
That he be of his entre lette,
He wyll in at the wyndowe crepe.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

And so the Inglyeshemen, that were hostes to these straūgers shoot fast their doores, and wyndowes, and wolde nat suffre theym to entre in to theyr lodgyngis.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 16.

And between these half columnes above, the whole room was windowed round about.—Reliquiæ Wottonianæ, p. 46.

Ant. —— Eros,
Would'st thou be window'd in great Rome, and see
Thy master thus with pleacht armes, bending downe
His corrigible necke, his face subdu'de
To penetratiue shame.
Shakespeare. Anthony & Cleopatra, Act iv. sc. 12.

How shall your house-lesse heads, and vnfed sides,
Your lop'd, and window'd raggednesse defend you
From seasons such as these?—Id. K. Lear, Act iii. sc. 4.

Let others freez with angling reeds,
And cut their legs, with shels and weeds:
Or treacherously poore fish beset,
With strangling snare, or windowy net.
Donne. The Baite.

These alone, as far as I can discover, are the windows by which light is let into this dark room: for methinks the understanding is not much unlike a closet wholly shut from light, with only some little opening left, to let in external visible resemblances, or ideas of things without.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 11.

The natural tendency of the window-tax, and of all other taxes upon houses, is to lower rents.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. v. c. 2.

WINE. / WI'NY. / WI'NELESS. } Goth. Wein; A.S. Win, wine; Dut. Wyn; Ger. Wein; Fr. Vin; It. Vino; Sp. Vino; Lat. Vin-um; Gr. Οινος.

The fermented juice of the fruit of the vine, and of other trees.

His vitaile he has purueid in Brigges forto be,
His wynes were ther leid, & warnised that cite.
R. Brunne, p. 293.

Whit wyn of Oseye and of Gascoyne
Of the Ruele and of the Rochel. wyn.
Piers Ploughman, p. 12.

For he [Saturnus] fonde of his owne wit
The fyrst crafte of plough tillynge,
Of earynge, and of corne sowynge,
And howe men shulde set vines,
And of the grapes make wines.—Gower. Con. A. b. v.

In anye wyse they [the Suevi] suffer no wyne to bee brought in unto them, bycause they thinke that thereby men are weakened and disabled to endure paynes.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 85.

What needeth a garland which is made of luie
Shewe a tauerne winelesse.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 197.

My good lord (saith he) [Androcydes unto Alexander the Great] remember when you take your wine, that you drinke the very blood of the earth: Hemlocke (you know sir) is poison to man, even so is wine to hemlocke.
Holland. Plinie, b. xiv. c. 5.

But being once well chafed with wine, having spent all the night, and some piece of the morning, in such revelling, and emboldned by your absented manner of living, there was no matter their ears had ever heard of, that grew not to be a subject of their winey conference.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. ii.

The leaf of the herb hath no fresh and lively hew, but resembleth a wineless weak wine as one may say, that either drinketh flat and hath lost the colour, or else is much delayed with water.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 560.

Then came October full of merry glee:
For, yet his noule was totty of the must,
Which he was treading in the wine-fats see,
And of the ioyous oyle.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vii. c. 7.

For as many [grapes] as have lien among wine-marc, or the refuse of kernels & skins remaining after the presse, are hurtfull to the head.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxiii. c. 1.

Ub. We shall have rain and thunder, boy.
Draw. When, Sir?
Ub. I cannot tell, but sure we shall, boy.
Draw. The gentleman is wine-wise.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Coxcombe, Act i.

Now, when the rage of hunger was appeas'd,
The meat remov'd, and ev'ry guest was pleas'd;
The golden bowls with sparkling wine are crown'd,
And through the palace chearful cries resound.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. i.

They are much like such grapes as grow on our vines, both in shape and colour; and they are of a very pleasant winy taste.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1687.

The cheapness of wine seems to be a great cause, not of drunkenness, but of sobriety. The inhabitants of the wine countries are in general the soberest people of Europe; witness the Spaniards, the Italians, and the inhabitants of the southern provinces of France.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iv. c. 3.

WING, n. / WING, v. / WI'NGLESS. / WI'NGY. } Sw. Winge, which Ihre derives from the Welsh Gwingo, to move often, to wag. Somner has Gehwing, angulus, a corner, a nook, a wing. The Dut. Quincken, or quicken, movere, agitare, motitare, tremulo motu ferri, to move, to shake, to move frequently, to be carried along by a tremulous motion, seems to express the action of a bird in its flight; and thus to account for the application of the name to—

The limbs by which a bird flies or moves through the air: it is also applied to any thing appended as sides to the main body; as the wing of a building, or of an army. And To wing—

To bear or carry, to move by, to act upon the wing; to fly or move in flight; to affix wings; to append or attach, as wings to the side. Also, to divest of; deprive of, the wing or use of the wing.

For that me schulde ys chauntement y se,
He lette hym make wyngon, an hey to fle.
R. Gloucester, p. 28.

Jerusalem, Jerusalem that sleest profetis and stonest hem, that ben sent to thee: hou ofte wolde I gedre togidere here chykens undir hir wyngis and thou woldist not?
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 23.

Jerusalem, Jerusalem whiche kyllest prophetes, and stonest them which are sent to the: how often would I haue gathered thy childrē together, as ye henne gathered her chickens vnder her wynges, but ye would not.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Before hire stood hire sone Cupido,
Upon his shoulders winges had he two.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1967.

Whan maistrie cometh, the God of love anon
Beteth his winges, and farewel, he is gon.
Id. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11,079.

Him thought how that the winged god Mercurie,
Beforne him stood, and bad him to be mery.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 1388.

This Dedalus, whiche fro his youthe
Was taught, and many craftes couthe,
Of fethers, and of other thynges
Hath made to flee diuers wynges
For hym, and for his sonne also.—Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

Whom, seeing flie, shee speedily persewed
With winged feet, as nimble as the wind;
And euer in her boaw shee ready shewed
The arrow, to his deadly marke design'd.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 7.

Next him was Feare, all arm'd from top to toe,
Yet thought himselfe not safe enough thereby,
But feard each shadow mouing to and fro:
And his owne armes when glittering he did spy,
As ashes pale of hew, and wingy-heeld.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 12.

Love, free as air, at sight of human ties,
Spreads his light wings, and in a moment flies.
Pope. Eloisa to Abelard.

There are fishes that have wings, and are not strangers to the airy region; and there are some birds that are inhabitants of the water, whose blood is cold as fishes.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iii. c. 6.

Of all the wing'd inhabitants of air,
These only make their young the public care;
In well dispos'd societies they live,
And laws and statutes regulate their hive.
Addison. Virgil. Georgics, b. iv.

They spring together, and swiftly bear
The flying youth through clouds and yielding air;
With wingy speed outstrip the eastern wind,
And leave the breezes of the morn behind.—Id. Ib.

Our freedom chain'd, quite wingless our desire,
In sense dark prison'd all that ought to soar.
Young. Complaint, Night 2.

The path that leads, where, hung, sublime,
And seen afar, youth's gallant trophies, bright
In Fancy's rainbow ray, invite
His wingy nerves to climb.—Beattie. Ode to Hope.

WINK, n. / WINK, v. / WI'NKER. / WI'NKINGLY. } A.S. Winc-ian, nivere, and also nuere; Dut. Wencken, winken; Ger. Winken; Sw. Wincka: which latter Ihre thinks may (as wing, also, qv.) be from the Welch Gwingo, to move often; and it is probable that wing and wink may be the same word, differently applied; the one (wing) to the motion of a bird in flight, and the other to the motion of the eyelid. To wink,—

To move (sc. the eye-lid); to drop, to shut, or cast down the eye-lid, (so as for the time to stop the sight;) and thus, consequentially, to avoid seeing, or pretend not to see; to connive; to pass or let pass without notice.

A wink—is used as a signal, not intended to be seen publicly. See WENCH.

Al the welthe of this worlde, & the woo bothe
Wynkyng as it were. wyterly ich saw hyt.
Piers Plouhman, p. 2.

Tho wepte ich for wo. and wrathede of hus wordes
And in a wynkynge ich worth. and wonderliche ich mete.
Id. p. 192.

He wold so peine him, that with both his eyen
He muste winke, so loude he wolde crien.
Chaucer. The Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15,313.

Thou shalt no more thurgh thy flaterie
Do me to sing and winken with myn eye.
For he that winketh, whan he shulde see,
Al wilfully, God let him never the.—Id. Ib. v. 15,437.

For ofte, who that hede toke,
Better is to wynk than to loke. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

But Thoas at same throwe,
When Anthenor this iewell toke,
Wynkand cast awey his loke,
For a deceite, and for a wile. Id. Ib. b. v.

Because it was night wee stayed in the sea, where we and our shippes were not a little troubled, so that all that night none of vs slept a winke, but watched euery one.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 415.

But to thentente that peace and concorde maye amonge you bee maintained and stedfastly abyde, certaine thinges muste bee wynked at, some thinges muste bee suffered, and some thinges must gently be taken.—Udal. Romaines, c. 14.

Mer. Will the shaking of a shaft strike them into such a fever of affection?
Cup. As well as the wink of an eye.
B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act v. sc. 3.

Bes. But was not this a brave combate, Mardonius?
Mar. Why, did'st thou see't?
Bes. You stood wi'me.
Mar. I did so, but me thought thou wink'dst every blow they strook.—Beaum. & Fletch. A King & No King, Act i.

—— So, so, he's fast;
Fast as a fish i' th' net, he has winking powder
Shall work upon him to our wish.
Id. The Night Walker, Act iv.

Over and besides, among the Indians be certaine philosophers, whom they call Gymnosophists, who from sunne rising to the setting thereof are able to endure all the day long, looking full against the sunne, without winking or once moving their eies.—Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 2.

K. They do winke and yeeld, as loue is blind and enforces.
B. They are then excus'd, my lord, when they see not what they doe.
K. Then, good my lord, teach your cousin to consent winking.
B. I will winke on her to consent, my lord, if you will teach her to know my meaning.
Shakespeare. Hen. V. Act v. sc. 2

If some alluring girl, in gliding by,
Shall tip the wink, with a lascivious eye,
And thou, with a consenting glance, reply.
Dryden. Persius, Sat. 4

The sullen tyrant slept not all the night,
But lonely walking by a winking light,
Sobb'd, wept, and groan'd, and beat his wither'd breast.
But would not violate his daughter's rest.
Id. Sigismonda & Guiscardo.

While Hermes pip'd and sung, and told his tale,
The keeper's winking eye began to fail;
And drowsie slumber on the lids to creep,
Till all the watchman was, at length, asleep.
Id. Ovid. Metam. b. i.

A set of nodders, winkers, and whisperers, whose business is to strangle all others' offspring of wit in their birth.
Pope.

If one beholdeth the light, he vieweth it winkingly, as those do that are purblind; but if any thing that is black, he looketh upon it with a broad and full eye.
Peacham. On Drawing.

WI'NKLE. See PERI-WINKLE.

The winkles, as well of the land as the water, when they put themselves out of their shells, thrust out two hornes that they have, and they will plucke them in againe when they list. Eies have they none to see withall; and therefore these little hornes serve them in good stead, to sound as it were and trie the way as they go.
Holland. Plinie, b. ix. c. 32.

WI'NNOW, v. / WI'NNOW, n. / WI'NNOWER. / WI'NNOWING, n. } A.S. Wyndwian, ventilare: To blow, to beat with the wind, to fan; to blow (sc.) the chaff from the grain: generally—to part, to separate; to sift.

Whos wynewing tool in his hond: and he schal purge his flore of corn, and he schal gader the wheete into his bern: but the chaffis he schal brenne with fier unquenchable.
Wiclif. Luk, c. 3.

And with his fanne which no man shal be hable to auoyde, he shal make clene ye floore of his winowing place, & there shal he winowe euery creature, trying them with ye wind of the crosse & affliccions.—Udal. Luk, c. 3.

For as a winnower pourgeth the chaffe from the corne, and the boulter tryeth oute the branne from the meale: so hath Erasmus scoured oute of all the doctours and commentaries vpon scriptures, the dregges, whiche, through the faulte of the times or places in whiche those writers liued, had setled it selfe emong the pure and fyne substaunce.
Id. Ib. Pref

As for the winnowing, vanning, and laying up either of corne or pulse, they would have it done in the old moone, about the last quarter.—Holland. Plinie, b. xviii. c. 32.

—— With steddie wing
Now on the polar windes, then with quick fann
Winnows the buxom air, till within soare
Of towring eagles, to all the fowles he seems
A phœnix. Milton. Paradise Lost, b. v.

But in warm weather, when the skies are clear,
By day light reap the product of the year:
And in the sun your golden grain display,
And thrash it out, and winnow it by day.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. i.

Emp. All may be foes; or how to be distinguish'd,
If some be friends?
Send. They may with ease be winnow'd.
Dryden. Don Sebastian, Act ii. sc. 1.

But the reciprocal discussion of interesting questions is conducive to the discovery of truth, as the winnowing of wheat separates it from chaff.
Knox. Winter Evenings, Even. 70.

WI'NTER, v. / WI'NTER n. / WI'NTERING, n. / WI'NTERLY. } Goth. Wintrus; A. S. Winter; Dut. Ger. and Sw. Winter, which Skinner, Martinius, and others think so called because it is the windy season of the year;—Ihre remarks,—that in Isl. it is Wetur, perhaps the wet season. But Watchter suggests, that Wet-ur may be from the more genuine word Vintr or ventr, from the Isl. verb Vanta, deficere, (i.e. to wane—A. S. Wan-ian,) to decrease, to decay; the season when all nature decays. It may be—when the length of the day is waned, or decreased.

Lese lasteth ther al the wynter.—R. Gloucester, p. 43.

In Wales it is fulle strong to werre in wynter tide.
For wynter is ther long, whan Somer is here in pride.
R. Brunne, p. 240.

Bote as an hosebonde hopeth. after an hard wynter
Yf God gyveth hym the lif. to have a good hervest.
Piers Ploukman, p. 212.

Preye ye that youre fleyng be not maad in wynter, or in the sabotis, for thanne schal be greet tribulacioun what manere hath not be fro the bigynnyng of the world til now, neither schal be maad.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 24.

But praye that youre flyght be not in the wynter, nether on the saboth daye. For then shal be greate tribulacion, suche as was not from the begynnynge of the world to this time, nor shal be.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

But peraduenture I schal dwelle at you, or also dwelle the wyntir, that ghe lede me whidur euer I schal go.
Wiclif. 1 Corynth. c. 16.

Wyth you peraventure I wyll abyde a while: Or els wynter, yᵗ ye may brynge me on my way whithersoeuer I goe.,
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And aftir three monethis we schippiden in a schip of Alisaundre that hadde wyntrid in the yle, to which was an excellent signe of castorus.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 28.

After thre monethes we departed in a ship of Alexandry, whiche had wintered in ye yle, whose badge was Castor and Pollux.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Fetis she was, and smale to se
No wintred browes had she.—Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Nowe be there lustie somer floures,
Nowe be there stormie winter shoures
Now be the daies, now be the nightes,
So stant there nothyng all vprightes.
Gower. Con. A. Prol.

You may then after your first setting foorth, search and discouer somewhat further then you had discouered before your wintering, so farre as you shall thinke conuenient.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 434.

I'll study for thy punishment, and it shall last Longer and sharper than a tedious winter.
Beaum. & Fletch. Cupid's Revenge, Act iv.

Petru. Pray farewell. Is there no keeping
A wife to one man's use? no wintering
These cattel without straying?
Id. The Woman's Prize, Act iii. sc. 3.

The air growing more winterly in the month of Aprill, all places were in a manner overflown by the waters coming down.—Camden. History of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1595.

Hee compareth his carefull case to the sad season of the yeere, to the frostie ground, to the frozen trees, and to his owne winter-beaten flocke.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. January, Arg.

When either corne is winter-prowd, or other plants put forth and bud too earely, by reason of the milde and warme aire; if there follow any cold weather upon it, all is nipped, blasted, and burnt away.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 2.

See, winter comes, to rule the varied year,
Sullen and sad, with all its rising train,
Vapours, and clouds, and storms.—Thomson. Winter.

Death is a winter, that as it withers the rose and lily, so it kills the nettle and thistle.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 14.

Haste then, and thither let us take our flight,
Ere the clouds gather, and the wintry sky
Descends in storms to intercept our passage.
Rowe. Jane Shore, Act ii.

The first and on which the others depended, was the great dislike I had to be inactive for six or seven months; which would have been the necessary consequence of wintering in any of these northern parts.
Cook. Third Voyage, b. iv. c. 10.

Arcadian ease no longer charms,
For war and fame alone can please,
His throbbing bosom beats to arms,
To war the hero moves, through storms and wintry seas.—Falconer. Ode to the Duke of York.

WIPE, v. / WIPE, n. / WI'PER. / WI'PING, n. } A. S. Wip-an, ian, tergere. To move along, and in contact with, any thing; with the surface of any thing; to stroke.
To wipe, implies less pressure than to rub: and seems merely to denote—
A moving continuity of touch.
To wipe out, to clear off, or away.
A wipe, (met.)—is a blow, a stroke, a hit.

Thei woshe hym and wypede hym. and wonde hym in cloutes.
Piers Ploukman, p. 35.

And he turnide to the womman: and seyde to Symound, seest thou this womman? I entride into thin hous: thou gafist no watir to my feet, but this hath moistid my feet with teeris: And wipide with her heeris.—Wiclif. Luk, c. 7.

And he tourned to the woman, and sayd vnto Symon: seyst thou this woman? I entred into thyne house, & thou gauest me no water to my fete: but she hathe washed my fete wyth teares, and wyped them wyth the heeres of her heade.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Hire over lippe wiped she so clene,
That in hire cuppe was no ferthing sene
Of grese, whan she dronken hadde hire draught.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 134.

And as an hounde that goth to folde
And hath there take what he wolde,
His mouth vpon the gras he wipeth.—Gower. Con. A. b.v.

And whatsoeuer is done with ī the lawes of God, though it be wrought by the body, as the very wiping of shoes & such lyke, how soeuer grosse they appeare outward.
Udal. Romaynes, Prol.

——— Whom in her lap she laid:
The black swart gore wiping dry with her clothes.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

And gan recomfort her in her rude wise,
With womannish compassion of her plaint,
Wiping the teares from her suffused eyes,
And bidding her sit downe, to rest her faint
And wearie limbs awhile.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 7.

Where their maids and their makes,
At dancings and wakes,
Had their napkins and posies,
And the wipers for their noses.
B. Jonson. Masque of Owls.

As it [death] defaces all the world's glory, so it covers all disgraces, wipes off all tears, silences all complaints, buries all disquiet and discontent.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 14.

When therefore we see the deepest impressions of evil-custom, and the darkest stains of corrupted nature, thus suddenly wiped out and effaced, to what must we ascribe so total a reform, but to the all-powerful operation of grace?
Warburton. The Doctrine of Grace, b. ii. c. 1.

WIRE, v. / WIRE, n. / WI'RY. / WIRE-DRAW, v. } Perhaps, says Lye, from the Dut. Wieren, gyrare, circuire, to go around;—and Skinner knows not whether a gyrando, or from the Fr. Virer, to turn round.
Wire is applied to—
Metal spun, pulled, or drawn out into threads or fibres.
To wire-draw,—to draw out feebly into length.
Wiring, (in Fletcher,)—flowing in currents thin as wire.

The euen draught of the wier drawer, maketh the wier to been euen, and supplie werchyng. and if he stinted in his draught, the wier breaketh asonder.
Chaucer. Testament of Loue, b. iii.

It was adorned and decked with rich and precious stones abundantly, among the which one was a rubie, which stood a handfull higher then the top of the crown vpon a small wier, it was as big as a good beane.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 319.

And in one vessel both together meint,
Stills them with equal never quenching firing;
Then in small streams (through all the isle wiring)
Sends it to every part, both heat and life inspiring.
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 4.

In stead of yellow lockes she did deuise,
With golden wire to weaue her curled head;
Yet golden wire was not so yellow thrice
As Florimells faire haire.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 8.

This wyer mine own hair covers: and this face has been so far from being dear to any, that it ne're cost penny painting.—Beaum. & Fletch. Philaster, Act ii.

A thing so truely form'd, shap'd out by symetry,
Has all the organs that belong to man,
And working too, yet to shew all these
Like dead motions moving upon wyers?
Id. The Woman Hater, Act iii. sc. 1

There on the other side, I did behold
A woman sitting sorrowfully wailing,
Rending her yellow locks, like wirie gold,
About her shoulders carelesly downe trailing.
Spenser. Ruines of Time.

Where but by chance a siluer drop hath faine,
Euen to that drop ten thousand wiery fiends
Doe giew themselues in sociable griefe.
Shakespeare. K. John, Act iii. sc. 4.

You injuriously wier-draw him to presbyters, and foist in (seniores and præpositos) which are farre from the clause and matter.—Bp. Hall. Def. of the Hum. Rem. § 8.

Thou hadst land and thousands, thou spendst, and flungst away, and yet it flows in double: I purchased, wrung, and wier-draw'd, for my wealth, lost, and was cozen'd.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Scornful Lady, Act v.

Forty other devices I had of wiremen and the chandrie, and I know not what else: but all succeeded alike.
B. Jonson. Love Restored.

I profess not myself either skilled, or delighted, in mystical interpretations of scripture; nor am I for forcing, or wire-drawing the sense of the text, so as to make it designedly foretell the king's death and murder.—South, vol. v. Ser. 2.

It [mediocrity in poetry] is become a nauseous dose, though wrapped up in hot-pressed and wire-wove paper.
Knox. Ess. No. 174.

WIS, v. / WIST, v. / WI'STFUL. / WI'STFULLY. / WI'STLY. } See WISE. Wist is the past tense and part. Wis-ed, wis'd, wist. To know, to understand; to perceive, to think.
Wistful,—thoughtful, desirous, eager to know; and thus equivalent to wishful.

War thoru he wiste, how mony men in al the world were.
R. Gloucester, p. 60.

And if ye wisten what it is I wole mersy and not sacrifice: ye schulden never have condempned ynnocentis.
Wiclif. Matt. c. 12.

Wherfore if ye had wist what this saying meaneth: I require mercye, & not sacrifice: ye would neuer haue condemned innocentes.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Or we depart I shal thee so wel wisse,
That of min hous ne shalt thou never misse.
Chaucer. Freres Tale, v. 6998.

For she was stronge of frendes, and eke she
Confermed was in swiche soveraine bountee,
That wel he wist he might hire never winne.
Id. Doctoures Tale, v. 12,072.

My leve mother, quod this knight, certain,
I nam but ded, but if that I can sain,
What thing it is that women most desire:
Coude ye me wisse, I wol quite wel your hire.
Id. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6591.

What wolt thou sayn? thou wisted nat right now
Whether she were a woman or a goddesse.
Id. Knightes Tale, v. 1159.

He was an esy man to give penance,
Ther as he wiste to han a good pitance.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 225.

And she to his byddyng obeide,
And toke the sculle, and what hir liste
She drinketh, as she, whiche nothyng wist
What cup it was.
Gower. Con. A. b. i.

And finally, with a small company, he mounted on his horse, and retourned agayne into Bretayne, or the kyng or any other wyst wher he was be cō.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 69.

A wild beast there is in Ægypt, called Orix, which the Ægyptians say, doth stand full against the dog starre when it riseth, looketh wistly upon it, and testifieth after a sort by sneesing, a kind of worship.
Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 40.

Such like there are among the Triballians and Illyrians, who with their very eie sight can witch, yea, and kill those whom they look wistly upon any long time.
Id. Ib. b. vii. c. 2.

As they triumphing through the army ride,
Finding what prizes fortune here affords
To ev'ry soldier, and more wistly ey'd
This gallant pris'ner.
Drayton. Battle of Agincourt.

But when more wistly they did her behold,
There was not one that once durst be so bold
As to come near her, but stood all amaz'd,
Each upon other silently and gaz'd.—Id. Moon-calf.

A chrystall river on her bosome slid,
And (passing) seem'd in sullen mutt'rings chid
The artlesse songsters, that their musicke still
Should charme the sweet dale, and the wistfull hill.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 2.

She was perfectly confused by meeting something so wistful in all she encountered.—Spectator, No. 113.

His doleful wailings did resound,
More wistfully, by many times,
Than in small poets' splay-foot rhymes.
Hudibras, pt. i. c. 3.

The holy psalmist was ready to continue in life as long as God thought proper: but he considered the next world as his home, and could not forbear looking sometimes wistfully towards it.—Gilpin, vol. ii. Hint 99.

WISE. Wi'SELY. Wi'SENESS. Wi'SDOM. Wi'SELING, n. A. S. Wis, wise, prudens, sapiens; Dut. Weis; Ger. Weis; A. S. Wiss-an, wit-an; Dut. Wiisen, weten; Ger. Wissen; Sw. Weta, scire, noscere, intelligere. See WIST.

Knowing, intelligent, understanding; having or possessing, according or agreeable to, knowledge, understanding, prudence, experience, sound judgment; judicious, skilful.

Wise-acre, or, as Skinner writes it,—Wisaker, used commonly (he adds) to denote a fool, from the Dut. Wiis-seggher: a wise sayer. In Ger. Weissagen, vaticinari, to prophesy.

Wysore kyng byuore hym ther nas yseye non.
R. Gloucester, p. 428.

Gorloys, erl of Cornewayl, (that wysest was yholde,
And old, and mest hadde y seye) ys red first he tolde.
Id. p. 155.

Sir Simon de Mountford wisliche dude inou.—Id. p. 550.

Tho heo were alle ycome wisliche for to rede,
The bischop of London in this maner him sevde.
Id. p. 99.

Kyng he was thritti ger. he ladde this kyndom
Rygt nobliche and swithe wel with quoyntyse and wysdom.
Id. p. 84.

Wis man in the lawe knyght gode & curteis,
R. Brunne, p. 114.

This kyng of Tancrede he was a wys knyght.—Id. p. 151.

The bisshop of Durham bouht Saberg, with the wapentake.
The bisshop of Wynchestre at the kyng he bouht
Two maners tille his estre, & Richard wisly wrouht.
Id. p. 145.

William of Lyndesie & Jon le fitz Roberd,
Sir Lucas of Tame, thise grete thes misferd,
& alle ther squierie, & other that with tham nam,
Alle drenkled thorgh folie, & faut of wisdam.—Id. p. 241.

The constable of that castel. that kepeth hem alle
Is a wys knyght with alle.—Piers Ploughman, p. 178.

And hanslede hure on here name. er hue penys wente
What hue were witterly that wissede me so and tauhte.
Id. p. 16.

Yf thow hast wonne ouht wickely wisliche dispende hit.
Id. p. 140.

And yf hue wirche wisliche. by wys men counsail
Ich wolle forgyve hure alle hure gultes. Id. p. 38.

Zus seide the Samaritan. so thou myghtest repente
That ryght wisnesse thorgh repentaunce tow reuthe myghte turne.—Id. p. 335.

Patriarkes and pphetes. reprovede here science
And seide here wordes and here wysdomes. ne was bote al folye.—Id. p. 233.

Thanne alle the virgins risen up and arayeden her laumpis. And the foolis seiden to the wyse, give ye to us of youre oyle: for our laumpis ben quenchid.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 25.

Then all those virgins arose, & prepared theyr lampes. And the folyshe sayde to the wise: geue vs of your oyle, for our lampes goo oute.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

He that etith and drynkith unworthili, etith and drynkith wiseli, demynge the bodi of the Lord.
Wiclif. 1 Corynth. c. 11.

And he came into his cuntre, and taughte hem in her synagogis, so that thei wondriden and seiden, fro whennes this wisdom and vertues comen to this.—Id. Matthew, c. 13.

And came into his own countre, and taught them in their synagoges, insomuche that they were astonied, & sayde: whence cometh al thys wysedome & power vnto him?
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Whiche thingis we speken also not in wise wordis of mannys wisdom, but in the doctrine of the spyryt, and maken a liknesse of spyritual thingis to goostli men.
Wiclif. 1 Corynth. c. 2.

And my wordes & my preaching was not wt entisynge woordes of mannes wisdome: but in shewynge of the spirite and of power, yt your fayth shuld not stande in the wysdome of men: but in the power of God.
Bible, 1551. 1 Corynth. c. 2.

"No" (quod she) "and thou se a wise good man, for his goodnesse and wisenesse, wolt thou not do hym worship? Thereof he is worthie."
Chaucer. The Testament of Loue, b. ii.

Sike lay the manciple on a maladie,
Men wenden wisly that he shulde die.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 3993.

Yet was he blent, and God wot, so ben mo,
That wenen wisly that it be not so.
Id. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9989.

God bring you into right wisenesse.
Id. The Plowmans Tale.

Thus was he saufe with his nauie
This wise kinge through gouernance.
Gower. Con. A. b. i.

For if thou woldest take kepe,
And wisely couthest warde and kepe
Thine eie and eare, as I haue spoke:
Than hadst thou the gates stoke
Fro suche folie. Id. Ib. b. x.

But no man wote why thei be brought.
And netheles the kynge hath bede,
That thei be sette in priuie stede,
As he that was of wisdome sligh. Id. Ib. b. v.

Either of them [man or woman] excelling other in wit & wisdom, to conduct those things which appertaine to their office, and therefore where their wisedom doth excell, therein it is reason that each should gouerne.
Smith. Commonwealth, b. i. c. 11.

Well said the wiseman, now prov'd true by this,
Which to this gentle squire did happen late;
That the displeasure of the mighty is
Then death it selfe more drad and desperate:
For nought the same may calme, ne mitigate.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 8.

Therefore a god him sage Antiquity
Did wisely make, and good Agulistes call.
Id. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 12.

His morall wisenesse, his due obseruing of decorum euerie where in personages, in seasons, &c.
Id. Shepheard's Calender. Ep. to Master Harvey.

And as from senses, reason's work doth spring,
So many reasons understanding gain;
And many understandings, knowledge bring,
And by much knowledge, wisdom we obtain.
Davies. Immortality of the Soul, s. 25.

This may well put to the blush those wiselings, that shew themselves fools in so speaking.
Donne. History of the Septuagint, p. 214.

There were, at that time, on the bench of justices many Sir Paul Eithersides, hard, unfeeling, superstitious wiseacres.—B. Jonson. The Divelle is an Asse, Act v. sc. 5. N. 1.

I that am fully persuaded, that the infinitely wise God made all things in perfect wisdom, cannot satisfy myself why he should be supposed to print upon the minds of men some universal principles; whereof those that are pretended innate, and concern speculation, are of no great use; and those that concern practice, not self-evident, and neither of them distinguishable from some other truths not allowed to be innate.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. i. c. 4.

If we will disbelieve every thing, because we cannot certainly know all things; we shall do much—what as wisely as he, who would not use his legs, but sit still and perish, because he had no wings to fly.—Id. Ib. c. 1.

In strictness of language, there is a difference between knowledge and wisdom; wisdom always supposing action, and action directed by it. With respect to the first, viz. knowledge, the Creator must know, intimately, the constitution and properties of the things which he created; which seems also to imply a foreknowledge of their action upon one another, and of their changes; at least, so far as the same result from trains of physical and necessary causes.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. 24.

The wisdom of the Deity, as testified in the works of creation, surpasses all idea we have of wisdom, drawn from the highest intellectual operations of the highest class of intelligent beings with whom we are acquainted; and, which is of the chief importance to us, whatever be its compass or extent, which it is evidently impossible that we should be able to determine, it must be adequate to the conduct of that order of things under which we live.—Id. Ib.

WISE. See GUISE. Dut. Wiise; Ger. Weise. See WISE, adj.

A. S. Wise,—a manner, mode, fashion, condition, custom, (Somner.) A known manner, or method.

What is the cause alas, quod shee.
My father, that ye shulden bee
Dead, and destroied in suche a wise?
Gower. Con A. b i.

And take into remembraunce,
If thou might gete Pacience,
Whiche is the leche of all offence,
As tellen vs the olde wise. Id. Ib. b. iii.

And after he had thus venquysshed the Romaynes, he helde this lande a certayne of tyme in peasyble wyse.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 65

Who rich arrayd, and yet in modest guize,
In goodly garments, that her well became,
Faire marching forth in honourable wize,
Him at the threshold met, and well did enterprize.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

WISH, v. WISH, n. Wi'SHABLE. Wi'SHER. Wi'SHING, n. Wi'SHFUL. Wi'SHFULLY. Wi'SHLY. A. S. Wisc-ian, ge-wisc-ian; Dut. Wenschen; Ger. Wunschen; Sw. Onska, optare, cupere, to desire. Wachter suggests the Isl. Œskia, which he asserts to be from the Gr. Αξιουν, petere, to ask. It is more probably formed upon the A. S. verb, Wissian, to know, to ken, to see, to look; and hence,—

To look after eagerly, desirously; to desire.

See the quotation from Cogan. Gower writes—Wisse. See the quotation from him in v. Wit.

Goude wil goude worde. bothe whusshen and wylnen
Alle manere of men, mercy and forgevenesse.
Piers Ploukman, p. 338.

He sette the herte in ieopardie,
With wishyng and with fantasie,
And is not trewe of that he seith.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

Therfore I wisshe and wolde faine,
That he were in some wise slain:
For while he stante in thilke place,
Ne gete I not my ladis grace.—Id. Ib.

Such a one as being aboundaütly anointed & replenished with the Spirit of God should be sent frō the same to bring the glad & wishable tidinges of saluacion to such as are meke & poore in spirit.—Udal. Luke, c. 4.

The young man here causyng hym to putte on his speccacles, and pore better and more wishely with his olde eyen vpon Saynt Johns ghospell.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 1134

Who trauels by the weary wandring way,
To come vnto his wished home in haste,
And meets a flood, that doth his passage stay,
Is not great grace to help him over past,
Or free his feet, that in the mire sticke fast?
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 9.

Rut. Speak softly sir, you do not mean to betray me,
I wisht the gallows, now th' are coming fairly.
Beaum. & Fletch. Custom of the Country, Act iv.

But when in Heav'n she shall his essence see,
This is her sov'reign good, and perfect bliss;
Her longing, wishings, hopes, all finish'd be;
Her joys are full. her motions rest in this.
Davies. Immortality of the Soul, s. 30.

And forth her bringing to the joyous light,
Whereof she long had lackt the wishfull sight,
Deuis'd all goodly meanes, from her to driue
The sad remembrance of her wretched plight.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 11.

Ant. And how stand you affected to his wish?
Pro. As one relying on your lordship's will,
And not depending on his friendly wish.
Ant. My will is something sorted with his wish.
Shakespeare. Two Gentlemen of Verona, Act i. sc. 3.

Iago. She that was euer faire, and neuer proud,
Had tongue at will, and yet was neuer loud:
Neuer lackt gold, and yet went neuer gay,
Fled from her wish, and yet said now I may.
Id. Othello, Act ii. sc. 1.

Cassio. I do attend heere on the Generall,
And thinke it no addition nor my wish
To haue him see me woman'd.—Id. Ib. Act iii. sc. 4.

Heere is my bed, sleepe giue thee all his rest.
Her. With halfe that wish, the wishers eyes be prest.
Id. Midsummer Nights Dreame, Act ii. sc. 3.

——— Had I great Juno's power,
The strong wing'd Mercury should fetch thee vp,
And set thee by Joues side. Yet come a little,
Wishers were euer fooles.
Id. Anthony & Cleopatra, Act iv. sc. 13.

You cannot behold a covetous spirit walk by a goldsmith's shop without casting a wishful eye at the heaps upon the counter.—Spectator, No. 250.

Desire in a lax sense, respects only actions and events that depend not on us; as when I desire that my friend may have a son to represent him; or that my country may flourish in arts and sciences; but such internal act is more properly termed a wish than desire.
Kaims. Elements of Criticism, vol. i. p. 42.

A wish is an inactive desire. It is the result of that longing after happiness so natural to man, in cases where no expectations can be formed, no efforts can be made.
Cogan. On the Passions, pt. i. c. 2. § 3.

I sat looking wishfully at the clock; for which, to increase my satisfaction, I had chosen the inscription, "Art is long, and life is short."—Idler, No. 67.

We looked at the fruit very wishfully, but not thinking it safe to climb, we were obliged to leave it without tasting a single nut.—Cook. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 7.

WISP. Dut. Ghisp, flagellum; quispel, aspergellum: wischen, to wipe, (Skinner.) It is perhaps formed upon the verb to wipe.

A quantity, a bundle of any thing, fitted or used to wipe,—as a wisp of straw, to wipe a horse; a bundle of stalks, &c.

The virtue of that woman, were all the good deeds
Of all thy families, bound in one fagot,
From Adam to this hour, but with one sparkle
Would fire that wispe, and turn it to light ashes.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Knight of Malta, Act ii. sc. 3.

And yet he hath not done, but the same must be fast bound with wispes and wreathe of straw and litter aloft.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 14.

WIT, or WITE, v. WIT, n. WI'TLING, n. WI'TTY. WI'TTILY. WI'TTINESS. WI'TTICISM. WI'TTINGLY. WI'TLESS. WI'TLESSLY. WI'TLESSNESS. } Goth. and A. S. Wit-an; Dut. Weten; Ger. Wissen; Sw. Weta, (as Wachter thinks)—to see, to ken.

To wite,—to ken, to know, to perceive, to discern, to judge or adjudge; to censure.

And wit, (the noun),—

That which, the power or faculty which kens, knows, perceives, understands. See the quotation from Davies.

Wit is now more restricted in its application. See the quotations from Locke, and the Spectator. It is also applied to the person.

The wits,—the senses.

The byssop hym ansuerede, and the abbod Dynok,
Al myd grete resons and wyt of her boc,
That wan hii adde hem sulus erchebyssop and kyng,
Hii ne ssolde to Englyss men abue [bow] rygt nothyng.
R. Gloucester, p. 284.

He sende aboute ys messageres (as yt ys y write)
To eche lond in al the world a certeyn forte wyte,
How mony schiren were in eche lond, & townes in eche schire,
And how mony men in eche toun. Id. p. 60.

He verde as a wytles mon, yt was deol to be hym ney.
Id. p. 216.

Of Marche the first day at the New castelle
Our kyng ther he lay, his purueiance so fel,
To Scotland for to go, to wite whi & what wise,
Ther kyng & other mo withsaid him his seruise.
R. Brunne, p. 271.

Jon the Baliol, no witte was in thi pol, whan thou folie thouhtis,
To leue the right scole. Id. p. 279.

Thei teld hem the processe of alle ther comon sawe,
& he as fole alle fresse fulle eth ther to to drawe.
Withouten his conseile, or the kynge's wityng.
Id. p. 216.

"Dame," said Tancred, "of trestels & borde
"Fulfille I salle in dede the kynge's witworde."
Id. p. 153.

The wyten witerliche in wam the wrong lyggeth.
Piers Ploukman, p. 49.

—— For wytly is treuthe
And conscience is of hus consail. and knoweth gow all.
Id. p. 31.

Lo in hevene on hy was an holy comune
Til Lucifer the lyere. leyved that hymselve
Here wittyour and worthiour. than he that was hus maister.
Id. p. 85.

—— Moneyles thei walke
With a good wil witlees meny wyde contreys.
Id. p. 152.

And the yghen of hem weren opened, and Jhesus thretepyde hem & seide se ye that no man wite.
Wiclif. Matt. c. 9.

Britheren, nyle ghe be maad children in wittis, but in malice be ghe children, but in wittis be ghe parfite.
Id. 1 Cor. c. 14.

Brethren, be not chyldren in wyt. Howe be it as concernynge maliciousnes, be chyldren, but in wyt be perfecte.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And further over ther they shul have defaute of all maner delites, for certes delites ben after the appetites of the five wittis: as, sight, hering, smelling, savouring, and touching.
Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

My wit is short, ye may wel understonde.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 748.

Whan tendre youth hath wedded stouping age,
Ther is swiche mirth that it may not be writen;
Assaieth it yourself, than may ye witen
If that I lie or non in this matere.
Id. Marchantes Tale, v. 9615.

And though that I be jalous, wite me nought;
Yet ben so depe enprented in my thought.
Id. Ib. v. 10052.

Pees, quod my lord, the next time I wol fond
To bring our craft all in another plite,
And but I do, sires let me have the wite:
Ther was defaute in somwhat, wel I wote.
Id. Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,422.

Lo thus expowned Daniell
The kynges sweuen faire and well
In Babylone the citee,
Where that the wisest of Caldee
Ne couden witte what it mente.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

For if Gregorie be beleued,
As it is in the bokes writte,
He dothe vs somdele for to witte
The cause of thilke prelacie. Id. Ib.

For no man maie his time lore
Recouer: and thus I am therfore
So ouer wroth in all my thought,
That I my selfe chide all to nought,
That for to muche, as for to lyte
Full ofte I am my selfe to wyte. Id. Ib. b. iii.

For as the man, which ofte drynketh
The wine, that in his stomake synketh,
Waxeth dronke and witles for a throwe,
Right so my lust is ouerthrowe. Id. Ib. b. vi.

Myn herte is wonderly begone
With counsaile, wherof witte is one
Whiche hath reason in companie,
Againe the whiche stant partie
Wisse, whiche hath hope of his accorde.—Id. Ib. b. iii.

What is he than so grosse wytted, and so blynde in iudgement, that vnderstandeth not, that there is no tyme, nor no one moment of tyme, in the whiche we haue not verye great nede, earnestly to call vpon God.
Fisher. A Godlie Treatise.

Whereafter he was striken with suche a fere, that his witte and coūsayl fayled hym to deuyse in such a case eny remedy.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 117.

Of the tyranny of this Maxencius, whenne Constantyne hadde wytynge, he assembled a great hoste of Brytons and Gallis, for to oppresse the malyce of ye sayd Maxencius.
Id. Ib

And if he hadde saide neuer a word, yet thou knowest well, what a wittie part it is, for a man to suspend his iudgement, and not be to rashe in geuing of sentence.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, Pref.

For there is no blyndnes more vncurable, then when a man is bothe wityngiye, and wyllynly blynde.
Udal. Marke, c. 3.

Therefore it was written twice by myself to Calais and Guisnes, more than ten days passed, that his majesty would it proclaimed, that whatsoever captain now newly appointed to levy bands of Italians, shall admit wittingly any soldier whereof is already under any captain, that, &c.
Surrey. Letter from Secretary Paget to Earl of Surrey.

And hym ye slaundre also. For he in the xx. chapter of the same boke, calleth your opinyon concernynge those marryages, a very wytlesse and wycked opynyon.
Bale. Apologie, fol. 146.

And sooth to say it is foolehardie thing,
Rashly to wyten creatures so diuine,
For demigods they be, and first did spring
From heauen, though graft in frailnesse feminine.
Spenser. Colin Clout's come home againe.

Subtil witted men in nothing so much miscarry as in the too much pleasing themselves in the goodness of their own conceits.—Hale. Rem. Ser. 2 Pet. iii. 16.

The wit, the pupil of the soul's clear eye,
And in man's world the only shining star,
Looks in the mirrour of the fantasy,
Where all the gath'rings of the senses are.
Davies. Immortality of the Soul, s. 25.

—— Now your counsels,
For I am at my wits end.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act iv.

After it [water] hath been made hote, it will become much colder than it was before, which I assure you came first from a most wittie and subtile invention.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxi. c. 3.

Of common wealthes, of states, of policie,
Of lawes, of iudgements, and of decretals;
All artes, all science, all philosophy,
And all that in the world was aye thought wittily.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 9.

No lease. I thinke, deserueth his wittinesse in deuising, &c.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. Ep. to Master Harvey.

The third in the discoloured mantle spangled all over, is Euphantaste, a well-conceited wittiness, and employed in honouring the court with the riches of her pare invention.
B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act v. sc. 3.

Perigot is well pleased with the doome:
Ne can Willy wite the witelesse heardgroome.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. August.

But if any will rashly blame such his purpose in choice of old and vnwonted words, him may I more iustly blame and condemne, either of wittesse headinesse in iudging, or of heedlesse hardinesse in condemning.
Id. Ib. Ep. to Master Harvey.

Ferd. I have transgress'd all goodness, witlessly
Rais'd mine own curse from posterity.
Beaum. & Fletch. Moral Representations.

The witlessely—malicious prosopopey, becomes wel the mouth of a scurrile masse-priest, and is worthy nothing but a scorne.
Bp. Hall. Honour of the Married Clergie, b. ii. § 7.

Where wilful wittlessness doth not bar against it.
Sandys. State of Religion.

As for the farthest cheek-teeth in a man's head, which be called genuini, (i. the wit-teeth) they come about the time he is twentie yeeres old; and in many at foure-score yeeres of age.—Holland. Plinie, b. xi. c. 25.

Men who have a great deal of wit, and prompt memories, have not always the clearest judgment, or deepest reason; wit lying most in the assemblage of ideas and putting those together with quickness and variety, wherein can be found any resemblance or congruity, thereby to make up pleasant pictures, and agreeable visions in the fancy.
Locke, Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 11.

I shall only add to it [Locke's account of wit] that every resemblance of ideas is not that which we call wit, unless it be such an one that gives delight and surprize to the reader.—Mr. Locke's account of wit with this short explanation comprehends most of the species of wit, as metaphors, similitudes, allegories, enigmas, mottos, parables, fables, dreams, visions, dramatick writings, burlesque, and all the methods of allusion.—Spectator, No. 62.

Indeed syllogism is thought to be of necessary use, even to the lovers of truth, to show them the fallacies that are often concealed in florid, witty, or involved discourses.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. iv. c. 17

This raving upon antiquity in matter. Horace has wittily described and exposed in one of his satires.
Id. Conduct of the Understanding, § 24.

I have heard (says one of them) of anchovies dissolved in sauce, but never of an angel in hallelujahs: a mighty witticism! (if you will pardon a new word,) but there is some difference between a laugher and a critick.
Dryden. The State of Innocence, Pref.

All the parts were acted to perfection; the actors were careful of their carriage, and no one was guilty of the affectation to insert witticisms of his own; but a due respect was had to the audience, for encouraging this accomplished player.—Tatler, No. 1.

He [Parker] did still courageously go on in a way of pleasing, and at the same time, exposing himself, and furnish'd his readers with matter only of laughter at him, and not at those whom he endeavoured to vilify, and was in 1682, and after, cried up as the main witmonger surviving to the fanatical party.—Wood. Athenæ Oxon. vol. ii.

The bard (nor think too lightly that I mean
Those little piddling willings, who o'erween
Of their small parts.) Churchill. Independence.

The affectation therefore of being witty by spreading falsehoods is by no means an allowable vanity.
Secker, vol. iii. Ser. 8.

WITCH, v. WITCH, n. WI'TCHERY. WITCH-CRAFT. } A. S. Wicc-ian, incantare, veneficis uti. Wicce, venefica, wicce-cræft. Wigl-ian, (see WILE;) Dut. Wichelen, hariolari; which, Kilian thinks, means hinnire, and to be applied to augury, from the peculiar custom of the Germans, recorded by Tacitus, of divining from the neighings of their horses. To witch or bewitch, (wiglian,)—

To enchant, to juggle, to use sorcery, (Somner;) to beguile or delude, cheat or impose upon the senses or understanding; to cheat them of their power; to subject or subserve them to (wicked) purposes.

And the werkis of the fleisch ben open, whiche ben fornycacioun, unclennesse, unchastite, lecherie, seruyse of false goddis, witchecraftis, enemytees, striuyngis, &c.
Wiclif. Galathies, c. 5.

The dedes of the flesshe are manifest, which are these, aduoutry, fornicacion, vnclennes, wantonnes, ydolatry, witchecrafte, hatred, variaūce, &c.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

There saw I playing jogelours,
Magiciens, and tragetours,
And phetonisses, charmeresses,
Old witches, sorceresses.—Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii.

And in the wise, as he hym dredde,
It felle, for all his witchecrafte.—Gower. Con. A. b. vi.

They spake so moche, and sayd, that the duchesse Valentyne of Orlyaūce, doughter to the duke of Myllayn, hadde wytched the kynge, to the entent to attayne to the crowne of Fraunce.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 220.

Besides the art magyck, sortilege, physnomye, palmestrye, alcumye, necromancye, chiromancy, geomancy, and witchery, that was taught there also.
Bale. English Votaries, pt. i. fol. 36.

Me ill befits, that in der-dooing armes,
And honours suit my vowed dayes doe spend,
Vnto thy bountious baytes, and pleasing charmes
With which weake men thou witchest, to attend.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

All as she gliding hides in boats of shell,
Darting her eyes, (where spite and beauty dwell.
Ay me, that spite with beautie should be arm'd!)
Her witching eye the boat and boy hath charm'd.
P. Fletcher. Pis. Ecl. Ecl. 5.

The wicked witch, now seeing all this while
The doubtfull balance equally to sway,
What not by right, she cast to win by guile.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 2.

—— Least this ugly wight,
(Since like a witch she look'd) through spels of night,
Might make her body thrall (that yet was free)
To all the foule intents of witchery.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 1.

In which him chaunced foule Duessa meet,
Mine onely foe, mine onely deadly dread,
Who with her witchcraft and misseeming sweet,
Inveigled him to follow her desires vnmeet.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 7.

—— [I] demand
What punishment your wisdom shall think meet
T' inflict upon those damnable contrivers,
Who shall with potions, charms, and witching drugs,
Practice against our person and our life.
Rowe. Jane Shore, Act iv. sc. 1.

If we can find in our hearts to take our leave of sin; if we can disengage ourselves from the witcheries of present allurement, if we can but get over the threshold of virtuous conversation, we shall find the rest beyond expectation smooth and expedite.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 17.

An old parrot he had in Brazil during his government there, that spoke, and asked, and answered common questions like a reasonable creature: so that those of his train there generally concluded it to be witchery or possession.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 27.

Strange things, the neighbours say, have happen'd here;
Wild shrieks have issu'd from the hollow tombs;
Dead men have come again, and walk'd about;
And the great bell has toll'd, unrung, untouch'd.
Such tales their cheer at wake or gossipping,
When it draws near to witching time of night.
Blair. The Grave.

To deny the possibility, nay, actual existence of witchcraft and sorcery, is at once flatly to contradict the revealed word of God, in various passages both of the Old and New Testament: and the thing itself is a truth to which every nation in the world hath in it's turn borne testimony, either by examples seemingly well attested, or by prohibitory laws; which at least suppose the possibility of commerce with evil spirits.—Blackstone. Commentaries, b. iv. c. 4.

WITCH-ELM. or WEECH-ELM. } Skinner knows not whether so called, because witches were supposed to assemble round it, or because they used it in their incantations.

It hath been tryed (for certain) that a cions of a weech-elm, grafted upon the stock of an ordinary elm, will put forth leaves, almost as broad as the brim of ones hat.
Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 475.

WITH. WITHI'N. WITHO'UT. WITHA'L. } A. S. With, withinnan, withuttan. With has descended to us from two different A. S. verbs, viz. With-an, to join, and (Goth. Wairthan) Weorthan, wyrth-an, to be. From the latter we have the compounds with-in and without; i. e. be in, be out. With, when from the verb Wyrthan, is equivalent to By, (the imper. of Be;) and Mr. Tyrwhitt considers the expressions with meschancé, with misaventure, with sorwe, to be parenthetical curses: and so far Tooke coincides—the literal meaning of those phrases being, (not, as Tyrwhitt thinks—God yeue, but,) Be mischance, be misadventure, be sorrow,—to him or them, concerning whom those words are spoken. Tyrwhitt also supposes—with evil prefe, with sory grace—to have the same meaning; from which Tooke dissents, believing with to be in those instances the imper. of With-an, to join. This difference of opinion shews that the distinction is not always manifest: in some cases it is clear enough, as—he was slain with a sword, he was slain with all his company. Generally speaking, when with denotes—instrument, cause, means, it is the imper. of Wyrth-an, to be: when it denotes—union, conjunction, it is the imper. of With-an, to join; and see WITH, n. Usage appears to have established some distinctions, where the meaning is the same; as he died with hunger, he died by poison.

With (Wyrth) denotes — cause, instrument, means.

With (With) denotes—union, conjunction, connexion, concomitance.

Within, be in, without, be out;—within-forth, be in doors, without-forth, be out doors. See FORTH.

With ys power the emperour bisegede hym anon.
R. Gloucester, p. 64.

With inne thre ger the kyng of France dyede.—Id. p. 37.

And when mon wilhouten eyr of hym to dethe were ybrogt,
Hys moder kun was ys eir, & ys fader kun rygt nogt.
Id. p. 42.

With a herde thei mette, a herte therof gan lance.
R. Brunne, p. 94.

For werre withouten hede is not wele, we fynde.—Id. p. 2.

Fair scho was, thei saiden, & gode withouten lak.
Id. p. 95.

A Breton sent that sond, he did for treson,
& Robert corn to lond, withouten other reson.—Id. Ib.

Withouten help of gow wyn it may I nouht.—Id. p. 261.

For he wele vnderstode of taliage was grete drede,
It suld neuer do gode, ne ther withalle suld spede.
Id. p. 145.

Hardknoute of Danmark payd not withalle,
That he suld bere the coroune, for he was born thralle.
Id. p. 51.

Hure araye wit hure rychesse. raveshede myn herte.
Piers Ploukman, p. 24.

Whit wyn of Oseye and of Gascoyne
Of the Ruele and of the Rochel. wyn.—Id. p. 12.

The wiche is bothe love and lyf. and lasteth with outen ende.—Id. p. 174.

The lengthe of a lenton, flesh moot I leue,
After that Estur is ycome, and that is hard fare,
And wednesday ich wyke withouten fleshmete.—Id. Crede.

And the tribune cam nygh and seide to him, seie thou to me wher thou art a Romayn? and he seide ghe. and the tribune answeride I with [by or by means of] mych summe gat this fredom, and Poul seide, and I was borun a citeseyn of Rome.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 22.

Then the vpper captayne came, and sayd to him: tel me, art thou a Romayn? He sayd: Yea. And the captayne answered: with a great sume obtayned I this fredome: And Paul sayde: I was free borne.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And the Farisees syghen, seiden to his disciplis, whi etith your maister with papplicanes and synful men.
Wiclif. Matt. c. 9.

Than Eroude seynge that he was disseyved of the astronomyens was ful wrooth, and he sent & slowgh alle the children that weren in Bethleem and in alle the coostis thereof fro two yeer age and withynne, after the time that he hadde enquerid of the astronomyens.—Id. Ib. c. 2.

For sche seide withynne hir silf if I touche oonly the cloth of him I schal be saaf.—Id. Ib. c. 9.

And a man seide to him, lo thi modir and thi breitheren stonden withouten forth sekynge thee.—Id. Ib. c. 12.

Then one sayd vnto him: behold, thy mother & thy brethren stande withoute, desyring to speake with the.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

If he that is named a brothir among ghou, and is a lechour or coueitous or seruynge to idolis, or a cursere or ful of drunkenesse or a raueynour, to take not mete with suche, for what is it to me to deme of hem that ben withoutforth? whether ghe demen not of thingis withynneforth?
Wiclif. 1 Corynth, c. 5.

Yf anye that is called a brother, be a fornicatour, or couetous, or a worshypper of ymages, ether a railar, ether a drounkard, or an extorcionar: with hym that is suche, se that ye eate not. For what haue I to do, to judge them whiche are without? Do ye not iudge them yt are within?
Bible 1551. Ib.

But he that blasfemeth agens the Holy Gost: hath not remissioun into withoute ende, but he schal be gilti of everlastynge trespas.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 3

Thou blynde Pharisee clense the cuppe and the plater withynne forth, that that is without forth be maad clene.
Id. Matt. c. 23.

Whanne that April with [by] his shoures sote
The droughte of March hath perced to the rote.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales, v. 1.

Whan Zephirus eke with [by] his sote brethe
Enspired hath in every holt and hethe
The tendre croppes.—Id. Ib. v. 5.

This ilke worthy knight hadde ben also
Sometime with [join] the lord of Palatie.—Id. Ib. v. 65.

A not-hed hadde he, with [join] a brown visage.
Id. Ib. v. 108.

And whan this riotour with sory grace
Hath filled with win his gret botelles three,
To his felawes agen repaireth he.—Id. Ib. v. 12,810.

"Pees, with mischance and with misaventure,"
Our hoste said, "and let him tell his tale."
Id. Ib. v. 6916.

Therfore his maister yaf him a quitance
And bad him go, with sorwe, and with meschance.
Id. Ib. v. 4410.

And I answer to that demand again,
Who saved Daniel in the horrible cave,
Ther every wight, save he, master or knave,
Was with the leon frette.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4896.

This purse hath she in with hire bosome hid,
And went hire way; ye get no more of me.
Id. Marchantes Tale, v. 9819.

And as thise clerkes maken mention,
She hath him sent a sherte fresh and gay:
Alas! this sherte, alas and wala wa!
Evenimed was sotilly withalle,
That or that he had wered it half a day
It made his flesh all from his bones falle.
Id. Monkes Tale, v. 14,131.

A better envyned man was no wher non.
Withouten bake mete never was his hous,
Of fish and flesh.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 346.

For as sayth Seint Gregory; to wretched caitifes shal be deth withouten deth, and ende withouten ende, and defaute withouten failing, for hir deth shal alway live, and hir ende shal ever more beginne, and hir defaute shal never falle.
Id. Persones Tale.

Thei were merie, and faire enough,
Echone with other plaide and lough
And fellen into tales newe.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

The daie was wondre hotte withall,
And suche a thurste was on him fall,
That he must other die or drinke.—Id. Ib.

While that the citee was a slepe,
Thei slowen all that was within,
And token what thei mighten wynne
Of such good as was suffisant,
And brenden vp the remenant.—Id. Ib.

It felt him on a daie desire,
Upon a riuer as he stode,
That passe he wolde ouer the floode
Without bote, and with him lede
His loue, but he was in drede
For tendresse of that sweete wight.—Id. Ib. b. ii.

For ought that I you telle can
Myn holy father as of dede,
I am withouten any drede,
And gilteles: but of my thought
My conscience excuse I nought.—Id. Ib.

With thee she talks, with thee she moans;
With thee she sighs, with thee she groans;
With thee she says: 'Farewel mine own!'
When thou God knows, full far art gone.
Surrey. A Descrip. of the State of the Lover.

Beware of the false prophetes that come to you in the clothinge of shepe, and yet withinfurth been rauenous wolues.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 281.

And gathering vp himselfe oute of the mire,
With his vneuen wings did fiercely fall
Vpon his sunne-bright shield, and grip't it fast withall.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 11.

Withinforth farther into the firme land, inhabite the Candei.—Holland. Plinie, b. vi. c. 29.

Assembling all his force and vtmost might,
With his owne sword he fierce at him did fly,
And strooke, and foynd, and lasht outragiously,
Withouten reason or regard.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 8.

The peeces of this earth, if a man doe breake, shew the own naturall colour which is not mixt: without-forth they be spotted.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxxv. c. 6

For whilst I know, by seeing or hearing, &c. that there is some corporeal being without me, the object of that sensation, I do more certainly know that there is some spiritual being within me that sees and hears.
Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 23.

A man of warm unaffected piety, of the greatest natural talents and the highest attainments, exercised in the assiduous study of the holy scriptures, replete with sacred learning, and withal deeply versed in that Pagan lore, in which, however, it may have been of late shamefully calumniated, the soundest divines have always been great proficients.—Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 20.

WITH, or WITHE, n. WITHE, v. WI'THY. } From Goth. verb With-an, to join; to conjoin, to connect, to bind. Applied to—
A tree (the willow) the boughs or twigs of which are used, to conjoin, to bind, to tie, to fasten; and to the twigs themselves. See WITHERS, of a horse.

He bar a bordon ybounde. with a brod lyste
In a weyth wynde wyse. ywrythe al aboute.
Piers Ploughman, p. 118.

Wee sawe also, while wee were on shore, the manner of their hanging vp of their fish and flesh with withes to dry in the ayre.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 192.

We found withies also growing like low shrubs and flowers like primroses in the sayd place.—Id. Ib. p. 101.

1 Ser. There a wyth take him, he makes more noise alone there, than ten lawyers can do with double, and a scurvy case.—Beaum. & Fletch. The Coxcombe, Act iii.

Stay but a while, and yee shall see him with'd, and halter'd, and stak't, and baited to death.
Bp. Hall. The Defeat of Cruelties.

Thirsil from withy prison, as he uses,
Lets out his flock, and on an hill stood heeding,
Which bites the grass, and which his meat refuses.
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 3.

I have been told of a withy tree to be seen somewhere in Barkshire which is increased to a most tremendous bulk.
Evelyn. Sylva, c. 29.

If they are made for fishing, then they are only 3 or 4 logs of light wood, of 7 or 8 foot long, plac'd by the side of each other, pinn'd fast together with wooden pins, and bound hard with withes.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1684.

The inside was both strong and regularly made of supporters at the sides, alternately large and small, well fastened by means of withes, and painted red and black.
Cook. Third Voyage, b. iii. c. 8.

The only furniture belonging to these houses that fell under our observation, is a kind of oblong vessel made of bark, by the simple contrivance of tying up the two ends with a withy, which not being cut off serves for a handle.
Id. First Voyage, b. iii. c. 8.

WITH-DRAW, v. WITHDRA'WER. WITHDRA'WING, n. WITHDRA'WMENT. } With (in composition) is said to denote opposition, resistance, negation, privation. Dut. Weder; Ger. Wider; A. S. Wither, contra, adversus; witherian, adversari, resistere. But to with-draw, e. g. implies a putting forth or forward; and then a drawing back from one person or thing to another; and considered in relation to that from which, &c. it denotes privation; but considered in relation to that to which, &c. it denotes a reunion; agreeably to the meaning of the word—With.

To draw back or away; to deprive; to take back or away; to retreat; to retire, to resume.

To kyng Cadwallad an angel auysyon brogte
Fram heuene, and bad hym wythdrawe of that he thogte.
R. Gloucester, p. 254.

The king of Alimayne sende specialliche inou
To king Jon, that he withdrowe him of is wou.—Id. p. 497.

He byheld toward the water, & hys grete herte wythdrow.
Id. p. 322.

It is forsothe God that worchith in us: and do ghe withouten ony withdrawinge whatsoevere ghe doon.
Wiclif. Laodicensis.

Withdraw the fire. leste it to faste brenne.
Chaucer. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,892.

And whan him thought it was enough,
Againe the daie he him withdrough
So priuely, that she ne wiste
Where he become. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

The rumoure was somedele appeasyd; in so moche that the great multytude was withdrawen and retournyd to theyr occupacyons.—Fabyan. Chronycle. Charlys VII. an. 1380.

Besydes theis, a great multitude of vnthifts and cut throtes were flocked thither out of all Gallia, of those sorte of rascals whom hope of spoile and desyre of warre had withdrawen from husbandrye and daylye labor.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 76.

There be diuers greuous fautes, that are made light by the honest withdrawyng of them.—Golden Boke, Let. 5.

But his punishment is; first, the withdrawing of his favour and grace, and in leaving his hand to rule the stern to let the ship run without guide to its own destruction.
Wyat. Letter to his Son.

These are such of whom the apostle speaks, they are given over to believe a lie, they are delivered to a reprobate mind. And this often happens, and particularly in those cases wherein one sin is inferr'd by another naturally, or morally, or by withdrawing of the divine grace.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. i. c. 1.

He was not a withdrawer of the corn, but a seller.
Outred. Tr. of Cope on Prov. (1580.)

Our Maker designing the preservation of our being, has annexed pain to the application of many things to our bodies, to warn us of the harm that they will do, and as advices to withdraw from them.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 7.

Whenever he employs any part of it in maintaining unproductive hands of any kind, that part is from that moment withdrawn from his capital, and placed in his stock reserved for immediate consumption.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. ii. c. 3.

The absence of the sun in the night, is not the cause of the falling of the dew at that time, in the same manner as its beams are the cause of the ascending of the vapours in the day-time; and its withdrawment in the winter, is not in the same manner the cause of the freezing of the waters, as its approach in the spring is the cause of their thawing.
Edwards. On the Will, pt. ii. s. 3.

WI'THER, v. WI'THEREDNESS. WI'THERLING, n. } A. S. Ge-wyther-od. Junius thinks,—to wither is to wether, because those things are said to wither which, after their time of flowering is complete, languish and decay.

To dry or shrivel, to fade, to decay, to shrink.

His widdred wede fro him the wind out wore.
Chaucer. Testament of Creseide.

We must nedes well know that all these braunches of heretikes fallen from the church, the vine of Christes misticall body, seme thei neuer so freshe & grene, bee yet in dede but witherlinges & wyther, & shal drye vp, able to serue for nothing, but for the fyre.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 186.

The gouernment of ye whole host was committed to Camulogenus an Aulerk, who albeit he were almost wythered for age, yet for his singuler knowledge in feats of war, he was called to that honor.—Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 214.

As budding branch rent from the natiue tree,
And throwen forth, till it be withered:
Such is the state of men: thus enter wee
Into this life with woe, and end with miseree.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

In children many time an hope of excellent things appears, which in riper age for want of cherishing, fades and withers away: a certain sign that nature is not so weak as parents and tutors are negligent.
Hales. Rem. Ser. on Philip. iv. 13.

The dead witheredness of good affections; [here ye shall receive] life and vigour.—Bp. Hall. Cont. Pool of Bethesda.

Terrour is thine, and wild amazement flung
From out thy chariot, withers ev'n the strong:
And disarray and shameful rout ensue,
And force is added to the fainting crew.
Dryden. Palamon & Arcite, b. iii.

"Let every member be made for its own head," says our author, "not a withered hand to a young face."
Id. Parallel between Poetry & Painting.

I've seen the time, when, on that wither'd thorn,
The blooming rose vied with the blushing morn.
With fragrant wreaths I thence have deck'd my head,
And see how leafless now, and how decay'd!
Congreve. Ovid. Art of Love, b. iii.

WI'THERS. The joints of the shoulders; from Goth. With-an, to join. See WITH.

The poore iade is wrung in the withers, out of all cesse.
Shakespeare. 1 Pt. Hen. IV. Act ii. sc. 1.

Youre maiestie, and wee that haue free soules, it touches vs not: let the gall'd iade winch: our withers are vnwrung.
Id. Hamlet, Act iii. sc. 2.

WITH-GO, v. To go against; act in opposition to.

On the contrary we have Esau condemned and stigmatized for a profane and a vain person, who for one little eating-bout, one mess of pottage, (for a little present satisfaction of sense, or for the sustenance of this frail life,) did withgo his birthright, that emblem of spiritual blessings and privileges.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 15.

WITH-HOLD, v. WITHHO'LDER. WITHHO'LDING, n. } To keep or hold back; to retain, to restrain; to prevent or hinder.

Alfrede was eldest, non mot his wille withhald.
R. Brunne, p. 52.

And bote yf yt be payed prestliche. the payer is to blame
Ac by the bok that bit. no body to wit holde
The hure of hus hywe. over eve til a morwe.
Piers Ploughman, p. 53.

Whether ghe holden not that ghit whanne I was at ghou I seide these thingis to ghou? and now what withholdith ghe witen that he be schewid in his tyme.
Wiclif. 2 Tessal, c. 2.

Remember ye not, that when I was yet wyth you, I tolde you these thynges? And nowe ye knowe what withholdeth: euen that he myghte be vttered at hys tyme.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

He sette not his benefice to hire,
And lette his shepe acombred in the mire,
And ran unto London, unto Seint Poules,
To seken him a chanterie for soules,
Or with a brotherhede to be withholde.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 514.

A lion roring, and a bere hungrie, ben like to cruel lordes, in withholding or abregging of the hire or of the wages of servantes, or elles in usurie, or in the withdrawing of the almesse of poure folk.—Id. Persones Tale.

Dame, quod he, as yet unto this tyme ye han wel and covenably taught me, as in general, how I shal governe me in the chesing and in the withholding of my counseillours.
Id. Tale of Melibeus.

Tho was knighthode in price by name,
Wherof the wide worldes fame
Write in cronicles is yet withholde.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

The authour of it, is such a one as S. Paule speaketh of, Roma. i. whych withholding the truth of God in vnryghteousnesse, hath turned hys veryte into a lye.
Bale. Apologie, fol. 136.

Receiving the seale of salvation, the blessed sacraments at their hands, as at the hands of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all reverence, not disdaining to be taught and admonished by them, nor withholding from them as much as the least part of their due and decent honour.
Hooker. Ecclesiasticall Politie, b. viii.

The words are spoken against them that invade tithes and church rights; and that which is there threatened, happened to this withholder.
Stephens. Addition to Spelman on Sacrilege, p. 188.

Volition, it is plain, is an act of the mind knowingly exerting that dominion it takes itself to have over any part of the man by employing it in, or withholding it from any particular action.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 21.

If I have not bestowed these in sufficient measure to answer all his occasions, I will vouchsafe him all other lights to supply the deficiency, that nothing needful be witholden from him.
Search. Light of Nature, vol. ii. pt. iii. c. 29

WITH-SAVE. See VOUCHSAFE.

And few there is but first or last,
A time in love once shall they have;
And glad I am my time is past,
Henceforth my freedom to withsave.
Wyat. That the Power of Love excuseth, &c.

Now must I seek some other ways
Myself for to withsave;
And as I trust by mine essays
Some remedy to have. Id. He repenteth, &c.

That for a demonstration and assurance of his hearty good will towards us in that same he woll withsave by his familiar letter, &c.—Id. Let. No. 12.

The said Sir John Bushe in all his prepositions to the king, did not onely attribute to him worldly honours, but diuyne names and vnused termes, and to a mortall man not conuenient, for as oft as he spake vnto the king in his throne, he cast his handes abrode, as he had adoured and worshipped God, beseeching his excelse, high, and adorant malestie, that he woulde witsafe to graunt this or that.
Grafton. Chron. Rich. II. an. 21.

WITH-SAY, v. Dut. Weder-segghen; A. S. Wither-sæcgan, contra-dicere.

To contradict, to gainsay, to deny, to refuse.

Thor thou art mon off strange lond, & Cristene mon non.
And eke, thei ich wolde, my baronee wolde yt with segge echon.
R. Gloucester, p. 115

Kyng Philip did also, his baner was forth laid & right it felle therto, for no man him withsaid.
R. Brunne, p. 179.

Of Marche the first day at the New castelle
Our kyng ther he lay, his purueiance so fel,
To Scotland for to go, to wite why & what wise
Ther kyng & other mo withsaid him his seruise.
Id. 271.

Have thus commanded and made ordinance
That every cristen wight shal han penance
But that if he his Cristendome witheye
And gone al quite, if he wol it reneye?
Chaucer. The Second Nonnes Tale, v. 15,916

Whan Nestor hath this tale saide,
Ayene hym was no worde withsaide
It thought hem all he saide wele.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

There maie no man his hap withseyne,
It hath ben sene, and felte full ofte
The harde tyme after the softe. Id. Ib.

WITH-SET, v. To set against or resist.

Passage non he nam, the forthes wer withsette.
R. Brunne, p. 187.

He parted his wynnyng tille his men largely,
That nouther erle ne kyng wille withsitte his cry.
Id. p. 296.

—— Als they from messe came,
Sursante [rising] he tham mette, als thei fro kirke cam,
Ther way he tham withsette, smertly thore tham nam.
Id. p. 337.

So wel no life awaite can
Ayene his sleight for to caste,
That he his purpose at the laste
Ne hath, er that it be withset.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

WITH-STAND, v. WITHSTA'NDER. WITHSTA'NDING, n. Dut. Weder-stand, to stand against; to resist, to oppose.

So muche we habbeth euer y be in franchise get her to,
That thei oure owne Godes wolde in thralhede vs do.
Fonde we wolde a geyn hem our franchise withstonde.
R. Gloucester, p. 47.

Therfore of whom God wole he hath mercy, and whom he wole he endurith. thanne seist thou to me, what is sought ghit, for who withstondith his will?—Wiclif. Rom. c. 9.

For which thing he seith, God withstondith proude men, but to meke men he gyueth grace, therfore be ye sugett to God.—Id. James, c. 4.

Wherof a tale amonges all,
Whiche is great pitee for to here,
I thinke for to tellen here,
Than thou such murdre might withstonde,
Whan thou the tale hast vnderstonde.
Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

In the meane season he sent out euer by turnes the horsmen of Rhemes and Langres and of other cityes, of whom he had called foorth a great number, to sauf conduct the forragers and to withstand the sodein assaultes of the enemy.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 247.

Commenly they disputed with cheanes and imprisonmentes, to terryfye their withstanders.
Bale. English Votaries, fol. 49.

The first went with ladders into the dykes: they found no withstandyng, and passed the mire and dressed vp ther ladders.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 6.

Is not feare a thing naturall, and for mens preseruation necessary, implanted in vs by the prouident and most gracious Giuer of all good things, to the end that wee might not runne head-long vpon those mischiefes wherewith we are not able to encounter, but vse the remedie of shunning those euils which wee haue not the abilitie to withstand.
Hooker. Remedie against Sorrow & Feare.

Long had the Grecians (tir'd with fruitless care,
And weary'd with an unsuccessful war,)
Resolv'd to raise the siege, and leave the town;
And had the gods permitted they had gone.
But oft the wintry seas, and southern winds,
Withstood their passage home, and chang'd their minds.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. ii.

And, supream in wealth and grandeur,
Silence every bold withstander,
That shall dare to disobey.
Dodsley. Rex et Pontifex.

WI'TNESS, n. WI'TNESS, v. WI'TNESSER. WI'TNESSING, n. A.S. Witnesse; Ge-wita, one who witeth or knows. One who knows or is conscious, marks, observes, or takes cognizance; one who tells what he knows, sees or has seen, who gives evidence, or testimony; who attests.

Chaucer writes— Witnesfully.

"Myn heye godes," quoth this mayde, "to wytnesse I take."—R. Gloucester, p. 29.

Vor God, as hii seyde ofte, hii toke to wytnesse,
That bytuene hem neuere nas bote clannesse.
Id. p. 333.

William of Malmesbirie witnesse in his writte.
R. Brunne, p. 82.

The kyng perceyued nouht of that ilk desceit,
The chartre was forth brouht with wittness enseled streit.
Id. p. 214.

Wytnes on Wyclif, that warned hem trewthe.
Piers Ploughman. Crede.

Witnesse of holy wryt, who so can rede.—Id. Vision, p. 10.

And the prince of prestis and al the counseil souhten fals witnessyng agens Jhesus that thei schulden take him to deeth, and thei founden not, whanne many false witnesses weren come, but at the laste, tweyne false witnessis camen, and seiden, this seide I may destrye the temple of God & ʒit the thridde day bilde it agen.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 26.

The chiefe priestes and the elders, and all the councell, sought false witnesse agaynste Jesus, for to putte hi to death, but foũde none: in so much that when manye false witnesses came, yet foũde they none. At the laste came two false witnesses, and sayde: Thys felowe sayde: I can destroye the temple of God, and builde it agayne in iii. dayes.—Bible, 1551. Matt. c. 26.

Thou schalt not sey fals witnessyng.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 19.

Beare not false wytnesse.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And he seide, God of oure fadris hath bifore ordeyned thee that thou schuldist knowe the wille of hym, and schuldest se the rightful man, and heere the voice of his mouth, for thou schalt be his witnesse to alle men of tho thingis that thou hast seen and herd.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 22.

Wherfore I wot wel sikerly that they be deceived that say, they be not tempted in hir bodies—witnesse seint James that said, that every wight is tempted in his owen conscience; that is to say, that eche of us hath matter and occasion to be tempted of the nourishing of sinne, that is in his body.—Chaucer. Persones Tale.

For in this wise more clearly and witnesfully [clarius testatiusque], is the office of wise menne treated, than the blisfulnesse of power, and gouernours.—Id. Boecius, b. iv.

So that the lordes knowe shull
Of his batalle a sooth witnesse. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

Senecke witnesseth openly
Howe that enuie properly
Is of the court the comon wenche. Id. Ib. b. ii.

Of all that I hadde in charge I haue well and truely acquyted myselfe, and if nede be I shall proue it by the wytnesse of hymselfe.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 161.

When I speake of autoriti, I folow Tullies meanīg, who in the weightie importaunce of witnes bearing, attributeth autoritye vnto such as be wittie and welthy men, because of the comō peoples iudgemente, thoughe it be not alwaies aryght, as he sayeth, yet because it is not easly altred.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, fol. 38.

Euidences of writings be shewed, witnesses be sworn, and heard before them, not after the fashion of the ciuill law, but openly, that not only the twelue, but the iudges, the parties, and as many as be present may heare what each witnesse doth say.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. ii. c. 18.

He was now so well become a constant witnesser of the passion of Christ, that by crucifying the desires of his flesh, he gave an example of an heavenly conversation unto all his subjects.—Martin. Marriage of Priests.

For mee be witnesse all the host of heav'n,
If counsels different, or danger shun'd
By mee, have lost our hopes.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

Yee that in waters glide, and yee that walk
The earth, and stately tread, or lowly creep;
Witness if I be silent, morn or eeven,
To hill or valley, fountain, or fresh shade
Made vocal by my song, and taught his praise.
Id. Ib. b. v.

To be a martyr signifies only to witness the truth of Christ, but the witnessing of the truth was then so generally attended with this event, that martyrdom now signifies not only to witness, but to witness by death.
South, vol. i. Ser. 3.

My words to sacred truth shall be confin'd,
My deeds shall shew the greatness of my mind.
That I have lov'd, I own; that still I love,
I call to witness all the pow'rs above.
Dryden. Sigismonda & Guiscardo.

But some have appeared among its modern advocates, actuated, I am persuaded, (for their writings on this subject witness it,) by the same humble spirit of resigned devotion which gave birth to the plan of arbitrary predestination.
Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 19.

There is satisfactory evidence that many professing to be original witnesses of the Christian miracles, passed their lives in labours, dangers, and sufferings, voluntarily undergone in attestation of the accounts which they delivered, and solely in consequence of their belief of those accounts; and that they also submitted, from the same motives, to new rules of conduct.
Paley. Evidences of Christianity, vol. i. Introd.

WI'TTOL. WI'TTOLLY. A.S. Wittol,—sciens, conscius, knowing, witting, conscious or privy to. Hence,—

Wittoll, for a contented cuckold, (Somner.)

—— Do you not know, I know you are an ass,
And that you would most fain have been a wittol—
If fortune would have let you?
B. Jonson. Fox, Act v. sc. 1.

Come yee whose hornes the cuckold weares,
The whittoli too, with asse's eares.
Browne. Inner Temple Masque, sc. 2.

They say the iealous wittally knaue hath masses of money.
Shakespeare. Merry Wiues of Windsor Act ii. sc. 2.

Or rise to such a height in impudence,
As to presume to work my yielding weakness
To play for your bad ends, to my disgrace,
The wittal, or the pander.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Knight of Malta Act iii. sc. 1.

Whither wast thou wittol Ward, when hapless fate
From these weak arms mine aged grannam tore.
Smollet. Burlesque Ode.

WIVE. See WIFE.

WI'ZARD. One thought or pretending to be wise.

Whom Alma hauing shewed to her guestes,
Thence brought them to the second roome, whose wals
Were painted faire with memorable gestes
Of famous wisards.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 9.

[Countess of Derby] out of her womanish fancy and curiosity consulting with wizards or cunning men with a vain credulity and out of I know not what ambitious hopes, did in a manner lose the queen's favour a little before her death.—Camden. History of Queen Elizabeth, an. 1596.

For neither were ye playing on the steep,
Where your old bards, the famous druids, lie,
Nor on the shaggy top of Mona high,
Nor yet where Deva spreads her wisard stream.
Milton. Lycidas.

Besides, the prophecies of wizards old
Increas'd her terrour, and her fall foretold:
Scorn'd and deserted to herself she seems,
And finds Æneas cruel in her dreams.
Waller. Virgil. Æneis, b. iv.

WLA'PPIDE, i. e. Lapped.

And Joseph boughte lynnen cloth and took him doun and wlappide in the lynuen cloth & leyde him in a sepulcre that was hewen of a stoon and walewide a stoon to the dore of the sepulcre.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 15.

And this is a tokene to you, ye schulen fynde a yonge child wlappid in clothis, and leyd in a cracche.
Id. Luk, c. 2.

WO, or WOE. WO'FUL. WO'FULLY. WO'FULNESS. Goth. Wai; A.S. Wa or Wæ; Dut. Wee; Ger. Weh. Perhaps from the Goth. Waian; Dut. Waeyen; Ger. Wehen, flare, spirare; and thence, suspirare, to blow, to breathe, to sigh. And may not the Gr. Ova, Lat. Væ, be from the Gr. A-ew, to blow? There is little difference between the Greek and Gothic verbs. Woe will then mean,—

A sigh, (sc.) of grief; and, consequentially, grief, sorrow, lamentation, wretchedness, misery. See the second quotation from Chaucer.

Here elderne ther by fore were y nome in ostage
Fram the bataile of Troie, in wreche as it were,
For the grete slaugt and wo, that here kynde dude there.
R. Gloucester, p. 11.

And he bi com in hys baptizing hol of ys wo.—Id. p. 86.

Wo was alle his comforth, of sorow mot he gelp.
R. Brunne, p. 41.

Horses & hondes thei ete for hunger & for wo.—Id. p. 75.

Oo woe is passid, & lo ghit comen twei woos.
Wiclif. Apocalips, c. 9.

One woo is paste, and beholde two wooes come after thys.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Wo was his coke, but if his sauce were
Poinant and sharpe, and redy all his gere.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 354.

Wo was the knight, and sorwefully he siketh [sigheth].
Id. The Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6496.

He loketh howe his tyme is lore,
And is so wo begone therfore,
That he within his thought conceiueth
Tristesse, and so him selfe deceiueth.
Gower. Con. A. b. iv

And thus wepende she complaineth,
Hir faire face and all disteineth
With wofull teares hir eie. Id. Ib. b. i.

There was enough to wepe and crie
Amonge the moders, whan thei herde
Howe wofully this cause ferde. Id. Ib. b. ii.

This wiedow therefore testifieth the woefull tormenting of her hert, both with weping teres, & also with manie pieteous wordes of lamentacion.—Udal. Luke, c. 7.

Naturally the heart stuffed up with wofulness, is glad greedily to suck the thinest air of comfort.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. iii.

And looking up, whenas his shield he lak
And sword saw not, he wexed wondrous woe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene b. ii. c. 1

It is a wofull inheritance that makes men heires of the vengeance of God.—Bp. Hall. Cont. Eli & his Sonnes.

None but the robes of an infinite righteousnesse, can cover the soul so wofully dressed.—Id. Ib. Select Thoughts.

Woe was the knight at this severe command.
Dryden. The Wife of Bath's Tale.

One, whom like wofulness impressed deepe,
Hath made fit mate thy wretched case to heare,
And giuen like cause with thee to waile and weepe:
Griefe finds some ease by him that like does beare.
Spenser. Daphnaida.

That his sad mother seeing his sore plight,
Was greatly woe-begonne, and gan to feare
Least his fraile senses were emperisht quight,
And loue to frenzy turnd, sith loue is franticke hight.
Id. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 7.

Al. My royal mistriss' favour towards me,
Woe-worth ye sir, ye have poyson'd, blasted.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Loyal Subject, Act iv. sc. 3.

A vile encomium doubly ridicules;
There's nothing blackens like the ink of fools.
If true, a woful likeness; and, if lies,
"Praise undeserv'd is scandal in disguise."
Pope. Imitation of Horace, b. ii. c. 1.

Which now among you, who lament so wofully, and wish to imbrue your hands in your own blood, has suffered as he suffered, he in whom was no sin?—Knox, vol. vi. Ser. 5.

WOAD, or Wad, } A. S. Wad; Dut. Wede, weede; Ger. Weide; Fr. Guesde; It. Guado; Lat. Guastum, or glastum. Cæsar calls it Vitrum;—and vitrum, the Germans now call Glas, (Vossius.)

Woad: a thing of so great vent and vses amongst English diers, which can not be yeelded sufficiently in our owne countrey for spare of ground, may be planted in Virginia, there being ground enough.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 269.

Al the Britons doe dye themselves with woade, [vitro] which setteth a bleuish color uppon them.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 117.

But to goe no farther than into Gaule, there groweth an hearbe there like unto Plantaine, and they call it Glastum, [i. e. woad,] with the juice whereof the women of Brittaine, as well the married wives, as young maidens their daughters, annoint and die their bodies all over: resembling by that tincture the colour of the Moores and Æthiopians.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxii. c. 1.

In the meantime a proclamation was set forth to restrain the covetousness of some private men in England, who converted arable lands and the richest pasture-grounds to the sowing of the herb isatis, commonly called woad, for the use of diers.—Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1585.

WOLF. Wo'LFISH. Wo'LVISH. Wo'LVERING, n. } Dut. Wolf; Ger. Wolf; Sw. Ulf; A. S. Wulf; Goth. Wulfs, magno doctorum consensu, (Lye;) from Goth. Wilwan, rapere, diripere. (See Ihre, and Wachter.) Skinner thinks the animal is so called ab ululatu, from its yell or yelp.

For wen oure fon to ow [you] cometh, ge ne konne nogt bote fle,
As schep to fore wolues.—R. Gloucester, p. 100.

So fer bare a woulfe the hede, & kept it a grete while.
R. Brunne, p. 22.

Knoute went to the north, Suane in to the south,
Than was Eilred in the wolfe's mouth.—Id. p. 42.

Lo I sende you as scheep in the myddil of wolves, therfore be ghe slygh as serpentis: and simple as dowues.
Wiclif. Matt. c. 10.

Behold I sende you forth as shepe amõg wolves. Be ye therfore wyse as serpentes, and innocent as doues.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

As saith Seint Augustine, tho ben the devils wolves, that strangelen the shepe of Jesu Crist, and don worse than wolves; for sothly, whan the wolf hath full his wombe, he stinteth to strangle shepe: but sothly, the pillours and destroiers of holy chirches goodness ne do not so, for they ne stint never to pille.—Chaucer. Persones Tale.

The furres and fethers which come to Colmogro, as sables, beauers, minkes, armine, lettis; graies, woolouerings, and white foxes with deere skinnes, they are brought thither, by the men of Penninge.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 257.

Gov. I hold a wolf by the ear now:
Fortune free me.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Island Princess, Act v.

To omit my chief matter of the king's death, this wolfish shepherd, this counterfeit prince, hath traiterously, contrary to his allegiance, having made himself a servant and subject, attempted depriving this country of our natural princess: and therefore by all right must receive the punishment of traitors.—Sidney. Arcadia, b. iv.

Blush, folly, blush: here's none that fears
The wagging of an asse's eares,
Although a wolvish case he weares.
Detraction is but basenesse' varlet,
And apes are apes, though cloth'd in scarlet.
B. Jonson. Poetaster, s. 3.

——Here among the rest,
Inhumane Erisicthon too makes one,
Tantalus, Atreus, Progne, here are guests;
Wolvish Lycaon here a place hath won.
Crashaw. Sospetto D'Herode.

——For thy desires
Are woluish, bloody, sterv'd, and rauenous.
Shakespeare. Merchant of Venice, Act iv. sc. 1.

Shee'l flea thy woluish visage.—Id. K. Lear, Act i. sc. 4.

If a strolling wolf should light upon a lamb, it is not evidently known that he will tear the lamb: but there is such a natural propension in that kind to do it, that no body would much question the event.
Wollaston. Religion of Nature, s. 3.

Wolves infested Ireland many centuries after their extinction in England, for there are accounts of some having been found there as late as the year 1710.
Pennant. Brit. Zool.

WO'MAN, n. Wo'MAN, v. Wo'MANHOOD. Wo'MANISH. Wo'MANISHLY. Wo'MANISHNESS. Wo'MANIZE, v. Wo'MANLY. Wo'MANLINESS. } A. S. Wif-man. Man is a general term to include each sex; and the specific name Wif-man is given to the female, from her employment at the woof, and wæpman to the male, from his occupation in weapons of war. (See WIFE.) Applied to—

The female of man or human kind.

Womanish,—of or pertaining to, agreeable or according to, a woman or female; similar to or resembling a woman.

For ther nas knygt in monylonde, ny stalewarde man,
That in the o syde ther was, & al for a wommon.
R. Gloucester, p. 9.

Vor wat he ath manlyche bygonne, he yt ath byleuede Wommanlyche, as vor defaute of wyt of hys heuede.
Id. p. 457.

Kyng was Kynwolf sex & tuenty gere,
He was neuer wedded to a woman's daungere.
R. Brunne, p. 9.

Thãne hadde ich wonder in my wit what womman hue were
That suche wyse wordes of holy wrygt shewede.
Piers Plouhman, p. 16.

And the noumbre of men that eeten was fyve thousynd of men out taken wymmen and litel children.
Wielif. Matthew, c. 14.

And they that ate, were in nombre aboute v. M. men, besyde wemen and children.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

For of a thousand men, saith Solomon, I found one good man: but certes of alle women good woman found I never.
Chaucer. The Tale of Melibeus.

Now, lady bright, to whom all woful crien,
Thou glory of womanhed, thou faire May,
Thou haven of refute, bright sterre of day,
Rew on my child.—Id. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5272.

Let see now of your womanly pitee
He is a kinges brothers sone pardee.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 3086.

I see wel, that ye have on my distresse
Compassion, my faire Canace,
Of veray womanly benignitee,
That nature in your principles hath set.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10,801.

But of hir honde there is no dreade,
So well I know hir woman-heade,
That in hir is no more oultrage
Than in a childe of thre yere age.—Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

He sawe, where satte a creature,
A lothly womannishe figure,
That for to speake of fleshe and bone
So foule yet saw I neuer none. Id. Ib.

For fame, that can nothyng hide,
All daie woll bring vnto myn ere
Of that men speken here and there,
How that my lady beareth the price,
How she is faire, how she is wise,
How she is womanliche of chere. Id. Ib.

Sing Lullaby, as women doe,
Wherewith they bring their babes to rest,
And lullaby can I sing to,
As womanly as can the best.
Gascoigne. The Lullabie of a Louer.

Moued with a soft heart of woman head, and with a motherly affection praied the emperour, that the saide child might be nourisshed in hir presence, sith euery man saide, the childe was so faire and so like vnto theim.
Golden Boke, c. 10.

And see how extremely every way you endanger your mind; for to take this womanish habit, without you frame your behaviour accordingly, is wholly vain.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. i.

And for asmuche as the kynde of women is naturally geuen to the vyce of muche bablynge, and there is nothyng, wherein theyr womanlynesse is more honestely garnyshed than with sylence, it is conuenient for them to accomplyshe in dede, the thyng that they professe in apparayl.
Udal. 1 Timothye, c. 2.

Let them perceiue you to be handsome men to lyue withall, & let your wisdome succour the frailtie of their womankynde.—Udal. 1 Peter, c. 3.

——For nothing lovelier can be found
In woman, then to study houshold good,
And good works in her husband to promote
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. ix.

I have felt so many quirkes of ioy and greefe,
That the first face of neither on the start
Can woman me vntoo't.
Shakespeare. All's Well that Ends Well, Act iii. sc. 2.

Cassio. I do attend heere on the generall,
And thinke it no addition nor my wish
To haue him see me woman'd.—Id. Othello, Act iii. sc. 4.

Mel. She has a brother under my command
Like her, a face as womanish as hers,
But with a spirit that hath much out-grown
The number of his years.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Maid's Tragedy, Act i.

She's as much too manish, as he too womanish.
Id. Love's Cure, Act ii. sc. 2.

His hair curled and womanishly disheveled.
Comment on Chaucer (1665), p. 18.

Think and consider whether, 1. This effeminacy and womanishness of heart, and not weakness, but torpor and stupidity; 2. This unfaithfulness and falseness unto Christ exprest by the spiritual incontinence and whoredoms of our souls and actions, &c.—Hammond. Works, vol. iv. p. 567.

I have had one so full of childish fear,
And womanish-hearted sent to my advice,
He durst not draw a knife to cut his meat.
Beaum. & Fletch. Love's Cure, Act iii. sc. 2.

She hath neither manners, honesty, behaviour,
Wife-hood, nor woman-hood, nor any mortal
Can force me think she had a mother: no
I do believe her stedfastly, and know her
To be a woman-wolfe by transmigration.
Id. The Woman's Prize, Act iv. sc. 4.

Belial, in much uneven scale thou weigh'st
All others by thy self; because of old
Thou thy self doat'st on womankind, admiring
Thir shape, thir colour, and attractive grace,
None are, thou think'st, but taken with such toys.
Milton. Paradise Regained, b. ii.

But grant in public men sometimes are shown,
A woman's seen in private life alone:
Our bolder talents in full-life display'd;
Your virtues open fairest in the shade.
Pope. Moral Essays, Ep. 2.

It is, indeed, lamentable to observe young persons of lively parts, and with a love of reading, devoting those years and those abilities, which might render them valuable members of society, to such studies as tend only to dissipate their ideas, to vitiate their morals, to womanize their spirits, and to render them the dastardly and degenerate sons of those to whom it was once a distinction to bear the name of Britons.—Know. Ess. No. 153.

WOMB, n. Womb, v. Wo'MBY. } Goth. Wamba; A. S. Wamb; Ger. Wambe; and, anciently, (Kilian,) in Dut. Wambe, venter, uterus. Junius refers to the Gr. Ομφαλος, because he can see nothing better. Womb (uterus),—

The place in which animal or vegetable life is conceived; the place of conception, of fertility; any large receptacle.

Yblessed be the moder wombe that hym to monne bere.
R. Gloucester, p. 308.

Suythe thycke man he was, & of grete strengthe,
Gret womede & ballede, & bote of euene lengthe.
Id. p. 377.

Honger hent in haste, Wastour by the mawe
And wrang hym by the wombe, that al watered hus eyen.
Piers Plouhman, p. 137.

Undirstonden ye not that al thing that entrith into the mouth goith into the wombe, and is sent out into the goyng awey?—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 15.

And he seide to me, take the book and deuoure it, and it schal make thi wombe to be bittir, but in thi mouth it schal be swete as hony.—Id. Apocalips, c. 10.

Not long after this mariage, kyng Philip dreamed that he sawe hys wiues wombe wonderfully swollen, and to hys seemyng a lyuely image of a lyon thereupon.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 3.

Like to our time, wherin hath broken out
The hidden harme that we suspected least,
Wombed within our walles and realme about,
As Grekes in Troy were in the Grekeish beast.
Vncertaine Auctors. The Troubled Commonwelth.

—— The rest entire
Shon with a glossie scurff, undoubted sign
That in his womb was hid metallic ore,
The work of sulphur.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

Hail goddess of nocturnal sport,
Dark veil'd Cotytto, t' whom the secret flame
Of midnight torches burns; mysterious dame,
That ne'er art call'd, but when the dragon woom
Of Stygian darkness spetts her thickest gloom,
And makes one blot of all the air. Id. Comus.

—— For all the sun sees, or
The close earth wombes, or the profound seas, hide
In vnknowne fadomes, will I breake my oath
To this my faire belou'd?
Shakespeare. Winter's Tale, Act iv. sc. 3.

Hee'le call you to so hot an answer of it,
That caues and wombie vaultages of France
Shall chide your trespas, and returne your mock
In second accent of his ordinance.
Id. Hen. V. Act ii. sc. 4.

The various products of Time's fruitful womb,
All of past ages, present and to come,
In full assembly shall at once resort,
And meet within high Heav'n's capacious court.
Rowe. On the Last Judgment.

WON, or WONE, v. WONT, n. WONT, v. WO'NTLESS. WO'NTEDNESS. } A. S. Wun-ian, ge-wunian; Dut. Woonen, ghe-woonen; Ger. Wonen, to dwell, to stay, to inhabit, to continue; to continue to be or do; to do habitually.

Won't is—woned, won'd, won't; and the verb is formed upon this past participle.

Wont,—habit, custom; usual or customary mode or manner.

Vor bygonde the water of Tamer he adde hem alle ybrogt.
To wonye ther, as in her owe.—R. Gloucester, p. 276.

Euery day commenliche he was woned to hure iii. masses by note. Id. p. 521.

The deuel hadde enuy ther to, that he susteynede Cristendam,
And in ys stepmoder herte ys woniyng he nom.
Id. p. 122.

He made hire vnder erthe a wonyng coynteliche,
And huld hire ther to his wylle longe priuiliche.
Id. p. 25.

Fro Gork [York] vnto Durhem no wonyng stede was,
R. Brunne, p. 76.

Right als I rede, thei tombled in Tuede, that woned bi the se. Id. p. 273.

The bisshop brouh the bones ageyn vnto the se,
Tille Durhames wones, ther thei were wont to be.
Id. p. 77.

The dettes that men tham auht, ther stedes & ther wonyng,
Wer taxed & bitauht to the eschete of the kyng.
Id. p. 247.

—— Deth as ich lyvede
Wonede in tho wones. and wycked spirit.
Piers Plouhman, p. 2.

The wo that theese women. that wonyeth in cotes
And of meny other men. Id. p. 151.

And thanne I entred in, and euen forth wente,
And al was walled that wone, though it wild were.
Id. Crede.

God wold her wonyynge were in wildernesse.—Id. Ib.

A sturdy pas doun to the court he goth
Wher as ther woned a man of great honour.
Chaucer. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7746.

Thou were aie woned eche lover reprehende
Of thing fro which thou canst not thee defend.
Id. Troilus, b. i.

To liven in debt was euer his wone,
For he was Epicures own sone.—Id. Prol. v. 337.

And yet, God wot, uneth the fundament
Parfourmed is, ne of our pavement
N'is not a tile yet within our wones,
By God we owen fourty pound for stones.
Id. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7688.

His wonning was ful fayre upon an heth,
With grene trees yshadewed was his place.
Id. Ib. v. 609.

For if the gods my life would haue prorogued,
They had reserved for me this wonning place.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

But he tolde vnto me, yt he was sore cumbred, and that it alwaye ranne in his mind yt folkes fantasies wer falle from him, and that they estemed not his wit as they were woont to dooe, but euer his mynde gaue him, that the people began to take him for a foole.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 1195.

Jesus is not woonte to take awaye agayne, what he hath once geuen, but to encrease the same (yet wil not he haue his giftes negligentlye kept, and after a rechlesse sorte.)
Udal. Marke, c. 9.

Help to bewail the woful case,
And eke the heavy plight,
Of me that wonted to rejoice
The fortune of my pleasant choice.
Surrey. Describes the State of his Mind, &c.

Whan I saw my barkes returned not at their wonted houre, and suspecting that which fell out in deed, I commanded my carpenters with all diligence to make a little boat with a flat bottome, to search those riuers for some newes of these mariners.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 333.

—— Out of the ground uprose
As from his laire the wild beast where he wonns,
In forrest wilde, in thicket, brake or den.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. vii.

Pan. And perhaps torn stockings, she hath left her old wont else.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman-Hater, Act iii. sc. 4.

Mor. No, it is strooke.
Hor. Indeed I heard it not: then it drawes neere the season,
Wherein the spirit held his wont to walke.
Shakespeare. Hamlet, Act i. sc. 4.

Ah! whither, Love, wilt thou now carry mee?
What wontlesse fury doost thou now inspire
Into my feeble breast, too full of thee.
Spenser. Hymne in Honour of Beautie.

Did I see any thing more of Christ in those that pretend to other modes of government, I might suspect my judgment biassed with prejudice or wontedness of opinion.
King Charles.

These windows were wont to be left open all the day, to let in the refreshing breeze.—Dampier. Voyages, an. 1688.

She thrice assay'd to speak; her accents hung
And faltring dy'd unfinish'd on her tongue,
Or vanish'd into sighs: with long delay
Her voice return'd; and found the wonted way.
Dryden. Ceyx & Alcyone.

WONDE. The A. S. Wand-ian, formed upon the verb wanian, to wane, was used to denote—to omit, to remit, to desist (as Tyrwhitt says) through fear: also, to fear, to revere; and may be the root of our verb To wonder.

But finally it may not be withstonde,
Love woll love, for no wight woll it wonde.
Chaucer. The Legende of Dido, v. 1185.

WO'NDER, n. WO'NDER, v. WO'NDERLY. WO'NDERFUL. WO'NDERFULLY. WO'NDERFULNESS. WO'NDERMENT. WO'NDEROUS. WO'NDEROUSLY. } See WONDE. A. S. Wunder, wundrian; Dut. Wonderen; Ger. Wunder; Sw. Undra. Martinius (in v. Miro) derives from wenden, to turn. (Qui miratur, ille conatu intelligendi mentem huc illuc vertit,) to turn the mind this way and that, with an endeavour to understand or comprehend. And wonder does imply, in our usage, an effort and desire to understand that which has struck us with surprise or admiration, reverence. Generally, equivalent to—

Surprise, admiration, amazement, astonishment; that which causes surprise or astonishment, (with ignorance of the cause.) See the quotation from Cogan.

And other liggeth hye aboue, that a mon may be of a ferd,
That vche mon wondre may how heo were first a rered.
R. Gloucester, p. 7.

Thre wonders ther beth in Engolond, non more y not.
Id. Ib.

That water suththe heye aros, & muche is lond asencte,
& mo then ten thousend men wonderliche adrencte.
Id. p. 489.

God sende vor hys luthernesse mony deoluol cas
In thys lond & wonderuol, the wule he alyue was.
Id p. 414.

A wondere were, tuo wafres ther er togidir gon,
& tuo kyngdames, with tuo names, now er on.
R. Brunne, p. 282.

A thousand & tuo hundred, & fourscore gere & sex,
On Wales many on wundred, for more wo git ther wex.
R. Brunne, p. 235.

A syre quath I thanne, thou seyst a grete wonder
Sithen Christ sayd hym selfe, to alle his disciples:
Which of you that is most, most shal be werche,
And who is goere byforne, first shal be seruen.
Piers Plouhman. Crede

Then was ther a Walishman. was wonderlich sory.
Id. Vision, p. 103.

Than I munte me forth, the mynstre to knowen.
And awaytede a woon, wonderly well ybild.—Id. Crede.

Zoure wordes aren wonderful quath ich.
Id. Vision, p 322.

Wonderwyse shupmen now and other witty peuple
Han no by leyve to the lyst. ne to the lood sterres.
Id. p. 290.

In wonderwyse holy wryt. telleth how thei fullen
Some in erthe some in aier. some in helle dupe
Ac Lucifer lowest. lith of hem alle. Id. p. 19.

And it was don whanne Jhesus had endid these wordis: the puple wondride on his teachynge.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 7.

For false Cristis and false profetis schulen rise and schulen gyve tokenes and wondris to disceyve, if it may be doon ghe hem that ben chosun.—Id. Mark, c. 13.

This thing is don of the Lord and is wondirful in oure yghen.—Id. Ib. c. 12.

We witen that God spak to Moyses: but we knowen not this, of whennes he is, thilk man answride & seide to hem, for in this is a wondirful thing, that ye witen not of whennis he is, and he hath opened myn yghen.—Id. Jon, c. 9.

His parishens devoutly wolde he teche.
Benigne he was, and wonder diligent.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 486.

Swiche wondring was ther on this hors of bras,
That sin the great assege of Troye was,
Ther as men wondred on an hors also,
Ne was ther swiche a wondring, as was tho.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10,620.

Of twenty yere of age he was I gesse.
Of his stature he was of even lengthe,
And wonderly deliver, and grete of strengthe.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 85.

But it is to meane, that aungelles been a dradde, not by frendes of drede, sithen thei been perfitly blessed, as affection of wonderfulnes, and by seruice of obedience.
Id. Testament of Loue, b. i.

And laid it downe upon the herse,
Where lay the queene, and gan reherse,
Echone to other that they had seene,
And taling thus the sede wex greene,
And on the dry herse gan spring,
Which me thought a wondrous thing.—Id. Dreame.

There ne was none with Gamelyn
That wolde wrestle more,
For he handilid the champion
So wonderously sore.—Id. Coker Tale of Gamelyn.

And thus after hir lordes graunt,
Upon a mule white amblant
Foorth with a fewe rode this quene.
Thei wondred, what she wolde mene,
And riden after a softe pas. Gower. Con. A. b. i.

And than out of his sepulture
There spronge anone perauenture
Of floures such a wonder sight,
That men ensample take might
Upon the dedes, whiche he dede. Id. Ib. b. i.

Myn herte is wonderly begone
With counsaile, whereof witte is one,
Whiche hath reason in companie,
Againe the whiche stant partie
Wisse, whiche hath hope of his accorde.—Id. Ib. b. iii.

She hath a wardein redy aie,
Whiche is so wounderfull a wight,
That hym ne maie no mans might
With sword, ne with no wepon daunte.—Id. Ib. b. v.

And the circomstaunces of thys place do in dede proue that they were fleshly mynded, & vnderstode not the spyrytuall wordes of oure sauyour Jesu Christ, and therfore wondered and murmured, in so moche that oure sauyoure Jesu Christ sayde vnto them: doeth this offende you?
A Boke made by John Fryth, fol. 28.

Now fortune sheweth herself so fair,
That I content me wonderly.
Wyat. The Lover rejoiceth, &c.

Merily saied, q. I. but yet in ernest, where suche a solempne yerely myracle is wrought, so wondersly in the face of the world before so great a multitude, it is a great vntowardnes in a thinge so holy touching the honour of God & helth of our owne soule, both to mystrust all them that say they haue sene it, and eyther of sloth or incredulite, not vouchsauf him self to proue it.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 134.

And much more reason it is, where a wonderful worke is wrought, there to ascribe it to God the maister of all maistries, rather than the deuil, that can do nothing but by suffrance, except we see some cause that can not suffer yᵗ worke to be rekened God's.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 138.

Ulpianus, Sceuola, Caius, and all the other there named [the Pandectes], of whose sayinges all the sayde textes be assembled, were not onely studyous of eloquẽce, but also therin wonderful exercised: for as moche as their stile dothe approche nere to the antique & pure eloquence, than any other kynde of writers, that wrate aboute that time.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governour, b. i. c. 14.

Arered excedynge imposicions of the people, & greued theym wonderfully.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 200.

Out vpon mens maners? out vpon it, what a world is this? and after this sort, woulde make suche a like wonderment, as these men seme to vse against me.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, fol. 57.

In whiche meane tyme, the erle with his company made bulwerkes and barbycanys atwene the toure and the cytie, and caste dykes and trenches in some places of the cytie, and fortyfyed it wonderously.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1268.

Phi. Then thus I turn
My language to your prince, you foreign man.
Nere stare nor put on wonder, for you must
Indure me, and you shall.
Beaum. & Fletch. Philaster, Act i.

——— I found
The new created world, which fame in heav'n
Long had foretold, a fabrick wonderful
Of absolute perfection, therein man
Plac't in a paradise, by our exile
Made happie: him by fraud I have seduc't
From his creator, and the more to increase
Your wonder, with an apple.—Milton. Par. Lost, b. x.

Behold a wonder! they but now who seem'd
In bigness to surpass earth's giant sons
Now less then smallest dwarfs, in narrow room
Throng numberless. Id. Ib. b. i.

And after, all the rascall many ran,
Heaped together in rude rabblement,
To see the face of that victorious man:
Whom all admired, as from Heauen sent,
And gaz'd vpon with gaping wonderment.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 12.

And have call'd them the choice handy works of nature, the patterns of perfection, and the wonderment of women.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman-Hater, Act iv. sc. 1.

How do I look, Sir, in this handsome trim?
Methinks I am wondrous brave.
Id. The Custom of the Country, Act v.

The father wonder'd at the son's return,
And knew not whether to rejoice or mourn;
But doubtfully receiv'd, expecting still
To learn the secret causes of his alter'd will.
Dryden. Cymon & Iphigenia.

Thirdly, That the self-existent and original cause of all things, is an intelligent being; appears abundantly from the excellent variety, order, beauty, and wonderful contrivance, and fitness of all things in the world, to their proper and respective ends.—Clarke. On the Attributes, Prop. 8.

To this wise management it is owing, that the stream of beneficence, which at first was not great, hath, by several rivulets, which have since fallen into it, in its course, wonderfully enlarged its current, and grown wider and deeper still, the further it hath flowed.—Atterbury, vol. ii. Ser. 7.

This cloud hindred them from discerning the excellency of his doctrine, from regarding the sanctity of his life, from being duly affected with the wonderfulness of his works.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 43.

They might have made the same wonderment of any other rivers which run any long course from out the torrid zone.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1688.

——— Tho' 'tis hard,
'Tis wond'rous hard, when I remember thee
(Dear native Greece!) and you, ye weeping maids,
That were companions of my virgin youth!
Rowe. Tamerlane, Act iv.

Wonder expresses an embarrassment of the mind after it has somewhat recovered from the first percussion of surprise.—Cogan. On the Passions, pt. i. c. 2. § 2.

All the primary pleasures of the imagination result from the perception of greatness, or wonderfulness, or beauty in objects.—Akenside. Pleasures of Imagination, Arg.

WOO, v. / Woo'ER. / Woo'ING, n. } A. S. Wogan, nubere; hence perhaps our verb To Wooe. Wog-ere, a wooer. Awogod, ambitus, petitus, wooed, (Lye.) It is formed probably upon the verb Weg, or Wæg-an, to go, to go to, to sue.

To sue, (sc.) for favour or good will; to solicit, to court.

Fulle so frendes he had, and fele foos inowe,
Unto the duke of Normundie he went for to wouwe.
R. Brunne, p. 40.

But sire as of my lady selue
Though she haue wowers. x. or twelue,
For no mistruste I haue of hir
Me greueth nought. Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

Yet was she faire, and in her countenance
Dwelt simple truth in seemely fashion.
Long thus I woo'd her with due obseruance,
In hope vnto my pleasure to haue wonne;
But was as farre at last, as when I first begonne.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 7.

With looks, with words, with gifts he oft her wowed,
And mixed threats among, and much unto her vowed.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 11.

We are young yet—desire the wayes of honour,
That liberty and common conversation,
The poison of pure spirits, might, like women,
Wooe us to wander from.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Two Noble Kinsmen, Act ii. sc. 2.

——— I will humble him.
And her stout heart that stands on such defiance;
And let me see her champions that dare venture
Her high and mighty wooers, keep your guards close,
And as you love your lives be diligent.
Id. The Island Princess, Act ii.

——— Yet we like beasts still cry'd,
Poor men can number their woers, give us
Abundance: we had it, and this curse withal.
Id. Cupid's Revenge, Act i.

My maiden muse flies the lascivious swaines,
And scornes to soyle her lines with lustfull straines.
Will not dilate (nor on her fore-head beare Immodestie's abhorred character)
His shamelesse pryings, his undecent doings;
His curious searches, his respectlesse wooings.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 2.

The temple-haunting barlet [martlet] does approue,
By his loued masonry, that the heauens breath
Smells wooingly here.—Shakespeare. Macbeth, Act i. sc. 6.

Almanz. Those whom we love, we should esteem 'em too;
And not debauch that virtue which we *woo*e.
Dryden. 2 Pt. Conquest of Granada, Act iii.

Æt. 'Tis rash, and savors of unwary youth:
Tell him he trusts too far—If I mistook not,
You said he was a wooer. Rowe. Ulysses, Act i.

WOOD, or / Wode, v. & adj. / Woo'DLY. / Woo'DNESS. } A. S. Wed-an; Dut. Woeden; Ger. Wuten, furere, insanire, sævire. The god Wod-en had his name from his fierce and furious disposition. See Verstegan, and Wednesday.

A. S. Wod; Goth. Wods, mad, furious, outragious; out of his mind or witts, (Somner.)
Wodnesse,—madness.
The words seem akin to wild, wildness.

——— He was ney vor wraththe wod.
R. Gloucester, p. 185.

Tho was al the court anyed, as thei moste nede,
Tho kyng ferde eke for wraththe as he wolde wede.
Id. p. 53.

His hunger was so grete, he wend haf waxen wode.
R. Brunne, p. 94.

Sithen in to forest he gede naked & wode,
Als a wilde beste, ete of the gres that stode.—Id. p. 336.

Whan R. herd say, that James was slayn,
He wend for dole to dey, he com as a wode man.
Id. p. 190.

But he [Balaam] hadde repreuynge of his woodnesse a doumbe beeste undir yok that spak with voice of man that forbeed the unwisdom of the prophete.—Wiclif. 2 Petir, c. 2.

A man wote litel what shal him betide.
This man is fallen with his astronomie
In som woodnesse or in som agonie.
Chaucer. Milleres Tale, v. 3453.

Seneca saith a good word douteles:
He saith he can no difference find
Betwix a man that is out of his mind,
And a man whiche is dronkelew:
But that woodnesse, yfallen in a shrew,
Persevereth lenger than doth dronkenesse.
Id. Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,431.

Seynge the rage and wodnesse of the Flemynges whiche so cruelly slewe and bet downe the Frenshe men.—Id. Ib.

To maken me a wicked wight (quod she)
Lo, he dissimuleth here in audience,
He stareth and wodeth in his advertence.
Id. Second Nonnes Tale, v. 15,936.

But the Flemynges, lyke wood tygres, were so enragyd vpon ye Frenshmen, that they wolde neuer leue theym tyl they by pure force draue theym vnto they rentes.
Fabyan. Chronycle. Philip IV. an. 1299.

The bishops therfore & their seruauntes, with a great stiere and shoue cried woodly out: Crucifie him, crucifie him.—Udal. John, c. 19.

Wherefore in all haste he sent downe, gyuynge strayte commaundement that they shuld cease of the ryot, but the people were in suche ire & wodenes, that they refrayned not for all the kynges sonde, tyll they had executyd the fyne of theyr malyce.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1181.

Thus his fortune alteryng hys nature, chaunged hym into straunge maners, and turned his wrath into woodnes.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 69.

Then like a lyon, which had long time saught
His robbed whelpes, and at the last them fond
Emongst the shepheard swaynes, then wexeth wood & yond. Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 8

With fell woodnesse he effierced was,
And wilfully him throwing on the grass,
Did beat and bounce his head & breast full sore.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 11.

This is the Clote bearing a yellow flower,
And this black horehound, both are very good
For sheep or shepherd, bitten by wood-Dogs venom'd tooth.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act ii.

WOOD. / Woo'DED. / Woo'DEN. / Woo'DY, / Woo'DINESS. } A. S. Wude, wudu; Dut. Woud; Ger. Wut; Sw. Wed;—and A. S. Weald; Dut. Wald; Ger. Wald. Verstegan affirms, that Wald, weald or wold, though "differing in vowell, yet signifie one thing, to wit, a forrest. Of the first—Waldham-forrest retaineth yet the name. Of the second, the weald of Kent, that is, the forrest part of Kent. Of the third, which is wold, (the l, and the highnesse of the sound of o being omitted,) is become in the Netherlands wout, and in England—wood."

Yorkes-wold and Cots-wold, he believes, were woody places, and had their names for that reason.

Wald is derived by Wachter from an obsolete verb, Wal-en, crescere, luxuriose crescere, to grow luxuriously; in A. S. Welig-ian, ditare, to enrich.

Wood, (silva),—a collection of trees; (lignum) the material of the tree.

Ac as he out of London wente in a tyde,
A gret erl hym kepte ther in a wode syde,
With an hundred knygtes y armed wel ynow.
R. Gloucester, p. 88.

Sir Robynet the Brus he durst noure abide,
That thei mad him restus, bot in more & wod side.
R. Brunne, p. 336.

——— Ne lyf holy as eremytes
That wonnede wyle in wodes.—Piers Plouhman, p. 157.

In a wylde wyldernesse, by a wode syde
Blisse of briddes, abyde me made.—Id. Ib. p. 169.

This herber was full of floures gende,
Into the which, as I beholde gan,
Betwixt an hulfeere and a woodbende,
As I was ware, I saw where lay a man
In blaeke.—Chaucer. Complaint of the Black Knight.

In many places were nightingales
Alpes, finches, and wodwales
That in her swete song deliten
In thilke places as they habiten.—Id. Rom. of the Rose.

Wherfore to kepe hir selfe in pees,
With suche as Amadriades
Were cleped woodmaidens tho,
And with the nymphes eke also,
Upon the sprynge of fresshe welles,
She shope to dwelle, and no where elles. Id. Ib.

Wherof the nymphes of the welles,
And other that there weren els
Unto the wodes belongende,
The bodie, whiche was deade lyggende,
For pure pitee, that thei haue,
Under graue thei begraue.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

Wee landed, and faire and easily followed for a smal time after them, who had wooded themselues we know not where.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 259.

They weare their haire tied on the top like a wreath of hay, and put a wooden pinne within it, or any other such thing instead of a naile.—Id. Ib. p. 203.

Wherfore least that should happen, he pitched his cãp in a woody grouũd, directly agaynst one of those bridges that Vercingetorix had caused to bee hewed downe.
Goldinge, Cæsar, fol. 109.

The wood-borne people fall before her flat,
And worship her as goddesse of the wood,
And old Sylvanus selfe bethinks not, what
To thinke of wight so faire, but gazing stood,
In doubt to deeme her borne of earthly brood.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

Pet. In such a number, one would sweat they grew,
The hills are wooded with their partizans.
And all the valleys overgrown with darts,
As moors are with rank rushes.
Beaum. & Fletch. Bonduca, Act i. sc. 2.

But when they muster before dinner, and sweep the table with a wodden dagger, and then they are troublesome too.
Id. The Coxcomb, Act ii.

The woody nymphes, faire Hamadryades,
Her to behold doe thither runne apace,
And all the troupe of light-foote Naiades
Flock all about to see her lovely face.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

Now ye shall meet with some fruits, that neither without in shell, nor within-forth in kernell, have any of this woodinesse.—Holland. Plinie, b. xv. c. 28.

Others the vtmost boughs of trees doe crop,
And brouze the woodbine twigges, that freshly bud.
Spenser. Virgile. Gnat.

The primrose placing first, because that in the spring
It is the first appears, then only flourishing;
The azur'd hare-bell next, with them they neatly mix'd:
T' allay whose luscious smell, they woodbind plac'd betwixt,
Amongst those things of scent, there prick they in the lilly.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 15.

But if I knew when you come next a burding,
I'le have a stronger noose to hold the woodcock.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Scornful Lady, Act iv.

Heere also playing on the grassie greene,
Woodgods, and satyres, and swift dryades,
With many fairies oft were dauncing seene.
Spenser. Virgile. Gnat.

What is now the woodland in Warwickshire, was heretofore part of a larger wild or forest called Arden. The reliques of whose name in Dene of Monmouthshire, and that Arduenna or La Forest d'Ardenne, by Henault and Luxembourg, shews likelihood of interpretation of the yet used English name of woodland.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion. Selden. Illust.

——— Fairest bud
Of maiden vertues, when I leave to be
The true admirer of thy chastitie,
Let me deserve the hot polluted name
Of the wild woodman.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act i.

Thou woodman and forrager both, see thou neither cut nor lop trees, see thou gather no greene leaves and tendrils for thy fodder at noone-tide.
Holland. Plinie, b. xviii. c. 33.

We also by our senses perceive the colour and brittleness of charcoal, whereby we come by the knowledge of another power in fire, which it has to change the colour and consistency of wood.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 23.

We saw many wooden crosses erected in the way, which created some jealousy in us that here were some Spaniards.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1681.

Herbs are those plants whose stalks are soft, and have nothing woody in them, as grass, sowthistle, and hemlock.
Locke. Elements of Natural Philosophy, c. 9.

Our next employment was wooding and watering our squadron.—Anson. Voyages, b. i. c. 5.

On the 3d of January, she came to an anchor at Prince's Island in the streights of Sunda, and continued there wooding and watering till the 8th.—Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 10.

From Badby I rode through some woods, and through Fawsley-park, to the house of Fawsley, the seat of the antient family of the Knightleys; standing in an improved demesne, above some pretty pieces of water, which wind along a fine wooded dell.
Pennant. Journey from Chester p. 394.

WOOF. See WEAVE.

WOOL. } A. S. Wulle; Dut. Wolle; Ger. Wolle; Sw. Ull. The etymologists refer to the Lat. Vellus and villus, and the Gr. Ουλος. May it not be from the Dut. and Ger. Wellen. A. S. Walwian, volvere, circumvolvere? Applied to—WOO'LLEN. WOO'LLY. WOO'LWARD. WOO'LFEL. WOO'LPACKER.

The clothing that surrounds sheep; any soft substance similar to it.

Wool-fel, and wool-packer,—common in our own statutes. See FELL, n.

Of whyte and of wolle god, betere ne may be non.
R. Gloucester, p. 2.

Sir Jon Giffard com aday, & Sir Jon de Balun there.
Ride vpe tueye wolpakces, chapmen as hii were,
To the West zate ouer the brugge, & the porters bede
To late in tueie wolmongers, hor chaffare in to lede.
Id. p. 439.

Com to his mercy, doand him seruise,
That bies woule & wyne, & sellis with conant.
R. Brunne, p. 168.

Wyves and widowes. wolle and flax spynneth.
Piers Ploughman, p. 128.

And the heed of him and hise heeris weren white as white wolle, and as snow.—Wiclif. Apocalips, c. 1.

His head, & his heeres were whyte, as whyte wool, and as snow.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

What shepe, that is full of wulle
Upon his backe thei tose and pulle
Whyle ther is any thynge to pille.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

The poorer sort do line their clothes with cotton cloth which is made of the finest wool they can pick out; & of the courser part of the said wool, they make felt to couer their houses and their chests, and for their bedding also.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 98.

If they shall liue without sea traffique, at the first they become naked by want of linnen and woolen, and very miserable by infinite wants that will otherwise ensue.
Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 45.

Truly it was a glorious sight to se saynt Poule which satte his liuyng by his owne great labour i hungre, thurst, watching, in colde going wolward, & bearing about the gospel and lawe of Chryst bothe on the sea and on thee lande.—Fisher. Seuen Psalmes, Ps. 143. pt. ii.

In the middest thereof vpon woolsackes sitteth the judges of the realme, the maister of the roules, & the secretaries of estate. But these that sit on the woolsacks haue no voice in the house, but only sit there to aunswer their knowledge in the law, when they be asked, if any doubt arise among the lords.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. ii. c. 3.

——— Coarse complexions,
And cheeks of sorry grain, will serve to ply
The sampler, and to tease the huswife's wool.
Milton. Comus.

They [Protestants in France] were the first that brought into England the art of making those slight stuffs which are called bays and says, and other such like stuffs of linnen and woolen weaving.
Camden. Hist. of Q. Elizabeth, an. 1568.

The blushing apricot, and woolly peach
Hang on thy walls, that every child may reach.
B. Jonson. Forest. To Penhurst.

Or the storie of queen Elenor,
With the rearing of London bridge upon woolsacks?
Beaum. & Fletch. Knight of the Burning Pestle, Prol.

They tell us of their strict lents, frequent fastings, canonicall houres, sharpe penances, their bashfull shrifts, their painfull scourgings, their solitarie cells, their woolward and barefoot walks, their hard and tedious pilgrimages.
Bp. Hall. Ser. March 30, 1634.

Is wool thy care? Let not thy cattle go
Where bushes are, where burs and thistles grow;
Nor in too rank a pasture let 'em feed:
Then of the purest white select thy breed.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iii.

A patient, useful creature, born to bear
The warm and woolly fleece, that cloath'd her murderer,
And daily to give down the milk she bred,
A tribute for the grass on which she fed.
Id. Ovid. Metam. b. xv.

The woollen coat, for example, which covers the day-labourer, as coarse and rough as it may appear, is the produce of the joint labour of a great multitude of workmen.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. 1.

Half a dozen wool-combers, perhaps, are necessary to keep a thousand spinners and weavers at work.—Id. Ib. c. 10.

WOOSY, i.e. Oozy, (qv.)

So muche the lesse fearing hys shyps, bicauce he had left them ryding at anchor in an woosye and opē shore.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 114.

Besides, what is she else, but a foul woosy marsh,
And that she calls her grass, so blady is, and harsh,
As cuts the cattel's mouths, constrain'd thereon to feed.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 25.

WOOT, v. } Wot is the past part. and tense
WOT, v. } of the verb To wite, (qv.) and weet.

He watteth ful wel. wan ich suifere [gold?] take
What wey ich wende.—Piers Ploughman, p. 66.

Hevene and erthe schulen passe, but my wordis schulen not passe. But of thilke dai and our no man woot, neither aungelis of hevenes, but the fadir aloone.
Wiclif. Matt. c. 24.

But well I wot, expresse withouten lie
God bad us for to wex and multiplie:
That gentil text can I wel understond.
Chaucer. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5609.

For God it wote, he sate full oft and songe,
When that his sho-ful biterly him wronge.
Id. Ib. v. 6073.

I wote well ye haue longe serued,
And God wote what ye haue deserued.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

For surely if ther wer any one sparke of shame in his whole body, it would set his face on fyre to speake amonge Christē men, that other folk are out of the right way, when he wotteth wel that his writing sheweth in what wrong waye him self is.—Sir T. More. Workes, p. 626.

The Frensshe men of warre wote not where better to employ theyr season, for they haue peas wt Englonde vnto the feest of saynt John.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. ii. c. 43.

And this let her ofte call to minde specially, and purpose while she is safe and in her owne power, that if she chance to fal at words with her husband, shee rebuke not nor dispraise either his kinne, or person, or conditions, or his life, which thing she woteth should grieue his stomacke.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. ii. c. 5.

Or if thou woot, then call thy own Endymion
From the sweet flowry bed he lies upon,
On Latmus top, thy pale beams drawn away,
And of this long night let him make a day.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Maid's Tragedy, Act i.

I wot not well whether there be more cause to glorie for the modest carriage of men in those daies, or to greeve at the indignitie of the thing, in that among so many Metelli as then were, so audacious a villaine as this was of Catinius, was never revenged to this day.
Holland. Plinie, b. vii. c. 44.

These earthly godfathers of heauens lights,
That give a name to euery fixed starre
Haue no more profit of their shining nights
Then those that walk and wot not what they are.
Shakespeare. Loue's Labour Lost, Act i. sc. 1.

WORD, n. } Goth. Waurd; A. S. Word; Dut. Woerd, woord; Ger. Wort; Sw. Ord, from the Goth. Wairth-an, fieri, to be. or become. (See WORTH, v. —Junius; and see Wachter.)
WORD, v.
WO'RDER.
WO'RDING, n.
WO'RDISH.
WO'RDISHNESS.
WO'RDLESS.
WO'RDY.

A word, then, will be—
A thing, any thing, said, or spoken, or told; the name of a thing; an articulate utterance of the voice; and hence applied generally to—

Language, speech, talk; and more consequentially—affirmation, or thing affirmed, declaration, or thing declared, promise, information; elliptically, for word of affirmation, declaration, &c.

He bi leuede with oute the toun, & in wel gret fere.
He sende the quene ys dogter word.—R. Gloucester, p. 35.

Of an holi prechoure's word heo nolde not so ofte thenche.
Id. p. 119.

For thees aren wordes. wryten in the Evangelys
Date & dabitur vobis.—Piers Ploughman, p. 23.

Therfore lerne the byleue leuest me were,
Gif any worldly wight wil me couthe.—Id. Crede.

The bisshop gan it rede, "God is the turned grym,
"Outher in word or dede has thou greued him."
R. Brunne, p. 94.

Than hise disciplis camen and seiden to hym, thou knowist that if this word be herd the Farisees ben sclaundrid?—Wiclif. Matt. c. 15.

Dyscrete he was, and of gret reverence:
He semed swiche, his wordes were so wise.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 316.

The worde was like to the conceite
Without semblant of deceit.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

I saw when at his word the formless mass,
This world's material mould, came to a heap:
Confusion heard his voice, and wilde uproar
Stood rul'd, stood vast infinitude confin'd;
Till at his second bidding darkness fled,
Light shon, and order from disorder sprung.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iii.

This said he paus'd not, but with ventrous arme
He pluckt, he tasted; mee damp horror chil'd
At such bold words voucht with a deed so bold.
Id. Ib. b. v.

I find the Italian a degree higher in compliment than the French; he is longer and more grave in the delivery of it, and more prodigal of words; insomuch, that if one were to be worded to death, Italian is the fittest language, in regard of the fluency and softness of it.—Howell, b. i. Let. 42.

We could not say as much of our high worders.
Whitlock. Manners of the English, p. 359.

He [Dr. Hammond] charg'd himself that his performances were incompetent to the designed end, and would solicitously enquire what he might do to speak more plainly or more movingly; whether his extemporary wording might not be a defect, and the like.—Fell. Life of Hammond, s. 3.

The bitterer his reproaches are, the less they are credited, he will have reason to think what I have hitherto said in these wordish testimonies (as he will call them) is more for his than mine own advantage, if his cause will but allow him to make use of it.—Hammond. Works, vol. ii. p. 167.

Tort'ring poor innocent grammar, to confess
The truth they hide by their dark wordishness.
Digby. On Bodies. Verses, Pref.

And decks with praises Collatine's high name,
Made glorious by his manly chivalry,
With bruised arms and wreaths of victory;
Her joy with heav'd up hand she doth express
And, wordless, so greets heaven for his success.
Shakespeare. Rape of Lucrece.

With this yet for a conclusion, that if in this their wordy, and wearisome volume, they shall mete with any one argument, which they dare avow for new, they shall expect their answer by the next post.
Bp. Hall. Answer to the Vind. of Smectymnuus.

Upon a nearer approach, I find that there is so close a connexion between ideas and words; and our abstract ideas, and general words, have so constant a relation one to another, that it is impossible to speak clearly and distinctly of our knowledge, which all consists in propositions, without considering, first the nature, use, and signification of language.—Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 33.

Man had by nature his own organs so fashioned as to be fit to frame articulate sounds, which we call words.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 1.

For what else are words and talk against thunder-bolts? and the weak, empty noise of a querulous rage, against him who can speak worlds, who could word heaven and earth out of nothing, and can when he pleases word them into nothing again?—South, vol. x. Ser. 5.

Men may snarl, and word it high against providence; but we have already observed what silly, senseless things such verbal assaults are against the Creator and Governor of the universe, and to what little purpose we spend our breath against him who gave it, and can take it away when he pleases.—Id. Ib.

Glos. Enough of this: To deal in wordy compliment
Is much against the plainness of my nature.
Rowe. Jane Shore, Act iii.

An oyster, cast upon the shore,
Was heard, though never heard before,
Complaining in a speech well worded,
And worthy thus to be recorded.—Cowper. The Poet, &c.

WORK, v.
WORK, n.
WO'RKER.
WO'RKING, n.
WO'RKLESS.
WO'RKMAN.
WO'RKMANLY, adj.
WO'RKMANLY, ad.
WO'RKMANSHIP.

Goth. Waurk-jan; A. S. Wyrc-an, wyrc-ian, weorc-an; Dut. Werck-en; Ger. Wirken, wurken; Sw. Wærka; Gr. Ἐργον. Perhaps from the A. S. verb Werian, werig-an, (werig, wery, werc, or wyrc,) to defend, to protect, to fortify.

See WROUGHT.

To act, to act upon, to affect, to effect; to operate; to continue or keep in action or operation, to labour;—to practise; to employ, to perform, form, produce, or execute,—by action or labour.

Hys conseil he tok tho, how he mygt make there
Some werk, in honour of hem, that euer in mynde were.
R. Gloucester, p. 144.

Me wolde wene, that in this lond no ston to worche nere.
Id. p. 146.

And bigan a strong castel of lym and off ston,
And of quoynte werkmen let hym brynge mony on.
Id. p. 127.

Or it wer alle ent [ended] the werke that thei did wirke
Thei ordeynd a couent, to ministre in that kirke.
R. Brunne, p. 80.

Faire is the werk & hie in London at Westmynster kirke,
That the kyng Henrie of his tresore did wirke.—Id. p. 213.

Worchynge and wandrynge. as the worlde asketh—
Somme pute hem to plow.—Piers Ploukman, p. 2.

——— And wt ydel thouhtes
Ther that wil wolde. and werkmanshup falleth.—Id. p. 29.

And dyuerse [spiryts] ther be, but it is al oo Spirit. and dyuerse seruyces ther ben, but it is al oo Lord. and dyuerse worchyngis ther ben, but al is oo God that worchith alle thingis in alle thingis.—Wiclif. 1 Corynth. c. 12.

There are diuersities of gyftes verely, yet but one spirite. And there are differences administracyons, and yet but one Lord. And there are diuers manners of operacions, & yet but one God, which worketh al thinges that are wrought, in al creatures.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

But Jhesus seyde, suffre ye hir, what ben ye hevy to hir? Sche hath wrought a good werk in me.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 14.

And Jhesus sayde: let her be in reste, why trouble ye her? She hathe done a good worke on me.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Therfore preye ye lord of the ripe corne that he sende werk-men into his ripe corn.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 9.

And he schal seye to you, I knowe you not of whennes ye ben, goth awey fro me alle ye worcheris of wickidnesse.
Id. Luk, c. 13.

And he shall say: I tell you, I knowe you not whence ye are: departe from me all ye workers of iniquitie.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

But oure lyuyng is in heuenes, fro whennys also we abiden the sauyour oure Lord Jesu Crist which schal refourme the bodi of oure mekenesse that is maad lyk to the bodi of his clerenesse bi the worching by which he mai also make alle thingis suget to him.—Wiclif. Filipensis, c. 3.

But our conuersation is in heauen, from whence we loke for a sauiour, euen the Lorde Jesus Christe whych shal chaunge our vyle bodies that they maye be fashioned lyke vnto hys glorious body, accordynge to the workynge, whereby he is able to subdue al thynges vnto hym selfe.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And for to werchen as I shal you say
To-morwe, whan ye riden on the way,
Now by my faders soule that is ded,
But ye be mery, smiteth of my hed.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 782.

Salomon saith; werke all thinges by conseil, and thou shalt never repente.—Id. Tale of Melibeus.

And nie to them there was a company,
That haue the susters waried and missaide,
I meane the three of fatal destiny
That be our werkers. Id. Court of Loue.

But yet this broche, as in conclusion,
Was not the cause of his confusion,
But he that wrought it enfortuned it so,
That euery wight that had it shold haue wo,
And therfore in the worcher was the vice,
And in the coueitor that was so nice.
Id. Com. of Mars & Venus.

The children of Mercury and of Venus
Ben in hir werking ful contrarious.
Mercury loveth wisdom and science,
And Venus loveth riot and dispence.
Id. The Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 6281.

For we seen many thinges, whan thei been beforne our iyne, right as men seen the carter woorchyng in the tournyng, and in the attempring or a dressing of his cartes or charlottes, and by this maner, as who saieth, maieste thou vnderstande of all other werkemenne.—Id. Boecius, b. v.

The highe God, that all this world hath wrought,
Saith, that the workman worthy is his hire.
Id. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7556.

It shall not stande with me so,
To worchen any felonie
In loue, for no suche enuie.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

So wolde I nowe this werke embrace.—Id. Ib. Prol.

This false knight vpon delaie
Hath taried till thei were aslepe,
As he that woll time kepe
His deadly werkes to fulfille. Id. Ib. b. ii.

But howe so that his wille was good
Towarde the pope and his franchise,
Yet hath it proued otherwise
To see the worchyng of the dede. Id. Ib. b. iii.

An horse of brasse thei lette to forge
Of suche entaile, and of suche a forge,
That in this worlde was neuer man
That suche an other werke began.
The craftie werkeman Epius
It made. Id. Ib. b. i.

He is alyue agayne, and being now made a sainct, worketh suche thinges as passeth mannes power.—Udal. Marke, c. 6.

For of all your good woorkes and miracles (be they neuer so wonderfull) ye shall chalenge ne claime nothing vnto your selues: but ye shall referre all glorie and prayse vnto hym, from whom cummeth whatsoeuer men dooe that is worthy prayse.—Id. Matthew, c. 5.

Whiche was done so excellently, that Pandenus, a counnynge paynter, therat admaruaylynge, required the craftis man, to shewe hym where he had the example, or paterne of so noble a warke.—Sir T. Elyot. The Governor, b. i. c. 8.

Suche fayre and subtyle wordes that the duke of Lancastre sayde in good entencion, and for welthe of the kynge, and all his subiectes, cõuerted the kynge by the grace of the Holy Goost, who was chiefe warker in that case.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 212.

And part they let not muche to denye, as Luther doth the epistle of sainte James, because it speaketh playnly against his ydle worklesse faith.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 411.

Neither shall there any seede of a manne mortall bee requisite or nedefull to this diuine conception, but the Holy Ghoste shall from heauen come downe into thee: and in thy wombe, (as it were in an heauenly woorkehouse) shall accomplishe the working of this holy babe.
Udal. Luke, c. 1.

Than warkmen were sette awarks to make redy lodgynges in the cytie of Cambray.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 450.

Their teeth are all filed, which they doe for a brauerie, to set out themselues, and doe iagge their flesh, both legges, armes, and bodies, as workemanlike, as a jerkinmaker with vs pinketh a ierkin.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 504.

The wals of the houses of the Indians, are but plaine, but the stones are layd so close, that you shall not well perceiue the ioynts betweene one stone and another, they are so finely cut: and by the meanes that the stones are so workmanly done, and finely ioyned together, there is some beautie in their wals.—Id. Ib. p. 468.

Trulye all the vnsounde sowderynges of Alyngtons sophistry, wyll not be found able workmanly to clowte vp thys foule brokē hole.—Bale. Apologie, fol. 17.

And after theyr retourne vnto the cytie, encensyd so the comynaltie yt they sette aparte all werkemanshyp and occupacyon, in shyttynge in theyr shoppys, & drewe vnto theym theyr armoure and harnesse.
Fabyan. Chronycle. K. John of France, an. 1356.

Henceforth his might we know, and know our own
So as not either to provoke, or dread
New warr, provok't; our better part remains
To work in close design, by fraud or guile
What force effected not.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

——— Our greatness will appeer
Then most conspicuous, when great things of small,
Useful of hurtful, prosperous of adverse
We can create, and in what place so e're
Thrive under evil, and work ease out of pain
Through labour and indurance. Id. Ib. b. ii.

At top whereof, but farr more rich appeerd
The work as of a kingly palace gate
With frontispiece of diamond and gold
Imbellisht, thick with sparkling orient gemmes
The portal shon, inimitable on earth
By model or by shading pencil drawn. Id. Ib. b. iii.

Moth. You can say well: if you be mine, wench, you must doe well too, for words are but slow workers.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Coxcombe, Act iv.

This [the fome] I say he liked not, neither thought he it workmanly done, insomuch as he wiped it out many times and began it anew; but never was it to his mind.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 191.

Thier. Oh thou hast drunk the juyce of hemlock too,
Or did upbraided nature make this pair
To shew she had not quite forgot her first
Justly prais'd workmanship.
Beaum. & Fletch. Thierry & Theodoret, Act iii.

What time this world's great workmaister did cast
To make all things, such as we now behold,
It seemes that he before his eyes had plac't
A goodly patterne, to whose perfect mould
He fashiond them as comely as he could.
Spenser. An Hymne in honor of Beautie

Verely dame Nature (the mother and workemistrisse of all things) sheweth how little else she is, not ceasing by her continuall operations to make knowne her wonderfull power
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxi. c. 1.

And thou shalt do all, over-see my work-folkes,
And at the week's end pay them all their wages.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Noble Gentleman, Act ii.

Trade, I cashier thee till to morrow: fellow Onion, for thy sake I finish this workiday.
B. Jonson. The Case is altered, Act iv. sc. 3.

Once when the admiring people would by force have taken him and made him their king, he chose even to work a miracle to avoid that, which was the only thing that could be imagined to have been the design of an impostor.
Clarke. On the Evidences, Prep. 14.

The worker from the work distinct was known,
And simple Reason never sought but one.
Pope. Essay on Man, Ep. 3.

King. O thou hast read me right, hast seen me well,
To thee I have thrown off that mask I wore;
And now the secret workings of my brain
Stand all reveal'd to thee.—Rowe. Royal Convert, Act v.

Mr. Kraye told me that there was a print of this portrait by Sandrart, and that he was a worker in silver.
Reynolds. A Journey to Flanders & Holland.

Short date is granted to the farther workings of thy malice; and all the while thou shalt heavily drag the burden of an unblessed existence.—Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 16.

In those trifling manufactures which are destined to supply the small wants of but a small number of people, the whole number of workmen must necessarily be small; and those employed in every different branch of the work can often be collected into the same workhouse, and placed at once under the view of the spectator.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. i. c. i.

WORLD. / WO'RLDLY. / WO'RLDLINESS. / WO'RLDLING, n. / WO'RLDLESS. } A. S. Weoruld, woruld; Dut. Weereld, wereld; Sw. Werld; Ger. Welt, werelt, anciently wer-old, which (Wachter thinks) meant the age of man, (wer, vir, man, and old, age,) and thence transferred—ad mundum. Kilian derives vereld from weren, to endure, to last, (to wear.) Junius thinks that weorold was first used to denote seculum, and subsequently mundus, and that this application was made from the unceasing motion and circumvolution of ages; and thus he traces it to the A. S. verb wærl-ân, bi-wærl-an, to pass, ymb-wærlan, to pass, or go, or turn round, (to whirl.) World is applied to—

The universe, or whole system of created things; to the earth or globe, the human inhabitants, the countries or regions of it; (as in A. S. also) to time, the age or duration of it; the state or condition, course, manner, or manners of life or existence; the business, employment, or occupation of life; a great multitude; the people.

Worldly (met.) is opposed to heavenly; as earthly also is.

So clene lond ys Engolond, and so pur with outen ore,
That the fairest men of the world therinne beth ybore.
R. Gloucester, p. 9.

This kyng as in worldeliche doyng was nat holde
Fulle wyse, but more deuoute to spiritualle thinges.
Id. p. 521.

He is his lord & brother, he certifies that to the,
That no man in this werld he lufes so mykelle.
R. Brunne, p. 259.

For auntecrist and his. shal al the worlde greve.
Piers Ploughman, p. 377.

And fulliche folweth the feith and feyneth non other
That no worldeliche wele wilneth no tyme.—Id. Crede.

Ther was a verey light, which lightneth ech man that cometh unto this world.—Wiclif. Jon, c. 1.

That was a true lyght, whiche lighteth al men that come into the worlde.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

This knight the which cowth his good,
Right of his truth meued his blood,
That pale he wox as any lead,
And lookt as he would be dead,
Blood was there none in nother cheke,
Worldliesse he was and semed sicke.—Chaucer. Dreame.

If I shall drawe into my mynde
The time passed, than I fynde
The worlde stode in all his welthe.
Gower. Con. A. Prol.

Yet death and time consume all wit and worldly fame.
Surrey. Par. on Ecclesiastes. c. 2.

By meane wherof the Saxons dayly drewe to the sayd lande, & couenanted w^t the Brytons, y^t the Brytõs shuld entende theyr worldlynes and other necessaries.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 83.

They bee worldelinges, and geuyng them selues in to the seruice of worldly affectes, and voyde of the spirite, they hunt after voluptuous pleasures, seke to reigne aloft, and scrape after lucre.—Udal. Jude.

For, the world, which the Greekes by the name of ornament, called κοσμος wee for the perfect neatnesse and absolute elevancie thereof, have tearmed mundus.
Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 4.

Suffice it then, thou money-god, quoth hee,
That all thine idle offers I refuse.
All that I need I haue; what needeth mee
To covet more than I haue cause to vse?
With such vaine shewes thy worldlings vile abuse.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

Saint Austin himself tells us, by so much as they lov'd their goods more or less, by so much sooner or later they should be sav'd. And what he said of this kind of sin, viz. too much worldliness, with the same reason he might suppose of others.
Bp. Taylor. Dissuasive from Popery, b. ii. pt. 2.

So sat she, as when speechless griefs tormenting
Locks up the heart, the captive tongue enchaining;
So sat she joyless down in worldlies grief complaining.
P. Fletcher. Eliza.

Si. I am content, Sir,
To prove no purchaser.
Mem. Away, thou world-worm.
Thou win a matchless beauty.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Mad Lover, Act ii.

And this [spherical] must be allowed to be the most commodious apt figure for a world on many accounts; as it is most capacious, as its surface is equi-distant from the center, not only of the globe, but (at least nearly) of gravity and motion too, and as some have thought, of the central heat and waters.—Derham. Physico-Theology, b. ii. c. 1.

When we have called off our thoughts from worldly pursuits and engagements, then (and not till then) are we at liberty to fix them on the best, the most deserving, and desirable of objects, God.—Atterbury, vol. i. Ser. 10.

But, good God! what is the heart of such worldlings made of, and what a mind do they bring with them to so holy an ordinance!—South, vol. ii. Ser. 8.

Sure there is need of social intercourse,
Benevolence and peace, and mutual aid,
Between the nations in a world, that seems
To toll the deathbell of its own decease,
And by the voice of all its elements
To preach the gen'ral doom.—Cowper. Task, b. ii.

The poor on the other hand, excluded from the hope of worldly pleasure, were likely to listen with the more attention to the promise of a distant happiness; and, exposed to much actual suffering here, they would naturally be the most alarmed with the apprehension of continued and increased suffering in another world.
Bp. Horsley, vol. i. Ser. 10.

But, supposing we are clear both of worldliness and vanity, still what can we answer with respect to pleasure.
Secker, vol. iv. Ser. 1.

WORM, n. / WORM, v. / WO'RMY. / WORM-WOOD. } A. S. Wyrm; Dut. Worm; Ger. Wurm. Martinius,—from Lat. Vermis, and this from Gr. Ερπ-ειν, to creep. Junius,—from the Gr. Ορμια, tenuis funiculus, ob manifestam similitudinem. Wachter, if he could decide upon a German origin, would prefer werb-en, to move in curved lines, to turn, to return, (to warp.) Worm and verm-is have evidently the same origin. See VERMICULAR.

To worm,—to act like a worm; silently, slowly, insensibly; to penetrate, make way into gradually; to effect by sly use of opportunities.

To draw or take away a worm.

——— Bute hyt tho more wonder be,
Selde me schal in the lond eny foule wormes se.
R. Gloucester, p. 48.

And seith to briddes and bestes. that no blisse knoweth
And wilde wormes in wodes. thorw wynter thow hem grevest.
Piers Ploughman, p. 258.

That if thin yghe sclaundrith thee caste it out it is bettre to thee to entre gogil yghed into the rewme of God than have tweyne yghen and be sent into helle of fier: where the worm of hem dieth not, & the fier is not quenchid.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 9.

Euen so yf thyne eye offende the, plucke him out. It is better for thee to go into the kyngdome of God with one eye, then hauyng two eyes to be cast into hell fyre: where their worme dyeth not, and the fyre neuer goeth out.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

And he was waastid of wormes and diede, and the word of the Lord wexide, and was multiplied.
Wiclif. Dedis, c. 12.

And he was eaten of wormes, and gaue vp the goost. And the worde of God grewe and multiplyed.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And the thridde aungel trumpide, and a greet sterre brennynge as a litil broond feld fro heuene. and it felde into the thridde part of floodis, and into the wellis of watris, and the name of the sterre is seid wermod.
Wiclif. Apocalips, c. 8.

And the thyrde angell blewe, and there fel a great starre from heuē burnyng as it were a lampe, and it fel into the thyrd parte of the ryuers, and in to fountaynes of waters, and ye name of the starre is called wormwode.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Thou sayest, right as wormes shende a tre,
Right so a wif destroieth hir husbonde.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prologue, v. 5959.

Beth ware, for no man wot whom God wol smite
In no degree, ne in which maner wise
The worme of conscience may agrise
Of wicked lif, though it so privee be,
That no man wote therof, sauf God and he.
Id. Doctoures Tale, v. 12,215.

If cow, or calf, or shepe, or oxe swell,
That any worm hath ete, or worme ystonge,
Take water of that well, and wash his tonge,
And it is hole anon.—Id. Pardoneres Tale, v. 12,990.

But ye are but as fruicte of almondes, seemyng drie without, and wourme eaten within.—Golden Boke, Let. 4.

These camels will liue very well two or three dayes without water: their feeding is on thistles, wormewood, magdalene, and other strong weeds which they finde vpon the way.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 270.

——— Worms and moths
Breed out of too much humour, in the things
Which after they consume, transferring quite
The substance of their makers into themselves.
B Jonson. Sejanus, Act iii. sc. 3.

P. Can. I have you in a purse-net,
Good master Picklock, with your worming brain,
And wriggling engine-head of maintenance,
Which I shall see you hole with very shortly.
B. Jonson. Staple of News, Act v. sc. 1.

——— Damned spirits all,
That in crosse-waies and flouds haue buriall,
Alreadie to their wormie beds are gone.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dreame, Act iii. sc. 2

And thousand flaming serpents hissing flew
About his soul, from hellish sulphur threw,
And every one brandish'd his fiery tongue,
And worming all about his soul they clung;
But he their stings tore out, and to the ground them flung.—G. Fletcher. Christ's Triumph over Death.

I have frequently found great numbers of long slender worms in the stomachs and other parts of fish, particularly cod-fish, especially such as are poor: which worms have worked themselves deeply into the coats and flesh, so that they could not easily be gotten out.
Derham. Physico-Theology, b. viii. c. 6. Note 9.

Animals of the worm kind, being entirely destitute of feet, trail themselves along upon the ground, and find themselves a retreat under the earth, or in the water.
Goldsmith. Animated Nature, pt. vi. b. v. c. 2.

I hate not foes, for they declare,
'Tis war for war, and dare who dare;
But your sly sneaking, worming souls
Whom Friendship scorns and Fear controuls,
Who praise, support, and help by halves,
Like heifers, neither bulls, nor calves.—Lloyd. Charity.

Such [delicate females] students are not to be sent to dull libraries, to strain their fine eyes over worm-eaten folios larger than their band-boxes.
Knox. Winter Evenings, Even. 3.

WO'RRY, v. / WO'RRIER. } Dut. Worghen; Ger. Wurgh-en, necare, jugulare, formed upon the respective verbs wer-en and war-en.

Worry is the same word as warray or werreg,—to attack hostilely; to continue to attack or assail; to persecute, to harass, to distress; to destroy by repeated or continued attacks.

And wor Roberd was eldore & eyr, gret folc he sende also
From Normandye to worry, & hys fader byquide vn do.
R. Gloucester, p. 384.

There come Venus the goddesse
Which ale werrieth Chastite.—Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Against her fos she fought so cruelly,
That ther n'as king ne prince in all that lond,
That he n'as glad, if he that grace fond
That she ne wolde upon his lond werreye.
Id. The Monkes Tale, v. 14,338.

So liberall and so bounteous
Unto his people at all times found,
Which made him strong, his fomen to confound,
And loue only his enemies to werrey.
Lidgate. Story of Thebes, pt. iii.

Therfore he that is a true shephearde, and in his herte careth for the flocke for none other skill but because he loueth the flocke, redy to do his commaundemente that gaue him that flocke to be kepte safe, and not to be nye shorne, spoyled, slayn, or worried.—Udal. John, c. 10.

Ill mote he thrive! and may his hogges,
And all that ere they breed,
Be ever worried by our dogges,
For so presumptuous deed.
Browne. Shepheard's Pipe, Ecl. 3.

Sam. For want of words no doubt, or lack of breath,
Witness when I was worried with thy peals.
Milton. Samson. Agonistes.

More material and coarser sort of dæmons, conceived the worriers of souls.—Spencer. On Prodigies, (1665.)

No man's life or property will be safe; mankind would worry and prey upon one another, and we should ere-long fall a-sunder into a condition of dissolution and wildness.
Glanvill, Ser. 4.

Hence jarring sectaries may learn
Their real int'rest to discern;
That brother should not war with brother,
And worry and devour each other.
Cowper. Nightingale & Glow-worm.

A want to undo what has been done and alter past events, which being palpably impossible, the mind works without any subject to work upon, and worries herself with empty strugglings.—Search. Light of Nature, vol. i. pt. ii. c. 21.

WORSE, adj. / WORSE, ad. / WORSE, v. / WO'RSEN, v. / WORST, adj. / WORST, n. / WORST, v. } Goth. Wairs; A. S. Wærra, wyrs, wyrsian; Dut. Wers, wars, (per syncopen, q. d. weders, Kilian.) Junius says—the Eng. Worse has by some been derived from to wear; the A. S. Werian, gerere, gerendo deterere, whence worse is detritus; he would prefer wriest, from wry, tortus, obliquus. (See WEAR, and DETERIORATE.) Worst is the past part. of Wyrsian.—wyrsed, wryrs'd, wyrst, or worst.

To worse or to worst,—is to impair or reduce, (sc. the goodness or strength,) to diminish, to weaken, to injure or hurt, to defeat.

Worse, adj. is used (grammatically) to express comparatively a greater degree of bad or ill.

Worst,—a superlatively greater degree.

Worser,—is common in our old writers, and is used even by Dryden; yet Butler, in his Grammar, which was published in 1633, observes, (p. 37.)—"that worser and lesser are not comparatives, but superfluous comparatives of comparatives; which soom ignorantly use for wors and les."

Who so come to esse [ask] hym rygt of eny trespas,
Bote he payde hym the bet, the worse hys ende was.
R. Gloucester, p. 374.

For gef thei hadde eny thing y wonne of castel or of ton,
Wel the worse it wolde be to brynge hem ther don.
Id. p. 48.

Ich lyve wel by oure Lorde. for love of goure covetyse
That al the worlde be the wors. as holy wrygt telleth.
Piers Ploukman, p. 6.

Thus he, whiche loue had in disdeigne
Werst of all other was beseine.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

To whom the Heduanes and their confederates had diuers tymes gyuen battell: wher in going by the wors, they had receyued great domage.—Goldynge. Cæsar, fol. 23.

Nowe fearing the sequele of worser inconueniences [he] hadde made them sure, enforced thereunto by apparant presumptions.—Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 71.

It worsens and slugs the most learned.
Milton. Of Reformation in England, b. i.

Thou dost deserve a worser end, and may
All such conclude so, that their friends betray.
Beaum. & Fletch. The False One, Act v. sc. 3.

——— I'll tell thee, had the devil
But any essence in him of a man,
And could be brought to love, and love a woman,
'Twould make his head ake worser than his horns do.
Id. The Woman's Prize, Act iii. sc. 1.

In all this heat art thou become so cold,
"To leave me thus forsaken at the worst,
My state at last more wretched than at first?"
Drayton. Barons' Wars, s. 76.

The state of a regenerate man, that it is no other but an ineffective striving and struggling against sin, a contention which he is most commonly worsted, and that this striving is all that he can shew of holiness to be a testimony of his regeneration.—Bp. Taylor. Of Repentance, c. 8. § 1.

Whatever doing, what can we suffer more,
What can we suffer worse? is this then worst,
Thus sitting, thus consulting, thus in arms;
What when we fled amain, pursu'd and strook
With heav'ns afflicting thunder, and besought
The deep to shelter us; this hell then seem'd
A refuge from those wounds: or when we lay
Chain'd on the burning lake? that sure was worse.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. ii.

Dal. In argument with men a woman ever
Goes by the worse, whatever be her cause.
Sam. For want of words no doubt, or lack of breath,
Witness when I was worried with thy peals.
Id. Samson Agonistes.

——— Perhaps more valid armes,
Weapons more violent, when next we meet,
May serve to better us, and worse our foes,
Or equal what between us made the odds,
In nature none. Id. Paradise Lost, b. vi.

A dreadful quiet felt and worser far
Than arms, a sullen interval of war.—Dryden.

Besides the chief errand of the Dira, was to warn Juturna from the field, for she cou'd have brought the chariot again, when she saw her brother worsted in the duel.
Id. Virgil. Æneis, Ded.

Through the anger of providence, a thriving army of rebels had worsted justice, cleared the fields, subdued all opposition and risings, even to the very insurrections of conscience itself.—South, vol. v. Ser. 2.

By the famous treaty of commerce with Portugal, the consumer is prevented by high duties from purchasing of a neighbouring country, a commodity which our own climate does not produce; but is obliged to purchase it of a distant country, though it is acknowledged that the commodity of the distant country is of a worse quality than that of the near one.—Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iv. c. 8.

WO'RSHIP, n.
Wo'RSHIP, v.
Wo'RSHIPPER.
Wo'RSHIPFUL.
Wo'RSHIPFULLY.
Wo'RSHIPPING, n.

A. S. Weorth-scype, weorthnesse, worthiness, from Weorthian, to think worthy. (See WORTH.) Upon the noun we have formed the verb To worship, i. e.

To think, to deem worthy; to respect, to regard as worthy, to honour, to revere; to offer or make offerings of honour or reverence; to perform offices or ceremonies of honour or reverence; to adore.

Tent & pauillon tille Isaac did he signe,
Wirschipped him at reson, right as himself was digne.
R. Brunne, p. 163.

In wirschip of Jhesu, & of his passion. Id. p. 17.

Said Sir Roberd, "monk thou was whilom,
For wirschip of the werld forsoke thou alle & som."
Id. p. 172.

To Gorke the com ageyn, & wrouht ther worschiply
Cloistre with couent pleyn a kirk of our Lady.—Id. p. 81.

For he is fader of faith. and formour of alle
To be faith ful to hym, he gave gou fyve wittes
For to worshepen hym thr with wile ge lyven here.
Piers Ploukman, p. 13.

Lo astronomyens camen fro the eest to Jerusalem. And seiden, where is he that is borun kyng of Jewis? for we han seen his sterre in the eest: and we comen for to worschipe him.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 2.

Beholde, there came wyse men frō the east to Jerusalē, saying: where is he that is borne kynge of Jewes? we haue sene his starre in the east, and are come to worshyp him.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Worschipe thi fadir and thi modir: and thou schalt love thi neighbore as thi self.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 19.

For the tyme is comun, and now it is: whanne trewe worschipers schulen worschipe the Fadir in spirit and treuthe: for also the Fadir sekith siche, that worschipen him.—Id. Jon, c. 4.

But the houre cometh and nowe is, whē the true worshyppers shal worship the Father in the spirit, and in trueth. For verely suche the Father requireth to worshyppe hym.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Men of Athenys bi alle thingis I se ghou as veyne worschiperis. for I passide and sigh ghoure mawmetts, and foond an auter in which was writen, to the unknown God. therfore which thing ghe unknowinge worschipen, this thing I schewe to ghou.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 17.

Mē of Athēs I perceaue that in all thynges ye are to superstycious. For as I passed by and beheld the maner how ye worshyp your goddes, I founde an aulter wherin was wrytten: vnto the vnknowen God. Whom ye thē ygnorauntly worshyp, him shewe I vnto you.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

For Solomon sayth: It is a gret worship to a man to kepe him fro noise and strif.—Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

Soche worship-willers mote ill fele.
Id. Plowmannes Tale.

That al the wide worldes fame
Spake worship of hir good name.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

The priuilege of regalie
Was safe, and all the baronie
Worshipped was in his estate. Id. Ib. Prol.

Receiue and take a newe feith,
Whiche shall be forthrynge of thy life,
And eke so worshipfull a wife,
The doughter of an emperour.
To wedde, it shall be great honour.—Id. Ib. b. ii.

Vpon ye v. day played togyder an Henauder. and a squyre called John Stewarde, whiche daye also the Englyssheman wan ye worshyp.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1409.

And there caused the sygne of the crosse to be paynted in the ryght handes of the images, whiche the senatours of olde tyme hadde areyd in worshyppe of theyr victories.
Id. Ib. c. 69.

His moder Helayne, thanne beyng ferre from hym, and herynge that he was become a Cristen man, sent vnto hym letters of recōmendacōn that he hadde forsaken the worshyppynge of idollys; but she dispraysed hym in that, that he worshypped a man yt was nayled vpon a crosse.—Id. Ib.

And then delighteth in true worshippers hurt, because they iudge cursedly the good to be bad, & therfore reioyseth in the punishment of the godly.
Sir J. Cheke. The Hurt of Sedition.

Therfore rather, whan thou shalt be desired to any worshipfull table, chose and take vnto thy self the neathermoste place of al to sitte in.—Udal. Luke, c. 14.

In which [goodly and honorable funeralles] the folishe sicke man is sometyme occupied, as though he thought that he should stand in a window, and see how woorshipfullye he shall bee broughte to churche.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 79.

Is not this cōclusion worshipfully deduced vpō scripture?
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 463.

Walke (after thexample of the olde Salomon) as it were before the porche of the temple, lyke Goddes true minister, to expell and kepe out all false worshippinges.
Udal. Ephesians, Prol.

It was sometime in English lawes, that the people and the lawes were in reputation: and then were the wisest of the people worshyp-worthy, euery one after his degree: carle, and churle, thein, and vnder-thein.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 126.

——— Fye for shame—go work,
Or serve, you are grave enough to be a porter
In some good man of worships house, and give Sententious answers to the comers in.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Captain, Act i. sc. 3.

Your altars and your temples shake to nothing;
And you false worshipers, blind fools of ceremony,
Shall seek for holes to hide your heads, and fears in.
Id. The Island Princess, Act v.

And findes the testie gentleman so hot,
That he will lose his head, ere giue consent
His masters child, as worshipfully he tearmes it,
Shall lose the the royaltie of England's throne.
Shakespeare. Rich. III. Act iii. sc 4.

"That God is to be worshipped," is without doubt as great a truth as any can enter into the mind of man, and deserves the first place amongst all practical principles. But yet it can by no means be thought innate, unless the ideas of God and worship are innate.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. i. c. 4.

It being evident that God cannot be the God of the dead, but of the living; and that all promises made to such worshippers of the true God as at any time forsook all that they had and even life itself for the sake of that worship, could be nothing but mere mockery, if there was no life to come, and God had no power to restore them from the dead.
Clarke. On the Evidences, Prop. 14.

How pale each worshipful and rev'rend guest
Rise from a clergy or a city feast!
Pope. Imitation of Horace, b. ii. Sat. 2.

To this protestation against heathenism, the propriety of which binds the worshippers of the true God in all ages to a weekly sabbath, it is reasonable that Christians should add a similar protestation against Judaism.
Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 23.

If the worship of God be a duty of religion, public worship is a necessary institution; forasmuch as, without it, the greater part of mankind would exercise no religious worship at all.—Paley. Moral Philosophy, b. v. § 4.

WO'RSTED. See the quotation from Fuller.

Some weren a miter and ring,
With double worstid well idight.
Chaucer. The Plowmannes Tale.

Of double worsted was his semicope.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 265.

They shewed vs a certain course cloth, which I thinke to be made in France, for it was course woolI, and a small threed, and as thicke as wosted.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 32.

Worsted. These first took their name from Worsted, a village in this county. Originally it is nothing but woollen thred spun very fine, and for the more strength twisted together. But oh! it surpasseth my skill to name the several stuffs (being worsted disguised with weaving and colouring) made thereof.—Fuller. Worthies. Norfolk.

They seemed to have with them all their property, which was a dog, and a cat, a fishing net, a hatchet, a knife, a cradle, some bark of trees intended for the covering of a hut, a reel, some worsted, a flint and steel, &c.
Anson. Voyages, b. ii. c. 3.

Woollen yarn and worsted are prohibited to be exported under the same penalties as wool.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iv. c. 8.

WORT. A. S. Wyrt; Dut. Worte, wortel; Ger. Wurze; Sw. Oort. (See ORCHARD.) Wachter resorts to the Gr. Ορ-ειν, excitare, attollere, surgere, crescere, to lift up, to rise, to grow. May it not be from A. S. Ord, ortus? applied to—

Any plant that arises or springs from the ground.

Laborers that han no lond. to lyven on bote here handes
Deyned to dyne. a day nyght olde wortes.
Piers Plouhman p. 145.

But take ghe a syk man in bileue, not in demyngis of thoughtis [in disceptatiouibus] for a nothir man leueth that he mai ete alle thingis but he that is syk ete wortis.
Wiclif. Romayns, c. 14.

And in a bedde of wortes stille he lay,
Till it was passed undern of the day,
Waiting his time on Chaunteclere to falle,
Chaucer. The Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15,228.

And that the residue of their diete shuld be salte, olyues, chese and lykes, and more ouer wortes, that the fieldes do bring forth, for their potage.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governovr, b. iii. c. 21.

It is an excellent pleasure to be able to take pleasure in worts and water, in bread and onions; for then a man can never want pleasure when it is so ready for him, that nature hath spread it over all its provisions.
Bp. Taylor, vol. i. Ser. 16. pt. ii.

WORT. A. S. Wyrt, mustum, new beer or ale. Dut. Werte, worte. Wyrt (see WORT, ante) is applied to all sorts of smelling flowers, spices, &c., and may be applied to the new beer on account of its pleasant smell, or it may have sprung from the verb Orath-ian, spirare, to breathe.

——— And oile
Of Tartre, alum, glas, verme, wort, & argoile.
Chaucer. Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,284.

But nevertheless, if the leaf [of burrage] be infused long, it yieldeth forth but a raw substance, of no vertue: Therefore I suppose if in the must of wine, or wort of beer, while it worketh, before it be tunned, the burrage stay a short time, and be often changed with fresh; it will make a sovereign drink for melancholy passions.
Bacon. Naturall Historie, § 18.

WORTH. Goth. Wairthan; A. S. Weorth-an; Dut. Werden, worden, fieri,—to be or become; or cause to be or become. Wo worth is a very common expression in our older writers,—woe be; wo be to you. See WITH.

So ys that stude y clepude now, & euer worth for that cas.
R. Gloucester, p. 69.

Lord he worth of France.—Id. p. 132.

The kyng adde by hys vorste wyf one stalwarde sone.
That, vor hys stalwardhed, longe worth in mone [mind].
Id. p. 293.

Eft he seyde to hem selfe, Wo mote you worthen
That the toumbes of profetes tildeth vp heighe.
Piers Plouhman. Crede.

Whan I shall shewen my shrift, shent mote I worthen.
Id. Ib.

Wo worthe the fayre gemme vertulesse
Wo worth that herbe also that doth no bote.
Chaucer. Troyl. & Cres. b. iii.

The brocke of Thebes was of suche a kynde,
So full of rubies and of stones of Inde,
That euery wight that sette on it an eye
He wende anone to worthe out of his mynde.
Id. Complaynt of Mars, v. 95.

Wo worth ever false enuie.—Gower. Con. A. b. viii.

But I a draught haue of that welle
In whiche my deth is and my lyfe:
My ioye is tourned into strife
That sober shall I never worthe.—Id. Ib. b. v.

——— One night
I strew'd the stairs with pease, as he past down;
And the good gentleman (woe worth me for't)
Ev'n with this reverend head, this head of wisdom,
Told two and twenty stairs, good and true.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman's Prize Act v. sc. 1.

WORTH, n. / WORTH, adj. / WO'RTHY, adj. / WO'RTHY, n. / WO'RTHILY. / WO'RTHINESS. / WO'RTHLESS. / WO'RTHLESSNESS.
Dut. Waerd, weerd, werdig; Ger. Wert, wurdig; Sw. Wärd; A. S. Weorth; Goth. Wairths, dignus. The Dut. Waard; Ger. Wert; Sw. Wärde; A. S. Weorth, worth, value, price,—may be the Fr. Guerdon, our own ward, in reward. See Wert, in Wachter, and WORSHIP.

Any thing given or paid, price or value set or fixed, rated, or estimated in—regard or reward; value, desert, merit: and worthy—
Valuable, estimable, deserving, meritorious.

Vor the more that a man con, the more worth he ys.
R. Gloucester, p. 364.

The kyng Wyllam, vorto wyte the wurth of lond,
Let en query streytlyche thoru al Engeloud.—Id. p. 373.

Ac hym self hym crownede, & made hym kyng so.
The sacryng was lute worth, and natheles yt was ydo.
Id. p. 106.

——— For he was so worthi man.—Id. p. 38.

Thou fisshes not worthe a leke, rise & go thi ways.
R. Brunne, p. 204.

When Isaac herd seie, what help R. was comen,
& how to stop his weie parties had thei nomen,
Of his men most worthi, at tham conselle gan take,
The best he mot go bi, a cord with R. make.—Id. p. 162.

Fore the more a man may do, by so that he do hit
The more is he worth and worthi. of wyse and good ypreised.
Piers Plouhman, p. 182.

Lo in hevene on hy. was an holy comune
Til Lucifer the lyere. leyved that hymselve
Were wittyour and worthiour. than he that was hus maister.
Id. p. 85.

And we han this tresour in brotil vessels, that the worthynesse be of Godis vertu and not of us.—Wiclif. 2 Cor. c. 4.

Ye ben salt of the erthe, that if the salt vanishe awey wherynne schal it be saltid? to nothing it is worth over, no but it be cast out and be defouled of men.—Id. Matt. c. 5.

Therfore I boundun for the Lord biseche ghou, that ghe walk worthili in the clepyng in which ghe ben clepid with al mekenesse and myldenesse.—Id. Effesies, c. 4

I therfore whych am in bondes for the Lordes sake, exhorte you, that ye walke worthy of the vocacyon wherwyth ye are called, in al humblenes of mynde, and meknes.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Ful worthy was he in his lordes werre,
And therto hadde he ridden, no man ferre,
As wel in Cristendom as in hethenesse,
And ever honoured for his worthinesse.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 48.

Furthermore, men may also refreine and put away venial sinne, by receiving worthily the precious body of Jesu Crist; by receiving eke of holy water; by, &c.—Id. Persones Tale.

But Humblesse is all other wise,
Whiche most is worth, and no reprise
It taketh agein, but softe and faire
If ony thing stant in contraire,
With humble speche it is redressed.—Gower. Con. A. b. i.

This worthie maiden, whiche was there
Stode than, as who saith, dead for fere,
To see the feast, how that it stode,
Whiche all was tourned into bloud. Id. Ib. b. vi.

Whiche worthely of hem she bought. Id. Ib.

Whan I my dere lady mete,
And thinke howe that I am not mete
Unto hir highe worthinesse. Id. Ib.

And as for al the landes and fees that I haue in all Englande, besyde suche landes and fees as I haue of the gyfte of the kynges moste noble grace, is not at this daye, nor shall bee whyle my mother in lawe lyueth (whose lyfe and good helth I praye God longe keepe and continue) woorthe yearelye to my lyuynge, the summe of full fyftye pounde.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 867.

But wilful will did prick me forth,
Blind Cupid did me whip and guide;
Force made me take my grief in worth:
My fruitless hope my harm did hide.
Surrey. The Sight of his Mistress, &c.

And if the besetting of one house to robbe it, be iustly deemed worthy death, what shall we thinke of them that besiege whole cities for desire of spoile?
Sir J. Cheke. The Hurt of Sedition.

For such as receaue Christes most precious body and bloud in the sacrament worthily, they haue Christ dwellyng in thē.—Bp. Gardner. Exp. Pres. of Christes Body, fol. 18.

Who can express the slaughter of that night?
Or tell the number of the corpses slain?
Or can in tears bewail them worthily?
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

Ouer all theis Druides there is one primate, whych hathe chyefe authoryte ouer theym. When he is dead, if there be any of the rest that excelleth in worthines, he succeedeth.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 156.

The justice that so his promise complisheth
For his word's sake to worthiless desert,
That gratis his graces to men doth depart.
Wyat. The Author.

Say, muse, thir names then known, who first, who last,
Rouz'd from the slumber, on that fiery couch,
At thir great emperors call, as next in worth,
Came singly where he stood on the bare strand,
While the promiscuous croud stood yet aloof?
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. i.

——— But he his wonted pride
Soon recollecting, with high words, that bore
Semblance of worth, not substance, gently rais'd
Thir fainting courage, and dispel'd thir fears.—Id. Ib.

Here we may reign secure, and in my choyce
To reign is worth ambition though in hell. Id. Ib

Here, happie creature, fair angelic Eve,
Partake thou also; happie though thou art,
Happier thou mayst be, worthier canst not be:
Taste this, and be henceforth among the gods
Thy self a goddess. Id. Ib. b. v.

Begin then, O my dearest sacred dame,
Daughter of Phœbus and of Memorie,
That doest ennoble with immortall name
The warlike worthies, from antiquitie,
In thy great volume of Eternity.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 3.

——— They pervert pure natures healthful rules
To loathsom sickness, worthily, since they
Gods image did not reverence in themselves.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. xi.

If no law forbids it, then it is lawful; and to abstain from what is lawful, though it may have a worthiness in it more than ordinary, yet to use our liberty is at no hand a sin.—Bp. Taylor. On Repentance, c. iii, § 3.

——— Pardon Evadne, would my worth
Were great as yours, or that the king, or he,
Or both thought so, perhaps he found me worthless,
But till he did so, in these ears of mine
(These credulous ears) he pour'd the sweetest words
That Art or Love could frame.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Maid's Tragedy, Act ii.

There is no one of the antient philosophers, who does in all his writings speak so excellently and worthily as he [Plato] concerning the nature and attributes of God.
Clarke. On the Attributes, p. 34. Prop.

Mysia is a country in Asia Minor, bordering upon Troas, remarkable for nothing more than the worthlessness of its inhabitants.—Congreve. Ovid. Art of Love, b. iii. Note 24.

The words now before are taken from a psalm of Asaph, written on purpose to set out the weakness and worthlessness of external performances, when compared with more substantial and vital duties.—Atterbury, vol. i. Ser. 1.

He yields, though not without a sigh of regret, to think that he must divest himself of all those sentiments which he once hoped would raise him to the rank of the worthies whom he admired in books, and cannot help lamenting that he must study degeneracy.—Know. Ess. No. 60.

The descendants of those, who persecuted them, (the prophets,) when living, held their memories, when dead, in eternal honour; doubly convinced of their mission from heaven by the accomplishment of their predictions, and the singular worthiness of their conduct.
Secker, vol. iii. Ser. 23.

It [gaming] brings the worthless and the wicked into credit and familiarity with their betters.—Id. vol. ii. Ser. 8.

But the Christian religion humbles pride and controuls avarice, by showing the littleness of all earthly grandeur, the comparative worthlessness of all riches, and by founding the true dignity of human nature on the gifts of divine grace.—Knox. Con. on the Lord's Supper.

——— The Timnian bride
Had not so soon preferr'd
Thy paranymph, worthless to thee compar'd,
Successour in thy bed,
Nor both so loosly disally'd
Thir nuptials. Milton. Samson Agonistes.

It is, therefore, worth while to search out the bounds between opinion and knowledge; and examine by what measures, in things, whereof we have no certain knowledge, we ought to regulate our assent, and moderate our persuasions.—Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. i. c. 1.

Thee still she seeks, and tuneful sings thy name,
As once she Theron sung,
While with the deathless worthy's fame
Olympian Pisa rung.—Congreve. Pindaric Ode.

WOT. / WOTE. See WOOT.

WOULD, is formed from Wol;—woled, wold or would.
To wol is—to will, (qv.)

A thousant pownd of seluer ich wolde hym geue anon,
And make hym euer vnder me mayster of al my londe,
And that ich hym wolde myd treythe siker faste on honde.
R. Gloucester, p. 150.

And yf hue wirche wisliche. by wys men counsail
Ich wolle forgyve hure alle hure gultes.
Piers Plouhman, p. 38.

Jerusalem, Jerusalem that sleest profetis, and stonest hem that ben sent to thee: hou ofte wolde I gedre togider thi chykens as an henne gederith togidere here chykens undir hir wyngis, and thou woldist not?
Wiclif. Matthew c. 23.

Jerusalem, Jerusalem whiche kyllest prophetes, and stonest them which are sent to the: how often would I haue gathered thy childrē together, as ye henne gathered her chickens vnder her wynges, but ye would not?
Bible, 1551. Ib.

What man of you is, that if his sone axe him breed: whether he wole take him a stoon?—Therefore alle thingis, whatever thingis ye wolen men do to you, do ye to hem.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 7.

And at a knight than wol I first beginne.
Chaucer. The Prologue, v. 42.

Now, maister, quod the wif, er that I go,
What wol ye dine? I wol go theraboute.
Id. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7419.

But of your grete goodnesse, by your leve,
I wolde pray you that ye not you greve,
I wol with Thomas speke a litel throw.—Id. Ib. v. 7397.

The warre woll no peace purchase.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And saide, if that he might acheue
His purpos, it shall well be yolde,
Be so that thei hym helpe woled.—Id. Ib. b. vii.

For of two pointes I am bethought,
That though I wolde, I might nought
Obeye vnto my ladies reste.—Id. Ib. b. i.

But certes I maie nought obeye,
That I ne mote algates saie
Some what, of that I wolde mene.—Id. Ib.

Fly, fly, good knights, said hee, fly fast away
If that your liues ye loue, as meet ye should;
Fly fast, and saue your selues from neere decay,
Here may ye not have entrance, though we would:
We would and would againe, if that we could.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 9.

It will be every man's interest to join good performances to spiritual purposes, to subdue the exorbitancies of the flesh, as well as to continue the wouldings of the spirits.
Hammond.

And 2. whatsoever you do, you do, first against one velleity (or wouldingness) or other; and secondly, with some mixture of the contrary.—Id. Works, vol. i. p. 23.

A man's heart beats, and the blood circulates, which it is not in his power by any thought or volition to stop; and therefore in respect to these motions, where rest depends not on his choice, nor would follow the determination of his mind, if it should prefer it, he is not a free agent.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 21.

WOU'LDING. Vox nautica (says Skinner), and he believes it to be from the A. S. v. Wealdan, to wield,—regere, gubernare.

For, on a survey, it was found that the main-mast was sprung at the upper woulding, though it was thought capable of being secured by a couple of fishes.
Anson. Voyages, b. i. c. 5.

WOUND. See WIND, v.

WOUND, v. / WOUND, n. / WOU'NDING, n. / WOU'NDLESS. Goth. Wund; A. S. Wundian; Dut. Wond-en; Ger. Wunden, lacerare, sauciare, vulnerare. Martinius, Junius, and Skinner derive from Wind-an, to wind; because wounds are rolled with bandages; to which Wachter objects that this is confounding the hurt with the remedy.

See the quotation from Wiseman. To wound, generally, is,—

To hurt, to injure, to pain or inflict pain; to damage.

For ther nas non ther with y wonded, that euer keuer mygte.—R. Gloucester, p. 49.

Bataile thei smyte strong ynow, & mony slowe to gronde,
So that Fulgence there hadde detheis wonde.—Id. p. 76.

Roberd with a knyue the Comyn ther he smote,
Thorgh whilk wounde his lyue he lost, wel I wote.
R. Brunne, p. 330.

He gede to the hie autere, & stode & rested him thore,
Come Roberde's squiere, & wonded him well more.
Id. Ib.

Ac ich sewede the Samaritan. and seide hou thei bothe
Weren afered and flowen fro the man y^t wonede.
Piers Plouhman, p. 325.

And eftsoone he sente to hem another servaunt and thei woundiden him in the heed & turmentiden him.
Wiclif. Mark, c. 12.

And he hymsilff baar oure synnes in his bodi on a tree. that we be deede to synnes and lyue to rigtwisnesse, bi whos wan wounde we ben heelid.—Id. 1 Petir, c. 2.

And thei blasfemyden God of heuene for sorewis of her woundis, and thei diden not penaunce of her werkis.
Id. Apocalips, c. 16.

Nor how that they, whereto should I write,
Enbraced him in hir armes white,
Nor the gadering about him, or the prees,
Nor the sorrow that Polimites
Made in himselfe, to see him sore wounded.
Chaucer. The Story of Thebes, pt. ii.

Foure of his olde foos han it espied, and setten ladders to the walles of his hous, and by the windowes ben entred and beten his wif, and wounded his doughter with five mortal woundes, in five sondry places.—Id. Tale of Melibeus.

Wherewith Gysippus was soo wounded to the harte, thynkynge Titus had contempned his fortune, that oppressed with mortal heuynes, fell in a sowne.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governour, b. ii. c. 12.

For after that Antony was come into his winter-garrison; & that the city of Arras continued in obedience, Comius who after his wouding that we spake of before, was wont euer to be ready at hand to his country men at euerye stir.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 268.

This [Achilleos] is that wound-hearbe, wherewith (by report) he cured prince Telephus.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxv. c. 5.

——— Thammus came next behind,
Whose annual wound in Lebanon allur'd
The Syrian damsels to lament his fate
In amorous dittyes all a summer's day,
While smooth Adonis from his native rock
Ran purple to the sea, suppos'd with blood
Of Thammus yearly wounded.—Milton. Par. Lost, b. i.

And sing of bloody Mars, of warres, of giusts,
Turne thee to those, that weld the awfull crowne,
To doubted knights, whose woundlesse armour rusts,
And helmes vnbruzed, wexen daily browne.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. October.

Come, Gertrude, we'll call up our wisest friends,
And let them know, both what we mean to do,
And what's untimely done: so haply, slander,—
Whose whisper o'er the world's diameter,
As level as the cannon to his blank,
Transports his poison'd shot,—may miss our name,
And hit the woundless air.
Shakespeare. Hamlet, Act iv. sc. 1.

I would rather bate him a few strokes of his oar, than not employ an honest man that has been wounded in the queen's service.—Spectator, No. 383.

A wound is a solution of continuity in any part of the body suddenly made by any thing that cuts or tears, with a division of the skin.—Wiseman. Surgery, b. v. c. 1.

If a man considers that all his heavy complaints of wounds and deaths arise from some little affectations of coquetry, which are improved into charms by his own fond imagination, the very laying before himself the cause of his distemper, may be sufficient to effect the cure of it.
Spectator, No. 377.

——— Oh! Achilles, Peleus' son!
Bear with my grief, thou noblest of the host
Since such distress hath on the Greecians fall'n.
Our bravest chiefs lie wounded in the fleet,
Some in close conflict, others from afar.
Cowper. Homer. Iliad, b. xvi.

WRACK, or WRECK, v. / WRACK, n. / WRA'CKFUL. / WRE'CKING, n. See To RACK, WREAK, and WRETCH. A. S. Wrican, wræcan; Goth. Wric-an; Dut. Racken, wracke.

To afflict or inflict; to distress or distract; to afflict or dash against; and, consequentially, to destroy, to ruin; to distress, and, consequentially, to punish, to torture. See RACK.

The constable of the castle doun is fare
To seen this wrecke, and al the ship he sought,
And fond this wery woman ful of care.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4934.

Of this mervaille agast was all the prees,
As mazed folk they stonden everich on
For drede of wreche, save Custance alone.
Id. Ib. v. 5100.

Count. F. O in what tempests do my fortunes saie,
Still wrack'd with winds more foul and contrary
Than any other northern gust, or southern flaw,
That ever yet inforced the sea to gape,
And swallow the poor merchant's traffic up.
B. Jonson. Case is Altered, Act iii. sc. 1.

As when a ship, that flies faire vnder saile,
An hidden rock escaped hath vnwares,
That lay in waite her wrack for to bewaile,
The mariner yet halfe amazed stares
At perill past.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

No more guns now, nor hates, but joyes and triumphs,
An universal gladness fly about us:
And know however subtle men dare cast,
And promise wrack, the gods give peace at last.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Island Princess, Act v.

This day allotts the punishment, or gaines,
Of all our warres: thinke vpon Cæsar's chaines,
His wracks and gibbetts: thinke you see this face
These quarter'd limmes stand in the markett place.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. vii.

——— With that he rides
Through his distressed troopes, and on all sides
Sounds a retreat, from death calling them backe,
Thinking himselfe not worth so great a wracke.—Id. Ib.

Thereto they vs'd one most accursed order,
To eate the flesh of men, whom they mote find,
And strangers to deuour, which on their border
Were brought by errour, or by wreckfull wind,
A monstrous cruelty gainst course of kind.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 8.

——— Where king Latinus lent
Safe harbour for his ships, with wrackfull tempest rent.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 1.

Besides, it causeth it to seeme scortched and full of knots, yea and to grow like a dwarfe or wreckling.
Holland. Plinie, b. xvii. c. 22.

Supposing that they saw the Duke's ship wrackt,
And his great person perish.—Dryden. Tempest, Act i.

It [industry] is in itself sweet and satisfactory; as freeing our mind from distraction, and wrecking irresolution; as feeding us with good hope, and yielding a foretaste of its good fruits.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 20.

As seamen parting in a general wrack,
When first the loosening planks begin to crack,
Each catches one; and straight are far disjoyn'd,
Some born by tides, and others by the wind.
Dryden. 2 Pt. Conquest of Granada, Act iii.

Thus we were once more safe at sea, after narrowly escaping being wrecked on the very island we but a few days before so ardently wished to be at.
Cook. Second Voyage, b. i. c. 10.

Thus the importation of wool cards, except from Ireland, or when brought in as wreck or prize goods, was prohibited by the 3d of Edward IV.; which prohibition was renewed by the 39th of Elizabeth, and has been continued and rendered perpetual by subsequent laws.
Smith. Wealth of Nations, b. iv. c. 8.

WRA'NGLE, v. / WRA'NGLE, n. / WRA'NGLER. / WRA'NGLING, n. Skinner thinks from wrong (injury), because they who threw the blame of a wrong or injury from themselves upon another, were said to wrongle. Wrangle has probably the same origin as wrong; i. e. the verb to wring: constringere, torquere, to constrain, to compress; to strain or press, (met.) the mind, the faculties of the mind; and hence,—

To argue or reason strictly, rigidly, severely; to dispute or discuss acutely;—and further, to twist and turn, to distort, to pervert.

Ryd forth syre Reson, and recche nat of here tales
For th^r wratthe and wranglyng ys. ther their wol abyde.
Piers Plouhman, p. 65.

Wherof this auctor may not thinke nowe as vpon a wranglyng argument, to satisfie a coniecture diuised, therby to confirme a newe teachyng.
Bp. Gardner. Explic. Of Christ's Presence, fol. 43.

As for such other wranglyng, as is made in the vnderstandyng of the wordes of Christ, shall after be spoken of, by further occasion.—Id. Ib. fol. 14.

Wranglers and yrefull folke should not be iudges ouer the peasible, and the ambicious ouer the meke, and the malicious ouer the symple.—Golden Boke, Let. 13.

With their brethren they will wrangle and go to law, nay, they will be ready to enter the lists and combat for a plot of ground whereupon a house standeth, about some corner of a messuage or tenement or end of a little tenement.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 147.

He sheweth himselfe besides to be a lover of the truth, and is not taken for a litigious quarreller, a rash wrangler, or a bitter brawler.—Id. Ib. p. 44.

Sancta Croce the legat, who well enough understood that the council intended not to determine the truth, yet, to silence their wranglings in the council, let them dispute abroad; but the council would not end it, by clearing the ambiguity.
Bp. Taylor. Dissuasive from Popery, b. i. pt. ii. § 1

I worship as my fathers did before me.
Unpractis'd in disputes, and wrangling schools,
I seek no farther knowledge, and so keep
My mind at peace, nor know the pain of doubting.
Rowe. Royal Convert, Act i.

The giving the priest a right to the tithe would produce lawsuits and wrangles.—Swift.

Let me therefore advise this generation of wranglers, for their own and for the public good, to act at least so consistently with themselves, as not to burn with zeal for irreligion, and with bigotry for nonsence.—Spectator, No. 185.

But at last he appeared so well satisfied of her innocence, that from reproaches and wranglings he fell to tears and embraces.—Id. No. 126.

——— The grand debate,
The popular harangue, the tart reply,
The logic, and the wisdom, and the wit,
And the loud laugh—I long to know them all;
I burn to set th' imprison'd wranglers free,
And give them voice and utt'rance once again.
Cowper. Task, b. iv.

The disputations at Oxford are now indeed merely formal; but the wranglings at Cambridge still continue, and often infuse an acid into the mind of youth which turns the milk of human kindness quite sour.
Knox. Winter Evenings, Even. 70.

WRA'NKLING, i. e. Rankling, (qv.)

However seeming outwardly content,
Yet th' inward touch that wounded honour bears,
Rests closely wrankling, and can find no ease,
Till death of one side, cure this great disease
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. iii.

WRAP, v. WRA'PPER. WRA'PPING, n. } See ENWRAP. Skinner derives from A. S. Hweorf-ian, to turn, to return; because the thing wrapping or rolling is often turned about that which wrapped or rolled.

To turn or roll round; to fold round or enfold; to involve.

It was so wrapped under humble chere,
And under hew of trouth in swiche manere,
Under plesance, and under besy peine,
That no wight coud have wend he coud feine,
So depe in greyn he died his coloures.
Chaucer. Squieres Tale, v. 10,822.

A large couerchief of threde
She wrapped all about her hede
But she forgate not her psaltere.—Id. Rom. of the Rose.

In this tyme that Fraunce was thus wrappyd in these harde happes & battaylles, dyed the kynge Theodoricus.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 148.

Which was payed with great murmure and grudge, consyderynge ye manyfolde myseryes that the common people at those dayes were wrappyd in.—Id. Ib. c. 323.

He was striken from the wall wyth an arrow in the thighe. Whiche he pulled out, and without wrapping of his wounde, called for his horse, and letted not for his hurte to geue order for such things as he thought expedient.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 238.

Wee shall kill them therfore as they bee wrapt in oure spoiles.—Id. Ib. fol. 93.

Some pleasant hour thy woe may wrap, and thee defend and cover.—Wyat. Comp. of the Absence of his Love.

And therein they founde a greate difficultie and muche trauaile by reason that the wreathing and wrappinge together of the boughes kepte them of from the bodyes of the trees.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 148.

If it be wisdom, and not cunning, this
Which so embroils the state of truth with brawls,
And wraps it up in strange confusedness.
Daniel. To Sir T. Egerton.

——— Let every passion
Be fed, ev'n to a surfet, which in time
May breed a loathing: let him have enough
Of every object, that his sence is wrapt with;
And being once glutted, then the taste of folly
Will come into his rellish.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Nice Valour, Act i.

I have often thought wrapping-gowns and dirty linen, with all that huddled œconomy of dress which passes under the general name of "a mob," the bane of conjugal love, and one of the readiest means imaginable to alienate the affection of an husband, especially a fond one.
Spectator, No. 302.

My arms were pressed to my sides, and my legs closed together by so many wrappers one over another, that I looked like an Ægyptian mummy.—Id. No. 90.

Let none of us then suppose he hath no account to give. A single talent, wrapped up in a napkin, brought its possessor, you may remember, into a direful case.
Gilpin, vol. i. Ser. 11.

I quickly found, that Nitella passed her time between finery and dirt; and was always in a wrapper, nightcap and slippers, when she was not decorated for immediate show.
Rambler, No. 115.

WRATH, or WROTH, adj. & n. WRA'THFUL. WRA'THFULLY. WRA'THFULNESS. WRA'THLESS. } A. S. Wrath, wratha. Skinner derives from the A. S. verb Wryth-an, to writhe, torquere, distorquere; and of this verb Tooke considers wrath to be the past tense and past participle, (see WREATH.) Hence one in wrath is one writhed, tortured, by angry passions and wrath.

Torturing anger; raging, violent, furious anger; also applied to anger less violent. To wrath,—

To cause wrath or anger.

Ac thoru the mygte of Jhesu Crist we beth ybrogt to grounde,
That we wrathithed euere mo, and now we abbeth yfounde.
R. Gloucester, p. 253.

Bituex the kyng of France & the erle William
Was that tyme a distance, a wrath bituex tham nam.
R. Brunne, p. 294.

I kan not telle gow whi that werre was reised olofte,
Men said the wrath & cri com thorgh the lord Tiptofte.
Id. p. 245.

Thorgh that Cristendom, tho, that were so wrothe,
At haly kirke's fayth alle on were bothe. Id. p. 24.

He ne suffred neuere wrath to be aboue
Bituex kyng [and] baron, that ne he mad ay lotie.—Id. p. 6.

Whan wrathed Steuen with Dauid of Scotland,
That wild not tille him cheuen, no bowe vnto his hand.
Id. p. 111.

S. Dunstan tille him spak wrothfulle wordes.—Id. p. 37.

The kyng his wordes toke wratheſully tille herte,
For ire nere he quoke, & ansuerd him fulle smerte.
R. Brunne, p. 292.

God was wel wrother. and toke the rather veniaunce.
Piers Ploukman, p. 6.

I likene it to a limyerde, to drawen men to helle:
And to worchipe of the fend, wraththen the soules.
Id. Crede.

And yf he wraithe we mowe be war. and hus way rounne.
Id. Vision, p. 10.

Why thow wrathest now. wonder me thinketh.—Id. p. 49.

But the kyng whanne he hadde herd was wroth, and he sente hise oostis, and he destriede the manquelleris, and brent her citee.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 22.

Whē the kyng hearde yt, he was wroth, and sent forth his warriers & destroyed those murtherers, & brent vp their citie.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Be ghe wrothe and nyle ghe do synne, the sunne fall not doun on ghoure wraththe, nyle ghe ghyue stide [locum] to the deuel.—Wiclif. Effesies, c. 4.

And he byheelde hem about with wraththe and hadde sorowe on the blyndnesse of her herte, and seith to the man, holde forth thin hond; and he held forth, and his hond was restorid to him.—Id. Mark, c. 3.

Al bittyrnesse and wraththe and yndicnacioun and cry and blasfemye be taken awei fro ghou with al malice.
Id., Effesies, c. 4.

Lette all bytternes, fearsnes and wrathe, rorynge and cursed speakynge, be put awaye from you, with all maliciousnes.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Wherfore as the Hooli Goost seith, To dai if ghe han herd his vois nyle ghe hardne ghoure hertis as in wraththyng lyk the dai of temptacioun in desert.—Id. Ebrewis, c. 3.

To dai if ghe han herd the vois of him nyle ghe hardne ghoure hertis as in that wraththing.—Id. Ib.

Kisse me quod she, we be no lenger wrothe,
For by my trouth I wol be to you bothe,
This is to sayn, ye bothe faire and good.
Chaucer. The Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6822.

I wol not wrathen him, so mote I thrive;
That that I spake, I sayd it in my bourd.
Id. Manciples Prol. v. 17,030.

In all the parish wif ne was ther none
That to the offring before hire shulde gon,
And if ther did, certain so wroth was she,
That she was out of alle charitee.
Id. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 454.

And the same Salomon saith: The angrie and wrathfull man maketh noises, and the patient man attempreth and stilleth hem.—Id. Tale of Melibeus.

My good father telle me this,
What thynge is ire? Sone it is,
That in our Englisshe wrath is hote,
Whiche hathe his wordes ay so hote,
That all a mans pacience
Is fired of the violence. Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

——— He tho caught
A yerde, whiche he bare on honde,
And thought, that he wolde fonde
To lette hem, and smote hem bothe,
Wherof the gods weren wrothe. Id. Ib.

So might it neuer ben honest,
A man to wrathen hym to sore,
Of that another doth the lore
Of kinde. Id. Ib.

What man hath that complexion,
Full of imaginacion,
Of dedes, and of wrathfull thoughte,
He freteth hym seluen all to noughte.—Id. Ib. b. vii.

Whan toward Colchos out of Grece
By sea seilend vpon a pece
Of londe of Troie reste preyde.
But he wrothfully conieyde. (i.e. conge-ed.) Id. Ib. b. v.

Once may thou love, never beloved again!
So love thou still, and not thy love obtain!
So wrathfull love, with spites of just disdain,
May freat thy cruel heart!
Wyat. To his unkind Love.

Wrathfulness is voyded out, and gentlenes and mekenes is in stede therof infused.—Udal. Luke, Pref.

But welcome now my Lord, in wele or woe,
Whose presence I haue lackt too long a day;
And fie on fortune mine avowed foe,
Whose wrathfull wreakes themselues doe now alay.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 8.

——— And gentle friends,
Let's kill him boldly, but not wrathfully:
Let's carue him, as a dish fit for the gods,
Not hew him as a carkasse fit for hounds.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar, Act ii. sc. 1.

But all those pleasant bowres, and palace braue,
Guyon broke downe, with rigour pittilesse;
Ne ought their goodly workmanship might saue
Them from the tempest of his wrathfulnesse,
But that their blisse he turn'd to balefulnesse.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 12.

Phi. What's this to love, and to the lady? he's old,
Wrathful, perverse, self-will'd, and full of anger
Which are his faults.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Laws of Candy, Act iii.

——— Let me Ixion like,
Embrace my black cloud, since my Juno is
So wrathful, and averse.
Id. The Knight of Malta, Act i. sc. 1.

The Thracian could (though all those tales were true
The bold Greeks tell) no greater wonders do:
Before his feet so sheep and lions lay,
Fearless, and wrathless, while they heard him play.
Waller. Of the Countess of Carlisle.

Friend to my life! (which did not you prolong,
The world hath wanted many an idle song),
What drop or nostrum can this plague remove?
Or which must end me, a fool's wrath or love?
Pope. Prol. to Sat. Ep. to Dr. Arbuthnot.

Tili tir'd with endless clamours, and pursuit
Of Ithacus, he stood no longer mute:
But, as it was agreed, pronounc'd, that I
Was destin'd by the wrathful gods to die.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. ii.

Wrath is violent and permanent anger; and as such it may be deemed an affection.
Cogan. On the Passions, pt. i. c. 2. § 3.

WRAW. WRA'WNESS. } Tyrwhitt says—peevish, peevishness. Perhaps rew or rue.
Wraw,—rueful.
Wrawness,—regret, reluctance.

And with this speche the coke waxed all wraw,
And on the Maneiple he gan nod fast
For lacke of speche.—Chaucer. Manciples Prol. v. 16,996.

He doth all things with annoye, and with wrawnesse, slaknesse, and excusation, with idelnesse and unlust.
Id. Persones Tale.

WRAWL, or WRALL, v. } Junius says, that to wrall, in Chaucer, is—to bestow care and anxiety upon any thing. In Spenser, it seems to be a dim. of rew, or wraw, (to rue,) to moan.

Suche successours [of Peter] yben to bolde,
In winning all ther witte thei wral.
Chaucer. The Plowmannes Tale.

Some were of dogs, that barked day and night,
And some of cats, that wrawling still did cry.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 12.

Man alone, poore wretch, she hath laid all naked upon the bare earth, even on his birth day, to cry and wraule presently from the very first houre that he is borne into this worlde.—Holland. Plinie, b. vii. Proeme.

Howbeit, crying and wrawling as like as possibly might be to an infant new come into the world.
Id. Plutarch, p. 271.

WRAY. Tyrwhitt says—betray, discover. Perhaps array. See BEWRAY.

He was dispeired, nothing dorst he say,
Sauf in his songes somwhat wold he wray
His wo, as in a general complaining;
He said, he loved, and was beloved nothing.
Chaucer. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 12,257.

And saide; John, min hoste lefe and dere,
Thou shalt upon thy trouthe swere me here,
That to no wight thou shalt my conseil wrey.
Id. The Milleres Tale, v. 3504.

WREAK, v. WREAK, n. WRE'AKER. WRE'AKFUL. } See To WRACK. A. S. Wrican, or wræc-an; Dut. Wreeken; Ger. Rächen—

To inflict; to avenge or revenge; to glut vengeance, or anger; to glut, to satiate.

"For ich habbe of hym wreche ynow, wen he bi secheth myn ore." R. Gloucester, p. 58.

Thider he seide he wolde hym self, thag he ne mygte on fote, go,
Gef any horsbere wolde hym bere, to wreke hym of ys fo.
Id. p. 163.

Of this ilk treson he herd ofte speke,
& of fals Edrik fayn wild he him wreke.—R. Brunne, p. 46.

For eft it wille be wroken with a hardere klap.—Id. p. 116.

A wreke me on thes wastours. that maken this worde dere.
Piers Ploulman, p. 186

——— And the cite long
Besiegeden nigh ten yeres ere they stent
And in diuers wise, and in one entent
The rauishing to wreke of quene Heleine
By Paris don. Chaucer. Troilus, b. i.

Great rumour rose, whan it was first espied
In all the toune, and openly was spoken
That Calcas traitour fled was and alied
To hem of Grece, and cast was to be wroken
On him, that falsly hath his faith broken.—Id. Ib.

Withdraw thy sentence and be gracious,
As thou were never, so sheweth through thy dede,
A wrekeful sentence given on Creseide.
Id. Test. of Creseide.

And than if I maie seche and fynde,
That any worde be lefte behynde,
Which as I shulde more haue spoke,
I wolde upon myself be wroke.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

No man shall wonder, though this Appolyn toke wreche of theim that spoyled the goddes & theyr temples.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 31.

——— Ulysses ever sith
With new found crimes began me to affray.
In common ears false rumours gan he sow;
Weapons of wreak his guilty mind gan seek.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

And of our bones some wreaker may there spring,
With sword and flame that Trojans may pursue
Now, from henceforth, when that our pow'r may stretch.
Id. Ib. b. iv.

Amo. Be constant.
Per. Else Pan wreak,
With double vengeance, my disloyalty;
Let me not dare to know the company
Of men, or any more behold those eyes.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act v.

Nay, weep not; let your loves speak in your anger;
And, to confirm you gave no suffrage to
The damned plot, lend me your helping hands
To wreak the parricide.—Id. The Prophetess, Act ii. sc. 2.

For, at that birth another babe she bore,
To weet, the mighty Ollyphant, that wrought
Great wreake to many errant knights of yore,
And many hath to foule confusion brought.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 7.

——— Our writings are,
By envious instruments, that dare
Apply them to the guilty, made to speak
What they will have to fit their tyrannous wreak?
B. Jonson. Sejanus, Act iv. sc. 3.

Ne any liv'd on ground, that durst withstand
His dreadfull beast, much lesse him match in fight,
Or bide the horror of his wreakfull hand,
When so he list in wrath lift vp his steely brand.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 1.

Secure in this belief, he left the dame,
Resolv'd to spare her life, and save her shame:
But that detested object to remove,
To wreak his vengeance, and to cure her love.
Dryden. Sigismonda & Guiscardo.

Enraged at the behaviour of this supercilious peer, and exceedingly mortified at the mis-carriage of all my efforts, I wreaked my resentment upon the innocent cause of my disgraces, and forthwith condemned it to oblivion.
Smollett. Regicide, Pref.

WREATH, v. WREATH, n. WRE'ATHING, n. WRE'ATHY. } Also written Writhe. (And see WRATH.) A. S. Writhan, torquere, to torture, to twist.
To twist or twine, or intertwine; to interweave, to involve, to enfold, to girt or gird.

This horne is wreathed and straite, like in fashion to a taper made of waxe, and may truely be thought to be the sea-unicorne.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 65.

With certaine beetles of wood they beat their corne to powder: then they make paste of it, and of the paste, cakes or wreathes.—Id. Ib. p. 220.

The same in the furniture and outwarde apperaunce differed lyttel from other common waggons, but there was in it a thing notable, which was a rope folded and knitt with many knotts one so wrethed within another, that no mã coulde perceiue the maner of it, neyther where the knottes began, nor where they ended.
Brende. Quintus Curtius, fol. 21.

The single twined cords may no such stress endure
As cables braided threefold may, together wreathed sure.
Surrey. Paraphrase on Ecclesiastes, c. 4.

Of them the shepheard which hath charge in chiefe,
Is Triton, blowing loud his wreathed horne:
At sound whereof, they all for their reliefe
Wend to and fro at euening and at morne.
Spenser. Colin Clout's come home againe.

Ter. Minutius tells us here, my lord,
That a new head being set upon your statue,
A rope is since found wreath'd about it!
B. Jonson. Sejanus, Act v. sc. 4.

——— Your wheaten wreath
Was then not thrash'd, nor blasted; fortune at you
Dimpled her cheeks with smiles.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Two Noble Kinsmen, Act i. sc. 1.

Sow-thistle 'tis ycleep'd, whose downy wreath,
If any one can blow off at a breath,
We deeme her for a maide.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 4.

Till that he came vnto another gate,
No gate, but like one, beeing goodly dight
With boughes and branches, which did broad dilate
Their clasping armes, in wanton wreathings intricate.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 12.

Some [horns] are wreathed, some not: that famous one which is preserved at St. Dennis near Paris, hath wreathy spires, and chocleary turnings about it, which agreeth with the description of the unicorn's horn in Ælian.
Brown. Vulgar Errours, b. iii. c. 23.

Less wild the Bacchanalian dames appear
When, from afar, their nightly god they hear,
And houl about the hills, and shake the wreathy spear.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. iv.

This said, a myrtle sprig, which berries bore,
She gave me (for a myrtle wreath she wore).
The gift receiv'd, my sense enlighten'd grew,
And from her presence inspiration drew.
Congreve. Ovid. Art of Love, b. iii.

WRECK. See WRACK.

WREN, n. A. S. Wrenna, wrænna. Perhaps from wræne, salax.

And than the wren gan scippen and to daunce.
Chaucer. Court of Loue.

There finde I howe that euery creature
Somtime a yere hath loue in his demayne,
So that the litell wrenne in his measure
Hath of kynde loue vnder his cure.
Gower. Con. A. b. viii.

But then, as little wrens, but newly fledge,
First by their nests hop up and downe the hedge;
Then one from bough to bough gets up a tree.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 4.

Thus the fable tells us, that the wren mounted as high as the eagle, by getting upon his back.—Tatler, No. 224.

WRENCH, v. WRENCH, n. WRE'NCHING, v. } Past part. of Wring-an, torquere. And the verb formed upon the noun.
To pull or drag, with force; to wrest, to rend, or tear; to extort, to distort; to twist, to turn.

For siker this the sothe wel, withouten eny wrenche.
R. Gloucester, p. 55.

Men sauh on the kynge's side ther was no gile, no wrenke.
R. Brunne, p. 58.

The first justise in benk Sir Thomas of Weland,
For falshed & for wrenk he forsuore the land.—Id. p. 246.

She was expert in his seruice
She knew ech wrench and euery gise
Of loue and euery while.—Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Yet our generall wrought so with them, that they did confesse it: but hee was faine to cause them to bee tormented with their thumbes in a wrinch, and to continue them at seuerall times with extreme paine.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 811.

The worlde is so malicious, that yf wee take not heede to prepare against his wrinches, it wyll ouerthrowe vs to our greatter losse and hurte.—Golden Boke, Let. 3.

——— Now he's secure,
Nor dreams, we stand before your puissance
Wrinching our holy begging in our eyes
To make petition clear.
Beaum. & Fletch. Two Noble Kinsmen, Act i. sc. 1.

When each man runs his horse, with fixed eyes and notes
Which dog first turns the hare, which first the other coats,
They wrench her once or twice, ere she a turn will take.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 23.

Of all their ways I love Meander's path,
Which to the tune of dying swans doth dance,
Such winding slights, such turns and cricks he hath,
Such creaks, such wrenches, and such dalliance.
Davies. On Dancing.

If one straine make them not confesse, let them bee stretched but one wrench higher, and they cannot be silent.
Bp. Hall. Cont. The Arke & Dagon.

A saplin pine he wrench'd from out the ground,
The readiest weapon that his fury found.
Thus furnish'd for offence, he cross'd the way
Betwixt the graceless villain, and his prey.
Dryden. Theodore & Honoria.

The first that boarded the boat entered close to Mr. Banks, and instantly snatched his powder-horn out of his pocket; Mr. Banks seized it, and with some difficulty wrenched it out of his hand.—Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 20.

WREST, v. WREST, n. WRE'STING, n. WRE'STLE, v. WRE'STLER. WRE'STLING, n. } A. S. Wræst-an, awræstan, torquere, intorquere.
To extort, to distort; to twist; to pull with violence. To wrestle, the dim. of wrest, To pull or drag about, to pull or strive to pull down, to strive, to struggle.

The miller was a stout carl for the nones,
Ful bigge he was of braun, and eke of bones
That proved wel, for over all ther came,
At wrastling he wold bere away the ram.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 551.

Pipen he coude, and fish, and nettes bete,
And turnen cuppes, and wrastlen wel, and shete.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 3927.

Blyndynge the poore peoples eyes wyth two or thre textes wrongfully wrested, to aũance theyr pryde.
A Boke made by John Fryth, fol. 33.

Thei haue bene tangled with a certain folish and cancred vile superstician, and haue wrested against the truth of a long time.—Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, fol. 6.

Any instrument mistunyd shal hurt a true song;
Yet blame not the claricorde, the wrester doth wrong.
Skelton. A Claricorde.

What letters and crafty counsels, blasphemouse bablynges and abhomynable wrastynges of the scriptures went betwixt that lewde byshopp of Rome and Anselme.
Bale. English Votaries, fol. 56.

The whiche he causyd to wrestle wt Corneus or Coryn his neuewe besyde Douer; in whiche wrestlynge ye Geaũt brake a rybbe in ye side of Corneus.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 4.

And being a Cornish man and a good wrastler, shewed his companion such a Cornish tricke, that he made his sides ake against the ground for a moneth after.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 64.

They toke by strength of armes and wrestlyng, speres, axes, and other wepyns, eche fro other and toke prisoners on bothe partes.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c 221.

As wrestling winds, out of dispersed whir!
Befight themselves, the west with southern blast,
And gladsome east proud of Aurora's horse;
The woods do whiz.—Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii

Just as in brewing of wrest-beer there's a great deal of business in grinding the malt; and that spoils any man's cloaths that comes near it; then it must be mash'd, then comes a fellow in and drinks of the wort, and he's drunk; then they keep a huge quarter when they carry it into the cellar, and a twelvemonth after 'tis delicate fine beer.
Selden. Table-Talk. Parliament.

Yet 'gainst this noble gentleman, this Montague,
For in that name I comprehend all goodness,
Wrong, and the wrested law, false witnesses,
And envy sent from hell, have rose in armes,
And though not pierc'd, batter'd his honor'd shield.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Honest Man's Fortune, Act iii.

For this fellowship in feeding together is a bond that knitteth, or rather a wrest that straineth and stretcheth benevolence to the utmost.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 4.

Corineus, who desir'd nothing more, might try his strength; whom in a wrestle the giant catching aloft, with a terrible hugg broke three of his ribs.
Milton. Historie of England, b. i.

——— Oh! teach my power
To cure those ills which you unjustly suffer,
Lest Heav'n should wrest it from my idle hand,
If I look on, and see you weep in vain.
Rowe. Tamerlane, Act iv.

The father's eyes no object wrested,
But on the smiling prattler hung,
Till, what his throbbing heart suggested,
These accents trembled from his tongue.
Cooper. A Father's Advice to his Son.

God never designed to give us an account of the mysteries of Christianity in expressions every way so bright and clear, as should prevent all possible wrestings and misconstructions.—Atterbury, vol. iii. Ser. 10.

An old wrestler loves to look on, and to be near the lists, though feebleness will not let him offer at the prize.
South, vol. ii. Ser. 5.

The entertainment was then suspended for a few minutes, after which another couple of wrestlers came forward and engaged in the same manner.
Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 11.

WRETCH. WRE'TCHED. WRE'TCHEDLY. WRE'TCHEDNESS. WRE'TCHFUL. } A wretch,—any one wrecked, i. e. afflicted, distressed; miserable, unhappy; pitiable: and, also—pitiful, or mean; despicable, contemptible.

Here olderne ther by fore were y nome in ostage
Fram the bataile of Troie. in wreche as it were,
For the grete slaugt and wo, that here kynde dude there.
R. Gloucester, p. 11.

The gydye wretche lette sette the toun of Rome on fuyre,
To habbe game of the lygt, the while yt mygte dure.
Id. p. 70.

Awey! awey! we synuol men, alas! oure wrecchede,
That we abbyth thus God agult myd mony synuol dede
We and oure elderne ek, the wreche ych vnderstonde
That thus wrecchedlyche nou vus [us] dryfth out of oure kunde londe. Id. p. 252.

That the emperour bi gan to fle mid ys folk at the laste
To schippes, & into the see with wrechede hed y nowt
Id. p. 64.

Constantyn myd ys power, among al this wrechedom,
At the hauene of Tottenais stilleliche o lond com.
Id. p. 103.

Ac kyng hymsulf get suththe hys mede, vor he nom hym vaste.
And in prison hym huld, & wrecchelyche he deyde atte laste. Id. p. 446.

That is the wretchede worlde. that wolde the bygyle.
Piers Ploughman, p. 14.

Alaas that lordes of the londe leueth swiche wrechen
And leueth swych lorels, for her lowe wordes.—Id. Crede.

For thou seist that I am riche and ful of goodis, and I haue nede of nothing, and thou woost not that thou art a wrecche and wrecchful, and pore and blynde and nakid.
Wiclif. Apocalips, c. 3.

Because yᵘ saiest thou arte rych and increased wyth goodes, and hast nede of nothyng, and knowest not that thou arte wretched and myserable, poore, blynde and nakyd.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Doith now ye riche men, wepith ye yellynge in youre wrecchidnessis that schulen come to you.
Wiclif. James, c. 5.

Go to now ye riche men. Wepe, & houle on youre wretchednes that shall come vpon you.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Use (sayeth he) the richesses that thou hast ygeten in swiche manere, that men may have no manere ne cause to calle thee nother wretche ne chinche: for it is a gret shame to a man to have a poure herte and a riche purse.
Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus

And redeth the proud wordes that he seid,
And why he fell from his prosperitee,
And in an hill how wretchedly he deid.
Id. Monkes Tale, v. 14,501.

He [Charlis the Great] was meke and lowly in his herte, and mylde and gracious to the poore, and marcyfull to wretchis and nedy.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 156.

Euery man be he neuer so extreme and wretched a synner, may and ought to hope assuredly, that albeit the maiestie of God is supereminent, and vnspeakable dignitie, yet is he gracious, mercyfull, and mylde.
Fisher. A Godly Treatise, &c.

For that neither by lot of destiny,
Nor yet by kindly death she perished;
But wretchedly before her fatal day,
And kindled with a sudden rage of flame.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

Most wretched are the terms of men's estate when once they are at a point of wretchlessness so extreme, that they bend not their wits any further then only to shift out the present time, never regarding what shall become of their successors after them.—Hooker. Eccles. Politie, b. vii. § 24.

——— And miserable it is
To be to others cause of misery,
Our own begotten, and of our loines to bring
Into this cursed world a woful race,
That after wretched life must be at last
Food for so foule a monster.—Milton. Par. Lost, b. x.

And though only some profligate wretches own it [Atheism] too barefacedly now; yet perhaps we should hear more than we do of it from others, did not the fear of the magistrate's sword, or their neighbours' censure, tie up people's tongues.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. i. c. 4.

Sloth is a base quality, the argument of a mind wretchedly degenerate and mean.—Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 19.

Fair Isabella is so fond of fame,
That her dear self is her eternal theme;
Through hopes of contradiction, oft she'll say,
"Methinks I look so wretchedly to-day!"
Young. Love of Fame, Sat. 6.

The heart of man just as it is disposed, becomes either the seat of piety, and joy, or the seat of wickedness, and wretchedness.—Gilpin, vol. i. Ser. 25.

WRE'TCHLESS. } i. e. Reckless or rech-
WRE'TCHLESSLY. } less. Shakespeare writes
WRE'TCHLESSNESS. } Wreak. See RECK.

Cursed are al they that do the Lord's business wretchlessly.—Strype. Tract Shewing, &c. an. 1555. (Orig.) No. 44.

Wherby the devyl may thrust them either into desperation, or els into wretchlesnes of most unclene lyving.
Id. The Faith & Goodly Agreement, &c. No. 63.

The smallest article of objection, managed and conducted by the devil's arts, and meeting with a wretchless, careless, indevout spirit, is a lion in the way, and a deep river; it is impassable, and is impregnable.—Bp. Taylor, vol. i. Ser. 14.

It is want of faith in our selues, my brethren, which maketh us wretchless [in folio relchlesse] in building others.
Hooker. Ser. on Jude.

If such incogitancy comes to be habitual, as it is in very many men, (first, by resisting the motions of the Holy Spirit, then by quenching him,) we shall find the consequences to be, first an indifferency, then a dulness, then a lethargy, then a direct hating the ways of God; and it commonly ends in a wretchlessness of spirit to be manifested on our death-bed.—Bp. Taylor, vol. ii. Ser. 8.

WRIE, v. A. S. Wrig-an, to wrine or wrie, to cover, to cloak. See Tooke.
To array.

Ac mid fyf thousand hors ywrye, as it was bi speke,
The erl of Kent was in a wode, hym forte a wreke.
R. Gloucester, p. 55.

And ycholle our ost eche, and our bachelerye,
Wythoute archers & vot men, wyth tuo thousend hors y wrye. Id. p. 199.

Though I him wrie a night, and make him warm.
Chaucer. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7404.

And wrie you in that mantel evermo.—Id. Troylus, b. ii.

But of hys honde wold he gette.
Clothes to wrine hym—and hys mete.
Id. Rom. of the Rose.

WRIG, v. } Perhaps, to wrig is formed
WRI'GGLE, v. } upon the verb to wry (or writhe,)
WRI'GGLE, n. } by the addition of the guttural
WRI'GGLE, adj. } g, and to wriggle is the dim.
WRI'GGLER. } To writhe or twist, or turn or bend about; to move (awry) in short turns or curves, in crooked lines.

The sowe with her pygges
The bore his taile wrygges
Against the hye bench.—Skelton. Elinour Rumming.

——— Thus worms in sturdie pride
Do wrigge and wrest their parts divorc'd by knife.
More. Immortality of the Soul, b. ii. c. 2.

Seeing themselues within the net [the lampries] get betwene the very mashes, which with their much winding and wrigling they will wrest wider and wider still, untill they be gotten through and escaped.
Holland. Plinie, b. xxxii. c. 2.

——— Row. Thou hast hit it:
Then talks she ten times worse, and wryes, and wriggles,
As though she had the itch (and so it may be).
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman's Prize, Act iii. sc. 1.

And now does he creep, and wriggle into acquaintance with all the brave gallants about the town, such as my guest is.—B. Jonson. Every Man in his Humour, Act i. sc. 3.

Your hollow thumb join'd with your wriggled box,
The slur, and such like, are not to be talk'd of;
They're open to the eye.
Cartwright. Ordinary, Act ii. sc. 3.

My ragged ronts all shiwer and shake,
As done high towers in an earthquake:
They wont in the winde wagge their wriggle tailes,
Pearke as a peacocke: but now it auailes.
Spenser. Shepheard's Calender. Februarie.

Restless he toss'd and tumbled to and fro,
And rowl'd and wriggled further off; for woe.
Dryden. Wife of Bath's Tale.

They have always a peculiar spring in their arms, a wriggle in their bodies, and a trip in their gait.—Tatler, No. 85.

The wriggling fry soon fill the creeks around,
Pois'ning the waters where their swarms abound.
Cowper. Progress of Errour.

For Providence, that seems concern'd t' exempt
The hallow'd bench from absolute contempt,
In spite of all the wrigglers into place,
Still keeps a seat or two for worth and grace.
Id. Tirocinium.

WRIGHT. See WROUGHT. A. S. Wyrtha, (by transposition wryht-a), wright, one who worketh.

Wright is much used suffixed; as, cart-wright, ship-wright, &c.

The sent to seke many a schip wrights
To the toun of Sandwiche, the nauie forto dight.
R. Brunne, p. 41.

He com thider on nyght, the wrightes slouh at ones.
R. Brunne, p. 64.

And wrightes that hit wroghten. was non ysaved.
Piers Plouhman, p. 196

For I wol tell a legend and a lif
Both of a carpenter and of his wif,
How that a clerk hath set the wrightes cappe.
Chaucer. Milleres Prologue, v. 3146

WRING, v. } See WRONG. Dut. Wringhen;
WRING, n. } Ger. Wringen; A. S. Wring-an,
WRI'NGER. } stringere, constringere;—
WRI'NGING, n. } To strain, to constrain; to twist strictly or tightly; to twist, to turn; to extort, to distort, to writhe, to wrest.

Ac trywliche to telle. hue trembled for fere
And bothe wrang and wept. when hue was a tachede.
Piers Plouhman, p. 37.

Honger hent in haste Wastour by the Mawe
And wrang him by the wombe, that al watered his eyen.
Id. p. 137.

His faire stede in his priking
So swatte, that men might him wring
His sides were all blood.
Chaucer. The Rime of Sire Thopas, v. 13,706.

For which he wepte and wronge his honde
And in the bedde his blody knyfe he fonde.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5027.

These two princes beyng neighbours, the one at Milan, the other at Parma, shewed smal frendshyp the one to the other. But Octavio was ever more wrong to the worse by many and sundry spites.—R. Ascham. Let. to John Asteley.

They wronge their handes, and tare their heeres, and made many a pytefull complaynt, and specially suche as were of his owne house.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 270.

Wringing her handes in womens pittious wise,
Tho gan she weepe, to stirre vp gentle ruth,
Both for her noble blood, and for her tender youth.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 1.

She is like one of your ignorant poetasters of the time, who, when they have got acquainted with a strange word, never rest till they have wrung it in, though it loosen the whole fabric of their sense.
B. Jonson. Cynthia's Revels, Act ii. sc. 1

There is no man so wicked, but at sometimes his conscience will wring him with thoughts of another world, and the peril of his soul.—Milton. Of True Religion.

A poore fisherman, vnknowne, vnlearned, new come from his boat with his clothes wringing wet, hath opened his mouth and taught me, In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God.
Hooker. Ser. on Jude.

The root sodden in wine, appeaseth the wrings and torments of the guts.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxiv. c. 19.

Otherwise it could not be, that these men (prudent and wise as they are) should have been afflicted and tormented with the diseases of painfull strangury, dysenteries and dolorous wrings in the guts, &c.—Id. Plutarch, p. 480.

And there dwels one Mistris Quickly; which is in the manner of his nurse; or his dry-nurse; or his cooke; or his laundry; his washer, and his ringer.
Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor, Act i. sc. 2.

The fourth sort they call torminale, allowed onely for the remedie that they affourd to mitigate the torments and wringing of the cholique.—Holland. Plinie, b. xv. c. 21.

It is not conformable to the tenour of his administrations to convince men against their will, or by irresistible evidence to wring persuasion from stubborn or stupid minds.
Barrow, vol. iii. Ser. 23.

From this excellence arise those violent contortions of the body, that wringing of the hands, beating of the breast, rolling of the eyes, foaming of the mouth, and other symptoms of madness, which never fail to gain the applause of the plebeian congregation.—Knox. Ess. No. 160.

WRI'NKLE, v. } A. S. Wrincle, wrinclian,
WRI'NKLE, n. } rugare, crispare; Dut. Wrinckel, wronckel, wrinckelen, from wring-an, to wring, contorquere. Rugæ,—veluti ab hoc ipso actu contorquendi, wrinkles, dictæ putentur, (Junius;) but Junius refers both to the Gr. Ρυκος, rugosus; or (as ruck, qv.) it may be from wrine or wrie, to cover. See WRITHLE, in v. Writhe.
To distort (sc.) the smooth or even surface; to roughen or rumple; to wrest or draw into furrows or indented lines; to indent.

Whiche nowe shoulde neyther haue spotte nor wrincle, nor any suche lyke, that might be displeasant in the housebandes eyes, but in euery pointe both fayre and faultles.
Udal. Ephesians, c. 5.

Her locks, that loathly were and hoary gray,
Grew all afore, and loosely hung vnrold,
But all behind was bald, and worne away,
That none thereof could euer taken hold,
And eke her face ill fauord, full of wrinkles old.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii.

Ne'er an old gentlewoman in the house that has a wrinkle about her to hide me in?—B. Jonson. Mercury Vindicated.

Is't possible that such a spacious villain
Should live, and not be plagued? or lies he hid
Within the wrinkled bosom of the world,
Where Heaven cannot see him?
Id. Every Man out of his Humour, Act i. sc. 1.

I am resolved to grow fat, and look young till forty, and then slip out of the world with the first wrinkle, and the reputation of five and twenty.—Dryden. Secret Love, Act iii.

Fresh are his ruddy cheeks, his forehead fair,
And like the burnish'd gold his curling hair.
But clear thy wrinkled brow, and quit thy sorrow,
I'd scorn your 'prentice, should you die to-morrow.
Pope. Wife of Bath.

I see two leaders of the solemn train
Approaching: one a female old and gray,
With eyes demure, and wrinkle-furrow'd brow,
Pale as the cheeks of Death.
Akenside, Pleasures of Imagination, b. iii.

WRIST, or WREST. } That which wresteth; the joint which wrests, twists, pulls, drags; (the joint of the hand or arm.)

The whiche were pursued and taken, and by iudgement & lawe than vsed brought into Westchepe, and there had theyr ryght handes smyten of by the wresies.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1293.

The wheate will be ripe the fourth moneth after the seed is sowne, and in some places will bring foorth an eare as bigge as the wrist of a man's arme containing 1000 graines.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 49.

Their shining shieldes about their wrestes they tye.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 5.

——— There-with out of his hond
That vertuous steele he rudely snatcht away;
And Guyon's shield about his wrest he bond.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 8.

Cling to my neck and wrists, my loving worme,
And cast you round in soft and amorous folds,
Till I do bid uncurl. B. Jonson. Poetaster.

Bub. You'l pick a bottle open or a whimsey,
As soon as the best of us.
Fis. And dip your wrist-bands,
(For cuffs y' have none) as comely in the sauce
As any courtier.
Beaum. & Fletch. Bloody Brothers, Act iv. sc. 2.

They [water serpents] were each about four foot long, and about the bigness of a man's wrist.
Dampier. Voyages, an. 1699.

Another mechanical contrivance, not unlike the last in its object, but different and original in its means, is seen in what anatomists call the fore-arm; that is, in the arm between the elbow and the wrist.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. 8.

One, and only one of these bones, is joined to the cubit, or upper part of the arm, at the elbow; the other alone, to the hand at the wrist.—Id. Ib.

WRITE, v. WRIT, n. WRI'TER. WRI'TING, n. } (Writ, written, wrote.) A.S. Writan, scribere. Writere, scriptor, (Somner,) which Skinner inclines to think is the A.S. Wrot-an, Dut. Wroeten, terram suffodere, versare, as the Lat. Exarare, from arando; since he writes, ploughs, cuts into, digs into, the paper. See WROTE.

To form or frame, to delineate; to grave, to impress, literal characters or letters; to compose in letters; to compose, to produce, as an author.

To write (with prepositions) is used as equivalent to the compounds of the Lat. Scribere.

To describe, inscribe, subscribe.

And tho vp in the firmament an angel he sey,
That huld a croys, and ther on y write was lo! this,
"Constantyne thorg this signe thou schalt be maister iwis."
R. Gloucester, p. 86.

He sais this lond has suffred so many tyme wo,
Fiue sorowes he writes withouten other mo.
R. Brunne, p. 7.

R. this ansuerd to Saladyn for treu.
For tho men that it herd wrote vs that word alle new.
Id. p. 195.

For thees aren wordes. wryten in the Evangelye
Date et dabitur vobis. Piers Ploughman, p. 28.

Ich take witnesse quath he at holy writ.—Id. p. 250.

——— Leveth suche wrytings
God in the gospel. such gravynge nogt aloweth.
Id. p. 41.

Whiche answeride & seide to him, it is writen not oonly in breed lyveth a man but in eche word that cometh of Goddis mouth.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 4.

He answered & sayd: it is writte, man shal not lyue by bread onely, but by euery worde that proceadeth oute of the mouth of God.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And thei broughten to him; and he seyde to hem, whos is this ymage and the wryting? thei seyen to him, the empouris.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 12.

Maister, Moyses wroot to us, if the brother of ony man haue a wyf and be deed, and he was withouten eiris, that his brother take his wyf: and reise seed to his brother.
Id. Luk, c. 20.

Master, Moses wrote vnto vs, yf any mannes bröther dye hauynge a wyfe, & the same dye without yssue: that thē his brother should take his wyfe, & rayse vp seede vnto his brother.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Therto he coude endite, and make a thing,
Ther coude no wight pinche at his writing.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 239.

In our time amonge vs here
Do write of newe some mattere
Ensampled of the olde wise. Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And netheles by dates olde,
Whan that the bokes weren leuer,
Writyng was beloued euer
Of hem that weren vertuous. Id. Ib.

Nor I neuer yet heard any reason layd, why it were not conuenient to haue the byble translated into the Englishe tong, but al those reasons semed they neuer so gay & glorious at the first sight: yet whē they were well examined they myght in effect, for ought that I can see, as wel be layde against ye holy writers that wrote the scripture in ye Hebrue tongue, and against the blessed euāgelistes yt wrote the scripture in Greke, and against all those in likewise that translated it oute of euery of those tonges into Latine, as to their charge that would well & faithfully translate it oute of Latine into our Englishe tong.
Sir T. More. Workes, p. 243.

Vpon ye morowe folowynge Mary Magdaleyne daye a wryt was directed vnto the mayre and aldermen, chargynge theym that ye kynges peas were fermely kepte within the cytie.—Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1262.

But that sayinge disagreeth to the wrytynge of Eutropius, for the countre of Spayne was not subdued by hym tyll after that he was Emperour.—Id. Ib. c. 56.

Would'st thou all wit, all comick art survey?
Read here and wonder; Fletcher writ the play.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Elder Brother. To the Reader.

This having heard, straight I again revolv'd
The law and prophets, searching what was writ
Concerning the Messiah, to our scribes
Known partly, and soon found of whom they spake
I am. Milton. Paradise Regained, b. i.

——— Thus they win
Great numbers of each nation to receave
With joy the tidings brought from Heav'n: at length
Thir ministry perform'd, and race well run,
Thir doctrine and thir story written left;
They die. Id. Paradise Lost, b. xii.

If of my raign prophetic writ has told,
That it shall never end, so when begin
The father in his purpose hath decreed,
He in whose hands all times and seasons roul.
Id. Paradise Regained, b. iii.

Æschines likewise and Eubulus accorded; Hyperides also and Leosthenes were lovers and friends; in every which couple the former imployed themselves in pleading and speaking before the people, and were writers and penmen, whereas the other conducted armies, were warriers, and men of action.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 152.

A dire dilemma! either way I'm sped,
If foes, they write; if friends, they read me dead.
Pope. Prol. to Satires.

The crucifixion of Christ under Pontius Pilate, is related by Tacitus: and divers of the most remarkable circumstances attending it, such as the earthquake and miraculous darkness, were recorded in the public Roman registers, commonly appealed to by the first Christian writers as what could not be denied by the adversaries themselves.
Clarke. On the Evidences, Prop. 12.

Ariosto, in his voyage of Astolpho to the moon, has given us a fine allegory of two swans; who, when time had thrown the writings of many poets into the river of oblivion, were ever in a readiness to secure the best, and bear them aloft, into the temple of immortality.
Dryden. Cleomenes, Ep. Ded.

I find, though I have less experience than you, the truth of what you told me sometime ago, that increase of years makes men more talkative but less writative: to that degree that I now write no letters but of plain business or plain how d' ye's.—Pope. To Swift, August 17, 1736.

Since the true sense of any writing can be no other than that which the author intended to convey, and which was understood by him to be contained in the expressions which he thought proper to employ, an application of a prophecy in a sense not intended by the prophet must be a misinterpretation.—Bp. Horsley, vol. ii. Ser. 18.

WRITHE, v. WRI'THE, n. WRI'THING, n. WRI'THLE, v. } See To WREATH. A.S. Writh-an; To twist or twine, to entwine, or intertwine; to turn, to contort, to distort, to enfold.

Writh-le—seems formed upon writh, as wrinkle upon wring.

Also wymmen in couenable abite with schamefastnesse & sobrenesse araiynge hemsilf, not in writhun heeris, either in gold, either peerlis, either precious clooth, but that that bicometh wymmen biheetynge pitee, bi goode werkis.
Wiclif. 1 Tymo. c. 2.

Doest thou looke after, that Christ should heare the, when thou callest him father, when throu writhest away from the step-children, calling thee mother.
Vives. Instruction of a Christian Woman, b. ii. c. 12.

The heares of her owne heade, she had vntyll that day, customably vsed for the delicate and sensual pleasure of the fleshe, to enointe with swete perfume, to dye with colours, to kembe, and to brede with writhes of golde enterlaced emong it.—Udal. Luke, c. 7.

As touchyng S. Ambrose, this auctor taketh a great entreprise to wrestel with him, whose plaine and euident wordes must nedes be a rule to trie his othere wordes by, if any might be writhed.—Bp. Gardner. Explication, fol. 66.

——— The mighty father heard;
And writhed his look toward the royal walls,
And lovers eke, forgetting their good name.
Surrey. Virgile. Æneis, b. iv.

And thou shall stand to all posterity,
The eternal game and laughter, with thy neck
Writh'd to thy tail, like a ridiculous cat.
B. Jonson. Sejanus, Act v. sc. 4.

And warne him not to caste his wanton eyne
On grosser bacon, or salt haberdine,
Or dried flichess of some smoked beeve
Hang'd on a writhen with since Martin's eve.
Bp. Hall. Satires, b. iv. Sat. 1.

A writhing away or turning away of the body.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 50.

——— Alas no wicked sprite
No writhel'd witch, with spells of powrfull charms
Or hellish herbs digg'd in as hellish night,
Gives to thy heart these oft and fierce alarms.
P. Fletcher. Pis. Ecl. Ecl. 6.

The skin that was white and smooth turnd tawnie and writhéd.—Bp. Hall. St. Paul's Combat, pt. i.

Milo, when he lookt upon his late brawny armes, and saw them now grown lancke and writhled, lets fall tears, and bewraies more weakness of mind, then he had before bodily strength.—Id. Ib. Of Contentation, § 5.

He thrust; and in his shoulder plung'd the sword.
Then writh'd his hand; and as he drove it down,
Deep in his breast, made many wounds in one.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. xii.

WRI'ZZLED. As Wrinc-le, from wring; Writh-le, from writh: so also wrist-le or wrizzle, from wrist or wrest.

Her dried dugs, lyke bladders lacking wind,
Hong downe, and filthy matter from them weld;
Her wrizled skin, as rough as maple rind,
So scabby was, that would have loath'd all womankind.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 8.

WRO'KEN. See WREAK.

WRONG, adj. WRONG, n. WRONG, v. WRO'NGER. WRO'NGING, n. WRO'NGFUL. WRO'NGFULLY. WRO'NGLESSLY. WRO'NGLY. WRO'NGNESS. } Dut. Wronck, wrongh, injuria; Ger. Wrang, injustus, injuria, a contorsione juris, (Wachter,) from Dut. Wringhen; Ger. Wring-en; A.S. Wring-an, to wring or wrest. The Fr. Droict (Junius observes) is from directus, and tort, from tortus. (See RIGHT.) "Wrong (Tooke) is merely wrung, or wrested from the right or ordered—line of conduct."

Wrong,—unjust, untrue; improper, unsuitable, unbecoming. The noun is the past part. with a subaudition of thing, act, &c., and the verb is formed upon the same past. part. To wrong,—

To act unjustly or with injustice, or injury; to injure.

Gret wrong thou woldest don vs.—R. Gloucester, p. 47.

With wrong alle it cam, with gile salle gyuen be,
Dilexit Sir Adam gilerie & falste.—R. Brunne, p. 247.

& ther Steuen the kyng bifor the clergie suore,
That if a bisshopriche vacant wer the se,
The kyng no non of his, suld chalange that of fe,
With wrong no with right, of non that fro him cam.
Id. p. 110.

Pandolf proued the kyng, in his disputeson,
He mayntend wrongfulle thing, & wild to no reson.
Id. p. 211.

Ther ynne wonyeth a wyght. that wrong is his name
Fader of Falshede. Piers Ploughman, p. 15.

And whanne mych fasting hadde be, thanne Poul stood in the myddil of hem and seide, a men it bihofte whanne ghe herden me not to haue takun awei the schip fro Crete and gete this wrong and castyng out.—Wiclif. Dedis, c. 27.

By God, thought he, all wrang I haye misgen.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4251.

I say that ther ben ful many thinges that shuln restreine you of vengeance taking, and make you for to encline to suffre, and for to han pacience in the wronges that han ben don to you.—Id. Tale of Melibeus.

That wrongly werke again nature
None such I loue. Id. Rom. of the Rose.

More sory, than the kynge was tho,
Was neuer man vpon this molde,
And thought in certaine, that he wold
Vengeance take vpon this wronge.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

For whan that holy churche wrongeth,
I not what other thyng shall right.—Id. Ib.

But yet alway some cause he feineth,
And of his wrongefull herte he demeth,
That all is well, what euer him semeth,
Be so that he maie winne enough.—Id. Ib. b. iii.

By theyr meanes, Wyllyam, which was an innocent of such crymes as were obiecte and put agayne hym, & was a defēdor of ye pore people agayne extorcioners & wrog doers, was by them put wrogfully to deth.
Fabyan. Chronycle, an. 1183.

Betwene bothe theis according to the distance that was betwene ye iointes of the two peces of timber, were let in beames of ii. fote square to streine theym out fastened on bothe sydes at thends wyth two braces, the whych being ones closed and fastned on the wrong side, the strength of the work was so great, and the thyngs were so framed, that the greater violence of water that bare agaynste it, so much the closer did the ioynts shet & hold the faster together.
Goldinge. Cæsar, fol. 95.

Declaryng that the people of Rome had for wrongs done vnto them of old time by the Heluetians, iustly now punished them by battell.—Id. Ib. fol. 22.

By iustice ye shoulde neyther hurt, nor wrong man, and your pretensed cause, of this monstrous sturre, is to encrease mens welth.—Sir J. Cheke. Hurt of Sedition.

The man of a worldely spirite prouideth for his owne cōmoditie at al handes, yea euēn with wronging of his brother.—Udal. 1 John, c. 4.

He was brother to the fair Helen queen of Corinth, and dearly esteemed of her, for his exceeding good parts, being honourably courteous, and wrongfeesly valiant.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. i.

'Yet gainst this noble gentleman, this Montague,
For in that name I comprehend all goodness,
Wrong, and the wrested law, false witnesses,
And envy sent from hell, have rose in armes,
And though not pierc'd, batter'd his honor'd shield.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Honest Man's Fortune, Act iii.

That he was harmless and simple, is conjectured by his words in anger to a peasant who had cross'd his game (for with hunting and hawking he was much delighted) by God and God's mother, said he, I shall do you as shrewd a turn if I can; observing that law-maxime, that the king of England can do no wrong.—Milton. History of England, b. vi.

——— Hell shall unfold,
To entertain you two, her widest gates,
And send forth all her kings; there will be room,
Not like these narrow limits, to receive
Your numerous offspring; if no better place,
Thank him who puts me loath to this revenge
On you who wrong me not for him who wrong'd.
Id. Paradise Lost, b. iv.

Amar. Hold shepherd hold, learn not to be a wronger
Of your word; was not your promise laid.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act iv.

——— Do not give thy self
So common and so idle, so open vile,
So great a wronger of thy worth—so low.
Id. The Noble Gentleman, Act i.

Witnesse the guiltlesse bloud pour'd oft on ground,
The crowned often slaine, the slayer crownd,
The sacred diademe in peeces rent,
And purple robe gored with many a wound;
Castles surpriz'd, great cities sackt and brent:
So mak'st thou kings, & gainest wrongfull gouernment.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 7.

Thus doth false joy delude her wrongfully
(Sweet lady) in the thing she held so dear.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. ii.

For there he had his rightfull punishment,
Though wrongly done; and there he lost his head.
Id. Ib. b. v.

Tam. When sorrow dwels in such an angel form,
Well may we guess that those above are mourners;
Virtue is wrong'd, and bleeding innocence
Suffers some wond'rous violation here
To make the saints look sad.—Rowe. Tamerlane, Act iv.

But Salius enters; and exclaiming loud
For justice, deafens, and disturbs the crowd:
Urges his cause may in the court be heard;
And pleads the prize is wrongfully conferr'd.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneis, b. v.

They [madmen] do not appear to me to have lost the faculty of reasoning; but having joined together some ideas very wrongly, they mistake them for truths, and they err as men do that argue right from wrong principles.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 11.

The distinction of public wrongs from private, of crimes and misdemesnors from civil injuries, seems principally to consist in this: that private wrongs, or civil injuries, are an infringement or privation of the civil rights which belong to individuals, considered merely as individuals: public wrongs, or crimes and misdemesnors, are a breach and violation of the public rights and duties, due to the whole community, considered as a community, in it's social aggregate capacity.—Blackstone. Commentaries, b. iv. c. 1.

Nothing can be more harmless than wagging your finger, considered in itself, yet if the finger rest against the trigger of a loaded musket, and a man stand just before, you cannot do a wronger thing, and why?
Search. Light of Nature, vol. i. pt. ii. c. 28.

What a variety of bad thoughts do we often encourage, which tend to envy, malice, pride, impurity, self-love and vanity! what wrongnesses do such thoughts produce in our actions, in our tempers, in our behaviour!
Gilpin, vol. i. Ser. 10.

Treating those with much regard, who are pleased to treat God with none, various methods may be found of sometimes plainly declaring, some obliquely intimating, the manifold wrongness of such expressions.
Secker, vol. i. Ser. 32.

WROTE, i. e. To Rout, (qv.)

For right as a sowe wroteth in every ordure, so wroteth she hire beautee in stinking ordure of sinnes.
Chaucer. Persones Tale.

WROUGHT. The past part. of wyrc-an, was worked, work'd, workt; and this latter, by substitution of h for k, became worht, and by transposition wroht, now written wrought, and used still both as past tense and past part. of To work.

Wrought then is—

Worked; acted or done, affected or effected, operated; laboured; practised; formed, performed, produced, executed.

Seynt Germayn the bischop to this onde com,
For mysbileue that tyme, & to amende Cristendom,
And prechede, as yt nede was, & faire miracles wrogte,
So that the Cristene men in beter stat he brogte.
R. Gloucester, p. 121.

Fro Waltham beforesaid to Westmynster thei him brouht,
Biside his fadere is laid in a toumbe wele wrouht.
R. Brunne, p. 341.

And in the taking thei gruechiden agens the housbonde man and seiden the laste wroughten oon hour, and thou hast maad hem evene to us that han borne the charge of the dai & heete.—Wiclif. Matthew, c. 20.

And when they had receaued it, thei murmured againste the good man of the house, sayinge: These laste haue wroughte but one houre, and thou haste made them equall vnto vs, which haue borne the burthen and heat of the daye.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Thou wroughtest nothing as the sage
Whan thou became his liege man.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

For thy so as thou than wroughtest,
Nowe shalte thou take thy rewarde
Of deedly peine here afterwarde
In hell, whiche shall euer laste.—Gower. Con. A. b. vi.

All our olde hempe is spunne and wrought in tenne cables from fifteene ynches to ten the least, and thirteene hausers from sixe ynches to three ynches.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 303.

——— Broad as the gate,
Deep to the roots of hell the gather'd beach
They fasten'd, and the mole immense wraught on
Over the foaming deep high archt.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. x.

For my design being as well as I could, to copy nature, and to give an account of the operations of the mind in thinking; I could look into nobody's understanding but my own, to see how it wrought.
Locke. Second Letter to the Bp. of Worcester.

Many words, which seem to express some action, signify nothing of the action or modus operandi at all, but barely the effect, with some circumstances of the subject wrought on, or cause operating.—Id. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 22.

WRY, adj. } See AWRY. From Writh, by
WRY, v. } dropping the th.
WRY'NESS. } Crooked, bended, turned, (sc.) out of a right or straight line.

And oft they were of nature complaining,
For they their members lacked, foot and hand,
With visage wry, and blind I vnderstand.
Chaucer. Court of Loue.

This Phebus gan awayward for to wrien;
Him thought his woful herte brast atwo.
His bowe he bent, and set therein a flo:
And in his ire he hath his wif yslain.
Id. Manciples Tale, v. 17,211.

Howe so his mouthe be comely
His worde sitte euermore a wrie,
And saith the worste that he maie.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

The fyrste that came and gaue them meost comforte was Henry erle of Lancastre with the wrye necke, called Torte colle.—Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 11.

Than the kyng wryed away fro hym, and cōmaunded to sende for ye hangman, and sayd, they of Calys had caused many of my mē to be slayne, wherfore these shall dye in likewyse.—Id. Ib. c. 147.

The byshops go about to kepe in state stil, and hold vp the decaied partes of their power (whose building was naught, and therfore hath wryed on the one side longe ago) with proppes and staies, deuised by man's brain.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, fol. 53.

——— Should I aspire
To forme a worke, I would no more desire
To be that smith; than live, mark'd one of those,
With faire black eyes and haire, and a wry nose.
Jonson. Horace. Art of Poetrie.

Row. Thou hast hit it:
Then talks she ten times worse, and wryes, and wriggles,
As though she had the itch (and so it may be).
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman's Prize, Act iii. sc. 1.

"As when a nymph, arising from the land,
Leadeth a dance with her long watery train
Down to the sea, she wryes to every hand,
And every way doth crosse the fertile plain."
Davies: On Dancing.

And cry filthy! filthy! simply uttering their own condition, and using their wryed countenances instead of a vice, to turn the good aspects of all that shall sit near them, from what they behold.
B. Jonson. The Case is Altered, Act i. sc. 4.

The first with divers crooks and turning wries.
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 5.

Like a man fastned by his thumbs at the whipping-post, he wries his back and shrinks from the blow, though he knows he cannot get loose
Bp. Taylor. Dissuasive from Popery, b. ii. pt. ii. § 6.

There intricately among the woods doth wander,
Losing himselfe in many a wry meander.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. i. s. 2.

This is light enough to all intelligent persons, for an exploring the rectitude or wrynesse of their behaviours in this particular.—Montague. Devoute Essayes, pt. i. Treat. 12.

If e'r they call upon me, I'll so fit 'em,
I have a pack of wry-mouth'd mackrel ladies
Stink like a standing ditch.
Beaum. & Fletch. Women Pleased, Act iii. sc 2.

But what! you cry, must the Christian never falter in his pace? is he supposed to proceed with one uniform progress? does he miss of his salvation, if he now and then make a wry step? God forbid!—Gilpin, vol. iv. Ser. 14.

X.

X, says B. Jonson, is rather an abbreviation, or way of short writing with us, than a letter: for it hath the sound of c and s, or k and s. It begins no word with us, but ends many: as six, fox, box. In some cases it seems to approach the sound of gz, as in example.

Y.

Y, says B. Jonson, is mere vowelish in our tongue, and hath only the power of i, even where it obtains the seat of a consonant, as in young, younker. Butler calls it both an English consonant and a Greek vowel; the latter sounded as i, and rightly used in words originally Greek: in this agreeing with B. Jonson. He adds, that the force of the consonant is seen in yarn, and therefore it is unrightly named wi: which hath in it the force of w, not y, for wi-a-r-n, soundeth warn, not yarn; but it is rather to be called yi.

YACHT. Dut. Jaghte, jaght-schip. Navis prædatoria incredibilis celeritatis, (Kilian.) So called (Skinner and Lye suggest,) from jaght-en, to hunt, to course or run after, to hasten; and applied to the vessel from its aptness for speed.

After dining with Commissioner Proby, he very obligingly ordered his yacht to carry us to Sheerness, where my boat was waiting to take us on board.
Cook. Third Voyage, b. i. c. 1.

YARD. A. S. Geard, past part. of the v. Gyrd-an, to gird, to surround, to inclose. See GARDEN, and Tooke.

A place, surrounded or enclosed, as church-yard, court-yard.

Whanne Jesus hadde seide these thingis he wente out with hise disciplis ouer the stronde of Cedron, where was a gherd, into which he entride and hise disciplis.
Wiclif. Jon. c. 18.

Me mette, howe that I romed up and doun
Within our yerde, wher as I saw a beste,
Was like an hound, and wold han made areste
Upon my body, and han had me ded.
Chaucer. The Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15,906.

They had great leuers in their handis, the whiche they founde in a carpenters yarde, with the whiche they gaue suche strokis that men durst nat aproche to them.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 16.

In our time, in the court of the prince of Bavaria, one of the lions leaped down into a neighbour's yard, where nothing regarding the crowing or noise of the cocks, he eat them up with many other hens.
Brown. Vulgar Errours, b. iii. c. 27.

Know, dame, I dream't within my troubled breast,
That in our yard I saw a murderous beast,
That on my body would have made arrest.
Dryden. The Cock and the Fox.

YARD. A. S. Gyrd; Dut. Garde, gaerde; Ger. Gert, past part. of Gyrwan, gyrian, to prepare.

A yard to mete or measure with. A. S. Met-geard,—

A mete-yard,—i. e. something prepared to mete or measure with.

A yard-wand,—a wand prepared. By usage, mete and wand are now omitted. (See Tooke.) Originally no certain length was denoted; now, three feet, of twelve inches.

Sail yards,—wands, rods, to support the sails.

A maiden childe came in hire compagnie,
Which as hire lust she may governe and gie,
For yet under the yerde was the maide.
Chaucer. The Shipmannes Tale, v. 13,028.

But sore wept she [the Nonne] if on of hem were dede
Or if men smote it [her hound] with a yerde smert.
Id. The Prologue, v. 149.

Hoste, quod he. I am under your yerde,
Ye haue of us as now the Governance,
Id. The Clerkes Prologue, v. 7898.

The toke this knight a yerd on honde,
And goth there as the cofers stonde,
And with thassent of euerichone,
He leid his yarde vpon one.
Gower. Con. A. b. v.

He commanded the mayne-yard to be strooke downe, and to put 2. pullies, on euery yard-arme one; the hangman was called, and we were willing to confesse our selues, for he swore by the king he would hang vs,
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 493.

——— And it shall go hard.
But I will delve one yard below their mines,
And blow them at the moon.
Shakespeare. Hamlet, Act iii. sc. 4.

And now a breeze from shoar began to blow,
The sailors ship their oars, and cease to row;
Then hoist their yards a-trip, and all their sails,
Let fall, to court the wind, and catch the gales.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. x.

For if I measure any thing by a yard, I know whether the thing I measure be longer or shorter than that supposed yard, though perhaps the yard I measure by be not exactly the standard; which indeed is another inquiry.
Locke. On Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 28.

Next day towards noon, the wind abating, we loosed all the reefs out of the top-sails, rigged another top-gallant mast, and got the yards across.
Cook. Second Voyage, b. iv. c. 4.

YARE. } A. S. Ge-arwe, ready, quick, pre-
YA'RAGE. } pared, (Somner;) from Ge-arwian,
YA'RELY. } gyrwan, gyrian, to prepare. See ARROW, YARD, and YARN.

Ready, prepared, provided.

Yare of steerage (in North,)—provided, furnished.

Yarage,—furniture, equipment, tackling.

This Tereus let make his ships yare,
And into Grece himself is forth ifare.
Chaucer. Legend of Philomene.

Botes, Heigh my hearts, cheerely, cheerely my harts; yare, yare.—Shakespeare. Tempest, Act i. sc. 1.

——— In Cæsar's fleete,
Are those that often haue 'gainst Pompey fought,
Their shippes are yare, yours heauy.
Id. Anthony & Cleopatra, Act iii. sc. 7.

The sea wind arose, and brought in a rough tide within the channell, which did not hurt the Grecian galleys, being made low and snug, but greatly offended the Persian galleys, being high cargoed, heavy and not yare of stereage.
North. Plutarch, p. 101.

——— At the helme,
A seeming mer-maide steeres: the silken tackle
Swell with the touches of those flower soft hands,
That yarely frame the office.
Shakespeare. Anthony & Cleopatra, Act ii. sc. 2.

Casar seeing that, was a glad man, and began a little to give back from the right wing, to allure them to come farther out of the streight gulf, to the end that he might with his light ships well manned with water-men, turn and environ the galleys of the enemies, the which were heavy of yarage, both for their bigness, as also for lack of water-men to row them.—North. Plutarch, p. 777.

YARN. A. S. Gearn; past part. of Gyrw-an, gyri-an, (to yare,) to prepare, to make ready. See Tooke.

Cotton, silk, wool, prepared (by spinning).

There are about 26 wind-mils about it, and the commodities of it are cotton wooll, cotton yarne, mastike, and some other drugs.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. ii. p. 283.

But now taking in hand againe the end (as it were) of a clew of thread, or a bottome of yarne, to direct us as in a dark place, and where there be many cranks, turnings and windings to and fro (I meane the matter of God's secret judgements) let us conduct and guide our souls gently and warily, according to that which is most likely and probable.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 453.

When wise Minerva did th' Athenians learne
To draw their milk-white fleeces into yarne.
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 3

Spare me but one small portion of the twine,
And let the sisters cut below your line:
The rest among the rubbish may they sweep,
Or add it to the yarn of some old miser's heap.
Dryden. Palamon & Arcite, b. iii.

YA'RROW. A. S. Gearewe; Dut. Garwe, millefolium. See the quotation from Pliny.

Touching millefoile or yarrow, which the Greekes call myriophyllon, and we in Latine millefolium: it is an hearbe growing up with a tender and feeble stalke, like in some sort unto fewell, and charged with many leaves, whereupon it tooke the name: it groweth in moores and fennie grounds: used to very good purpose and with singular successe in curing of wounds.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxiv. c. 16.

He fumitory gets, and eye-bright for the eye;
The yarrow, wherewithall he stops the wound-made gote
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 13

YATE, i. e. Gate, (qv.)

YAW, i. e. the jaw, or chaw. See Junius.

YAW. A yaw is that unsteady motion which a ship makes in a great swell, when, in steering, she inclines to the right or left of her course, (Gifford.)

——— O the yaws that she will make!
Look to your stern, dear mistress, and steer right.
Here's that will work as high as the Bay of Portugal.
Massinger. A very Woman, Act iii. sc. 5.

YAWL, i. e. To yell.

——— There were gorgons fell,
There howling Scillas yawling round about,
There serpents hisse, there seu'n mouth'd hydraes fell.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bovlogne, b. iv. s. 5.

YAWL. Ihre has Julle, scapha, navigiolum,—which Rudbeckius derives from Julka, vacillare, a word with which Ihre professes himself to be unacquainted. He refers to the Low Lat. Agyale,—in Du Cange, a kind of fishing-boat. Mr. Thomson seems to think, is the same kind of boat as that called the Jolly-boat.

The master of the Pink, as soon as he perceived them, sent his yawl, who brought them on board.
Anson. Voyages, b. ii. c. 3.

This was a great misfortune, as the pinnace being detained on shore, we had no boat on board but a four-oared yawl: the yawl, however, was immediately manned and sent to her assistance.—Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 2.

YAWN, v. } A. S. Cin-an, gan-ian, geon-an;
YAWN, n. } Dut. Ghienen; Ger. Gien-en,
YA'WNING, n. } hiscere, hiare, oscitare, to open
YA'WNINGLY. } the yaws, jaws, or chaws.

To gape, to open: applied to the opening of the mouth—(through drowsiness.)

For they require to haue an hearer neyther grosse of capacitee and vnderstandyng, nor that when he shoulde geue eare, wyll stande gapyng and yaning as though he were more then halfe in slepe.—Udal. Luke, c. 8.

Those that yawne and slumbre in naughtinesse, are occupied in darkenesse of the soule.—Id. 1 Thess. c. 5.

He, now to proue his late renewed might,
High brandishing his bright deaw burning blade,
Vpon his crested scalpe so sore did smite,
That to the scull a yawning wound it made.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 11.

The crocodiles not only know the voice of the priests when they call unto them, and endure to be handled and stroked by them, but also yawn and offer their teeth unto them to be picked and cleansed with their hands.
Holland Plutarch, p. 794.

Heare this then yee ignorant and seduced soules that measure your devotions by number, not by weight; or that leaning upon your idle elbow yawningly patter out those prayers, whose sound or sense ye understand not.
Bp. Hall. The Hypocrite.

And rais'd his tardy head, which sunk again,
And sinking on his bosom knock'd his chin;
At length shook off himself; and ask'd the dame,
(And asking yawn'd) for what intent she came.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. x.

Alm. Sure 'tis the friendly yawn of death for me;
And that dumb mouth, significant in show,
Invites me to the bed, where I alone
Shall rest. Congreve. Mourning Bride.

Thus did the gentle hind her fable end,
Nor would the panther blame it, nor commend;
But, with affected yawnings at the close,
Seem'd to require her natural repose.
Dryden. Hind and the Panther.

Dark was the night; it was that hour
When Terrour reigns in fullest pow'r,
When as the learn'd of old have said,
The yawning grave gives up her dead.
Churchill. Ghost, b. iii.

YE. YOU. YOUR. } Goth. Jus, vos; A. S. Ge, juh, eow, vos, eower, vester; Dut. Ghy; Ger. Ihr.

Ye and you are commonly called pronouns of the second person in the plural number, and are used by the person speaking (the first person) for or instead of the names (the nouns) of the persons to whom he speaks.

It is also commonly addressed to a single person.

For the etymology, see WHO.

Sire emperour, quoth the erl tho, ne be ge nogt so bold.
R. Gloucester, p. 58.

Mi leue frende, to telle you, as this heye men me bede,
Beter wille iche habbe to wepe, than to do other dede.
Id. p. 99.

And ge mow hym make youre kyng, wen ge time seth.
Id. p. 102.

"I not nout," quath the king, "wat ower demande be.
Communerigt," quath Pandulf. Id. p. 560.

"Nou icholle," quath the king, "that ze min wille i se Ze mowe me makie suerie, wat owe will be."—Id. Ib.

"Nou, sir clere," quath the king, "ze mowe thretin ynou, Ower deed may be no wors, than ower word is."
Id. p. 501.

I kan not telle yow whi that werre was reised aloft.
R. Brunne, p. 245.

Men say in your tuo londes ere men of grete resoun.
Id. p. 315.

And ich shal sende you myselue Seynt Michel myn aungel
That no devel shal you dere. ne despeir in youre deyenge.
And sende youre soules ther ich myself dwelle.
Piers Ploughman, p. 149.

Eeth ywar ge wismen.—Id. p. 149.

And seide do ye penaunce, for the kyngdom of hevenes shal neigh.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 3.

Nyle ghe deme that I cam to undo the law or the prophetis.—Id. Ib. c. 5.

And I seye to you that but your rigtwisnesse be more plentuous than of Scribis and Farisees ye schal not entre into the kyngdom of hevenes.—Id. Ib.

But be your word ghe ghe, nay nay.—Id. Ib.

But it is a custom to ghou that I deliuere oon to ghou in pask, therfore wolen ghe that I delyuere to ghou the kyng of Jewis?—Id. Jon, c. 18.

Thanne Pilat seith to him, take ghe him and deme ghe him after ghoure lawe.—Id. Ib.

Jon answeride and seyde to alle men, Y baptize you in watir, but a stronger than Y schal come aftir me, of whom Y am not worthi to unbynde the lace of his schoon, he schal baptise you in the Holy Gost and fier.—Id. Luk, c. 3.

John answered and sayde to them all: I baptyse you with water but a stronger then I commeth after me, whose shoe latchet I am not worthy to vnlouse: he wil baptyse you with the Holy Goost, and wyth fyre.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

I waishe ghou in watir into penaunce, but he that schal come after me is strenger than I whos schoon Y am not worthi to bere, he schal baptise you in the Hooly Goost and fire.—Wiclif. Matt. c. 3.

I baptise you in water in token of repentaunce: but he that commeth after me, is mightier then I, whose shoes I am not worthye to beare. He shall baptise you with the Holye Goost & with fyre.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Therfore do ye worthi frutys of penaunce, and bigynne ye not to seye we han a fadir Abraham, for Y seye to you that God is myghti to reise of these stoones the sones of Abraham.—Wiclif. Luk, c. 3.

And yestiff as quicke stoones be ye aboue bildid into spiritual housis and an holi preesthod to offre spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesu Crist.—Id. 1 Petir, c. 2.

But be ye doeris of the word, and not heerers oonli, disseyuynge yousilf.—Id. James, c. 1.

And se that ye be doers of ye worde and not hearers only, deceauing your owne selues.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Ye gon to Canterbury: God you spede
The blisful martyr quite you youre mede.
Chaucer. The Prologue, v. 772.

But, and ye vouchesauf to techen me
This noble craft and this subtiltee
I wol be your in all that ever I may.
Id. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16,716.

——— Lord, all lith in your plesance,
My child and I, with hertely obeisance
Ben youres all, and ye may saue or spill,
Your owen thing: werketh it after your will.
Id. Ib. v. 8379.

There were neuer two so well imet
Whan ye been his all hole, as he is your.
Id. Troilus, b. ii. v. 587.

Thus grante I you myn holl voyce,
Chese for us both, I you praie.
And what as euer that ye saie
Right as ye woll, so woll I. Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

Thus am I yours for euermo. Id. Ib.

Till at the laste longe and late
He saide: O ye my liues hele,
Saie what ye liste in my quarele.
I not what answere I shall yeue;
But euer while that I maie liue
I woll, that ye be my maistresse.—Id. Ib. b. i.

Therfore, lordinges, I have after ow sent,
For to come to my parliment,
To wite of your counsayle.
Ritson. King of Tars, vol. ii.

In Midsomer tyde this was done,
In worschupe of Crist in trone,
As I ow telle may. Id. Ib.

Yef ure thre sleh oure on,
We shulen of ure lond gon:
Yef ure on sleh oure thre,
Al this lond shal ure be.—Id. Geste of King Horn, vol. ii.

Byfore that our kyng was ded,
He spek ase mon that wes in care,
Clerkes, knyhtes, barons, he sayde,
Y charge ow by oure sware [oath],
Percy. Death of K. Edw. I. vol. ii.

——— Faire knight, borne under happie starre.
Who see your vanquisht foes before you lye:
Well worthie be you of that armory.
Wherein ye have great glory wonne this day,
And proov'd your strength on a strong enimie;
Your first adventure: many such I pray.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 1.

And as for titles, be they rogue or rascal,
Or what your worships fancy, let them pass,
As transitory things; they are mine to-day,
And yours to-morrow.
B. Jonson. Staple of News, Act ii. sc. 1.

YEAN, v. YE'ANLING. } A. S. Ean-ian, to eane, or (as some speak) to yeane; see EAN.

To bring forth, as the ewe doth her lambe, (Somner.)

I love thee better than the carefull ewe,
The new-yean'd lamb that is of her own hew.
Beaum. & Fletch. Faithful Shepherdess, Act iii.

Tusk. Would they, wise Clarion, were not hurried more
With covetise and rage, when to their store
They add the poor man's yeanling, and dare sell
Both fleece and carcass, not gi'ing him the fell!
B. Jonson. Sad Shepherd, Act i. sc. 1.

As when a vultur on Imaus bred,
Whose snowie ridge the roving Tartar bounds,
Dislodging from a region scarce of prey
To gorge the flesh of lambs or yeanling kids
On hills where flocks are fed, flies toward the springs
Of Ganges or Hydaspes, Indian streams.
Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iii.

And this you see I scarcely drag along,
Who yeaning on the rocks has left her young;
The hope and promise of my failing fold.
Dryden. Virgil, Past. 1.

——— Let Michael's feast
Commemorate the deed, lest the cold hand
Of winter pinch too hard the new yean'd lamb.
Dodsley. Agriculture, c. 3.

YEAR. YE'ARED. YE'ARLY, adj. YE'ARLY, ad. YE'ARLING, n. } Goth. Jer, or yer; A. S. Gear; Dut. Jaer; Ger. Jahr; Sw. Aor. Junius thinks from Gr. Γυρουν, gyrare, to revolve. The Sw. Aor is used to denote also messis, annona, from æra, metere, to reap. The root may be the A. S. Erian, ge-erian, arare; and year intended to mark the time of ploughing; and then the interval between the times of ploughing in one season and the next.

See the quotations from North and Ferguson.

In treuthe Y seye to you, that manye wydewis weren in the dayes of Helye the profete in Israel: whanne heven was closid thre yeer and sixe monethes, whanne greet hunger was maad in al the erthe.—Wiclif. Luk, c. 4.

But I tell you of a trueth, manye wydowes were in Israel in the dayes of Helyas, when heauen was shut thre yeres, & .vi. moneth, whē great famishment was thorow out all yt lande.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Min herte and all my limmes ben as grene,
As laurer thurgh the yere is for to sene.
Chaucer. Marchantes Tale, v. 9341.

For Supplant with his slye cast
Full ofte hapneth for to mowe
Thyng, whiche another man had sowe,
And maketh commen of propretee
With sleight, and with subtiltee,
As men maie sen from yere to yere.—Gower. Con. A. b. ii.

In the accomptynge of the yeres of the worlde, from the creacion of Adam, vnto the incarnacion of Crist, been many and sundry oppynyons.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 1.

Syr Roger Mortymer, had great lādes in Ingland, to the sume of vii. cli. of rent yerely.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 15.

And wee haue commanded, that there shall not be taken of them no yeerely rent, nor no maner of custome, taxe, rent or any other dutie whatsoeuer for those houses.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 472.

In these, and like delights of bloody game
He trained was, till riper yeeres he raught.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

A yearely solemne feast she wonts to make
The day that first doth lead the yeare around;
To which all knights of worth and courage bold
Resort, to heare of strange adventures to be told.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c 2

For the Romans at the beginning had but ten moneths in the year, as some of the barbarous people make but three moneths for their year. And the Arcadians amongst the Grecians have but four moneths for their year. The Acarnanians have six to the year; and the Ægyptians had but one moneth to their year, and afterwards they made four moneths for their year.—North. Plutarch, p. 60.

Cor. I thought once,
Considering their forms, age, manners of deaths,
The nearness of the places where they fell,
To have parallel'd him with great Alexander,
For both were of best features, of high race,
Year'd but to thirty, and, in foreign lands,
By their own people alike made away.
B. Jonson. Sejanus, Act i. sc 1.

As yet the trembling year is unconfirm'd,
And winter oft at eve resumes the breeze,
Chills the pale morn, and bids his driving sleets
Deform the day delightless.—Thomson. Spring.

Yearly thy herds in vigour will impair;
Recruit and mend 'em with thy yearly care.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iii.

Oh lasting as those colours may they shine,
Free as thy stroke, yet faultless as thy line;
New graces yearly like thy works display,
Soft without weakness, without glaring gay.
Pope. Ep. to Mr. Jervas.

——— The yearly feast
Devoted to our glorious God, the sun,
Hides their designs under a holy veil;
And thus religion is a mask for faction.
Rowe. Ambitious Step-mother, Act i.

A yearling bullock to thy name shall smoke;
Untam'd, unconscious of the galling yoke.—Pope.

The time measured by the sun's revolution in the ecliptic, from any equinox or solstice, to the same again, is called the solar or tropical year, which contains 365 days, 5 hours, forty eight minutes, 57 seconds; and is the only proper or natural year, because it always keeps the same seasons to the same months.—Ferguson. Astronomy, § 371.

The reports are extant in a regular series from the reign of king Edward the second inclusive; and from his time to that of Henry the eighth were taken by the prothonotaries, or chief scribes of the court, at the expence of the crown, and published annually, whence they are known under the denomination of the year-books.
Blackstone, Commentaries, Introd. § 8.

YEARN, v. YE'ARNFUL. YE'ARNING, n. } See To EARNE: also the quotation from Piers Plouhman in v. Well; A. S. Geornian, gyrnan; i. e. Ge-yrn-an, to run after, to pursue, to seek after.

To long after, or for; to pant after, to desire or covet eagerly or anxiously; to be deeply, painfully anxious; grievously affected.

But of hire songe, it was as loud and yerne,
As any swalow sitting on a berne.
Chaucer. Milleres Tale, v. 3258.

Laieng of ratsbane, sperewort, crowfoot, and such like vnto their whole members, thereby to raise pitifull and odious sores, and mooue the harts of the goers by such places where they lie, to yerne at their miserie, and therevpon bestow large almesse vpon them.
Holinshed. Description of England, b. ii. c. 10.

——— For he would learne
The lyon stoope to him in lowely wise
(A lesson hard) and make the libbard stearne
Leaue roaring, when in rage he for revenge did yearne.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

And euer his faint hart much *yea*rn'd at the sight.
Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 10.

The Dauphin's powr's yet standing in the sight,
And Bourbon's forces of the field not clear?
These yearning cries that from the carriage came,
His blood yet hot, more highly doth inflame.
Drayton. Battle of Agincourt.

Dec. What must you do, sir?
Jud. I must do that my heart-strings yern to do:
But my word's past.
Beaum. & Fletch. Bonduca, Act ii. sc. 4.

——— Oftimes when Giles doth find
Harsh sighs at home, Giles wisheth he were blind;
All this doth Joan: or that his long-yearn'd life
Were quite out-spun; the like wish hath his wife.
B. Jonson, Epig. 42.

Of pitty and yearning of bowels, whether to those earelesse unregenerates that cannot so much as complaine of their too-pleasing corruptions, but applaud themselves in the free scope of their owne brutish sensuality, as if they had made a covenant with death, an agreement with hell; or whether, to our poore seduced brethren, that are nurseled up in an invincible ignorance of truth; and are held downe with the imperious sway of antichristian usurpation.
Bp. Hall. St. Paul's Combat, pt. 1.

"And when the dead, by cruel tyrant's spite,
Lie out to raw'nous birds and beasts expos'd,
His yearnfull heart pitying that wretched sight,
In seemly graves their weary flesh enclos'd."
P. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. 9.

The first [letter] which is upon inward mourning will be thought the production of a man who is well acquainted with the generous yearnings of distress in a manly temper, which is above the relief of tears.—Spectator, No. 95.

I had not till then the notion of the yearnings of heart which a man has when he sees his child do a laudable thing or the sudden damp which seizes him when he fears he will act something unworthy.—Id. No. 263.

——— As the tall stag
Unharbour'd by the woodman quits his layre,
And flies the yerning pack which close-pursue,
So they not bowsy dread th' approaching foe.
J. Philips. Cerealia.

YE'DDING. Perhaps gestes, or story-tellings, (Tyrwhitt.) Gaddings, (Skinner.)

Of yeddinges he bare utterly the pris.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 238.

YEDE. YODE. } i. e. Go-ed, gode. We should now say,—went. Yead,—to go.

Wherof the bysshop beynge gladde and fayne, yede vnto the house of the sayd herdman, the whiche receyued hym with glad chere.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 83.

Then bade the knight this lady yede aloofe,
And to an hill herselfe with-drawe aside,
From whence she might behold that battailes proofe
And eke be safe from danger far descride.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 11.

——— Tho to him yode,
And him saluting, as beseemed best,
Gan first inquire of tydings farre abroad;
And afterwards, on what adventure now he rode.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 8.

And did themselues vnto their iourney dight.
So forth they yode, and forward softly pased,
That them to view had been an vncouth sight;
How all the way the prince on foot had traced,
The ladies both on horse, together fast embraced.
Id. Ib. b. iv. c. 8.

YELL, v. YELL, n. YE'LLING, n. } A. S. Gyll-an, giell-an, clamare, to call out, clamorously. (See CALL, GALE, &c.) Applied to—

A frightful or hideous cry, as of wild and savage beasts; a cry of ravening, of terror, &c.; a howl.

Doith now ye riche men, wepith ye yellynge in youre wrechidnessis that schulen come to you.
Wiclif. James, c. 5.

They yelleden as fendes don in helle.
Chaucer. The Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15,396.

Whyle he was occupyed in his prayer, the sayd company of fendes returned with yellynge and cryinge, shewynge to hym that thorough his prayer, the aungelles of God hadde byrafte from theym the soule of Edwyn.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 192.

There is in Islande (quoth he) mount Hecla, being of as dreadfull a depth as any vaste gulfe, or as hell itselfe, which resoundeth with lamentable, and miserable yellings, that the noise of the cryers may be heard for the space of a great league round about.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 560.

With wailing great, and women's shrill yelling
The roofs gan roar; the air resound with plaint.
Surrey. Virgils. Æneis, b. iv.

The cruell wound enraged him so sore,
That loud he yelled for exceeding paine;
As hundred ramping lyons seem'd to rore,
Whom reuenous hunger did thereto constraine.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 11.

Iago. Doe, with like timerous accent, and dire yell,
As when (by night and negligence) the fire
Is spied in populous cities.
Shakespeare. Othello, Act i. sc. 1.

When after goes the cry, with yellings loud and deep,
That all the forest rings, and every neighbouring place:
And there is not a hound but falleth to the chace.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 13.

——— Unmanly dread invades
The French astony'd; straight their useless arms
They quit, and in ignoble flight confide,
Unseemly yellings, distant hills return
The hideous noise.
J. Philips. Blenheim.

——— Others in frantic mood
Run howling through the streets; their hideous yells
Rend the dark welkin.
Id. Cider, b. i.

This preparation so illustrious in the eyes of Europe, and efficacious in its event, was obstructed by the utmost power of that noisy faction which has too long filled the kingdom sometimes with the roar of empty menace, and sometimes with the yell of hypocritical lamentation.
Johnson. Falkland Islands.

——— Unutterable anguish!
Guilt and Despair, pale spectres, grin around me,
And stun me with the yellings of damnation!
Id. Irene, Act v. sc. 9.

YE'LLOW, adj. YE'LLOW, n. YE'LLOW, v. YE'LLOWISH. YE'LLOWNESS. } A. S. Ge-alewe. The A. S. Ge-ælged (Somner) is coloured, painted, tawned, sun-burnt: and this past part. of the verb Ge-ælan, to kindle, appears to have been softened into Gealewe; and hence also the It. Giallo, Fr. Gialne, jaune. (See Tooke.) The Lat. Flammeus, and flavus, are flame-coloured. Brown is the colour of things burned; and yellow—

The colour of flame: (a golden colour.) See GOLD.

His colour was betwix yelwe and red.
Chaucer. The Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15,909.

Now vouchsafe this day or it be night,
That I of you the blissful sowne may here,
Or see your colour like the sunne bright,
That of yelownes had neuer pere.
Id. T. Occleue to his empty Purse.

Also your lordship shall vnderstand that the coastes of the sea throughout all the world, I haue coloured with yellow, for that it may appeare that all that is within the line coloured yellow, is to be imagined to be maine land or islands: and all without the line so coloured to bee sea, whereby it is easie and light to know it.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. i. p. 216.

An apple also which first is grene waxeth not sodeinly yelowe, but first it is somewhat white betwene grene and yelowe indifferent.—Fisher. A Godlie Treatise, &c.

This fleete departing forth of the hauen of Lima, and sayling 800 leagues westward off the coast of Peru, found certaine islands in eleuen degrees to the south of the equinoccial inhabited with a kind of people of a yellowish complexion, and all naked, whose weapons are bowes and arrowes, and darts.—Id. Ib. vol. iii. p. 802.

So should my papers yellow'd with my age,
Be scorn'd like old men of less truth than tongue.
Shakespeare, son. 17.

The second is the cheat or wheaton bread, so named because the colour therof resembleth the graie or yellowish wheate, being cleane and well dressed.
Holinshed. Desc. of England.

Ni. My humour shall not coole: I will incense Ford to deale with poyson: I will possesse him with yellownesse.
Shakespeare. Merry Wiues of Windsor, Act i. sc. 3.

He burns the leaves; the scorching blast invades
The tender corn, and shrivels up the blades:
Or suff'ring not their yellow beards to rear,
He tramples down the spikes, and intercepts the year.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. viii.

And the bruised madder itself being drenched with the like alcazite solution, exchanged also its yellowness for a redness.—Boyle. Works, vol. i. p. 750.

——— Angellina, does
So far exceed her in the ornaments
Of wit and beauty, though now hid from sight,
That like the sun (ev'n while eclipse'd) she casts
A yellowness upon all faces.
Dryden. Rival Ladies, Act iii.

Must it be ever thus? or may the hand
Of mighty labour drain their gusty lakes;
Enlarge the brightening sky, and, peopling, warm
The opening valleys, and the yellowing plains?
Dyer. The Fleece, b. iv.

YELP, v. YELP, n. } A. S. Ge-alp-an, from Gi-ell-an, to yell. Yelp is applied to—

The short, sharp, bark of a dog, fox, &c.; of a young dog; to any similar noise.

Wo was hire comforth, at sorow mot he yelp.
R. Brunne, p. 41.

And then he hath truly supposed,
That he him-maie of nothyng yelpe,
But if so be tho wordes helpe,
Which as the woman hath him taught.
Gower. Con. A. b. i.

But none of hem can helpe after my will,
And also well I might sit stille,
As praie vnto my ladie of any helpe:
Thus wote I not wherof my selfe to yelpe.—Id. Ib. b. viii.

Marke now in reading this oracion, how Winchester runneth a rashe bethlē-brained houd, minding more his dinner than hys game, and rushynge he careth not which way, so he be yelpinge.
Bp. Gardner. Of True Obedience, To the Reader

And whilst the eager dogs upon the start do draw,
She riseth from her seat, as though on earth she flew,
Forc'd by some yelping cute to give the greyhound's view.
Drayton. Poly-Olbion, s. 23.

Boy. Your Perseus is come master, that will destroy him,—
The very comfort of whose presence shuts
The monster hunger from your yelping guts.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman-Hater, Act i. sc. 2.

King. Bear to the dungeon those rebellious slaves,
Th' ignoble curs, that yelp to fill the cry,
And spend their mouths in barking tyranny.
Rowe. Mourning Bride, Act iv.

If they were at a fault, and an old hound of reputation opened but once, he was immediately followed by the whole cry; while a raw dog, or one who was a noted liar, might have yelped his heart out, without being taken notice of.
Spectator, No. 116.

If slavery be thus fatally contagious, how is it that we hear the loudest yelps for liberty among the drivers of negroes?—Johnson. Taxation no Tyranny.

YEO'MAN. YEO'MANLY. YEO'MANRY. } Lye derives from Gaeman, an inhabitant of a village. Spelman prefers Geonga, a young man, which Smith discountenances: he also (Spelman) suggests Gemen, common; and this is adopted by Verstegan. See the quotation from him.

A yeman hadde he, and servantes no mo
At that time, for him luste to ride so;
And he was cladde in cote and hode of grene.
Chaucer. Prol. to Canterbury Tales, v. 102.

The horse eke that his yeman rode upon,
So awatte, that unnethes might he gon.
Id. Chanones Yemannes Prologue, v. 16,031.

How manye goodly and bolde yemenne hath it broughte vnto theefte, whereby they haue pretented the course of nature, and dyed by the ordre of lawes miserably.
Sir T. Elyot. The Governour, b. i. c. 26.

What a yeoman is I haue declared, but from whence the worde is deriued it is hard to say: it cannot be thought that yeoman shoulde be sayde a young man, for commonlie we doo not call any a yeoman till hee be married, and haue chyldren, and as it were, haue some authoritie among his neighbours.—Smith. Commonwealth, b. i. c. 23.

I call him a yeoman whom our lawes doe call Legalem hominem, a word familiar in writs and enquests, which is free man borne English, and may dispend of his owne free land in yeerely reuenue to the summe of xl. s. sterling,
Id. Ib. c. 23.

Gemen is now in the moderne Teutonicke written Gemeyn, and it is as much to say as common, and as in sundry other ancient words, so in this, the letter g being altered into y, it is of gemen become among us yemen, and varying yet farther in orthography it is written yeomen. And seeing that gemen is all one with common, a yeoman is rightly understood a commoner.
Verstegan. Restitution of Decayed Intelligence, c. 10.

The third and last sort is named the yeomanrie, of whom and their sequele, the labourers and artificers, I haue said somewhat euen now.
Holinshed. Description of England, b. ii. c. 5.

Fang. Faith, I cannot tell sister, but if a man had any true melancholy to see his yeomanly father cut his neighbours' throats, to make his son a gentleman.
B. Jonson. Every Man out of his Humour, Act iv. sc. 1.

Th' appointment for the ensuing night he heard;
And therefore in the cavern had prepar'd
Two brawny yeomen of his trusty guard.
Dryden. Sigismonda & Guiscardo.

I knew a yeoman, who, for thirst of gain,
To the great city drove, from Devon's plain,
His numerous lowing herd; his herds he sold,
And his deep leathern pocket bagg'd with gold.
Gay. Trivia, b. iii.

A yeoman is he that hath free land of forty shillings by the year; who was antiently thereby qualified to serve on juries, vote for knight of the shire, and do any other act, where the law requires one that is probus et legalis homo.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. i. c. 12.

YERK, v. } i. e. To Jerk, (qv.)
YERK, n. } To strike, to throw out.

How now my masters (quoth he), what if an asse had flung out, and given me a rap with his heeles; would you nave had me to have yerked out and kicked him again?
Holland. Plutarch, p. 10.

There be devils dancing in the air I think—
I saw a dolphin hang i' th' horns o' th' moon
Shot from a wave, hey day, hey day,
How she kicks and yerks!
Beaum. & Fletch. The Sea-Voyage, Act i.

The horses being trised up in this manner, their riders came with loud cries behind them and some with whips in their hands to lash them, that the horse being mad withall, yerked out behind, and sprang forward with his formost legs to touch the ground.—North. Plutarch, p. 504.

YERN. } i. e. Iron, irony.
YE'RNY. }

The leggis therof, saithe he, were yern.
Joye. Exposicion of Daniel. A Brief Supputation.

Thou didste beholde it vntil there came a stone smytē out without handis, which smitte the image vpō his yerney & erthen feete breking them al to powlder.—Id. Ib. c. 2.

YES. } Are more immediately the Fr. sing.
YEA. } Aye, have thou, and Ayez, have ye. But Tooke still considers them to be the imperative of a verb of northern extraction, and Aye, and yea, to mean,—have it, possess it, enjoy it; and Yes, to be Ay-es, have, possess, enjoy that. (See As.) This northern verb is probably the A. S. Agan, Goth. Aig-an, to have, hold or possess. (See Owe.) Yes, is used to denote—Assent or consent; affirmation or confirmation.

Sire kynge, quod he, that I can,
Yf thou wilt. Yes, seith the kynge.
Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

For well she wist what it ment,
And that it was to thilke entent,
That she hir seluen shulde slea,
And to the knight she said yea.—Id. Ib.

He said nother nay ne ye,
But helde hym still, and lete her chide.—Id. Ib.

Did we not cast thre men bownde into the fyer? which answerd, yisse trewely oh kynge.
Joye. Exposicion of Daniel, c. 3.

Why dame (quoth he) what oddes can euer be,
Where both doe fight alike, to win, or yield?
Yea, but (quoth she) he beares a charmed shield,
And eke enchaunted armes, that none can pierce,
Ne none can-wound the man that does them wield.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 4.

Sec. B. —— Is this the confidence
You gave me, brother?
El. B. Yes, and keep it still,
Lean on it safely; not a period
Shall be unsaid for me: against the threats
Of malice or of sorcery, or that power
Which erring men call chance, this I hold firm.
Virtue may be assail'd, but never hurt,
Surpris'd by unjust force, but not inthrall'd;
Yea even that which mischief meant most harm,
Shall in the happy trial prove most glory.
Milton. Comus.

Yes, you despise the man to books confin'd,
Who from his study rails at human kind;
Tho' what he learns he speaks, and may advance
Some gen'ral maxims, or be right by chance.
Pope, Ep. 1.

—— Will Spring return,
And birds and lambs again be gay,
And blossoms clothe the hawthorn spray?
Yes, prattlers, yes. The daisy's flower
Again shall paint your summer bower.
Scott. Marmion, c. 1. Introd.

YEST. } A. S. Ystig, stormy, tempestuous;
YE'STY. } Yst, a storm, a tempest; from the verb Yrsian, iersian, irasci, to be angry or enraged. Yrst, the past part. (by dropping r) becomes yst. Yest or yeast is applied to—

The raging surge of the sea, the froth or foam of it; also of fermenting beer.

Now the shippe boaring the moone with her mainemast, and anon swallowed up with yest and frost.
Shakespeare. Winter's Tale, Act iii. sc. 3.

I'll win it in my water, and my malt,
My furnaces, and hanging of my coppers,
The tonning, and the subtlety of my yest.
B. Jonson. The Divelle is an Asse, Act ii. sc. 1.

Knowledge with him is idle, if it strain
Above the compass of his yesty brain.
Drayton. Moon-calf.

—— Answer me:
Though you vntye the windes, and let them fight
Against the churches: Though the yesty waues
Confound and swallow nauigation vp.
Shakespeare. Macbeth, Act iv. sc. 1.

Ham. He did complie with his dugge before hee suck't it: thus had he and mine more of the same beauy that I know the drossie age dotes on; only got the tune of the time, and outward habite of encounter, a kinde of yesty collection.—Id. Hamlet, Act v. sc. 2.

Careful observers, studious of the town,
Shun the misfortunes that disgrace the clown;
Untempted they contemn the juggler's feats,
Pass by the muse, nor try the thimble's cheats,
When drays bound high, they never cross behind,
When bubbling yest is blown by gusts of wind.
Gay. Trivia, b. iii.

When the whole is milk-warm, put in a little grounds of beer, or yeast, if you have it, or any thing else that will cause fermentation, and in a few days the beer will be fit to drink.—Cook. Second Voyage, b. i. c. 5.

YE'STERDAY. } A. S. Gyrstan-dæg, geos-
YE'STEREVENING. } terlic; Dut. Ghister, ghisteren, ghisterigh; Ger. Gestern, from the Lat. Hesternus, (Skinner.) "Gestran (says Tooke) is the past tense and part. of Ge-strinn-an, to acquire, to get, to obtain; but a day is not gotten or obtained, till it is passed; therefore Gestran-dæg is equivalent to the passed day. The Lat. Hesternus, is Ghestern."

And he axide of hem the our in which he was amendid: and thei seiden to him, fro yistirday in the seuenthe our the feuere lefte him.—Wielif. Jon, c. 4.

Then enquired he of thē the houre when he beganne to amende. And they sayde vnto him: yesterdaye the seuenth houre, the feuer lefte hym.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

Ne there nis nothing established in tyme, that maie embracen togither, all the space of this life, for certes, yet ne hath it not taken, the tyme of to morowe, and it hath lost that of yester daie.—Chaucer. Boecius, b. v.

In like sort we haue such plentie of fish vpon our seuerall coasts, that although millians and infinite numbers of them be taken, yet on the next their losse will be so supplied with new store, that nothing shall be missing of the yesterfang: so bountifull is God in these his benefits vnto vs.
Holinshed. Desc. of Scotland, c. 9.

Tho when as he approched nigh in view,
By certaine signes he plainly him descride
To be the man, that with such scornefull pride
Had him abusde, and shamed yesterday.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. vi. c. 3.

And in hope that you would come here
Yester-eve, the lady Summer
She invited to a banquet. B. Jonson. The Satyr.

Friends, be yourselves; keep the same Roman hearts
And ready minds you had yester-night.
Id. Catiline, Act iv. sc. 3.

To prove this true, this morn a trusty spy
Has brought me word, that yester ev'ning late,
In spite of all the grief for Edward's death,
Your friends were married.
Rowe. Lady Jane Gray, Act iii.

And shall the wretch whom yester sun beheld
Waiting my nod, the creature of my pow'r,
Presume to day to plead audacious love,
And build bold hopes on my dejected fate?
Congreve. Mourning Bride, Act ii.

Mon. The dreadful business of the war is o'er;
And slaughter that from yester morn till ev'n,
With giant steps, past striding o'er the field,
Besmear'd and horrid with the blood of nations,
Now weary sits among the mangled heaps,
And slumbers o'er her prey.—Rowe. Tamerlane, Act ii.

Because man comprehends not his knowledge, or power, all past and future things; his thoughts are but as yesterday, and he knows not what to-morrow will bring forth.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 15.

YET. A. S. Get, geta, git, gita, adhuc, modo, præterea, (Somner.) Junius derives from the Gr. Ετι, or αυθις. Yet is the A. S. Get, the imperative of get-an, to get, (Tooke.)

Yet, meaning get, must be interpreted as equivalent to—being or having been got or gotten.

And he schal not drinke wyn ne sydyr, and he schal be fulfild with the Holy Gost yit of his modir wombe.
Wiclif. Luk, c. 1.

And what ghit schal I seie? for tyme schal faile to me tellynge of Jedeon, Barak, Sampson, Jepte, Dauid and Samuel and of tothere prophetis.—Id. Ebrewis, c. 11.

For euery lond himselfe deceiueth
And of disease his parte receiueth
And yet take men no kepe.—Gower. Con. A. Prol.

And yit the cause is nought decided.—Id. Ib.

Though it be not the houndes kinde
To eate chaffe, yet woll he werne
An oxe, whiche cometh to the berne
Therof to taken any foode. Id. Ib. b. ii.

—— For now
Satan now first inflam'd with rage, came down
The tempter ere th' accuser of man-kind,
To wreck on innocent frail man his loss
Of that first battel, and his flight to hell:
Yet not rejoycing in his speed, though bold,
Far off and fearless, nor with cause to boast,
Begins his dire attempt.—Milton. Paradise Lost, b. iv.

Thus having settled in our thoughts the idea of the ordinary duration of a man to be seventy years, when we say a man is young, we mean that his age is yet but a small part of that which usually men attain to.
Locke. Hum. Underst. b. ii. c. 26.

YEVE. } i. e. Give, giver, gift.
YE'VER. }
YEFT. }

Ful loth were him to cursen for his tithes,
But rather woide he yeven out of doute,
Unto his pore parishens aboute,
Of his offring, and eke of his substance.
Chaucer. Prol. to the Canterbury Tales, v. 490.

Thou yeuer of the formes, that hast wrought
The fayre world, and bare it in thy thought
Eternally. Id. The Legend of Philomene.

A wif is Goddes yefte verally;
All other maner yeftes hardely,
As londes, rentes, pasture, or commune,
Of mebles, all ben yeftes of fortune,
That passen as a shadow on the wall.
Id. Marchantes Tale, v. 9186.

YEW, i.e. Ewes, (qv.)

What doe thy yewes abortive bring? or lambs,
For want of milke, seeke to their fellowes dams?
Browne. Britannia's Pastorals, b. ii. s. 2.

YEW. See Eugh. Fr. If; Dut. Ieuen, ieuen boom; Ger. Eiben baum; A. S. Iw.

Ewe of all other things is that, whereof perfite shootinge would have a bowe made.—Ascham. Toxophilus.

To come now to the yugh, because we would overpasse none: it is to see to, like the rest, [pines] but that it is not so greene; more slender also and smaller, unpleasant and fearefull to looke upon, as a cursed tree, without any liquid substance at all: and of these kind of trees, it alone beareth berries.—Holland. Plinie, b. xvi. c. 10.

Fall'n yew trees often of themselues would rise:
With seeming fire oft flam'd th' vnburn'd trees.
May. Lucan. Pharsalia, b. iii.

T' enlarge his breath (large breath in armes most needful
Or else by wrestling to wex strong and heedful,
Or his stiffe armes to stretch with eughen bow.
Spenser. Mother Hubberd's Tale.

Since the use of bows is laid aside amongst us, the propagation of the eugh-tree is likewise quite forborn; but the neglect of it is to be deplor'd.—Evelyn. Sylva, c. 25.

—— The tougher yeugh
Receives the bending figure of a bow.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. ii.

Now from yon black and funeral yew,
That bathes the charnel house with dew,
Methinks I hear a voice begin.—Parnell. Hermit.

The heaviness of the rain shortened our voyage, but we landed on one island planted with yew, and stocked with deer.—Johnson. A Journey to the Western Islands.

YEX, v. } A. S. Geoc-sa, geoc-sung; (see YE'XING, n. } HICCOUGH, or HICKET;) Dut. Hickset. See the quotation from Plinie.

Mid goxing and mid gret woth [weeping] thus bi gan hys more.—R. Gloucester, p. 34.

He yoxeth, and he speketh thurgh the nose,
As he were on the quakke, or on the pose.
Chaucer. Reves Tale, v. 4150.

There is an herb called Alysson, which whosoever hold in their hands, or do but look upon it, shall presently be rid of the yex or painful hichot.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 561.

The same portion taken likewise with honied vinegre hot, allaieth the convulsion of the stomach proceeding from excessive yexing or hicquets.—Id. Plinie, b. xxxii. c. 8.

YIELD, v. } Goth. Gild-an; A. S. Gild-an, gyld-an, geld-an; Dut. Ghelden, to pay, to perform, to render.
YIE'LDABLENESS.
YIE'LDANCE.
YIE'LDER.
YI'ELDING, n.
YIE'LDINGNESS.
YIE'LDLESS.

To pay, to give in payment; to give, to grant; to return, to bear or produce in return; to produce; to render, to surrender; to concede, to comply, to give way to.

——— Gulty ich me yelde
Of my trespas with tunge.—Piers Ploughman, p. 108.

Moost dere brothir, thou doist feithfulli whateuer thou worchist in britheren and that into pilgryms whiche yeldiden witnessyng to thi charite in the sigt of the chirche, whiche thou ledist forth and doist wel worthili to God.
Wiclif. 2 Jon, c. 1.

Witnessyng is yoldun to demetrie of alle men, and of treuthe it silff.—Id. 3 Jon, c. 1.

And glader ought his frend ben of his deth,
Whan with honour is yolden up his breth,
Than whan his name appalled is for age;
For all foryetten is his vassallage.
Chaucer. Knightes Tale, v. 3055.

And I answered full humbly
Gladly sir, at your bidding
I woll me yelde in all thing.—Id. Rom. of the Rose.

But for o mys, an other mis
Was yolde, and so full ofte it is.—Gower. Con. A. b. vi.

In this while the honger encreased, and the people were so ouerset with theyr enemyes, that many of theym were as yolden, and toke partye agayne theyr owne neyghboures.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 75.

If this towne be lost, we lese all that we haue, and our lyues also; yet hit were better that we yelded ourselfe to the erle of Derby, than to haue more damage. The erle of Laylle sayd, go we to the place wher as nedeth moost defence, for we wyll nat as yet yelde vppe the towne.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 103.

Within the towne there were no men of warre, and so made but small defence, and wolde haue yelded them vp, and in their yelding they were all pylled and robbed.
Id. Ib. c. 320.

I know how love doth rage upon a yelden mind;
How small a net may take, and meash a heart of gentle kind.
Surrey. He complains of the Deceitfulness of Love, &c.

Therewith, behold; whereas the Phrygian herds
Brought to the king with clamour, all unknown
A young man, bound his hands behind his back,
Who willingly had yielden prisoner.
Id. Virgile. Æneis, b. ii.

There he tormenteth her most terribly,
And day and night afflicts with mortall paine,
Because to yield him loue she doth deny,
Once to me yold, not to be yold againe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 11.

This sword hath ended him, so shall it thee
Vnlesse thou yeeld thee as a prisoner.
Blu. I was not borne to yeeld, thou haughty Scot.
Shakespeare. 1 Pt. Hen. IV. Act v. sc. 3.

He shall be like the fruitful tree
Planted along a running spring,
Which, in due season, constantly
A goodly yeeld of fruit doth bring.—Bacon, Ps. 1.

Some guard these traitors to the block of death,
Treason's true bed, and yeelder up of breath.
Shakespeare. 2 Pt. Hen. IV. Act iv. sc. 2

For briars and thornes at their apparell snatch,
Some sleeues, some hats, from yeelders all things catch.
Id. Midsummer Night's Dreame, Act iii. sc. 2.

The fourth disposition for peace—an yieldableness upon sight of clearer truths.—Bp. Hall. The Peace-Maker, s. 13.

He that had put himself upon the pawes of the beare and lyon, for the rescue of his sheep, will now cast himselfe upon the sword of the angel, for the preservation of Israel: There was hope in those conflicts, in this yeeldance there could be nothing but death.
Bp. Hall. Cont. Numbering of the People.

There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked: and after all his inward broyles, he falls upon the worst, so as his yeildance is worse than his fight.
Id. Ib. John Baptist beheaded.

Immaculate and spotless is my mind;
That was not forc'd; but never was inclin'd
To accessary yieldings, but still pure
Doth in her poison'd closet yet endure.
Shakespeare. Rape of Lucrece.

Cassibelan after so many defeats, mov'd especially by revolt of the cities from him, thir inconstancie and falshood one to another, uses mediation by Comius of Arras to send embassadors about treatie of yielding.
Milton. Historie of England, b. ii.

If the thing under debate be given up to the adversary, it must be upon one of these two accounts; either, 1. That the persons who thus yield them up, judge them unfit to be retained. Or, 2. That they find themselves unable to retain them; one or both of these must of necessity be implied in such a yieldance.—South, vol. v. Ser. 12.

She should have held the battle to the last,
Undaunted, yieldless, firm, and died or conquer'd.
Rowe. Ulysses, Act iii.

The shallowness of the socket at the shoulder, and the yieldingness of the cartilaginous substance with which its edge is set round, and which in fact composes a considerable part of its concavity, are excellently adapted for the allowance of a free motion and a wide range; both of which the arm wants.—Paley. Natural Theology, c. 8.

YOKE, n. } A. S. Joc, juc, geoc; Dut. Jok,
YOKE, v. } juk; Sw. Ook; Fr. Joug; It. Geogo, from the Lat. Jug-um, (say the etymologists;) but Tooke considers it to be the past part. geoc, of the A. S. verb Ge-ican, (to eke,) to add, to join.

To join or conjoin; to connect, to bind; and (as the yoke was an instrument of bondage imposed upon slaves) to subjugate, to subdue.

Take ye me my yok on you, and lerne ye of me, for I am mylde and meke in herte and ye schal fynde reste to youre solis. for my yok is softe, and my charge light.
Wiclif. Matthew, c. 11.

Take my yocke on you and learne of me, for I am meke and lowly in hert: & ye shall fynde rest vnto your soules. For my yocke is easy, and my burde is lyght.
Bible, 1551. Ib.

This golden carte with firy beames bright,
Foure yoked stedes full different of hewe,
But bait or tiring, through the spheres drewe.
Chaucer. Testament of Creseide.

He toke a plough, where that it stoode,
Wherin anone in stede of oxes
He let do yoken great foxes.
And with great salt the londe he sewe.
Gower. Con. A. b. iv.

And whan he was suffycyently enfourmed of all ye cõmodyties therof, he had great wyll to brynge the sayd countre vnder the yocke of ye Romaynes.
Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 48.

Neyther dysdayned Paule in a sezten espistle or gentyll salutacion, to make mencion of his yoke fellow or wyfe, whom he at that time minded not to leade about wyth hym.
Bale. Apologie, fol. 121.

And for to make his poure approued more,
Wilde beasts in iron yokes he would compell;
The spotted panther, and the tusked bore,
The pardale swift, and the tigre cruéll,
The antelope, and wolfe, both fierce and fell.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 6.

Alt. She would fain marry.
1 Lady. 'Tis a proper calling,
And well beseems her years; who would she yoke with?
Beaum. & Fletch. Rule a Wife and have a Wife, Act i.

Then were they yoak'd with garrisons, and the places consecrate to their bloodie superstitions destroi'd.
Milton. History of England, b. ii.

The mother cow must wear a low'ring look,
Sour headed, strongly neck'd, to bear the yoke,
Her double dew-lap from her chin descends:
And at her thighs the pondrous burthen ends.
Dryden. Virgil. Georgics, b. iii.

'Tis some comfort to some, that they have the liberty to walk abroad where they will: but others are both yoak'd and imprison'd: and the prisoners in public prisons are used worse than a man would use a dog, they being half starved and soundly beaten to boot.
Dampier. Voyages an. 1688.

My friend, I found, acted but an under part at his table, and being a man of more good nature than understanding, thinks himself obliged to fall in with all the passions and humours of his yoke-fellow.—Spectator, No. 1.

When we got to Matavai, our friends there told us, that this fleet was part of the armament intended to go against Eimea, whose chief had thrown off the yoke of Otaheite, and assumed an independency.
Cook. Second Voyage, b. ii. c. 11.

YOLK, or } The yellow (yellow, yellog, yelg, YELK. } yelk, or yolk) portion of the egg.

The yolke of the egge can not be without the whyte, nor the whyte without the yolke, no more maye the clergy and the lordes be one without another.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 42.

She layes her breasts out too, like to poch'd eggs
That had the yelks suckt out.
Beaum. & Fletch. A Wife for a Moneth, Act ii.

Cym. All the yolk is wild-fire,
As he shall need beleaguer no more towns,
But throw his egg in.
B. Jonson. Staple of News, Act iii. sc. 1.

As the shell and skin keep the yolk and two whites together, so each of the parts (the yolk and inner white at least) are separated by membranes, involving them.
Derham. Physico-Theology, b. vii. c. 4. Note 11.

YON. } See BEYOND. A. S. Geond, geoned,
YOND. } goned, gon'd, or gon.
YO'NDER. } Gone, and, therefore, distant, at a distance.

Yond, adj.—is outrageous. Fr. Outrageux, from Oultre, or outre; Lat. Ultra, (Upton.)

Yon is classed by B. Jonson among the pronouns. See the quotation from him.

Than he came out of his busshement and sayd to his company, Come on syrs lustely, beholde yonder is he that I desyre to haue, it is the maister of the crosbowes, I desyre to haue hym aboue all creatures lyuynge.
Berners. Froissart. Cronycle, vol. i. c. 269.

I marueile not a little (q^d he) of thy folly, that thou wouldest thus attempt to assure thy selfe with a foolisshe gyrle yonder in the court, Anne Bullen.
Wyat. An Account of Q. Anne Bullen.

Clo. Since I beheld yon shaggy man, my breast
Doth pant; each bush, methinks, should hide a beast.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Faithful Shepherdess, Act iii.

The demonstratives: this: plural, these. That: plural, those. Yon, or yonder, same.—B. Jonson. Grammar, c. 15.

I'll shew you now: observe him. Yon' is he.
Id. The Divelle is an Asse, Act i. sc. 1

Clarind, said shee, thou seest yond fayrie knight,
Whom not my valor, but his own braue minde
Subiected hath to my vnequall might.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 5.

Then like a lyon, which had long time saught
His robbed whelpes, and at the last them fond,
Emongst the shepheard swaynes, then weteth wood and yond.
Id. Ib. b. ii. c. 8.

So Florimell fled from that monster yond
To reach the sea ere she of him were caught.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 7

Let none forget Obizo of Tuscaine land
Well worthy praise for many a worthy deed,
Nor those three brethren, Lombard's fierce and yond.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bovlogne, b. i. s. 5.

Said then the boatman, Palmer steere aright,
And keepe an euen course; for yonder way
We needs must pass (God do vs well acquight.)
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 12.

And to those brethren said, rise, rise bylme,
And vnto battaile doe your selues addresse;
For, yonder comes the prowest knight aliue,
Prince Arthur, floure of grace and nobilesse.
Id. Ib. c. 8.

Mote not mislike you also to abate
Your zealous haste, till morrow next againe
Both light of heauen, and strength of men relate:
Which if ye please, to yonder castle turne your gate.
Id. Ib. b. iii. c. 8.

They sadly trauaild thus, vntill they came
Nigh to a castle builded strong and hie:
Then cride the dwarfe, Lo, yonder is the same,
In which my lord my liege doth lucklesse lie,
Thrall to the giant's hatefull tyrannie.—Id. Ib. b. i. c. 8.

Goddess of shades, beneath whose gloomy reign
Yon spangled arch glows with the starry train.
Pope. Statius. Thebais.

Tam. Yet, yet a little, and destructive slaughter
Shall rage around, and mar this beauteous prospect;
Pass but an hour which stands betwixt the lives
Of thousands and eternity:—What change
Shall hasty death make in yon glitt'ring plain?
Rowe. Tamerlane, Act i.

Mark her behaviour too, she's tippling yonder with the serving men.—Dryden. Tempest, Act iv.

Besides yon straggling fence that skirts the way
With blossom'd furze, unprofitably gay,
There, in his noisy mansion, skill'd to rule,
The village master taught his little school.
Goldsmith. Deserted Village.

Near yonder copse, where once the garden smil'd,
And still where many a garden flow'r grows wild,
There, where a few torn shrubs the place disclose,
The village preacher's modest mansion rose.—Id. Ib.

YORE. A. S. Geara, from Gear, a year: applied to—

A year, or years past, gone, ago; in time past, in former time.

Hast thou not herd how saved was Noe,
Whan that our Lord had warned him beforne,
That al the world with water shuld be lorne?
Yes (quod this carpenter), ful yore ago.
Chaucer. Milleres Tale, v. 3438.

The sely tonge may wel ringe and chimbe
Of wretchednesse, that passed is ful yore:
With olde folke, save dotage, is no more.
Id. Reves Prologue, v. 3896.

I have of yore made many a scrambling meal
In corners, behind arasses, on stairs;
And in the action oftentimes have spoil'd
Our doublets and our hose with liquid stuff.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Woman-Hater, Act iii. sc. 4.

Right true it is, and said full yore ago.
Wyat. Of the Feigned Friend.

Tho' old, you find his strength is not clean past,
But true as steel he's mettle to the last.
If better he perform'd in days of yore,
Yet now he gives you all that's in his pow'r;
What can the youngest of you all do more?
Rowe. Love for Love, Epil.

YOUNG, adj. YOUNG, n. YOU'NGLY, adj. YOU'NGLY, ad. YOU'NGLING, adj. YOU'NGLING, n. YOU'NKER. YOU'NGSTER. YOUTH. YOU'THFUL. YOU'THFULLY. YOU'THFULNESS. YOU'THLY. Goth. Yuggo, (yungo); A. S. Ging, geong, jong; Dut. Jongh, jonck; Ger. Jung; Sw. Ung; A. S. Geoguth, juguth; Dut. Jongheid; Ger. Jugend; Sw. Ungdom. Skinner derives from the Lat. Junior; Fr. Jeune; It. Giovane. May it not be from the A. S. Gin-an, geon-an, patere, to open; that which openeth (sc. the womb.) "Sanctifie unto me the first-born: whatsoever openeth the womb, both of man and beast, it is mine," (Exod. xiii. 2.) Or Gynn-an, in-ire, incipere.

Applied to any thing (animal or vegetable) on its first coming into, at the beginning of, its existence; at its birth, and for a short time after; met. and consequentially—

Inexperienced, innocent, simple (as young things usually are.)

Youth,—i. e. youngeth; youngth, youth.

Sones hii adde to gadere & dogtren bothe tuo,
As Robert the Courtehese, & Wyllam the rede kyng al so,
Henry the gode kyng was gongost of echon.
R. Gloucester, p. 370.

And wam Edmond made hys eyr of ys londe wythoute striue,
And wam of ys gonges sones wardeyn ek ydo,
And wat thyng he adde assygned ys tueye bretheren al so.
Id. p. 314.

Yonge men I write to you for ye han ouercomen the wickid. I write to you yonge children, for ye han knowe the fadir.—Wiclif. 1 Jon, c. 2.

I wryte vnto you yog men, howe that ye haue ouercome the wycked. I wryte vnto you lyttle chyldren, howe that ye knowe the father.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

And thei gheden into the sepulcre and sighen a youngling hilid with a whyte stole sittynge at the right half and thei weren afeerd.—Wiclif. Mark, c. 16.

And they wēt into the sepulcre, and sawe a younge man syttynge on ye right side, clothed in a longe white garment, and they were abasshed.—Bible, 1551. Ib.

The younge man seith to him, I have kept alle these thingis from my ghouthe, what yit faileth to me?
Wiclif. Matt. c. 19.

And the younge man sayd vnto hym: I haue obserued all these thinges from my youthe, what lacke I yet?
Bible, 1551. Ib.

Bi feith Moises borun was hid three monethis of his fadir and modir, for that thei sighen the ghong child fair, and thei dredden not the maundement of the king.
Wiclif. Ebrewis, c. 11.

Elde was painted after this
That shorter was a foote ywis
Than she was wont in her yonghede.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Though love be hote, yet in a man of age,
It kindleth nat so soone as in youtheed,
Of whom the blood is flowing in a rage.
Id. Testament of Creseide.

Where that more he praiseth elde
Though he be croked and vnwelde
And more of commendation
Than youth in his description.—Id. Ib.

As Tullius can determine
Which in his time was full sage
In a booke he made of age
Thei be growen vp alofte
In the youngthe of lustie age.—Gower. Con. A. b. iii.

The bright sonne by the morowe
Beshineth not the derke night,
The lusty yongth of mans might
In age but it stonde wele
Mistorneth all the last whele.—Id. Ib. b. vi.

——— And children fiue
Betwene hem two thei had aliue,
That weren yonge, and tender of age.—Id. Ib. b. i.

As I myn eie aboute caste,
His large berde than at laste
I sigh, and thought anone therfore,
Howe that his father hym before,
Whiche stode vpon the same place,
Was berdles, with a yongly face.—Id. Ib. b. v.

And this to brynge to effecte, he purchasyd to hym a yonglynge of fayre and goodly maners, and stature, named Clothayre, and sayd that he was descendyd of the royall bloode of Fraunce, by meane wherof, i short tyme he gaderyd to hym grete strength.—Fabyan. Chronycle, c. 145.

If Zelmanes young years had not had so much gravity hidden under a youthful face, as your gray hairs have been but the vizor of unfitting usefulness, your vicious mind would have brought some fruits of repentance.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. iv.

And yet [they] are supplanted by such yoong nouices and yoonkers as are of late gone thither, to inioy and to succeed into the fruits of other mens trauels, fortune better fauouring them, then vertue commending.
Holinshed. Conquest of Ireland, Ep. Ded.

Yet in protection of their tender ones,
Who hath not seene them euen with those wings
Which sometime they haue vs'd with fearfull flight,
Make warre with him that climb'd vnto their nest,
Offering their owne liues in their yongs defence?
Shakespeare. 1 Pt. Hen. VI. Act ii. sc. 2.

Ne in her speech, ne in her hauiour,
Was lightnesse seene, or looser vanitie,
But gracious womanhood, and grauitie,
Aboue the reason of her youthly yeares.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 2.

——— Birds that build nests
Have care to keep 'em.
Cun. That's granted,
But not continually to sit upon 'em;
Less in the youngling season.
Beaum. & Fletch. Wit at Several Weapons, Act ii.

Brut. I, spare vs not: Say we read lectures to you,
How youngly he began to serue his countrey,
How long continued, and what stock he springs of,
The noble house o' th' Martians.
Shakespeare. Coriolanus, Act ii. sc. 3.

Straight downe she ranne, like an enraged cow,
That is berobbed of her youngling dere,
With knife in hand, and fatally did vow,
To wreake her on that mayden messengere.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. v. c. 8.

——— Now, now, I laugh
To see how those poor younglings are both cheated
Of life and comfort.
Beaum. & Fletch. The Laws of Candy, Act v.

Thilke sullen season sadder plight doth aske,
And loatheth sike delights, as thou doost praise:
The mournfull muse in mirth now list ne maske,
As she was wont in youngth and sommer dayes.
Id. Shepheard's Calender. November.

It was in freshest flowre of youthfull yeares,
When courage first does creepe in manly chest,
Then first the coale of kindly heate appeares
To kindle loue in euery liuing brest.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 9.

Nevertheless the sound counsell of the lady Regent hardly restrained Martiques, who youthfully insulted, and was inflamed with heat to invade England.
Camden. History of Queen Elizabeth, an. 1560.

Your attire (for whither doe not censure reach?) not youthfully wanton; not, in these yeares effectedly ancient, but grave and comely, like the mind, like the behaviour of the wearer.—Bp. Hall, vol. i. p. 314.

Another time he put himself forth to speak in open audience of a great assembly, and was likewise whistled at, and driven out of countenance; for speaking some words that favoured too much of lusty youthfulness.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 764.

The Peripatetick disputers imployed their younger studies upon the philosophy of disputation, and, it may be, gain'd an ability to out-talk many of their contemporaries in that way.—Glanvill, Ess. 3.

Being puffed up with youthly heat and ambition, he [Sebastian king of Portugall] had not long before promised his utmost help and assistence to the bishop of Rome against the Mahometans and the Protestants.
Camden. Hist. of Queen Elizabeth, an. 1578.

That natural affection, so connatural to all, or most creatures towards their young, what an admirable, noble principle it is, implanted in them by the wise Creator! by means of which, with what alacrity do they transact their parental ministry.—Derham. Physico-Theology, b. iv. c. 11.

'Tis observable in the other, that creatures less useful, or by their voracity pernicious, have commonly fewer young, or do seldomer bring forth.—Id. Ib. c. 10.

Encourag'd thus she brought her younglings nigh,
Watching the motions of her patron's eye,
And drank a sober draught; the rest amaz'd
Stood mutely still, and on the stranger gaz'd.
Dryden. Hind and the Panther.

She let her second room to a very genteel youngish man.
Tatler.

If I but smil'd a sudden youth they found,
And a new paisey seiz'd them when I frown'd.
Pope. Wife of Bath

Is she not more than painting can express,
Or youthful poets fancy, when they love?
Rowe. Fair Penitent, Act iii.

I have reason to belive that some thoughtless youngsters, out of a false notion of bravery, and an immoderate fondness to be distinguished for fellows of fire, are insensibly hurried into this senseless, scandalous project.
Spectator, No. 324.

The scribbler had not genius enough in verse to turn my age, as indeed I am an old maid, into raillery, for affecting a youthier turn than is consistent with my time of day.
Id. No. 296.

——— Thus hand in hand
The sot has walk'd with death twice twenty years,
And yet ne'er yonker on the green laughs louder,
Or clubs a smuttier tale. Blair. Grave.

He will not blush that has a father's heart,
To take in childish plays a childish part;
But bends his sturdy back to any toy,
That youth takes pleasure in, to please his boy.
Cowper. Tirocinium.

Let us suppose the egg to be produced into day; how should birds know that their eggs contain their young?
Paley. Natural Theology, c. 18.

YULE. A. S. Gehul, Natalis Domini, Christmasse, which in the northerne parts (of Lancashire, Yorkshire, &c.) they yet call—yeol, yewl, yeole, (Somner.) The month of December was called Ærra Geold, because it came before (ere) the nativity of Christ; and January,—Æftera Geold, because it was after, (Somner.) Ihre, in v. Jul, enters much at large into the etymology of the word; and Dr. Jamieson is very copious both upon the festival and the name: Sw. Huel, rota, A. S. Hweol, a wheel, he seems to think as likely an origin as any; and Mr. Drake has adopted the same opinion. Skinner resorts to the Lat. Jubilum.

The gode kyng Edward to London turnes he,
The feste of gole to hold, with grete solempnite,
At Saynt Petir mynstere. R. Brunne, p. 65.

In the third yeare after, as king Alexander with his mother Ermingard were sitting at their banket on the twelfe day in Christmas, otherwise called yule, the earle of Cathnes, hauing good opportunitie thereto, presented himselfe before the king, and besought him of grace and pardon for his passed offense.
Holinshed. Hist. of Scotland, an. 1219.

The northern parts call Christmas yule (hence the hule-blecks, yule-oakes, yule-songs, &c.) though much difference about the cause there.—Fuller. Worthies. Northumberland.

Z.

Z (says Wilkins) is by some styled S soft: it is framed by an appulse of the tongue towards the upper teeth or gums, and then forcing out the breath from betwixt the tongue and the upper teeth, with a vocal sound, which makes a more dense kind of hissing (than S), mixed with some kind of murmur. It is of the same affinity with S, as B with P, D with T.

ZA'NY, n. } It. Zane, the name of John
ZA'NY, v. } Also a sillie John, a gull, a noddie. Used also for a simple vice, clowne, foole or simple fellow in a play or comedy, (Florio;) and Skinner seems inclined to favour this etymology; and Menage also considers it to be a corruption of Giovanni. Tooke supposes Sanese (an inhabitant of Sienna) was used to denote a fool; and tha the first part of the word Sane has given us Zan and the latter,—Nese, nizzy.

Talking of stones, stars, plants, of fishes, flies,
Playing with words, and idle similes,
As the English apes and very zanies be
Of every thing, that they do hear and see,
So imitating his ridiculous tricks,
They speak and write, all like meer lunaticks.
Drayton. To H. Reynolds, Esq.

Marry, you may bring Frisker, my zany, he's a good skipping swaggerer.—B. Jonson. Poetaster, Act iii. sc. 1.

For the fine courtier, the woman's man,
That tells my lady stories, dissolves riddles,
Ushers her to her coach, lies at her feet
At solemn masks, applauding what she laughs at;
Reads her asleep anights, and takes his oath
Upon her pantoffles, that all excellence
In other madams do but zany hers.
Beaum. & Fletch. Queen of Corinth, Act i. sc. 2.

Yet even this confirms me in my opinion of slighting popular applause, and of contemning that approbation which those very people give, equally with me, to the zany of a mountebank.—Dryden. Evening's Love, Pref.

But say what recompense for all this waste
Of honour, truth, attention, time, and taste?
To shine confess'd her zany, and her tool,
And fall by what I rose, low ridicule?—Smollett. Advice.

ZEAL, n. } Fr. Zèle; It. Zèlo; Sp. Zelo; Lat. Zelus; Gr. Ζηλος; which Vossius derives from Ζε-ειν, fervere, to warm, to glow, because it is properly that warmth or fervour of mind, which is distinguished in emulation or rivalry. See JEALOUS ZEAL, v.
ZEA'LLESS.
ZEA'LOT.
ZEA'LOTIST.
ZEA'LOTRY.
ZEA'LOUS.
ZEA'LOUSLY.
ZEA'LOUSNESS.
Warmth, fervour, ardour.

Zealot is sometimes applied to—one whose ardour outstrips his judgment.

I would to God I were once in place where I might cause your burning zeale to bee knowen to those that haue authoritie, power, and abilitie to recompense your trauelling mind and pen.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 132.

His heart was continually, and most zealously bent to set foorth the glory, laude and honour of the Almightie Creator, the heauenly and euerlasting king.
Id. Ib. vol. i. p. 8.

For when our blessed Lord had propounded an instance of perfection, he that not only obeys the counsel, but thinks it to be a commandment, and necessary to be done at all times and persons, enters into an error at the gate of zeal, and at the same place lets out the excellency of his love.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. i. c. 3.

Stiff followers, such as zeal marvellously for those whom they have chosen for their masters.
Bacon. On the Con. of the Church of England.

If we be meale-mouthed in the scornes of religion, we are not patient, but zealelesse: here we may not forbeare her, that lyes in our bosome.
Bp. Hall. Cont. Mephibosheth & Zibra.

If an erring conscience obliges us to follow it, then some men are bound to persecute the church, and the high priests sinned not in crucifying Christ; and the zealots of the Jews did well in afflicting the apostles and disciples of Jesus, because they did it ignorantly, and by the dictate of an erring conscience.
Bp. Taylor. Rule of Conscience, b. i. c. 3.

I could wish these sciolous zelotists had more judgment joined with their zeal.—Howell. Letters.

She was empassiond at that pittious act,
With zealous envy of Greekes cruell fact,
Against that nation, from whose race of old
She heard that she was lineally extract.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 9.

Pol. She was both witty and zealous,
And lighted all the tinder of the truth
(As one said) of religion, in our parish;
She was too learned to live long with us.
B. Jonson. Magnetick Lady, Act i. sc. 1.

And did thereto so zealously proceed,
That those fair locks, whose curls did him adorn,
Till he had seen the holy city freed,
He deeply vow'd he never would have shorn.
Drayton. Legend of Robert Duke of Normandy.

There is nothing in which men more deceive themselves than in what the world calls zeal. There are so many passions which hide themselves under it, and so many mischiefs arising from it, that some have gone so far as to say, it would have been for the benefit of mankind if it had never been reckoned in the catalogue of virtues.
Spectator, No. 185.

After having treated of these false zealots in religion, I cannot forbear mentioning a monstrous species of men, who one would not think had any existence in nature, were they not to be met with in ordinary conversation, I mean the zealots in atheism.—Id. Ib.

I would have every zealous man examine his heart thoroughly, and I believe, he will often find, that what he calls a zeal for his religion, is either pride, interest, or ill-nature.—Id. Ib.

I love to see a man zealous in a good matter, and especially when his zeal shews itself for advancing morality, and promoting the happiness of mankind.—Id. Ib.

The honourable Robert Boyle, Esq. was a person no less zealously sollicitous for the propagation of true religion, and the practice of piety and virtue; than diligent and successful in improving experimental philosophy, and inlarging our knowledge of nature.
Clarke. On the Evidences, Pref.

The zealousness of our endeavours, and the applause that others entertain them with, may perhaps tempt us to think, that, because in our expressions we have surpassed ourselves, we have almost equalled our theme.
Boyle. Works, vol. i. p. 296.

A furious zealot may think he does God service by persecuting one of a different sect. St. Paul thought so: but he confesses he acted sinfully, notwithstanding he acted ignorantly.—Gilpin, Ser. vol. i. Hint 12.

The Indians all offered very zealously to assist us against him, desiring, that for this purpose, they might be permitted to lie in the fort.—Cook. First Voyage, b. i. c. 16.

ZE'NITH. Opposed to nadir, (qv.)

But the reason thereof is this, because they being betweene the tropike and the equinoctiall, the sunne passeth twise in the yeere through their zenith ouer their heads, by meanes whereof they haue two summers.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 731.

Also [they hold] that the zenith or point of the heaven is even and alike unto all.—Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 55.

—— Heaven she is,
Praised in herself above all praise; and he
Which hears her speak, would swear the tuneful orbs
Turn'd in his zenith only.
B. Jonson. Poetaster, Act i. sc. 1.

ZE'PHYR. Gr. Ζεφυρος, quasi, ζωηφορος, sive, το ζην φερειν, bringing life.

When zephirus eke with his sote brethe
Enspired hath in every holt and hethe
The tendre croppes.—Chaucer. The Prologue, v. 5.

Dryer it is [the east wind] than the west wind Favonius, which bloweth over against him from the equinoctial sun setting full west, called in Greeke Zephyrus.
Holland. Plinie, vol. xviii. c. 34.

And all within with flowres was garnished,
That when mild zephyrus emongst them blew,
Did breathe out bountious smels, and painted colours shew.—Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 5.

Where sweet myrrhe-breathing zephir in the spring
Gently distils his nectar-dropping showers.
Drayton, Idea 53.

ZEST. Skinner says—is a small piece of orange-peel scraped and pressed into wine; perhaps from Fr. Zest, the inner skin of the walnut; or rather (ita me Deus amet) from Yeast. Why the name is given either to the orange-peel or the walnut-skin, the etymologists say not a word. Vanburgh is the earliest authority that has occurred. It is applied to—

Any thing that gives or adds, a relish, a savour: generally—that enhances a pleasure or enjoyment.

A smart repartee, with a zest of recrimination at the head of it, makes the prettiest sherbet.
Vanburgh. Journey to London.

And though sometimes a lucky hit
May give a zest to Butler's wit;
Whatever makes the measure halt
Is beauty seldom, oft a fault.—Lloyd. On Rhyme.

Liberality of disposition and conduct gives the highest zest and relish to social intercourse.
Cogan. Ethical Treat. Disc. 1.

With an archness that formed a pleasing substitute for wit, and enough of taste to give zest and currency to his opinions, he [Cumberland] wanted little but a distrust of his own powers, to render him at once the delight and ornament of the age.
B. Jonson. Fox, Act v. sc. 5. Note by Gifford.

ZIG-ZAG. } Fr. Zig-zag. Menage con-
ZIGZAG. } siders to be formed from its
ZI'GZAGGED. } likeness to the thing it is intended to denote: perhaps from the repetition of the first syllable of the name of the Gr. Z, i.e. zeug, zeug.

Lines turning sharply, as in the letter Z.

The outside of the south end shews the great antiquity of the building, having in it two great round arches, with zig-zag mouldings, our most antient species of architecture.
Pennant. London, p. 122.

—— Such continual zigzags in a book,
Such drunken reelings have an awkward look,
And I had rather creep to what is true,
Than rove and stagger with no mark in view.
Cowper. Conversation.

The middle aile has on each side four Norman round arches zig-zagged, surmounted with as many round-headed small windows.—Warton. History of Kiddington, p. 4.

ZINC. Perhaps formed upon the Ger. Zin, tin, (qv.)

The minerals, or semi-metals, that are dug out of the bowels of the earth, are antimony, cinnabar, zink, &c. to which may be added brimstone.
Locke. Elements of Natural Philosophy, c. 8.

ZO'DIACK. } Fr. Zodiaque; It. Zodiàco,
ZODI'ACAL. } Sp. Zodiaco; Lat. Zodiacus; Gr. Ζωδιακος.

See the quotations from Hackluyt, Pliny, and Ferguson.

And vnderstande, that all the sterres sittyng within the zodiake of thyne astrolabie, been cleeped sterres of the north, for thei arisen by the north east line, and all the remenaunt fixes out of the zodiake, been icleped sterres of the south, but I saie not that thei arisen all by the southe east line, witnesse of Aldebrean and also Algomisa.
Chaucer. Astrolabie.

And also there ben signes twelue
Which haue her cercles by hem selue
Compassed in the zodiake.
Gower. Con. A. b. vii.

Also our aucthour of the sphere, Johannes de Sacro Bosco, in the chapter of the zodiacke, deriueth the etymologie of zodiacus, of the Greeke word ζoe, which in Latine signifieth vita, life; for out of Aristotle hee alleadgeth, that according to the sunnes going to and fro in the zodiake, the inferiour bodies take their causes of generation and corruption.—Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 53.

And hereto maketh much the orderly ranke of things therein, and namely the circle called signifer, or the zodiake, set forth and divided by the formes of twelve living creatures therein portraied: together with the manner of the sunnes race throughout them keeping over the same course still, for so many ages past.—Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 3.

The planets move round about the sun from west to east in the zodiac; or, to speak plainer, are always found amongst some of the stars of those constellations, which make the twelve signs of the zodiac.
Locke. Elements of Natural Philosophy, c. 3.

Zodiack [ζωδιακος], from ζωδιον, an animal, because most of the constellations in it, which are twelve in number, are the figures of animals. The zodiack goes quite round the heavens: it is 16 degrees broad, so that it takes the orbits of all the planets, and likewise the orbit of the moon.
Ferguson. Astronomy, § 360.

He [Palingeni] once takes occasion, in his general survey of the world, to introduce a philosophical explanation of the zodiacal system.—Warton. Hist. of English Poetry, vol. iii.

ZONE. } Fr. Zone; It. Zona; Sp. Zona;
ZO'NELESS. } Lat. Zona; Gr. Ζωνη, from ζωννυειν, cingere, to gird. See the quotations from Holland and Dryden.
A girdle, a cincture.

Some there be that thinke the middle zone extreme hot, because the people of the countrey can, and doe liue without clothing, wherein they childishly are deceiued.
Hackluyt. Voyages, vol. iii. p. 51.

Whereas there bee of the heaven five parts which they call zones: all that lieth under the two utmost, to wit, on both sides about the poles, namely this here which is called Septentrio, i. the north, and the other over against it, named the south, it is overcharged with extreme and rigorous cold, yea, with perpetual frost and yce.
Holland. Plinie, b. ii. c. 48.

And as five zones th' ætherial regions bind,
Five correspondent, are to earth assign'd:
The sun with rays, directly darting down,
Fires all beneath, and fries the middle zone:
The two beneath the distant poles, complain
Of endless winter, and perpetual rain.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. i.

Clos'd was her eye, and from her heaving breast
In careless folds loose fell her zoneless vest.
Mason. Isis.

Thou art not known where Pleasure is ador'd,
That reeling goddess with the zoneless waist
And wand'ring eyes, still leaning on the arm
Of Novelty, her fickle, frail support.
Cowper. Task, b. iii.

ZOO'GRAPHY. } From Gr. Ζωη, life, and
ZOO'GRAPHER. } γραφ-ειν, to write.
A description of (animal) life; of animals.

Zoographers observe, that the cameleon has a very uncommon structure of his visive organs; since, to omit lesser, though not inconsiderable, peculiarities, his eyes often me independently from one another.
Boyle. Works, vol. v. p. 407

If we contemplate the end of this minute effect, its principal final cause being the glory of it's maker, leads us into divinity; and for its subordinate, as 'tis designed for alimental sustenances to living creatures, and medicinal uses to man, we are conducted to zography, and the whole body of physick.—Glanvill. Vanity of Dogmatizing, c. 22.

ZOO'LOGY. } From Gr. Ζωη, life, and λεγ-ειν,
ZOO'LOGER. } to discourse. See the quotation
ZOO'LOGIST. } from Pennant.

Nature has, as zoologists teach us, furnished ducks and other water-fowl with a peculiar structure of some vessels about the heart, to enable them, when they have occasion to dive, to forbear for a pretty while respiring under water without prejudice.—Boyle. Works, vol. iii. p. 355.

As the naturalists may thus illustrate pathology as a chymist, so may he do the like as a zoologer.
Id. Ib. vol. ii. p. 84.

Zoology is the noblest part of natural history, as it comprehends all sensitive beings, from reasonable man, through every species of animal life, till it descends to that point where sense is wholly extinct, and vegetation commences: and certainly, none will deny, that life, and voluntary motion, are superior to a mere vegetating principle, or the more inactive state of the fossil kingdom.
Pennant. British Zoology, Pref

CORRIGENDA.

VOL. I.

Abash, add—But see Abawed and Esbaied
Affie, l. 3, add, Hence Affidavit
An, conj. Transpose the Quot. from Spenser to An; the article
At, l. 2, r. ab A. S.
Benevolence, l. 2, et seq. r. It. Bene-volo, Bone-volenza: Sp. Bene-volo, Bene-volencia Cabal, transpose persons from l. 16 to l. 14, after are
Camis, l. 7. r. Hamæ
Cardinal, l. 14, insert See after Apostolick
Crock, n. d. the Quot. from Uncertaine Auc-
Croked, add—See Crock in Additions [tors
Dead, l. 1, r. Go. Ga, &c.
Delay, col. 2, l. 3, r. Fr. Delayer, Lat. Diluere,
Detain, col. 2, Exchange References to 3rd and 13th Quotations
Feeze, add—But see to Pheeze
Gallery, l. 5, insert avec une galere after galerie
Idle, 2nd Quot. from Chaucer, l. 2, after idel insert man
Idol, l. 15, transpose Book and Chapter
Incommode, l. 4, after modus r. Commodious is Incubus, transpose Explanation from last line of column
Incurve, l. 2, d. not, and l. 3, after bent insert inwards
Ing, v. 1, Terminations, Part I. Add, l. 2, And see the Additions.
Insensate, add—In Hudibras, in- in insenseless is augmentative
Interpose, c. 2, 1st Quot. from Drayton, l. 3, after s. 17, add Selden, note.
Kit, r. Krr, v. i. e. to cut, qv.
Kit, s. a small violin, contracted, &c.

VOL. II.

Land, l. 5, r. Lag-y*an*
Last. P. 1194, top of centre column. The first two quotations belong to this word
Late, d. the three last lines
Lawnd. P. Ploughman, l. 1, r. under a lynde
Lithe, 3rd Quot. from Chaucer, after folk insert make
Loam, l. 2, r. Dut. Lieren, Sw. Lara
Mass, p. 1262, col. 1, transpose Quot. from Holland's Plinie to next column, in V. Mast
Me, d. the four last lines in the first paragraph
Misuse, c. 3, Quot. from Blackstone, l. 1, for perfected read forfeited
Prow, l. 2, after Prora, insert Gr. πρωρα, and in l. 3 read πρωσσα
Puck, l. 1 and 2, d. See ante
Pump, l. 10, r. pimp
Pyre, transpose Pyromancy from l. 3 to l. 5
Recur, transpose In Fox, &c. from l. 8 to l. 11
Reminiscence, l. 9, d. "from Smith in v. Record."
Retrait, l. 3, d. of Ripe, n. Fr. Rive, &c. transpose with Quot. from Hollinshed
Rubrick, l. 5, d. Red
See, v. transpose 2nd and 3rd Quotations
Seek, l. 1, r. Sokjan
Semi. Chaucer, l. 2, r. was as a
Shin, l. 2, r. Sw. Sken, Sken—ben
Shout, l. 3, r. Schote
Shrine, l. 2, r. Schr*ein*
Simper, l. 5, r. food. Semner, perhaps, the Sin, } l. 17, d. " (and col. 2, at end of ex-Since, } planation insert ")
Sin } l. 20, for Seothan r. Seoth-than Since } l. 41, for Sithan r. Sith-than
Sir. Chaucer, l. 4, r. let be your Skin, l. 2, r. Skinn, Skinn*a*
Slip, l. 16, r. to abject
Smite. Wiclif, 2nd Quot. l. 2, d. of
Smoke, transpose l. 12 and 13
Snails. In the Quot. from Beaumont and F. Snails is a corruption of a common oath. By God's nails—'Dsnails, Snails
Squash, l. 6, r. pompion
Star, l. 14, r. Sterre
Starve. P. Plouh. l. 1, r. Christ to serue
Stellar, transpose Quot. from Shakespeare to follow Milton
Stern, n. col. 1, transpose the 4 first Quotations to Stern, adj. col. 2
Story. Quot. Bp. Hall, l. 19, r. like, of Stroy, transpose Quots. from R. Brunne and P. Ploughman before Chaucer Subfusk, l. 2, trans.) to end of line
Suet, l. 4 and 5, r. συν υαφθειον δημον
Surquedry. B. and Fletcher, l. 5, d. and by Swing, transpose Quotation from Bale to Swinge, v.
Sycophant, l. 3, after συκα insert φαιν-ειν
Tapet, p. 1896. c. 1, l. 27 from bot. r. Spenser, Mniopotmos, for Id. Muiopotmos
Tart, v. transpose Quot. from Chaucer, col. 3, to Tart, n. ante col. 2
Theomachy, Quot. from Bacon, l. 2, for our read their. For to read would. l. 3, after humours insert which Thorn, l. 3, r. Thaurnus;
Threap, transpose Somner from l. 3 to l. 2, after threapen
Tickle, p. 1933, c. 1, Drayton, l. 1, r. ear doth. l. 3, r. and nothing
Toilet, transpose Cotgrave from l. 2 to end of l. 1
Tonsils, transpose Quot. from Mason to Tonsile
Toot, c. 2. Fairefax (Id. Ib.) 2nd Quot. trans. the maid from l. 1 to end of line 2
Top, n. transpose the Quot. from Holland's Plinie, p. 1947, col. 1 to Top at the bottom of the column
Torrefy. Add to Expl.—But see Singe in Corrections
Tube. Locke, l. 4, r. contradiction
Udder, l. 1, r. May, Lucan, d. (affords)
Venture, l. 1, d. that is, or, and transpose "That which is to, &c." from l. 8 to begin l. 6
Vice, transpose Quotation from R. Brunne to Visage
Vile, c. 3, d. 8th and 9th Quotations
Unbonneted. See Bonnet, in Corrections
Undergo, transpose Quot. from Cook to the last place
Unfurnish, r. UNFURNISH*ED*. Not supplied, accoutred, provided, equipped. And see To Dis-furnish Unright. Bible, 1551, l. 2, d. an
Voluble, l. 7, after quick insert active, and l. 9, d. quick, active
Us. R. Gloucester, l. 2, r. And, that we to grete maistres,
Wag, l. 2, after WAY r. and vacillate
Week, transpose 5 and 6 Quotations
Weep, p. 2174, col. 1. Bp. Taylor, l. 5, after closet insert and make your
Whet, transpose Quotations from Hackluyt and Brende to follow Chaucer
Whistle, transpose Quotation from Surrey to follow Gardner, and read it thus—
The whistlyng ayre amonge the braunches rores;
Which all at once bow to the earth her croppes,
The stocke once smit.
Surrey, Virgilis Æneis, b. 4.
Wit, col. 3, Quot. from Locke after in matter, insert of poetry
Wlattid. See Loathe, omitted
Worth, c. 3, transpose Quots. from Milton, Locke, and Congreve, to follow Beaumont and Fletcher
Yearn, transpose Quot. from B. Jonson to Yarn
Young, col. 2, two last Quots. transpose Id. and Spenser

SUPPLEMENT.

L.

LABOUR.

Caton commendeth labourage in tyllyeng sowyng lande and settyng of trees.—The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, 1481. And see in vv. Approve, Loathe—Quotation from same.

LACERATE.

Closed within
The still-contracting circle, their brute force
Wasting in mutual rage, they perish there,
Or by each other's fury lacerate, ...
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. viii. v. 354.

LACERT, s. Fr. Lacerte. A fleshy muscle; tearmed so because it hath (as a Lizard) a long tail.

The pipes of his longes gan to swell,
And every lacert in his brest adown
Is shent with venime and corruptioun.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2755.

LACK, v. See LACHE, and compare.

God in the Gospel grevously repreveth
Alle that lakketh any lif,
And lakkes han hemselue.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6144.

What is fouler than folke wrongfully to ben praised, or by malice of the people giltlesse ben lacked?
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

* Lackyng comith more ofter by the vices and outragyousness of yong age than it comith by the vices of old age.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton.

LADY.

Agar, the hand mayden of Saray, whens comyst thow, and whithir gost thow? The which answeride, Fro the face of Saray my ladi (dominæ) I flee.—Wic. Gen. xvi. 9.

Sores are not to be anguishid with a rustic pressure; but gently stroked with a ladied hand.—Feltham. Resolves, 8.

LAINER.

And Abram answerde to hym, Y reyse myn hondis to the hiȝ Lord God, Lord of Heuene and of erthe, that fro the threde of oof (woof) til to the layner of the hose (E. V. garter, corrigiam), I schal not take of alle thingis that ben thine.—Wic. Gen. xiv. 23.

LAIR.

And for she was her fathers heir
Full well she was ycond the leir
Of mickle courtesy.—Drayton. Pastorals. Eclogue 4.

LAIT, s. d. the three first lines, and r.—From Ger. Laden, D. Læden; invitare, or rather from the Lat. Allectare, freq. of Allicere, to allure, to entice.

LAKE. Sw. Log; Sc. Loch; Ir. Lough. The general meaning—anything hollow.

Theuelich Y am hadde awey fro the loond of Hebrew, and here an ynnocent Y am sent into a laak. (L. V. prisoun, in lacum.)—Wic. Gen. xl. 15.

The sacred flowers that crown
The lakelet with their roseate beauty.
Southey. Curse of Kehama, xiii. § 6.

LAMB.

Al outward lamben semen we
Full of godenesse and of pite.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7016.

LAME.

He made lame to leap
And yaf light to blynde.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13201.

LAMINATED. See LAMELLAR.

LAMPREY. Wiclif renders the Lat. Murænula, "Golden ourenementis lijk Laumpreis."

LAND. Piers Plouhman has the Compounds—Lond, leperis-heremytes, i. e. Hermits who leap or ramble over different Lands. And Land buggeres, i. e. Land buyers.

And Judas seeȝ, and his bretheren, for yuels ben multiplied, and the oost appliede or londide at the coostis of hem (applicabant).—Wic. 1 Mac. iii. 42.

Arrived ben these Christen folk to londe
In Surrie, with a gret solempne route.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4806.

He (Perkin Warbeck) had been from his childhood such a wanderer, or, as the king called him, such a landloper, as it was extreme hard to hunt out his nest and parents.
Bacon. Henry VII.

LANGUISH.

That al hir lif han lyved Beggeris,
In langour and in defaute.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9149.

And Y, Daniel, languishide (L. V. was astonyed, langui), and was seeke by ful many days.—Wic. Dan. viii. 27.

Whanne the sunne wente doun, alle that hadden sike men with diuerse langwischingis (L. V. langours, langoribus) ledden hem to hym; and he, puttinge hondis on eche by him silf, heelid hem.—Id. Luke iv. 40.

Thus as an oxe to thy langoring death were thou drawen.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

These evils—the most important health,
That of the mind, destroy; and when the mind
They first invade, the conscious body soon
In sympathetic languishment declines.
Armstrong. Art of Health, b. iv.

LANK.

For who would not refuse
Grief's company, a dull and raw-bon'd spright
That lanks the cheeks, and pales the freshest sight,
Unbosoming the cheerful breast of all delight?
G. Fletcher. Christ's Victory and Triumph.

LANTERN. Lanthern Jaws; i. e. Jaws so lank and thin as to serve for a lantern.

Being very lucky in a pair of long lanthorn jaws, he wrung his face into such an hideous grimace, that every feature of it appeared under a different distortion.
Addison. Spectator, No. 173.

I lent him a lick in his lanthorn jaws, that will him remember, I warrant him.—Foote. Englishman in Paris, acti. sc. i.

LAP.

And if he list for to lape,
The law of kynde wolde,
That he dronke at ech dych,
Er for thurst deide.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13962.

The Lord seide to Gedeon, Thilke that with hoond, and with tonge lapen the watris, as houndis ben woned to lape (lambere), thou shalt seuere hem aside.—Wic. Judges vii. 5.

LAPWING. Wic. renders the Lat. Upupa, the Lap-wync. Lev. xi. 19.

LAQUEARY, s. Lat. Laqueus, a noose. See ILLAQUEATE.

Therein (ourselves) our inward antagonists, not only like common gladiators, with ordinary weapons and downright blows make at us, but also like retiary and laqueary combatants, with nets, frauds, and entanglements, fall upon us.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. § 24.

LARBOARD, s.

He had on his steereboord Denmark, and on his leereboord the maine sea.—Hack. Voyages. Voyage of Octher.

LARGE, v.

And the seruauntis of the kyng goon yn, blessiden to oure Lord Kyng Dauid, seiynge God more large (L. V. make large, amplificet) the name of Salomon up on thi name, and magnifie the trone of him upon thi trone.
Wic. 3 Kings i. 47.

The enhaunсing of eȝen is the larging (L. V. alarging, dilatatio) of the herte.—Id. Prov. xxi. 4.

And the Lord thi God shal make thee to be plenteuous in alle the werkis of thin hoondis, in the progeny of thi woomb, in the fruyt of thi beestis, in plenteuowste of thin erthe, and in largyte of alle thingis. (L. V. largeness, largitate.)—Id. Deut. xxx. 9.

Now wif, he said, and I foryeve it thee,
But by thy be ne no more so large,
Kepe bet my good.—Chaucer. March. Tale, v. 1336.

They slepen, til that it was prime (full prime) large.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10674.

LAS, LAAS, i. e. Lace, qv.

LAS, i. e. Less, qv.

LAST. In Chaucer, Prioresses Prologue, God giue the monk a thousand last, Mr. Tyrwhitt explains—Ever so great a weight.

Als longe as ouré lyf lasteth
Lyve we togideres.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2471.

Alle thés weren dwellinge, or lastinge togidere (L. V. lastingli continuynge, perseuerantes) in preier, with wymmen, and Marie, the moder of Jhesu, and with his britheren.
Wic. Deeds, i. 14.

And thei ben false and traitorous, and lasten noght that they behoten.—Sir John Mandeville. H. Wedgwood.

LATCHE, v. Love that he may not latche.—Gower; i. e. Catch, cannot win. Skinner says, that he cannot dismiss—Love inextinguishable.

As Ouid in his boke recordeth
How Polyphemus whilom wrought,
Whan that he Galathe besought
Of loue, whiche he maie not latche.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. ii. fo. 27; pt. ii. c. 2.

LATE.

His goyng out is maad redi at the morevetid, and he schal come as a reyn to us, which is timeful and lateful to the erthe. (E. V. late, serotinus.)
Wic. Hos. vi. 3; also James v. 7.

And sith thow (Lord) spak to thi seruaunt, Y am of a more latsum (L. V. lettid, impeditioris), and more slow tonge.—Id. Ex. iv. 10.

LATTEN.

With lavoures of latun
Loveliche y-greithed.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 389.

In life-time his picture was made in latyn, the which is still there.—Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 70.

LATTICE.

Fro the wyndow of myn hous bi the latijs (per cancellos) I bihelde.—Wic. Prov. vii. 6.

LAUD.

For not al only, thy laude precious
Parfourmed is by men of dignitee,
But by the mouth of children.
Chaucer. The Prioresses Tale, v. 13385.

LAUGH, v. Very variously written. See Bale in v. Toy.

And Sara seide, The Lord hath lawing maad to me (L. V. leiȝynge, risum), and who so euer shal here shal with lawe to me. (L. V. leiȝe with me, corridebit.)
Wic. Gen. xxi. 6.

Til thi mouth be fillid with leiȝter (risu; E. V. laȝhing), and thi lippis with hertli song.—Id. Job viii. 21.

And with that book he lough away ful fast.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prol. v. 6254.

LAUND. See LAWND.

LAUS, i. e. Loose, qv.

LAVE, v. See Quotation from Piers Plouhman in v. Latten, supra.

LAW. Used prefixed to giver, maker, &c.

It is a laweles liif
As lordynges usen.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1213.

Vp on what thing I shal smyte you, ferthermor addende lawe breche (prævaricationem), or trespassing ȝeyns the lawe.—Wic. Is. i. 5.

Ne thou hast herd, ne thou hast knowe, ne sithen opened is thin ere; I wol forsothe, for lawe breking thou shalt law breke (prævaricans prævaricabis), and a trespasere fro the wombe I clepede thee.—Id. Ib. xlviii. 8.

Lo! heȝe (is) God in his strengthe, and noon to hym lic in lawe ȝiueris. (L. V. ȝyueris of lawe, legislatoribus.)
Id. Job xxxvi. 22.

As of the secte of which that he was borne,
He kept his lay (law) to which he was y-sworne.
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10332.

Ther comen also ful many subtil flaterers and wise advocats lerned in the lawe.—Id. The Tale of Melibeus.

If he ne may not liven chast his lif,
Take him a wif with gret devotion,
Because of leful procreation
Of children.—Id. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9322.

It is a perversion of language to assign any law, as the efficient, operative, cause of any thing. A law presupposes an agent; for it is only the mode according to which an agent proceeds; it implies a power, for it is the order according to which that power acts.
Paley. Natural Philosophy, c. xxiii.

LAY, i. e. Law. See Quotation from Chaucer in v. Law, supra.

LAY.

As who so leith lynes
Fro to lacche foweles.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3183.

(Thou hath) also many craftise men, masouns, and leyers. (L. V. leggeris of stonys, cæmentarios.)
Wic. 1 Par. xxii. 15.

And thei ȝeue to heweris of stonus, and to leieris (L. V. liggeris) of stoons.—Id. 1 Esd. iii. 7.

And next was painted Covetise,
That eggeth folk in many a gise
To take and yeve right nought again,
And grete tresours up to laine.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 184.

For it (the robe) full wele
With Orfries laied was every dele.—Id. Ib. v. 1076.

I wyll the no thynge layne (i. e. conceal, Dyce) (lay hid).
Skelton. Bouge of Court, v. 311.

Clif. My soul and body on the action, both.
York. A dreadful lay.
Shakespeare. King Henry VI. Pt. II. act v. sc. 2.

Can no one judge a picture, but who is himself a layer of colours?—Shaftesbury. Miscel. 5, c. ii. v. 3, p. 279.

LEA.

And bad hym holde hym at home
And erien his leyes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4477.

Thei weren to us for a wal, both in niȝt and in dai, in alle dayes at whiche thei lesewiden flockis at hem. (E. V. feeden, pavimus.)—Wic. 1 Kings xxv. 16. And Is. xxxii. 14, Lesewe of flockis (pascua gregum).

Thy londè, that now lyeth ley,
Full well it shalt be sowe.
Chaucer. Cokes Tale of Gamelyn, v. 320.

LEAD.

And sonys that weren on the heeȝ rocke weren leeders to hem (duces).—Wic. 1 Mac. iv. 2.

And he hadde in his ledyng (L. V. felowschip, comitatu) chares and rydyng men (currus et equitem), and ther was msad the cumpanye not a little.—Id. Gen. l. 9.

He woll himself suspecious make,
That he his life let covertly
In gile and in ypocrisie.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6114.

LEAF. LEAVE, v. To bear leaves. G. Fletcher writes Leavy, usually Leafy.

(Had she) the leef torned
She sholde haue founden (these) words.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2054.

Thei bildiden it, and setten his ȝate leuis (valvas) and lockis.—Wic. 2 Esd. iii. 14.

The ground no herbs but venomous did bear,
Nor ragged trees did leavé, but every where
Dead bones and skulls were cast, and bodies hanged were.
G. Fletcher. Christ's Triumph on Earth.

Shaking at every wind their leavy spears.—Id. Ib.

LEAN.

He shal lene up on his hous (L. V. ether reste, innitetur), and it shal not stonde.—Wic. Job viii. 15.

The outer circuit (of Will Atkins basket-work tent) was covered as a lean-to, all round this inner apartment.
Defoe. Robinson Crusoe.

LEAP.

This leep or spryngynge was grete that Jhesus Cryst made fro therthe to heuene.
The Golden Legend, fo. 24, c. 2.

With a leperesse, or tumbler (L. V. daunceresse, saltatrice), be thou besy, nor here hir.—Wic. Ecclus. ix. 4.

The God of Love deliverly
Came lepande to me hastily.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1928.

Yet was he forst alwayes from laws to lope.
Gascoigne. Fruites of Warre, § 52.

LEARN.

Aftirward sothli we hadden fadris of our fleisch, lerneris (var. r. lereris, L. V. techeris, eruditores), and we with reuerence dreden hem.—Wic. Heb. xii. 9.

* LEASE, v. To glean. The common word in Sussex and Kent.

And who so helpeth me to erie
And sowen . . . .
Shal have leave . . . .
To lese here in harvest.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3928.

Ne in thi vyne ȝeerd the reysonus and cornes fallynge down thow shalt not gedere, but to pore men and pilgrimes to ben lesid thou shalt leeve. (L. V. gaderid, carpenda.)
Wic. Lev. xix. 10.

LEASING.

Tel me no tales,
Ne lesynge to laughen of.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2113.

Withouten lees,
Of my foly I me repent.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3904.

LEASOW. See LEA.

LEAVE, v.

Swich a light ayeins oure leve
Laȝar out fette.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12610.

Bettre it were to many doctours
To leven swiche techyng.—Id. Ib. v. 9749.

There is more pryvè pryde
In Prechoures hertes
Than there lefte in Lucifere,
Or he were lowe fallen.—Id. Creed, v. 745.

Preye ȝe the Lord, that the thundres of God and the hawle (hail) leeuen of (L. V. ceese, desinant), and I shall leten ȝou (delyuere), and ȝe shulen dwelle here no more.
Wic. Ex. ix. 28.

Lya felyng that she had laft for to bere children, she took to the husboond Zelpha, hir handmaydèn.
Id. Gen. xxx. 9.

Two ȝeer it ys that hungur began to be in the loond ȝit fyue ȝeers leeuen (L. V. suen, restant), in the whiche it may not be eerid, ne ropun.—Id. Ib. xlv. 6.

And so the Kyng of Sodom and of Gomor turneden backis and fellen there: and tho that laften (remanserunt) flowen to the hil.—Id. Ib. xiv. 10.

But Y wote, that the Kyng of Egipte shal not ȝyue ȝow leve that ȝegoon, but bi strong hoond. (L. V. delyuere, ne dimittet ut eatis.)—Id. Ex. iii. 19.

And thus these foules, void of all malice,
Accordeden to love, and laften vice
Of hate.—Chaucer. Legend of Good Women, Prol. v. 168.

LECHER.

A lecherous thing is wine.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12483.

LECTURE.

The seconde lesson Robin redebreste sang;
Hail to the God and Goddes of our lay!
And to the lectorn amorily he sprang,
Hail, quod he, o thou freshe seson of May.
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 1382.

LEDEN, s.

(The peacock is) unloveliche of ledene,
And looth for to heere.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7917.

LEDES, s. People, tenants, vassals. Tyrwhitt. See LAY, PEOPLE.

And all myn other purchases
Of landes and of ledes,
That I bequethe Gamelyn.
Chaucer. Coke of Gamelyn, v. 122.

LEECH, v. Goth. Leik, leikinon; A. S. Læce; Sw. Lacka; Dan. Læge. And see LICH.

(Piers) lered hym lechecraft.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11009.

Who shal lechen (L. V. do medecyn) to the enchauntere smyten of the eddere.—Wic. Eccius. xii. 13.

A feithful frend (is) lechyng (L. V. medicyn, medicamentum) of lif, and of undeathlynesse (immortalitatis).
Id. Ib. vi. 16.

LEES. See LEASH.

LEFT. In Spenser, Faerie Queene, b. i. c. viii. v. 10, "He smott off his left arme," left is opposed to right. In st. 18, "In one alone left hand," left is the right, that being the only one left.

LEGAL.

Bysshopes y-blessed,
If thei ben as thei sholde,
Legistres of bothe lawes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4191.

But amonge legystres there dare I not come, my doinge they saine maked hem nedie.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

LEGATE.

Forsothe he herd that Jewis bèn cleepid of Romayns frendis, and felawes, and bretheren, and for thei resceyuyden the legatis of Symount gloriously (legatos).
Wic. 1 Mac. xiv. 40.

In the midst of all my endeavours, there is but one thought that dejects me, that my acquired parts must perish with myself, nor can be legacied among my honoured friends.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. ii. § 3.

LEGEND, v.

Yet some of these perhaps by others are legended for great saints.—Milton. History of England, b. iii.

LEGER, ad. From Fr. Legier, léger, light, leight, &c.

It is weakness and dis-esteem of a man's self, to put a man's life upon such ledgier performances.
Bacon. Charge against Duels, fo. London, 1670.

LEGER.

I passed the narrow seas with Sir Edw. Stafford, her Majesties careful and discreet ligier.
Hackluyt. Voiages. Dedication.

LEGGE. To lay.

Hadde nevere lewede man leve
To leggen hond on that cheste.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7672.

I dare legge myne eris.—Id. Ib. v. 4338.

LEGISLATE, v.

There ought to be a difference made between coming out of pupillage, and leaping into legislatorship.
Lord Halifax (in Todd).

LEGIST. } See LEGAL.
LEGIELEIAN. }

LEGITIMATE, adj.

The Kynges sone also, which was legytyme, was more noble.—The Golden Legend, fo. 17, c. 2.

LEISURE, s.

I undertake
Grete lesir haddè she (poverty) to quake.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 462.

LEND.

For lent nevere was lif (i. e. life never was given),
But liflode were shapen,
Wher-of or wher-fore
Or wher-by to libbe.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8983.

LENGTH.

I wolde have lengthed his lif.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12683.

His lord wel coudè he plesen, subtilly
To yeve and lene him of his owen good,
And have a thank.—Chaucer. Prologue. The Reve.

LENT. Lenten shute (suit). Clothes suited to the season of Lent.

Who can read
In thy pale face, dead eye, and lenten shute,
The liberty thy ever giving hand
Hath bought for others?—Beaumont and Fletcher. The Honest Man's Fortune, act iv. sc. 1.

LEOD. } See LAD.
LEOS, s. }

Ac so soone so the Samaritan
Hadde sighte of this leode,
He lighte a-doun of Lyard.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11497.

For leos, peple in English is to say.
Chaucer. The Seconde Nonnes Tale, v. 15574.

LEOPARD.

And the beest whom I siȝe was lijk to a parde, or a lipard (pardo).—Wic. Apoc. xiii. 2.

LERE.

He (the Lord) dryed (the Reed Sea) to the tyme that we weren ouerpassed, that alle the puple of loondis miȝt leeren (L. V. lurne, discant) the moost strong hoond of the Lord.—Wic. Josh. iv. 25.

To gidre spryuge in reyn my loore. (L. V. teckyng, concrescat ut pluvia doctrina mea.)—Id. Deut. xxxii. 2.

LESEWE. See LEA.

LESS. Term most usually applied to subs.; sometimes to verbs: as, Dauntless, fadeless, quenchless. See Ihre, in v. Los.

And the mesure of tyles that thei before maden ȝe shulen put upon hem, and ȝe shulen not lassen eny thing. (L. V. abate, minuetis.)—Wic. Ex. v. 8.

And the beestis of hem he lasside not. (L. V. made not lesse, non minoravit.)—Id. Ps. cvi. 38.

Ther is lassing (L. V. makyng lesse, minoratio), and ther is, that fro meenesse shal rere the hed.
Id. Ecclus. xx. 11.

And in the gettyng he hath suche wo,
And in the kepyng drede also,
And sette evermore his besinesse
For to encrese, and not to lesse.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5598.

So spake domestick Adam in his care
And matrimonial love; but Eve, who thought
Less attributed to her faith sincere (i. e. too little),
Thus her reply with accent sweet renewed.
Milton. Par. L. b. ix. v. 320.

A magnitude is greater than a magnitude, when a part of that is equal, or the same, with the whole of this; lesser, when the whole of that is equal, or the same, with part of this.—Barrow. Mathematical Lectures, lec. xiii. p. 234.

LEST. See LIST.

LET.

(The fader) loked on us with love,
And leet his sone dye
Mekely for our misdeedes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 792.

Preye ȝe the Lord, that he do awey frogges fro me, and fro my puple; and Y shal lat the puple (delyuere, dimittam) that thei sacrifye to the Lord.
Wic. Ex. viii. 8; also 29.

Eftsones he lete out of the arke a culver (dimisit).
Id. Gen. viii. 10.

Therfor sche let hem doun (demisit) fro the wyndow bi a corde.—Id. Josh. ii. 15.

Now lette (leave) we this mayden here.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 182^{2}.

LET, v.

I may no lenger lette, quod he,
And lyard he prikede.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12067.

It is do forsothe, that the puple of the lond shulde lette (impediret) the hondis of the puple of Jude, and disturben hem in bilding.—Wic. 1 Esd. iv. 4.

He woke, and told his felaw what he met,
And praied him his viage for to let,
As for that day, he prayd him for to abide.
Chaucer. The Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15090.

And in she goth withouten longer lette,
And to the markis she her fader fette.
Id. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8176.

LETHARGY.

He so doats, as she had dropt
Some philtre in the cup, to lethargize
The British blood that came from Owen's veins.
Southey. Madoc. pt. i. § i.

LETHE.

A ful lethi thyng it were,
If that love nere (were not).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5979.

So oft falleth the lethy water on the hard rock till it haue through pearsed.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. iii.

An. Pardon me, Julius, heere was't thou bay'd, braue Hart,
Heere didst thou fall, heere thy Hunters stand
Sign'd in thy spoyle, and crimson'd in thy lethee.
Shakespeare. Julius Cæsar, act iii. sc. 1.

The proudest nation that great Asia nurs'd
Is now extinct in lethe.
Heywood. Iron Age, pt. ii. (1632.)

LEVANT. Faire voile en Levant. To sail eastward. To be stolen, filched or purloined away. Cot. From Fr. lever, to lift, qv.; and Shop-lift. A cant term on the race-course.

Levant me, but he got enough last night to purchase a principality.—Foote. The Minor, act i.

LEVE.

Leve thou in oure Louerd God,
That al the world wrought.
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1585.

Thes thingis herd, and the Lord to mych leueful (L. V. bileuyde over myche, nimium credulus), to the wordis of the wijf was ful wrothe.—Wic. Gen. xxxix. 9.

Thanne whether leuable (L. V. leueful, credibile) it be that the Lord dwelle with men on erthe.—Id. 2 Par. vi. 18.

LEVEFUL. See LIEF.

LEVEN.

Who can reherce bright as sonne or leuene,
So ofte sent doun to the fro heuene.
Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, b. 6, c. 1.

LEVIATHAN.

Whether thou maist drawen out Leuyethan with a hoc, and with a corde shalt thou binde his tongue.
Wic. Job xl. 20.

Darest thou drawe out Leuyathan with an angle or bind his tonge with a snare.—Bible, 1549.

LEVY. Light, &c.

Your Grace shall have but a leyve wey to Parys.
Wolsey. State Papers, i. 45.

Syr Thomas Wage caused Syr Hewe Spēcer to be fast bouñ on ye best and leuiest hors of al ye host.
Berners' Froissart, v. i. ch. 12.

LEWD.

And so it bifelle, that Antiochus aftir the flijt loodly (L. V. viliche, turpiter) turned again.—Wic. 2 Mac. ix. 2.

LEY. See LEA.

LEYE (Light). See FOSTER, Piers Plouhman, supra.

LIABLE, LIABILITY. Is a modern word in daily use. It was introduced into Johnson by Todd, without example; nor is there any in the Dictionary. There is now (July 1855) a Bill before the House of Commons "On Limited Liabilities."

LIBAMENT.

And thei puttiden there the odour of swetnesse, and sacrifieden her libaciouns (that ben of fletyng things as wiyn, oyle, and siche). (L. V. offriden her moiste sacrifices, libaverunt libationes.—Wic. Ex. xx. 26.

She toucht his eyelashes with libant lip
And breath'd ambrosial odours, o'er his cheek
Celestial warmth diffusing.—W. S. Landor. Gebir.

LIBIDINOUS.

We rede of Sardanapalus, that for his iecherye and libidinosite fell into Hell.
Skelton. 3 Fooles. Voluptuousness.

LICH.

Thanne had wit a wif
Was hote Dame Studie,
That lene was of lere
And of liche bothe.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5599.

Ne how the liche wake was yhold
All thilke night.—Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2960.

LICK.

(Thei) coveiten noght
For no likerous lif-lode
Hire likame to plese.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 59.

LICTOR.

And whanne the day was maad, the magistratis senten littouris that ben mynistris of ponysching.
Wic. Deeds, xvi. 35.

LID.

Her lidless Dragon eyes.
Coleridge. Ode on the Departing Year, § viii.

LIE, v.

And for thi lesynge, Lucifer,
That thow leighe til eve
Thow shalt abyen it bittre.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12898.

ȝe maden leiȝyngli the herte of the iust man for to mourne. (L. V. falsli, mendaciter.)—Wic. Ez. xiii. 22.

And thei profecien in my name liendly. (L. V. falsli.)
Id. Jer. xxvii. 15.

LIE.

And hope the hostilers man shal be,
There the man lith an helyng.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11599.

How long he hath lien in sinne.
Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

LIEF.

Lest peraventure God forȝete thee in the siȝte of hem, and thurȝ thi bisynesse gretli maad foul repref thou suffre, and haddest leuere not to be born (maluisses), and the dai of thi birthe thou curse.—Wic. Ecclus. xxiii. 19.

Lo! he (Abram) seith, thin hond-maydyn is in thin hond; use hir as it is leueful. (L. V. it likith, libet.)
Id. Gen. xvi. 6.

Though I use terms of art, do not injure me so much, as to suspect I am a lawyer; I had as lief be a Scotchman.
Junius, i. 312. Woodfall's Edition.

LIEU.

That is lieutenant to loken it wel, &c.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10889.

LIGHT, v. ALIGHT, v.

(The Samaritan) lighte adown of lyard.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11498.

How much would that man exceed all others in knowledge, who had but the faculty so to alter the structure of his eyes,—that one sense,—as to make it capable of all the several degrees of vision, which the assistance of glasses (casually at first lit on) has taught us to conceive.
Locke. Essays, b. ii. c. xxiii. § 13.

LIGHT.

Wasshe yow wel therinne
And ȝe shal lepe the lightloker
Al your lif tyme.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3644.

And eftsone I seie to ȝou, it is liȝter or eysier, a camel for to passe thorwȝ a nedelis eiȝe, than a riche man to enter into the kyngdam of Heuenes.—Wic. Matt. xix. 24.

And thurȝ liȝthed (L. V. liȝtnesse, facilitate) of her fornycacioun defoulede the lond.—Id. Jer. iii. 9.

Forsoth whanne I wolde this thing, wher I uside liȝtnesse? (L. V. unstidfastnesse, numquid levitate usus sum?)
Id. 2 Cor. i. 17.

It is light (easy) to knowe.
Chaucer. Assemble of Foules, v. 553.

Whiche (Venus), I praie, alwaie saven us,
And us aie of our sorowes light.
Id. House of Fame, b. i. v. 467.

LIGHT. Written leite (See THUNDER), and leyte, by Chaucer.

A white wall although it ne brenne not fully with sticking of a candle, yet is the wall black of the leyte.
Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

LIGHT. For LIGHTER, one who lights or enlightens, see the Quotation from The Golden Legend in v. Illumine.

And the Lord gaf thundres, and hawle, and dyuersly ronnyng leytis (fulgura) upon the erthe.—Wic. Ex. ix. 23.

Y shal keuere the sunne with cloude, and the mone shall not ȝyue his liȝt. Y shall make alle liȝtmakers (L. V. liȝt qiueris, luminaria) of heuen for to mowrne upon thee, and Y shal gyue derenessis upon thi loond, seith the Lord God.—Id. Ez. xxxii. 8.

And he ladde hem thennes in the cloude of the day, and al nyȝt in the liȝtnyng (illuminatione) of fyr.
Id. Ps. lxxvii. 14.

By thi riȝthond, and thin arm, and the liȝting (L. V. liȝtnyng) of thi chere, for holli thou toke plesure in hem.
Id. Ps. xliii. 4.

A pore man and a creansour, metten togidere: of ether the liȝtnere (illuminator) is the Lord.—Id. Prov. xxix. 13.

The riȝtwisenesse of the Lord (is) euene (rectæ), gladende hertis; The heste of the Lord (is) liȝtsum, liȝtende eȝen.
Id. Ps. xviii. 9.

LIGHTNING, s. See the Quotation from Wic. in v. Inlight, Illumination.

LIKE.

And as ȝe wolen that men doen to ȝow, and do to hem in lyk manere (similiter).—Wic. Luke vi. 32.

For if ony mon is herer of the word, and not doer, this shal be comparsound or likned (comparabitur), to a man biholdinge the cheere of his birthe in a myrrour; sotheli he biheld him selfe, and wente, and anoon he forgat what maner he was.—Id. James i. 23.

Forsothe he seid also to hem a liknesse (similitudinem).
Id. Luke v. 36.

For ellis it wole as likyngli be applied to falsnesse as to treuthe: and it hath disseyued grete men in oure daies, bi ouer greet trist to her fantasies.—Id. Is. Prol. p. 226.

For to his lordship none is liche.
Chaucer. The Plowman's Tale, v. 3048.

Thou likenest it (woman's love) also to wild fire,
The more it brenneth, the more it hath desire
To consume every thing, that brent will be.
Id. Wif. of Bathes Prol. v. 5955.

In grace
She stode alway with poor and riche,
That at a word was none her liche.
Id. Dreme and Squieres Tale, v. 10375, 6.

LIKE, v. It liketh me, i. e. it pleaseth me. See Wiclif, in v. Lief, leueful.

Madame Mercy, quod I,
Me liketh wel youre wordes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 546.

And a ryuer ȝede out fro the place of likyng to moyste Paradis. (E. V. of delice, voluptatis.)—Wic. Gen. ii. 10.

And if you liketh alle by on assent
Now for to stonden at my jugement . . .
But ye be mery,—smiteth of my hed.
Chaucer. The Prol. v. 779.

I wot no Lady so liking—(pleasing).
Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 868.

Your liking is that I shal telle a tale.
Id. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12389.

And or (ere) I came to his Court I had been in many courts of kynges, dukes, princes, erles, and great ladyes, but I never was in none that so well liked me.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 72.

LIMB.

And the skin of the oost (being) drawun of, the greet lemes (L. V. membres, artus) thei shulen kit in gobetis.
Wic. Lev. i. 6.

All heart they live, all head, all eye, all ear,
All intellect, all sense; and as they please,
They limb themselves, and colour, shape, or size
Assume as likes them best, condense or rare.
Milton. Par. L. b. vi. v. 350.

LIME.

For leccherie in likynge
Is lyme-yerd of helle (lime-twig).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5538.

For love began his fethers so to lime.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, i. 353.

Yon limeless sands, loose driving with the wind,
In future cauldrons useful texture find,
Till, on the furnace thrown, the glowing mass
Brightens, and brightening hardens into glass.
Savage. Wanderer, canto i.

LIN.

Thes yongè meinè hyeder (hied, hasted) hem,
Fast wolde they not lynne
Tyll that they comen to the gate,
There Gamelyn was inne.
Chaucer. Coke of Gamelyn, v. 1113.

LINE.

(The clergy were) intent upon all occasions not to feed their flock, but to pamper and well line themselves.
Milton. History of England, b. iii.

LINE.

. . . Lif that ay shal laste
To al his linage-after.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5249.

By lynyal cours descendyng as a steyre.
Lyfe of our Ladye, g. 7, c. 1.

And of this lorde disended Tydeus
By ligne, or elles oldè bokes lie.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 1481.

All the pictures fairest lin'd
Are but black to Rosalind.
Shakespeare. As You Like It, act iii. sc. 2.

LING. Dele, line 13, from "In A. S. &" to line 22, "portion"—And read—.

It always denotes long-ing or pertaining; and from being applied to progeny or offspring, has the force of a diminutive,—used to designate the added circumstance of pertaining or belonging, of being connected with or dependent upon, derived or deduced from.

And dele in last line—"Also, &c."

LINK, s.

Some podynges and lynkes.—Skelton. El. Rum. v. 443.

LION.

This Arcite, tho, with full dispitous heart,
As fers as leon pulled out a swerd.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1600.

(He) beheld the boy divine his growing strength
Against some shaggy lionet assay.
Southey. Don Roderick, § xvi.

Like the young lionet
When first he bathes his murderous jaws in blood.
Id. Joan of Arc, b. x. v. 382.

LIP.

Sergeantȝ . . . noght for love of our Lord
Unlose hire lippes ones.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 425.

Forsothe the erthe was of oo lip and of the same wordis. (L. V. langage, labii.)—Wic. Gen. xi. 1.

LIQUID. Before lines 15 and 16, read—

To Liquidate—Low Lat. and It. Liquidare, Fr. Liquider, Sp. Liquidar. We owe this word (Du Cange) to the Italians;—who were our teachers in keeping mercantile accounts. Generally—

To make clear or manifest—sc. any thing doubtful or difficult; e. g. an account—to ascertain its correct amount; and further, to clear it off, to discharge, to settle. And liquidated damages, are damages whose amount is ascertained.

LIQUOR. Wiclif renders Libatio and Libamen, sacrifice of Licour. M. V. drink offering.

LISS, i. e. Bliss.

That is the grete God
That gynnyng had nevere,
Lord of lif and of light,
Of liss and of peine.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5211.

LIST, v.

The fader was first as a fust (fist),
With o fynger foldynge;
Till hym lovede and liste
To unlosen hir fynger.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11646.

As a brid to heȝe thingus ouerfleende, and a sparewe whider him liste (quo libet) goende.—Wic. Prov. xxvi. 2.

Dido, and hire nicè lest (foolish passion),
That loved all to sone a gest.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. i. v. 287.

LISTEN.

And in thir (the Planets) motions harmonie divine
So smooths her charming tones, that Gods own ear
Listens delighted.—Milton. Par. L. b. 5, v. 627.

LITE, i. e. Little.

Werkmen were agast a lite.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8569.

LITERAL.

These prejudices when they do prevail are certain utterly to destroy the higher and more valuable parts of this literate and liberal profession.—Sir J. Reynolds. Disc. vi.

LITH.

Thre leodes in oon lyth,
Thre persons in one body.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11170.

LITIGATE.

Amoneste hem for to be not litygious (litigiosos), or ful of chiding.—Wic. Tit. iii. 2.

LITTER.

And thei shul bringen alle ȝoure brethren a free ȝift fro alle ȝentilis to the Lord, in hors, and in foure horsid carres, and in literes (lecticis).—Wic. Is. xlvi. 20.

LITTLE.

To lere hem lithum and litlum,
To teach them by little and little.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10786.

A litil and thanne ye schulen not se, and eftsoone a litil (modicum) and ye schulen se me, for I go to the fadir.
Wic. John xvi. 17.

LIVE, v. Written Libbe by Robert of Gloucester and Piers Plouhman.

For lent nevere was lif,
But lyflode were shapen,
Wher-of or wher-fore
Or wher-by to libbe.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8936.

Lyveris to forn us
Useden to marke.—Id. Ib. v. 7683.

Ac who seith religiouses
Rightfulle men sholde fede,
And lawefulle men to lif-holy men
Lyflode sholde bryngе.—Id. v. 1027-8.

ȝe weren in that tyme withouten Crist, alyened, or maad straunge fro the lyuynge of Israel (à conversatione.)
Wic. Eph. ii. 12.

Alle these of thing that was plenteous to hem casten in to the giftis of God, but this widewe, of that thing that failid (ex defectu) to hir caste al hir lyflode (victum) that sche hadde.—Id. Luke xxi. 4.

Joseph forsothe heryng that lyuelodes (L. V. foodis, alimenta) weren solde in Egipte, seide to his sones, Whi ben ȝe negligent?—Id. Gen. xlii. 1, and iv. 7, victus.

But and the edder was feller than ony lifers of the erthe. (L. V. lyuynge beestis, animantes.)—Id. Gen. iii. 1.

For thou hast deliuered my soule fro deth and my feet fro sliding; that I plese befor God in the liȝt of liueres. (L. V. hem that lyue, viventium.)—Id. Ps. lv. 13.

And here againes (God's will) no creature on live
Of no degre availeth for to strive.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 3041.

(I) al so fully hire servand
As creature or man livand
May be to lady or princesse.—Id. Dreame, v. 1636.

LIVE, v. Life-guards, i. e. Leib-guards, or Body-guards. Ger. Leib-garde. Mr. Trench produces the following early usage.

The Cherethites were a kind of lifegard to King David.
Fuller. Pisgah. Light of Palestine, p. 217. (1650.)

LIVER, v. Is a various reading of Deliver. Joshua xxiv. 10, liberare.

LIZARD.

Thus y-lik a lusard,
With a lady visage,
Thefliche thow me robbedest.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12753.

A lacert, that is, a serpent that is clepid a lisard.
Wic. Lev. xi. 30.

LOATHE, v. The A. S. Lath-ian, is also written wlættan (see in Somner); and Wlate, wlating, &c. are common in Wiclif. And see Chaucer in Dictionary, and infra. Luther in Robert of Gloucester and in Piers Plouhman. Lutherhed and Lutherness in Robert of Gloucester seem to be equivalent to the more modern forms, Loathy, Loathness, and (inus.) Loatherhead.

To Loath in Abp. Parker is,—To cause to loathe, to give a dislike. They "loth men from reading by their covert slanderous reproaches of the Scriptures."—Pref. unto the Byble.

(We) hauith avoyded opyn curiouste, leste we schulde be seid, not to schewe God as wel to men willinge, as to profite to men aloothing. (L. V. hem that wlaten.)
Wic. Prol. to Luke. So in Prol. to Deedis.

Who seith to the vnpitous (impio), thou art riȝtwis, pupples shal cursen to hym, and lynages shal wlaten hym. (L. V. hold hym abhomynable, detestabuntur.)—Id. Prov. xxiv. 24.

Ete til it go out bi ȝoure nosethirlis, and turn into wlatyng. (E. V. foaming, nauseam.)—Id. Num. xi. 20.

And al Yrael braken thi lawe, and bowiden awey, that thei herden not thi voice; and cursse droppide on us, and wlatyngnesse. (L. V. wlatyng, detestatio.)—Id. Dan. ix. 11.

Thei schal be abhominable and wlatsum to ȝou. (E. V. cursid, execrandum.)—Id. Lev. xi. 11.

To worship God, men would wlate
Both on euen, and on morowe.
Chaucer. The Plowman's Tale, v. 3039.

Thou art so lothly, and so olde also,
And therto comen of so low a kind.
Id. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6682.

I demaunde (of you) if the olde age of such as delited them in the labourage of londes semith unto you to be wretched or lothful.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton.

How much more unadvisedly do such as boast themselfe to be either Christ's vicars or be of his Garde—to loth men from reading—by their covert slanderous reproaches of the Scriptures.—Abp. Parker. Pref. into the Byble.

LOCK.

Date, et dabitur vobis,
That is the lok of love,
And leteth out my grace.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 864.

For the hope of the unpitous is a wlle (wool), loke, or thistildoun. (L. V. flour of a brere, lanugo.) Wic. Wis. v. 15.

LODE.

For they were cleen in dispeyr, because they might not se
The loder wherby these shipmen hir cours took echone.
Chaucer. The Merchantes Second Tale, v. 837.

LODGE.

The house (Dennison's) is old-fashioned and irregular, but lodgeable and commodious.
Humphrey Clinker. Melford to Phillips.

LOFT.

And maken it . . .
Bothe as long and as large,
Bi lofte and bi grounde.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12164.

LOITER.

I sey not, to take and to geder to hom (them) and to other loyterers, and to bere awey hom the godes of the pore peple.—Wic. Bib. Quot. in Ed. Pref.

LOMB, i. e. Lamb, qv.

LOND, i. e. Land, qv.

LONE, i. e. Loan, qv.

LONG, v. BELONG.

(Thei) arn porters of the posternes,
That to the place longeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3747

It muste ben a rhetor excellent
That coude his colours longing for that art,
If he shuld hire descriven on part.
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10353.

And when they that longed unto hym hearde it, they went out to holde him.—Bible, 1549. Mark iii. 21.

LONG.

And there we lengeden ful long (i. e. prolonged our stay, dwelt).—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 617.

I may no longer lenge thee with.—Id. Vision, v. 878.

Thou longedest awei fro me (L. V. madist fer, elongasti) frend and neȝhebore.—Wic. Ps. lxxxvii. 19.

Thou forsothe, Lord, ne awei longe thou thin helpe fro me. Id. Ps. xxi. 20.

Som sayd, it was long on the fire-making.
Chaucer. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16390.

LOOK, v. In Robert of Gloucester, to look into, to examine, find out, adjudge. In Piers Plouhman, to overlook, oversee. See AWARD.

Rigt and lawe to loke.—Robert of Gloucester, p. 568.

The loking of this twelfe of the stat of the londe.
Id. Ib.

It bifel as his fader seide,
In Pharaoh's time
Joseph was Justice
Egipte to loke.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4826.

Brother Saule, Loke us (ανασθεφον).
Bible, 1549. Actes xxii.

We will make you our kynge, loke thereon who will.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 141.

LOOM.

Now newe kyn cometh fre, from on hiȝ, fro heuenli leumes. (Jam nova progenies cœlo demittitur alto.)
Wic. Bible, Pref. Ep. p. 67, col. ii.

LOORD.

Ye, Lurdanes, han y lost..
Piers Ploghman's Vision, v. 12278.

He thought it was great pitee
To see so lustie one as she
Be coupled with so lourd a wight.
Gower. Conf. Am. l. 5, fo. 87².

LOOS.

What maner wise, the King passeth not befor, that thus is losid? (Diffamatur, in a good sense.)
Wic. 3 Esd. iv. 12.

This favour did he to hir loses.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 598.

LOOSE, v. ad. Loose is also written Lewse, Louse, &c. See Lewse in Junius, and Loose in Skinner.

Go. Laus-jan; A. S. Lysan, leosan; D. Lossen, Ver-lossen; Ger. Losen, Ver-losen; Sw. Losa, and its frequentative (Ihre) Lossa; Dan. Loser; solvere, liberari, solvere nexum et vinculum, dimittere.

When I had alle this folke beholde,
And found me loce and not yholde, . . .
I gan forthe romen.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 196.

LORD.

For the Lord oure God he is God of Goddis, and Lord of Lordyngis (Dominus dominantium).—Wic. Deut. x. 17.

Yrael forsothe strongly shal doo, of Jacob shal be that lordship and leese the relykes of the cytee (dominetur et perdat).—Id. Num. xxiv. 19.

(Moyses) seith, Lordshiper (Dominator), Lord God, mercyable, and goodliche, and pacient, and of myche mercye.
Id. Ex. xxxiv. 6.

Thi reume (is) reume of alle worldis, and thi Lordshiping (is) in alle ieneracioun and in to ieneracioun.
Id. Ps. cxliv. 13.

LORE. A lesson. See LERE and LEER.

Which ought for to ben a lore
For euery man, that liueth here,
To reulen hym in this matere.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. 5, fo. 87³.

LORE.

When Beryn saw the house ler, that ful was thertofore,
Of riche merchaundise, Alas! thought he, I am lore,
I am, in this world.
Chaucer. The Second Merchantes Tale, v. 1219.

LOS. See LOOS.

LOSE, v. Go. Liusan; A. S. Losian, for-leosan, for-lysan; D. Liesen, Verliesen; Ger. Lieren, Verlieren; (aut. liesen, ver-liesen;) Sw. Forlisa; Dan. For-liser, perdere, perire, amittere. The Goth. Laus-jan, to loose, and Liusan, to lose, are the same word, differently applied, and in every application, they and their progenys always signify, separation, either intended or casual, whether by unbinding, dispossessing, or other means.

The sonne for sorwe therof
Lees light of a tyme,
About myd-day whan moost light is.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 3479.

Heuen and erthe shuln be witnessis on us that uniustly ȝe leesen us (perditis).—Wic. 1 Mac. ii. 37.

And he sente a paddok (frog), and it loste hem. (E. V. destroȝede, disperdidit.)—Id. Ps. lxxvii. 45.

And sodeynly he felle (Antiochus) yn on the citee, and smote it with grete wound and lost miche peple of Yrael.
Id. 1 Mac. i. 32.

The kynge a stronge poyson hym dight . . .
And bad hym go
Streight unto Tyre, and for no coste
Ne spare, 'till he had lost
The prynce, which he would spille.
Gower. Conf. Am. l. 8, fo. 176³.

LOSEL. See LOREL.

LOSENGE.

In lecherie and losengerie
Ye lyven.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 4082.

LOTEBY. Skinner says, Companion, or love: Mr. Tyrwhitt—the concubines of priests were so called.

She (Mede) preestes maynteneth,
To have lemmans and lotebies
Alle hire lif daies.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 1659.

And with me followeth my loteby
To don me solace and company.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6342.

LOUR. LOWER, v.

And the Lorde loked vnto Abel and to his offering; but vnto Cain and vnto his offeringe, loked he not. And Cain was wroth exceedingly and loured. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou angry, and why loureste thou?
Tyndale. Bible, 1534, Gen. iv.

LOUSE.

A lous couthe
Han lopen the bettre.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 2867.

Ful of lys crepyng.—Id. Ib. v. 2866.

A lousy hat aboue.—Id. Ib. v. 2862.

LOVE.

Nyl thou worschipe an alien God; the Lord—a gelous louyere is his Name (Dominus ȝelotes): God is a feruent louyere (æmulator).—Wic. Ex. xxxiv. 14.

The Lord hateth al cursing (L. V. cursidnesse) of errour, and it shal not ben looueful (L. V. amyable, amabile) to men drędende hym.—Id. Ecclus. xv. 13.

Forsothe she was ful semeli, and with untrouable (incredible) fairnesse, and to the eȝen of all men gracious and loouesum was seen (amabilis videbatur).—Id. Esth. ii. 15.

LOW, v. } Also—to low or lower; to bend, to LOWT, v. } bow (in obeisance, worship).

Loweth is used in Bible, 1549, Rom. viii. as a substantive.

And lordes sones lowly
To the losels aloute.—Piers Ploughman's Crede, v. 1494.

I shal brynge hem out to ȝow, that ȝe lowen hem (L. V. make lowe, humilietis) and ȝoure lust ȝe fulfil.
Wic. Judges xix. 24.

(I wenede) ȝoure hondfullis stonden al about to loute myn hondful. (L. V. worschipiden, adorare.)
Id. Gen. xxxvii. 7; also ix. 10, et aliter.

Sixty cubites long, and seven in brede;
To which image, bothe yonge and old
Commanded he to loute.
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14468.

Neither heyght, neither loweth (M. V. depth), neither any other creature shall be able to depart us from the loue of God.—Bible, 1549. Rom. viii.

LOW. See LEW.

LOW, v.

Loude outher stille.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 5380.

Therfor lo! dayes comen, seith the Lord, and Y shal visite up on the gravun thingus of Babiloyne, and in al his lond loowen (mugiet) shal the woundid.—Wic. Jer. li. 52.

For heeld out ȝee ben (effusi estis) as calues upon gres (grass), and ȝee loweden (mugistis) as boolis.—Id. Ib. l. 11.

LOW-BELL, s. A (low sounding) bell used in bird-catching, which makes the birds lie close, so that they dare not stir while the net is pitching; then by the lighting of a fire they are driven into the net. See in Nares, Gentleman's Recreation, Fowling, p. 39.

Now commonly he who desires to be a minister, looks not at the work but at the wages; and by that lure or low-bell, may be toll'd from parish to parish all the town over.
Milton. Hirelings out, &c. Works, v. i. fo. 579.

To be thus lowbelled with panick frights, to be thus tremblingly dismayed where there is no place of fear, is a mighty disproportion of men's faculties.
Hammond, iv. 579, in Todd.

The fowler's low-bell robs the lark of sleep.
Dr. King. Art of Love, pt. i. v. 47.

LOWE, v. Tyrwhitt interprets this word in Chaucer—To praise; to allow, to approve. (Fr. Loüer, to laud, to praise. Cot. See LAUD and LOS.) Wiclif renders the Lat. Accepit, "he loowede hem." The Later Version reads, "He took," and a various reading is "Alouwid."

As gold in furneis he prouede hem, and as bred sacrifice of ost he loowede them.—Wic. Wisdom iii. 6.

A foles worde is nought to trowe,
Ne worthe an apple for to lowe.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 4532.

But ye shall lowe my good wyll and take such as ther is,
And of yeur gentil pacions suffer that is amyss.
Id. The Merchantes Second Tale, v. 920.

LUBRIC.

As if wantonness and lubricity were essential to that sort of poem, which ought to be avoided in it.
Dryden. Preface to Juvenal.

O wretched we! why were we hurry'd down
This lubrique and adulterate age.
Id. Ode. Ann Killigrew.

LUCENT.

O Pulchrior, sole in beautie, and full yhucident.
Chaucer. The Nine Ladies Worthie, v. 22.

This is just as if one should say, that there is indeed a brightness or lucidity in the sun, but yet notwithstanding the light which is in the air is not derived from that light which is in the body of the sun, but springs immediately out of the power of the dark air.
Cudworth. Mor. b. iv. c. iv. § 13.

Thy (Night's) power the Pixies own,
When round thy raven brow
Heav'ns lucent roses glow.
Coleridge. Song to the Pixies, § vii.

LUG. A Lug of ground. Spenser.

That ample pit yet far renownd
For the large leape which Debon did compell
Couton to make, being eight lugs of grownd.
Spenser. Faerie Quecne, b. ii. c. 10, § 11.

LUKEWARM.

(We are) offended at the falshood and perfidiousness of certain faithless men, and at the lukewarmth and indifference of others.—The Freeholder, No. 8.

LUNGS.

A maner man bente a boowe, and bi hap he smoot the Kyng of Irael betwixe the lunge and the stomak (pulmonem).—Wic. 3 Kings xxxii. 34.

LURCH, v. } To devour or eat greedily.
LURCHER. } Lurcher, A gulligut, a devourer of his own substance; Baret, who derives from Lat. Lurcor, v. Lurco. So also Minsheu. See Voss.

We have also Lurch, a game at dice. Fr. Ourche, L'Ourche. See Men.

Lurcher, a dog used by poachers, that lurks in watch for game.

To Lurch, as a ship, when she rolls and lowers on one side.

But and (also) of Gaddi ouerflowen (fledden) to Danid whanne he lurkide in desert (L. V. was hid, lateret) most stronge men, and best fiȝters, holdyng target and spere.
Wic. 1 Paralipomenon xii. 8.

Too farre off from great cities, which may hinder businesse; or too near them, which lurcheth all provisions and maketh every thing deare (victui necessaria absorbet).
Bacon. Essay on Building.

Loud. Lurch me at four, but I was mark'd at the top of your trick by the Baron, my dear.
Foote. The Minor, act i.

LUST, s. Though now used in a bad sense only, was formerly used in a good.

I am not so lustsum (wilful?) and dul, that I shulde bihote thes thingis me to know, but, &c.
Wic. Bible, Preface, p. 73.

Knowe God thy father, and serue hym with a pure herte, and lust of soule (M. V. willing mind).
Bible, 1549. 1 Chron. xxviii. 9.

LUTE.

Truthe trumpede tho'
And song Te Deum laudamus;
And thanne lutede
In a loud note.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 12944.

LUX, s. } Fr. Luxe, excess, riot, super-
LUXIVE, adj. } fluity. Cot. See LUXURY.

These (letters) often bath'd she in her luxive eyes,
And often kiss'd, and often 'gan to tear.
Shakespeare. A Lover's Complaint.

I commun'd thus; the power of wealth I try'd,
And all the various luxe of costly pride;
Artists and plans reliev'd my solemn hours;
I founded palaces and planted bowers.
Prior. Solomon, b. ii.

Then if a chief perform'd a patriot's part,
Sustain'd her drooping sons, repell'd her foes,
Above all Persian luxe, or Attic art,
The rude majestic monument arose.
Shenstone. Elegy xxi

LUXURY.

O foule lust of luxurie! lo thin ende,
Nat only that thou faintest mannes mind,
But verally thou welt his body shende.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5345.

LYRE.

They must have our lyricisms at their finger's end.
Gray to Mason, August, 1760.

M.

MACE.

Maires and maceres,
That menes ben bitwene
The kyng and the comune,
To kepe the lawes.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 1508.

MACERATE.

The rain of a few weeks, to drench and macerate the sheaves that lie piled together on the harvest field, were enough to destroy the food of millions.
Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. i. c. 7.

MACKINGS. Mankins? as Ladykin, Laken, qv.

Moody. By the mackings, I thought there was no good in it.—Dryden. Sir Martin Mar-all, act iv. sc. 1.

MAGIC.

It was from this time (" the slaughter of the Magians") that they first had the name of Magians, which signifying the Cropt-ear'd, it was then given unto them by way of nick-name and contempt, because of this impostor (" Smerdis"), who was thus crop'd.
Prideaux. Connections, pt. i. b. iv. p. 249.

MAID.

The britheren of hir and the modir answeryden, The mayde child at the leest dwelle ten dayes anentis us, and aftirward sche shal go. (L. V. damesele, puella.) — Wic. Gen. li. 54; maydyn child, v. 57.

Beholde, Goddesse of clene Chastite!
The bittere teres that on my chekes fall,
Sin thou art mayde, and keper of us all,
My maydenhode thou kepe and wel conserve:
And while I live, a mayde I wol thee serve.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, vv. 2330, 1, 2.

MAIL, v. See Piers Plouhman in v. Rifle.

And he (Goliath) was clothid with an haburion hokid, ethir mailid (squamata).—Wic. 1 Kings xvii. 5.

MAIM.

That is, whanne the seruaunt is soujt of his Lord to be slayn, ether to be meymed, &c.
Wic. Deut. xxiii. 15, note g.

MAJESTY.

In all the public writs which he now issued as King of Spain, he assumed the title of Majesty, and required it from his subjects as a mark of respect. Before that time all the monarchs of Europe were satisfied with the appellation of Highness or Grace.
Robertson. Charles V. v. i. b. 1, An. 1519.

MAINPRISE, v.

Mede shal noght maynprise yow;
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2439.
That Mede moste be maympernow
Reson thei bi-sought.—Id. Ib. v. 2305.

MAIZE.

The Spaniards reported that the natives of Cuba had given them to eat a singular species of corn called maize, which, either when roasted whole or ground into meal, was abundantly palatable.—Robertson, v. i. b. 2, An. 1492.

MAKE. To compose verses. Makings, Composition of verses. See Piers Plouhman.

Makeless (Chaucer, in Dictionary), matchless; (Shakespeare, infra) mateless.

To solacen hym som tyme,
As I do whan I make.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7483.
And thou medlest thee with makynges,
And myghtest go seye thi sauter.—Id. Ib. v. 7470.
Lewtè techeth . . .
If thow be man maryed,
Thi make (mate) thow lovye.—Id. Ib. v. 7509.
Is it for fear to wet a widow's eye,
That thou consum'st thyself in single life?
Ah! if thou issueless shalt hap to die,
The world will wail thee, like a makeless wife.
Shakespeare. Sonnet ix.

To make the Libyan shore.—Dryden.
Libyæ vertuntur ad oras.—Æn. b. i. v. 158.

MALACISSATION, adj.

Penetrating and insinuating remedies are the defferrents, as it were, of malacissant and mollifying qualities, and convay more easily and impressedly the virtue thereof.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 2.

MAL, or MALE. In comp. A prefix with the force of—ill, evil, bad, wrong.

Malebouch, ill or evil tongue. Chaucer. Black Knight, v. 260.

Male talent, ill or evil will. Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 273.

MALE. See MAIL.

MALGRACIOUS. Fr. Malgrace. Disfavour.

Vulcanus—his figure
Both of visage and of stature
Is lothly and malgracious.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. v. fo. 87[1].

MALIGN.

Their (the Jews) stubbornness is but a strong hope malignified, or, as we say, grown old, wild, and out of kind.
Jackson. Eternal Truth of Scripture.

MALISON.

Thus they serven Sathanas,
And soules begyleth,
Marchaunes of malisones.
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1431.

If my fader groop and fele, Y drede lest he wene me wiln to bigile hym, and brynge on me malysoun for benisoun. (L. V. cursyng, maledictionem.)
Wic. Gen. xxvii. 12.

MAMBLE.

Of this matere I myghte
Mamelen ful longe.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2514.

MAN. Sw. Man. Vir fortis. Stiernhelmius et Rudbeckius hanc primam vocis esse significationem credunt, utpote ortæ a ma, valere, Angl. May. Ihre. Me is written for Men (impersonally), says the Gloss. to Wiclif. Thus Wiclif renders neque accendunt, in L. V. ne me leendith; and in E. V. nether men. Mat. v. 15; also in Gen. xlv. 6, L. V.

In sorwe thow shalt bere children; and thow shalt be under power of thi man (L. V. the hosebande, viri), and he shal haue lordship of thee.—Wic. Gen. iii. 16.

And thei maden engynys, and they wenten out, and breaten hem in fijre, and foujten manly (viriliter).
Id. 1 Mac. vi. 31.

Forsothe I trist hym to do myldly, and manly (humanè), or curteysly.—Id. 2 Mac. ix. 27.

Bot Y preye, thou kyng, all these thingus knowen, byholde to the cuntree and kyn aftir thi manlynesse (humanitatem) shewide to alle men.—Id. Ib. xiv. 9.

She n'as nat with the leste of her stature,
But al hire limmes so well answering
Weren to womanhode, that creature
Was never less mannishe in seming.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 284.

MANACE, i. e. Menace, qv.

MANACLE.

To ben bounde the kyngis of hem in fettris, and the noble men of hem in irene manyclis (manicis).
Wic. Ps. cxlix. 8.

MANAGE. Manyable, from Fr. Manier.

He may not be swolowed ne by the felyng or attouchyng (for he is not manyable), ne may not be handlyd.
The Golden Legend, fo. 27, c. 1. Caxton, 1483, Westm.

MANDATE. MAUNDEMENT, Tyrwhitt interprets, disposition. More literally, self-command.

(They) said, By will and maundément,
They were at hire commaundément.
Chaucer. Dreame, v. 451.

MANDRAGE.

And Ruben goon out in tyme of wheet heruest into the feeld fonde mandraggis, that he broujte to Lya, the modir.
Wic. Gen. xxx. 14.

MANGE, MANGER.

He festede . . . . .
With two fisshes and fyve loves
Fyve thousand peple:
And by that mangerie men myghte wel se
That Messie he semede.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10749.

MANIPLE, s. MANIPULATE. MANIPULATION. MANIPULATOR. Manipulate, &c. are words now in common use, especially in chemical works — formerly confined to certain mining operations. Manipulation comprises all the manual and also mechanical operations of the laboratory.

MANNER. Mannerism and Mannerist are of modern introduction. Mannerism (not in Todd) may be described—first, as a mode of composition distinct from all usual modes, and thus affecting originality; and secondly, as a misapplication or misemployment of style, by preserving (for instance) the same stateliness or gravity on all occasions. In painting, it is manifested by placing a sitter always in the same attitude; by grouping animate or inanimate objects, or both, in the same relative positions; in the management of colouring, in lights and shades, and various other particulars. And so, in the Sister Arts.

And he was comun to a maner place (sum place, quendam), and he wolde rest in it aftir the sunne goyng down.
Wic. Gen. xxviii. 8.

Wile thou not (noli) trauailen that thou be riche, but to prudence put maner. (L. V. mesure, modum.)
Id. Prov. xxiii. 4.

Thanne Judit song this song to the Lord, seiende, Begynneth in tymbris; singith to the Lord in cimbalis; manerly singith. (L. V. synge ȝe swetli, modulamini.)
Id. Judith xvi. 2.

The ende of manernesse (L. V. temperaunce, modestiæ) (is) the drede of the Lord.—Id. Prov. xxii. 4.

It hath been shewede me that ye brynge with you a maner of Bretons, Barroys, &c.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 230.

The months, twelve sisters all of different hue,
Though there appears in all a likeness too;
Not such a likeness, as, through Hayman's verse,

Dull mannerist, in Christians, Jews, and Turks,
Cloys with a sameness in each female face.
Churchill. Gotham, b. i.

MANURE.

The face of the earth hath not been torn, nor the virtue and salt of the soil spent by manurance.
Raleigh. Discovery of Guiana.

Yon flourie arbors, yonder allies green,
Our walk at noon, with branches overgrown,
That mock our scant manuring, and require
More hands than ours to top their wanton growth.
Milton. Par. L. b. iv. v. 628.

MANY. } Fr. Mesnie. A Meyny, a family
MENIAL. } household, company, or servants. Cotgrave. The rout; the baser sort. Minsheu.

Menial offices, emph. Servile offices or employments.

Piers Plouhman writes, " And how he myghte moost meynee manliche fynde."—Vision, v. 5789.

Gawin Douglas, " Ane few menze." See FEW.

Spenser, in his Ireland, " A much more many."

In Wiclif, " His household meynee," is in the Latin Vulgate, Domestici ejus; and Meyneal Church, Domestica ecclesia. In other instances the Lat. Familia, M. V. Family, is rendered, meynee, and—

Meyneals, from domestici. And to this usage the word seems very early to have been limited. See MEAN.

In 1 Henry IV. c. 7, Knights and esquires menial (Fr. Menialx), are distinguished from knights and esquires which be of his lord's retinue, and do take their yearly fee for term of life.

Our lawyers have been accustomed to derive Menial, from Mœnia—a servant or servants intra mœnia; Servants within the walls. French etymologists from Fr. Maison; Lat. Mansio. See Rochefort and Lacombe; also Du Cange, in v. Maisnada; and Menage, Le Orig. It. in v. Masnada. See also the quotation from Chaucer, in v. Captain, supra.

Who so hath much, spend manliche,
So seith Tobye; . . .
Swiche lessons lordes sholde
Lovye to here,
And how he might moost meynee
Manliche fynde.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5789.

This is the possessioun of the lynage of sones of Juda, by her meynees. (E. V. kinredis, per cognationes.)
Wic. Josh. xv. 20.

And, for the outlaw hath but small meinee,
And may not do so gret an harme as he (the tyrant),
Ne bring a contree to so gret mischiefe,
Men clepen him an outlawe or a thefe.
Chaucer. The Manciples Tale, v. 17180.

MAR, v.

All thy trees and frute of thy land shall be marred with blasting.—Bible, 1549. Deut. xxviii.

MARCH, v.

Austyn at Caunterbury
Cristnede the kyng,
And thorugh miracles, as men now rede,
Al that marche he tornede
To Crist . . . . Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10516.

For hire moneie and hire marchaundize
(Thei) marchen togideres.—Id. Ib. v. 126.

MARCH, s.

And thou woldist bilde up the temple that Idumes brenden, for Judee is put out of her termes, or marchis (exterminata est) of the Caldeis.—Wic. 3 Esd. iv. 45.

MARE. See MERE.

From the marees deepe
Of Acherontes well.—Skelton. Philip Sparrow, v. 69.

MARGARETTES. Daisies were so called. Chaucer. See Skinner.

MARGIN, s. This word has acquired (from mercantile usages) a common application to room (left), space (ample room and verge enough).

And thow shalt ioyne the goldun cheynes to the rynges that ben in the mergyns of it. (L. V. brynkes, marginibus.)—Wic. Ex. xxviii. 24.

He intended for his wild sense of honour's sake, to be true in the matter of the treasure; but before and after it was reached, there was a wide margin of possibilities.
E. Warburton. Darien, ch. xiii.

The purchase of an annuity with the produce of his commission, secured to him an ample supply for his simple wants, and left him besides a wide margin for the charities in which his brave old heart delighted.
Id. Ib. Intro. Chap.

MARGUERITE.

And seide,
Noli mittere, man,
Margery perles,
Among hogges . . . .—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5613.

MARK.

And man is hym most lik
Of marc and of shafte.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5215.

The litle marke shal be restorid as cley. (L. V. seeling, signaculum.)—Wic. Job xxxviii. 15.

MARKET.

Syrus (Syria) thi marchaunt, for the multitude of thi werkis thei puttiden forth in thi market or marchaundise (L. V. marcat, in mercatu) gemme and purpur, &c.
Wic. Ez. xxvii. 16.

MARMOREAL. Lat. Marmoreus. Of Marble.

And she unveiled her bosom, and the green
And glancing shadows of the sea did play
O'er its marmoreal depth.—Shelley. Revolt of Islam, c. 1.

And again, marmoreal floods.—Id. Ib.

MARROW. Var. written in Wiclif, Mary, marȝ, marȝh, merȝh, mercȝw, merowȝ, merow, merowe, merowȝ.

The swerd of the Lord fulfild is of blod, innerly fattid it is with talȝ of blod of lombis and of get, of the blod of merewi wetheres. (L. V. rammes, ful of merow, medullatorum.)—Wic. Is. xxxiv. 6.

MARSH.

I wende me to stonde upon the brynk of the flood, and seuen oxen fro the flood togideres steyden up, ful greetli fayr and thurȝ oute with fatt fleish, the whiche in the pasture of mershe (L. V. marreis, paludis) the grene leswis cheseden.—Wic. Gen. xli. 18.

And Pharao browide him to stonde upon a flood, of the whiche steyden up seuene fayre oxen, and fulle fatte, and thei weren fed in mershi places. (L. V. places of mareis, locis palustribus.) Id. Ib. xli. 2.

MARTEL.

Nor delyvered up the martel, which is the token of the Constable of France.—Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 595.

MARTYR v.

Myche preising shulen thei haue in heuene withouten end, that putten forth hem silf to be martirid for Goddis cause, with true meenes of patience and of charity.
Wic. Bible. Prol. xxxvi.

MARVEL, v.

The merveillousest metels (dreams)
Mette me thanne.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5034.

The whiche whanne thei hadden seen hir, stoneȝende merueileden (L. V. wondriden, mirati sunt) ful miche the fairnesse of hir.—Wic. Judith x. 7.

But hennesforth I wol my processe hold
To speke of aventures, and of battailes,
That yet was never herd so gret merveilles.
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10974.

MASS.

As a massee (L. V. sad, solidum) vessel of gold enourned with alle maner of precious ston.—Wic. Ecclus. l. 10.

MASS, s.

Whan that the highe masse was ydone,
In halle sat this January and May.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9768.

MAST, s.

A billiard mast (qy. mace)
Well does the work of his (Time's) destructive scythe.
Cowper. Task, b. iv. v. 221.

MASTER.

That to men—not knowende—desyr of seching be set, and to men sechende frut of trauaile, and to God the doctrine of maisterhed be kept.—Wic. Prol. to Apocalypse.

And the Lord spak to Moises, and seide, A soule . . . . that denyeth to his neiȝbore a thing bitakun to kepyng, that was bitakun to his feith, ethir takith maisterfulle a thing by violence, &c. (extorserit).—Id. Lev. vi. 2.

Love wol not be constreined by maistrie;
When maistrie cometh the God of love anon,
Beteth his winges, and farewel! he is gon.
Chaucer. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11076.

Ne may love be compeld by maistery;
For, soone as maistery comes, sweet love anone
Taketh his nimble winges, and soone away is gone.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 1, st. 25.

MATA-FUND. From the Spanish. The quotation explains the word.

That murderous sling,
The matafund, from whence the ponderous stone
Made but one wound of him whom in its way
It met.—Southey. Joan of Arc, b. viii. v. 163.

MATCH.

Patience and I
Were put to be macches,
And seten bi ourselve
At the side borde.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8094.

(By Grammar) we free our language from the opinion of rudeness and barbarism, by which it is mistaken to be diseased; we shew the copy of it, and matchableness of it with other tongues; we ripen the wits of our children and youth sooner by it, and advance their knowledge.
Ben Jonson. English Grammar. Pref.

MATE, v.

Christ the Saviour, by his mating and quelling the enemies of man's salvation . . . .
Barrow, v. iii. ser. 41, p. 468.

MATHEMATICKS.

The word Mathematics (i. e. disciplines) in its proper and primary signification, seems common to every acquired science. They (says Plato) who are by nature arithmeticians, do shew themselves ready to learn the whole mathematics, i. e. every thing which is capable of being learned. Sometimes they are called in the singular the mathematic, as by Aristotle. By a certain metonymy, of the action for the object, they are frequently called mathesis, the discipline.—Barrow. Mathematical Lecture, lec. i. p. 2.

MATTER.

I believe that the whole frame of a beast doth perish, and is left in the same state after death as before it was materialled into life.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 50.

MAUGRE.

And not onli these thingus, but another forsothe respit (respectus) of hem was, for maugre theires (L. V. ayens her wille, inviti) thei resceyueden straungeres.
Wic. Wis. xix. 14.

MAUND.

It bifel on a Friday,
A litel bifore pasqe,
The Thursday bifore,
There he made his maundee,
Sittynge at the soper,
He seide thise wordes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11086.

MAXIM. Gassendi says that a Maxim, is Propositio generalissima; Martinus and Vossius agree that it is, Theorema catholicon. See Martinii, Lex. Philol.; Vossius de Vitiis, and Gassendi, Instit. Log. And the learned Sir William Hamilton concludes, that maxims are maximæ propositiones; and so styled, because as universal and primary, they contain the other propositions (minores posterioresque), and determine the whole inference of reasoning. On Reid, p. 766. And from this comprehensiveness, their weight, value, and authority.

MAY, v. MAY, s. Goth. Mahts.—Potestas.

For thy place and May.—Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida.

Wher thorough the parlements schall may do more good in a moneth.—Fortescue. De Legibus.

MAYOR.

And to meyris or presidentes (ad præsides), and to kyngis ye schul be led for me in witnessyng to hem, and to hethen men.—Wic. Mat. x. 18.

Ther shal no more be clepid he that is unwis a prince, ne the gylere shal be clepid a meyre. (L. V. the grettere, maior.)—Id. Is. xxxii. 5.

MAZE.

The more the matere is moved
The mazedere hi worthen.
Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 1645.

ME.

For euen I me selfe am a man.—Bible, 1549. Acts x.

MEAD.

And he seide to hem, Goth, and eteth fatte thingis, and drinkith meth. (L. V. wijn maad swete with honey, mulsum.)—Wic. 2 Esd. viii. 10.

MEAL. Of grain.

Er I have breed of mele,
Ofte moote I swete.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8555.

MEAL. A portion.

The son for sorwe therof
Lees light of a tyme,
About mydday whan moost light is,
And meel-tyme of seintes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3482.

Their morning milk the peasants press at night,
Their evening meal before the rising light
To market bear; or sparingly they steep
With seas'ning salt, and stor'd for winter keep.
Dryden. Virgil, Georgics, b. iii. v. 613.

MEAL. Is a common terminating affix to old English words; and the compound is usually rendered from Latin adverbs in im, as (Wiclif's Bible)

Flocmeel, gregatim; Gobetmele, particulatim; Lememele, membratim; Litilmele, paulatim; Passmele, passim; Raueshemelam, raptim; Whilmeel, Vicissim; and Whilmele, s. chaungus of whilemelis. Vicissitudinum mutationes. Wis. vii. 18. In Shakespeare, Inchmeal.

Make him
By inch-meal a disease.
Shakespeare. Tempest, act ii. sc. 2.

MEAN. (Moyen.)

Thus in a feith leve that folk (the paynims)
And in a fals mene.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10692.

Thei wisten not forsothe that Joseph shulde undurstonde, therthurȝ that bi a mene persone undoynge both langagis he spak to hem. (L. V. interpretour, per interpretem.)
Wic. Gen. xlii. 23.

In the meene tyme (interim) hungur al the loond greetly bare down.—Id. Ib. xliii. 1.

To these thus striuende the apostil putte hym a mene bitwen (a mediator), shewende to bothe puples neither circumcisioun to ben oȝt, neither the kept flesh, but the feith that werkith bi charite.—Id. Prol. to Romans, p. 299.

With livelishe browes, flawe of colour pure,
Betwene the which was mene disseveraunce
From every browe, to shewen a distaunce.
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 783.

For somtime we be Goddes instruments,
And menes to don his commandements.
Id. The Freres Tale, v. 7066.

MEAN.

What this by-meneth.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 460.

Ther saw I Dane yturned to a tree,
I mene not hire the Goddesse Diane,
But Peneus daughter, which that highte Dane.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2065.

Their large and rayless eyes,
Glazed, fixed, and meaningless.
Southey. Curse of Kehama, xvi. § 11.

MEASLE.

To meseles (lepers) in hegges.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1624.

MEASURE.

For the same mesures ye mete,
Ye shulle ben weyen therwith.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 811.

That laborers and lowe folk
Take of hire maistres,
It is no manere mede,
But a mesurable hire.—Id. Ib. v. 1880.

There is another mede mesureless
That maistres desireth.—Id. Ib. v. 1856.

Lo! mesurable (mensurabiles) hast thou set my dayes; and my substaunce (is) as noȝt before thee.
Wic. Ps. xxxviii. 6.

Euen liȝt to men (is) wyn in sobrenesse: if thou drink it mesurably (moderate), thou shalt ben sobre.
Id. Ecclus. xxxi. 32.

MEAT.

Just men be gestis, ethir mete feris. (L. V. mete felawes, convivæ.)—Wic. Ecclus. ix. 22; and xxxvii. 4, 5, sodales.

And if eny tyme ȝe shulen haue meetship (L. V. a feeste, epulum), ȝe shulen synge with trompes.—Id. Num. x. 10.

MEATH. See MEAD.

MEBLE, i. e. Movable. See MOVE.

MEDDLE.

I holde my pees of gramariens, medeleris of retorik, of filosoferis . . . . (and) I shal come to the lesse craftis.
Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 66.

We beseche you, brethren, that ye encrease more and more, and that ye studye to be quyete, and to medle with youre owne busines. (M. V. to do, πρασσειν.)
Bible, 1549. 1 Thes. iv. 11.

For certeyn byrdes called vultures,
Without medelyng conceyuyn by nature.
Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, d. 1, c. 1.

And it is to peyneful to be medelous in other mennes maters.—Tullius de Amicitia, b. 5ª. Worcestre, Erle of.

MEDIATE.

In honour only of the heuen quene,
That best may be our medyatrice.
Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, m. 3.

MEDIÆVAL. Now common. (See in Hallam.

MEDICATE. In Wiclif, sanum verbum is in the text rendered, "an hool word," and in the var. r. medicynal, and medicinable. Tit. ii. 8.

MEDITATE, v.

He tries his goring horns against a tree,
And meditates his absent enemy.
Dryden. Æn. xii. 162.

MEDLEY. See MEDDLE.

MEED. To medes, in Chaucer, (Mr. Tyrwhitt,) is an expression similar to one still in common use, viz. to boot, and means, for a reward in return.

The pope and alle the prelates
Presentz underfongen,
And medeth men hemselven
To mayntene hir lawes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1789.

For as wisdom defendith, so money defendith (that is, mynistrith spensis agenus visible enemyes, and it defendith against unuysible enemyes by medeful werkis of pitee, and of liberaltee. Mar. note).—Wic. Eccles. vii. 13.

Adde thou not ony thing to the wordis of hym (i. e. contrarie; netheles the thingis that declaren Goddis word moun be addid wel and meedfulli. Mar. note).
Id. Prov. xxx. 6.

And for she was of toun, he profered mede,
For som folk wol be wonnen for richesse.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3380.

Aquite him well, for Goddes loue, quod he,
Myself, to medes, wol the lettre sowe (sew).
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1201.

MEEK.

Biddeth Amende-yow meke hym
Til his maister ones.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3708.

And leet his sone dye
Mekely for oure mysdedes,
To amenden us alle. Id. Ib. v. 793.

Her meke praiere, and hir pitous chere
Made the markis to han pity.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8017.

MEET.

Many tyme God hath ben met
Among nedy peple.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7047.

Ye Goddes armes! quod this riotour,
Is it swicke peril with him for to mete?
I shal him seke by stile and eke by strete.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12627.

MEEVABLE. See MOVE.

MEGRIM.

A veine is opened in the fore-head for the megrim or head-ach (dolor hemicranicus). Must also the hemicraine be scarified for the paine of the head in general?
Wats. Bacon. De Aug. b. v. c. 2.

MEINEE. See MANY.

MEINT. See MINGE.

MELITE. Mr. Tyrwhitt, "Does it mean Interposition, from Fr. Méler, to meddle?" Skinner exp. Power.

But he through his mightie melite,
Wil do the ese, tho' it be lite.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 929.

MEMBER, v. To remember; (qv.) to remind; to mention.

I fond them in all thingus that aboue I membrede. (L. V. remembride bifore, supra memoravi.)—Wic. Jer. ii. 34.

Receyue of hym the aboue membrid (L. V. forseid, ante memoratum) weiʒte of siluer, and restore to hym his writ.
Id. Tobit iv. 22.

MEMORY.

Though thou hadst the memory of Seneca or Simonides, and conscience, the punctual memorist within, yet trust not thy remembrance in things which need phylacteries.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. § 21.

MENACE, v.

And now worth this
Mede y-maried
To a manaede sherewe,
To oon fals fikel tonge.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 961.

Yet was hir deth depeinted therbeforne,
By manacing of Mars, right by figure.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2037.

Being besieged in his palace (seditione minaci) by a menaceful mob of the Macedonians, he (Antigonus) went out amongst them without his guards.
Turnbull. Justin, b. xxviii. ch. 3.

MENCHEN, or MENCHION. From It. Meschino; Fr. Meschine, or mechine; Lat. Meschinus, or mischinus (qv.) See in Menage, Cotgrave, and Du Cange; or, the old French Mencion, mansio; whence, Mencionaire, mencionarius. And thus either—1. A very poor person, a servant (meschesir); or, 2. A housekeeper.

And the wife of Wolphernes, named Eumentilda, was made a menchen at Ely, and Wereburga, his daughter, was also made a nonne.—Fabyan, pt. v. fo. 148².

MEND, v.

For he is Duk of wisdam; and mendere of wise men. (L. V. amendere, emendator.)—Wic. Wis. vii. 15.

MENDICANT.

Nothing, I am credibly informed, can exceed the shocking and disgusting spectacle of mendicancy displayed in that capital.—Burke (in Mason).

MENGE. See MINGE.

MENSTRUAL.

Thei meekiden in thee the unclennesse of the menstruate womman. (L. V. in unclene blood, menstruatæ.)
Wic. Ez. xxii. 10.

MERCHANT.

And thei shulen marchaundise of you. (L. V. make marchaundie, negotiabuntur.)—Wic. 2 Pet. ii. 3.

Sonys of Dedan (weren) thi marchauntis; many ilis (weren) the marchaundisynge of thin hoond. (L. V. marchaundie, negotiatio.)—Id. Ez. xxvii. 15.

MERCURIAL.

As the wise men were led by the star, or as the traveller is directed by a mercurial statue . . . .
Chillingworth. Religion of Protestants.

This lad was such a mercurial, as could make his own part, if at any time he chanced to be out.
Bacon. Henry VII.

MERCY.

Thy fa(u)lt our law calles death; but the kind prince,
Taking thy part, hath rusht aside the law,
And turn'd that blacke word death to banishment.
This is deare mercy, and thou seest it not.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet, act iii. sc. 3.

MERIT. See CONGRUE.—The quotations from Hobbes in Dictionary, and from Lawrence, supra.

Ac muche moore meritorie,
Me thynketh it is to baptize.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6732.

The meritorie lijf of a good man is schort.
Wic. Wis. xli. 13, n. ‖.

MERK, i. e. Mirk, qv.

MERMAID.

We, heiʒnge to the cuntre of heuen, owen to passe ouer with a deef eere the dedliche songis of meremaydens.
Wic. Prol. to Josh. p. 556.

MERRY, v. See FLAME, Piers Plouhman.

And as I lay and lenede,
And loked on the watres,
I slombred into a slepyng,
It sweyed so murie.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 20.

And as the weke and fir
Wol maken a warm flaumbe,
For to murthen men myd,
That in the derke sitten. Id. Ib. v. 11847.

This yuel man dieth strong and hool, riche and blesful, that is, myrie. (E. V. welsun, felix.)—Wic. Job xxi. 23.

And there I gan my wo complaine,
Wishyng and wepyng all mine one,
For other merthes made I none.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. i. fo. 8².

MERVEILL, i. e. Marvel, qv.

MESS.

And thanne he broughte us forth
A mees of oother meete.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8134.

Tho, as me thoughten, the promeise
Of marriage before the mese (feast),
Desired was of every wight.—Chaucer. Dreame, v. 2118.

MESS. The company messing together being arranged into fours, each four was called a Messe. See NARES.

Dro. Foure makes a messe, and we haue a messe of masters that must be coozened.
Lyly. Mother Bombie, act ii. sc. 1.

Biron. I confess, I confesse.
King. What?
Biron. That you three fools lack'd me fool to make up the messe.—Shakespeare. Love's Labour Lost, act iv. sc. 3.

MESSAGE.

The Markis, which that shope and knew all this,
Er that this Erl was come, sent his message,
For thilke poure, sely Grisildis.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8823.

METACHRONISM. Gr. Μετα, and χρονος, time. A change of time in chronology.

There are in Scripture of things that are seemingly confused, carrying semblance of contrariety, anachronisms, metrachronisms, and the like, which brings infinite obscurity to the text.—Hale. Golden Remaines.

METAL.

On each turf of that mead
Stood the captors of England's domains,
That ennobled her breed
And high-mettled the blood of her veins.
Campbell. Lines on the Camp Hill at Hastings.

METAPHYSIC.

(This) is commonly in the Schools called Metaphysics, as being part of the philosophy of Aristotle, which hath that for title; but it is in another sense; for there it signifieth as much as books written or placed after his natural philosophy. But the Schools take them for books of supernatural philosophy; for the word Metaphysic will bear both these senses.—Hobbes. Leviathan, c. xlvi. p. 339, fo. edit.

METE. See METT.

METE.

He it myght haue
With false mesures and met,
And with fals witnesse.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8745.

Nor yet the time hath Titan's gliding fire
Met forth (measured out).
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xv. st. 39.

METICULOUS, adj. Lat. Meticulosus, fearful; from Metus.

Move circumspectly, not meticulously, and rather carefully solicitous than anxiously solicitudinous.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. § 33.

METRETE, s. Gr. Μητρητης; Lat. Metreta, about nine English gallons. See Wiclif, in Dictionary.

METROPOLIS.

The governors, officers, and inhabitants of those mother-cities were termed, for difference sake, metropolites, that is to say, mother-city men.
Hooker. Ecclesiastical Polity, b. vii. § 8.

METT, v. or METE.

And I awaked,
And of this metyng many tyme
Much thought I hadde.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8031.

METT. Metels, i. e. dream; common in Piers Plouhman.

Many tyme this metels
Hath made me to studie
Of that I seigh slepynge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4781.

ʒoure olde men shulen mete (L. V. dreme dremes, somnia somniabunt) sweuens, and ʒoure ʒunge men shall see visiouns.—Wic. Joel ii. 28. As quoted in Acts ii. 17, dreme meetels, or sweuens.

This ladie, which was innocent,
And wiste nothing of this guile,
Mette, as she slepte . . . .
Nechanabas, which causeth all
Of this metrede the substance.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vi. fo. 138².

MEUE. See MOVE.

MEW.

Thus toke he purpose Love's craft to sewe,
And thought that he would worken privily,
First for to hide all his desire in mewe,
From every wight yborne.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 381.

MICH.

How like a micher he stands, as though he had trewanted from honestie.—Lilly. Mother Bombie, act iii. sc. 1.

That mite is miching in this grove.—Id. Ib. act ii. sc. 3.

MIDGE. A. S. Mycge; Ger. Mucke; Dut. Mugge; Dan. Myg; Fr. Mouche.

A small fly; a gnat.

Where there is no space
For receipt of a fly;
Where the midge dares not venture,
Lest herself fast she lay;
If Love come he will enter,
And soon find out his way.
Old Song. Love will find, &c.

MIDWIFE.

And the meedwijf (L. V. medewijf, obstetrix) seide to hir, Wole thou not (noli) drede, for also and this thow shalt haue a sone.—Wic. Gen. xxxv. 17.

The toon put forthe an hoond, in the which the medewife (L. V. mydwijf) bonde a reed threed, seiynge, This shal goon out rather.—Id. Ib. xxxviii. 29.

Wymmen of Ebrew ben not as the wymmen of Egipte; thei forsothe han the cunning of mydwynynge (of medewijf, obstetricandi), and er we comen to hem thei ben delyuered.—Id. Ex. i. 19.

MIGHT, v. See MAY, supra.

There myghtow (might thou) sen examples
In hymself oone,
That he was myghtful and meke.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, vv. 801, 3.

It cometh by myght,
And in the herte there is the heed
And the heighe welle;
For in kynde knowynge in herte,
Ther a myght bigynneth.—Id. Ib. v. 788.

And she smoot Cisaram, sechynge in the heed the place of the wound, and the temple myȝtilich thrillynge. (L. V. perside strongli, valide.)—Wic. Judges v. 26.

Of eche miȝtihede (L. V. power, potentatus) (is) short lyf; lengere infyrmyte greeueth the leche.—Id. Ib. x. 11.

But all that he might of his frendes hente,
On bokes and on lerning he it spente.
Chaucer. Prologue, v. 301.

(We) Ne couded not ourself devisen how
We mighten live in more felicitee.
Id. Clerkes Tale, v. 7985.

MIGRATE, v.

Passager and migrant birds in their appointed seasons visit us from Greenland and Mount Atlas, and as some think from the Antipodes.—Browne. Letter to a Friend.

MILDEW.

Pharao sawȝ another sweuen; seuene eerys burionde on o stalk, and ful fayr, and other as feel eerys, thinne and smytun with meldew. (L. V. with corrupcioun of brennynge wynde, uredine.)—Wic. Gen. xli. 6.

MILITANT.

The invisible powers of heaven seemed to militate on the side of the pious emperor (Theodosius).
Gibbon. History, c. xxvii.

MILLET.

And he schal not sette wheete bi ordre, and barli, and mylium (E. V. myle), and fetchis on his coostis.
Wic. Is. xxviii. 29.

MINCHEN. See MENCHYN, supra.

MIND.

Ye mynnen wel how Mathew seith
How a man made a feste.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10547.

And the mynde (memoria) of an unbileueful soule (is) stondyng an image of salt.—Wic. Wis. x. 7.

And whanne thei weren comen to the mynde hyllis (tumulos) of Jordan into the loond of Chanaan, they bilididen biside Jordan an auter of mychilnes without mesure.
Id. Josh. xxii. 10.

And bihynde the dore, and bihynde the post thou settedest thi mynde tocne. (L. V. memoral, memoriale.)
Id. Is. lvii. 8.

The desir of the unpitous is the myndeful place of werst thingis. (L. V. memorial, munimentum.)—Id. Prov. xii. 12.

Beholde heuen and loke, and myndefulli (contemplare) see the cloudis, that is hejere than thou.—Id. Job xxxv. 5.

MINE.

Thei mynen housis in darknessis. (E. V. breeken thurȝ, perfodit.)—Wic. Job xxiv. 16.

If thou sekist it as money (that is, with so great enforsing as an auarouse man sekith money, and as a mynour sekith hidden gold. Marg. note).—Id. Prov. ii. 4.

He (Scipio) could neither finde any underwood fit to cut out stakes for a pallisaid or earth meete to make turfes for a banke, or minable for a trench.
Holland. Livius, p. 575.

MINGE, v.

Thei schulen offre . . . litil rownd loones, spreynt with meyngyng of oyle. (L. V. medlyng, admixtione.)
Wic. Lev. vii. 12.

Forsothe mengingli togidere (commixtim) the puple criede out with a gret cri, and the vois was herd aferr.
Id. 1 Esd. iii. 13.

MINIATE.

He had two or three small brass guns of a minion bore planted by his tent all the day.—Dampier. Voyages, 1688.

MINISH.

And he mouede the tentis to Bethsura, that was a stronge holde of Jewis; bot he was dryuen, hurtlide, and menushyd (var. r. mynuyd, or wastide, minuebatur).
Wic. 2 Mac. xiii. 19.

And that heȝ auter he distruyede, and brende and mynuschede (L. V. al to brak, comminuit) in to poudre.
Id. 4 Kings xxiii. 15.

MINOR.

Forget not how assuefaction unto any thing minorates the passion from it; how constant objects lose their hints, and steal an inadvertisement upon us.
Brown. Christian Morals, pt. iii. § 10.

MINUTE. See Piers Plouhman in v. Mistand, infra.

Ysekeles and evesynges,
Thorugh hete of the sonne,
Melt in a minute while
To myst and to watre.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11822.

Sothli whanne o pore widowe had comen, sche sente tweye mynutis, that is, a ferthing (minuta).
Wic. Mark xii. 42.

MIRE.

But in truth, you having been mired amongst abundance of absurdities already, the more you strive to get out the deeper you get in.—Prideaux. Orders of Church of England defended, 1688.

MIRROR.

The swarm
Whose light-edged shadows on the bedded sand
Mirror'd their mazy sports.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. i. v. 444; also Madoc, § xxvi. Cary. Dante, Par. b. xii. v. 55.

MIS-BELIEVE.

Of the mysbeleeued soule (L. V. vnbileueful, incredibilis animæ) the mind (memoria) stendende is the foorming (figmentum salis) of salt. (Lot's wife.)—Wic. Wisd. x. 7.

And ȝe wolden not stye up, but mysbileuynge (L. V. unbileueful, increduli) to the word of the Lord oure God, ȝe grutchiden in ȝoure tabernaclis.—Id. Deut. i. 26.

Be thou not rebel, and mys leeful to the dred of the Lord. (L. V. unbileueful: var. r. mysbileueful, incredulus.)
Id. Ecclus. i. 36.

MISCELLANY. See MISLINE.

I, a mere miscellanarian or essay writer.
Shaftesbury, v. iii. p. 113.

MIS-CHANCE.

It is untrouth and a vice to say that olde age is wretchyd mischaunt or noyous, so that it had be such as was the same of old ffabius.—The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton.

MIS-CHIEF, v.

Hem grace faileth
At hir mooste meschief,
Whan thei shal lif lete.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6404.

Forsoth Y (Juda) may not turne aȝen to my fadir, the child absent, lest a witnes I stonde to of myschef (L. V. the wretchidnesse, calamitatis) that is to oppresse my fader.
Wic. Gen. xliv. 34.

MIS-CLEAPING, i. e. Mis-calling. See CLEPE.

Thus is night tourned into daie and daie into night . . . not in deed, but in miscleaping of foolish people.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

MIS-CREANT. Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7810, writes Creaunt for Credent; and Shakespeare makes York call Joan of Arc, the enchauntresse, Miscreant.

He (the thief) yeld hym
Creaunt to Crist on the cross.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7810.

Conquest of high prowesse, is for to tame
The wilde woodenesse of this miscreaunce
Right to the rote.—Chaucer. Envoy (D.) b. i. v. 50.

Puc. I prethee giue me leaue to curse awhile.
Yorke. Curse, miscreant, when thou comest to the stake.
Shakespeare. Henry VI Pt. i. act v. sc. 3.

MIS-DEED. See MISDO.

MIS-DEMEAN, v. MIS-DEMEANANT, is now in common use. See Reports of Inspector of Prisons.

MIS-DO, v.

Misdooth he no man,
Ne with his mouth greveth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10129.

To mayntene mysdoers
Mede thei take. Id. Ib. v. 1858.

MIS-EASE.

Oon vesture
From cold thee to save;
And meet at meel
For mysese of thiselve.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 507.

And al the prouinces camen into Egipte, that thei myȝten bigge meetis, and the yuel of myseis swaȝen (L. V. nedynes, inopiæ).—Wic. Gen. xli. 57.

Thou schalt be hid fro the scourge of tunge, and thou schalt not drede myseiste, ethir wretchidnesse (var. r. myseesnesse, calamitatem).—Id. Job v. 21.

MIS-FEEL. Misfeeling. Wiclif renders the Lat. Insensatus, misfeelende, or unwittie, L. V. vnwijs. And sensatus, wel felend, L. V. wijs.

In alle these thingus mys felende or unwittie (L. V. vnwijs, insensatum) is the herte.—Wic. Ecclus. xvi. 20.

With a fool ne speke thou myche, and with a mys felende go thou not awey.—Id. Ib. xxii. 14.

MIS-GLOSE, v. To glose (qv.) amiss.

Auctority misglosed by mannes reason.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

MIS-GUIDING, s. See Fabyan in v. Steer.

By the mysgydynge of the sterysman, he was set vpon the pylys of the brydge and the barge whelmyd, so all were drownyd.—Fabyan. Cronycle, Henry VI. An. 1430.

MIS-LEARN.

Aȝenseie thou not the word of treuthe in ony maner; and be thou aschamed of the leesing of thi mislernyng (de mendacio ineruditionis).—Wic. Ecclus. iv. 30.

MIS-LIGHT. To light amiss, or out of the way.

No Will o'th'Wisp mislight thee,
Nor snake, nor glow-worm bite thee.
Herrick. Night Piece. To Julia.

MIS-PEND, v.

(In) the frequent mis-pense of their time . . . they have too probably indulged themselves more than they can answer for at the bar of justice.
Bp. Hoadley. Ser. Heb. xvi. 26, 27.

MIS-PRISE.

Who either through enuy or misprision
Was guilty of this fault, and not my sonne.
Shakespeare. Henry IV. Pt. i. act iv. sc. 3.

MIS-RELIGION.

No pestilence should be more shunned than the conversation of the mis-religious.
Bp. Hall. Cont. b. xviii. The Seduced Prophet.

MIS-REVERENCE.

The wrathe of a womman, and the mysreverence (is) gret shenshipe. (L. V. irreverence, irreverentia.)
Wic. Ecclus. xxv. 29.

MISS. MISTURE. Also (as, to want, qv.) To do without.

Though a yong man in any wise
Trespass emong and do folie,
Let him nat dwelle, but hastilie
Let him amende what so be mis.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3243.

Mir. 'Tis a villaine, sir, I doe not loue to looke on.
Pros. But as 'tis,
We cannot misse him.
Shakespeare. Tempest, act i. sc. 2, fo. 4^2.

Mem. I will have honest, valiant souls about me,
I cannot miss thee.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Mad Lover, act ii.

Therefore all men evidently declared at that time, both how sore they took his death to heart; and also how hardly they could away with the misture of such a man.
Foxe. Acts and Monuments, v. viii. p. 288.
Notes and Queries, v. vii. p. 375.

MIS-SAY.

And mys-seide the Jewes manliche (i. e. scolded, rebuked).—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11057.

Thei shulen turne to alien goddis; and serue to hem; and myssey to me. (L. V. backbite, detrahent mihi.)
Wic. Deut. xxxi. 20.

If a comlynge dwelle in ȝoure loond, and were abidynge amonge ȝow, ne myssey ȝe to hym. (L. V. dispise ȝe not, non exprobreris.)—Id. Lev. xix. 33.

MISSIFICATE. See MISSAL.

MISSION.

For this was Ririd mission'd to the ships.
Southey. Madoc, § xxii.

MIS-STAND, v. To stand amiss.

He myghte amende in a miaute while
Al that mys-tandeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7338.

MIST. MISTY.

Ac theologie hath tened me
Ten score tymes:
The moore I muse therinne
The mystier it seemeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5974.

And ȝe neiȝeden to the root of the liȝt, that brent unto heuene; and there weren in it derknessis, and clowde, and mystynes. (L. V. myist, caligo.)—Wic. Deut. iv. 11.

And the iȝhen of blynde men shullen se fro dercnessis and myistȝ. (E. V. mystynesse, de caligine.)—Id. Is. xxix. 18.

MIS-TAKE, v.

Norf. I am sorry
To hear this of him: and could wish you were Something mistaken in it.
Shakespeare. Henry VIII. act i. sc. 2.

MISTER. From the mastery or skill in trade necessary or needful, it was extended in its application to the trade or profession, art or craft; skill; generally to the condition of life; from needful occupation, to need.

In Spenser, "It mistreth not to tell," is, it skilleth not; it needeth not; there is no need or occasion.

In Robert of Brunne (p. 94), Maister of that Mister, is of that trade.

Of meate (Chaucer) he hath no mistere—no need. And in Scotch, to mister is to need. Jamieson.

What Mister man (Chaucer); what Mister wight

(Spenser); what manner of man, of what condition of life.

In Spenser, "What noblest Mysterie of soldiers," i. e. profession.

He ne held it no maistrie,
Save tho he leched Lazar,
That hadde y-leye in graue.
Piers Plouhmans Vision, v. 11027.

And shode he was with great maistrie (skill).
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 842.

Through moisture of the well wete,
Sprong vp the sote grene gras,
As faire, as thicke, as mister (need) was.—Id. Ib. v. 1426.

MIS-TROW.

I spredde out myn hondis al dai to a puple mistrouful (L. V. unbileueful, incredulum), that goth in a wei not good, after ther thinkungus.—Wic. Is. lv. 2.

MIS-TRUST.

We han synned bifor the Lord oure God, and wee han not leened, mystrostende in to hym. (L. V. and tristiden not, diffidentes.)—Wic. Bar. i. 17.

MIS-USE.

God to hym a place of penaunce ȝaf, and he mysuseth it in to pride (abutitur).—Wic. Job xxiv. 23.

(They) speken wickidnesse aȝens a iust man; in pride and in misusyng. (E. V. abusion, abusione.)
Id. Ps. xxx. 19.

MIS-WAIE. The wrong way.

Love maketh afl to gone miswaie.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 4769.

MITE, MITING; used by Skelton as a diminutive denoting Affection, A tiny one. See MULLING, infra.

MOAN.

I make mone to God.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9637.

MOAT, v. See MUTE, v.

MOAT, v.

Conscience commaundede tho
Alle cristene to delve
And make a muche moot.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13689.

An arm of Lethe, with a gentle flow,
Arising upwards from the rock below,
The Palace moats.—Dryden. Ceyx and Alcyone.

MOB. North says—the word was adopted in the assemblies of the Green Ribbon Club, in 1680, twelve years before Dryden's use of it in his Cleomenes. See the Quotation from Tatler in v. Bubble, supra.

I may note that the rabble first changed their title and were called the mob, in the assemblies of this Club. (i. e. The Green Ribbon Club, 1680, twelve years before Dryden's Cleomenes was published.)—North. Examen. p. 574.

Some abbreviations (are) exquisitely refined; as pozz for positive, mobb for mobile, &c.
Swift. Polite Conversation. Introduction.

L. Cath. (There is) Kitty Linnet, a little play actor, who gets applauded and hissed just e'en as the mobility wills.
Foote. The Maid of Bath, act ii. sc. 1.

MOB. See SLOP. A dress easily slipt on or off. Mob, a dress—a cap—easily moved or removed.

I have often thought wrapping gowns and dirty linen, with all that huddled economy of dress which passes under the general name of mob, the bane of conjugal love, and one of the readiest means imaginable to alienate the affections of an husband, especially a fond one.
Spectator, No. 302.

MOCK.

His passyon was despited of mockeries and derysions of the jewes—foure tymes he was mockyd.
The Golden Legend, fo. 15, c. 3.

MODERATE, v. MODER, v.

The Dukes would gladly have modered the matter.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 569.

How moderance and attemperance (are appropryd) to old age.—The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton.

MODULATE.

With this caution: that the mind for its module (pro modulo) be dilated to the amplitude of the mysteries (of religion); and not the mysteries be streightned and girt into the narrow compasse of the mind.
Wats. Bacon, Advancement of Learning, b. ix. c. 1.

MOKEL. See MUCH.

MOLE.

Ac it (a coat) was moled in many places
With manye sondry plottes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8583.

Thy beste cote, Haukyn,
Hath many moles and spottes,
It moste ben ywashe.—Id. v. 8651.

MOLE.

In that day shal a man throwe awey the maumetes of his siluer, and the symulacris of his gold that he had mad to hym, that he shulde honoure moldewerpes (talpas) and reremees.—Wic. Is. ii. 20.

Whanne ȝe maken a coueitouse prest to stonde at the auter, ȝe maken a maldwarp stonde there in the stede of Crist.—Id. Bible. Prol. p. 32.

MOMENT.

Hyl. I lay it down for a principle, that the moments or quantities of motion in bodies, are in a direct compounded reason of the velocities and quantities of matter contained in them.—Berkeley. Dialogue i.

MONEST. See MONISH.

MONG-CORN. MENE-MONG, i. e. mixed in a mean or moderate degree.

(Thei) mene-mong corn breed
To her mete fongen.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1567.

MONK, s.

For Christian monkism had not its beginning till many years after (Jewish monkism of the Essens). It had its beginning about the year of our Lord 250.
Prideaux, pt. ii. b. 5.

MONO-MANIA. Gr. Μονος, and μανία, madness. Madness on one subject alone. A word now unhappily in most common use.

MOON, in Gower, is of the masculine gender.—See HE.

And the moone (luna) in alle thingus in his tyme shewende of tyme, and tokne of the spirituel world. Of the moone the signe of the holy day; a liȝt ȝuere that is lassid in the ending. The mooneth (mensis) aftir his name is waxende, merueylously into the ful ending.
Wic. Ecclus. xliii. 6, 7, 8.

Benethe all other (planets) stont the moon.—
And euery fishe, whiche hath a shelle,
Mote in his gouernance dwelle.
(He) is not of him selfe bright,
But as he taketh it of the sonne.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vii. fo. 141[1].

The professors of them (metaphysics and logic) are moon-blind wits.—Warburton. Divine Legation, b. i. § 4.

MOON. } Modern taste or affectation has
MOON-LIT. } introduced this p. p. to supplant the old adj. moonlight. Southey knew better.

So Urien sought Goervyl, whom he found
Alone and gazing on the moonlight sea.—Southey. Madoc, b. i. pt. 1; also Ib. b. xiii. and Ib. b. iii. pt. 2.

MOOT.

It helpe him nothing for to mote
To gete ageyn that he hath lore.
Gower. Conf. Am. i. viii. 177[2].

MORAL, s. is, in the singular, applied to any lesson in morals or morality; to be inferred from any discourse, or story—real or fictitious.

Troy. Whil'st some with cunning guild their copper crownes,
With truth and plainnesse—I doe weare mine bare:
Feare not my truth: the moral of my wit
Is plaine and true—ther's all the reach of it.
Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida, act iv. sc. 4.

Homer's moral was to urge the necessity of union, and of a good understanding betwixt confederate states and princes engag'd in a war with a mighty monarch; as also—of discipline in an army, and obedience in their several chiefs to the supreme commander of the joint forces.
Dryden. Virgil. Dedication to the Æneid.

Good and bad stars moralize not our actions, and neither excuse or commend, acquit or condemn our good or bad deeds at the present or last bar.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. iii. § 7.

Bossu is of opinion, that the poet's first work is to find a moral, which his fable is afterwards to illustrate and establish. This seems to have been the process only of Milton; the moral of other poems is incidental, and consequent; in Milton's only it is essential and intrinsic.
Johnson. Life of Milton.

He left a name at which the world grew pale,
To point a moral or adorn a tale.
Id. Vanity of Human Wishes.

MORDACIOUS.

Xenocles affirmed that these fruits (for the most part) carry with them a certaine piercing and mordicant quality, yet pleasant withal, whereby they provoke and quicken the stomach to appetite.—Holland. Plutarch, fo. 448.

MORE. There are several instances in Piers Plouhman, and see v. 9853.—(Arbor) vitium habet in radice.

It is a ful trie tree, quod he,
Trewely to telle;
Mercy is the more therof,
The myddul stok is ruth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10802.

This Troilus, withouten rede or lore
As man that hath his joyes eke forlore,
Was waiting on his ladie evermore,
As she that was sothefast the croppe and more
Of all his lust or joyes heretofore.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 25.

MORE, adj MORE, s.

Aske thi fadir, and he shal telle to thee, thi more (L. V. thi grettere men, majores), and thei shulen seie to thee.
Wic. Deut. xxxii. 7.

Thei birieden hym with his moris (majoribus suis).
Id. 4 Kings xv. 7.

Every cause is more and worthier than thing caused, and in the mores possession all things lesse ben counted.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

MORIGERATE.

They ought rather to have charged the defects in this kind upon the errors and contumacie of the mind, which refuseth to be pliant and morigerous (morigera) to the nature of things.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. c. 2.

MORSEL.

For men gyuynge tent to drinkis, and ȝuynge mussels (L. V. scot, symbolam) togidre, schulen be waastid.
Wic. Prov. xxiii. 21.

MORTAL.

We ben cast down, but we perischen not, euermore beringe about the mortifying of Jhesu Crist in oure body, (L. V. sleyng, mortificationem.)—Wic. 2 Cor. iv. 10.

The great Physician is come, to free us not onely from all mortiferous diseases, but from mortality itself.
Barrow, v. iii. p. 504. Ser. xliii.

MORTAR.

If thou bete togidere a fool in a morter (in pila) as hoolid barli smytende up on the pestel, shal not ben take awei fro hym his folie.—Wic. Prov. xxvii. 22.

The Lord God shewid to me these thingus: and loo! the Lord stonding on a wall teerid or mortred (L. V. plastrid, litum), and in the hond of hym a trusel of mason.
Id. Amos vii. 7.

MORTRESS. } See MORTAR.
MORTREW. }

MOST.

The moost meschief on molde
Is mountynge wel faste.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 133.

MOTETE. Fr. Motet, from Mot. A verse in music, or of a song; a poesie; a short lay. Cot.

And he made to stonde syngeres aȝen the auter; and in the soun of hem he made swete motetes. (L. V. also motetis, dulces modos.)—Wic. Eccl. xlvii. 11.

MOTH.

Oure bakkes that mothe-eten be.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6340.

He bilde up his hows as a mowȝhe. (L. V. mouȝte, tinea.)
Wic. Job xxvii. 18.

MOTHER.

Away, profane! Hence to your mother-land.
Southey. Madoc, pt. ii. § 7.

The very mother-language which I learnt,
A lisping baby on my mother's knees,
No more with its sweet sounds to comfort me.—Id. Ib. § 5.

MOTION, &c. See MOVE.

MOVE. MOVED. See Woollaston in v. Traduce.

These corsede theves
Fleeth a man for his moebles.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11916.

Swiche motyves thei mene,
Thise maistres in her glorie.—Id. v. 5839.

And al to-moued (commovebitur) shal be the lond.
Wic. Jer. li. 29.

(Ladies) shall hem telle so fele tidings (many) . . .
What with kissing and with talkinges,
That certes if thei trowed be,
Shall never leve hem londe ne fe;
That it n'ill as the moeble fare,
Of whiche they first delivered are.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6048.

Euery man shold mortefye in hym self the moeuynges of hys flessh.—The Golden Legend, fo. 22, c. 2.

MOULD.

It (time) wol not come again . . .
Let us not moulen thus in idelnesse.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Prol. v. 4452.

MOUNT. Fr. Monture. A horse to ride on, a saddle-horse. Cot. Generally, the animal mounted, rode. See Piers Plouhman in v. Most, supra.

And comen shul thei fro the wilde feldus, and fro the mountuous places. (L. V. hilli placis, montuosis.)
Wic. Jer. xvii. 26.

And forward spurr'd his mounture fierce.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. vii. st. 96; also b. xvii. st. 28.

MOUSE.

For the creaturis of God into hate ben mad, and tempting to the soule of men, and into a mouscacche (L. V. trappe, muscipulam) to the feet of unwise men.
Wic. Wisd. xiv. 11.

MOW. A mow of sheeues (acervus manipulorum) is in Wiclif, Ruth iii. 7, a var. r. of "Heep of handfullis." To Mow up, To acervate. Cockeram.

MOW, v. To may; to be able; or have might; (posse) is common in Wiclif. Chaucer (Boecius, b. iv. p. 4.) renders the Lat. Potestas, by "the mowing."

Than thou schalt mowe reise thi face without wem. (E. V. moun, levare poteris.)—Wic. Job xi. 15.

Thou hast ordeyned his termes, that shal not moun be passid ouer (qui præteriri nón poterunt).—Id. Ib. xiv. 5.

Then he shulde not mowe demeane him in undirstondyng nor in mynde, neither he shuld mowe be of power to undirtake any thyng of worship.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, ii. 1.

MOW, i. e. Mouth.

Thei weren scaterid, and not compunct, thei temptiden me, thei stormiden me with mowyng. (E. V. thei undermowiden me with undermowing, subsannaverunt me subsannatione.)—Wic. Ps. xxxiv. 16.

Thou hast put us repref to oure nezebores; under mowing (subsannationem) and scorn to hem that ben in our enuyroun.—Id. Ib. xliii. 14.

MUCH. See Piers Plouhman in v. Moat.

What berth that buyrn? (man) quod I.
Thre leodes in oon lyth,
Noon lenger than oother,
Of oon muchel and might
In mesure and in lengthe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11172.

Thou spakist that thou schuldist do wel to me, and schuldist alarge my seed as the grauel of the see, that mai not be noumbrid for mychilnesse. (E. V. multitude, præ multitudine.)—Wic. Gen. xlii. 12.

And it (the hail storm) was of so greet mychelnes (myche greetnesse, magnitudinis), how greet bifore neuer apeeride in alle the loond of Egipte, sith that folk was maad.
Id. Ex. ix. 24.

That the mochefold wysdom of God (L. V. myche fold, multiformis) be knowen by princis and potestatis.
Id. Eph. iii. 10.

(Her eyen were)
Simple, of good mokel (i. e. size), and not to wide.
Chaucer. The Boke of the Duchesse, v. 862.

The next deluge is that of fire; which will have the same bounds, and overflow the surface of the earth, much-what in the same manner (as that of water).
Burnett. Theory, b. iii. c. 2.

MUCK.

(Ye myghte) bere muk a feld.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4081.

I shal clense the relikis of the hows of Jeroboam, as is wonted to be clensid muk unto the pure. (L. V. dung, fimus.)—Wic. 3 Kings xiv. 10.

MUCK. To run a muck.

The Malays, maddened with opium, rush out, dagger in hand, crying ámok, ámok; i. e. kill, kill.
See Ency. Met. art. Malay.

MUCKEL. See MUCH.

MULBERRY.

And the kyng ȝaue in to Jerusalem syluer and gold as stonys, and cedris as long mulberies. (L. V. as sycomoris, quasi sycomoros.)—Wic. 2 Par. i. 15.

MULCT.

And he putte upon a multynge (L. V. peyne, ether raunsum, mulctam), in an hundreth talentis of syluer, and a talent of gold.—Wic. 4 Kings xxiii. 33.

MULE, s. The Fr. Mulet Cot. interprets—A moyle, mulet, or great mule; and adds, that this great mule is much used in France for carriage of sumpters, &c. Smollett uses the name moyle in distinction from mule:—"the former (the progeny of ass and mare) he loads with baggage, on the latter (the progeny of horse and she-ass) he mounts the servants."—Gil Blas, b. xii. c. 12.

MULL.

He calleth me his whyting—
His mullyng and his mytyng,
His soft-ling, his tender-ling.
Skelton. El. Rum. v. 224.

MULTIFARIOUS.

According to the multifariousness of this imitability, so are the probabilities of being.
Norris. Miscellanies (in Todd).

MUNS, i. e. Mouth, qv. And see Junius, Goth. Gloss. in v. Munths. We have an old saying, "Stuff it in your Muns."

Why, you jade, you look as rosy this morning, I must have a smack at your muns.—Foote. The Minor, act i.

MURDER.

For murtheris are many leches;
Lord hem amende.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4347.

MURE. } A tax for repairing walls. Spel-
MURAGE. } man. In N. Bacon's Historical
MURAGIUM. } Discourses, c. lxvi. p. 229, Murage is named as an unwonted imposition upon Churchmen.

The incessant care and labour of his mind
Hath wrought the mure, that should confine it in,
So thin, that life looks through and will break out.
Shakespeare. Henry IV. Pt. II. act iv. sc. 9.

MURREY.

And ben shal the moreyn (L. V. careyn, morticinum) of this puple, in to mete to the foules of heuene and to the bestus of erthe.—Wic. Jer. vii. 33.

MUSCLE.

A good piece, the painters say, must have good muscling, as well as colouring and drapery.
Shaftesbury. Mor. pt. i. s. 1.

MUSE. MUSET. Cot. has Musette. A little hole, corner or hoard to hide things in; from Musser, to hide, &c., which Menage derives from the Lat. Mussare.

And chase them thorowe the muse
Of your noughty counsell.—Skelton. Replycacion, v. 212.

The Pope, observing how the English bishops had forsaken their archbishop, espyed a muse through which all the game of the Popedom might soon escape, and the Pope be left to sit upon thorns in regard of his authority here in England.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourses, pt. i. c. 58, p. 184.

For these words still left a muse for the people to escape.
Id. Ib. c. 63, p. 207.

MUSSEL. See MORSEL.

MUST, s.

I drynke right ripe must.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12822.

MUTE.

And neuer thelesse the mutableness and euyl disposition of men it is so grete in our dayes.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton.

In flannen robes the coughing ghost does walk,
And his mouth moats like cleaner breech of hawk.
Dryden. Suum cuique.

MUTE, adj.

In mewet (dumbly) spake I, so that nought asterte,
By no condicion, word that might be hard.
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 148.

MUTTER.

Therfore whan Dauid hadde herd his seruauntis speking priveli, ether moterynge (E. V. musyng, mussitantes), he understood that the ȝonge child was deed.
Wic. 2 Kings xii. 19.

And knowen shul the errende in spirit understonding, and the musures (L. V. idel men, mussitatores) shul lerne the lawe.—Id. Is. xxix. 24.

MYRRH.

The thridde (of the Magi)
Presented him with pitee,
Apperynge by mirre.
For mirre is mercy to mene,
And mylde speche of tonge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13137.

MYRTLE.

Thei shulde ben enoynt with myrtine oile. (L. V. oile of myrte tre, oleo myrrhino.)—Wic. Esth. ii. 12.

MYSTERY.

Exodus is open with ten plagis, with the ten hestis, with mystik, and with Goddis preceptis.—Wic. Eph. Pref. p. 68.

James, Petre, Joon and Judee, maden seuene Epistlis, as wel goodly and mystik as compendiouse.—Id. Ib. p. 73.

When in subsequent times Shaftesbury became acquainted with the good Bishop (Burnet), he took undue advantage of his credulity, and mystified him exceedingly.
Campbell's Lives of Chancellors, ii. 298.

N.

NAIL. By nailes, by Goddes nailes: the nails with which he was nailed to the Cross. See Chaucer in Dictionary.

(And) nailed hym with thre nailes
Naked on the roode.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12176.

NAKE.

Who so doth this, the schenship of his flesh he shal nakyn. (L. V. make nakid, nudabit.)—Wic. Lev. xx. 19.

Forfend thi foot fro nakidhed (L. V. nakidnesse, a nuditate), and thi throte fro thrist.—Id. Jer. ii. 25.

O nice men, why nake ye your backes (cur, inertes, terga nudatis?).—Chaucer. Boecius, b. iv. m. 7.

NAKERES. L. Lat. Nacara. A kind of brazen drum used in the cavalry. Tyrwhitt. And see Du Cange.

Pipes, trompes, nakeres, and clarioun,
That in the bataille blowen blody sounes.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2513.

NALE.

(They) songen atte nale.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4027.

NAME. NAMELY; Wiclif renders the Lat. vel and præsertim, namelich, namely.

And whanne a childe was conseyued, she nemyde (E. V. nemnyde, vocavit) the childe borun, Onam.
Wic. Gen. xxxviii. 4.

This boke of namys is vicious . . . . And thilk nemenyngis not men as many eymen, bot cytees, and regiouns, and wodis, and prouyncis sownen.
Id. Prol. to 2 Paralipomenon.

NAS. } i. e. Ne was, was not, and see NAM, in
NES. } Dictionary.
NYS. }

He nas kyng bote on ȝer.—Robert of Gloucester, v. 217.

Non wonder it nys.—Id. v. 289.

Ther n'as no good day, ne no saluing,
But, streit, withouten wordes rehercing,
Every of hem helpe to armen other.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1651.

NATURE. A natural child, at common law, is an illegitimate child; but in the civil (Roman) law, it seems contradistinguished from an adopted child. And see the Quotation from Shakespeare, infra.

Nature, the Vicare of the Almighty,
That hote, cold, heuie, light, moist and drie
Hath knitt, by euen number of accord
In easie voice, began to speake.
Chaucer. The Assemble of Foules, v. 179.

I tell thee, Charles, it is the stubbornest yong fellow of France, full of ambition, an enuious emulator of euery man's good parts, a secret and villanous contriuer against mee his naturall brother.
Shakespeare. As You Like It, act i. sc. 1, fo. 186.

That which all men have at all times learned, Nature herself must needs have taught; and God being the Author of Nature, her voice is but his instrument. By her, from him, we receive whatsoever in such sort we learn.
Hooker. Ecclesiastical Polity, b. i. § 8.

Natural born subjects are such as are born within the dominions of the crown of England; that is, within the liegiance, or as it is generally called, the allegiance of the King, and aliens, such as are born out of it.
Blackstone. Commentaries, v. i. ch. 10.

NAVE.

And the axe-tre of hem, and the spokys, and the felys, and the naue (modioli), all ȝoten.—Wic. 3 Kings vii. 33.

His strengthe (is) in his leendis, and his vertue in the nauele of his wombe (umbilico ventris).—Id. Job xl. 11.

NAUGHT.

And alle manere of men
That thow might aspie,
That nedy ben and noughty,
Help hem with thi goodes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4245.

NAVY.

Forsothe Kyng Salomon made a nauee (L. V. o schip, classem) in Aziongaber . . . . And Yram sente in that nauee his seruauntis, schipmen and wise of the see.
Wic. 3 Kings vii. 33.

NAWL.

And the Lord shal perse his eere with a nal (L. V. an alle, subula), and he schall be seruaunt to hym til in to the world (in seculum).—Wic. Ex. xxi. 6.

NEAT.

The pris neet of Piers plow,
Passynge alle othere.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13487.

And Amos answerde, and seide to Amasye, Y am not a prophete, Y am not the sone of a prophete; but a nete herd Y am. (L. V. a herd of neet, armentarius.)
Wic. Amos vii. 14.

NECESSARY.

Lo! ther is not helpe to me in me: also my necessarie men wenten awei fro me. (L. V. meyneal frendis, necessarii mei.)—Wic. Job vi. 13; and in 2 Mac. iv. 3, necessaries, or niȝ freendes.

Though sometimes necessitousness be dumb, or misery speak not out; yet true charity is sagacious, and will find out hints for beneficence.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. ch. 6.

NECK.

In that dai the Lord shal don awei the ournement of shon . . . . and pynnes, and sheweres (specula), and necke coucrcheues. (L. V. small lynun clothis about the schuldris, sindones; var. r. neckercheuys.)—Wic. Is. iii. 23.

NECROMANCER. In Deut. xviii. 11, the M.V. has this word. In Wic. it is Counseil rerers of deed men. In Bible, 1549, it is propheciar, explained in the margin, "Thei aske ye aduyse of the dead that coniure sprites in the night, thinking that thei are soules departed."

NEDDER.

Eche a word that he warpe
Was of a neddres touge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2648.

NEED.

To obesteyn fro oothis nedeles and unleeveful, and to eschewe pride, and speke onour of God . . . . . is matir and cause now whi prelatis . . . . sclaundren men, and clepen hem lollardis . . . .—Wic. Bible. Prol. p. 33.

Also lordis and prelatis exciten strongly to ydolatarie, for thei sweren custumably, nedelessly, and ofte unavisely and fals, by the membris of God, of Crist, and by Seintis.
Id. Ib.

Who thoȝt this up on Tyrun (Tyre) sum tyme crouned, whos nedeboeris (weren) princis (L. V. merchauntis, negotiatores), his marchaundis noble men of the erthe.
Id. Is. xxiii. 8.

The trauaile of Egipt, and the nede doing (negotiatio) or merchaundise of Ethiope, and of Sabaym.—Id. Ib. xlv. 14.

And some ysain that nedely, there is none,
But that fre choice is yeven us everichone.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 970.

For nedefully, behoveth it nat be
That thilke thinges fallen in certaine
That ben purveyed; but nedefully as they saine,
Behoveth it, that thinges which that fall,
That they in certaine ben purveyed all.
Id. Ib. b. iv. vv. 1004, 6.

What it was we hear not;
No preface needs, thou seest we long to know.
Milton. Samson Agonistes, v. 1554.

NEEDLE.

The girdil forsothe of bijs foldun aȝen, purpur and reed cloth, twynned with nedle craft. (L. V. craft of broyderie, arte plumaria.)—Wic. Ex. xxxix. 28.

He hath his right cours forth holde
By stone and nedle till he cam
To Tarse, and there his lande he nam.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 176[d].

NEENTISHE, v. See ANIENT.

And he shal confounde thee in his metes, to the tyme he neentishe (L. V. anyntische, exiniuat) thee twies or thries, and in the laste he shal scorne thee.—Wic. Ecclus. xiii. 8.

NEESE.

His nesing (L. V. fnesynge, sternutatio) (is) shynyng of fyr, and his eȝen as eȝelidis of morntid.—Wic. Job xli. 9.

NEGLECT.

But the Leuytis diden it more negligently (negligentius).
Wic. 2 Par. xxiv. 5.

NEIGH.

Whether shalt tho gyue to the hors strengthe, or don about his necke neyenge (hinnitum).—Wic. Job xxxix. 19.

NEIGHBOUR.

But a womman shal axe of hir neiȝboresse (vicinâ), and of her hoostessee siluern vesselis, and goldun, and clothis.
Wic. Ex. iii. 22.

NEMENE, NEMPNE, i. e. Name, qv.

NEPHEW. Lat. Nepos (most probably from ne-potis; hence the contracted form neptis; primary signification—not strong, weak. Freund). Neptis, as also nepos, were used in both mas. and fem. In Wiclif, 1 Tim. v. 4, the Lat. Nepotes, is rendered "Children of sons;" in Bible, 1549, "Neues;" in M. V. "Nephews," from Gr. εκγονα.

This year dyed Helda, the holy abesse of Whytby before spoken of; she was the neuew of Edwyne, some tyme, and lately, Kynge of Northumberland.
Fabian. Chronicles, cap. cxxxv. p. 121.

(Clodoneus) herynge reporte of the beaute and great vertue of Clotilda, neuew to Cundebald, Kynge or ruler of Burgoyne, sente unto hym a knight named Aurelius, to treate a maryage atween the Kynge and Clotild.
Id. Ib. cap. xcvii. p. 71.

NERE. Ne were. See NAS, supra.

NESH.

God hath maad neische myn hert (E. V. tempride, mollivit); and Almiȝti God hath disturblid me.
Wic. Job xxiii. 16.

A nesshe answere (L. V. soft, mollis) breketh wrathe; an hard woord rereth woodnesse.—Id. Prov. xv. 7.

NETHER.

Thou shalt not task in stedde of a wed, the nethermore and ouermore grynstoon (L. V. lowere and hiȝere) (of thi brothir), for his lijf he put to thee.—Wic. Deut. xxiv. 6.

My mouth is not hid fro thee, the whiche thou madest in priue: and my substaunce is in the nethermoris of the erthe. (L. V. lower partis, inferioribus.)
Id. Ps. cxxxviii. 15.

NEVER.

And he seide, Nerthelatere (L. V. netheles, veruntamen) my puple (it) is, sonus not denyende, and mad is to them a saueour.—Wic. Is. lxiii. 8.

NEW and NEW—Now and now, qv.

A clene herte forme in me, God, and a riȝt spirit inwardli newe (L. V. make thou newe, innova) in my bowelis.
Wic. Ps. l. 12.

And Pandare wept as he to water would,
And poked ever his nece, newe and newe.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 116.

NICK.

And then she nicked him Naye,
And I doubt sheele do you the same.
King Estmere (in Percy).

NIECE. The Lat. Neptis ex filia, is rendered by Wiclif, in L. V. neece of thy douȝter; and in E. V. thi douȝter douȝter. Lev. xviii. 10. And in Gen. xxxi. 43, Nepotes mei, E. V. mi neeces; and L. V. sones of sones.

NIFLE.

I am as full of game
As euer I was, and as full of tryfyls,
Nil, nihilum, nihil, anglice nyfyls.
Skelton. Magnyfycence, v. 1157.

NIGGLE, v. } To play a trick of mockery or NIGGLER, s. } delusion (on ourselves or others) in Todd. One who is clever and dextrous (sc. in playing such tricks). North, Grose. The Fr. Niger, to trifle; to play the fop or nidget. Cotgrave (see NIDING, NIDGET), has been proposed; but Niggle may be nickle, a dim. of Nick, in its consequential usage of to Cheat, &c. See NICK.

Take heed, daughter,
And niggle not with your conscience and religion.
Massinger. Emperor of the East.

I shall so feed your fierce vexation,
And raise your Worship's storms: I shall so niggle you,
And juggle you; and fiddle you, and firk you.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Pilgrim, act iv. sc. 3.

NIGH.

And it neghede neigh the noon.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13934.

He cam neiȝynge to the curtin (E. V. neȝhende, proximans), and he reiside it, and siȝ the deed body with out the heed of Holofernes.—Wic. Judith xiv. 14.

The neeȝh forsothe (L. V. neiȝbore, propinquus) of them is strong; and he shal demen aȝen thee the causis of hem.
Id. Prov. xxiii. 11.

Not that sche (Judith) purposede to bringe hym to dedly synne, but that he schulde desire to haue hir to wijf, and bi this thing Judith schulde haue homeli neiȝing to him, by which sche myȝte sle him.
Id. Judith xvi. 11, mar. note.

NILL.

Leten I nelle (I will not let or hinder)
That ech man ne shal haue his.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3404.

NIM.

If I yede to the plough,
I pynched so narwe,
A foot lond or a forow
Fecchen I wolde

Of my next neghebore,
And nymen of his erthe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8774.

NO. Nobut, pronounced nŏbŭt, is common in the North.

No but (nisi) of the heȝest were sent out visityng ne gyne thou in hem thin herte.—Wic. Ecclus. xxxiv. 6.

Forsothe Y say to ȝou, no but (L. V. that but, quia nisi) ȝif ȝoure riȝtwisnesse shal be more plenteuouse than of Scribis and Pharisees, ȝe shulen not entre in to kyngdam of heuene.—Id. Mat. v. 20.

NOBLE.

And be prester at your preiere
Than for a pound of nobles (the coin).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6210.

And he (Eleasar) began for to thenke the worthi excellence of age, and of his elde, and freborun horenesse of noblei (ingenitæ nobilitatis canitiem) and of best lyuyng fro child.—Wic. 2 Mac. vi. 23.

Those who of commoners are nobilifted (plebeios nobiles) are all alike and of the same profession.
Holland. Livy, b. xxii. c. 34, p. 453.

NOETICAL, adj. Gr. Νοητικος, from νο-ειν, to think, to understand; distinguished by Cudworth from Phantastical. See PHANTASM.

There are spurious phantasms that do little or nothing symbolize with the noetical cogitations, that yet are arbitrarily or customarily annected to them merely because the phantastic power would not stand wholly idle and unemployed.—Cudworth. Immutable Morality, b. iv. c. 1.

NOISE. Also, the persons making the noise, as a noise of musicians. See Shakespeare, Henry IV. Pt. II. act ii. sc. 4; and Milton, At a Solemn Music, v. 18, "A melodious noise."

A leccherous thing (is) win; and noiseful (is) drunkenesse (L. V. ful of noise, tumultuosa); who so euer in these thingis deliteth shal not be wis.—Wic. Prov. xx. 1.

Old K. Have you prepar'd good musick?
Sir Gr. As fine a noise, uncle, as heart can wish.
Beaum. and Fletcher. Wit at Several Weapons, act i.

NOLL.

And if oon hadde be hard nollid (E. V. rered up the nol, cervicatus) (it is) wondur if he hadde be giltes.
Wic. Ecclus. xvi. 11.

NOMBRE, i. e. Number, qv.

NOME. See NIM.

NOMPERE. See UMPIRE.

NON-CONFORMING. Non-conformist, or non-conforming clergy. Those who refused to conform to the Church of England by subscribing certain articles required by the Act of Uniformity, An. 1662; and see the Quotation from Fuller.

The juditious reader will distinguish three classes of Non-conformists, 1. Antient Non-conformists here in King Edward's daies, who desired only to shake down the leaves of Episcopacy, misliking only some of the garments. 2. Middle Non-conformists, in the end of Queene Elizabeth and beginning of King James, who struck at the branches thereof; chancellours and officials, and other appendent limbs, which they endeavoured to remove. 3. Modern Non-conformists, who did lay the axe to the root of the tree, to cut down the function itself, as unlawfull and antichristian.—Fuller. Church History, Cent. XVI. b. vii. § 30. A. D. 1550.

NONE. See NOON.

NON-POWER. In Wiclif, Bible, Wisd. xii. 10, on the words, "Her thouȝt myȝt not be chaungid," is this note.

This is not outirli nounpower; but in party, for as longe as a man lyueth, he may turne aȝen to good; but this nounpower is in parti, for suche men moun turne aȝen with hardnesse, from the custom of synne enclynynge bi maner of kynde.

NON-SURETY. In-security.

They euery day put it in peryll and nonsurete.
Wurcestre, Erle of. Oracion of Flammeus Cayus.

NOOT, v. NOTE.

Just men and wise men ben; and her werkis ben in the hond of God: and netheless a man noot (E. V. wot not, nescit) whether he is worthi of loue or of hatrede.
Wic. Eccles. ix. 1.

She hath lost all appetite
Of mete and drynke, of nightes rest,
As she that note what is best.
Gower. Conf. Am. l. 8, fo. 178[a].

NORICE, NORITURE. See NOURISH.

NORIE, s. A foster child. Filius nutricius, alumnus.

(This ladye) saied these wordes, O my Norie, wenest thou that my maner bee to foryete my frendes!
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

O my norice (norie, alumne), quod she; Philosophy, I say thou art blisfull, if thou put this therto that I shall sayne.
Id. Boecius, b. iii. pr. 9.

NORMAL. Lat. Normalis, from Norma, a rule; —a rule to measure right angles. Fr. Normal (a modern word). Florio has—It. Norma, normare, normevole. See ENORM. The Fr. Ecoles Normales were first established in France, An. 3 of the Republic.

Measured by, conformed to, rule; constructed upon, conducted according to, regular, systematic principles. Applied to schools in which future teachers are trained and taught upon such principles,—are being practised also—in Preparatory or Model Schools—in the management and tuition of the children of the poorer classes.

The deviations from the normal type or decasyllable line would not justify us in concluding that it (rhythmical cadence) was disregarded.
Hallam. Literature of Europe, v. i. p. 595.

NOSE. Wiclif renders tortus nasus, a wrong nose. Lev. xxi. 19.

The glorie of his (the horse) nosethirlis is drede. (L. V. nesethertis, narium.)—Wic. Job xxxix. 20.

NOTE, NOTE-HED. See NOTTED.

NOTE. Doth his note (Chaucer), minds his mark.

This miller goth agan; no word he said;
But doth his note, and with these clerkes plaid,
Till that hir corn was faire and wel yground.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4066.

Nennius or his Notist avers that Arthur was called Mab-Uther, that is to say, a cruel son, for the fierceness that men saw in him of a child. (Uther, signifying in Welch, Dreadful.)—Milton. History of England, b. iii.

As some do perceive, yea, and like it well, they should be so noticed.—T. Howard, in Harrington's Nugæ Ant. (from Todd) about 1608.

It is a noticeable fact, that of all the poets in the intermediate half century, not one who attained any distinction which he has since held, or is likely to hold, was of the School of Pope.—Southey. Life of Cowper, v. ii, p. 142.

Some village poet,
Who, noteless as the race from which he sprung,
Saved others names, and left his own unsung.
Scott. Waverley, c. xiii.

NOTE-MUGE. s. Nut.

NOTHER. Ne other, Neither, qv.

NOUCH. See OUCH.

NOUGHT (noght), i. e. naught, qv.

NOUMPERE. See UMPIRE.

NOURISH.

And Moyses seide, Lo! ȝe encreassyngis, and nurreis, ethir nurschid children (alumni) of synful men, han ryse for ȝoure fadris, that ȝe schulden encreesse the strong veniaunce of the Lord aȝens Israel.—Wic. Num. xxxii. 14.

The candlestik to susteyne the liȝtes, the vessels of it, and lanternes, and oile to the noryshing of fyres. (L. V. nurschyngis, ad nutrimenta.)—Id. Ex. xxxv. 14.

Greithed is forsothe fro ȝisterday, Tofeth, fro the kyng greithid; his nurshemens (nutrimenta) (ben) deep and spred, fyr, and myche wode.—Id. Is. xxx. 33.

And kingis shal be thi nurscheres (nutritii), and queenes thi nursis (nutrices).—Id. Is. xlix. 23.

Alas, that your benigne eyen, in which that mercie seemeth to have all his noriture, nill by no wai tourne the clerenesse of mercie to mewardes.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

Hire (the miller's wife) thought that a ladie should her spare,
What for hire kindred and hire norturie,
That she had lerned in the nonnerie.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 3965.

NOVEL.

Some novelists make a contracted idea of God, consisting of nothing else but will and power.
Cudworth. Immutable Morality, b. i. ch. 3, § 8.

NOVICE.

Brave Plantagenet,
That princely novice, was struck dead by thee.
Shakespeare. King Richard III. act i. sc. 4.

NOW. Now and now (as New and new, qv.) again and again.

And ever as she stood
She swouned now and now, for lack of blood.
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10744.

Nothing is there to come, and nothing past;
But an eternal Now does ever last.
Cowley. Davideis, b. i.

(The schoolmen) supposed eternity a standing point with God, or a perpetual Now, so that all past and future ages are as actually present before him, as this instant moment is with us.
Tucker. Light of Nature, pt. ii. c. 13, § 2, Eternity.

Yet years were not—one dreadful Now
Endur'd no change of night or day.
Crabbe. Sir Eustace Grey.

NOY. The Early Version of Wiclif writes noyȝe, the later anoie. "He shal speke wordis of anoie," loquetur verba tædii.—Ecclus. xxix. 6.

How longe, ȝee litle childer, looven childhed, and foolis tho thingus that ben noysum (L. V. harmful) shul coveiten, and unprudent men shuln haten kunning.
Wic. Prov. i. 22.

My soule nappide for noȝe (L. V. anoye, præ tædio): conferme thou me in thi woordis.—Id. Ps. cxviii. 28.

The Lord is Defendere of my lijf; for whom schal I tremble? the while noiful men (L. V. noȝeris, nocentes) neiȝen on me for to ete my fleischis.—Id. Ib. xxvi. 2.

Yet evre' among, sothly to saine,
I suffre noie and mochel paine.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3772.

NOZZLE, s.

A basen! cried another, no such matter, 'tis nothing but a paltry old sconce, with the nozzle broken off.
Mem. of Martinus Scrib. c. iii.

NUMBER.

Numeri forsothe, whether the conteynen not the mysteries of al the hool craft of noumbrarie.
Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 68.

Thei dolue myn hondis, and my feet; and ful noumbrable maden alle my bones. (L. V. thei noumbriden, dinumeraverunt.)—Id. Ps. xxi. 18.

NUMERATE.

The numerosity of the sentence (expressing a proverb) pleased the ear, and the vivacity of the image dazzled the fancy.—Dr. Parr. Discourse on Education.

NURSE.

Thanne thei leten hir, and Delborah, hir noryshe (L. V. nurse, nutricem), and the seruaunt of Abraham, and the withfolloweris of hir.—Wic. Gen. xxiv. 59.

NUT. Chaucer writes Note as well as Nut.

And many homely trees there were,
Notes, &c.—Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1377.

O.

O, i. e. One, qv.

OASIS, or AUASIS, s. A Greek form of a Coptic or Egyptian word preserved by the Arabs; Wahe, i. e. habitation; applied to—A small inhabited tract, fertilized by springs; surrounded by vast deserts, yet protected from the moving sands by hills. The Oasis of Herodotus was a city about seven days' journey from Thebes over the sands, and called in Greek, "The Island of the Happy."—Thalia, c. xxvi.

Timasius was sentenced to live in Oasis, and sent thither with the common guard upon him. Now this Oasis was a sad barren place, from whence no man could ever return who was once carry'd into it.—Zosimus, b. v.

OBEY.

Forsothe betre is obeischaunce than slayn sacrifices. (L. V. obedience, obedientia.)—Wic. 1 Kings xv. 22.

OBFIRM.

This is nothing but a Spartan obfirmation of mind, back'd with a sense of shame, a desire of glory, on the contentment of being conscious to themselves of their own stoutness and tolerance.—H. More. On Enthusiasm, § 59.

OBIT.

And after the obite of hym (Abraham) (L. V. deeth, obitum) God blisside to Ysaac, his sone.
Wic. Gen. xxv. 11.

As soon as the kynges obyte was done.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 140.

OBJECT, v. s. Object and Subject are in metaphysics distinguished—Object, expressing the cause, and Subject, the effect—Object, the external thing, and Subject, the internal thought. See THING. Language has but one name for both. This distinction, however, is in great favour with modern metaphysicians, who extend the application of the word subject, from the thought to that which thinks —the mind; see the Quotation from Coleridge, who elsewhere finds need for the v. To objectize, and the substantives—Objectivity and Subjectivity.

The Subject (be it observed) is the Ego of the German School, and the Object is the Non Ego. Coleridge (see infra) opposes the Phænomena—by which the Existence of Nature is made known to us—to Self or Intelligence. All are but new terms for the Sensible qualities of Locke and Berkeley, and for the Mind of the former, and for the Spirit or Myself of the latter. In Siris, § 292, Berkeley teaches, that the real and objective natures of natural phænomena, i. e. natural appearances, are the same.

Hale and Cudworth supply instances of the familiar use of Objective and Objectiveness (see in the Dictionary). And the two words, Objective and Subjective, are employed in opposition as familiarly by theological writers. See Subjective, infra. And see Richardson on the Study of Words, p. 238, particularly the Quotations from Sir William Hamilton and Bishop Berkeley.

Singly (the thoughts of men), are every one of them a representation or appearance of some quality or other accident of a body without us; which is called an Object.
Hobbes. Of Man, pt. i. c. 1.

Now the sum of all that is merely Objective, we will henceforth call Nature, confining the term to its passive and material sense, as comprising all the phænomena by which its existence is made known to us. On the other hand the sum of all that is Subjective, we may comprehend in the name of SELF or INTELLIGENCE.
Coleridge. Biographia Literaria, v. i. p. 259.

OBLIGE. Pope, in his Prol. to the Sat. l. 208, rhymes oblig'd with besieg'd.

Who baebiteth to any thing, he oblisheth hymself (L. V. byndith, obligat) in to the time to come; who forsothe dredeth the heste, in pes shal wone.—Wic. Prov. xiii. 13.

Thei ben oblisht, and fellen (L. V. bounduu, obligati sunt); we forsothe risen, and ben up riȝt.—Id. Ps. xix. 9.

Obligation necessarily implies an obliger; the obliger must be different from, and not one and the same with the obliged. (See Paley in v. Law, supra.)
Warburton. Divine Legation of Moses, b. i. sec. 4

OBNOXIOUS.

In war and peace, things hurtful we require,
When made obnoxious to our own desire.
Dryden. Juvenal, Sat. x. l. 11.

OBSECRATION.

The remnaunt forsothe of the dedis of Manasse, and the obsecration of hym to his God (L. V. bisechyng, obsecratio) . . . ben conteyned in the Wordis of the kyngis of Israel.
Wic. 2 Par. xxxiii. 18.

With obsecrations (L. V. bisechings) spekith the pore man; and a riche man shal speke out ruggidli.
Id. Prov. xviii. 23.

OBSTETRICATE.

For which cause that wise philosopher, Socrates, altogether shunned that dictating and dogmatical way of teaching used by the sophisters of that age, and chose rather an aporetical (inquiring doubtfully) and obstetricious method.—Cudworth. Immutable Morality, b. iv. c. 1.

OBTAIN, v.

There is due from the judge to the advocate some commendation and gracing, where causes are well handled and fair pleaded; especially towards the side which obtaineth not.—Bacon. Essay. Of Judicature.

OBVIATE, v.

Nor obvious hill,
Nor streit'ning vale, nor wood, nor stream divides,
Thir perfet ranks.—Milton. Par. L. b. vi. v. 69.

The Trojans, Tuscan and Arcadian line,
With equal courage obviate their design.
Dryden. Æneid, b. xii. v. 422.

OCCISION.

They made great occision.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 654.

OCCLUDE. See OVERLAP.

How therefore has nature provided for the opening of this occluded bill (of the parrot).
Paley. Natural Theology, c. xvi. s. 4.

OCCUPY. In Luke xix. 13, the Vulgate, Negotiamini, is rendered by Wiclif—Chaffare; in Bible, 1549, the expression is, Buy and sell. In Modern Version, Occupy till I come. A. S. Ceapiath. And see the Quotation from North in the Dictionary.

Sty vp, and sey to Achab, Joyn thi chare, and cum down, lest reyn before occupy (occupet) thee.
Wic. 3 Kings xviii. 44.

Bertaulte of Malygnes, who is now renomed the rychest man of sylver and gold that is knowne in any place by reason of the course of merchandize that he useth by land and see: he occupyeth (i. e. carries on business, tradeth) to Dāmas, to Cayre, and to Alexandre.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 318.

They that go down to the sea in ships, and occupie by the great waters, they see the workes of the Lord, and his wonders in the deepe.—Bp. Jewell. Sermon on Josh. vi. 1.

Thus haue we made, as it were, a small globe of the intellestual world, as faithfully as we could, togither with a designation and description of those parts which I find not constantly occupate (occupatas) or not well converted by the industry and labour of men.
Wats. Bacon, Advancement of Learning, b. ix. last ch.

Upon ten thousand pounds diligently occupied they may live in great plenty and splendour.
Dr. Johnson to Mrs. Thrale.

OCCUR.

Much more were the Romanes affrighted and troubled with this sudden occurrent.—Holland. Livy, p. 434.

OCEAN.

Whether thou entridist in to the depthe of the see and walkidist in the last partis of the occion? (E. V. se, abysmi.)
Wic. Job xxxviii. 16.

ODIOUS.

The sone of the odiows (L. V. hateful, odiosæ) he shal knowe first goten, and he shal ȝyue to hym of thes thingis, that he hath alle thingis dowble.—Wic. Deut. xxi. 17.

ODOUR, s.

I thoughte for to haue taken alyaunce with an odyfferaunt (odoriferant) floure.
Skelton. Three Fooles. Of Envy.

OFFEND, v.

What is a slander to offend or be an offendide to any man? It is whereby the faith or charity of our brother is offended or hurt.—Becon. The Demands of Holy Scripture.

OFFSPRING, s. In Fairefax, i. e. spring-off or from princes; her princely rank.

Nor was her princely offspring damnified,
Or ought disparag'd by these colours base.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. vii. st. 18.

OFT.

And I schal don aweye Jerusalem, as tablis ben wont to ben don aweye; doynge aweye I schal turnen, and bryngyn ofter (L. V. ful oft, crebrius) the poyntel upon his face.
Wic. 4 Kings xxi. 13.

OILET. See EYELET.

OKER, v. and s. By this word Wiclif renders the Lat. Fœnus and Fœnerare. From Goth. Aukan; A. S. Eac-an, to eke, qv. And see Ocker in Jamieson. To aug-ment, to increase (by lending on interest).

Thow shalt oker (L. V. leene) to many folkis, and thi self shal not borwe to oker of eny man. (L. V. take borrowing, fœnus accipies.)—Wic. Deut. xxviii. 12.

OLD. In Chaucer, Age; also, Aged man. See Eld, supra.

He had a beres skin cole-black for olde.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2144.

And at the last the king hath me behold
With sterne visage; and seid, What doth this olde
Thus far ystope in yeres, com so late
Unto the courte?—Id. Court of Loue, v. 280.

OLIFAUNT, i. e. Elephant, qv.

OLIVE.

I smote ȝou in brenning wynd, and in myldew, the multitude of ȝour gardeyns, and ȝour vijn ȝerdis; and olyuetis or placis wher olyues wexen, and fijge placis eruke eete.
Wic. Amos iv. 9.

OMNIFORM.

God being all things, is contrary unto nothing, out of which were made all things, and so nothing became something, and omneity informed nullity into an essence.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 35.

ON-BIDE. See UNBIDE.

ONE is used indefinitely, without specifying any particular individual, but when so used it is distinguished from the numeral One; and considered to be the Fr. On, which the Etymologists (Menage and Roquefort) derive from the Old Fr. Hom, man. Thus—On dit, On fait, are Hom dit, Hom fait. Ascham (see in Todd's Johnson) observes, that formerly the English used Men, where they now use One. As "they live obscurely, Men know not how, and die obscurely, Men know not when." We should say—One knows not how or when. But that such usage was established before Ascham's time is manifest from the Quotation from Gower, in Dictionary. One, has the pl. Ones.

Macd. He has no children.—All my pretty ones?
Shakespeare. Macbeth, act iv. sc. 3.

ONE. See Athanasian Creed, in v. Three, infra.

After one (standard), alike. See Chaucer, in Dictionary.

At one. See ATONE.

In one (course), without ceasing. Chaucer, infra.

Non sauh but he one (alone).—Robert of Brunne, p. 44.

And thus I wente wilde wher
Walkyng myn one (myself alone).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5023.

That oon dooth, alle dooth,
And ech dooth by his one (himself alone).
Id. Ib. v. 11775.

And loo! a man of the cumpanye, criede, seyinge, Maistir, I biseche thee, byhold in to my sone, for he is oon aloone to me (unicus; a var. r. has oonleyn; and Luke viii. 42, olypi; vii. 12, oonlypi, are text readings).
Wic. Luke ix. 38.

These thingus thenkende, that hem (being) slain, he shuld aspie (insidiaretur) to oure onlihed (L. V. aloonenesse; that is, to us silf aloone, nostræ solitudini) and the reume of Persis to ouerbern in to Macedoyne.—Id. Esth. xvi. 14.

And ioyne hem the toon to the tother to thee in to oo tre: and thei shuln be into oonyng (L. V. onement, unionem) in thin hond.—Id. Ezek. xxxvii. 17.

Sir! saideth thei, we ben at one,
By even accorde of everichone,
Out take richesse, all onely.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5820.

And eke his herte had compassion
Of wimmen, for they wepten ever in on.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 1773.

That lord hath litel of discretion
That in swiche cas can no division,
But weigheth pride and humblesse after on.
Id. Ib. v. 1783.

And they and he, upon this incorporation and institution, and onyng themself into a realme, ordaynyd, &c.
Fortescue (in Crombie), p. 375.

Our God is one, or rather onenesse, and meere unitie, having nothing but it selfe in it selfe, and not consisting (as all things doe besides God) of many things.
Hooker. Ecclesiastical Polity, i. § 2.

ONEIROCRITICK, s.

Even to dream that we are dead, was no condemnable phantasm in old oneirocriticism, as having a signification of liberty, vacuity from cares, exemption and freedom from troubles unknown unto the dead.
Browne. Letter to a Friend.

ONION.

Into mynde come to us the goordis, and the peponys (melouns), and the leeke, and the uniouns (L. V. oyniouns, cepæ), and the garlekes.—Wic. Num. xi. 5.

ONY, i. e. Any, qv.

OPEN.

(Thei) seiden to Petre, Treuly and thou art of hem, for whi and thi speche makith thee opyn. (L. V. known, manifestum.)—Wic. Mat. xxvi. 73.

OPERATE, v.

Nor are we ignorant that there is a mere mechanicall knowledge, which is meerly empericall and operaris (operariam) not depending on physique.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iii. c. 5.

OPINE, v.

Opinion is while a thing is none certaine, and hidde from mens very knowledging, and by no parfite reason fully declared, as thus: If the sonne be so mokel as men wenē, or els if it be more than the earth.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. iii.

OPPOSE, v.

Gent. Her grace sate downe
To rest awhile, some halfe an houre or so,
In a rich chaire of state, opposing freely
The beauty of her person to the people.
Shakespeare. Henry VIII. act iv. sc. 1.

OPPROBRY.

And in thyse foure thynges here Ihu cryst had opprobryes and blasphemyes.—The Golden Legend, fo. xiv. c. 4.

City even then
Above all cities noted for dire deeds!

Yet doom'd to be the scene of blacker guilt,
Opprobry more enduring.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. iii. v. 89.

OR, ORE. Mr. Tyrwhitt says, Grace, favour, protection.

He wepte on God vaste ynow, and cryde hym mylce and ore (mercy and grace).—Robert of Gloucester, p. 281.

This church, in was (whose) ore I am ido.—Id. p. 475.

Lemman! thy grace, and swetè bird, thyn ore.
Chaucer. Marchantes Tale, v. 3724.

OR, i. e. Ere.

The whiche whanne thow bringyst in, and he etith, he blisse to thee or than (L. V. bifore that, priusquam) he die.
Wic. Gen. xxvii. 10.

ORATION. Wiclif renders the Lat. Oratio, Orisoun.

Wherfor whan Æschines was exilid in to Rody, and thilke orisoun of Demostenes was red, that he had anentis him, alle men wondrynge and preisynge, he seide sore sizȝyng, "What if ȝe hadden herd thilke beest tellynge his owne wordis."—Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 63, col. 2.

Judith wente into her oratorie (oratorium) and, clothende her with an heire (cilicio), putte askes up on hir hed.
Id. Judith ix. 1.

What errour is so rotten and putrid, which some oratorious varnish hath not sought to colour over with shews of truth and piety.
Bp. Taylor. Artificial Handsomeness, p. 20 (in Todd).

Not in his alb and cope, and orary,
Came Urban now.—Southey. Don Roderick, § xviii.

ORCHARD.

Y made ȝerdis and orcherdis. (E. V. gardynes and appil gardynes, hortos et pomaria.)—Wic. Eccles. ii. 5.

ORD. See OR, in Dictionary.

ORDAIN.

Ordeigne thee an hous, Piers,
To herbewe inne thi cornes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13596.

ORDER.

Order itself is only the adaptation of means to an end: a principle of order therefore can only signify the mind and intention which so adapts them.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. v. § 6.

ORDINAL, ORDINARY, &c. See ORDAIN.

ORGAN.

And (I dremed) how Hosanna by organye
Oldefolk songen.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12088.

ORTHODOX.

I proceed now to the second thing implied in being faithful; and that is purity and orthodoxness.
Killingebeck. Sermons, p. 17 (in Todd).

OSCITATE, v. Dr. Johnson, though he has not this word in its place (nor has Mr. Todd), uses it to explain the v. To yawn:—To gape, to oscitate.

OSTIARY.

Lastly (come) ostiaries, which used to ring the bells, and open and shut the church-doors.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, c. x. p. 28.

OSTRICH. The Lat. Struthio is rendered by Wiclif, E. V. ostriche; L. V. a strucioun. Lev. xi. 16.

OUCH. NOUCH.

And he sente to him a golden laxe or nouche, as custume is for to be gouen to cosyns of kyngus.
Wic. 1 Mac. x. 89, et aliter.

OVER. The Glossary to Wiclif's Bible (Oxford, 1850) collects numerous examples of Over prefixed, and of many where it is merely preposed—now out of use. Some are renderings of the Lat. Trans and others of Super—in Composition.

TRANS.

OVER-BEAR, v.

Thou shalt not ouerbere the teermes of the neiȝboure (transferes).—Deut. xix. 14.

OVER-CARRY, v.

He ouercarrede them thurȝ ful myche water. (L. V. ledde over, transtulit.)—Wis. x. 18.

OVER-CHANGING, s.

The fadir of liȝtis anentis whom is not ouerchaunging (transmutatio).—James i. 17.

OVER-FLEE, v.

As a brid that ouerfleth. (L. V. flieth over, transvolat.)
Wis. v. 11.

TRANS.

OVER-LEAD, v.

And hem that knowen not thee thou ouerledist. (L. V. ledist ouer, traducis.)—Wis. xii. 17.

OVER-LEAP, v.

In to the chirche thei shul not ouerlepen. (L. V. skippe ouer, transilient.)—Ecclus. xxxviii. 37.

OVER-LEAVE, v.

Thurȝ riȝt of eritage ȝe shulen ouerleeuen hem to the after comers. (L. V. sende ouer, transmittetis.)—Lev. xxv. 46.

OVER-PLANT, v.

And shal be as a tree that is ouer plauntid (L. V. plauntid ouer, transplantatur) vpon watris, that at the humour sendith his rootes.—Jer. xvii. 8.

OVER-SAIL, v.

In Sichym—risende—ouerseile thou. (L. V. passe ouer the see, transfreta.)—Is. xxiii. 12.

OVER-SEND, v.

The foordis of Jordan that ouersenden into Moab. (L. V. lead ouer, transmittunt.)—Judges iii. 28.

OVER-STYING, s.

So shul be the doȝtris of Moab in the ouersteȝing of Arnon. (L. V. passing over, transcensu.)—Is. xvi. 2.

OVER-TURN, v.

Ouerturne thou not thin eȝen fro the pore. (L. V. turne ouere, transvertas.)—Ecclus. iv. 1.

OVER-WADE, v.

Deep waters of the streme of reyn waxiden grete which may not be over wad. (L. V. waad ouer, transvadari.)
Ez. xlvii. 5.

SUPER.

OVER-ABOUND, v.

Sothli the grace of our Lord ouer haboundе. (L. V. ouer aboundide, superabundavit.)—1 Tim. i. 14.

OVER-BEING, v.

And with cedre al the hows was clothide, hauynge grauyngis ouerbeynge. (L. V. apperynge aboue, eminentes.)—3 Kings vi. 18.

OVER-COME, v.

Ne glorie thou in to the morn, unknowende what the dai to ouercome bringe forth (to comynge, super-ventura).
Prov. xxvii. 1.

OVER-GIVE, v.

Forsooth I moost wilfully schal ȝyue (impendam), and I my silf schal be ouerȝouun for your soulis. (L. V. gouun above, superimpendam.)—2 Cor. xii. 15.

OVER-GO, v.

My wikkidnesses ouerȝeden myn hed. (L. V. ben goon ouer, supergressæ sunt.)—Ps. xxxvii. 5.

OVER-HOPE, v.

In thi domes I ouer hopide. (L. V. hopide aboue, supersperavi.)—Ps. cxviii. 43.

OVER-LEAD, v.

Ouer alle lust of the man she shall ouer ledyn desyr. (L. V. brynge desir ouer, superducit.)—Ecclus. xxxvi. 24.

OVER-LEAVE, v.

Ne oon forsothe ouerlafte not of hem. (L. V. not oon was alyue, superfuit.)—Exod. xiv. 28.

OVER-SEEMING.

And which is the ouersemynge greetness of his vertu in to us that han bileuyd. (L. V. excellent, supereminens.)
Eph. i. 19.

OVER-STRETCH, v. OVERHOLD, v.

We ouerstretchen not forth us, as not stretchinge to you. (L. V. ouerholden, superextendimus.)—2 Cor. x. 14.

OVERTROW, v. OVERTROWABLE.

The host was secure and no thing of aduersite ortrowеden. (L. V. supposed not any thing of aduersitie, suspicaretur.)—Judges viii. 11.

Thei ouertrowiden that he had ben kyng of Israel. (L. V. supposiden, suspicati sunt.)—3 Kings xxii. 32.

Nyne unouertrowable thingus of the herte, I magnefiede. (L. V. unsuspecte, insuspicabilia.)—Ecclus. xxv. 9.

OVER-VAIN, adj.

Eymende (i. e. esteeming) Goddis tho thingis that in bestes ben overveyn. (L. V. superflu, supervacuas.)
Wis. xi. 16.

Confoundid be alle doende thingis ouer veynli. (L. V. superfluli, supervacuè.)—Ps. xxiv. 4.

OVER-VOIDENESS, s.

The ouervoidenesse of men these thingis fond (advenit) in to the roundnesse of erthis (in orbem terrarum). (L. V. voidenesse, supervacuitas.)—Wis. xiv. 14.

OVER-WORTHY, adj.

Glorifiende the Lord hou mychе soeuere ȝee schul moun, he shal ben ouer wrthi ȝit. (L. V. be miȝtiere, supervalebit.)—Ecclus. xliii. 32.

OVER. In the var. r. of Wiclif, Job xxxviii. 30, we find—Overer, i. e. part.—superficies.

And thei maden a hode in the ouereste parti (L. V. hiȝere, superiori) aȝens the myddel, and a hemme weuyd al about the hode.—Wic. Ex. xxxix. 21.

He that loueth sone or douȝter ouer me, is nat worthi of me (super me).—Id. Mat. x. 37.

Ouer al (L. V. euery where, ubique) lefe we signes of gladnesse.—Id. Wis. ii. 9; also vii. 24.

OVER-BRIM, v. To brim over, or pass over the brim or edge.

Fam. Wisdom comes with lack of food.
I'll gnaw, I'll gnaw the multitude,
Till the cup of rage o'erbrim.
Coleridge. Fire, Famine, &c.

OVER-COME.

So might I wene that thinges all and some
That whilom ben bifall and overcome,
Ben cause of thilké soveraine purveiaunce
That forwote al withouten ignoraunce.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 1069.

Thei crouned hym with thornes sharpe and kene,
The vaines rent, the bloud ran doun apace,
With blode overcome were both his eyen.
And bolne with strokes was his blessed face.
Id. Lam. of M. Mag. v. 129.

OVER-GREEN, v. To green over, met. to colour favourably.

Your love and pity doth the impression fill,
Which vulgar scandal stamp'd upon my brow;
For what care I who calls me well or ill,
So you o'er-green my bad, my good allow?
Shakespeare. Sonnet cxii.

OVER-HIP.

Wherfore I am a-fered
Of folk of holy kirke,
Lest thei over-huppen as oothere doon,
In office and in houres.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10394.

OVER-LAP, v. } To lap, or fold over.
OVER-LAPPING, s. }

The upper bill of the parrot is so much hooked, and so much overlaps the lower, that if, as in other birds, the lower chap alone had motion, the bird could scarcely gape wide enough to receive its food: yet this hook and overlapping of the bill could not be spared, for it forms the very instrument by which the bird climbs.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. xvi. § 4.

OVER-LEAP, v. To over-reach, to over-shoot himself; i. e. the mark or object aimed at. And to over-leap itself is (met.) to over-leap the eminence aspired to, and fall, &c.

Mac. I have no spurre
To pricke the sides of my intent, but onely
Vaulting ambition, which ore-leapes itself,
And falls on the other—[Enter Lady].
Shakespeare. Macbeth, act i. sc. 7.

OVER-SEE, v.

Yet reason tells us, parents are o'erseen,
When with too strict a rein they do hold in
Their child's affections, and controul that love,
Which the high powers divine inspire them with.
Taylor. The Hog hath lost his Pearl, act i.

OVER-SEETHE, v. To seethe or boil over.

Your stately seas . . . . . glow
And over-seeth their banks with springing tides.
P. Fletcher. Eclogue iii. st. 6.

OVER-THWART, v. To oppose, to pervert; and further, To wrangle.

He sayde, for a crokid intent
The wordes were purverted,
And thus he over-thwarted.
Skelton. Ware the Hauke, v. 211.

OVER-TILT.

Antecrist cam thanne,
And al the erop of truthe
Torned it up so down
And over-tilte the roote.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14033.

OVER-WENT. See To OVER-GO and to WEND, in Dictionary.

If all the world to seeke I over-went,
A fairer crew yet no where could I see
Then that brave Court doth to mine eye present.
Spenser. To all the Ladies in the Court.

OVER-YEARED. Too old.

Among them dwelt (her parents joy and pleasure)
A maid, whose fruit was ripe, not over-yeared.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. ii. st. 14.

OUGHT. See OWE.

OUR.

Ther was striyf of the sheepherdis of Gerare agenus the sheepherdis of Isaac, seiynge, oure is the water (nostra est aqua, var. r. ourn).—Wic. Gen. xxvi. 20.

The dowȝtris of hem we shal take wynes, and oure we shulen ȝyue to hem (nostras, var. r. ourn).
Id. Ib. xxxiv. 2.

OUT (see the remark in v. Over) is the prefix from Latin compounds in Ex.

OUT-BAKE, v.

Lo! I have out-bake thee but not as syluer. (L. V. sode, (seethed,) excoxi.)—Is. xlviii. 10.

OUT-BREN, v.

In the synagoge of synnerde men the fyr shall out-brenne. (L. V. brenne, exardebit.)—Ecclus. xvi. 7.

As out-brennynge of fyr, thei shulden vanshe awei. (L. V. brennyng, exustio.)—Is. lxiv. 2.

OUT-COMING, s.

To whom tellynge the sweuenes, we herden alle thingis that afterwerde the out-comyng of the thing proved. (L. V. bifallyng, eventus.)—Gen. xli. 13.

OUT-DRY, v.

Alle the burionnyng of hem I shall out-drien. (L. V. drie up, exiccabo.—Is. xlii. 15.

OUT-FIGHT, v.

And God shal out-fiȝten (expugnabit), or ouercome for thee thyn enemys.—Ecclus. iv. 33.

OUT-GLAD, v.

And I shal ful out-gladen in Jerusalem, and ioȝen (gaudebo) in my puple. (L. V. make ful out ioiyng, exultabo.)
Is. lxv. 18.

OUT-GOER, s.

And the kyng seith to the out-goers (men able to be sent out, emissarüs).—1 Kings xxii. 17.

OUT-HEAR, v.

I the Lord shal out-heren hem; I God of Israel shal not forsake hem. (L. V. here, exaudiam.)—Is. xli. 17.

OUT-JOY, v. and s.

But ȝee shal iozen (gaudebitis) and ful out-ioȝen unto euermor, in these thingus that I shape. (L. V. make ful out-ioiyng, exultabitis.)—Is. lxv. 18.

(They) token mete with ful out-ioye and symplenesse of herte. (L. V. gladyng, exultatione.)—Deedis, ii. 46.

In the vois of ful out-ioȝing (exultationis), and confessioun (is the) soun of the etere.—Ps. xli. 5.

OUT-LAW, v.

If he sei (to hem) to out-lawen, thei out-lawen (exterminant).—3 Esd. iv. 8.

OUT-LEAD, v.

Thou shalt ful out-lede me fro this grene (snare). (L. V. lede out, educes.)—Ps. xxx. 5.

OUT-OPEN, v.

I haue told to the reders the sweuen, and no man is that out-openith. (L. V. expowneth, edisserat.)—Gen. xli. 24.

OUT-PREY, v.

Who loueth God shal ful out-preȝen for synnes. (L. V. preie, exorabit.)

OUT-SEEK, v.; OUT-SECHE, v.

To thee seide myn herte; Ful out-soȝte thee my face. (L. V. souȝte, exquisivit.)—Ps. xxvi. 8.

The biginnyng forsothe of fornycacioun is the out-sechyng of maumetis. (L. V. seching, exquisitio.)—Wisd. xiv. 12.

OUT-SHAME, v.

Thei ben confoundid, and ful out-shameden. (L. V. aschamede, erubuerunt.)—Is. xlv. 16.

OUT-SHARPEN, v.

To this puple forsothe is maad an herte mystrowende and out-sharpende. (L. V. terryng to wrathithe, exasperans.)
Jer. v. 23.

OUT-STERTE, v.

And he out-sterte with out to the puple. (L. V. skippide out, exiliit.)—Judith xiv. 15.

OUT-STURB, v.

For thow has disturblid us (turbasti); out-stourbe thee the Lord in this day. (L. V. disturbie, exturbet.)
Josh. vii. 25.

OUT-TEND, v.

And in the unbileueful folc of kinde wrathe shal waxe ful out-tend. (L. V. brenne an hiz, exardescit.)
Ecclus. xvi. 7.

OUT-TERRE, v.

How ofte sithis thei out-terreden hym in desert. (L. V. maden hym wrooth, exacerbaverunt.)—Ps. lxxvii. 40.

OUT-THINKING, s.

Not in to errour inladde us the out-thinking of the euele craft of men. (L. V. the thenkyng out, excogitatio.)
Wisd. xv. 4.

OUT-BRAID ; Burst forth.

The snake, that on his crest hot fire out-braide,
Was quite out off.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. x. st. 1.

OUT-CLEARANCE. Clearance out, (sc.) by paying custom-house dues, &c.

Cable. If you bring a good cargo of cash, you are welcome to anchor here as long as you list: But you will find the duties high at out-clearance.
Foote. Trip to Calais, act i. sc. 1.

OUT-CORNER, s. Corner out of the way; remote.

They receyued for answere, that neither such an out-corner was frequented by many wayfarers, nor by hanging out signes nor by forestalling at the townes end, like the Italians, did they invite any.—Carew. Cornwall, fo. 66.

OUT-LET, v. Du. Uitlaeten, emittere, to let forth.

" But well—I see which way the world will go,
And let it go," and so turns her about,
Full with stout grief and with disdainful woe,
Which now her words shut up, her looks out-let.
Daniel. Civil War, b. vii.

OUT-RAGE. Skinner explains Outrage, a violent and extraordinary injustice, simply from the prep. Outre, qd. excess; the age being merely a productio vocis. (See APPANAGE for Age, ter.) Du Cange in v. Ultragium, says, Oultraige is everywhere used for " any excess in anything."

Right so maie no pitee areste
Of crueltee the great ultrage,
Whiche the tyranne in his corage
Engendred hath.—Gower. Conf. Am. b. vii. 162ˡ.

OUT-RANCE. See UTTERANCE.

OUTRE-CUIDANCE. See Surquedry.

OUT-RIGGER, s. A spar or piece of timber projecting beyond the sides of a ship for extending ropes, sails, or other temporary purposes.

One of their sages, named Maui, had in an inspired moment foretold, that in future ages a vaa ama ore, an outriggerless canoe, would come to their shores (Otaheite) from a distant land. An outrigger being indispensable to keep their barks upright in the water, they could not believe that a vessel without one could live at sea.
Circumnavigations of the Globe. (Wallis), c. vi.

OUT-WELL, v. To spring or flow out.

His marble heart such soft impression tries,
That, midst his wrath, his manly teares outwell.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. ix. st. 86.

OUT-WIT.

And a liere in soule,
With in-wit and with out-wit,
Ymagynen and studie
As best for his body be, &c.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8609.

OWE, OUGHT. Written in Wiclif Awe, Awgte; Chaucer, in Troylus and Cressida, writes Aught.

I shal ordeyne to thee a place whidyr hym awe to flee. (L. V. owith, debeat.)—Wic. Ex. xxi. 13.

What is that I awgte mor to do to my vyneyerde. (L. V. ought.)—Id. Is. v. 4.

We forȝeue ignorauuces and synnes, til in to this day, and the crown that ȝe ouȝten (debebatis).
Id. 1 Mac. xiii. 39.

If that the good man that the bestes oweth,
Wol every weke, er that the cok him croweth,
Fasting, ydrinken of this well a draught—
His bestes and his store shal multiplee.
Chaucer. Pardoneres Tale, v. 12295.

By God, we owen fourty pounds for stones.
Id. Som. Tale, v. 7688.

For, sothe to saine, he lost helde every wight,
But if he were in Loves high service,
I mene folke that aught it ben of right.
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 1795.

The worship there of which I ought,
Unto the God I there betought.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. 178ˡ.

O WHERE. Any where.

And if he found o where a good felawe,
He wolde techen him to have non awe,
In swiche a cas, of the Archdekens curse.
Chaucer. The Prologue, v. 655.

OX.

For he (Adonye) cam doun to day, and offride oxen (L. V. oxis, boves), and fatte thingis, and wethers.
Wic. 3 Kings i. 25.

P.

PACE. To ride à pas, i. e. a foot's pace, a walking pace.

His (Chanon's) hat heng at his back doun by a las,
For he had ridden more than trot or pas.
Chaucer. Chan. Yem. Prol. v. 16043.

PACK, v.

There is no peny in my pakke
To payen for my mete.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 793.

I rendred a lesson
To broche hem with a pak-nedle.—Id. Vision, v. 2895.

PADDOCK. A toad.

Sotheli if thou nylt deliuere, lo! Y schal smyte alle thi termys with paddoks. (L. V. froggis, ranis.)
Wic. Ex. viii. 2.

PÆONY.

I have pepir and piones, quod she.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3099.

PAGAN.

Alle paynymes preieth,
And parfitly bileveth
In the holy grete God.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10686.

ȝee forsothe ben ientilis, or paynymes, fro the bigynyng forsaken, the whiche never hadden knouleche of God, but euere to deueles han serued.—Wic. Rom. Prol. p. 298.

And ȝif ȝee greten or saluten ȝoure bretheren oonly, what more outer shul ȝee doen? Whether and paynymmys nat don this thing? (L. V. hethene men, ethnici.
Id. Mat. v. 48.

He (Paul) afermeth hem nedi to be confermed, the vices of her paynymrie rathere myndede.—Id. Rom. Prol. 300.

PAGE.

And whanne Judi had radde thre litil pagens (pagellas) or foure, he kutte it with a scrapyng knyf of the scribe, and threȝ it into the fyr.—Wic. Jer. xxxvi. 23.

PAIN. Peine (of concupiscence) in Chaucer, Persones Tale, Mr. Tyrwhitt thinks is equivalent to desire. But Chaucer explains that by the peine of concupiscence, he means, the peine hight (called) concupiscence.

Forsothe up on a theef is confusion and peyne taking. (L. V. penaunce, paenitentia.)—Wic. Ecclus. v. 17.

Lord! as ye commanded
Up peine of deth, so have I don certain.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5304.

Ther was a knight that loved and did his peine,
To serve a ladie in his beste wise.
Id. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11042.

PAINT.

And he made in the wallys cherubyns, and palmes, and diuerse peynturis (picturas), as stondinge and goynge out of the wal.—Wic. 3 Kings vi. 29.

PAIR, v.

(She hath) peired holy church.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1614.

Whan thow shalt selle eny thing to thi cyteseyn, other bigge of hym, ne peire thou thi brothir (L. V. make thou not sory, ne contristas), but aftir the noumbre of the ȝeeris of the iubilee, thou shalt bigge of hym, and aftir the noumbre of fruytis he shal selle to thee.—Wic. Lev. xxv. 14.

PAISE. See PAYSE.

PALATE.

The tonge of the soukynge childe cleued to his palat in thirste (ad palatum); litil children axiden breed, and noon was that brak to hem.—Wic. Lam. iv. 4.

Glut not thyself with palative delights, nor revenge the contempt of temperance by the penalty of satiety.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. ii. § 1.

PALE, v. To pale, or empale; inclose. Pale, s. in which the English lived under their own laws, apart from the Irish. Skinner.

And the cyte is closede and palid unto the elleuenthe ȝeer of King Sedekiah. (L. V. cumpassid, vallata.)
Wic. 4 Kings xxv. 2.

Of hym (shal be) a corner (angulus), of hym a litil pale (paxillus), of hym bowe of batel.—Id. Zech. x. 4.

The English pale comprehendeth onlie four counties (Louth, Meath, Dublin, Kildare). To them the name of pale was given, because that the authority and government of the Kings of England and the English colonies or plantations, which before had been spread over the whole land, now were reduced to so small a compass, and as it were impaled within the same boate.
Ireland's Natural History, 1657, p. 7.

While they lay at this siege, the King of England, upon pretence of the safety of the English pale about Calais, sent over the Lord Morley with 1000 men.
Bacon. Henry VII. Works, v. iii. p. 41, 4to.

PALE.

He was as pale as a pelet,
In the palsy he semed.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2629.

And whanne he seeth in the wallis therof as litle valeis foule bi paleness (E. V. paalnes, pallore), ethir by reednesse, and lower than the tother hiȝere part, he schal go out at the dore of the hows, and anoon he schal close it bi seuene daies.
Wic. Lev. xiv. 37.

PALIMPSEST, s. Lat. Palimpsestus.—Cic. Gr παλιμψηστος, or παλιμψαιστος. From παλιν, again, and ψαειν, to rub. A parchment or paper, rubbed again, and thus prepared after the erasure of previous writing to be written on again. A commentary on the Psalms by St. Augustin has been found written on an erased Cicero, de Republica. See Encyclop. Metrop. in v. Manuscript.

PALL.

Mardoch schynede in Kingis clothis, berende a goldene coroun on the hed, and wrappid with a silken pal and purper. (L. V. mentil of silk, serico pallio.)
Wic. Esth. viii. 15.

For in her face alwey was the bloode
Without palyng.—Lyfe of our Ladye, e. 6, c. 2.

So turn'd the sun
His palen'd visage from the damned deed.
Taylor. Iph. in Tauris.

PALM, v. As to palm off, on another. See quotation from Tatler, in v. Bubble.

PALMER, s.

Preye for the peple,
For pilgrymes and for palmeres.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2683.

PALPABLE.

When a man essayes all kind of experiments without sequence or method, that is meere palpation (palpatio).
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. ch. 2.

PALSY. See quotation from Chaucer, in v. Acomber, supra.

PAN. (Brain-pan.)

Pees put forth his heed,
And his panne blody.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2233.

PANARY, s. Lat. Panarium, a pantry, qv. Hinc (à pane). Panarium, ubi id (panem) servabant.—Varro de Lingua Latina, l. 4.

In a word it (Scripture) is a panary of holesome food against fenowed traditions.
King James's Bible. Translator to the Reader.

PANNIER, s.

And I seiȝ a dreem, that Y hadde thre panyeris of mele on myn heed. (L. V. basketis, canistra.)
Wic. Gen. xl. 17.

PANSY.

With margerettes (daisies) growinge . . . : Also
The poure penses were not dislodged there;
Ne: God wote, hir place was every where.
Chaucer. Assemblie of Ladies, v. 62.

PAPELARD. One who calleth frequently on the Pope; who frequently confesses, &c. See Du Cange.

PAPIST. See PAPA.

PARABLE.

And Ihesus bigan to speke to hem parably or in parablis (in parabolis).—Wic. Mark xii. 1.

PARAGE.

Thou sayst to me, It is a gret mischiefe
To wed a poure womman for costage;
And if that she be riche of high parage,
Than sayst thou, that it is a tourmentrie
To suffre hire pride and hire melancholie.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prol. v. 5832.

PARAGRAM, s.

Aristotle, in the eleventh chapter of his book of Rhetoric, describes two or three kinds of puns which he calls paragrams, among the beauties of good writing.

Spectator, No. 61.

PARAPHE. A word which has lately appeared in diplomatic papers. Fr. Parafe, or paraphe, from paragraphe; (Menage) is explained, "The flourish or knot added to one's signature." It. and Sp. Parafo; Florio says, "a Paraffe or paragraffe;" Cotgrave adds, "Also a subsignature, or signing under;" and parapher, "to subsign; to write a sign under."

The undersigned, after having paraphed it (Draft of Preliminaries) conformably to authorization received to that effect, have agreed that their Governments shall each nominate plenipotentiaries, who, &c. &c.
Done at Vienna, this 1st day of February, 1856.
(The five signatures.)
Times, Feb. 6, 1856.

PARAUNT. See PARENT and APPARENT.

PARAVAIL.

By these (tenures) principally all degrees were united and made dependent—from the Lord Paramount to the tenant peravale.—N. Bacon. Hist. Disc. ch. lix. p. 183.

PARBREAK. Piers Plouhman uses the simple verb (qv.) in this signification.

PARCENER.

Who withdrawith any thing fro his fader and moder, and seith that not to ben sinne, parcener is of a man sleere (particeps).—Wic. Prov. xxviii. 24.

PARCH. Wiclif writes our word Perish, persh, a nearer form to parch.

The parching air
Burns frore, and cold performs th' effect of fire.
Milton. Par. L. b. ii. v. 595.

PARE.

Forsothe (he schal comaunde that) hows to be parid (L. V. rasid, radi), with ynforth by enuyroun, and the poudre of the paryng (L. V. rasyng, rasuræ) to be spreynt out of the citee in an unclene place.—Wic. Lev. xiv. 41.

As clensyngs of this world we ben maad; the paringis (peripsema) or outcastinge of alle thingis til ȝit.
Id. 1 Cor. iv. 13.

PARENT, s. Low Lat. Parens, was in the lower ages applied generally to a kinsman; nor was such usage unknown in the classical. See Quint. Curt. l. vi. c. 29. Du Cange writes, "Parens, sanguine proximus, agnatus, cognatus. Parentatus, cognationibus et affinatibus instructus, copiosus, apparenté." The Fr. Parent; It. Parente; Sp. Pariente, are also explained generally—a kinsman. Florio adds, the It. may be used for father or mother. There is also the Fr. Apparenté; of kin, or near kinsman unto. Cotgrave, Emparenter, to join in kindred; to make one of kin to another. Id. And It. Parentare, to the same effect.

Fabian writes, "that Edmund Mortimer was (An. 1386) proclaymed Heyer Paraunt unto the Crown of England." In Polychronicon (Fabian's authority) the word is Apparaunt. (See in v. Apparent.) And it may be that the words are the same, with the simple difference of the prefix Ap.

In Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 539, we find: "If the Vicount of Chatillon, your cousin, who is next inheritor to this County of Byernes as next parente (prochain parent) to your father, come hyder to challenge his herytage," &c. &c.

PARGET.

For lo! the wal felle doun. Whether it schal not be seid to ȝou, Where is the pargetyng, which ȝe pargetiden? (L. V. the dawbynge that ȝe dawbiden? litura, quam linistis?)
Wic. Ez. xiii. 12.

PARISH.

And yvele is this yholde,
In parisshes of Englonde,
For persons and parissh preestes
That sholde the people shryven,
Ben curators called,
To know and to hele
Alle that ben hir parisehens.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14484.

PARLE.

Patriarkes and prophetes
Han parled herof longe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12619.

PARLOUR.

Now hath ech riche a rule
To eten by hymselve
In a pryuee parlour.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5801.

PARONOMASY, PARONYMOUS.

The genius of the Greek language from the verb φαινεσθαι, to appear, produced a paronymous word—viz. φαινομενα, appearances or things appearing to the eye of outward sense.—Sydenham. Onomasticon, pt. iv. § 9.

The fallacy (figuræ dictionis) is built on the grammatical structure of language, from men's usually taking for granted that paronymous words (i. e. those belonging to each other, as the substantive, adjective, verb, &c. of the same root) have precisely correspondent meaning; which is by no means universally the case.—Whately. Logic, b. iii. § 8.

PARSLEY. See quotation from Piers Plouhman in v. Porridge, infra.

PARSON. See Piers Plouhman in v. Parish, supra.

PART, v. (de).

Our pardon and our preieres
So beth they nought parten . . .
Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 806.

And whanne he hadde seide, anoon the lepre partide (discessit) awey fro hym.—Wic. Mark i. 42.

Which maid, he said, he wold han to his wif,
To lede in ese and holinesse his life,
And thanked God that he might han hire all,
That no wight with his blisse parten shall.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9504.

He (Theseus) cried, Ho! no more, for it is done,
I wol be trewe juge and not partie.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2659.

PARTITION. } See PART.
PARTNER. }

PARTLET, s.

And God wrought no small miracles by the hãdes of Paule, so that from his bodye were brought unto the sycke napkyns or partletes, and the diseases departed from them, and the euill spirites went out of them.
Bible, 1549. Actes xix.

PARY, v. Used by Richard Bentley as equivalent to—correspond on comparison; to tally.

When I came to try Pope Clement's Vulgate, I soon found the Greek of the Alexandrian, and that would by no means pary.
Rd. Bentley to Archbp. Wake, April 15, 1716.

PAS, i. e. Pace, qv.

PASK. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Maundy, supra.

PASS. See PASSAGER, adj. Quotation from Browne, in v. Migrate.

PASS, v.

Twelue sterris that passyngly were clere (i. e. surpassingly).—Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, c. 8.

PASSION, v. To have, or be affected by, passions, &c.

Whiche thingis the prophetis and Moyses spaken for to be comynge, if Crist passible, or able to suffre. (L. V. is to suffre, passibilis.)—Wic. Acts xxvi. 23.

Helye was a man lijk to us, passible, or able for to suffre. (L. V. deedli man, homo passibilis.)—Id. James v. 17.

If he were helid, that suffreth siche a maner passioun (hujusmodi passionem), he shal noumbre seuen daies after his clensyng.—Id. Lev. xv. 13.

How that the soule ne mynde be not passyoned.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, a. 1°. Caxton.

Hast thou (which art but aire) a touch, a feeling
Of their afflictions, and shall not my selfe,
One of their kinde,—that relish all as sharpely,
Passion as they,—be kindlier mou'd then thou art.
Shakespeare. Tempest, act v. sc. 1; and Two Gentlemen of Verona, act iv. sc. 4.

PASTE, s.

I shal purveie thee paast, quod Patience, ...
And flour to fede folk with.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8958.

And thou schalt take a tendur cake of o loof, spreynd with oile, paast sodun in watir.—Wic. Ex. xxix. 23.

Forsothe preestis schulen be ouer the loones of proposicioun, and to the sacrifices of flour, and to the pastis sodun in water. (L. V. the thynn kakis, kagana azyma.)
Id. 1 Par. xxiii. 29.

PATE.

His travail shall come upon his own head; and his wickedness shall fall on his own pate.—Wic. Ps. vii. 17. (So also our Bible Version, and Bible, 1549.)

PATIENT.

This laid a way open for them to despise the law, which was made patient of such a weak evasion.
Jeremy Taylor. Sermon 23. Of Christian Prudence.

PATRIOT.

The very slave
Who but approached our patrial household Gods,
Is richly welcome in a foreign land.
Taylor. Iph. in Tauris.

PATROCINATION.

There it is you will find Charles the Second placed among the heroes and demigods for his patrociny and protection.
Evelyn. Sylva.

PATRON.

It is not mere zeal to learning, or devotion to the Muses, that wiser princes patron the arts, and carry an indulgent aspect to scholars; but a desire to have their names eternized by the memory of their writings, and a fear of the revengeful pen of succeeding ages.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. ii. § 3.

PAUCITY.

My opportunities of writing are paucified, as perhaps Dr. Johnson would have dared to say.
Cowper to Hayley, Dec. 26, 1792.

PAVE.

A litil of the erthe of the pament (L. V. pawment, de pavimento) of the tabernacle he schal put in to it.
Wic. Num. v. 17.

And he wyll shew you a great parlour paved (στρωμενον) and prepared.—Bible, 1549. Marke xiv.; Luke xxii.

PAVESE, s.

The knights below,
Each by his pavais bulwarked.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. viii. v. 345.

And showered like rain upon the pavaised barks
The rattling shafts.—Id. Madoc, pt. ii. § 25.

PAUME, i. e. Palm, qv.

PAVONE.

And thei brouȝten thennus gold, and syluer, and yuer, and apis and poos. (L. V. pohokis, pavones.)
Wic. 2 Par. ix. 21.

PAY, v. A naval term. (Skinner.) To smear over with pitch. Fr. Poix. And hence the old proverb, "Here's the devil to pay, and no pitch hot." (Mr. Trench.)

With boiling pitch another near at hand,
From friendly Sweden brought, the seames instops;
Which, well paid o'er, the salt sea waves withstand,
And shakes them from the rising beaks in drops.
Dryden. Annus Mirabilis.

Our carpenter being prepared to grave the outside of the ship, as well as to pay the seams where he had caulked her to stop leaks, had got two kettles just let down into the boat, one filled with boiling pitch, and the other with rosin, tallow, and oil, and such stuff as the shipwrights use for that work.—Defoe. Robinson Crusoe.

PAY.

He with these thingus payed (L. V. appaied, contenta), she (Hester) fel doun at the feet of the King; and wepte, and preyede.—Wic. Esth. viii. 3.

He saw how that I
Had chosen so ententifely
The bottum more unto my pay
Than any other that I say.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1721.

Thy precepte graunte, eke that I may
Fulfylle also to the erly and late
In such maner as is most to thy paye, i. e. satisfaction.
Lyfe of our Ladye, a. 8, c. 1. Caxton.

I quak'd at heart; and still afraid to see
All the court fill'd with stranger things than he,
Ran out as fast as one that pays his bail,
And dreads more actions, hurries from a jail.
Pope. Imit. of Donne, Sat. iv.

PAYNIM. } i. e. Pagan, qv.
PAYEN. }

PAYSE.

I lerned . . . .
To weye pens with a peis,
And pare the hevyeste.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2957.

Ac the pound that she paied by,
Peised a quatron moore
Than myn owene auncer, i. e. cup.—Id. Ib. v. 2906.

Elyab, the sone of Elon, offride a silueren eysel vessel, peysinge (appendens) an hundryd and thretti sicles, a silueren fyole, hauynge seuenti sicles at the peyse (L. V. weiȝte, pondus) of the seyntuary.—Wic. Num. vii. 25.

To a feithful frend is no comparisoun; ther is not wrth peising of gold (L. V. weiyng, ponderatio), and of siluer aȝen the goodnesse of the feith of hym.—Id. Eccl. vi. 15.

Alle the weies of man ben opene to the eȝen of hym: of spiritis the peisere is the Lord. (L. V. weiere, ponderator.)
Id. Prov. xvi. 2.

PEA.

And eche a povere man wel a-paied
To haue pesen for his hyre.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4189.

Al the povere peple tho
Pescoddes fetten.—Id. Ib. v. 4386.

PEACE.

The Jewes preide hem be pees (i. e. peaceful).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13258.

Sotheli whanne his fre children weren gaderide to gidere, that they schulden peese (E. V. swage, lenirent) the sorewe of the fadir, he nolde take counfort.—Wic. Gen. xxxvii. 35.

Forsothe hise britheren sien that he was loued of the fadir more than alle, and thei hatiden hym, and myȝten not speke ony thing pesible (pacifice) to hym.
Id. Ib. xxxvii. 4.

Forsothe whanne the prince shal do wilful brent sacrifice, or wilful pesiblis to the Lord (L. V. pesible sacrificis, pacifica), the ȝate that biholdith to the eest shal be opnyd to hym.
Id. Ez. xlvi. 2.

He pesynge bi the blood of his crosse (L. V. made pees, pacificans), ether the thingis that ben in erthis, ether that ben in heuenes.—Id. Colos. i. 20.

PEAR.

The pyrry is blowe (hop, Beryn, hop,)
That ripe wol hereafter, and on thy hede drop.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Seconde Tale, v. 533.

And thus I let him (Damian) sitting in the pery,
And January and May roming ful mery.
Id. The Marchantes Tale, v. 10091.

PEASE. See PAYSE and POISE.

PEBBLE.

Swete is to a man the bred of lesing; and aftir shal be fulfild the mouth of hym with a litil pibbil ston. (L. V. rikenyng, calculo.)—Wic. Prov. xx. 17.

PECK.

The eye that scornith the fader and that despisith the birthe of his moder, pecken hym out (L. V. picke, effodiant) crowis of the stremes, and ete hym the sonus of the egle.
Wic. Prov. xxx. 17.

PEDAGE. A pede; a toll paid for safe passage. Skinner. See PEAGE, in Dictionary.

Now thanne be it knowe to the King, for if that cite were bild up, and the wallis of it enstorid, tribute, and pedage (L. V. tol, vectigal), and ȝeris rentus thei shul not ȝyne.—Wic. 1 Esd. iv. 13; also v. 20.

PEEL, or PILL, v. See Piers Plouhman's Vision, in v. Pillion.

Thanne Jacob takynge green popil ȝerdis, and of almanden, and of planes, a parti unriendide hem; and riendis drawun awey: in thilke that weren pilde semede whytnes. (L. V. maad bare, spoliata fuerant.)—Wic. Gen. xxx. 37.

A womman took and spred abrood an hiryng of (over) the mouth of the pit—as dryinge barli with the pile takun a wey, and so the thing was hid.—Id. 2 Kings xvii. 19.

As hote he (Sompnour) was, and likerous as a sparwe,
With scalled browes blake, and pilled berd.
Chaucer. Prologue, v. 629.

As pilled as an ape was his (Miller's) skull.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 3933.

PEER, v. (Appear.) See PERE, infra.

Ancres and heremytes,
And monkes and freres,
Peeren to the Apostles
Thorugh hire parfit lyvynge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10455.

Than loke we mowen,
And peeren in his presence,
The while hym pleye liketh.—Id. Ib. v. 343.

There was I bid in paine of death to pere,
By Mercury, the winged messengere.
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 55.

Fawnus into the chirch pryvelych gan pire (peep).
Id. The Marchantes Seconde Tale, v. 680.

And loke howe that a Goshauke tireth,
Right so doth he whan that he pireth
And looketh on her womanhede.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vi. fo. 132[a].

PEISE. See PAYSE, POISE.

PELL, s. Urry calls it—A house. Tyrwhitt doubts. Du Cange interprets the Low Lat. Pela, Castellum, Arx—in English—A Pile. (A. S. Pil.) A Pile (qv.), a struoture (the House of Fame).

There met I crying many one,
A larges, a larges, hold up well,
God saue the Lady of this Pell,
Our own gentill Lady Fame.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 220.

PELURE, s. Fr. Pelu, hairy. Fur.

The third had a mantell of lusty fresh colour,
The utter part of purpill—yfurred with pelur.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Seconde Tale, v. 3193.

PEN.

And he steȝede upon cherubyn and fleiȝ; he fleiȝ on the vennes of windis (super pennas ventorum).
Wic. Ps. xvii. 11.

O man in the myddis of hem, was clothid with lynnun clothis, and a pennere of a writere at hise reynes. (L. V. inkhorn, atramentarium).—Id. Ez. ix. 2.

PENAL.

Of what hous be ye, by your fader kin?
I vow to God, thou hast a ful faire skin:
It is a gentil nature ther thou gost;
Thou art not like a penaunt or a gost.
Chaucer. The Monkes Prologue, v. 13940.

I saw
The pictur'd flames writhe round a penanced soul.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. iii. v. 422.

PENDANT. Pending is in common use; as, Pending the suit.

PENNONCEAL. Fr. Pennonceau; ou pennoncel. A little flag, or streamer. Cotgrave.

Than see thei stonde, on every side,
Endlonge the shippes bord to shewe,
Of penounceals a ryche rewe.
Gower. Conf. Am. fo. 179[a].

PENNY.

He shal have multiplying of his greine,
When he hath sowen, be it whete or otes,
So that he offer pens, or elles, grotes.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12310.

PENSIBLE.

The fluctuation or pensility of the bowells, from the agitation of the waves in the sea, and from the winde gathered about the diaphragma, are alike.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. ch. 1.

PENT.

Housis weren not bildid to enhabite, but hulkis and pentisis weren maad bisidis the wallis in the innere part, in whiche they miȝten abide for a litil tyme, til the citee were bildid.—Wic. 2 Esd. vii. 4, mar. note.

PENTACLE, s. or PENTICLE. A piece of fine linen, folded with five corners, having characters inscribed suitable to the five senses.

They have their crystals, I do know, and rings,
And virgin parchment, and their dead men's sculls,
Their raven's wings, their lights and pentacles,
With characters—I have seen all these.
B. Jonson. Devil is an Ass, act i. sc. 2.

PEPPER.

And in an erthen pot how put is al,
And salt yput in, and also pepere,
What shuld I tellen.
Chaucer. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16230.

PERCASE.

But thei would haten you parcaas,
If that ye fillen (fell) in hir laas.
Chaucer. The Rom. of the Rose, v. 6649.

PERCEIVE.

Geffrey had full perseyte of their encombirment.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Seconde Tale, v. 3050.

PERCEIVE. Percĕuerance is a word of continual occurrence in Hawes' Pastime of Pleasure. (See Notes and Queries, v. vii. p. 400; and also v. viii. p. 120, where reference is made to nine examples in Flemming's Panoplie of Epistles.) In Hawes a character introduces herself, saying, "My name is called Dame Percĕuerance," fo. x. 1, col. 2.

Hawes also uses the verb, to perceyuer, where he means, "to cause or enable to perceive; to discover for others to see." No other instance of the verb is known.

Mr. Dyce (on the adj. imperscĕverant, qv.) refers to The Widow, where percĕuerance is put into the mouth of a chambermaid—apparently as a vulgarism.

The words are barbarous anomalies, not sanctioned by any English classic: we have no such formations from conceive, deceive, &c.

We wyped our chekes our sorrow to cloke,
Outwardly feigning us to be glad and mery,
That the people should not perceyue the smoke,
Though inwardly with a stormy pery
The fire was blowen, yet we did it cover
By-cause abrode it should nothing perceyuer.
Hawes' Pastime of Pleasure, m. i. col. 2.

Vio. Methinks the words
Themselves should make him do't, had he but the perseverance
Of a cock sparrow, that will come at—Philip,
And cannot write nor read, poor fool.
The Widow, act iii. sc. 1; by Jonson, J. Fletcher, and Middleton.

PERCIPIENT. PERCEPTION. See PERCEIVE.

PERE, i. e. Appear. Also written PEER, qv. supra.

PERFECT.

Thei outher while
Pleyden the parfiter.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7288.

Thei hadden in hate the repreuing man in the ȝate, and thei wlatiden a man spekynge perfitly (perfecte).
Wic. Amos v. 10; and in Colos. iii. 14. Parfitenesse is a var. r. of perfeccioun.

Good perfective is greater than good preservative, because the obtaining of things desired seems by degrees to perfit nature; which though it doe not doe it indeed, yet the very motion it selfe in circle hath a shew of progressive motion.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. vii. ch. 2.

Our labours tend to the same end—the perfectioning of our countrymen in a most essential article, the right use of their native language.—Foote. The Orators, A. 1.

PERFORM.

I perfourmed the penaunce
That the preest me enjoyned.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3702.

Your confessour here for his worthinesse
Shal parfourme up the noumbre of his covent.
Chaucer. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7843.

PERFUSE, v. Lat. Per-fund-ere, perfusus; to pour through or thoroughly.

These dregs immediately perfuse the blood with melancholy, and cause obstructions.
Harvey. On Consumptions.

PERIPETIE, s. Gr. Περιπετεια, from Περιπιπτειν, to fall around. The Quotation explains the usage.

A fable is called complex, when it contains both a discovery and peripetie (i. e. an unexpected change of fortune).—Adventurer, No. 83.

PERISH. See PARCH.

Were the myddel of myn hand
Y-maymed or y-perisshd,
I sholde receyve right noght
Of that I reche myghte.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11746.

As the unjust man in his ire ȝede awei fro this wisdom, brotherhood perisched (E. V. pershede, deperiit) by the ire of manquelling.—Wic. Wis. x. 3.

PERLUSTRATION.

The art of invention and perlustration he was therto unknown.
Wats. Bacon, Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 2.

PERMAGALL, i. e. Peregall, or peregual?

God ne is not hir governour
That holdeth none his permagall,
While covetise is hir counsaillour.
Chaucer. The Plowmans Tale, v. 2070.

PERMUTE.

I wolde permute my penaunce.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8257.

It (merchandize) is a permutation apertly,
A penyworth for another.—Id. Ib. v. 1883.

PERPEND, v.

I desire the reader to attend with the utmost perpensity.
Swift. Tale of a Tub, sec. ix.

PERPETUAL. Lat. Perpes and Perpetuus, from petere. See Voss. Also entire, whole.

Taketh Judith, widewe, saumple of chastyte, and declareth in perpetewal wrshipeful tellingus with the preising of victorie.—Wic. Judges. Prol. 602.

And although the thing that is terminable, and hath an end, is called sometimes perpetuall; yet in holy writings and in vse of the church, and in the bookes of philosophers, most commonly that is taken to be perpetuall, which hath no end of time hereafter to come.
State Trials. 6 Rich. II. An. 1388. John Wicliffe.

(To Ajax) Agamemnon gave the chine
Perpetual.
Cowper. Iliad, b. vii. v. 331; also Odyssey, b. viii. v. 382.

PERRIE, s.

. . . The precious perree
That in paradis wexeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5618.

She was all clad in pierrie and in gold.
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14320.

PERSEVE'RE, v.

Persĕuerance, deere my lord,
Keeps honour bright, to haue done—is to hang
Quite out of fashion, like a rusty male
In monumental mockrie.
Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida, act iii. sc. 3.

PERSUADE.

My word and my preching not in persuable (var. r. persuasible) or sotile glosynge. (L. V. suteli (subtle) sturyng, persuasilibus.)—Wic. 1 Cor. ii. 4.

PERSUE, s. See PURSUE.

PERT, i. e. Apert. See the Quotation from Fabian, in v. Apert.

By no way may it be then by perte necessity.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. iii.

The weathers and stormes so hugely haue fall in burioning time and by perte duresse han beaten of the springs clean.—Id. Ib.

In her fated nothynge that I coude gesse,
One wyse nor other, preuy nor perte,
A garysone she was of all goodlynesse.
Id. La belle Dame sans Mercie, fo. 251, c. 2.

PERT, adj.

The. Stirre vp the Athenian youth to merriments,
Awake the pert and nimble spirit of mirth.
Shakespeare. Midsummer Night's Dream, act i. sc. 1.

PERTAIN.

And Jacob bolnyde, and seide with strijf, For what cause of me, and for what synne of me, hast thou come so fersly after and soust al the portenaunce of myn hous? (L. V. necessaryes, supellectilem.)—Wic. Gen. xxxi. 36.

Se that ye eat not therof (the shepe) rawe nor soden in water, but rost with fyre, both the head, feet and purtenāce to gether.—Id. Ex. xii. 8. Bible, 1549.

Holy fathers that our Christen faith approued and strengthed to the Jews, as to men reasonable, and of diuinity learned proved thilke faith with reasones, and with auctho̊rities of the Old Testament, and of the New, her (i. e. of false teachings) pertinacy to distroy.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

PERVERT, v.

It semeth to comaunde trespas or noiyng of neiȝbore, either peruertyng of soule; therfor it is figuratijf speche.—Wic. Bib. Prol. p. 45. Also, ante, peruersion of soule.

Follow inasmuch as longeth to thee thy fathers worship, so that in nothing thy kinde from his will decline, ne from his nobley perverte.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

PERVINKE. See PERIWINKLE.

PEST.

Parsons and parisshe preestes
Pleyned hem to the bisshope,
That hire parisshes weren povere
Sith the pestilence tyme.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 268.

To withstand the great pestylence yt was lykely to be in England, therefore was he come.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 196.

PESTLE.

And Ornam seide to Dauid, Oxen I ȝeue into brent sacrifice, and pestels in to wode (L. V. instrumentis of trees wherbi cornes ben throischun, tribulas), and the whete in to sacrifice.—Wic. 1 Par. xxi. 23. In Ex. xvi. 14, pilum.

PETAR.

Charging with huge stones the murderous sling
Or petrary.—Southey. Joan of Arc, b. viii. v. 250.

PETIT.

Whan thei drawen on to deye,
And indulgences wolde haue,
Hir pardon is ful petit.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4583.

PETTIFOG. Milton, in the following Quotation, seems rather to be punning on the word than proposing a meaning.

And thus much for this cloud, I cannot say rather than petty-fog of witnesses, with which episcopal men would cast a mist before us, to deduce their exalted episcopacy from apostolick times.
Milton. Of Prel. Episc. Ann. 1698, v. i. p. 245.

PETTREL.

And euery booze (boss) of bridle and paitrell,
That they had, was worth, as I would wene,
A thousand pound.—Chaucer. Floure and Leafe, st. 36.

The horse eke, that his yeman rode upon,
So swatte that unnethes might he gon;
About the peytrel stood the fome ful hie.
Id. Chan. Yem. Prol. v. 16032.

PEW.

Among wyves and wedewes ich am ywoned sitte
Yparroked in puwes—the pson it knoweth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, p. 95.

After mass was done, it was a custom, that one of my lord's gentlemen should then go to my lady's pew, and tell her my lord was gone before.
More's Utopia. Dibdin, p. xv.

PEYSE. See PAYSE, POISE.

PHANE. Occurs in the var. readings of the Wiclif Bible (Temple, fanum), Deut. iii. 29; iv. 46.

PHANTASM.

Phantasy (or imagination) being (to define it) conception remaining, and by little and little decaying from the act of sense.—Hobbes. Human Nature, c. iii.

Whenever we think of a universalized phantasm, or a thing we have no clear intellection of, as, for example, of the nature of a rose in general, there is a complication of something noematical and something phantasmatical together; for phantasms in themselves alone as well as sensations (αἰσθήματα) are always individual things. And by a rose considered thus universally and phantasmatically, we mean a thing which so affects our sense in respect of figure and colour.—Cudworth. Immutable Morality, b. iv. c. 1, § 9.

PHILOSOPHY.

Other, with the brow born down, weiynge greet wordis, among ȝonge wymmen philosophien of holi lettres. (L. V. talken as filosofres.)—Wic. Bible, Pref. Ep. p. 67.

PHIZZ. An abbreviation exquisitely refined for Physiognomy. Swift.

PHONETIC. Gr. φωνη, the voice. A word now in common use—applied to a mode of writing or spelling conformable to that of speaking or pronunciation. See the Quotation from Bacon, in v. Pronounce, infra. Penny Cyc. in v. Alphabet.

PHYSICK.

And if thou diete thee thus,
I dar legge myne eris,
That physic shal hise furred hodes
For his fode selle.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4339.

PHYSIOGNOMY.

Physiognomy discovers the disposition of the mind by the lineaments of the body.—Wats. Bacon, b. iv. c. 1.

So in all physiognomy, the lineaments of the body will discover those natural inclinations of the mind which dissimulation will conceal or discipline correct.
Bacon. Natural History, c. ix. § 800.

PICAROON.

They abide even after their main body is broken, and therefore cannot at all be cured by those slight velitations and picqueerings of single actions of hostility.
J. Taylor. Of Repentance, c. viii. § 8.

PICK. Pikoise. A pick-axe, hoe, mattock. And see Piers Plouhman, in vv. Pike and Ply, infra.

Pyke-harness. A stealer of harness, qv. See Piers Plouhman for Pyke-harness in v. Bribe, supra.

Bete togydre ȝour plowis in to swerdis, and ȝour pikoysis or mattokis into speris (ligones).—Wic. Joel iii. 10.

PICK.
PICKET, or
PIQUET. } A sharp stake; Guard stationed at the pickets on the outlook.

He (the civilian) bears in triumph an artillery train
Of Chancery libels: opens first the cause,
Then with a picklock tongue perverts the laws.
Charles Dryden. Juvenal, Sat. vii.

PIE. Applied to—A chattering tell-tale; a prating gossip.

I sette your patentes and your pardon
At one pies hele.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4887.

PIE. By Cock and pie; an old oath—By God and the Pie, the Book of Holy Offices.

PIECE.

It was a pece of Pater-noster—
Fiat voluntas tua.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9066.

And in bookes eke as it is tolde,
How the pyece of his incision
Was by an aungel in an urne of golde
To Charlis brought.—Lyfe of our Ladye, i. b². Caxton.

Sir Wylliam of Bordes was there armed at all peses.
Berners' Froissart, v. i. p. 489; also v. ii. p. 203.

PIERCE. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Port, infra.

He schal take hym bi the ȝen of hym as by an hook: and bi scharpe schaftis he schal perse hise nosethirlis. (L. V. thirle thurȝ, perforabit.)—Wic. Job xl. 19.

His (Sir J. Denham's) had a strange piercingness: when he conversed with you, he looked into your very thoughts.
Aubrey.

PIG. When the lead is tapped from the smelting furnace, it runs down a straight channel, technically called the sow, from which branch off on each side some smaller channels, called pigs; in these it cools, and is called Pig Lead.

PIGMENT.

Sixe monethis they shulde ben enoynt with myrtine oile, and other sixe thei shulden use maner pimentis and swete spice (pigmentis).—Wic. Esther ii. 12.

And he maad ensence of moost clene swete smellynge spices, with the werk of pymentarye. (L. V. a makere of oynement, pigmentarii.)—Id. Ex. xxxvii. 29.

PIKE, i. e. Pick or Peck.

And some to plese Perkyn
Piked up the wedes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4019

My plow-foot shal be my pikstaf,
And picche a-two the rotes.—Id. Ib. v. 4002.

PILCH. In Wiclif's Bible, Lev. xi. 32, "Heeren shertes;" in var. r. "Pilches or heeren (hairy) shertes" (cilicia), on which any dead unclean animal may have fallen, are declared unclean.

Felawe, quoth he,
Fy on his pilche.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 484.

PILE.

With thre piles was it under-pight,
I perceyved it soone.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10838.

Ech piler is of penaunce
Of preieres to seyntes.—Id. Ib. v. 3692.

PILGRIM. See Piers Plouhman in v. Palmer, supra.

Thes thingis seith thi brother Jacob, At Laban haue I pilgrimagid. (L. V. was a pilgrym, peregrinatus sum.)
Wic. Gen. xxxii. 4, et aliter.

PILION.

Ne puten no pylion
On his pild pate.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1664.

PILOSITY. See PILE.

PIN. For Pin, v. see in v. Press, Piers Plouhman, infra.

Tomme Stowne he (Reson) taughte,
To take two staues,
And fecche Felice hom,
From the wynen pyne (wine pin?)
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2530.

Hee hath holpe a thousand out
Of the develes punfolde.—Id. Ib. 3757.

Plucke vp thyne herte vpon a mery pyne.
Skelton. Bouge of Court, v. 385.

The calender, right glad to find
His friend in merry pin,
Return'd him not a single word,
But to the house went in.—Cowper. John Gilpin.

PINE.

To punysshe on pillories
And pynynge-stooles.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1513.

PINK.

When thou dost tell another's jest, therein
Omit the oaths, which true wit cannot need;
Pink out of tales the mirth, but not the sin.
George Herbert. Church Porch.

PIOUS.

And he gouernde to the Lord his herte; and in the dayes of synnes he strengthede pite (pietatem).
Wic. Ecclus. xlix. 4.

But thei meh of mercy ben, of whom the pitoustees faileden not. (L. V. pitees, pietates.)—Id. Ib. xliv. 10.

All thingus forsothe the Lord made; and to men pitously doende (L. V. feithfulli, pie) he ȝaf wisdam.
Id. Ib. xliii. 37.

Resignation (qv.) to the will of God is the whole of piety.
Butler. Ser. xiv.

PIP.

What thing may be of vyn, of grape dried unto the pepyn (L. V. draf, ad acinum), thei shulen not eete.
Wic. Num. vi. 4.

PIPE.

Mynstrals myghte pipe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14111.

PIRE. See PEER.

PISS.

I shal sle fro Achab a pisser to the wal (mingentem ad parietem).—Wic. 3 Kings xxi. 21.

PISSMIRE, s.

O! thou slowe man, go to the amte or pissemyre (var. r. spissemire, formicam), and biholde thou his weies.
Wic. Prov. vi. 6.

PISTLE.

Pysteller, that syngeth the Masse;
Gospeller, that syngeth the Gospell.
Palsgrave. See Dyce. Skelton, ii. 209.

PIT.

I shal punysshe hem in purgatorie,
Or in the put of helle.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6657.

PITCH.

At the eest Judas shal picche tentis (L. V. sette, figet) by companyes of his oost.—Wic. Num. ii. 4.

They (the Romans) skirmished rather by loose companies in their march, than with their united forces in set and pight field.—Holland. Livius, p. 574.

PITH.

Now have I you declared right
The menyng of the barke and rinde,
But now at erst I woll begin
To expounè you the pithe within.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7175.

Off the thynges which we haue spoken this the pythe.
Heb. viii. Bible, 1549.

PITTER, i. e. Patter, qv.

Upon some shady, sandy, higher ground,
Where the sweet birds should warbling music give,
And at whose foot some pittering rillet wound,
Like Baucis and Philemon would we live.
George Tooke. Annæ dicata. The Pious Turtles.

PITY. Udall also writes it Piety.

God takynge pietie and compassion on mankynde did euen for the verai purpose sende (his Son) into the yearthe.
Udall. Erasmus. Luke xxiv.

PIX. Please the pix, qv.: please God. Corrupted into Please the pigs.

PLAGES, s. Lat. Plagæ, is a various reading of woundis or betyngus. Wic. Luke xii. 47.

PLAGE.

And Caym passid out fro the face of the Lord, dwellide fer fugitive in the erthe, at the eest plage of Eden. (L. V. coost, plagam.)—Wic. Gen. iv. 16; also xiii. 1, xxv. 6.

PLAIN, Plaint.

Forsothe thou puttist me, thi seruaunt, among thi meetfelawis of thi bord; what thanne haue I of riȝtwise playnt (E. V. querels, justæ querelæ), or what may I more be spoken of to the kyng?—Wic. 2 Kings xix. 28.

For God made so this dai as that dai, that a man fynde not iust playningis aȝens hym. (E. V. pleyntes, querimonias.)
Id. Eccles. vii. 15.

And plainest the to praise his (Love's) arte.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 119.

PLAIN, v.

He n'olde his cause plain (i. e. explain).
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 1230.

PLAIT. See Piers Plouhman in v. Presse, infra.

PLAN.

Now every planless measure, chance event,
Will they connect and weave them all together
Into one web of treason—all will be plan.
Coleridge. Piccolimini, pt. i. ch. 3, § 4.

PLANCH.

The roof (is) made sale of, the planchings (are) rotten, the walls (are) fallen down.
Carew. Survey of Cornwall.

PLANE. See Platan, infra.

Jacob (took) grene popil ȝerdis, and of almanders, and of planes.—Wic. Gen. xxx. 37.

PLANET.

These things dwelt in me, even as shadows keep
Their watch in some dim charnel's loneliness,
A shoreless sea, a sky sunless and planetless.
Shelley. Revolt of Islam, c. iii. st. 22.

PLANGENT. (A Neoteric.) See Plain, Plaint.

The seaman, who sleeps sound upon the deck,
Nor hears the loud lamenting of the blast,
Nor heeds the weltering of the plangent wave.
Taylor. P. Van Arlevelde, act i. sc. 7.

PLANT.

And his riȝt hond takun, he lifte him up (the lame man); and anoon the groundis (qv.) and plauntis (plantæ), or. solis of him ben saddide to gidere; and he lippinge stood, and wandride. (Mar. note, plauntis, either soolis, that is, the feet, in to the loweste part.
Wic. Deeds, iii. 7.

PLASH. Plashoot.

Woodcocks arrive first on the north coast, where almost euery hedge serueth for a road, and euery plashoote for springles to catch them.—Carewe. Cornwall, p. 25.

PLASTER.

If any surgien were
That softer koude plastre.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14545.

Fro lenten to lenten
He lat hise plastres bite.—Id. Ib. 14646.

PLAT.

Pernele Proud-herte
Platte hire to the erthe,
And lay longe.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2600.

PLAT. Plait.

And she wesh her bodi, and oyntide hirself with the best myrre, and she platte the her of her hed. (L. V. schedide, discriminavit.)—Wic. Judith x. 3.

Confoundid shul (thei) ben, that wroȝten flax. plattende, and weuende sotile thingus (plectentes et texentes).
Id. Is. xix. 9.

PLATAN. See Plane-tree.

Bechis weren not euen to his heiȝnes, and platan trees (L. V. plane, platani) weren not euen to his bouwis.
Wic. Ecclus. xxxi. 8.

I espied thee, fair indeed and tall,
Under a platan.—Milton. Par. L. b. iv. v. 477.

PLATE.

And kittide thinne goldun platis (E. V. peeces, bracteas), and maad thinne into threedis.—Wic. Ex. xxxix. 3.

PLAY, v.

The kyng Abymalech of Palestynes biholdynge thurȝ a wyndow, sawȝ hym pleiynge (jocantem) with Rebecca, his wiif.—Wic. Gen. xxvi. 8.

And he seide (Lot to his daughters), Risith and goth out fro this place, for the Lord shal do aweie this cite. And he was seen to hem as pleyinge to speke (ludens).
Id. Ib. xix. 14.

And whanne sche had go with hir felowis and pleiferis (E. V. compeers, sodalibus), sche biwepte hir maydynhed in the hillis.—Id. Judges xi. 38.

Somtime, to shew his lightnesse and maistrie,
He (Absolon) plaieth Herode on a skaffold hie.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3384.

Now, quod our hoste, I wol no longer play
With thee ne with non other angry man.
Id. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12892.

PLEAD, v. Plea, s.

Men of lawe leest pardon hadde
That pleteden for mede. . . .
Pledours sholde peynen hem
To plede for swiche and helpe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4541, 8.

For men sweren by a grettere than hem silf, and the ende of al her ple (E. V. controuersye, or debate, controversiæ) is an ooth to confirmacioun.—Wic. Heb. vi. 16.

And whanne the fadris and britheren of hem schulen come, and bigynne to pleyne, and plete (E. V. chiden, jurgari) aȝens ȝou, we schulen seie to hem; Haue ȝe mercy of hem.—Id. Judges xxi. 22.

My puple—his pletores, or wrong axers (exactores) spoileden.—Id. Is. iii. 12.

PLEASE.

And ȝoure brothir takith and goth to the man; and my God Almiȝti make him plesable to ȝou (L. V. pesible, placabilem), and sende he aȝen ȝoure brother.
Wic. Gen. xliii. 14; also Is. lx. 7, lxi. 2.

PLENE. Plenty is used not uncommonly, as—plenteous, plentiful.

And that ilke while
Worth nevere plentee among the peple.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4124.

And whan the peple was plener comen,
The porter unpynned the gate.—Id. Ib. v. 6800.

And the loond (having been) biholdid, takynge fruytis of it, that thei myȝten shewe the plenteouste (L. V. plentee, ubertatem), they brouȝten to us, and seiden, Good, &c.
Wic. Gen. i. 25.

And to Neptalym he seide, Neptalym plenteousness shal ful use (L. V. abundance, abundantiæ) and ful shal be with blessyngis to the Lord.—Id. Deut. xxxiii. 23.

The greetnes of myseys is to spille the greetnes of plentithe. (L. V. plentee, ubertatis.)—Id. Gen. xli. 31.

And plentithnes cam of the seven ȝeer. (L. V. plentee, fertilitas.)—Id. Ib. v. 47.

Whan the plenitude or ful tyme of the grace of God was ordeyned, thenne he sente his sone yt was god and sone of the vyrgyne and wyf.
The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 1, c. 2, et aliter.

At this siege every thynge was plenty.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 357.

And a strange kind of government must that needs be wherein a subject shall have a plenitudinary power beyond that which his lord and king's was.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, c. lviii. p. 173.

PLETE. See Plead.

PLOT. See Piers Plouhman in v. Mole, supra.

PLUCK.

And let us laugh a plucke (a snatch) or two at nale.
Skelton. Bouge of Court, v. 387.

It appears to me that what is least forgiven in a man of any mark or likelihood, is want of that article blackguardly called pluck.—Scott. Life, by Lockhart, v. ix. p. 146.

PLUM, i. e. Plim, qv. and Plump, qv.

Like a hawk that will not plum if she be look'd on.
Dryden. Maiden Queen, act iii.

PLUM.

Pyries and plum-trees
Were poffed to the erthe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2503.

PLUM. Plump. To be worth 100,000*l.* is to be worth a plum, that is (perhaps) a plumper, or plump sum.

They came into the market-place, not all togyder, but in dyvers plumpes.—Berners' Froissart, v. i. p. 576.

PLUMB.

To make wisdom to be regulated by such a plumbean and flexible rule as that (the will) is, is quite to destroy the nature of it.
Cudworth. Immutable Morality, b. i. c. 3, § 7.

PLUME.

Helms or shields
Glittering with gold and scarlet plumery.
Southey. Madoc, § 25.

PLUNDER. And Fuller, in his Church History, b. xi. § 4, writes, "Sure I am we first heard thereof in the Swedish wars." He calls it a contemporary with Malignants, qv. (Trench).

PLURALITY.

In a vast plurality of instances, in which contrivance is perceived, the design of the contrivance is beneficial.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. xxvi.

PLY.

Each man to pleye with a plow,
Pykoies or spade.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1989.

POCK.

Many kene soores,
As pokkes and pestilences.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14118.

(They) assert, that the small-pox was the disease with which the King was seised. He is called a pockish man in the Queen's Letter.
Robertson. History of Scotland, b. iv. n. m. An. 1567.

POETRY.

Bacon restricts (the meaning of the word poetry) to fictitious history or fables. D'Alembert employs it in its natural signification, as synonymous with invention or creation, and comprehending all the fine Arts.
D. Stewart. 1 Diss. Suppl. to Encyc. Brit.

POINT, v. and s. Add—after 1. 18.

Point blank or blanc. Punctum album (in Ascham, called the Prick, qv.), the white point (sc. in a target). To aim or shoot at the point-blanc, or to shoot point blanc, is to aim or shoot straight at the mark or object; without allowing for any bias, which the wind may cause; and hence, gen. to act or do anything straight forward, without obliquity or reserve.

To bring to a point, i. e. the precise part on which the question, the matter, turns or rests; to be at a point, at the end of the matter. A common expression in old writers.

Point of war, qv. on the point or eve of battle. See the quotation from Scott.

Point device. See Device.

To point, to punctuate, qv. to divide into minute portions, by marks in writing; and by breaks or pauses (Chaucer) in reading.

And neyȝinge now batayl, the preest shal stoonde bifore the poynt (L. V. scheltrun, aciem), thus he shal spek to the puple.—Wic. Deut. xx. 2.

The preising of unpitous men is short, and the ioye of an ipocrite at licnesse of a point (instar puncti).—Id. Job xx. 5.

Now is gode to heren, in faie,
If any be that can it saie,
And poinct it as the reson is
Yset; for othergate, I wis
It shall nat well in allè thing
Be brought to gode understanding;
For a reder that poincteth ill,
A gode sentence may often spill.
Chaucer. The Rom. of the Rose, vv. 2157, 61.

But shortly to the point now wol I wende,
And maken of my longe tale an ende.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2967.

He (the Monke) was a lord ful fat, and in good point.
Id. Prologue, v. 200.

You (Lord Archbishop)
Wherefore doe you so ill translate your selfe,
Out of the speech of peace, that beares such grace,
Into the harsh and boystrous tongue of warre?
Turning your bookes to graues, your inke to blood,
Your pennes to launces, and your tongue divine,
To a lowd trumpet, and a point of war.
Shakespeare. 2 Henry IV. act iv. sc. 1, fo. 89, col. 1.

We were pleasing ourselves (in this way), when on a sudden were alarmed with the noise of a drum, and immediately entered my little godson to give me a point of war.

Tatler, No. 95.

The trumpets and kettle-drums of the cavalry were next heard to perform the beautiful and wild point of war appropriated as a signal for that piece of nocturnal duty (setting the watch), and then finally sunk upon the wind with a shrill and mournful cadence.
Waverley, v. ii. ch. 17, near the end. The Eve of Battle.

POISE, v. Poisy matter; weighty, important.

There been certes some that speken their poisye mater in French, of which speeche the Frenche men haue as good fantasye as wee have in hearynge Frenche mens English.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue. Prologue.

No man that I am allied to in my living, but makes it equal, whether his own use, or my necessity pull first;—nor is this foro'd, but the mere quality and poisure of goodness. And do you think I venture nothing?
Beaumont and Fletcher. Wit without Money, act i. sc. 1.

POISON.

Poison on a poole (pole)
Thei putte up to hise lippes,
And beden hym drynke his deeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12177.

The common opinion is that the thorne whereupon they (certain ravenous birds) thus fasten them (their prey) and eate them, is afterward poysonsome.—Speght. Annot.

POLICE, s. Policy of Assurance. Not (says Skinner) from our word Policy, prudence, but from the It. Poliza, a schedule: and the It.—Menage deduces from the Lat. Polyptychum, (Gr. πολυπτυχον, multiplex) variously written, Polyticum, politicum, poleticum;—whence he also derives Fr. Pouille, a catalogue of benefices, and Poulets, amatory letters—Polyticum, was, multiplex tabella (see Diptych), and Poliza or Polisa is explained by Florio—"A schedule, a bill, a note, a writing, remembrance, a bond, an inventorie, an obligation." See Menage It. and Fr. Dictionaries, and Du Cange, for the different kinds of books or registers to which the word was applied.

A policy of insurance (or assurance) is a contract between A and B, that upon A's paying a premium equivalent to the hazard run, B will indemnify or insure him against a particular event.
Blackstone. Commentaries, b. iv. c. 30.

POLICE, s.

To seen small and low govern the hie, and bodies aboue: certainly that pollisye is nought, it is forbode by them that of gouernaunce treaten and enformen.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

Spain is not an enemy to be feared by a nation, seated, manned, furnished, and policed, as is England.
Bacon Obs. on a Libel.

POLISH.

His pik
He sholde polshe newe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3438.

And he ordeyned of hem masouns to stoonis to ben hewen and polischit, that the hous of the Lord be bild up.
Wic. 1 Par. xxii. 2.

POLL.

A pardon with a peis of leed
And two polles amyddes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8519.

Anoon at the comaundement of the Kyng, they polliden Joseph (E. V. doddiden, totonderunt), led out of prisoun.
Wic. Gen. xli. 14.

And the Angel of the Lord toke hym in the poll of hym (L. V. top, in vertice), and bare hym in an her of his hed, and pulle hym in to Babylone, on the lake, in bir of his spirit (in impetu).—Id. Dan. xiv. 35.

POLLUTE.

Holi thei shulen be to her God, and thei shulen not polute his name. (L. V. defoule, polluent.)
Wic. Lev. xxi. 6.

POMEGRANATE.

In the middyl litel belles menged, so that the litel belle be gold and a powm garnet; and eft sones another litel belle and a powm garnet. (L. V. pyn apple, malum punicum.)—Wic. Ex. xxviii. 33.

POME. Pomel. Pomelee Gris; Dappled, grey. Fr. Pomèle; pied with spots round as an apple.

A goldun pomel (aurea mala) in heddis of siluer is he that spekith a word in his time.—Wic. Prov. xiv. 35.

His hakeney, which that was al pomelee gris,
So swatte that it wonder was to see.
Chaucer. The Chanones Yemannes Prol. v. 10627.

POMMEL, s.

And he pist into his wombe so strongly that the pomel (L. V. pomel, ether hilte, capulas) folowid the yren in the wound.—Id. Judg. iii. 22.

POMP.

The worth of the physician is to be estimated by his scorn of petty intrigue, puffing, and pomposity.
Aikin's Letters, ii. 41.

PONDER.

O my liege Lord, the God of my life,
Pleaseth you pond your suppliants plaint.
Spenser. Shep. Cal. Feb.

The ponderer and shaper of his discourses.
Whitlock. Manners of the English, p. 149.

The thriving of that stratagem of Jacob's, the invention of the peeled rods, whereby he was grown so rich, in despite of Laban's malice, God will have ponderingly considered, and imputed as an act of his special interposition or providence.—Hammond. Works, v. iv. p. 497.

PONENT. Barrow uses Ponibility. See SPACE, infra.

POOP, v.

The sea broke most surprisingly all around us, and a large swelling sea threatened to poop us.
Anson's Voyages, b. iii. c. 2.

POOR.

In povernesse of spyrit
Is spedfullest hele.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 525.

Loo! I in my lytyl porenesse (L. V. pouert, in paupertate) haue maad redy before—the expenses of the hous of the Lord.—Wic. 1 Par. xxii. 14.

And he smoot of the puple seuenti men, and fifty thowsynde of the porail. (E. V. raskeyl, plebis.)
Id. 1 Kings vi. 19.

To whom forsothe shal I beholde, but to my porelet (pauperculum) and contrit in spirit, and tremblende my wrdis.—Id. Is. lxvi. 2.

POPELOT. Chaucer, Milleres Tale, v. 3254. Either a dim. of Poupee, a puppet; or a corruption of Papilot, a butterfly. Tyrwhitt.

POPERE. A bodkin. See Skinner.

A joly popere bare he in his pouche.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 3929.

POPLAR.

Therfor Jacob took greene ȝerdis of popeleris. (E. V. popil ȝerdis, virgas populeas.)—Wic. Gen. xxx. 37.

PORE. Gower writes pire. See PEER.

POREBLIND.

If eny man smyte the eye of his seruaunt or of hond mayden, and make hem pure blynde (L. V. oon iȝed, luscos), he shall leave hem fre for the eye that he hath drawun out.—Wic. Ex. xxi. 26.

PORRACEOUS.

I haue percile and porettes,
And many cole plauntes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4372.

PORT, Portcullis. Written by Holland (Ammianus, b. xxv. c. xi.) Portcluse.—Nisibis, the strongest Portcluse of the East.

And portatif and persaunt
As the point of a nedle.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 771.

And these ben the prouostis, after their cuntrees and porcionel principehedis (E. V. porcionelis, porcionales principatus) of hem, that wilt me stieden up fro Babiloyne, in the rewme of Artaxerxes.—Wic. 3 Esd. viii. 31.

Forsothe he (Dauid) made the sones of Idithum to be portours, ether bereris (portarios).—Id. 1 Par. xxvi. 42.

Wherefore is yet my full beleve
That some gode spirit, that ilke eve,
By mene of some airious port,
Bare me where I saw payne and sport.
Chaucer. Dreame, v. 29.

Jabal improved the pastoral art, by leading his flocks from place to place for the benefit of new pasture; and by inventing portative houses, or tents, for his own convenience while he attended them.—Geddes. Note on Gen. iv. 20.

PORTRAY. See RETREAT, infra.

He kan portreye wel the pater-noster,
And peynte it with aves.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9983.

Why shulde I not as wel eke tell you all
The purtreiture that was upon the wall.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1970.

POSE.

I pose I had synned so,
And sholde now deye.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11955.

POSNIT, s. } A small iron pot with a handle
POSSNET. } on the side. Grose.

Forsothe pesible hoostis (hostias) they seetheden in posnettes. (L. V. pannes, lebetibus.)
Wic. Paral. xxxv. 13.

POSSESS, v.

A—lady myn how god hath made the riche,
Thy self allone al richesse to possede.
Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, i. 11.

The circumstances, which originate the sense of property, serve to explain this one fact, the existence of a possessory feeling, in the heart of every individual who is actuated thereby.—Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. i. c. vi. et aliter.

POST.

All those things are passed away like a shadow, and as a post that hasted by.—Wisdom of Solomon, v. 9.

POSTERIOR.

And thei closiden the doris of the gardeyn, and wenten out by a postern (per postiam) for to brenge whiche thingus she bad.—Wic. Dan. xiii. 18.

POSTHUME. Much has been written on the etymology of the Lat. Posthumus. See Voss. It is clear that the adjective, Postumus, last, from posterus, was very early distinguished from Post-humus. And the latter has been ultimately adopted in law to distinguish the child born after the death of the father (qui post humatum patrem natus est) from one last born in the father's lifetime. Our statute and common law take especial cognizance of the former—as in Ventre se mere, at the father's death. We have nothing from the Classic Lat. Postumus. See the Quotation from Fuller, in Dictionary.

POSTHUME, i. e. Imposthume, qv.

He cleped him—A congregation of vices in his brest, as a postume is full of corruption.
Chaucer. Boecius, l. 3, pr. 4.

POSTLE. Postle and Postlehed are var. readings of Apostle, Apostilhed in Wiclif, Mark vi. 30, 2 Cor. xii. 12.

POT. Potsherd; A part sheared or separated from a pot; a fragment of a pot. See SHEAR, and Quotation from Wiclif.

Under a pot he shall be put
In a pryvye chaumbre.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1249.

It contayned two thousand mesuris of thre quartis, thre thousand mesuris neeȝ of a potel.—Wic. 3 Kings, vii. 26.

A man would have bin affeard to haue imitated thunder and lightning, if the potlid of that chymique monke had not, by being tost into the ayre, instructed him.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. c. 2.

POTECARY. See APOTHECARY.

POTENCE.

A pik is on that potente (i. e. a crosier).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5092.

POVERISH. See IMPOVERISH.

Forsothe the puple greetli was poueresht. (L. V. maad pore, attenuatus erat.)—Wic. 2 Esd. v. 18.

POVERTY. See in v. Poor, Wiclif.

Ne Helye ne Austyn,
Swyche liif never used,
But in povert of spirit
Spended her tyme.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1551.

POULDRON.

Conrade, lifting high the deadly battle axe,
Through pouldron and through shoulder deeply driven,
Buried it in his bosom.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. viii. v. 454.

POUNCE.

I have recourse to the knife and the pounce.
Cowper to Unwin, Feb. 29, 1784.

POUND, s.

(Theij) Yeven pardon for pens
Pound-mele aboute.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1327.

POUND, v.

And he that shal falle on this stoon, shal be brokun togidre; forsothe upon whom it schal falle it shal togidre poune hym. (L. V. al to brise, conteret).
Wic. Mat. xxi. 44.

POWDER.

Throughout every regioun
Went this foule trumpet soun,
As swifte as a pellet out of a gonne
When fire is in the powder ronne.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii.

POWER.

In the powerlessness of our existing telescopes, we do not know but it may be so—(that the spaces between the known bodies of the system are peopled with little worlds).
Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. i. c. 7.

POZZ.

An abbreviation exquisitely refined for positive.
Swift. Polite Conversation. Introd.

PRACTISE.

He was perfit praktisour
If any peril fille.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 11015.

PRAGMATICK.

We cannot always be contemplative or pragmatical abroad; but have need of some delightful intermissions, wherein the enlarged soul may leave off awhile her severe schooling.—Milton. Tetrachordon.

PRAISE.

Forsothe in the fourthe ȝeer al the fruytis of the trees schal be halewid preiseful. (E. V. preysable, laudabilis.)
Wic. Lev. xix. 24.

In all this mene while, she (Grisildis) ne stent
This maide and eke hire brother to commend
With all hire herte in ful benigne entent,
So wel that no man coud hire preise amend.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8902.

Then at laste hem axeth this
Emonge the folke touchinge his name,
Or it be price or it be blame.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vii. fo. 165.

PRAISE (Appraise).

Ther were chapman ychose
This chaffare to preise.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 3138.

PRANCE, v.

Mokell wisedome and goodnes bothe nedeth in a persone malice in dignitie slily to bridell, and with a good bit of areste to withdrawe, in case it would prounce otherwise than it should.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

PRATE, v.

He (S. Johnson) has taken occasion to expose to ridicule the childish prattlement of pastoral compositions.
Cowper to Unwin, Oct. 1779.

PRAY. See Piers Plouhman in v. Prison.

Be thou convertid, Lord, hou longe; and louli preyable be thou vp on thi seruauntis. (L. V. able to be preied, deprecabilis.)—Wic. Ps. lxxxix. 13.

PREACH.

The erle should be the next morning by viii of the clocke in the market place, and then preche to the people.
Berners' Froissart, v. i. p. 576.

PRECEL, v.

Be ȝe suget to eche creature of men for God; other to the kyng, as precellent, or more woorthi in staat, other to dukis. (L. V. hiȝer in state, præcellenti.)
Wic. 1 Pet. ii. 13.

There are many and great precellencies (præcellentiæ) of the soule of man, aboue the soules of beasts, evident unto those who philosophize even according to sense.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 3.

PRECINCT.

And ȝif eny man comme with in the purseynt of the temple, be he sleyn. (L. V. closyng, septum.)
Wic. 4 Kings xi. 8; also 15.

PRECISE. We call—Prenotion—a Precision of endless investigation, abscissionem.—Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. c. 5. See the Quotation from Bacon in v. Prenotion, in Dictionary.

PREDIAL.

For they wyll haue no losse
Of theyr predyall landes.
Spenser. Colyn Cloute, v. 932.

PREDOOMED, i. e. Foredoomed, qv.

Her ways
Were ways of darkness, and her death predoom'd
To the black hour of midnight.
Southey. Curse of Kehama, b. vi. § 4; b. xi. § 5.

PREEN, v. Sc. Prein, prene, prin, v. a. To pin. Jamieson. Suio. Goth. Cœlum vel instrumentum quoddam acutum. Prenta, imprimere. Ger. Pfierm. See IHRE.

Forsothe Dauid harpide with his hond, as bi all daies: and Saul helde a spere, and caste, and gesside that he myȝte prene (E. V. pitche to gidre, configere) Dauid with the wal; that is, perse with the spere, so that it schulde passe til to the wal.—Wic. 1 Kings xviii. 11.

And Saul enforside to prene (E. V. fitche to gidre, configere) with the spere Dauid in the wal.
Id. Ib. xix. 10. Second Version.

PREFACE.

Fro hennus therfore we shuln bygynne the tellyng, be it ynewȝ for to haue said so myche of prefacion, or byfore spekyng (de prefatione).—Wic. 2 Mac. ii. 33

PREFE. See PROVE.

PREFER, v.

What preferment then hathe the Jewe.
Bible, 1549. Rom. iii. 1.

PRELATE.

Now certainly he (the monk) was a fayre prelat.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales. Prol. v. 204.

PRELIMIT, v. To limit beforehand.

The lords were highly incensed by this letter (of King Charles), considering it "a prelimiting of their judgment."—Four State Trials. Life of Lord Keeper Herbert, quoted by Campbell, v. ii. p. 101.

PRELUDE, v.

So fares the bull in his lov'd female's sight;
Proudly he bellows and preludes the fight.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneid, b. xii. v. 160.

PREMISE. Dele from Fr. Prémices, line 2, to Dryden, line 4, inclusive. And see Additions to Prime. Also dele the Quotations from Holland and Dryden.

PRENOSTICK.

The dayes called dies cretici and dies of prenostikes of good determynations of the passions of a mans sikenesse or the contrarye.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, c. 6.

PRENTICE.

Som he yaf wit
With wordes to shewe,
(As) prentices of lawe.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 13418.

I have y-maad many a knyght,
Bothe mercer and draper,
That payed nevere for his prentishode
Noght a peire gloves.—Id. Ib. v. 2983.

PREPOST, i. e. Provost, qv.

And he ordeynede hym prepost or soureyn (præpositum) on Egipt, and on al his hous.
Wic. Deeds vii. 10, and Heb. xiii. 24.

PRE-SCIENT.

Petre, apostle of Jhesu Crist, to the chosen gestis or comelingis of dispersioun or scatteringe abrood, of, etc. up the prescience (secundum præscientiam) or bifore knowinge of God the fadir.—Wic. 1 Pet. i. 2.

That terrible term predestination, which hath troubled so many weak heads to conceive, and the wisest to explain, is in respect to God no prescious determination of our states to come, but a definitive blast of his will already fulfilled, and at the instant he first decreed it.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § xi.

PRE-SENSATION.

The ravenous fowls of heaven
Flock there, presentient of their food obscene.
Southey. Don Roderick, § xvii.

PRESS.

Broche hem with a pak-nedle,
And playte hem togideres,
And putte hem in a presse,
And pyne hem thereinne.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 2897.

He (Pictagoras) that in Athenys was a meister, and mi3ti . . . . wolde be maad a pilgrym and a disceyple, more wilnyng other mennus thingis shamfastli to lernen, than his owne unshamfastli to prece forth.
Wic. Bible. Pref. Ep. p. 61.

And Y hopide in the blessyng of God: and as he that gaderith grapis, Y fillide the pressour. (E. V. presse, torcular.)—Id. Ecclus. xxxiii. 17.

With commission—so many as they thought able men of body to beare armes, although they were not come to the lawful age for service, to prest them soldiours.
Holland. Livy, p. 548.

An excellent critic of our own commends Boileau's closeness, or, as he calls it, pressness, particularly; whereas it appears to me, that repetition is his fault, if any fault should be imputed to him.
Young. Love of Fame. Preface.

PREST.

I paide it (tithe) ful prestly,
For peril of my soule.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 3932.

Prest is the Book of Levy (L. V. Opus), in the whiche alle sacryfices . . . enspiren heuenli sacramentis.
Wic. Bible. Pref. Ep. p. 57.

PRESTIGE, s. Now in common use. Prestiges was formerly used in French as explained above (in Dictionary). See Cotgrave. Later Dictionaries, Chambaud to Boiste, say Illusion par fascination; (Boiste continues), par art, fascination. Prestige is applied by us—"To that moral influence (perhaps illusive) which past successes, as the pledge of future ones, breed."—Trench. English Past and Present, Lec. ii.

They (Christians) were stigmatized by the opprobrious appellation of Magic. And Augustus had published very rigorous edicts against the whole race of Præstigiators.
White. Bampton Lectures. Ser. iii. p. 149.

PRESUME. In Wiclif, Wisdom xvii. 10, mar. note, Presume is explained to forgesse (sc. grete yuels to comyng on it silf); and Presumption, gessing (of peyne neiȝhinge).

And pullen forth a presumpcion
To prove the sothe.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 5711.

PRETEND.

Nothing wants, but that thy (Eve's) shape,
Like his, and colour serpentine may shew
Thy inward fraud, to warn all creatures from thee
Henceforth; least that too heav'nly form, pretended
To hellish falshood, snare them.
Milton. Par. L. b. x. v. 872.

PRETER-GENERATION. Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iii. c. 4, from the Lat. Prætergeneratio.

PRETERMIT, v.

But the pledeing of it (method) as a part of the traine of other arts, hath bin the cause that many things which referre unto it, and are usefull to be knowne, are prætermiss'd (prætermissa sunt).
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. vi. c. 2.

PRÆTER-VECTION. Lat. Præter-vectio. A carrying past or beyond. See VEHICLE.

The place he (Kirchman) produces out of Eunapius to that purpose, seems rather to denote the præter-vection of the body to some place, than its elation from the house, wherein it was prepar'd for burial.
Potter. Antiquities of Greece, b. iv. c. 4.

PRETOR.

And he comaundide him for to be kept in the pretorie (in prætorio) or moot hall of Heroude.
Wic. Deeds xxiii. 35.

PREVARICATE.

And Adam was not disceyued in feith, forsooth the womman was disceyued in feith, in preuaricatioun or brekyng of the lawe (prevaricatione. M. V. transgression).
Wic. 1 Tim. ii. 14.

The whiche by manere was semblable to the prevarication (by lyk and contrarye).
The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 16, c. 3.

PREVE, i. e. Prove, qv.

PREVENT.

She preventeth them that desire her in making herself first known unto them.—Wisdom of Solomon, vi. 13.

Thus they in lowliest plight repentant stood
Praying,—for from the mercy-seat above,
Prevenient grace descending had remov'd
The stony from their hearts, and made new flesh
Regenerate grow instead.—Milton. Par. L. b. xi. v. 3.

Half way he met
His daring foe, at this prevention more
Incens't.—Id. Ib. b. vi. v. 129.

The Queen a legion to King Turnus sent,
But the swift horse the slower foot prevent.
Dryden. Æneid, b. ix. v. 504.

He charged the soldiers with preventive care.
Id. Ib. b. x. v. 361.

PREY.

And he toke prayes of the citee (L. V. preies, spolia) and brente it with fiȝr, and distriyede housis therof, and wallis therof in cumpas.—Wic. 1 Mac. i. 33.

PRICK.

I may no lenger lette, quod he,
And ȝyard he prikede.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 12068.

(Oon) Bare-foot on an asse bak
Boot-les cam prikye.—Id. Ib. v. 12093.

(He is) a prikere on a palfrey.—Id. Ib. v. 6220.

The she calf fair and shapli (is) Egipt; the prickere fro the North (stimulator) shal come to hir.
Wic. Jer. xlvi. 20.

Upon the deed ȝe shulen not kitte ȝoure flesh, ne eny pryckyngis ȝe shulen not make to ȝow. (L. V. ether markis in ȝoure fleisch, stigmata.)—Id. Lev. xix. 28.

Thou art he that hast ouercome the pryck of deth—that is—the deuyll.—The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 26, c. 2.

As when, to warn proud cities, war appears
Wag'd in the troubled sky, and armies rush
To battle in the clouds, before each van
Prick forth the airy knights, and couch their spears
Till thickest legions close.—Milton. Par. L. b. ii. v. 536.

PRIDE.

Alle his daȝis the unpitous man proudeth. (L. V. is proud, superbit.)—Wic. Job xv. 20.

PRIMATE.

Forsothe Appolonye, sone of Nestei, was sent into Egipt for primatis, ether princes of Tolome Philemetor, the kyng.
Wic. 2 Mac. iv. 21.

I shulde haue write peraventure to the chirche, but this Diotropis, that loueth to bere primacye in hem (primatum), receyueth not us.—Id. 3 John ix.

PRIME (time). From six to nine in the morning. Primitiæ or Primices. Fr. Prémices; It. Primizia; Sp. Primicia; Lat. Primitiæ. First fruits. See ANNATES.

There I shal seche your prymysies or first fruytis, and the bigynnynge of your tithis in alle your halewingis.
Wic. Ez. xx. 4.

We owen for to do thankingis euer more to God for ȝou, ȝe bretheren loued of God, that God cheer vs primyssis or firste fruytes into healthe, in halowyng of spirit, and feith of treuthe.—Id. 2 Thess. ii. 12.

The swetnesse and softnes of pryme temps called veer, and spryngyn tyme be passed.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, g. 5.

The courtier needes must recompensed bee
With a benevolence, or have in gage
The primitias of your parsonage.
Spenser. Mother Hubbard's Tale, v. 518.

(The Pythagoreans) when they sacrificed unto the gods would especially taste of the primices or parcels of flesh which they had killed.—Holland. Plutarch, p. 638.

This lanx, in English a charger, or large platter, was yearly filled with all sorts of fruit, which were offered to the gods at their festivals, as the premices or first gatherings.—Dryden. On the Origin and Progress of Satire.

PRINCIPAL.

And he ȝaf reste to alle prouyncis, and grantide large ȝiftis aftir principal gret doing. (L. V. worschipful doyng of a prince, magnificentiam principalem.)
Wic. Esth. ii. 18.

ȝelde to me the gladnesse of thin nelthe ȝiuere; and with the spirit principal (spiritu principali) conferme thou me.—Id. Ps. l. 14.

PRINCIPLE.

Siluer hath the principlis of his veynes. (L. V. beginnings, principia.)—Wic. Job xxviii. 1.

Evil examples; . . . natural inclination and other principiant causes, proceeding from the natural weakness of humane constitution, are the fountain and proper causes of many consequent evils.
Bp. Taylor. On Repentance, sec. iv. c. 6, § 70.

In which posture of blind credulity, they might be more easily governed by, and made useful to, some sort of men, who had the skill and office to principle and guide them.
Locke. On Human Understanding, b. i. c. 4, § 24.

PRINT.

And Y suffre the for to make smytyng or printe of thin own money in thi regioun. (L. V. prynte, percussuram numismatis.)—Wic. 1 Mac. xv. 6.

Ypocritis, what tempten ȝee me? Shewe ȝee to me the prynte of the moneye (numisma census).
Id. Matt. xxii. 19.

PRISON, s. Is used by Piers Plouhman in the sense of—Prisoner.

(Charité) many a prison fram purgatorie
Thorugh hise preieres he delivereth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10316.

Lo! Y shal bringe in on thee yuel, and Y shal sle of Achab prisoned (L. V. the closid, clausum), and the laste in Israel.—Wic. 3 Kings xxi. 21.

PRIVILEGE. The Lat. Privilegium, was applied, 1st, to a Law, in privatos homines, against private or single persons; and as such is severely denounced by Cicero. 2ndly, and subsequently, to a Law, granting to a single person, or to a body of persons, some power or immunity for their own exclusive use or enjoyment. Such exclusive powers or immunities are also assumed and exercised by lawfully constituted authorities, for the better enforcement of the powers committed to them, and for the regulation of their proceedings: as by courts of justice, the houses of parliament. Privilege is in common speech applied in contradistinction to Prerogative, qv. As the Privileges of the Commons, the Prerogative of the Crown.

PRIVY.

Ne is it priue fro thee (L. V. hid, clam), that withouten bodies and loond, we han not (nought).
Wic. Gen. xlvii. 18.

—To ȝou it is ȝhouen for to knowe the mysterie or priuyte (mysteria) of the kyngdam of heuenes.—Id. Mat. xiii. 11.

Loke who that is most vertuous alway,
Prive and apert; and most entendeth, ay,
To do the gentil dedes that he can,
And take him for the gretest gentilman.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6696.

PRIZE, or PRISE, s. v. The Ger. Preis; D. Priis; Sw. Pris: are the price or value of a thing. From the A. S. Hent-an, to take (as the Hand), is the Lat. Hend-ere, used only in composition, as prehendere (to pre-hend, qv.), contracted into prendere, past. part. prensum; and hence, the It. prendere; Sp. prender; Fr. prendre; It. and Sp. preso; Fr. prins (see in Cot.) pris; and on this past part. is founded the verb, priser. Both Latin verb and Fr. supply many compounds. And see PRAISE, PRECIOUS, PRENTICE, PRISON, CULPRIT, REPRIEVE, HAND, HINT.

(These were) the pris neet of Piers plow,
Passynge alle othere.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13487.

Opposite to this (the arch of Constantine) is the arch of Titus Vespasian, erected to him for his prize of Jerusalem.
Raymond. A Voyage through Italy in 1646 and 1647.

The stat. in his (Edward I.) 28th year had a sting in the tail that was as ill as his saving of ancient aids and prisals which was in the stat. of confirmation of charters.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, c. lxiv. p. 217.

PROACH, v.

But when the infernal troupe he proched neere,
That still the pagan's ire and rage prouoke,
The angell on his wings himselfe did beare,
And shooke his lance.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. ix. st. 63.

PROBLEM.

And thei seiden to the wijf of Sampson, Glose thin hosebonde, and counseile hym, that he schewe to thee what the probleme signyfieth.—Wic. Judges xiv. 15.

PROCEED, v. PROCESS. Statement of the case proceeding, (account, story). Dyce.

To procede thys history.—Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 327.
A proces I could tell.—Skelton. Philip Sparrow, v. 735.

PRO-CUMBENT. Lat. Procumbens (procumbere). To lean forwards; leaning forwards.

Procumbent each obey'd, and when the flood
Cleaving, we twice that distance had obtain'd,
Again I hail'd the Cyclops.
Cowper. Odyssey, b. ix. v. 580.

PROCURE. In Wiclif, Luke iii. 1, Procurante Pontio Pilato Judæam, Pilat of Pounce kepinge Judee, is in var. r. procurynge or kepyng—also procurende.

For I make Piers the Plowman
My procuratour and my reve.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13472.

PROEM.

Hidur to is the Prohemy; tho thingis, that suen weren set in that place; where it was writun in the book.
Wic. Esth. xii. 6.

PROFESS.

Many tongues of great false teachings . . . loues seruants, that professe in his religion of true rule, pursewen to confounden and to distroyen.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

PROFFER.

The pawme is purely the hand,
And profreth forth the fyngres.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11651.

The profre of hem (L. V. profryng, oblatio) pleside to Emor and to Sichem, his sone.—Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 18.

PROFIT.

I fond there freres,
Prechyng the peple
For profit of hemselue.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 118.

And Jhesus profitide (proficiebat) in wysdom, age, and grace arremptis God and men.—Wic. Luke ii. 52.

PROFOUND.

Vice and the Devil put a fallacy upon our reason, and provoking us too hastily to run from it, entangle and profound us deeper in it.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 55.

PROFUNDITY. See PROFOUND.

PROGENY.

The man asked us by ordre oure progenye (L. V. generacioun, progeniem), if the fadir lyuede, if we hadden a brother.—Wic. Gen. xliii. 7.

PROGNOSTIC, v.

Those acute and subtile spirits (the devils) in all their sagacity, can hardly divine who shall be saved; which if they could prognostic, their labour were at an end, nor need they compass the earth seeking whom they may devour.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § lvii.

PROGRESS, v.

Nor can this remote matter suddenly
Progress so from extreme unto extreme,
As to grow gold, and leap o'er all the means.
Ben Jonson. Alchemist, act ii. sc. 3.

PROGUE. See PRIG.

PROINE. See PRUNE.

PROLATE.

Bycause at the prolacion and repetition of this canticle that tribulacion ceassed.—The Golden Legend, fo. 23, c. 2.

PROLETARIAN, adj. Lat. Proles. Applied to the Roman plebeians, who supplied children to the state, and no other aid.

Of 15000 proletaries slain in battle, scarce fifteen are recorded in history.
Burton. . Anatomy of Melancholy. Pref.

(We) Like speculators should foresee,
From Pharos of authority,
Portended mischiefs, farther than
Low Proletarian tything men.
Butler. Hudibras, pt. i. can. 1.

PROLIX.

Your lordship commanded me to be large, and I take licence to be prolixious, and shalbe peraduenture tedious.
Hakluyt, v. i. R. Thorne to Dr. Ley.

PROMPT.

To procure a ready provision for discourse, arguments may be before hand framed, and stored up, about such things as are frequently incident, and come into disceptation; and this we call promptuarie art, or preparation.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. c. 3.

PRONE. In Wiclif, Gen. viii. 21, the Lat. Pronus is rendered Redi (in to yuel), and in var. r. redi ether proone.

In the most part therof I durst not turn my horse traverse for all the worldly riches, nor in manner look on my left hand for the pronite and deepness to the valley (from the Alps).—Strype, v. i. pt. ii. p. 27.

PRONOUNCE.

And Helyu pronounside; and spac also these thingis. (E. V. tellende forth, pronuntians.)—Wic. Job xxxiv. 1.

But this kind of writing, which seems to be reformed, which is, that the writing should be consonant to speaking, is a branch of unprofitable subtleties; for pronunciation itselfe every day encreases and alters the fashion: and the derivations of words especially from forrain languages are utterly confounded and lost.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. vi. c. 1.

PROPEND, v.

Thou, from the regions of eternal day,
View'st all thy works at one immense survey;
Pleas'd, thou beholdst the whole propensely tend
To perfect happiness, its glorious end.
Blacklock. Ps. 104. Imitated.

Let us suppose a person ever so selfish; let private interest have ingrossed ever so much his attention; yet in instances, where that is not concerned, he must unavoidably feel some propensity to the good of mankind, and make it an object of choice, if every thing else be equal.
Hume. Prin. of Morals, sec. v. pt. 2.

PROPER.

Haile wedded love, mysterious law, true source
Of human offspring, sole propriety
In Paradise of all things common else.
Milton. Par. L. b. iv. v. 751.

It is very natural for every king to desire unlimited power: it is as proper an object to their appetites as wine to a drunkard.—Swift to Pulleney, May 13, 1735.

PROPINQUITY.

There neuer propinquity ne aliaunce was.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

PROPONE.

The meaning of the proponent, spread out at breadth, was to joyn the Presbytery with the Bishop in all acts of ordination and jurisdiction—to give them the first room and first voice and no more.
Hackett. Life of Archbp. Williams, pt. ii. p. 144.

PROPOSE. See PROPONE.

PROSELYTE.

Wo to ȝou scribis and phariseis—ipocrites that goen aboute the see and the lond; to make o prosilite (proselytum), that is, conuertid to ȝoure ordre.
Wic. Mat. xxiii. 15.

Wo be unto you Scribes and Pharises, ye ypocrites: for ye compasse see and lande, to make one proselyte.
Cranmer's Bible, 1539. Ib.

PROSPER.

And thei pursueden sonys of pride, and the werk had prosperite in her hondis (prosperatum est).
Wic. 1 Mac. ii. 47.

PROTECT.

Now in Engelond it is a common protection a3ens persecucion of prelatis, and symme lordis, if a man is customable to swere nedeles, and fals and unauisid, bi the boonys, nailes, and sidis, and other membris of Crist.
Wic. Bible. Prol. p. 33.

PROTERVE, adj. Lat. Protervus, pro terere—To trample down; violent.

In the last dayes men schulen be louynge hem silf . . . unmylde, withoute benignyte, traitours, proterue or ouerthwert (proterui). (M. V. heady.)—Wic. 2 Tim. iii. 4.

PROVAND.

(Mede) provendreth persones,
And preestes maynteneth.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 1657.

PROVE.

That Paul precheth of hem
I wol not preve it here.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 76.

And thou shalt ben larned in alle thingus, and prouable in the si3t of all men. (L. V. comendable, probabilis.)
Wic. Ecc. xlii. 8.

Forsothe Macedonye and Achaye proueden (L. V. assaied, probaverunt) to make sum collacioun, or gedrynge of moneye, in to pore men of seyntis that ben in Jerusalem.
Id. Rom. xv. 26.

PROVE, i. e. Approve.

Bring eke with you a belle, or elles a panne,
Ful of water: and ye shul wel see, thanne,
How that our besinesse shall thrive and preve.
Chaucer. Chan. Yem. Tale, v. 16680.

Among all his after his wicked usage,
This markis yet his wif to tempten more—
To the uttereste prefe of hire corage.
Id. Clerkes Tale, v. 8668.

PROVIDE. Chaucer makes distinction between providence and purveyance. See the Quotation from him in the Dictionary. As provide is to foresee, so provision is foresight; and is so used by Shakespeare.

In his weies it shal shewe itself to them, and gladsumli in alle prouydence, or bifore ordeynyng (L. V. puruyaunce, providentia), it shall a3en come to them.
Wic. Wis. vi. 17.

Pros. I haue with such prouision in mine art
So safely ordered, that there is no soule—
No—not so much perdition as an hayre
Betid to any creature in the vessell.
Shakespeare. Tempest, act i. sc. 2, fo. 2¹.

PROVOST.

And Phynees, the sone of Aaron, the sone of Eliazar, was prouost of the hows. (L. V. souereyn, præpositus.)
Wic. Judges xx. 28.

PROXIME.

This righteousness is the proximous cause operating to salvation.—Tucker. Light of Nature, c. xvii. Christian Scheme, § 24.

PRUNE, v.

For there he pruneth him and piketh,
As doth an hauke, whan him well liketh.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vi. fo. 139.

It is neither indifferent, nor true dealing, thus to nip and proine the Doctor's sayings.—Bp. Jewell, ii. 424. Jeff.

PSALM.

There thow shalt have metynge a floc of prophetis comynge doun fro the hee3, and before hem a sawtree (psalterium), and a tymbre.—Wic. 1 Kings x. 5.

Now forsothe bryngith to me a sawtrer (psaltem). And whanne the sawtrer (psaltes) songe . . . .
Id. 4 Kings iii. 15.

PSILANTHROPIST, s. } From Gr. ψιλος, PSILANTHROPISM. } mere, and ανθρωπος, man. See the Quotations.

If the doctrines, the sum of which I believe to constitute the truth in Christ, be Christianity, then Unitarianism is not, and vice versâ;—and, in speaking theologically and impersonally, i. e. of Psilanthropism, and The-anthropism—as schemes of belief, without reference to individuals, who profess either the one or the other,—it will be absurd to use a different language, as long as it is the dictate of common sense, that two opposites cannot be called by the same name.—Coleridge. Biog. Lit. v. ii. p. 308.

I was a Psilanthropist, one of those who believe our Lord to have been the real son of Joseph, and who lay the main stress of their creed on the resurrection rather than on the crucifixion.—Id. Ib. p. 184.

PUBLICK.

No thyng that is pryve,
Publice thow it nevere.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 6785.

PUCEL, s. } Fr. Pucelle, Pucelage; Lat. PUCELLAGE. } Puella. See MAID. A girl; a maid; a virgin.

Pucell without pere!—Chaucer. Envoys, &c. Bal. iii. 54.

I find the trial of the pucellage and virginity of women, which God ordained the Jews, is very fallible.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 10.

PUCK.

Ne let house-fyres, nor lightnings help-les harmes,
Ne let the pouke, or other evill sprights, ...
Fray us with things that be not.
Spenser. Epithalamium, v. 341.

Ywis, Sire King, quoth Sir Fouk,
Iwene that knight was a pouke.
Ellis. Rom. ii. 195. Richard Cœur de Lion.

PUERILE.

They can sey no reason how olde age entrith sooner in the man after adolescence, no more than doeth adolescence after puerice (puericiæ), called childhode.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, b. 3, (d. iv. h. 3²).

PUERPERAL. Puerum parere; to bring forth a boy, a child. Of or pertaining to childbirth.

Ilithya, arbitress
Of pangs puerperal.—Cowper. Iliad, b. xvi. v. 225.

PUISSANT.

And so puyuntely doth smell, i. e. puissauntly, strongly.
Skelton, v. i. p. 124.

PULE, v.

Sep. Off, off; thou must off; off my cowardize,
Puling repentance, off.—Beaumont and Fletcher. The False One, act iv. sc. 3.

PULL.

Pardoners hadde pite,
And pulled hym into house.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 1321.

PULSE.

(He) perceyved by his pous
He was in peril to dye.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 11502.

PUMP.

While my jealousy of him (Friday) lasted, you may be sure I was every day pumping him, to see if he would discover any of the new thoughts which I suspected were in him.—Defoe. Robinson Crusoe.

PUNGE, v. PUNCTUAL.

The sonus of child wymmen (puellarum) pungiden hem. (L. V. prickiden, compunxerunt.)—Wic. Judith xvi. 14.

Lo! he cometh with cloudis, and eche i3e shal see him, and thei that pungeden (pupugerunt) or prickeden hym.
Id. Apoc. i. 7.

They (the stars) seem to rowle
Spaces incomprehensible (for such
Their distance argues, and thir swift return
Diurnal) meerly to officiate light
Round this opacous eerth, this punctual spot,
One day and night.—Milton. Par. L. b. viii. v. 23.

PUNISH.

And what persone paieth it nought,
Punysshen he thenketh.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 13345.

He wol not entremete by right,
Ne haven God in his eyen sight;
And therefore God shall him punice.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7237.

And the kynge wold no double the payne and pugnycion.
The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 17, c. 2.

PUNY.

Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses of Parliament, or the House of Commons, were not known nor heard of 'till punier times than these.—N. Bacon. Hist. Disc. pt. ii. Preface.

PUPIL.

This is a clene religioun, and unwemmyd anentis God and the fadir, for to visite pupilles (pupillos) that is fadirles or modirles or bothe, and widewes in her tribulacioun, and for to kepe him self vndefoulid fro this world.
Wic. Jam. i. 27.

PURCHASE. Low Lat. Purchacia, porchaicia, per, or rather, por-chaucare; which are derived by Du Cange from Fr. Pourchasser. Purchase, in Chaucer, Man of Lawes Tale, Mr. Tyrwhitt explains, to sustain. In Berners—it is, to seek; to strive to obtain.

He (the Reve) coude better than his lord pourchace;
Ful riche he was ystored privily.
Chaucer. Prologue, v. 610.

For wind and wether almighty God purchace,
And bring hire home.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5293.

Duke Johan of Brabante purchased greatly that the erle of Flaunders should have his doughter in marriage.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 168.

Ye Kynge of England made moche purchace to have the doughter of therle of F. to haue been married to his son Edward.—Id. Ib. v. i. p. 375.

For what in me was purchas'd
Falles vpon thee in a more fayrer sort.
Shakespeare. 2 Henry IV. act iv. sc. 4.

PURE, adj.

And thow shalte gilte it with moost purid gold. (L. V. purest, purissimo.)—Wic Ex. xxv. 24.

PURFLE, v.

A womman
Worthiliche y-clothed,
Purfiled with pelure,
The fyneste upon erthe.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 896.

PURGE, v.

Thei shul be clensed clerliche,
And wasshen of hir synnes
In my prisone purgatorie.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 12868.

Thow shalt passe to the hil and hew to thee, and purge spacis to dwelle. (L. V. clense, purgabis.)
Wic. Josh. xvii. 18.

Thanne al Yracl descendide to Philistiym, that echen sharpe his shaar, and diggyng yren, and axe, and purgyng hook. (L. V. picoise (pickaxe), ligonem.)
Id. 1 Kings xiii. 20.

Forsothe to whom thes ben not redy, he is blynd, and bi hond temptynge or assayinge, receyuynge forgetingnes of the purgynge (purgationis, var. r. purginguesse) of his olde trespassis.—Id. 2 Pet. i. 9.

The humors in anatomie are commonly past by, as if they were superfluous purgaments and excrements.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 2.

PURITAN.

The name Puritan was put upon them (the Nonconformists, A. D. 1564), and by that they were commonly known; when they had been called by that name awhile, the vicious multitude of the ungodly called all Puritans, that were strict and serious in a holy life, were they ever so conformable! So that the same name in a bishop's mouth, signified a Nonconformist, and in an ignorant drunkard's or swearer's mouth, a godly, obedient Christian.
Sylvester. Life and Times of Richard Baxter, p. 32.

We have thought proper to insert in this place an account of the rise and progress of the Puritans; because Camden marks the present year (1568) as the period when they began to make themselves considerable in England.
Hume. History, c. xl.

PURLOIN.

He that prolongeth his brother which is a fre man, and sillith hym, shal be slayn.—Wic. Bible. Prol. p. 7.

PURPLE.

And sum womman, Lidda, bi name, purpuresse (purpuraria) of the citee of Tiatereus, worschipinge God, herde. (M. V. seller of purple.)—Wic. Deeds xvi. 14.

PURPOSE, v.

What is forsothe other folk of kynde so noble, that hath ceremoyns, and ri3twis domys, and al the lawe, that I purpose to day before 3oure eyen? (L. V. sette forth, proponam.)—Wic Deut. iv. 8.

How Caton was lerned in the lawe—a pleder and a purposer in the courtys.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, a. 1, c. 2. Caxton.

PURPUREAL. See PURPLE.

A bright belt
Purpureal (Hector) took from Ajax in return.
Cowper. Iliad, b. vii. v. 360.

PURSE, v.

Hastow (hast thou) ought in this purs, quod he.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 3097.

Pap. My little foreign friend purs'd up his lanthorn jaws with a shrug of contempt.—Foote. The Lyar, act i.

PURSUE, v.

For, Sir! my nece wol doen well by the,
And love the best, by God and by my trothe—
But lacke of pursute marre it in thy slothe.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 959.

She led them on in quick pursual.
Southey. Don Roderick, § xiv.

PURVEY.

3yue thou not thi mouth; that thou make thi fleisch to do synne; nether sei thou bifor an aungel, No purueiaunce is. (E. V. purueying, providentia.)—Wic. Eccles. v. 5.

PUSH.

For a cat . . . .
Pleide with hem perillousle
And possed about.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 302.

All the lockes, alle the barres and shittynges (i. e. shuttings), ben broken and to pusshed.
The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 21, c. 1.

PUSIL, adj. Little. See PUSILLANIMOUS.

But now it (Spiritus) is knowne to be a corporall and materiate substance, it is necessarie to be enquired, by what efforts such a pusill (pusilla) and thin soft aire should put in motion such solid and hard bodies.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 3.

PUT, s. A game at cards. A country Put. See Tatler, No. 230; where this word, with banter, bamboozle, kidney, are mentioned as refinements struggling into notice.

Peter (quod a plowman)
And putte forth his hedde.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 3578.

(These) peculiarities would have denominated me a Green Horn, or in other words, a country put very green.
Adventurer, No. 100.

PUT. In Wiclif, Ex. xxi. 29, The Lat. Cornupeta, is rendered horn-pultere; pultere with horn.

Sothli of the cumpanye thei withdrowen sum man, Alisaundre, Jewis puttinge or fer schowfynge. (L. V. puttiden, var. r. pultyng or pultiden, propellentibus.)
Wic. Deeds xix. 33.

PUTATIVE. Lat. Put-are, to cut out; sc. anything hurtful or useless. Met. To cut out—false opinions—preserving only true; to clear away doubtful or obscure notions. See Aulus Gellius, l. vi. c. 5, quoted by Vossius.

PUZZLE.

O'Flan. They have got the old Gentleman into such puzzleation, that I don't believe he knows what he wishes himself.—Foote. The Bankrupt, A. iii.

PYRAMID, s. Volney derives from Bour a mit —The Cave or Sepulchre of the dead. Mr. Renouard approves the Etymology of De Sacy—from the Egyptian, Pehram; the sacred place. See Ency. Metropolitana.

PYRY. See PEAR.

Q.

QUADRANT.

To find the quadrature of the circle, is to find a rectilinear quadrilateral plane rectangular and equilateral, whose area or space included within the linear perimeter may be most accurately equal to the proposed circle, i. e. to the plane area which is circumscribed by the circular perimeter.—Barrow. Mathematical Lectures, xi. p. 201.

QUADRUPED.

But learn we might, if not too proud to stoop
To quadrupede instructors, many a good
And useful quality, and virtue too,
Rarely exemplified among ourselves.
Cowper. Task, b. vi. v. 622.

QUAINT.

Whom euer I schal kisse, he it is: holde ȝe him, and lede ȝe warly, or queyntely (caute).—Wic. Mark xiv. 44.

A bird . . . . all full of colour strange and coint,
Uncouth, and wonderfull to sight,
Upon the Quenes herse con light.
Chaucer. Dreame, v. 1826.

QUAIRE. } See QUIRE.
QUEARE. }

QUAKE.

Heȝe thingus also shul dreden and quaken in the wei (be aferd, formidabunt).—Wic. Eccles. xii. 5.

Forsothe drede and quakynge (tremor) had assayled hem, or gon in to hem, and to no man thei seiden ony thing, forsothe thei dreden.—Id. Mark xvi. 8.

QUAKER.

The violent enthusiasm of this sect, like all high passions, being too strong for the weak nerves to sustain, threw the preachers into convulsions, and shakings, and distortions of limbs; and they thence received the appellation of Quakers. George Fox, born at Drayton in Lancashire, in 1624, was founder of this sect.
Hume. History of England, c. 62. An. 1660.

QUALMIRE. See QUAG.

QUAPPE.

And whanne ȝit he quappid (L. V. spraulide, palpitaret), cleuying in the Ook, ten ȝonge squyers of Isab, runnen and smytynge, slowen hym (Absolon).
Wic. 2 Kings xviii. 14.

Achior fel in to his face vpon the erthe, and his lif quappide. (L. V. his soule suffride eneyntizyng, æstuavit anima ejus.)—Id. Judith xiii. 29.

QUARRY.

And thei ȝeuen it (monei) to the craftis men and to the masouns, that thei schulden bien hewen stones of the quarers. (L. V. out of the delues, ether quarreris, de lapidicinis.) (4 Kings xxii. 6, quarrees, L. V. quarieris.)
Wic. 2 Par. xxxiv. 11.

QUARTAN. Recurring on the fourth day. See Chaucer, in v. Quotidian, infra.

QUARTERN. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Payse, supra.

QUAVE.

And derk bicam the sonne;
And al the world quaved.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12196.

And Saule sawȝ the tentis of Philisteis, and dradde and his herte quauyde (var. r. quakide, expavit) ful myche.
Wic. 1 Kings xxviii. 5.

Also after the wynde, quauynge; not in the quauynge of the Lord. (L. V. stiring, commotio.)
Id. 3 Kings xix. 11.

QUEACH. A queach of bushes, in Julia Barnes, Skinner thinks, is a quick or quickset of bushes.

QUEDE. Lat. Ni fallor; Dut. Quaede; Ger. Quad. Bad, wicked. Skinner. And see Quad in Wachter. Quaed in Kilian. Also Tyrwhitt.

A Quede, An evil, a harm.

God ȝive the monke a thousand last quad yere (i. e. a thousand last (ever so great a weight) of bad yeres).
Chaucer. Prioresses Prol. v. 13368.

My fader it (Daunger) is such a quede,
That where I come, he is tofore,
And doth so, that my cause is lore.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. iii. fo. 55ᵃ.

There maie none quad that man arest,
Where so he be on sea or londe,
That hath this ryngе upon his honde.
Id. Ib. b. v. fo. 103.

Though these knaues be deade,
Full of myschefe and queed,
Yet where so euer they ly
Theyr names shall neuer dye.—Skelton. Epitaphe.

QUELET, or } A gathering; a collection.
QUYLET. } (Glos. to Wiclif.)

And ȝe schulen offre brent sacrifice to the Lord, it is forsothe of companye, and of quelet; al seruile werk ȝe schulen not do in it. (L. V. gaderynge, est enim cætus atque collectæ.)—Wic. Lev. xxiii. 36; and Deut. xvi. 8.

QUEMEFUL.

Thin ire ceesse and be thou quemeful on the wickidnesse of thi puple. (E. V. peesyble, placabilis.)
Wic. Ex. xxxii. 12.

He shal biseche God, and he shal be quemeful to hym. (E. V. plesable, placabilis.)—Id. Job xxxiii. 26.

QUENCH.

My deeth shal releve,
And bothe quykne and quyte
That queynt was thorugh synne.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12772.

The sone of tresoun, that was Judas, acquenchid.
Wic. Prol. Luke.

The sone of lost aquent. (L. V. the sone of perdicioun was deed.)—Id. Prol. Deedis.

QUERNE.

And the puple ȝode about, and gaderide it (manna), and brak with a quearne stoon. (E. V. gryndstoone, mola.)
Wic. Num. xi. 8.

QUERROUR. See QUARRY.

QUERULOUS.

And the Lord seide to Moyses, Ber aȝen the ȝerde of Aaron into the tabernacle of witnessynge, that it be kept there into the tokne of the rebel sones of Israel, and the querels resten (L. V. playntis, querelæ quiescant) fro me, lest thei dien.—Wic. Num. xvii. 10.

QUEST.

If we have any certain prenotion, presently that which is infinite is discharged and cut off, and the questing of memory is brought within a more narrow compass.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. c. 5.

It (an opinion) has to undergo a long questionary process, among the fumes, and the filtrations, and the intense heat of a laboratory.
Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. ii. c. 2.

QUETH. See QUOTH.

QUIBBLE. See QUIP.

QUICKEN. See Piers Plouhman in v. Quench, supra.

And tho was he conquerour called
Of quyke and of dede.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13065.

QUINCES. Written Coines, is enumerated among "the homely trees" in the garden. Chaucer, Rom. of the Rose, v. 1374.

QUINIBLE, s. Is explained (says Skinner), a treble.

Therto he song somtime a loud quinible.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3332.

QUIRE.

Whether thei sungen not to hym by queeris (var. r. carouls, per choros), and seiden, Saul smoot a thousynde, and Dauid smoot ten thousynde.—Wic. 1 Kings xxi. 11.

QUIT. See Piers Plouhman in v. Quench, supra.

To quite vows (vota solvere).—Wic. Num. xv. 3.

Y schal ȝelde vengeance to myn enemyes, and Y schal quyte (retribuam) to hem that haten.—Id. Deut. xxxii. 41.

Every Christen wight shal han penance,
But if that he his Christendome withseye;
And gon al quite, if he wol it reneye.
Chaucer. Seconde Nonnes Tale, v. 15916.

That all arrestments, reprisals, and impignorations of whatsoever goods and merchandizes, &c. made, &c. are from henceforth quiet, free, and released.
Hackluyt, v. i. Richard II. and Pruss. Ambass.

QUIVER, s.

Agen eche pale (she) shal sitte and agen alle arewe shal opene quyuere (pharetram) to the tyme that she faile.
Wic. Ecclus. xxvi. 15.

QUOD. See QUOTH.

QUOTH.

I quethe him quite (i. e. I say he is, I declare him, quit)
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7001.

QUOTIDIAN.

Cotidien, ne the quarteine,
Is not half so full of peine.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2401.

QUYTER, v. } Perhaps from A. S. Scyt-an, to QUYTURE, s. } shoot.

Ne with the quyterende enuye wei I shal han. (L. V. with enuye wexynge rotun, invidia tabescente.)
Wic. Wis. vi. 15.

The which (Job) with a scherd scrapide awei the quyture (saniem), sittende in the dunghil.—Id. Job ii. 8.

Thou forsothe art cast aferr fro thi sepulcre, as a stoc unprofitable, as with quyture defyled. (L. V. defouliđ with rot, pollutus.)—Id. Is. xiv. 19.

R.

RA, RAE. See ROE.

RABBET, v.

Two rabitynges (L. V. dentynges, incastraturæ) weren by eche tables, that the tone to that other myȝt be ioyned.
Wic. Ex. xxxvi. 22; also 24.

RABBLE, v. In the North still in common use. To speak in a confused manner.—Brockett; and in the Exmouth Dialect—A rabble-rote is a repetition of a long, round-about story. Grose. Fox (see in Dictionary) writes, "to rabble out the scriptures without purpose, rime, or reason."

To rabble was the common word used in Scotland at the time of the Revolution to denote the outrages of "a noisy, tumultuous medley" of Covenanters towards the Church clergymen. For the extent to which these outrages were carried, see Macaulay's History of England, v. iii. pp. 249, 250.

RACE. A. S. Ræse, cursus. A course or race. Item, impetus fluvii—the violent course of a river. Somner. See the Quotation from Berners.

They sayled so longe yt they passed the rase—Saynt Matthew in Bretayne.—Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 215.

RACE.

They (Thomson's Poems) are I think improved in general: yet I know not whether they have not lost part of what Temple calls their "race," a word which when applied to wine in its primitive sense, means the flavour of the soil.—Johnson. Life of Thomson.

RACH. RACHET. See BRACH.

RACK. See WRACK, infra, and the Quotation from Sterling in v. Sky.

The heavens grew exceeding black; also it thundered and lightened in most fearful wise, that it put me into an agony: so I looked upon my dream and saw the clouds rack at an unusual rate.—Bunyan. Pilgrim's Progress.

RACK, v. To rack the value. Shaks. To stretch, strain, or extend.

Rack Rent, A rent stretched to the utmost.

RAD. RADDE. See READ.

RADIATE.

I appeal to any one's experience, whether he be conscious to himself, that he thinks on the intersection made by the radious pencils, or pursues the impulses they give in right lines, whenever he perceives by sight the position of any object.—Berkeley. On Vision, § 90.

RAFT. See REAVE.

RAILE, v.

His railing braunches (L. V. bows, propagines) ben forsaken; thei passeden the se.

Wic. Is. xvi. 8; also Ps. lxxix. 12.

RAIN.

And ever more so sterneliche it roné,
And blewe therwith so wonderliché loude,
That wel nigh no man heren other coude.

Chaucer. Troylus and Crestida, b. iii. v. 675.

RAISE, or REISE, and to Rere, are used in Wic. as we now use Rouse, qv.

Thei that weren in the tabernacle, camen and maden noise before the entring of the bed, and ymagyneden by craft unrestfulnesse for cause of reisyng (E. V. for ende to reren, causo excitandi) that Holofernes schulde awake not of the reiseris (E. V. rereres, var. r. arereres, ab excitantibus) but of sowneris (a sonantibus).—Wic. Judith xiv. 9.

His soldiers tooke more pleasure in booties and reises (populationibus) than in ease and repose.

Holland. Livy, p. 437.

RAISIN, s. Fr. Raisine (Raisine de Corinthe is the Currant); Lat. Racemus, a bunch or cluster. A fruit, e. g. of the vine, the grape dried. So named from hanging in bunches.

Whethir a reisyn (E. V. graap, racemus) of Effraym is not better than the vindagis of Abiezer!

Wic. Judges viii. 2.

And there shall be left in it as a rasyn. (E. V. braunches of a cluster. Marg. note, a rasyn is a lytil bow with a lytil fruit.)—Id. Is. xvii. 6.

RAKE.

And ryght as Robartes men
Raken about, at feyres

Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 144.

A rakiere of Chepe.—Id. Vision, v. 3120.

RAM.

Therfor ȝe to ȝou seuene bolis, and seuene rammes. (E. V. wetheris, arietes.)—Wic. Job xlii. 8.

RAMAS, v. and s. Fr. Ramasser (Cot.) To keep, to collect together. RAMASSE. Fr. Rameau. A bough, or branch; a broom. Also a kind of high sled, or wheelbarrow, wherein travellers are carried down certain steep and slippery places in Piedmont.

Ramassed, in Hackluyt, is swept, heaped together; in Sir R. G.—is carried down on a ramasse (probably a bush hurdle).

Volumes—indeed most untruly and unprofitablee ramassed and hurled together.—Hackluyt. To the Reader.

And from the hyght of the mounte (Cenis) down to Lyuynborugh I was ramasshed, whiche is a right straunge thynge.—The Pilgrymage of Syr R. Guylforde. Knyght, p. 80. Notes and Queries, v. iii. p. 347.

RAMFEEZLED. Dr. Jamieson explains — Fatigued, exhausted, overspent; and suggests doubtfully two etymologies (qqv.) Cowper seems to have purloined the word from Burns.

The tapetless (heedless) ramfeezl'd hizzie,
She's saft at best, and something lazy.

Burns. Works, v. iii. p. 243.

I lent him (Burns) to a very sensible neighbour of mine, but his uncouth dialect spoiled all, and before he had half read through him, he was quite ramfeezled.

Cowper to Rose, Aug. 27, 1787.

RAMP.

Thei opened up on me ther mouth; as a leoun rampaunt (rapiens) and rorende.—Wic. Ps. xxi. 14.

Beniamyn, a wulf raumpynge (L. V. rauyschynge, rapax) the morwen tide he shall eete a pray; and the euentide, he shall diuyde spoylis.—Id. Gen. xlix. 27.

RAMPART.

Still the ramparted ground
With a vision my fancy inspires,
And I hear the trump sound,
As it marshall'd our chivalry's sires.

Campbell. On the Camp Hill, near Hastings.

RANDOM.

This noble truth, that the only true foundation and original of morality is the will of God, interpreted by the moral sense and essential difference of things, was a random thought of Chrysippus, the Stoic.

Warburton. Divine Legation, b. i. sec. 4.

RANGE.

Than made he ladders three
To climben by the renges, and the stalkes,
Unto the tubbes honging in the balkes.

Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3625.

And (they) shal compase the kynge round aboute, euery man wyth his wepen in his hād. And whosoever cometh within the rāges shal dye for it.—4 Kynges xi. 8. Bible, 1549.

RANSOM. To ransom is also to exact ransom; to plunder, to pillage. See the Quotations from Berners, in Dictionary.

RAP.

Two risen up in rape (haste).

Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3141.

But though ye loke never so brode, and stare,
Ye shuln not win a mite on that chaffare;
But wasten all that ye may rape and renne.

Chaucer. Chan. Yem. Tale, v. 16890.

Wost thou, how I know how to escape?
I say and sweren him full rape.

Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6518.

She has confessed to me to haue felt in her soule such influxes of heauenly joy as have allmost carryed her into another world: I do not call them rapts and fllapses, because she would not haue endured to be esteemed above other humble Christians.

Evelyn. Life of Mrs. Godolphin, p. 168.

O, had I Virgil's verse or Tullie's tongue!
Or raping numbers like the Thracian's song.

Browne. Brit. Past. b. i, s. 4.

Wave rowling after wave, where way they found
If steep—with torrent rapture, if through plaine,
Soft ebbing.—Milton. Par. L. b. vii. v. 299.

But we, weak minstrels of a laggard day,
Skill'd but to imitate the elder page,
Timid and raptureless, can we repay
The debt thou claim'st in this exhausted age?

Scott. Don Roderick. Introduction.

RAPTURE. See RAP.

RASCAL.

And he smoot of the people (de populo) seuenti men and fifti thowsandis of the raskeyl. (L. V. poraile, plebis.)

Wic. 1 Kings vi. 19.

RASE.

Sende we a tre in to the brede of hym, and rase (E. V. shaue, eradamus) hym awei fro the land of lyueris, and his name be no more hadde in mynde.—Wic. Jer. xi. 19.

RASH, s. Minsheu (says Skinner) derives from D. Ras; It. Raso, Rascia, Sericum, Sattin, q. Sericum rasum (shaved or shorn). Villi enim expers est. It. Rascia—A kind of stuffe called silk Rash. Raso,—The stuff called sattine. Florio. See the Quotation from Donne in v. Sleeve, infra.

RAT, v. To rat (in common use). To leave when no longer safe to stay (as rats, a falling house); to quit or forsake the weaker for the stronger party.

He now changed his party, but (I must say) without being at all liable to the imputation of a change from mercenary motives, which is conveyed by the modern word "ratting."—Campbell. Lives of Chancellors.

RATE, v.

Fathers, rate not your children, least they be of desperate mynde.—Bible, 1549. Colos. c. iii.

RATH. Rathest was used so late as Bp. Sanderson. (Trench.)

Aske the rathermor (L. V. formere, pristinam) ieneracioun, and bisily enserche the mynde of the faders.

Wic. Job viii. 8.

But now to purpose of my rather speche.

Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1837.

But lesingoures with hir base flatterie . . .
With fraude covered under a pitous face,
Accepted be nowe rathest unto grace.

Id. The Black Knight, v. 427.

When you haue most plentie then ratherest prouide against wante.—The Schole of Cyrus, boke i. Translated by Wm. Bercker. (Horne Tooke. M. S. in Skinner.)

RATIONAL, s. A Rational, Lat. Rationale. See Du Cange. The breest brooch, or nowche upon the breest, in which dome and treuthe shal be writen. —Note on Wiclif.

Forsothe these schulen be the clothis whiche thei schulen make; thei schulen make racional (rationale).

Wic. Ex. xxviii. 4.

RATIONAL, adj.

There is a new sect sprung up among them (the Presbyterians and Independents), and these are the Rationalists, and what their reason dictates them in church or state stands for good until they be convinced with better.—Clarendon. State Papers, v. ii. p. 40. App. Oct. 14, 1646. (Trench.)

RAUCOUS, adj. } Lat. Raucus; the sub. Rau-
RAUCITY, s. } citas is applied by Pliny as the English Raucity, by Bacon, to the sound of the trumpet.

Raucous, hoarse, harsh.

Inequality (of sound) not stayed upon but passing, is rather an increase of sweetness; as in the purling of a wreathed string, and in the raucity of a trumpet.

Bacon. Natural History, Cent. VII. § 700.

They (the Arras parrot) seem to articulate only the sound Ara, and with a raucous thick tone, which is grating to the ear.—Buffon. History of Birds. (Trans.)

RAVE.

What ravestow (thou)? quod Rightwisnesse,
Or thow art right dronke?

Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12452.

RAVEN.

Wold religeouse refuse raveneres almesse,
Then grace sholde growe yut.

Piers Plouhman's Vision, p. 561.

Rauynours (E. V. reueres, prædones) schulen come fro the north to it (Babylon) seith the Lord.—Wic. Jer. li. 48.

RAVISH.

He aroos and regnede
And rauysshed helle.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13063.

All outward lamben semen we,
Full of godenesse, and of pite;
And inwarde we withouten fable,
Ben gredy wolves raviable.

Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7018.

RAW.

Eyen rawe may not abyde
For to behold ayenst his bemys bright.

Lyfe of our Ladye, d. 4, col. 2. Caxton.

RAY, v. To stripe.

A rai cloth she made to hir (stragulatam vestem); bijs and purpre the clothing of hir.—Wic. Prov. xxxi. 22.

Also goldene setis and siluerene, vp on the raied (L. V. arayed, stratum) pavment smaragd and pario stones, were disposid.—Id. Esth. i. 6.

RAY, v. i. e. Array.

He rayed him otherwise; and without wordes mo,
They went to the dyner.

Chaucer. Second Marchantes Tale, v. 3181.

REACH.

He (Sloth) bigan Benedicite with a bolk,
And his brest knokked,
And rayed and rored,
And rutte (routed) at the last.

Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3269.

READ.

And thanne had repentaunce ruth,
And redde hem alle to knele.

Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3444.

Joseph . . .
. . He which that rade so
The Kinges meting (dream).

Chaucer. The Duchesse, v. 281.

REALM.

Thin eyen han seen that the Lord oure God dide to thes two kyngis; so he shal do to all these rewmes (regnis) to the whiche thow art to passynge.—Wic. Deut. iii. 21.

And (he) driede the water of it (Euphrates) that weie were rediede (L. V. maad redi, prepararetur) to kyngis fro sunne risynge.—Id. Apoc. xvi. 12.

REALM.

Whoso wol seker actes of sondry remes,
May rede of dremes many a wonder thing.
Chaucer. Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15142.

Nought trow I, the triumph of Julius,
Of which that Lucan maketh swiche abost
Was realler, or more curious,
Than was th' assemblee of this blisful host.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4822.

Theseus with alle joye and blis;
With his Ipolita, the fayre quene;
And Emelie, yclothed all in grene;
On hunting be they ridden really.—Id. Ib. v. 1689.

REAP, s. In Wiclif's Bible, the Lat. Manipulus, is in the E. V. rendered Sheaf, qv. and in the L. V. Reep. E. V. Rep-time; L. V. Heruest. Messio.

And if I repe . . .
(I) yaf hem reed that ropen
To seise to me with hir sikel
That I ne sew nevere.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8775.

ȝe han erid vnfeithfulnesse, ȝe han rope (E. V. repiden, messuistis), ȝe han ete the corn of leesyng.
Wic. Hoseæ x. 13.

Whanne thou repist corn in the feeld, and forgetist, and leeuest a repe (E. V. handful, manipulum), thou schalt not turne aȝen to take it, but thou schalt suffre that a comelyng, and fadirles, and modirles, and widewe take awei, that thi Lord God blesse thee in al the werk of thin hondis.—Id. Deut. xxiv. 19.

Hir husbonde was Manasses, that died in the dayes of barli rip. (L. V. heruest, messis.)—Id. Judith viii. 3.

He (Manasses) stood bisili ouer men bindynge togidere reepis in the feeld. (E. V. sheeues, manipulos.)—Id. Ib.

Ye lovers, that make (sc. verses) of sentiment—
Well I wote, that ye han here beforne—
Of Making—ropen and lad awaie the corne.
Chaucer. Legend of Good Women, Prol. v. 74.

RE-APPAREL. To apparel or clothe again. See REPARREL.

How long a day soever thou make that day in the grave, yet there is no day between that and the resurrection; then we shall all be invested, reapparelled, in our own bodies.—Donne. Devotions, p. 358.

REAR.

Befor the incomyng of the priue chaumbre (thei) makende noise, for ende to reren hym (gratiæ excitandi), that not of the rereres (excitantium) but of the noise makeris Olofernes shulde waken (var. r. arere).—Wic. Judith xiv. 9.

Thei waastyn folily hire goodis in wakyngs and pleyingis bi niȝt, and in rere soperis, and othere vanites.
Id. Bible. Prol. p. 34.

REAR. (Arrear.)

Swiche dedes I dide write
If he his day breke—
I have mo manoirs thorugh rerages
Than thorough . . . .—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2963.

REASON. Piers Plouhman writes Renable, for Reasonable. See in v. Renoun. In Chaucer (see in v. Great), Reason of a pricke is proportion—puncti ratio. See Quotation from Barrow, and in v. Moment, from Berkeley. See also Locke, in v. Reveal, infra.

But aȝen the thre frendis of hym he dedeynede, forthi that thei hadden not found a resounable (rationalem) answere, but only they shulden han condempned.
Wic. Job xxxii. 3.

As to what pertains to reason and proportion (for these names are equipollent among most writers) the Greeks design it by the word λογος, logos, speech, than which scarce any word in that tongue occurs more ambiguous.
Barrow. Mathematics, Lec. xvii. p. 314.

REAVE.

If he reveth me my right,
He robbeth me by maistrie.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 630.

Haste thou spoiles to tac awey, heeȝe (hie) thou to refen (prædari).—Wic. Is. viii. 3.

For ȝee ful out ioȝen, and grete thinȝus speken, reuende awei myn eritage.—Id. Jer. l. 11.

She rofte hire selven to the herte,
And deide thorough the woundes smerte.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. i. v. 373.

The mast to brake, the sayle to roofe,
The ship upon the wawes droofe.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. c. 178².

He rave it cleane asunder.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 160.

RE-BEHOLD. To behold again.

So my nimble thought
May image, how at first I rebeheld
The sun, that bedward now his couch o'erhung.
Cary. Dante. Purgatory, b. xvii. v. 8.

REBEL.

(They) riseden aȝens Moises and Aaron, in the rebelte (seditione) of Chore, whanne they rebelleden (rebellaverunt) aȝens the Lord.—Wic. Num. xxvi. 9.

Thei cummen to us in rebelle multitude (contumaci) and pride, for to distruye us, and oure wyues, and oure sonys.
Id. 1 Mac. iii. 20.

REBOKE. See BELCH.

His stomak stuffed ofte tymes did reboke.
Skelton. Bouge of Court, v. 180.

RE-BOUND. The Lat. Red-undare and Resonare are in Wiclif rendered Reb-ound. See REDOUND, infra.

The blood of all that with thee weren in the hows, shal rebound (L. V. turne, redundabit) into our heed, if hem any man towchith.—Wic. Josh. ii. 19.

The aȝeen sounende rebounding of sound for the hetest hillis maden hem failende fro drede. (L. V. ether ecco sownyng aȝen, resonans echo.)—Id. Wisd. xvii. 18.

REBUKE, v. See Piers Plouhman in v. Why.

And thanne I rebukede reson.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7319.

REBULLITION. See REBOIL.

RE-CALL, v.

A change of government is judged a necessary measure to bring about his (Alcibiades') recalment.
Smith. Thucydides. Discourse, iii. p. 92.

RE-CAPITULATE, v.

Perlipomynon (Deuteronomy) is the boke of the olde instrument, recapitulator (L. V. rehersour), word bregger, &c.
Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 72.

A *recapitulaciou*n of the wordes of Gabryel to our lady.
Lyfe of our Ladye, xviii. Caxton.

RECCHE. See RECK, infra.

RECEIVE.

He made redi of bras diuerse vessels, caudruns, tongis, fleisch-hokis, hokis, and resseitis of firis. (E. V. fier pannes, ignium receptacula.)—Wic. Ex. xxxviii. 3.

Victorie and worshipe shal purchace, that ȝeueth ȝiftis; forsothe he taketh awei the soule of the resceyueres. (L. V. takeris, accipientium.)—Id. Prov. xxii. 9.

RECENT.

She objected the recency of her kinswoman's death.
Smollett. Peregrine Pickle, v. iv. c. 13.

RE-CENTRE. To centre again, or restore to the centre.

Now I recentre my immortal mind
In the deep sabbath of meek self-content.
Coleridge. Ode to the Departing Year, § ix.

RECESS. See RECEDE.

RE-CHANGE.

The rechaunge backward is ever hurtful, costly, and very chargeable.—Dr. Thos. Wilson. A Discourse vpon Usurie, fo. 117², 1572.

RECK.

Therfor Y sent messangeris to hem, and Y seide, Y make a greet werk, and Y mai not go doun, lest peraventure it be doon retchelessli (negligatur) whanne Y come and go doun to you.—Wic. 2 Esd. vi. 3.

But natheles I recche not a bene.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Prol. v. 4514.

But wel rede I, that by no maner weie
Ne semid it, as if she on him rought,
Or of his paine.—Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 496.

Ne that a monk, when he is rekkeless,
Is like to a fish that is waterless.—Id. The Prol. v. 179.

Then cometh negligence or recchelesnesse, that recketh of nothing.—Id. Persones Tale.

And Pandarus, withouten rekening,
Out went to Helen and Deiphobus (i. e. accounting for doing so).
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1640.

And such a sorowe he toke therfore,
That he sat euer still, and thought,
As he which of no meate rought.
Gower. Conf. Am. l. 8, fo. 177ᵃ.

Baronius and Habertus, and our learned Bp. Taylor, reckon he only dissembled and used this stratagem (unbelief) to avoid being ordained.
Bingham. Antiq. of Christian Church, b. iv. c. 3.

RE-CLAIM. (As applied to wild animals.)

Thou rote of false lovires, Duke Jason!
Thou sleer, devourer, and confusion,
Of gentil women, gentil créatures:
Thou madest thy reclaiming, and thy lures,
To ladies, of thy scathliche aparaunce.
Chaucer. Hypsip and Medea, v. 1371.

The consul from calling and reclaiming his souldiers back fell to exhort and encourage.—Holland. Livius, p. 557.

RECLUSE.

The preest shal recluse hym (L. V. close, recludet) seuen daies.—Wic. Lev. xiii. 5; also v. 50.

Theraftir if any of hem hadde falle doun, he was kepte in prisoun, withoute iren, reclosid (reclusus).
Id. Wis. xvii. 15.

RE-COMFORT.

Repentaunce . . .
Re-comforted hym in this manere.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3047.

RE-COMPENSE.

God of oure fadris, whos vertue thou hast prechid, he ȝeldere (yielder, giver) to thee this recompensacioun (L. V. while, vicissitudinem) shal ȝiue, that thou rathere see the deth of hem.—Wic. Judith vi. 17.

This is the day (the day of Judgment) that must reduce those seeming inequalities, and respective distributions in this world, to an equality and recompensive justice in the next.—Browne. Rel. Méd. pt. i. § 47.

RE-CONCILE.

I was reconcelere (L. V. felawe, sequester) and mediatour bitwixe God and ȝou in thai tyme.—Wic. Deut. v. 5.

Forsothe not oonly, but and (also) we glorien in God, by oure lord Jhesu Crist, by whom we han receyued now reconcilyng, or according. (L. V. recounselyng, reconciliatio. Bible, 1549, attonement.)—Id. Rom. v. 11.

RECORD.* For Recordation, see the Quotation from Smith in v. Reminiscence, infra.

Thre braunches thre ȝit dayes ben, after whiche Pharao shal record of thi seruyce (L. V. haue mynde, recordabitur), and shal restore thee to the bifore had gree.
Wic. Gen. xl. 13.

If ȝe goon out to batayle fro ȝoure loond aȝens the enemyes that stryuen aȝens ȝow, ȝe shal crye with ȝollynge trompes, and it shall be recordynge of ȝow (L. V. bithenkyng, recordatio) before the Lord ȝour God, that ȝe ben delyuerid fro the hondes of ȝoure enemyes.—Id. Num. x. 9.

RE-COVER, v.

Ther is a man fade, nedi of rekyuering. (E. V. rekuring, marcidus et egens recuperatione.)—Wic. Eccl. xi. 12.

Many rekyuerers (E. V. rekureres, M. V. healers, recuperatores) ben to a riche man disseyued.—Id. Ib. xiii. 26.

RE-CREMENT, s.

'Tis not for those whom gelid skies embrace
And chilling fogs: whose perspiration feels
Such frequent bars from Eurus and the North;
'Tis not for those to cultivate the skin
Too soft, or teach the recremental fume
Too fast to crowd through such precarious ways.
Armstrong. Art of Health, b. iii.

RECTIFY, v.

Their whole rection is by prepositions.
Ben Jonson. Gram. p. 81.

RECUR, v. } Generally—Return—as the
RE-COURSE, s. } recourse of the seasons.—Barrow, v. i. Ser. 8.

RED, adj.

He shal comaunde to hym that is purified, that he offre for hym silf two quyk sparows, whom it is leeful to eet, and cedre tree, and flawme reed silk. (L. V. vermylyoun, cocco.)
Wic. Lev. xiv. 4.

And whanne he seeth in the walles of it (the hows) as litil valeys defourmed with paalnes or with reednes (rubore), he shal goo out of the dore of the hows, and anoon he shal close it seuen dayes.—Id. Ib. xiv. 37.

REDDOUR.

But truly no force of (no need for) thy reddour
To hym that ouer hymself hath maistrie.
Chaucer. Balade of the Village.

REDEEM.

Saynt Austyn sayth—Oure redemptour is comen and the deceyuour is vanqeysshed.
The Golden Legend, fo. 16, c. 4.

REDOUBT.

For no wise man had not leauer (malit potius) be exiled poore and nedie, and namelesse, then for to dwellen in his citée, and flouren of richesse, and be redoutable of honour (honore reverendus), and strong of power.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. iv. pr. 5.

REDOUND, v. See REBOUND, supra. In Milton, to remain over and above. Spoken of food not transubstantiated.

And what euer ȝe schul demyn, in to ȝou it schal redoundyn (redundabit.)—Wic. 2 Par. xix. 6.

So down they sat
And to their viands fell, not seemingly
The angel, nor in mist, the common gloss
Of theologians, but with keen despatch
Of real hunger, and concoctive heate

To transubstantiate; what redounds
Transpires through spirits with ease.
Milton. Par. L. b. 5, v. 438.

The redound of the hills and the rocks doubled every voice of theirs (the Macedonians).
Codrington. Q. Curtius, p. 35.

RE-DRAW, v. To draw back or out again.

Breath and blood
Followed the re-drawn shaft.
Southey, v. 5, p. 310. Madoc, pt. ii. § 16.

REDUCE, v. Also to repair, to redress, as to reduce a wrong.—Marlow, infra.

Prayeng to take this reducynge pacyently and submitting me to the amendyng of the reder and understonder.—The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. The Prohemy. Caxton.

Traitors—that would reduce these bloody days again.
Shakespeare. King Richard III. sc. iv.

Abig. I'll rend their hearts with tearing of my hair,
Till they reduce the wrongs done to my father.
Marlow. Jew of Malta, act i.

REED.

Whether hopist thou in the reeden staf and broken, Egipt (L. V. staf of rehed, in baculo erundines), upon which if a man lene to-broken it schal goon in to his hond, and thrillen in it?—Wic. 4 Kings xviii. 21.

Whether a resshe may liuen without humour? or a reeddi (carectum) place grow without watir?—Id. Job viii. 11.

But rede that boweth doune for every blast,
Fill lightly, cesseth winde, it wol arise:
But so n'il not an oke whan it is cast.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1387.

REEF.

The wynde was goode, the sea was pleyne,
Hem needed not a riffe to slake
Till they Pentapolim haue take.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 183[1].

REEK. Reek is a general word for a steam or vapour; and Rooky, misty, a variation of dialect for Reeky, ray. And see RACK.

REFER, v.

Cut from a crab his crooked claws, and hide
The rest in earth, a scorpion thence will glide
And shoot his sting; his tail in circles toss'd
Refers the limbs his backward father lost.
Dryden. Ovid. Metam. b. xv.

RE-FLARE, v. Fr. Reflairer. To smell, vent, or wind again. Cotgrave.

The bird of Arabye,
Sweet of reflary.—Skelton. P. Sparrow, v. 524.

My maiden Isabell
Reflaryng rosabell.—Id. Garlande of Love, v. 977

RE-FLOW, v.

The wasteful sea,
Whose billows beating the resistless banks,
Shall overflow it with their refluence.
Marlow. Jew of Malta, A. 3.

REFRAIN.

Well could she sing and lustily,
None halfe so well and seemily,
And cothe make in song soche refraining.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 749.

For euer sobbings and complaints be ready refret in his meditacions.—Id. Test. of Loue, b. 3.

RE-FRAYNE, v. To ask; to seek. See FRAYNE.

I will refrayne you ferther or we flyt.
Skelton. Magnyfycence, v. 2503.

RE-FREID. Fr. Refroider. To cool.

He let it nought refreide.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1343.

RE-FRESH.

Refreich (refcite) ȝe a weri man, and this is my refreischyng (refrigerium), and thei nolden here.
Wic. Is. xxviii. 12. Written refreytyng, or coling (refrigerandi), in 2 Mac. iv. 46.

REFT. See RIFT.

RE-FUSION. See REFUND.

RE-FUYT. } Fr. Refuite, from refuir; to fly
RE-FUYE. } back, escape; take refuge (qv.).

The eldere men of that citee schulen sende, and thei schulen take hym fro the place of refuyt. (E. V. out fleynge, effugii.)—Wic. Deut. xix. 12.

A stoon is refuti (refugium) to irchouns.
Id. Ps. ciii. 18.

By God, anon thou shalt be bounde,
And fastè locken in a toure,
Without refuite or socoure.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3840.

And thus she was to euerichone
Of al myschyef refute, and remedy.
Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, a. 5, c. 1.

REGAL, adj. Regere, i. e. Res-gerere, Re-gerere, Regere, Re-gessi, Reg-si, Rexi. Div. of Purley, 2. 7. n. 8vo. ed. Go. Raginon, reikinon; A. S. Reccan, Regere; Go. Reiks, Rex; A. S. Reccere, regn, Rector.

And sothely, levè suster myn (quod she);
Now be we duchesses, both I and ye,
And sikerde to the regals of Athenes.
Chaucer. Arcadne, v. 2128.

Even the black princes' wo, tho' of the most distinguished virtue and character, tho' an Englishwoman and of the Blood Royal of England herself, was passed over, and her son regented by his uncles.
Walpole. George II. v. i. p. 99. An. 1751.

RE-GARD.

He passing now
Unknown, and silently the dangerous track,
Turns thither his regardant eye.
Southey. Don Roderick, § xi.

RE-GERMINATE.

Surely as man's health and strength are whole,
His appetites regerminate, his heart
Reopens, and his objects and desires
Shoot up renewed.—Taylor. P. Van Artevelde, pt. ii.

REGNE, i. e. Reign, qv. infra.

His sone, which that highte Balthasar,
That held the regne after his fadres day,
He by his fader coude not beware.
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14190.

RE-GRADE. See RE-GRESS.

REGULAR.

No certain end could ever be attained, unless the actions whereby it is attained were regular; that is to say, made suitable, fit, and correspondent unto their end, by some canon, rule or law.—Hooker. Ecclesiastical Polity, b. i. § 2.

Will hath the nature of a thing regulable and measurable.—Cudworth. Immutable Morality, b. i. c. iii. § 7.

REHEARSE. See Wiclif, in v. Recapitulate, supra.

How foul art thou mad ful myche rehercende (iterans) thi weies?—Wic. Jer. ii. 36.

REIGN.

So that dispite now holdeth forth hire reine,
Through hasty bileve of tales that men feine.
Chaucer. The Black Knightes Tale, v. 510.

REIL. See ROLL.

REINS.

Thou, God, sekyng the hertis, and the reynes (ilia) schalt dresse a iust man.—Wic. Ps. vii. 10.

The precarious empiricism of judging diseases by the renal secretions without sight of the patient. . . .
Hallam. Literature of Europe, v. i. p. 638.

RE-JOY, v.

There will be signal examples of God's mercy, and the angels must not want their charitable rejoices for the conversion of lost sinners.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. § 6.

REISE, s. A raising or levying. See RAISE, supra.

RE-ITERATE, v.

When now the multitude beheld their king,
In gratulations of reiterate joy
They shout his name.—Southey. Madoc, pt. ii. § 20.

RE-JUVENESCENCE.

The mortal put off immortality. Rising Rejuvenescent he (George III.) stood in a glorified body, obnoxious
Never again to change.
Southey. Vision of Judgment, § vii.

RELATE.

This second thought (of an injury done to us) introduces a feeling of resentment, not by the law of suggestion, but by the law which relates an object, whether present or thought upon, to its appropriate emotion.
Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. i. c. 3.

RE-LEASE. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Remit, infra.

RELENT, v.

Relentment ceased,
And custom whets again the rusted knife.
Taylor. Iph. in Tauris.

RELICK. Relict is distinguished from widow. If the woman take a second husband, though no longer widow, she is still relict.

Yrael, forsothe strongly, shal doo, of Jacob shal be that Lordship, and leese the relykes (reliquias) of the citee.
Wic. Num. xxiv. 19.

RELIEVE.

And that deeth a-down broughte
Deeth shal releve.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12359.

Let there be widowers which you call releevers appointed everywhere to the Church service.
Bp. Hall. An Apology against the Brownists, § xix.

RELIGION. A religion, not a service of God, but an order of monkery: A religious, one devoted to such order. See Trench. Lec. I. Coleridge, Biog. Lit. i. 308, revives the obsolete Religiosity, used by Wiclif.

Religiosite (religiositas) shal kepen, and justefien the herte; ful myrthe and ioȝe it shal ȝyue.—Wic. Ecc. i. 17.

RELIQUARY. See RELICK.

RELISH, v.

Lord Bacon is the first author who has attempted any style that can be relishable to the present age.
Orrery on Swift. Letter xix.

RE-LODGE. To lodge again.

The spirit of the maid . . . .
Till in her mortal tenement relodged.
Southey. Madoc, pt. ii. § 22

RELUCT.

No more be mention'd then of violence
Against ourselves, and wilful barrenness,
That cuts me off from hope, and favours only
Rancour and pride, impatience and despite,
Reluctance against God, and his just yoke
Laid on our necks.—Milton. Par. L. b. x. v. 1044.

REME. See REALM.

REMEAN, v. }
REMENOUR, s. } To explain, the meaning.
REMENYNGE, s. }

In the secunde dai ben gaderid princis of meynes, and al the puple, prestus, and Leuiten, to Esdra, scribe, that he remene to them (L. V. expowne, interpretaretur) woordis of the lawe.—Wic. 2 Esd. viii. 13; also 9.

The tothir he hongide in a gibite, that the sothnes of the remener (L. V. expownere, conjectoris) were proued.
Id. Gen. xl. 22, et aliter.

And whanne Gedeon had herde the sweven, and the remenyng of it (L. V. interpretyng, interpretationem), he heryed (the Lord).
Id. Judg. vii. 15; also Ecclus. xlvii. 18.

REMIND. Locke uses To MIND, in this sense.

I must here take the liberty to mind parents of this one thing, viz. That he that will have a respect for him, and his orders, must himself have a great reverence for his son. Maxima debetur pueris reverentia.
Locke. On Education, § lxxi.

REMINISCENCE.

They have much troubled themselves and confounded others, in finding out another receptacle of the intelligible species, which they call reminiscency or recordation.
Smith. On Old Age, p. 46.

REMIT.

Til I come to hise acountes,
To have a relees and remission,
On that rental I live.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3976.

REMNANT. See REMAIN.

REMORD, v. Remorse, in Othello, is, Mr. Nares thinks—a point of conscience. It is rather, an anxiety continually preying upon—his constant care. In Measure for Measure, it is anxious care; commiseration.

Let him command—
And to obey shall be in me remorse,
What bloody businesse ever.
Shakespeare. Othello, act iii. sc. 3.

Isab. But might you doe't, and do the world no wrong,
If so your heart were toueh'd with that remorse
As mine is for him?
Id. Measure for Measure, act ii. sc. 2.

RENABLE. See REASONABLE.

RENATE.

So mighty sages tell
The Arabian Phœnix, when five hundred years
Have well nigh circled, dies, and springs forthwith
Renascent.—Cary. Dante. Hell, c. xxiv. v. 106.

RENAY.

For though a cristen man coveited
His cristendom to reneye,
Rightfully to reneye
No reson it wolde.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6828.

And (he may) as a reneyed caytif
Recchelessly renne about.—Id. Ib. v. 6237.

REND, v. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Rout.

Ye route of ratons
Rende mennes clothes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 395.

And Y as a lioun schal waaste hem there; a beeste of the feelde schal al to-rende (scindet) hem.
Wic. Hos. lxiii. 8.

Wo to the citee of bloodis, al of lesyng, ful of to-reendyng (dilaceratione), raueyn shal not go awei fro thee.
Id. Nahum iii. 1.

RENEGATE. See RENAY.

RENEW.

And thou schalt renule (E. V. renew, renovabis) the face of the erthe.—Wic. Ps. ciii. 30.

And so we comaundiden to hem, that thei cumen also to ȝou and grete ȝou, and ȝeelde to ȝou our pistlis of renulyng (de innovatione) of oure bretherhed.—Id. 1 Mac. xii. 17.

RENGE. See RANGE.

RENNE. See RUN.

RENOUNCE, v. At cards; or to revoke, is to renay or deny the suit led, having a card of that suit in hand.

Load. May my partner renounce with the game in his hand.—Foote. The Minor, A. i.

RENOWN.

A raton of renoun
Most renable of tonge
Seide.—Piers Plouhmun's Vision, v. 315.

She knewe by the folke that in his shippes be,
That it was Jason ful of renomé.
Chaucer. Hyp. and Medea, v. 1512.

They that ben in hye estate of the world a lyght renome troubleth them.—The Golden Legend, fo. 9, col. 4.

RENT. } See Piers Plouhman, in v. Remit,
RENTAL. } supra.

REPAIR. Repairless is used by Thomson. See Sophonisba, act i.

REPAIR, v.

(Chese now) wol ye han me yonge and faire,
And take your aventure of the repaire,
That shal be to your house because of me?
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6806.

REPARREL. See RE-APPAREL, supra.

Whi han ȝe not reparelid (E. V. restoren, reparare) the hilyngis (coæryngis) of the temple? Therefor nyle ȝe more take money bi ȝoure ordre, but ȝelde it to the reparacioun of the temple.—Wic. 4 Kings xii. 7.

Citees schulen be enhabitid, and ruynous thingis schulen be reparelid. (L. V. instorid, reparabuntur.)
Id. Ez. xxxvi. 10.

REPEAL.

The exyled ben repelled and called home.
The Golden Legend, fo. 28, c. 2.

Whence Adam soon repeald
The doubts that in his heart arose.
Milton. Par. L. b. vii. v. 59.

RE-PLENISH. REPLETE.

I am repleet (L. V. fillid, repletus sum) with the thingis takun of Epafrodite.—Wic. Phil. iv. 18.

Come then—dismiss the people with command
That each prepare replenishment.
Cowper. Iliad, b. xix. v. 203.

REPORT, v.

I me reporte (refer) to Salomon the wise:
I me reporte in this to womanhede.
Chaucer. Court of Loue, vv. 536, 714.

To all countries about hym reporte (i. e. refer) me
I dare.—Skelton, i. 111.

REPREHEND.

He (the riȝtwis man) reprehendli puttith to vs the sinnes of lawe (L. V. he vpbreidith to vs, improperat nobis), and defameth aȝen us the synnes of our disciplyne.
Wic. Wis. ii. 12.

REPROBATE, adj. Rejected, renounced. The Sub. applied to one—so rejected, renounced—because abandoned to vice.

Reprobate silver shall men call them, because the Lord hath rejected them—Jeremiah vi. 30.

REPROMISSION.

Forsoth repromissioun, or eft biheest (L. V. biheest, repromissio) is to ȝou, and to ȝhoure sones, and to all that ben ferr, whom euere the Lord oure God hath clepid.
Wic. Deeds ii. 39.

RE-PROVE, v.

He (the Comforter) schal reproue the world of synne.
Wic. John xvi. (8).

He maden me to do synne in word, and disseyueden a repreuere (E. V. undernymere, arguentem) in the ȝate, and bowiden awey in veyn fro a iust man.—Id. Is. xxix. 21.

REPUTE, v. For Etym. of Putare, see Putative, supra.

REQUIRE, v.

The nexte thing that I requere of thee
Thou shalt it do, if it be in thy might.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6592.

RE-QUITE.

These thinges shall I neuer forget, be you suer, but shall do my diligence to re-acquite your honour by all honest wayes.—Schole of Cyrus. Boke 5th. By Wm. Bercher.

RERE. See REAR.

REREMOUSE.

Aboue the bodi, and aboue the hed of hem, backis or reremijse and swalewes fleeȝen.—Wic. Baruch vi. 21.

RE-RING, v. Ring back; re-echo.

Hark! from the towers of Aztlan, how the shouts
Of clamorous joy re-ring.—Southey. Madoc, pt. ii. § 24.

RESCRIBE.

For ȝe ben our bretheren, as the rescrite or writing (rescriptum) conteneth, that is underput.—Wic. 1 Mac. xii. 7.

RESENT, v. See Barrow, in v. Supervive, infra.

This drew his Majesty into serious consideration of the mineral treasures of his own territories, and the practical discoveries of them by way of my philosophical theory; which he then so well resented, that afterwards, upon a mature digestion of my whole design, he commanded me to let your lordships understand, how great an inclination he had to farther so hopeful a work.
Bacon. Speech touching Drowned Mineral Works.

How much more should we resent such a testimony of God's favour (than that of an earthly prince); how worthily may our souls be transported with a sense of such affection.—Barrow, v. iii. ser. 43, p. 500, folio; and again, v. i. ser. 9, p. 114.

They (certain philosophers) asked whether it were possible that we could have any general concern for society, or any disinterested resentment of the welfare or injury of others.—Hume. Principles of Morals, sec. v. p. 2.

RESIDE.

And the kyng toke part of the residue oost (exercitus residui), and wente out of Antioch.—Wic. 1 Mac. iii. 37.

RESIGN, v. See Butler, in v. Pious, supra.

Our resignation to the will of God may be said to be perfect, when our will is lost and resolved up into his; when we rest in his will as our end, as being itself most just, and right, and good.—Butler. Sermon 14.

RESIN.

Sodeynli fel Babilon, and is to brosid; ȝelleth vpon yt, taketh reyne gumme to his sorewe, if parauenture he be helid.—Wic. Jer. li. 8.

RESIST, v.

A pestilentiall aire seizeth on bodies more open and lesse resistent; and passeth by bodies more compact and strong.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iii. c. 4.

RESOLVE.

Irun is takun fro erthe, and a stoon resolved, ethir meltid (solutus) bi heete, is turned in to money.—Wic. Job xxviii. 2.

RESPECT.

For ther is not respit to the deth of hem. (L. V. bihold-yng, respectus.)—Wic. Ps. lxxii. 4.

N'ot I nat why, but out of mere respite,
Mine hert hath, for to amende it, grete delite.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 137.

RESPIRE, v.

(He) into water entreth and anon respireth.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

RESPLENDENT.

The sterre whiche appeared to them was more resplendischynge and shynynge than the other.
The Golden Legend, fo. 9, c. 3.

Whan he shal make the purgaciō of the world—he shal departe the hete of the fyre fro the resplendour and bryghtnes.—Id. fo. 3, col. 1.

RESPORT. Regard; respect.

Why ne hast thou to thy selven some resport,
Why wilt thou thy self alas! fordo?
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 850.

REST.

Forsothe alle thingis helden restful silence (E. V. quiet, quietum), and the nyȝt had the myddil wey in his course.
Wic. Wis. xviii. 14.

And somtime doth hem Theseus, to rest,
Hem to refresh and drinken if hem lest.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2623.

Then sayd he thus: My reste wol I take,
. . . . . I may no lenger wake.
Id. Marchantes Tale, v. 9729.

Our hearts will be so resty, or listless, that hardly we shall be induced to perform it (devotion) when it is most necessary or useful for us.—Barrow, v. i. ser. 6, p. 71.

Who bid brute matter's restive lump assume
Such various forms, and gave it wings to fly.
Young. Night Thoughts, b. ix. v. 1468.

RESTIVE. See REST.

RESULT, s. See a peculiar usage by Swift, infra.

As the Fr. Resultat; an issue or success. Also a resolution taken, or agreement made, upon a conference, &c.; the fruit, or that which comes thereof. Cotgrave.

I have been often amazed at the rude, passionate, and mistaken results, which have at certain times fallen from great assemblies, both antient and modern, and of other countries as well as our own.
Swift. Contests, &c. at Athens, &c. c. 5.

In their (a body of commons) results, we have sometimes found the same spirit of cruelty and revenge, of malice and pride, the same blindness and obstinacy and unsteadiness, the same ungovernable rage and anger, the same injustice, sophistry and fraud, that ever lodged in the breast of any individual.—Id. Ib. c. 4.

RE-SUPPLY, v. To supply again.

Fast they fell,
And fast were resupplied, man after man
Succeeding to the death.—Southey. Madoc, pt. ii. § 15.

RETAIN.

It was the policy of these kings to make them all (clergy and nobility) of their own livery or retaindership.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, pt. ii. c. 31, p. 245.

RETCH.

Whether half partie falle fro us, thei shulen not retche (L. V. recke, curabunt), for thou oone for ten thousandis ert countyd. (L. V. reknyd.)—Wic. 2 Kings xviii. 3.

A wys man shal be stille vnto tyme: the reccheles (L. V. ioli, lascivus) forsothe and the vnprudent shal not kepe time.—Id. Ecc. xx. 7.

RETENTION. } See RETAIN.
RETINUE. }

RETHOR. See RHETOR.

RETIRE, v.

Nor made they any faire retreat. Hector's unruly horse
Would needs retire him.—Chapman. Hom. Il. b. 16.

RETREAT. The old It. Ritrarro, is also to draw, sc. a portrait, and Ritratto, the portrait—the similitude, the look or aspect. See the two first quotations from Spenser, in the Dictionary.

The Sarazyns retrayed into the seconde fortresse.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 509.

RETRIEVE, v.

Paradise is set open, and immortality retrieved.
Barrow, v. iii. ser. 43, p. 502.

RETRO-SPECT. } An English compound
RETRO-SPECTION. } (comparatively modern) of RETRO-SPECTIVE. } the Lat. Retro, backwards, and spectum, past part. of specere, to look. Retrospiciens is used by Vitruvius.

A look or view back upon things past; reflection.

As you arraign his majesty by retrospect, so you condemn his government by second sight.—Addison. Freeholder.

Can you take delight in viewing
This poor isle's approaching ruin,
When thy retrospection vast
Sees the glorious ages past?
Swift. To Janus. On New Year's Day.

In vain the sage, with retrospective eye,
Would from the apparent What conclude the Why,
Infer the motive from the deed.
Pope. Moral Essays, Ess. 1.

Retrospects, with bad reckoners, are troublesome things.
Warburton. Remarks on Occasional Reflections, pt. ii. rem. 13.

Sense on the present only feeds; the soul
On past, and future, forages for joy.
'Tis hers by retrospect, through time to range;
And forward time's great sequel to survey.
Young. The Complaint, Night 8.

Where shall we seek relief?
Where ease th' oppressive anguish of the mind,
When Retrospection glows with conscious shame,
By grey Experience in the wholesome school
Of Sorrow tutor'd.—Cooper. Power of Harmony, pt. i.

In sequester'd bow'rs
The pow'r of Art resides; Reflection firm,
And vagrant Fancy at her sov'reign nod
Attendant wait: behind, th' ideal train

Of Memory, with retrospective eye,
Supports her throne, whilst Contemplation guides
Her trophied car.—Id. Ib.

RETURN.

Retourning in hir soule, aie up and doun,
The wordes of this sedaine Diomede.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 1023.

REVEAL. See AVALE.

Thoruh which studye and fervent labour thou art gretly oppressed and revalyd in thy spyritys.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, b. 1.

Why seid Appius haue ye inclyned and revaled youre courageous hertys whiche til now were accustomyd to be ferme and stedfast.—Id. Ib. b. 8ᵛ.

To this gouernaūce of your comyn profyte revalyd and brought to nought came many new yong maistres ygnorant and unkonnyng of the lawys.—Id. Ib. c. 3ᵖ.

They (certain letters and syllables) will certainly reveal into a full receipt of the opus magnum.
Swift. A further Digression. Tale of a Tub.

Reason is natural revelation, whereby the eternal Father of light, and fountain of all knowledge, communicates to mankind that portion of truth, which he has laid within the reach of their natural faculties. Revelation is natural Reason enlarged by a new set of discoveries communicated by God immediately, which reason vouches the truth of, by the testimony and proofs it gives, that they come from God.—Locke on Human Understanding, b. iv. c. 19, § 4.

REVERBERATE, v. See quotation from Boyle in Dictionary. To beat back or reflect down the heat of the furnace on the metal to be fused.

A reverberatory furnace (Boyle) is one, in which the heat or flame is reverberated or beaten down on the substance fusing, before it ascends the chimney; and hence—To reverberate, is—to fuse intensely.

Some of our chymists facetiously affirm, that at the last fire all shall be chrystallized and reverberated into glass, which is the utmost action of that element.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 50.

REVEST, v.

These holtes and these hayes,
That han in winter dedde ybeñ and drie,
Revesten hem in grene whan that Maie is.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 353.

REVIE, v.

True rest consists not in the oft revying of worldly dross:
Earth's miry purchase is not worth the buying:
Her gain is loss.—Quarles, b. i. emb. 6.

REVIEW, v.

I am reviewed, and my book forwarded in its progress by a judicious recommendation. Write a book, and I will be your reviewer.
Cowper to Unwin. Southey. Life, v. i. p. 30.

This reviewal (of Cowper's Poems in the Critical Review) is one of those defunct criticisms which deserve to be disinterred and gibbeted for the sake of example.
Id. Ib. v. i. p. 26.

REVIGORATE. With fresh strength or vigour.

The fire which seemed extinct
Hath risen revigorate.—Southey. Don Roderick, § 7.

REVINCE, v.

The opinion of Copernicus, touching the rotation of the earth (which now is maintain'd), because it is not repugnant to the phænomena, cannot be revinced by astronomicall principles, yet by the principles of naturall philosophy, truly applied, it may.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 1.

REVOLVE.

Soch men woulden their iyen of their conscience revolven.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

REW. See ROW and RUE.

RE-WARD.

Feruent and gnastende he soupeth the erthe: and rewarde he not (L. V. arettith not, non reputat) to the trumpe sounende trumping.—Wic. Job xxxix. 24.

For vertue is neyther uncurtoyse ne rewardlees, ne proude.—Tullius de Amicitia, b. 7. Wurcestre, Erle of.

RE-WIND, v. To wind again.

Whose thread of life just spun you would renew,
But nod, and Clotho shall rewind the clue.
Eusden. Claudian, b. 2. Pluto to Proserpine.

REYES, s. Speght says, Kinds of songs as roundels. Dances in a Dutch style. Tyrwhitt.

There sawe I famous, old and yong,
Piperes of alìe the Duche tong,
To lernen love daunces, springes,
Reyes and the straungè thinges.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 146.

REYSED. Chaucer, Canterbury Tales, Prol. p. 54, In Lettowe had he reysed. Mr. Tyrwhitt says, To travel; to make a military circuit. From Dut. Reysen; Ger. Reisen, proficisci, proficisci in bellum. See Kilian and Wachter. And see REISE, supra.

RHEUM.

Rewmes . . . . .
And roynous scabbes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14090.

RHYME, v.

Thise olde gentil Bretons, in hir dayes;
Of diverse aventures maden layes
Rimeyed in hir firste Breton tonge.
Chaucer. Frankeleines Prol. v. 11023.

RIB. See Piers Plouhman in v. Rout, infra.

RIBALD.

Robyn the ribaudor
For hise rusty wordes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3941.

RIBAND, s.

Golden ribanes (L. V. ourenements, murenulas) we shul make to thee, mad fijr red with siluer (vermiculatas argento).—Wic. Song of Solomon, i. 10.

RICH, v.

The Lord makith pore and richeth.—Wic. 1 Kings ii. 7.

RICK.

If fyer goon out fynde ecres and cacche rekes of corn (L. V. heepis, acervos), or the corn stondynge in feeldis, he shal ȝeeld the harm, that tyndeth the fier.
Wic. Ex. xxii. 6.

RIDDLE, v.

And she had on a suckeny (a loose frock),
Lord, it was riddeled fetishly.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1235.

The white rokette riddeled faire,
Betokeneth, that full debonaire
And swete was she that it bere.—Id. Ib. v. 1243.

RIDE. See Piers Plouhman in v. Roam.

Wher he ryt or rest,
Or runneth to pleye.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 339.

And the Egipciens pursuynge, ȝeden yn after hem, al the horsyng (L. V. ridyng, equitatus) of Pharao, his chares, and his ryders (L. V. knyȝtis, equites) bi the myddil of the see.
Wic. Ex. xiv. 23.

And whan ther any riding (at jousts) is Chepe,
Out of the shoppe, thider wold he lepe.
Chaucer. The Cokes Tale, v. 4375.

Up gon the trompes and the melodie,
And to the listes rit the compagnie.
Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2568.

RIF. } Cot. Il ne lui lairra rif ny raf. He
RAF. } will strip, reave, or deprive him of all. See Quotation from Robert of Brunne, in Dictionary.

RIFE. See RIVE.

RIFE. To rive. See fourth Quotation from Chaucer in v. Wife.

RIFF, s. See REEF.

RIFLE.

Othere sons of Jacob felden in on the slayn men and rifeliden (depopulati sunt. E. V. distruyden) the citee for the veniaunce of defoulyng of a virgyn.
Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 27.

RIGBACK.

Loth gon out to hem bihynde the rigge (L. V. bac, tergum), and tyndynge to (L. V. closid) the dore; seith.
Wic. Gen. xix. 6.

RIGHT.

The voice of a crier in desert, Make ȝe redi the weie of the Lord, Make ȝe hise pathis riȝt (rectas semitas).
Wic. Luke iii. 4.

And be the shynyng of the lord our God vp on us; and the werkis of our hondis riȝtforth reule (dirige. L. V. dresse).—Id. Ps. lxxxix. 17.

I shall sustain my ladies wrath, which I haue deserued, so long as my Margarite hath rightwised my cause.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

So fewe there bee,
That chuse the narrow path or seeke the right!
All keepe the broad high way, and take delight
With many rather for to goe astray,
And be partakers of their euill plight,
Then with a fewe to walke the rightest way.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. i. c. 10, § 10.

RIGOUR. See RIGID.

RIME. Add—after l. 3.

The Author of the Birth of Mankind calls the early involucre of the seed in the matrix, "a Ryme or Caul:" "A thyn ryme, as of a tender egge under the shell." Also—"the Ryme or Skin of the Kidneys." See RIM, supra.

And the galle is worth to eȝen to be enointed, in the whiche were rime. (L. V. a web, albugo.)
Wic. Tobit vi. 9; also xi. 14.

RIND.

Jacob takynge green popil ȝerdis, and of almanders, and of planes, a fearti unriendide hem, and riendis (docorticavit, corticibus) (being) drawen awey, thilke that were pilde semede whytnes.—Wic. Gen. xxx. 37.

RING.

And religiouse reverenced hym,
And rongen hir belles.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14043.

Lo! I make a word in Israel, which word whoever schal here, both his eeris schulen ryngе. (E. V. tynclen, tinnient.)—Wic. 1 Kings iii. 11.

RING-STRAKED. See STREAK, infra.

RIP or REP, i. e. one of no reputation. Swift. See DEMIREP.

RIPE.

Send ȝe sykelis, for the corn hath rypid. (L. V. ripe corn wexid, maturavit.)—Wic. Joel iii. 13.

RISE.

I roos whan thei were a-reste,
And riflede hire males.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2939.

RISH. See RUSH.

RIVAL. See Quotation from Wiclif, in v. Our, supra.

RIVE, v.

So mov'd she on, against the current up
The verdant rivage.
Cary. Dante. Purgatory, b. xxix. v. 7.

RIVEL.

My ryuelis (L. V. ryuelyngis, rugæ) seien witnesse aȝen me, and the false seier is rered vp aȝen my face.
Wic. Job xvi. 9.

RIVER. To river—sc. a falcon—is to hunt fowl with them on rivers. To ride fro Rivere, is to ride from hawking at water fowl. Tyrwhitt.

He coude hunte at the wild dere,
And ride on hawking fro the riuere
With grey goshauk on honde.
Chaucer. Sire Thopas, v. 13665.

And so befell it that this King Artour,
Had in his hous a lusty bacheler
That on a day came riding fro river.
Id. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6466.

They rivered their falcons,
And took cranes and herons.
Guy of Warwick. Ellis, v. ii. p. 37.

Mar. He must with all speed send me
Another suit of horses, and by all means
Ten cast of hawkes for the river.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Woman's Prize, act iii. sc. 4.

ROAR, v.

And thou shalt profecien to them alle these wrdus, and sei to them, The Lord fro an hiȝ shal rore (rugiet), and fro his holli dwelling place shal ȝyue his vois; rorende he shal roren vp on his faireneesse.—Wic. Jer. xxv. 30.

ROAST.

The whiche thingus whan he hadde do he rostide (assavit) his flesh, and beren with hem on the weie.
Wic. Tobit vi. 6.

ROCK.

(She) wept full tenderlie upon his face:
And in hire armes gan him to embrace;
And him she roggeth, and aweketh soft.
Chaucer. Hypermnestra, v. 2709.

The shaft I drowe out of the arowe
Roking for wo.—Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1906.

ROCKET.

The which (Thamar), the clothis of widewhed don down, toke to a roket (theristrum).—Wic. Gen. xxxviii. 14.

ROE.

Rae venison ybake in paste.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7050.

ROFE. See RIVE.

ROGG, v. i. e. to rock, (qv. supra,) or shake.

ROIGNE. See ROYNE.

ROIL.

That his friends should believe it, was what roiled him (Judge Jeffreys) exceedingly.
North's Life of North, v. ii. p. 167.

ROKET. See ROCK.

ROLL.

And sithen Reson rolle it (enrol, qv.)
In the registre of hevene.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3025.

ROMBLE. See RUMBLE.

RONDEAU.

Uncautious Arcite thought himself alone,
And less than all suspected Palamon,
Who list'ning heard him, while he search'd the grove,
And loudly sung his roundelay of love.
Dryden. The Knight's Tale, b. ii.

RONE. See RAIN.

ROOF. See REAVE.

ROOK, v.

Think it enough and too much to let them rook you out of your money, for pretended pardons, and counterfeit relicks; but let not the authority of any priest or church persuade you out of your senses.—Tillotson. Ser. xxxvi. v. i. p. 245. On Transubstantiation.

ROOM.

And he brought me out into roometh (M. V. a large place) and delyuered me, because he delyghted me (in me).—Bible, 1549. 2 Kings v. 22.

We hoysed our saile, and bare roomer with the said shoare, looking for present death.
Hackluyt, v. i. M. A. Jenkinson (in the Caspian).

ROPEN. See REAP.

ROSCID. See RORAL.

ROSE.

Valerian said: Two corones had we,
Snow-white and rose-red, that shinen clere.
Chaucer. The Second Nonnes Tale, v. 15722.

Ros'd all in lively crimson are thy cheeks.
G. Fletcher. Christ's Victory and Triumph.

There are also to be found in this age (latter end of the tenth century) manifest indications of the institution of the rosary and crown of the Virgin, by which her worshippers were to reckon the number of prayers, that they were to offer to this new divinity.
Maclaine. Mosheim, Cent. x. pt. ii. c. 4.

ROT.

A diligent womman is a coroun to hir hosebond; and rot is in the boonys of that womman that doith thingis worthi of confusioun. (E. V. stinc, putredo.)—Wic. Prov. xii. 4.

Rotenesse (tabitudo) forsothe and deth stonden on in the hestes of hym.—Id. Eccl. xxviii. 7.

Wel bet is roten appel out of hord,
Than that it rote alle the remenaunt.
Chaucer. The Cokes Tale, v. 4404.

ROTATION, s. Lat. Rota; Ger. Rad; a wheel. Lat. Rotatio, the motion of a wheel. Vossius derives from the Gr. Ῥοθεῖν, which is the Ger. Rad-en; A. S. Hrad-ian; to be borne along swiftly: for the wheels (Wachter) are as it were the feet, by which the carriage, ῥοθεῖ, that is, runs along, or is moved. See RIDE and RATHE.

ROTE.

(He) can nought wel reden
His rewel (rule) ne his respondes,
But be pure rote.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 752.

ROTE. See ROOT and ROT.

ROTUND. See ROTATION.

ROVE.

(He sees) the wool come out in rovings ready for spinning into threads.—Paley. Natural Theology, ch. vii.

ROUGH.

He that first was goon out was brown, and al in maner of a skyn rowy; and the name of hym was clepyd Esau (hispidus).—Wic. Gen. xxv. 25.

ROUNCE.

Of Dyomedes stable,
He brought out a rabble
Of coursers and rounces,
With leapes and bounces.
Skelton. Ph. Sparrow, v. 1314.

ROUND. Fr. Ronde; It. and Sp. Ronda, or Round; Sp. Rondar, to go round; Fr. Rond; D. Rond; Dan. Ger. and Sw. Rund. Wachter, and all whom he had consulted, from the Lat. Rotundus. See ROTUND and ROTATION, supra. Ihre coincides in this, but in explaining Rund, large, liberal, as a round sum (only a different application of the same word), it occurs to him, that it may be formed from the verb Rinna (Go. and A. S. Rinnan), to run, to flow. Rund did not exist in A. S. They used Hwœl, rota, On hwœl, or hweol.

Thre cuppis as in the maner of a note (nut) bi eeh ȝerde, and litle rundelis. (E. V. balls, sphærulas.)
Wic. Ex. xxv. 33.

He shal putten him out fro list in to derenessis, and fro the roundness overbern hym. (L. V. bere him over fro the world, de orbe.)—Id. Job xviii. 18.

Roundnesse of erthis (orbis terrarum).—Id. Wis. vii. 17.

If that thou
Throwe in a water now a stone,
Wel woste thou it will make anone
A litel roundel as a cercle.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 283.

A door opening out of our garden will save the round-about by the town.—Cowper to Lady Hesketh, April 17, 1786.

ROUND, ROWN.

Me list not to whispre neither roune.
Lidgate. Thebes.

The rownende gruechere shal defoule his soule (L. V. a privy backbiter, susurro), and in alle thingus shal ben hatyd.—Wic. Eccl. xxi. 31.

And euer all the houses angles
Is ful of rownings and of iangles.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 870.

ROUST, v. i. e. Rowest.

Why roust (abis) away so wyde?
Phaer. Virgil, b v. fo. 113.

ROUST, i. e. Roost

ROUT. ROTHER.

Foure rotheren hym byforne
That feble were worthi;
Men myghte reknen ich a ryb,
So rentful they weren.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 857.

Who gedereth in rep is a wis sone; who forsothe routeth (L. V. slepith, stertit) in somer is the sone of confusioun.
Wic. Prov. x. 5.

Peter! (the sound is) lyke the beting of the sea
(Quod I) against the rockes halow
When tempestes done hire shippes swalow,
And that a man stande, out of doute,
A myle off thens, and here it route.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. ii. p. 530.

ROUT.

In that lond, no Cristen dorste route (assemble),
All Cristen folk ben fled fro that centree.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4960.

ROUTH. See RUE.

ROW.

Commande to hack and hewe
The okes old, and lay hem on a rew.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2868.

ROWNE. See ROUND, ROUNE, supra.

ROYAL.

The Parliament, by Stat. (35 Henry VIII.) annexed it to the Crown of England, for euer now made triple by the royallizing of that of Ireland amongst the rest.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, pt. ii. c. 26, p. 213.

RUB.

Robin. I suppose the malicious mother has contrived to throw some confounded rub in the way.
Foote. The Bankrupt, A. i.

RUBRICK.

The periodical feculency and rubricity of the Nile happen in July and October.
Geddes. Critical Remarks, p. 183. Ex. ch. vii.

RUBY.

A wreth of gold—ful of stones bright,
Of fine rubins and of diamants.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2149.

The places ought before the application of these topicke medicines be well prepared with the razour, and a sinapisme or rubicative made of mustard seed, until the place look red.—Holland. Plinie, b. xxix. c. 6.

RUD. Rode, s. and Rud, s. are applied to the complexion. Skinner. Red-rudd, perhaps a Red or blushing face. Rud-red—the same.

Thanne he sente, and brouȝte hym forthe; forsothe he (Dauid) was rodi (rufus) and fayr in siȝt, and sembli in face.—Wic. 1 Kings xvi. 12.

His (Absolon's) rode was red: his eyen grey as goos,
With Poules windowes corven on his shoes.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3317.

RUDE. See CRUDE, supra.

Sothely no man sendith ynne a medlynge (putteth a piece) of rudee or newe clothe (rudis panni, L. V. boystous) in to an olde clothe.—Wic. Mat. ix. 16; also Mark ii. 21.

Air. For man and wife to quarrel before folks is rather rudish, I own.—Foote. The Cozeners, act iii. sc. 2.

RUDIMENT.

They discarded the barbarous school book then in use, (and) put the rudimentary study of the languages on a better footing.
Hallam. Lit. of the Middle Ages, Cent. xvi. ch. i.

RUE.

My mercy forsothe shal not gon awei fro thee, and the bond of my pes shal not be moued, seide the Lord, my reewer. (L. V. merciful doere, miserator.)
Wic. Is. liv. 10.

Wo worth the beaute that is routhèlesse.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 346.

RUGGY.

With obsecracioun*s* (L. V. biseechinges) spekith the pore man, and a riche man shal speke out ruggidli. (L. V. sterneli, rigide.)—Wic. Prov. xviii. 23.

RUIN.

Y shal make citees for to be enhabitid, and shal repareyle-ruynous thingis.—Wic. Ezek. xxxvi. 33.

Hell saw
Heav'n ruining from heav'n, and would have fled
Affrighted.—Milton. Par. L. b. viii. v. 868.

RUKING. See ROCK.

RUMBLE, i. e. noisy report, rumour—in second Quotation from Chaucer.

In which (trees) ther ran a romble and a swough,
As though a storme shuld bresten every bough.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1981.

O stormy peple! unsad and euer untrewe,
And undiscrete, and changing as a fane,
Delighting evere in rombel that is newe.
Id. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8872.

RUN.

And I shal turne awey my face fro hem, and thei shulen defoule my priue thing (arcanum): and foule men or renners (L. V. harlotis, emissarii) shulen entre into it and shulen defoule it.—Wic. Ez. vii. 23.

RUNAGATE and Renegates. See RENEGATE in v. Renay.

The Carthaginians shall restore and deliver back all renegates (perfugas) and fugitives that have fled to their side from us.—Holland. Livy, p. 751.

RUSE. Fr.

He outreached the whole city by this cunning ruse (callido commento).—Turnbull. Justin, b. xxi. c. 3.

RUSH. (Ressh, or Risshe.)

And yet yeve ye me nevere
The worth of a risshe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2422.

He toke a lonket of resshen, and glewide it with glewishe cley, and with picche, and put the litil faunt within. (L. V. a leepe of segge, fiscellam scirpeam.)
Wic. Ex. ii. 3; also 5.

And rayn came doun, and flodis camen, and wyndis blewen and rusheden (irruerunt) into that hous; and it felle nat down, for it was founded on a stoon.
Id. Mac. vii. 25.

My britheren passiden me, as a stronde (torrens) doith, that passith ruschyngli in grete valeis. (E. V. raveth-melum. See Meal term: raptim.)—Id. Job vi. 15.

RUST. Rusty wordes. See RIBAUD. Piers Ploughman, supra.

Ne trow thou to thin enemy unto without*e* ende; forsothe as bras rusteth (aruginat) the shrewdenesse of hym.
Wic. Eccl. xii. 10.

Why dost thou suffer rustful sloth to creep,
Dull Cyprian lad, into thy wanton brows?
Is this a time to pay thine idle vows
At Morpheus shrine?—Quarles, b. i. Emblem 7.

RUT.

In rotey tyme (rutting).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7250.

S.

SABBATH, s.

For to (til) the lond wolde do benigneli ther sabatis, al the time of ther forsaking he sabatisede (sabbatizavit) in the apliyng of seuenti ȝer.—Wic. 3 Esd. i. 58.

SACK, s. The name of a wine in great repute in the days of Sir John Falstaff. Mr. Nares calls it, A Spanish wine of the dry or rough kind, Vin sec, Fr. Sac. Ger. It may be added that the Lat. Saccare, is to strain through a sack or bag: and in Low Lat. saccare is per saccum colare et exprimere, and saccarum, liquor aquæ fœce vini admixtus, sacco expressus. Du Cange. The suggestion of Skinner, that it is wine from Xeque in Africa, is not noticed by Nares. And see the Commentators on Shakespeare, Henry IV. Drake's Shakespeare and his Times, v. ii. p. 130. And also Nares's Gloss.

If sacke and sugar bee a fault, Heauen helpe the wicked.
Shakespeare. Henry IV. Pt. I. act ii. sc. 4.

SACRE.

This is the lawe of the brent sacrifice, and of sacrifice for synne, and for trespas, and for the sacryng. (L. V. halewing, pro consecratione.)—Wic. Lev. vii. 37.

Witen ȝe not, for thei that wirchen in the sacrarie, that is, a place where hooly thingis ben kept (sacrario), eten tho thingis that ben of the sacrarie.—Id. 1 Rom. ix. 13.

SACROSANT. See SACRE.

SAD.

(Austyn) hymself ordeyned
To sadde us in bileue.
Piers Ploukman's Vision, v. 6100.

And wo was withalle,
That I ne had slepte sadder.—Id. Ib. v. 2479.

And his riȝt hond takun, he, Peter, lifte him vp; and anoon the groundis, and plauntis or solis (legs and feet) of him ben saddid to gidere (L. V. sowdid, consolidatæ sunt), and he lipping stood, and wandride.—Wic. Deeds iii. 7.

Like a wise, discreet, and circumspect prelate, ye should haue examined (as other since) such sad and credible persons as were present at her (the Maid of Kent's) trances and diffigurings, &c.
Cromwell to Fisher. Burnet. Records, v. i. N. 124.

More eath to number with how many eyes
High heauen beholds sad (constant) louers theueries.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iii. c. 11, v. 45.

This sadded the English, and made them drive heavily.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, c. lxiv. p. 209.

The sadded air hung all in cheerless black.
G. Fletcher. Christ's Triumph over Death.

SADDLE, v.

Somonours sholde be sadeled,
And serven hem.—Piers Ploukman's Vision, v. 1222.

SAFE. See SAVE.

SAFFRON.

That eeten voluptuously dieden in weies; that weren nurschid in faire cloȝs of saffroun (croceis) han clippid thostus (stercora).—Wic. Jer. Lam. iv. 5.

SAGE. Written by Chaucer, Save and Savige.

And eke, save
They dronken; for they wold hir lives have.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2715.

The savige and the yssope . . .
Id. Pardonere and Tapstere, v. 292.

SAGINATE, adj. Fat, fattened. Lat. Saginare, to cram, to fatten; Gr. σαττειν, to load.

Many a sheep and blatant goat,
With many a saginated boar, bright tusk'd
(Lay bleeding).—Cowper. Iliad, b. xxiii. v. 40

To them he ever sent
The fattest of his saginated charge.
Id. Odyssey, b. xiv. v. 22.

SAIL.

And now I se wher a soule
Cometh hiderward seillynge.
Piers Ploukman's Vision, v. 12692.

SAIL, i. e. Assail, qv.

Now to assaute that sailen can,
(Quod love) and that full hardily.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7340.

Saillyng (assailing) of the walls.—Lidgate. Thebes.

SAIL, v. In Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8492, "(I can) neither saille ne saute; i. e. leap nor jump." Sailours, perhaps Dancers, called by Wiclif "Leapers." And see ASSAIL, SALIENT, SALLY.

There was many a timbestere
And sailours, that I dare wel swere
Ycothe hir craft full parfitly.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 770.

SAINT, v.

Around him wide a sable army stand,
A low born, cell-bred, selfish, servile band,
Prompt or to guard or stab, to saint or damn,
Heav'n's Swiss, who fight for any god or man
Pope. Dunciad, b. ii. v. 357.

SAKE, v. } Dan. Sag; Sw. Sak; D. Saecka;
SAKELESS. } Ger. Sache; A. S. Sac; Causa, occasio; also Lis; from the A. S. Sec-an; Ger. Sucheh, to seek. See Skinner and Wachter.

That which, or for, or on account of which we seek; the cause of seeking; the cause, occasion, end or purpose. Also, in forensic usage,

A suit or prosecution; an accusation; and hence —censure, blame; and the old adjective Sakeless is blameless. Thus, in Gascoigne, "the simple sakeles man," is, "the simple blameless or innocent man."

Alas the day and tyme that evir I was your make,
Much have I endured this too yere for your sake!
Poem imputed to Chaucer. The Merchant's Second Tale.

Lo thus she cride, and thus she praide,
Till at last a voyce hir saide,
That if she wolde for his sake
The maladie suffre and take
And die hir selfe, he shulde live.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vii.

He cannot spoile the simple sakeles man,
Which is content to feed him with his bread.
Gascoigne. Woodmanship.

I for his sake will leave
Thy bosom, and this glorie next to thee
Freely put off, and for him lastly dye.
Milton. Par. L. b. iii.

For thy sake we are kylled all the daye longe, and are counted as shepe apoynted to be slayne.
Bible, 1549. Psalm xliv. 22.

SALIENCE. See SALLY.

SALLOW. } Fr. Sale. Le gris sale. A
SALLOWNESS. } dark or dusky gray. Ger. Sal. Sordidus, spurcus; and also, fuscus. See Wachter.

A sallow complexion is (perhaps) a complexion tarnished or sullied by sickness; yellowish.

And ȝe schulen take to ȝou in the firste day salewis (E. V. withues, salices) of the rennyng streem, and ȝe schulen be glad bifor ȝoure Lord ȝhoure God.
Wic. Lev. xxiii. 40.

Faded was all her beaute—
Full salow was waxen her colour.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose.

Jesu Maria, what a deale of brine
Hath washt thy sallow cheekes for Rosaline.
Shakespeare. Romeo and Juliet, act ii. sc. 3.

Pale dropsy, with a sallow face,
And lordly gout, wrapt up in fur.
Swift. Panegyric on the Dean.

A fish-diet would give such a sallowness to the celebrated beauties of this island, as would scarce make them distinguishable from those of France.—Addison.

Hence the lean gloom, that melancholy wears:
The lover's paleness; and the sallow hue
Of envy.—Armstrong. Art of Health, b. iv.

That heau'nly voice I more delight to hear
Than . . . hiving bees that fly,
About the laughing blossoms of sallowy,
Rocking asleep the idle grooms that lazy ly.
Giles Fletcher. Christ's Triumph over Death, st. 2.

SALSUGINOUS. See SALINE.

SALT.

Thei saltiden othere thingis, that schulde suffice hem in the weie.—Wic. Tobit vi. 6.

SALVATION. Salvo jure (nostræ veteris amicitiæ.—Cic. Ep. ad Fam. 13. 77). A form of expression in classical writers, and adopted in our legal instruments of grant. And hence, To Salve, to save, or keep safe, to reserve. (See the Quotations from Spenser and Cudworth, in v. Salve, in Dictionary.) Also written Save, qv.

(He) soughte out the sike
And synfulle both,
And salvede sike and synfulle.
Piers Ploukman's Vision, v. 11019.

There is but one, who died salvifically for us, and able to say unto death, Hitherto shalt thou go and no farther.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. ii. § xi.

SALUTE, v.

Forsoth ȝe entringe in to an house, Gret ȝe or salute ȝe it (salutate), sayinge, Pees to this hous.—Wic. Mat. x. 12.

SAMBUKE. Lat. Sambuca. See Wiclif, Bible, Dan. iii. 5, &c.; in Mod. Ver. Sackbut.

SAME.

Ev'n our own bodies daily change receive,
Nor are to-day what yesterday they were;
Nor the whole same to-morrow will appear.
Dryden. Of the Pythagorean Philosophy. Ov. Met. b. xv.

SAMPLE.

And by this saumple (E. V. exsaumple, exemplo) alle the wyues of prynces of Persis and of Medeis schulen dispise the comaundementis of hosebondis.—Wic. Esth. i. 18.

SANATIVE. See SANE. Sanatory, or as not uncommonly written, Sanitary, are words that have been for some time in common use. As—A Sanatory Commission, a Sanitary Report, a Commission to inquire into, or report of the state of, the health (of the people).

SANCTUARY.

The veyle forsothe be it sett yn bi cercles, with ynne the whiche thou shalt put the arke of testymonye, and with the which the seyntuarie, and the seyntuarye of the seyntuarie sholen be dyuyded (sanctuarii sanctuaria).
Wic. Ex. xxvi. 33.

SAND.

This yerde was large, and railed at the alies,
And shadowed wel, with blosomy bowes grene,
And benched new, and sonded all the waies.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 117.

SANGUINE.

And thes ben the thinȝis that ȝe shulen take, gold, and siluer, and brasse, and iasynct, that is, silk of violent blew, and purpur, that is, sangwyn silk.—Wic. Ex. xxv. 4.

His smile (Judge Jeffreys) being construed into a sign that he was about "to breathe death like a destroying angel, and to sanguine his very ermine in blood."
Wool. p. 200, in Campbell's Chancellors, v. iii. p. 544.

Although the waves of all the northern sea
Should flow for ever through these guilty hands,
Yet the sanguinolent stain would extant be.
Marston. The Insatiate Countess.

SANIOUS.

Then God's heavy hand shall press the sanies out from all our sins and pour them into one chalice.
Bp. Taylor. Christ's Advent to Judgment, Ser. 2.

SAP, v. (to undermine). It. Zappare, to dig, to delve the ground, to sap. Zappa, a mattock to dig or delve with, a sappe. Florio. Sp. Zapa, a hoe for a garden. Zapar, to hoe in a garden: in a martial sense, to sap, that is, to dig a deep trench, descending by steps to get into the enemy's works, for fear of their mines. Delpine. Menage derives from σκαφη, a ditch, σκαπτ-ειν, to dig.

SAPOUR. See SAPID.

SAPPHIRE. See Quotation from Job in v. Sardonyx.

SARCLING. In Wiclif, Bible, 1 Kings xiii. 20, a Sarp, or purging hook. Also Is. vii. 23. (Lat. Sarculum.)

SARDONIAN.

It (Wisdam) shal not be comparisound to the steyned coloures of Ynde, ne to the most precious sardonyk ston (sardonycho) or safyr (saphiro).—Wic. Job xxviii. 16.

SARGE. See SAY, s. infra.

SARK.

She shold unsowen hir serk.
Piers Ploukman's Vision, v. 2605.

SARLINISH. Perhaps Sarsinishe. Fr. Sarrasinois, Sarcenet. Tyrwhitt.

Largesse had on a robe fresh,
Of riche purpure sarlinish.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1183.

SARP. See SARCLING.

SARPLIERE.

And they been ententife about sarpleres or sachelles (sarcinulas) unprofitable for to taken.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. i. pr. 3.

SATELLITE.

Ask of thy mother earth why oaks are made
Taller and stronger than the weeds they shade,
Or ask of yonder argent fields above,
Why Jove's Satellites are less than Jove.
Pope. Essay on Man, b. i. v. 42.

SATRAP.

And so Nabugodonosor sente for to gedere satrapis or wyse men (satrapas).—Wic. Dan. iii. 2.

SAUCEFLEME. Lat. Salsum flegma. Having a red pimply face. See Tyrwhitt's Note.

A sompnour was ther with us in that place,
That had a fire-red cherubimeés face,
For saucefleme he was, with eyen narwe.
Chaucer. Prol. v. 627.

SAVE. See TO SALVE, SALVO

SAVE. } Fr. Sauveur; It. Salvatore; Sp.
SAFE. } Salvador. Salvator is not classic
SAVIOUR. } Lat. (though an instance of its usage applied to Jupiter is produced by Du Cange). It was established, if not introduced, by Saint Augustine—as the characteristic of Jesus Christ.—Trench. Study of Words, Lec. iv.

Safe-conduct. Law Lat. Salvus Conductor; Fr. Sauf-conduit. A privilege granted by a prince to come into and go out of his dominions with safety.

Safe-guard. Law Lat. Salva custodia; Fr. Sauf-guard. A privilege so granted to foreigners, becoming suitors in his courts of justice, to be and remain without harm to themselves or servants in goods or property. See Spelman.

And he turnede the name of hym (Joseph), and he clepide hym in Egipcian tunge the saueor of the world (salvatorem mundi).—Wic. Gen. xli. 45.

For the grace of God oure Sauyoure hath apperid to alle men, and taughte us that we forsake wickidnesse and worldly desires.—Id. Poul to Tyte, c. ii.

For the grace of God that bringeth saluacion hath apered, and teachest us yt we shonlde denye vngodlynesse and worldly lustes.—Ib. Bible, 1549.

Poul the seruaunt of God: to Tite moost dereworth sone by the comyn feith—Grace and pees of God the fadir and of Crist Jesu oure Sauyour.—Wic. Poul to Tyte, c. i.

Paul the seruaunt of God—To Titus hys naturall sonne in the common fayth—Grace, mercy, and peace frō God the father and from the Lord Jesu Christe oure Sauyoure.
Ib. Bible, 1549.

(No man wot) in which maner wise
The worme of conscience may agrise
Of wicked lif, though it so privee be
That no man wote thereof, sauf God and he.
Chaucer. The Doctores Tale, v. 12216.

Our duties are to your throne and state,
Children and seruants; which doe but what they should,
By doing euery thing safe toward your loue
And honour (i. e. giving safety to, preserving your honour safe).—Shakespeare. Macbeth, act i. sc. 4.

SAVOUR.

Ac I have no savour in songewarie (interpreting dreams),
For I se it ofte faille.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4791.

He that sauereth, or undirstondeth, the day, understondith to the Lord (sapit).—Wic. Rom. xiv. 6.

And the Lord sauered the odour of sweetnesse (E. V. smellid a smel, odoratus est odorem) and seide to hym, I schal no more curse the erthe for men.—Id. Gen. viii. 21.

SAUTE. See SAIL, ASSAIL.

These forsothe that weren with Machabee, by preyeres preyinge the Lord, that he were helper to hem, maden feersnesse or saut (L. V. asaut, impetum) in to strengthis of Idumeis.—Wic. 2 Mac. x. 16.

SAW, s.

Aftir the sawe bitwixt us (juxta condictum; L. V. bi the biheest) I shal turne aȝen to thee this same tyme.
Wic. Gen. xviii. 14.

SAW, p. t. of See, qv.

SAY, s.

Also thou schalt make enleuene saies (E. V. heeren sarges, saga cilicina) to kynere the hilyng of the tabernacle.
Wic. Ex. xxvi. 7, et aliter.

SAY, v.

Alle thingis I sayed in wisdam. (L. V. assayed, tentavi.)
Wic. Eccles. vii. 24.

We took the say in the presence of the king.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 575.

SAY, or SAIE. See v. To SEE.

SAYER, s. See Quotation from Job in v. Rivel, supra.

SCAB.

If (it hath) litil bleynes or shab (L. V. scabbe, papulas) or drye rownd shab (L. V. scabbe, scabiem), ȝe shulen not offre them.—Wic. Lev. xxii. 22.

SCABRON, s. See the Quotation.

And I schal sende out bifore scabrouns (that is, flies with venemouse prickis that ben bred of deed careyns, crabrones), that schulen dryue away Euey, &c.—Wic. Ex. xxiii. 28.

SCALE, v.

There Pirga, Arimon, Orinda arre,
Breniart the scaler, and with him Swifant,
The breaker of wild horses.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xvii. st. 31.

SCANDAL.

Offence or scandal, if I be not deceived (saith Tertullian), is when the example not of a good but of an evil thing doth set men forward unto sin. Good things can scandalize none, save only evil minds.
Hooker. Ecc. Pol. b. iv. § 12.

David was scandalous, in that bloody act, whereby he caused the enemies of God to be blasphemous; thus the whole state of Israel was scandalous, when their publick disorders caused the name of God to be ill-spoken of amongst the nations.—Id. Ib. b. xi. § 12.

SCAPE, s. Avoidance or evasion of danger or difficulty; also applied to acts requiring such avoidance as incurring danger or difficulty.

And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the twoo gootes. One lotte for the Lord, and another for a scape-goate. The goote on which the lotte fell to scape, he shal set alyue before the Lorde to reconcyle wyth and to let hym goo fre in to the wyldernesse.—Lev. xvi. Bible, 1549.

I have no conscience of marble to resist the hammer of more heavy offences, nor yet so soft and waxen as to take the impression of each single peccadillo or scape of infirmity.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. ii. § vii.

SCAR. SCARRY.

In stones he dwellith, and in heȝe set scarri flintis (præruptis silicibus; L. V. ſlyntis brokun bifor) he bideth.
Wic. Job xxxix. 28.

If it is blynd, if it is brokun, if it has a scar. (E. V. fel (skin) wound, cicatricem.)—Id. Lev. xxii. 22.

Sotheli bitwixe the stiyngis, by whiche Jonathas enforside to passe to the staciouu of the Filisteis, weren stonys stondynge forth on ener either side, and scarris (E. V. litle rochis, scopuli) brokun bifore bi the maner of teeth on eche syde.—Id. 1 Kings xiv. 4.

Is it the roar of Teviot's tide,
That chafes against the Scaurs red side?
Scott. Last Minstrel, c. i. § 12.

SCARCE.

Slep of helthe (is) in a scars man (parco); he shal slepe vnto the morutid, and the lif of hym with hym shal deliten.—Wic. Eccl. xxxi. 24.

The wyndie storme began to scarse,
The sonne arist.—Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 180².

SCATTER, v.

I have found out that you are a scatter-brain.
Cowper to J. Johnson, July 31, 1790.

SCENE.

Our course of employment and action (continues) the very same, only not scened so illustriously; nor set off with so good company and conversation.—Archbp. Sancroft's Letters (1691). D'Oyly's Life, &c. v. ii. p. 17. (Todd.)

SCHEME.

Blunting the keenness of his spiritual sense
With narrow schemings and unworthy cares.
Shelley. Queen Mab, s. v.

SCHETICAL. Relative, σχεσις, σχειν, habere. SCHESES, Relations. Cudworth.

Nay, then virtue, justice, honesty, must of necessity be figments also, because moral good and evil are schetical and relative things.—Cudworth. Morality, p. 158.

SCHISM. See Quotation from Hooker in v. Separate, infra.

SCIENCE.

Science is the knowledge of consequences, and dependance of one fact upon another.—Hobbes. Leviathan, c. 5.

SCION.

Y seiȝ that a vyne bifore me, in which weren thre sionns (E. V. braunchis, propagines), wexide litil and litil into buriounnyngis (gemmas).—Wic. Gen. xl. 10.

SCLAUNDER. See SLANDER.

SCLENDER. See SLENDER.

SCLOPE, i. e. Sleep. So written in Par. and Tap. v. 454.

SCOMFIT, i. e. Discomfit. Skunfite is in Wic. Bible, Judges vi. 16, a var. r. of Smyte (percutere).

SCORCH, s. Add—
But Holland writes (see Quotation in v. Singe), "Scorched or singed by nipping cold." See Singe, infra.

SCORN, v.

Ne no scornere ne scold
Out of skile (reason, temper) hym brynge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13524.

The Romans tooke foule skorn (Romanis indignantibus) and disdaine, that they, whose hap before was to be vanquished, should unprovoked begin war afresh with the conquerors.—Holland. Livy, p. 395.

SCOT.

For thei tendende to drinkis, and ȝiuende scot (L. V. mussels (morsels), symbola) shul ben wastid.
Wic. Prov. xxiii. 21.

SCOTTICISM.

The pleadings of lawyers were equally loose and inaccurate, and that profession having furnished more authors, and the matters of which they treat mingling daily in common discourse and business, many of those vicious forms of speech, which are denominated Scotticisms, have been introduced by them into the language.
Robertson. History of Scotland, b. viii.

SCRAPE.

Who so shrape my mawe?
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2720.

And whan Judi had rad thre litle pagens, or foure, he kutte it with a scraping knyf (scalpello) of the scribe, and threȝ it in to the fier.—Wic. Jer. xxxvi. 23.

SCRIPT. Scripture, in Chaucer, A writing or posy—for a ring.

I seigh nevere palmere,
With pyk ne with scrippe,
Asken after hym.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3574.

And I counseilid, and thoȝte, and scrites left. (L. V. lefte writun.)—Wic. Ecc. xxxix. 28.

(They) plaiyng enterchaungeden hir ringes,
Of whiche I can tellen no scripture.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1369.

(Xenophon's Cyropædia) is a most amusing narrative, and ten times easier to understand than the crabbed epigrams and scribblements of the minor poets, that are generally put into the hands of boys.
Cowper to Unwin, Oct. 22, 1785.

SCRIVENER. Wiclif, Is. xxxvi, 2, scriuen, and 22, scryueyn. E. V. scribe, scriba.

I nel noght scorne, ...
But if scryveynes lye.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6278.

SCROLL.

Therfor thei don alle her werkis that thei ben seen of men; forsothe thei alargen their filateries, that ben smale scrowis, and magnifie hemmys.—Wic. Mat. xxiii. 5.

SCRUPLE.

This shal not be to thee, my lord, into ȝoxyage (in singultum), and into scripil (L. V. in to doute, in scrupulum), that thou hast shed giltlesse blood, and thi self thou hast vengid.
Wic. 1 Kings xxv. 31.

These are the scepticks or scrupulists against whom there is a clamour raised.
Shaftesbury. Misc. 2, c. iii. v. iii. p. 109.

SCULK.

With joy all at ons thei went tille Snawdone
On Juor and Ini, that tapised by that side,
To purveie them a skulkyng, on the Englis eft to ride.
Robert of Brunne, p. 3.

SCULL.

And he shal put on an yren ȝok vpon thi scol (L. V. nol, cervicem) to the tyme that he haue al to-treede thee.
Wic. Deut. xxviii. 48.

SCULPTOR.

And alle sculptilis (sculptilia), or grauen ymagis, shuln be beten to gidre; and alle hiȝres (mercedes) therof shuln be brent in fiȝr.—Wic. Micah i. 7; also Nahum i. 14.

SCUM. See SKIM.

SCUTCHEON. } See ESCUTCHEON.
SCOCHYNNE. }

SCYLED. Mr. Tyrwhitt says, p. p. of Scyle—Concealed. A. S. Scylan; to skill, (qv.) to separate; to secrete; and thus to conceal. Scyled under cure,—veiled.

Yet neuerthelesse within mine orature (oratory)
I stode, when Titan had his beames bright
Withdrawen doun, and scyled under cure.
Chaucer. Test. of Creseide, v. 10.

SEA.

And God clepide the drie place erthe; and he clepide the gadrynges togidere of watris, sees.—Wic. Gen. i. 10.

Which is seen (sparkling light) in the fervent froath of the sea—which they call sea-longs (lungs) (pulmo marinus).
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 3.

SEAL, v.

Who schal ȝyue keping to my mouth and a certeyn ceelyng (signaculum) on my lippis, that Y falle not bi tho, and that my tunge leese not me?—Wic. Ecc. xxii. 33.

Selers (signatores) forsothe weren Neemias, &c. (E. V.) Id. 2 Esd. x. 1.

Therfor on alle these thingis we us self smyten and writen boond of pees, and oure princes, oure dekenes, and oure priestis aseelen (signant).
Id. Ib. (L. V.) (Nehemiah, in M. V.)

That comaundith to the sunne, and (it) springeth not; and closeth the sterris, as under a sel. (L. V. signet, signaculo.)—Id. Job ix. 7.

SEAM, s. A measure of eight bushels. Ray. South and East words. And see Somner.

I shal assoille thee myself
For a seem of whete.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1436.
A seem of otes.—Id. Ib. v. 2158.

SEAM, v. See Piers Plouhman in v. Stitch, infra.

SEAM. (Grease.)

Thou swety slouen seymy.—Skelton, v. i. p. 124.

SEARCH.

And to hym (Laban) aserchyng (L. V. sekyng, scrutanti) al the tent, and no thyng fyndinge, she (Rachel) seith.
Wic. Gen. xxxi. 34.

SECOND.

And Abraham ȝaue alle that he had to Ysaac; to the sonys forsothe of the secoundarye wyues (L. V. concubyns, concubinarum) he ȝaue ȝiftis.—Wic. Gen. xxv. 6.

Forsothe thou hast seyn secoundli (secundo) a sweuen perteyning to the same thing.—Id. Ib. xli. 32.

SECT. In Chaucer, Rom. of the Rose, v. 4682, "Our sectes strene for to save the generation of our kind or species." (See in v. Strain.)

SECULAR.

The whiche perauenture comen after seculer lettris to holi scripturis, and with a fair sermoun deliten the eeris of the puple.—Wic. Bible. Pref. to Ep. p. 67.

SECURE.

Loo! whether not Dauid lurkith anentis vs in moost siker placys (L. V. sikireste places, locis tutissimis) of a wode?—Wic. 1 Kings xxiii. 19.

And the werk of riȝtfulnesse schal be pees, and the tilthe of riȝtfulnesse schal be stilnesse and sikirnesse (securitas) til in to with outen ende.—Id. Is. xxxii. 17.

They eate, they drink, and, in communion sweet,
Quaff immortalitie and joy,
Secure of surfet.—Milton. Par. L. b. 5, v. 639.

He views the unguarded city from afar,
In careless quiet and secure of war.
Immunis belli.—Dryden. Æn. b. xii. v. 818.

SEE, v. See Wiclif, in v. Scion, supra.

Barons and burgeises
I seigh in this assemblee.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 432.

Seint Johan and othere seintes
Were seyen in poore clothyng.—Id. Ib. v. 7052.

Sumtyme (olim) in Yrael thus spak echon goynge to counseyle God; Cometh, and go we to the seer (ad videntem); forsothe, he that to day is seid a prophet, sumtyme (olim) was clepid seer (videns).—Wic. 1 Kings ix. 9.

And when I had a while igone,
I sawe a garden, right anone . . . .
Another image set, saugh I.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, vv. 135, 207.

False semblant had he saine also.—Id. Ib. v. 7447.

I felt wel and saie (saw)
Your grete trouth and service every daie,
And that your hert al mine was.
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 991.

This Damian, when that his time he say.
Id. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9810.

SEE, i. e. Seat.

And (they) sitten in se,
In her synagoges.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1111.

Neuer the later, my lorde, my Lord Kyng, in thee the oyen of al Yrael beholden, that thou deme to hem that owith to sit in thi see (L. V. trone) my Lord Kyng aftir thee.—Wic. 3 Kings i. 20.

And smale harpers with hir glees,
Satte under him in divers sees,
And gone on hem upwarde to gape.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 120.

SEED, s. v.

Thes thre ben the sones of Noe, and of thes is out sedid (L. V. was sowun, disseminatum est) al the kind of men vpon al erthe.—Wic. Gen. ix. 19.

The Campanes alreadie were distressed with hunger and famine, and the reason was, because the armies of the Romanes had impeached and hindered their seednesse (sementem facere prohibuerant).—Holland. Livy, p. 556.

Bailiff. Little Flanigan here is a little seedy, as we say among us that practise the law—Not well in clothes.
Goldsmith. Good Natured Man, act iii. sc. 1.

SEEK.

My Lord, be not wrooth that Y may not rise bifore thee, for it bifelde now to me (Rachel) bi the custom of wymmen; so the bisynesse of the sekere was scorned (quærentis).
Wic. Gen. xxxi. 35.

And eche these other termes all,
That in soche case ye lovers allè seche,
And in full humble wise, as in his speche,
He gan him recommaunde unto her grace.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1071.

Knowing of trouth in causes of things was more hardier in the first sechers; and so sayth Aristotle.
Id. Test. of Loue. Prol.

Than longen folk to gon on pilgrimages,
And Palmeres for to seken strange strondes.
Id. Prologue to Canterbury Tales, v. 13.

SEEM. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Mange, supra.

For Pazens han somwhat
Semynge to oure bileve.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10409.

I semed upon that hous.—Id. Creed, v. 315.

And he was seen to hem (visus est) as pleiyinge (ludens) to speke. (M. V. seemed.)—Wic. Gen. xix. 14.

The sone acreesynge, Joseph, the sone acresynge, and seemli. (L. V. fair, decorus.)—Id. Gen. xlix. 22.

SEETHE, v.—p. Seethed, sod, sodden,—Coquere, excoquere, are commonly rendered to seethe in the Early Version of Wiclif's Bible; and to bake in the Later Version. And a seething man—a bakere, Coquens.

Sotheli Jacob sethide (E. V. had sothun, coxit) potage: and whanne Esau cam weri fro the felde, he seide to Jacob, ȝyue thou to me of this reed sething (coctione rufa), for Y am ful weri.—Wic. Gen. xxv. 30.

And the tother seide to his neiȝbore, Cometh, and make we tile stoons, and sethe (L. V. bake; var. r. bake or eelde (see Ale), coquamus) we hem in fier.—Id. Ib. xi. 3.

Lo! Y haue sode thee, but not as siluer (excoxi; E. V. outbake).—Id. Is. xlviii. 10.

SEINT, s. i. e. Cincture (qv.) or Girdle. See Quotation from Chaucer in v. Meddle; also in v. Silk, infra.

SEIZE, v.

And sithen I (the Devil) seised
Sevene hundred wynter,
I leeve, &c.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12644.

Till that deth me cese
I wil be hires, whether I wake or winke,
And trewe in al that herte may bethinke.
Chaucer. Assemble of Foules, v. 481.

SELDOM, adj. Seldom is used adjectively by more modern writers than Chaucer or Shakespeare. A seldomer preaching. Bp. Taylor. Ser. i. p. 5, fo. And Baxter often so uses it.

Seldomcy is opposed by Cowper jocosely to frequency.—Works, v. vi. p. 228.

It must not be now and then a glance of the eye of the soul towards God; or a seldom salutation which you would give to a stranger, but a walking with him, and frequent addresses of the soul unto him, which must help you to the delights which believers find in their communion with him.—Baxter. Body of Divinity, p. 128, fo. ed.

If thou delight not in him, thy thoughts of God will be seldom, or unwelcome and unpleasant thoughts. And thy speeches of him will be seldom, or heartless, forced speeches.
Id. Ib.

SELF. SELFISH, Ascribed by Hacket (see Trench, English Past und Present, lec. 2.) to the mint of the Presbyterians—appears in Cudworth, as a word in common use. See in Dictionary.

(This) he seide in his sorwe
On the selve rood.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14011.

When they (the Presbyterians) saw he was not selfish, (it is a word of their own new mint) some of their ministers, that were softened with the dewy drops of his tongue, eased their stomachs with complaints against the courts ecclesiastical and the rugged carriage of certain prelates.—Hacket. Life of Abp. Williams, pt. ii. p. 144. A. D. 1693.

When the soul has tasted of the love,
And been illuminated from above;
Still in its self-hood it would seek to shine,
And as its own possess the light divine.
Byrom, from Jacob Behmer. A Poetical Vision.

The weakness of the social affections and the strength of the private desires constitute selfishness.
Mackintosh. Dissertation, p. 193.

SELL, s.

And so thei ordeyneden a dai, in which thei schulden do prineli bitwixe hem self; and to eche selles, or smale setis (sellæ) ben brouȝt forth, and putt.—Wic. 2 Mac. xiv. 21.

SELL, v.

Al the money he gederyde togither for the sellyng of the whete (venditione), and putte it to the tresorye of the kyng.
Wic. Gen. xlvii. 14.

No thing is more wicke than to looven moone (money); this forsothe hath his soule sillable (venalem) or able to be sold.—Id. Eccl. x. 10.

The sellers (L. V. silleris, venditores) thei (weren) thi merchauntis.—Id. Ez. xxvii. 22.

SELL, i. e. Cell, Cellar.

Ezechie shewede to them the selle of spices, and of siluer, and of gold, &c.—Wic. Is. xxxix. 2.

Where never had abbay, ne selle,
Yben, ne kirke.—Chaucer. Dreme, v. 2066.

SELL. See SILL.

SELVEDGE.

The self-edge makes show of the cloth.—Ray. Proverbs.

SELY. See SILLY.

SEMBLANT.

Rebecca—a ful sembly (L. V. comeli, decora) and moost fayr mayden.—Wic. Gen. xxiv. 16.

SEMI. Semi-vif, (only) half alive.

He myghte neither steppe ne stande,
For semy-vif he semed.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11481.

SEMPITERNE.

This lyght is the lyght of the creatour of the lyght sempyternel, which promysed to send us his lyght perpetuall.
The Golden Legend. Caxton, Westmestre, 1483.

SEND.

Streite sendings out (emissiones directe) of leytis schulen go, and as the sidis of a reynbowe thei schulen be descried.
Wic. Wisd. v. 22.

This Senatour doeth Alla great honour,
And hastely he sent after Custaunce,
But trusteth well, her lust not to daunce,
When she wiste wherefore was that sonde.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, p. 3.

SENDEL.

Sendel (L. V. lynnen cloth, sindonem) she made, and solde; and a litil girdil she toc to Canaan.
Wic. Prov. xxxi. 24.

SENIOR. Tyndale rendered the Gr. Πρεσβυτερος by this word, which he afterwards changed to Elder, on being reproved by Sir T. More, who wrote—

In our English, this word seniour signifieth nothing at all; but is a French word, and in English more than half a mockage, (as) when one will call another my Lord in scorn.—Sir Thomas More, Dialogue, b. iii. c. 7.

SENSE.

Beasts are in sensible capacity as ripe even as men themselves, perhaps even more ripe.
Hooker. Ecc. Pol. b. i. § 6.

To express in one word all that appertains to the perception, considered as passive and merely recipient, I have adopted from our elder classics the word sensuous.
Coleridge. Biog. Lit. v. i. p. 175.

SENTENCE.

Who is this, wrappende in sentencis (involvens sententias) with woordis vnwise?—Wic. Job xxxviii. 2.

The which seide to hem, Be it doon to after ȝour sentence (sententiam).—Id. Gen. xliv. 10.

The sayd versis of the grete poete be of grete effect, purposed sentencyously in few wordis.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, b. i.

Haruth and Maruth,
The chosen sentencers.—Southey. Thalaba, b. iv. § 9.

SENTIENT. See SENSE.

SEPARATE.

Men doe separate themselues eyther by heresie, schisme, or apostasie. If they loose the bond of faith, which then they are justly supposed to doe, when they frowardly oppugne any principall point of Christian doctrine, this is to separate themselues by heresie. If they breake the bond of vnitie, whereby the body of the Church is coupled and knit in one, as they doe, which wilfully forsake all externall communion with saints in holy exercises purely and orderly established in the Church, this is to separate themselues by schisme. If they willingly cast off and vtterly forsake both profession of Christ and communion with Christians, taking their leaue of all religion, this is to separate themselues by plaine apostasie.
Hooker. Sermon 1, on St. Jude.

SEPTUAGENARY. } A version of the Hebrew
SEPTUAGINT. } Scriptures into Greek by seventy translators, at the command of Ptolemy Philadelphus, King of Egypt.

Within the compass of this year (A. M. 3727) Archbishop Usher placeth the making of that Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures, which we call the Septuagint.
Prideaux. Conn. pt. ii. b. 1.

SEPULCHRE.

And (Abraham) seide, ȝyue ȝe to me the riȝt of sepulcre (E. V. birying place, sepulchri) with ȝou, that I birie my deed bodis.—Wic. Gen. xxiii. 4.

(They) do so overhonour the dead that they abridge some parts of them (e. g. pieces of pretended saints) of due sepelition.—Bp. Hall, v. iii. p. 103, fo. ed.

SEQUESTER.

Therfor he ordeynen to hem alle the niȝ coostis of hem, to be sequestrid or departid (sequestrari) to alle doynge sacrifice in Jerusalem.—Wic. 1 Mac. xi. 34.

For she sequestryd hir opynyon from al the world.
Lyfe of our Ladye, d. 7, c. 1. Caxton.

SERE. See SEAR.

SERGEANT.

Forsothe Saul sente sergeauntis (E. V. seruauntis, apparitores) that schulden rauysche Dauid, and it was answeride, that he was sijk.—Wic. 1 Kings xix. 14.

SERIES. The adj. Serial is now in common use to denote publications in successive numbers, parts, or volumes.

SERMON.

And me sermounende (L. V. while I speke, sermocinante) manye thingis, hondis to ther mouth thei shall putte.
Wic. Wisd. viii. 12.

Riȝtwise ben all my sermownes (L. V. wordis, sermones); ther is not in hem any thing shreude, or peruertid.
Id. Prov. viii. 8.

For abhomynacioun of the Lord is eche gilour; and with the simple (is) the sermounyng. (L. V. speking, sermocinatio.)—Id. Ib. iii. 32.

SERVE. Servitude is used by Milton for Servants.

Lo! the Lord hath closid me, that Y schulde not bere child; entre thou to my seruauntesse (E. V. hand-maydyn, ad ancillam), if in hap Y schal take children, nameli of hir.—Wic. Gen. xvi. 2.

Forsothe Queen Sabaa seynge al the wisdom of Salomon . . . . and the dwellynge placis of the seruauntis, and the ordres of the seruistours. . . . (L. V. mynystris, ministrantium.)—Id. 3 Kings x. 5.

(I am) al so fully hire servand,
As creature or man livand
May be to lady or princesse.—Chaucer. Dreme, v. 1629.

Unjustly thou depravst it with the name
Of servitude, to serve whom God ordains,
Or Nature.—Milton. Par. L. b. vi, v. 175.

After him a cumbrous train
Of herds and flocks and numerous servitude.
Id. Ib. b. xii. v. 132.

SETTLE. To settle, sc. a Colony, a body of Emigrants—is common in our geographical writers.

The first town that was settled by the English in North America was called James Town, near Chesapeak Bay. This was in the year 1607. New Hampshire appears to have been settled about the year 1623.—Ency. Metrop. in v. America.

SEVER.

A man peruertid rereth striues; and the man ful of woordis seuereth. (L. V. departith, separat.)
Wic. Prov. xvi. 28.

Forsothe Isaie profeciede in either rewme; now togidere, now seuerendli he ordeynede the profecie.
Id. Prol. to Isaiah, p. 224.

SEVERE.

Seuerity is continuance and perseuerance of con maner of lyuyng as wele in the thyngys within as in theym without.—The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, g. 2ª.

SEUREMENT. } See SURE.
SEURETY. }

SEW. See SUE.

SEW, s.

And sche (Rebecca) kyuerede the nakide thingis of the necke; and sche ȝaf seew (E. V. sowill, pulmentum) and bitook the leeuys whiche sche hadde bake.
Wic. Gen. xxvii. 17.

And whanne thou hast take ony thing bi hunting make to me (Ysaac) a seew (E. V. sowil, pulmentum) thereof, as thou knowist that I wole.—Id. Ib. xxvii. 4.

SEW, or SOW.

I had levere here an harlotrye,
Or a somer game of souters (shoemakers).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3300.

Cesse, the souteresse,
Sat on the benche.—Id. Ib. v. 3105.

The devil made a Reve for to preche,—
Or of a souter, a shipman, or a leche.
Chaucer. Reves Prol. v. 3902.

SEXTANT.

He shal take a lombe, and offre it for trespas, and a sextarye of oyle.—Wic. Lev. xiv. 12.

SHACKLE.

So the stretch'd cord the shackle-dancer tries,
As prone to fall as impotent to rise,
When freed he moves, the sturdy cable bends,
He mounts with pleasure, and secure descends.
To the Memory of I. Philips.

SHADE.

(A spot) unapproachable,
Save through a gap in the hills, an opening
Shadeless, and shelterless.
Wordsworth. Excursion, b. vii.

SHAFT. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Shape, infra.

He smote the brother of Goliath Jothee, whose spere schaft (hastæ lignum) was as the beme of websteris.
Wic. 1 Par. xx. 5.

SHAKE.

Therfor sche gaderide in the feelde til to euentid: and sche beet with a ȝerde; and schook (excutiens) out the thingis that sche had gaderid.—Wic. Ruth ii. 17.

Her heres (were) shoken fast withall,
As from her hedde they wolden fall.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 363.

SHALE.

But all nis a worth a nutte shale.
Gower. Conf. Am. fo. 66.

A shepherd lad, set on a bancke to shale
The ripen'd nuts pluck'd in a woody vale,
Is frighted thence.
Browne. British Pastorals, b. ii. st. 4.

SHAM. See Quotation from Tatler in v. Bubble, and Locke in v. Wheedle.

The word sham is true cant of the Newmarket breed. It is contracted of ashamed. The native signification is—a town lady of diversion in country maid's cloaths, who, to make good her disguise, pretends to be so 'sham'd: thence it became proverbial, when a maimed lover was laid up, or looked meager, that he had met with a sham.
North. Examen, p. 231.

SHAME.

Shryve thee, and be shamed therof.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3219.

Waxe thei ashamed, and shamely drede (reuereantur) thei togidere: that thanken to myn euelis. Be thei clad with confusioun and shamefast drede (reuerentia), that deedis of malice thenken vp on me.—Wic. Ps. xxxiv. 26.

Be thei confoundid, and shamefastli drede (reuereantur) thei togidere; that sechen my soul, that thei do it awei.
Id. Ib. xxxix. 15.

Nyle thou departe fro a wijs womman, and good, whom thou hast gete in the drede of the Lord, for whi the grace of hir schamfastnesse is aboue gold (gratia verecundiæ).
Id. Eccl. vii. 21.

SHAPE.

For be a man fair or foul,
It falleth noght for to lakke,
The shap ne the shaft
That God shoop hymselve.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7346.

So is the Fader a ful God,
Formeur and shappere.—Id. Ib. v. 11707.

God that thee ȝat, thow hast forsaak, and hast forget the Lord thi shapere. (L. V. Creatour, Creatoris.)
Wic. Deut. xxxii. 18.

Forsothe Joseph was fair in face, and schapli in siȝt. (E. V. seemly, decorus aspectu.)—Id. Gen. xxxix. 6.

Biholde thou in thi schaplynesse (specie), and thi fairnesse; come thou forth with prosperite, and regne thou.
Id. Ps. xliv. 5.

I made things (of earthen ware) round and shapable, which before were filthy things indeed to look on.
Defoe. Robinson Crusoe.

SHARE.

After this was Sangar, the sone of Anath, that smoot of Philistiym six hundred men with a shaar (vomere).
Wic. Judges iii. 31.

Thanne Abner, the speer turned awei, smoot him in the sheer. (L. V. in the schar, in inguine: marg. note, In Ebrew it is, smoot him bihinde the mawe in the fyuethe rib, vndur whiche ben the membris of liyf.)
Id. 2 Kings ii. 23.

SHARP.

For thei sharpiden out (exacuerunt) as a swerd ther tungis.—Wic. Ps. lxiii. 4.

Sharpeth arwes (acuite); fulfilleth arwe cases.
Id. Jer. li. 11.

And he that sharp'd,
And pocketed a prize by fraud obtain'd,
Was mark'd and shunn'd as odious.
Cowper. The Task, b. iii. v. 86.

SHAVE.

And whanne the man hath washide his clothes, he shal shaue (radet) alle the heeris of the bodi.
Wic. Lev. xiv. 8.

And she (Dalila) clepid the barbour, and he shoof (L. V. schauede, rasit) seuen heeris of hym.
Id. Judges xvi. 19.

SHEAF. In the various readings of Wiclif's Bible, Gen. xxxvii. 7, the Lat. Manipulos is rendered sheeues or handfuls.

SHEAR.

My vertue driede as a shord (L. V. tiyl stone, testa), and my tunge cleuede to my chekis.—Wic. Ps. xxi. 16.

If thou maist finden any shore,
Or hole or refte, what ere it were,
Than shalt thou stoupe and lay to ere,
If they within aslepe be.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2660.

SHED. Shydered bones, i. e. shattered. Dyce says—split, splintered. Skelton, v. i. p. 18.

And sche anoyntide hir with beste myrre, and sche schedide the heer of hir heed. (E. V. platte, discriminavit.)
Wic. Judith x. 3.

SHEEN. Spenser writes Shine (for the sake of the rhyme).

So soon as heavens window shewed light,
These warlike champions, all in warlike shine,
Assembled were in field, the challenge to define.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. iv. c. 3, § 3.

SHEEP. Shepen or Sheepen, the sheep-cote. Tyrwhitt says—A stable.

But now it greueth me to remẽbre these diuers in janglings of these shepy people.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

Those (eyes) of an amorous, roguish look derive their title even from the sheep, and we say such an one has a sheep's eye, not so much to denote the innocence, as the simple sliness of the cast.—Spectator, No. 250.

Mutton was formerly observed to be the food rather of men of nice and delicate appetite, than those of strong and robust constitutions. For which reason, even at this day, we use the word sheep-biter as a term of reproach, as we do beef-eater in a respectful and honourable sense.
Tatler, No. 148.

SHELTER. See Wordsworth, in v. Shade, supra.

SHELTRUM, or SCHELTRUM. In A. S. Scyldtruma, scutum validum, testudo. Dr. Jamieson thinks the last word is not trum, powerful, but rather truma, a troop, of shields, or in the form of a shield. Holinshed (quoted by Dr. Jamieson) in his description of the battle of Falkirk, describes the Scotch Shiltrons, to be "Round battailes, in form of a circle." Wiclif renders the Lat. Acies, by this word.

Ther scheltron sone was shad (shed, dispersed) with Inglis that were gode,
Pite of non thei had, bot alle to dede gode.
R. Brunne, p. 305.

And thei dressiden aȝens hem sheltrun (aciem) in the wodi valey.—Wic. Gen. xiv. 8.

SHELVE. See SHELF.

SHEND, v.

Ne destroȝe thou or shend (disperdas) Dauid.
Wic. Ps. lvi. 1.

Lord! Be thou myndeful of the schenschipe (E. V. repref, opprobrii) of thi seruauntis, of many hethen men whiche Y helde togidere in my bosum. Which diden schenschipfuli (L. V. repreueden, exprobaverunt), for thei dispisiden the chaungyng of thi Crist.
Id. Ib. lxxxviii. 52.

Forsothe Saul, wrooth aȝens Jonathan, seide to hym, Thou sone of a womman wilfulli catching a man, whether I knowe not, that thou louest the sone of Ysay (Jesse) into thi confusioun, and into the confusioun of thi shenful (L. V. schendful, ignominiosæ) modir.
Id. 1 Kings xx. 30.

In to Joas also thei enhauntiden schendschipful domys. (L. V. schameful, ignominiosas.)—Id. 2 Par. xxiv. 24.

SHENE. See SHINE.

SHEPEN. See SHEEP.

SHERE. See SHEAR.

SHERT. See SHIRT.

SHET. See SHUT.

SHETE. See SHOOT, SHEET.

SHIDDER. See SHED.

SHIELD. Sheldes were Fr. crowns (écus), so called from having on one side the figure of a Shield.

His bodi is as ȝotun scheldys (scuta fusilia) of bras, and ioyned togidere with scalis ouerleiynge hemself.
Wic. Job xli. 6.

For he was bonde in a recognizance
To payen twenty thousand sheldes.
Chaucer. The Shipmannes Tale, v. 13261.

The Frenchman's battle axe
Came unresisted on the shieldless maid.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. x. v. 555.

SHIFT

And Elde hente good hope,
And hastiliche he shifte hym.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14259.

SHINE. See Piers Plouhman in v. Rout, in Dictionary.

And whanne thei herden the voys of the Lord God goynge in paradis at the shynyng after myd dai (L. V. wynd, ad auram), Adam hid hym and his wijf fro the face of God in the myddel of the tree of paradis.—Wic. Gen. iii. 8.

Sum man was rich, and was clothid in purpur, and biys, ethir whit silk, and he eet ech day schymyngli (splendide).
Id. Luke xvi. 19.

SHINE, adj. See SHEEN.

SHINE, v. Shiners, slang for cash.

O'Don. Has she the shiners, d'ye think?
Foote. The Capuchin, A. iii.

SHIP.

And he came doun to Joppe, and found a ship goynge in to Tharsis: and he gaue shiphyre to hem (naulum).
Wic. Jonah i. 3.

SHIRT.

And whanne he hadde washe hem (Aaron and his sones), he clothide the bishop with a lynnen sherte (subucula linea).
Wic. Lev. viii. 7.

To slen me utterly,
Love hath his firy dart so breaningly
Ystiked thurgh my trewè, careful hert,
That shapen was my deth erst than my sherte.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1568.

SHIVE.

Sche hilidè hem with stobil or shyueres of flex (stipula lini) that was there.—Wic. Joshua ii. 6.

SHOAL.

The boat could not come to land, the water was so shoale.
Hackluyt, v. i. Sir Hugh Willoughbie.

Wee sounded, and found ten fadome; after that we sounded, and found but seven fadome, so shoalder, and shoalder water, and yet could see no land.—Id. Ib.

SHOCK.

And Gedeon, the sone of hym, shockide out, and purgide wheetis in the pressynge place. (L. V. threischide out, excuteret.)—Wic. Judges vi. 11.

These noble repers, as good workmen and worthy their hier, han all draw and bound up in the sheues and made many shockes.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, Prol.

SHOE.

I were noght worthi, . . .
To werien any clothes,
Ne neither sherte ne shoon.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9581.

And the Lord seide, Neije thou (Moises) not hidur, but unbynde thou the schoo (E. V. schoyng, calceamentum) of thi feet, for the place in which thou stondist is hooli lond.
Wic. Ex. iij. 5.

Of shone and botes newe and faire,
Loke at the lest thou have a paire.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2265.

SHOFE. See SHOVE.

SHONDE. See SHEND.

SHOOT.

The whiche wex (Agar's child) and dwellide in wildyrnes, and he was maad a jong sheter. (L. V. archer, sagittarius.)—Wic. Gen. xxi. 20.

Thei benten a bowe, that thei sheet (sagittent) in hid thingus the unwemmed.—Id. Ps. lxiii. 5.

SHORE. See SHEAR.

SHORE, v.. SHORING, s.

(Let) the shores ben well grounded.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

There was also made a shoaring or underpropping act for the benevolence; to make the sums, which any person had agreed to pay, and nevertheless were not brought in, to be leviable by course of law.—Bacon. History of Henry VII.

As when a hunted stag, now well nigh tir'd,
Shor'd by an oak, 'gins with his head to play;
The fearful hounds dare not his horns assay,
But, running round about, with yelping voices bay.
G. Fletcher. Purple Island, c. xi.

SHORT.

But more riȝt it were, to the shorting of euel, to putte mesure to the wodnesse of them bi my silence.
Wic. Prol. to Jer. p. 342.

SHOVE, v.

Sothli of the cumpanye thei withdrowen sum man, Alisaundre, Jewis putting him, or fer showfynge (propellentibus).—Wic. Deeds xix. 33.

SHOULDER.

And bi eche foundement were foure wheelis, and brasun extrees; and bi foure partis weren as litle schuldryngis under the waischyng vessel. (E. V. shuldres, humeruli; that is, schorte pileris to susteyne the waschyng vessel, mar. n.)—Wic. 3 Kings vii. 30.

SHOW.

And he made a brasun lauatorye, with his foot (basi suâ), of the shewers of wymmen (L. V. myrrours, de speculis mulierum), the whiche wacchiden in the porche of the tabernacle.—Wic. Ex. xxxviii. 8.

SHREAD, v.

And he fillide his mentil, and he turnede aȝen, and schredde (E. V. hewide togydre, concidit) in to the pot of potage.—Wic. 4 Kings iv. 39.

Flouris apperiden in oure lond, the tyme of schridyng (L. V. kutting, putationis) is comun.
Id. Song of Solomon, ii. 12.

I remembre the delectacyons and pleasirs that old age may take in consideryng and knowyng the nature of the vynes—the mener of the settynges and of the shredynges and cuttyngis of hit in season.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, c. 8, c. 2.

SHREW.

Forsothe the erthe is corupt before God, and is fulfillid with schrewidnes. (L. V. wickidness, iniquitate.)
Wic. Gen. vi. 11.

Forsothe if (ȝe han do) schrewidli (L. V. weiwardli, perverse), fier goo out of hym, and waast the dwellers of Sichem.—Id. Judges ix. 20.

SHRIGHT. See SHRIEK.

With broken voice, all horse for shright, Creseide
To Troilus these ilkè wordes seide.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 1147.

SHRIVE.

And now ȝueth shrifte (L. V. confessioun, confessionem), and gret doing to the Lord God of our fadris.
Wic. 3 Esd. ix. 8.

SHUFFLE, v. See the Quotation from Tatler in v. Bubble, supra, and compare with those in Dictionary from Daniels, Bp. Taylor, and Waterland.

SHUT. See Caxton in v. Push, supra.

(Thei shulden) sheten her heved in the stre,
To sharpen her wittes.
Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 1542.

And she for sorwe as domb stant as a tree;
So was hire herte shette in hire distresse,
Whan she remembered his unkindenesse.
Chaucer. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5476.

SICAMORE.

And he ȝaf the multitude of cedris as sicomoris (E. V. mulberie trees, sicomoros) that growen in feeldy places.
Wic. 3 Kings x. 27.

SICK.

An Egipcien child, I am, and the seruaunt of an Amalekite man; forsothe my lord laft me, for I bigan to sikynyn the thridde dai hens. (L. V. to be sik, ægrotare.)
Wic. 1 Kings xxx. 13.

SICKLE. See Piers Plouhman in v. Reap, supra.

SIDE.

And buriowne thei shuln among erbes, as withies or salewis, blayde the syde flowende watris (præter fluentes).
Wic. Is. xliv. 4.

They sidle to the goal with awkward pace.
Cowper. Progress of Errour.

SIEGE.

Seith to me, who ben thise puple, that the hillis segen. (L. V. bisegith the hilli places, obsidet.)—Wic. Judith v. 3.

Forthi—that no thing other he haue—in the segyng (L. V. biseging, obsidione) and scaarsenes, that thin enemyes han wastid thee with ynne alle thi ȝatis.
Id. Deut. xxviii. 55.

And there wente out of hem a root of synne, Antiochus, the noble, the sone of Antiochi kyng, that was at Rome in seegyng or plegge (ob-ses).—Id. 1 Mac. i. 11.

The Romayns douted greatly to lese the pope's siege.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 720.

SIGH. Written Sithe or Sythe by Spenser and others.

Er I shul ete, I sijhe (suspiro), and as of flowende water, so my roring.—Wic. Job iii. 24.

Thy Muse . . . .
(Hath) made us all so blessed and so blythe,
Whiles thou wast hence, all dead in dole did lie;
The woods were heard to waile full many a sythe,
And all their birds with silence to complaine.
Spenser. Colin Clout, v. 23.

SIGHT.

The unseene pryueties of God (arne) made to us sightful and knowynge (en) in our contemplacion and understandyng.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, Prol.

The sightful manna in desert to children of Israel was spirituell meate.—Id. Ib. b. iii. prope finem.

SIGIL.

I chose the Leaf, she smiled with sober chear,
And wish'd me fair adventure for the year—
And gave me charms and sigils for defence,
Against ill tongues that scandal innocence.
Dryden. Flower and Leaf.

SIGN.

Thanne sat Sleuthe up,
And seyned hym swithe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3386.

For thou ȝ to othere I am not Apostle, but netheless to ȝou I am; forwhy ȝe ben the sygnacle or litil signe (signaculum) of myn apostilhed in the Lord.—Wic. 1 Cor. ix. 2.

It was usual for persons who could not write, to make the sign of the cross in confirmation of a charter. Several of these remain, where kings and persons of great eminence affix signum crucis manu propria pro ignoratione literarum. From this is derived the phrase of signing instead of subscribing a paper.—Robertson. Charles V. v. i. note x.

SIKE. See SICK, SIGH.

SILE.

A simnel of bread, and a cake of syled bread.
Exod. xxix. Bible, 1549.

And fysshe eke with fynnes silid fayre.
Lyfe of our Ladye. W. Caxton, d. 2, col. 1.

SILENT.

Those deserts of immeasurable sand,
Where the shrill chirp of the green lizard's love
Broke on the sultry silentness alone,
Now teem with countless rills and shady woods.
Shelley. Queen Mab, s. 8.

SILK.

Fayre was this yonge wif; and therwithal
As any wesel hire body gent and smal,
A seint she wered, barred all of silk.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3235.

SILLY. Seliness, or worldly prosperity, is opposed to Unseliness, or worldly adversity, near the end of the first book of the Test. of Love.

And as I wente by the way
Wepynge for sorowe,
I seigh a sely man me by.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 837.

Sely, or blessid (felix), that had not sorewi slouthe of his inwit, and falleth not awei fro his hope.
Wic. Ecclus. xiv. 2.

And if thou laudest and joyest any wight, for he is stuffed with such manner richesse, thou art in that beleeue begyled, for thou wenest thilk joy to be selinesse, or els ease, and he that hath lost such happes to be unselie.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i. near the end.

For now, at erst, shallen ye lere
So sely and dredeful a vysion.
Id. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 5.

SILVER.

At the same tyme all vyneyardes (though there be a thousande vynes in one, and were solde for a thousande syluerlynges) shalbe turned to breares or stones.
Isaiah vii. 23. Bible, 1549.

SIMPLE.

Then shaltow se sobretee
And sympletee of speche.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5942.

I know most of the plants of my country and of those about me; yet methinks I do not know so many as when I did but know a hundred, and had scarcely simpled beyond Cheapside.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § viii.

It is a godly command that we walk in godly simplicity, sine plicis: though the serpent can shrink up in his folds, and appear what he is not, yet it doth not become the saints to shuffle or juggle with God.
Gurnall. Christian Armour. Ed. 1837.

SIMULATE.

But marke wel, that hethene men hadden symylacris of vi. kyndis, that is, of cley, of tree, of bras, of stoon, of syluer, and of gold.—Wic. Bible. Prol. p. 31.

He n'is no full gode champion
That dredeth soche smilacion.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7222.

SIN.

And lo! a womman synneresse (peccatrix) that was in the citee, as sche knewe that Jhesu hadde sete at the mete in the hous of the Pharisee, brouȝte an alabastre boxe of ounement.—Wic. Luke vii. 37.

SIN. SINCE.

(Alfred) ofte sythe (times) aboue was, and bynethe ofte mo.—Robert of Gloucester, p. 264.

And suththe (seen that) he gef hem large gyftes, and let hym wende.—Id. p. 266.

Parsons and parishe preestes
Pleyned hem to the bisshope,
That hire parisshes weren povere,
Sith the pestilence time.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 168.

For I wol serve it myself,
And sithenes wol I wende
To pilgrimage, as Palmeres doon,
Pardon for to haue.—Id. Ib. v. 3922.

And Jacob ȝede bifore, and worschipide lowli to erthe seuen*sithis* (septies) til his brothir neiȝede.
Wic. Gen. xxxiii. 3.

SINCERE.

Having no taste of its own, it water becomes the sincere vehicle of every other.— aley. Natural Theology, c. xxi.

Sincerely hope, though a common, is an incorrect expression. Sincerity belongs to the expression of feelings, not to the feelings themselves. (?)
Mackintosh. Life. To Rich, Sept. 1808.

SINEW.

The which whann he sawȝ that he myȝte not ouercome hym, he towchide the synwe of his hip (nervum femoris) and anoon it were drye.—Wic. Gen. xxxii. 25.

SING.

Of foure scoore ȝeere I am to dai; whether my wittis thriven to deme swote or bittir, or meet and drynk may delite thi seruaunt, or I may here forthermore the vois of men syngers, and of wymmen syngers. (L. V. of syngeris ether of syngsters, cantorum atque cantatricum.)—Wic. 2 Kings xix. 35. In 2 Par. xxxv. 25, syngeresses.

Bifore the cok synge twies, (cantet) thries thou schalt denye me. And anon eftsones the cok song. (L. V. crew, cantavit.)—Id. Mark xiv. 72.

Byrdes . . . .
That songen through her mery throtes.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 507.

The birds' sweet notes, to sonnet out their joys.
G. Fletcher. Christ's Triumph on Earth.

SINGE. Add—after l. 5.

So also in Livy—"Singed with cold." "Singed with nipping frost." Torrida, frigore, gelu, l. 21. cc. 32. 40. See in v. Frore, Quotation from Milton.

For the eeris of corn weren sengid in fier, and the cornes, that filliden a gomor, weren schakun out, and weren offride so.—Wic. Lev. xxiii. 11, marg. note.

SINGLE.

And whenne he was singuler, or by hym silf (singularis), the twelue, that weren with hym, axiden hym for to expowne the parable.—Wic. Mark iv. 10.

For thou, Lord, singulerli (singulariter) in hope hast togidere set me.—Id. Psalm iv. 10.

SINK.

The dede body . . . .
Sank til erthe.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12208.

Thei sonken into helle,
The citees echone.—Id. Ib. v. 9074.

In grete mischefe and sorow sonken
Ben hertes that of love arne dronken.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5116.

SIPHER, i. e. Cipher, qv.

SIR. The title of Sire was so commonly given to priests, that a Sir John became a nickname for one.

And (Loth) seide, I prey ȝou, syres (L. V. my lordis, domini), bowith down into the hows of ȝoure child and dwellith there.—Wic. Gen. xix. 2.

SISOUR. See Piers Plouhman in v. Summon, infra.

SIT.

Go and wasshe,
Thow shalt sitte soone.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8088.

(Thou) in semblaunce of a serpent
Sete (sattest) upon the appul tree.—Id. Ib. 12658.

Pointes and sleves be wel sittande
Ful right and streight upon the hande.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2263.

And eke upon these stedes gret and white,
Ther saten folk.—Id. The Knightes Tale, v. 2895.

SITHE, or SYTHE, i. e. To sigh. See Spenser in v. Sigh, supra.

SITHE, s.

The greatest clerkes had with their sharp sithes of conning mowen and made great rekes and noble, full of all plenties to feed me and many another.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, Prol.

SIZE, v. See Piers Plouhman in v. Summon.

SIZINGS, or little suppers. Coleridge, Biog. Lit. v. ii. p. 335.

SKAFFAUT, SKAFFOLD. See SCAFFOLD.

SKATE, v. "Dec. 1, 1662. Over the park, where I first in my life, it being a great frost, did see people sliding with their skaits, which is a very pretty art."—Pepys. Diary. And Evelyn, eodem temp. Also Swift to Stella, Jan. 31, 1710-1711, writes—Skates, if you know what they are.

SKIER, v. A. S. Scirian, Scearan, to shear, to clear away, purify, excuse. See Skinner.

And thus full oft herself she skiereth,
And is all ware of Had I wist.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. ii. fo. 30.

SKILL.

And why that oon theef on the cros,
Creaunt hym yald,
Rather than that oother theef—
Though thou woldest appose,
Alle the clerkes under Crist,
Ne kouthe the skile assoille.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7861.

Nay; sothli we han schewid by skile (causati sumus), Jewis and Grekis alle for to ben vndir synne.
Wic. Rom. iii. 9.

Thei diden as he seide, and thei spaken togidere, Skilfuli we suffren (E. V. thurȝ desert, meriti sumus) these thingis, for we synneden aȝens our brother.—Id. Gen. xlii. 21.

Diuers folke diuersly they demed
As many heddes, as many wittes there been;
They murmure, as doeth a swarme of been,
And maden skilles after her fantasies,
Rehersing of the old poetries.
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10519.

SKIRT, s.

Or wily Cyppus, that can winke and snort
While his wife dallies on Mæcenas' skort.
Bp. Hall. Sat. b. iv. sat. 1.

SKIT.

Syr Skyrȝalyard, ye were so skyt,
Your wyll then ran before your wyt.
Skelton against the Scottes, v. 101.

Robin. So skittish and shy, Mrs. Pert!
Foote. The Bankrupt, A. i.

SKLERE. Mr. Tyrwhitt says, To cover. To sklere sheep is, perhaps, to protect, to take care of. See Skinner and Wachter, in v. Schleier.

Quod a lady in a white skleire.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, in Skin. fo. 32, p. 1.

Christes Apostles were nere so bolde,
No such lordships to hem embrace,
But sklere her shepe, and kepe hir folde.
Chaucer. Plowman's Tale, v. 2647.

With faire honied words heretikes and misse-meaning people skleren and wimplen their errours.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

SKRIP. See SCRIP.

SKY.

These golden palaces, these gorgeous halls,
With furniture superfluously fair;
Those stately courts, those sky-encountering walls,
Evanish like the vapours of the air.
Sterlinge. Darius, 1603.

SLAB.

Our frost is broken since yesterday, and it is very slabbery.—Swift to Stella. Dec. 31, 1711.

SLACK.

Forsothe these that weren wyth ynne, tristiden to the stablenesse of wallis, and in apparel of foodis, and diden slacliere. (E. V. slowlicher, remissius.)
Wic. 2 Mac. xii. 14.

SLADE.

Forsothe Semey ȝede bi the slade of the hil (E. V. cop, per jugum) bi the side aȝens hym.
Wic. 2 Kings xvi. 13.

SLAKE.

Thei (lions) slaken (laxant) hir neckes from hir chaines unbound.—Chaucer. Boecius, Met. 2.

Mem. Either he slackes the matter, or betrays his master.
Lilly. Mother Bombie, act ii. sc. 2.

Slakeless thirst of change.—Byron. P. of Dante, c. i.

SLANDER.

And also bid hym, how that he
Bring eke his other clarioun,
That hight Sclaunder in every toune,
With whiche he wont is to diffame
Hem that me list, and doe hem shame.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 490.

SLANG, s. Applied to the wearers of irons slung on their legs, sc. of thieves; and hence to their language. See Notes and Queries.

Slangs are the greaves with which the legs of convicts are fettered, having acquired that name from the manner in which they were worn, as they required a sling of string to keep them off the ground. The irons were the slangs; and the slang-wearers' language was of courses langous (as partaking much if not wholly of the slang).—Sportsman's Slang, a New Dictionary and Varieties of Life. By John Bee. Preface, p. 5.

SLASH. In Wiclif's Bible, 3 Kings v. 18, the Lat. dolare, to cut, to hew, is rendered to ouerscorch in E. V. and in var. r. to slasch.

SLAT, v. To slight, to beat.

Men. How did you kill him?
Malc. Slatted his brains out, then sowsed him in the briny sea.—Marston. Malecontent, act iv. sc. 3.

SLATTER.

The sallow skin is for the swarthy put,
And love can make a slattern of a slut.—Dryden.

SLAY. See Piers Plouhman in v. Slight.

His ȝen shul seen his slaȝter. (L. V. sleyng, interfectionem.)—Wic. Job xxi. 20.

Ye maie doe with me what ye will,
Or save or spill, and also slo (slay):
Fro you in no wise may I go.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1953.

SLE. See SLAY.

SLEAVE. Mr. Singer thinks that sleave silk is unwrought, also called floss silk; and that sleave is the coarse ravelled part separated by passing through the slaie or reed comb of the weaver's loom; and hence called sleaved or sleided silk. But see SLEY, in the Dictionary. The office of which appears to be to beat, to drive, press together. To this verb he refers the adj. Sleeveless. But see SLEEVE, infra.

SLED.

The puple forsothe that was in it he ladde out, and maad sledis (trahas) and prowd iron charis to gon ouer.
Wic. 1 Par. xx. 3.

SLEEK.

Slenthe and sleep
Sliken his sides.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1080.

SLEEP.

Of men oblitious, he shall make you of good remembraunce; of men slowe witted, easie to be taught; of sleapish sluggardes, vigilant and watchful.
Udal. John c. xiv.

The Carthaginian generals, and those also of Affrick, taking full benefit of this their good fortune, slept not their business, nor made delay.—Holland. Livius, p. 574.

SLEEVE. Sleeveless errand, "without cover, or pretence;" a pretenceless errand: consequently, a successless, profitless, useless errand.

Sleeveless words (Chaucer), rhymes; (Bp. Hall) fruitless, empty, vain; or, as Dr. Johnson explains, without reasonableness, propriety, solidity. Erminia (in Fairefax) had invented sleeveless errands, to send her maidens away, that she might put on the armour of Clorinda "unseene."

His clothes were strange though coarse, and black though bare;
Sleeveless his jerkin was, and it had been
Velvet; but 'twas now (so much ground was seen)
Become tufftaffaty; and our children shall
See it plain rash awhile, then naught at all.
Donne. Sat. iv.

SLIDE, v.

Be maad the weie of hem derenessis, and slideri (L. V. slydernesse, lubricans), and the angel of the Lord pursuende hem.—Wic. Ps. xxxiv. 6.

A slider (var. r. sliper, lubricum) mouth worchith fallyngis.—Id. Prov. xxvi. 28.

But that science is so fer us beforne,
We mowen not (although we han it sworne)
It overtake; it slit (slideth) away so fast.
Chaucer. Chan. Yem. Prol. v. 16150.

SLING. See SLANG (Language).

And he putte (Dauid) his hoond into the scrip, and took a stoon, and leyde in the slynge (in funda) and beryng it about, he smoot hym in the foreheed.
Wic. 1 Kings xvii. 49.

And David put his hand in his bag, and took thence a stone, and slang it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead.
Id. 1 Sam. xvii. 49.

Who hath ben wel ibete
To daie with swerdès and with slongè stones.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 941.

SLIP.

Half. I shall goe for silver though when you shall bee nailed up for slips.—Lilly. Mother Bombie, act ii. sc. 1.

SLO. See SLAY.

SLOE.

Saye thou, vndir what tree thou sawȝ hem, speekynge to hemself? Whiche saith, Vndir a sloo tree. (L. V. haw, schino.)—Wic. Dan. xiii. 54.

SLOT, v. Slit.

SLOTH.

To whom seith Josue, How long welewen ȝe with slewth (marcetis ignavia).—Wic. Jos. xviii. 3.

SLOUGH.

A sowe is waschun in the walewinge, or slowe of cley, or fen (volutabro luti).—Wic. 2 Pet. ii. 22.

SLOW. See Wiclif, in v. Slack, supra.

The motion of this serpent is slow (the blind or slow-worm); from which, and the smallness of the eyes, are derived the names.
Goldsmith. Animated Nature, Pt. v. ch. 3.

SLUDGE. Also written Slush, or Slosh. And see SLOUGH.

SLUMBER.

And as I lay and lenede,
And loked on the waters,
I slombred into a slepyng.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 19.

Past ages crowd on thee, but each one remembers:
And the future is dark, and the present is spread
Like a pillow of thorns for thy slumberless head.
Shelley. Prometheus, act i. sc. 1.

SMACK.

Is noon so hungry heund,
In Hertford shire
Dorst lap of that levynges,
So un-lovely thei smaughte.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3200.

SMARAGD.

In the makyng of golde is a signe of smaragde (smaragdi).
Wic. Eccl. xxxii. 8.

SMART.

For povere men may have no power
To pleyne hem, though thei smart.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1694.

SMITE.

Battailles shul none be,
Ne no man bere wepene;
But what smyth than any smytheth
Be smyte therwith to deth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2017.

Watris therlen out (excavant) stones, and of smytyng (L. V. by waischyng awey, alluvione) of watris the erthe litle mele is wastid.—Wic. Job xiv. 19.

And Y suffre the to make smyting or printe (percussaram) of thin own money in thi regioun.
Id. 1 Mac. xv. 6.

SMITH. See Piers Plouhman in v. Smite, supra.

Sella forsothe gat Tubalcaym, that was an hammer smyth (L. V. hàmer betere, malleator) and a smyth (faber) into alle werkis of bras and of yrun (var. r. smyter).
Wic. Gen. iv. 22.

SMOAK.

Pap. Besides, sir, the people in this town are more smoaky and suspicious.—Foote. The Lyar, A. i.

SMOCK. Wiclif, Bible, Is. iii. 22, schetis or smockis, linteamina.

SMOOTH.

Thou knowist that Esau my brothir is an heeri man, and Y am smethe. (E. V. soft, lenis.)
Wic. Gen. xxvii. 11.

And he hilide the cherubyns with gold, and alle the wallis of the temple bi cumpas; and grauyd with dyuerse grauyngis and smethnesse. (E. V. turnynge, torno.)
Id. 3 Kings vi. 28.

And al the hows withynne was clothid with cedre, and hadde hire smethenessis (E. V. turnours, tornaturas), and hise ioynyngis maad suteli.—Id. Ib. vi. 18.

SMOULDER. See Piers Plouhman in v. Blear, supra.

SNAILS, in the Quotation from Beaumont and Fletcher, is a corruption of a common oath—By God's nails, 'd'snails, 'snails.

SNAP. (In Skelton) To trip, to stumble; see Dyce, and the Quotation from Wiclif; i. e. to catch against, and hence, to trip, &c.

Thanne thou schalt go tristili in thi weie: and thi foot schal not snapere. (L. V. offend, impinget.)
Wic. Prov. iii. 23.

Acurate in speciall
To snappar and to fall
Into this open cryme.
Skelton. Ware the Hauke, v. 142.

SNEB.

Forsothe if thi brother shal synne in thee, go thou and reprove hym, or snybbe (corripe) bitwixe thee and hym aloone.—Wic. Mat. xviii. 15.

Why wariede I (detestatus sum) discipline, and to snybbyngis (L. V. blamyngis, increpationibus) assentede not myn herte?—Id. Prov. v. 12; also vi. 23.

SNITE, v.

Thei shulen couer the candlestik with the lanterns, and her toonges, and snyters. (L. V. snytels, emunctoriis.)
Wic. Num. iv. 9.

SNITE, s.

And the snyte (L. V. capret, ibis) and the crowe dwelle shul therein.—Wic. Is. xxxiv. 11.

SNITE, v. Snot.

And he made seuene lanternes with her snytyng tongis. (E. V. candelquenchers, emunctoria.)
Wic. Ex. xxxvii. 23.

Also tongis to do out the snottis (candelquenchers, emunctoria), and where tho thingis that ben snottid out (L. V. where the snoffes ben quenchid, quæ emuncta sunt, extinguuntur) be maad of cleenest gold.—Id. Ib. xxv. 38.

SNOT. See SNITE.

SNOW.

What maner snoȝ in somer, and reyn in rep time; so unsemende is to the fool—glorie.—Wic. Prov. xxvi. 1.

SNUB.

Beware we then euer of discontente, and snubbe it betimes, least it over throwe us, as it hath done manie. Such snubs as these are little clouds.—Comfortable Notes on Genesis, by Gervase Babington, Bp. of Exon, 1596. From Notes and Queries, March 11, 1854.

SNUB, v. Snub-nose, a nose checked or stopped in its growth.

SO.

Our manciple, I hope, he wol be ded;
Swa workes, ay, the wanges in his hed.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4026.

SOB.

(He) swouned and sobbed,
And siked full ofte.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9573.

Thou herdist my vois; turne thou not awei thin eere fro my sobbing and cries (var. r. ȝoxing, singultu).
Wic. Jer. Lam. iii. 56.

SOCHON. See SCUTCHEON.

SOCIABLE. In Wiclif's Bible, 1 Kings xiv. 24, the Lat. Sociati sunt is in the text—"Thei weren felouschiped," and in var. r. "socied."

SOFT, v.

In a somer seson
When softe was the sonne!
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1.

Softid (molliti sunt) ben the woordis of hym vp on oile: and thei ben speris.—Wic. Ps. liv. 2.

That thou be taken awey fro an alien womman, and fro a straunge, that softith (L. V. makith soft, mollit) her woordis.—Id. Prov. ii. 16.

And the soule of hym (Sichem) was glewid with hir, and hir sory (tristem) he swagide with softnessis. (L. V. flateringis, blanditiis.)—Id. Gen. xxxiv. 3.

SOGET. See SUBJECT.

SOIL. See Chaucer in v. Shere, supra.

SOIL, i. e. Assoile.

To whom spak Sampson: Y shal purpose to ȝow a dowtous word, the whiche if ȝe soylen (solveritis) to me with ynne seuen daies, Y shal, &c.—Wic. Judg. xiv. 11.

Leede thou me in bifor the siȝt of the Kyng, and Y schal telle the soilyng (E. V. solution, solutionem) or undirstondyng.—Id. Dan. ii. 24.

SOIL, or SOUL, v. Fr. Saouller; to glut, clog, satiate. Cotgrave. It. Satollare, satiare. Ray says, that in the North, Soul is anything eaten with bread.

To soule, is to feed (e. g. a horse. Shakespeare) till satisfied. See to frank and to stall.

I have, sweet wench, a peece of cheese

As good as tooth may chaw,
And bread and wildings souling well.
Warner. Albion's England, b. iv. c. 20.

Lear. The fitchew, nor the soyled horse goes not too't with a more riotous appetite.
Shakespeare. King Lear, act iv. sc. 6, fo. 303².

SOIL, v. To take soil. Fr. Se souiller (of a swine); to take soil, or wallow in the mire. Cotgrave. Also—to take to the water. Applied by Spenser to the animal itself. B. iv. c. iii. § 16.

But being then unbost, the noble, stately deer,
When he hath gotten ground (the kennel cast arrear)
Doth beat the brooks and ponds for sweet refreshing soil.
Drayton. Polyolbion, st. 13.

Fida went down the dale to seeke the hinde;
And found her taking soyle within a floud.
Browne. British Pastorals, b. i. st. 4.

(The) chased hinde her course doth bend,
To seeke by soile to find some ease or good,
Whether from craggy rocke the spring descend,
Or softly glide within the shadie wood.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. vi. st. 109.

SOIL, v. To dirt.

His syre a soutere,
Y-suled in grees.—Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 1500.

SOKING. SOUKE. See SUCK.

SOLACE.

There (they) discovered some large springs. This proved their solacement and relief.—Gordon. Tacit. Hist. b. i.

SOLD, s. In Wiclif, Stipendium, Merces, is rendered—soudis.

SOLDIER.

The heroical vein of mankind runs much in the soldiery and courageous part of the world, and in that form we oftenest find men above men.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. § 36.

SOLE. See SULLEN, and Wiclif, in v. Solitary, infra.

He sit . . . . .
. . . . . by hymself as a soleyn.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7834.

SOLE, s.

His sole shal ben holde with agrene. (L. V. his foot, with a snare, planta.)—Wic. Job xviii. 9.

SOLERT.

Let them plead their own learning and able parts, without traducing the gifts of them that are excellently seen in theological cases of conscience, and singularly rare in natural solertiousnees.—Bp. Hacket. Life of Lord Keeper Williams. Campbell, v. ii. p. 485.

SOLICIT.

Move circumspectly, not meticulously, and rather carefully solicitous, than anxiously solicitudinous.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. i. § 33.

SOLID. SOLIDARITY. Fr. Solidarité. Kossuth, in his speeches, while in this country in the year 1851, frequently used this word, and Lord Malmsbury, when Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in his speech in the House of Lords, on Monday, Dec. 6, 1852, announcing the recognition of Louis Napoleon, as Emperor of France, employed it (probably adopting it from a French despatch). Mr. Trench explains it to signify—"A fellowship in gain and loss, in honour and dishonour, in victory and defeat; and being, so to speak, all in the same bottom." He conceives it to be so convenient a word that we must adopt it as the Germans have, and probably other countries, already done.

SOLILOQUY. The Lat. Soliloquium, St. Augustine informs us, was invented by himself.—Trench. On Study of Words, lec. 4.

SOLITARY. See Quotation from Job, in v. Sullen, infra.

Be that nyȝt solitarie (L. V. soleyn, solitaria), and not preise wrthi.—Wic. Job iii. 7.

SOLLAR; Written Solers, is a word of not uncommon occurrence in Wiclif's Bible, from Lat. Solarium, or more frequently Cœnaculum.

Thou shalt make soleris (E. V. sowping places, cœnacula), and placis of thre chaumbris in the schip (the ark).
Wic. Gen. vi. 16.

SOLSTICE.

The Jews, that can believe the supernatural solstice of the sun in the days of Joshua, have yet the impudence to deny the eclipse, which every pagan confessed at his (Christ's) death.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 29.

SOLVE.

Who such oon as the wise is? and who knej the solucioun (var. r. soilyng, solutionem) of the wrd.
Wic. Eccles. vii. 30.

SOME. In Wiclif, Bible, Sum man, is Quidam, a certain man; Summen, is some men.

Ther was sum prest (sacerdos quidam), Zacharie by name.—Wic. Luke i. 5.

And he answeride, Tweye dettouris weren to sum leener, ethir usurer (cuidam fœneratori).—Id. Ib. vii. 41.

Sumdel (L. V. a litil, aliquantulum) of tyme passide, and thei weren holdun in kepyng.—Id. Ib. xl. 4.

It felle forsothe a day, that Joseph shulde goo into the hows, and sumwhat (quippiam) of werk he shulde do with outen witnessis.—Id. Gen. xxxix. 11.

SOMME. See SUM.

SOMMER. See SUMMER.

SOMPNOUR. See SUMMON.

SON.

Whi schal Y (Rebecca) be maad sonèles (orbabor) of euer eithir sone in o dai?—Wic. Gen. xxvii. 45.

To liven in delit was euer his wone,
For he was Epicurus owen sone.
Chaucer. Frankeleine's Prologue, v. 338.

SON. See SUN.

SONDE. See SEND and SUND.

SOON. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Release, supra.

SOOTE.

Fortune hath made
The sote of al thine hertes eest
Languishe, and eke in pointe to brest.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 927.

They saw how from the crags and clifts below,
His (a hill's) proud and stately pleasant top grew out,
And how his sides were clad with frost and snow,
The height was greene with herbes, and flowrets soute.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xv. st. 46.

SOOTH. See SOUTHLY, infra.

For thi soule or lijf, be thou not confoundid to seyn soth. (L. V. treuthe, verum.)—Wic. Ecc. iv. 24.

Be thou debonere to here the wrd of God that thou vnderstonde, and with wysdam thou schalt bring forth a soth answere. (L. V. trewe, verum.)—Id. Ib. v. 15.

Wherfor if ze doon mercy and sothenes (L. V. treuthe, veritatem) with my Lord, shewith to me.
Id. Gen. xxiv. 49.

For it is an old sothsawe, to the auarouse man as wel lackith (is wanting) the good that he hath, as that he hath not.—Id. Bible. Pref. to Ep. p. 75.

SOP.

For oon Piers the Plowman
Hath impugned us alle,
And set alle sciences at a sope,
Save love one (alone).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8287.

SOPH.

This craft of scripturys . . . . the sofistre ful of wordis, this alle presumen to teche or (ere) they lernen.
Wic. Bible. Pref. to Ep. p. 67.

He who sofistically spekith (L. V. bi soffym, sophistice) is hateful.—Id. Ecc. xxxvii. 23.

I trow ye studie abouten some sophime.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Prologue, v. 7881.

Ayenst his wysedom aduayle none allegaciõs of aduocates, ne sophym of philosophres.
The Golden Legend, fo. 3, c. 4.

SOPITE, v.

His friends gave out that he died of hard drinking, but certainly there was treason in the case, the infamy of which was sopited by his successors (successorum potentia oppressit).—Turnbull. Justinian, b. xii. c. 13.

As for dementation, sopition of reason, and the diviner particle from drink—Christian morality and the doctrine of Christ will not allow it.
Browne. Vulgar Errours, b. v. c. 21.

SORE, adj.

And loo! the thridde day, whenne the sorwe (L. V. sorewe, dolor) of the woundis is moost greuous. . . .
Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 25.

And I shal beset aboute Ariel, and it shal be dreri and sorewy. (L. V. sorouful, mœrens.)—Id. Is. xxix. 2.

I beholde the sori hertid (L. V. coward, vecordem) ȝunge man, that passeth thurȝ the stretis, biside the corner.
Id. Prov. vii. 7.

Forsothe sum sorewfulness (mœstitia) was shed about to man, and hydousnesse of body, by whiche the sorewe of herte (dolor cordis) was maad knowen to men byholdynge.
Id. 2 Mac. iii. 17.

Meddle we false wordes with sote, and sote with false, trewly this is the sorrinesse of fained loue.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

SORE, s.

Of fawnes, sowers, bucks, does,
Was ful the wodde.—Chaucer. The Duchesse, v. 429.

SORROW. See SORE, supra, and in Dictionary.

SORT. Sort or soort occurs in Wiclif several times, from the Lat. Sors. In Luke, from Vicis. De vice abiæ, of the sorte of abiæ, i. 5. In ordine Vicis, in the ordre of his sort. Ib. v. 8.

Will you abyde amonge such a sort of traytors, who have so falsely broken their othe and promise to the kynge of England.—Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 42.

A general fame and sclaunder ran upon her, that all the infirmities the King had, which no physician could cure, came all by her sortes and artes, i. e. sorceries or casting of lots.—Id. v. ii. p. 651.

How a sort of fugitives, who had quitted without stroke thir own countrey, should so soon win another, appears not; unless joyn'd to som part of thir own settl'd there before (Britans in Armorica).—Milton. History of England, b. iii.

Tacitus saith: Livia sorted well with the arts of her husband, and dissimulation of her sonne (bene composita).
Bacon. Essays. Of Simulation.

SOTE. See SWEET. Sote, soote, common in the var. r. of the Wiclif Bible. Also Sootnes.

SOTEL. See SUBTLE.

SOTH. See SOOTH.

SOUDAN. See SOLDAN.

SOUDE. See SOLD, s.

SOUL.

Thou shalt be cursid amonge alle the soule hauers (L. V. liuing thingis, animantes) and beestis of the erthe.
Wic. Gen. iii. 14.

Next comes a fee at the death of a party, which was commonly called soul-shot; and paid (before the dead body was buried) unto that Church where the dead party's dwelling was.—N. Bacon. Hist. Treatise, c. xi. p. 32.

Earth, air, and seas, through empty space would roll,
And Heav'n would fly before the driving soul.
Dryden. Virgil. Æn. b. i. v. 89.

There on the breezy summit, spreading fair,
For many a league . . . . there let me draw
Ethereal soul, there drink reviving gales.
Thomson. Summer, v. 774.

The soulish nature, take it right,
As much a serpent, if without God's light,
As Lucifer.—Byrom. From Jacob Behmer.

SOULDER.

O Martyr souded to virginitee.
Chaucer. The Prioresse Tale, v. 13509.

SOUND, v. Sonde in Chaucer, The sounding line. Tyrwhitt.

Forth goeth the ship—out goeth the sond.
Chaucer. Dreame, v. 1149.

SOUND, s.

And the sown (sonitus) of the trompe litil melȝ sponge into more, and lenger was strecchid (tendebatur).
Wic. Ex. xix. 19.

And the sowning of a clarioun (E. V. cry, clangor) maad noise ful greetli.—Id. Ib. xix. 16.

Sowne is not but eyre y-broken,
And euery speche that is spoken,
Loud or prive, foule or faire,
In his substaunce is but eyre.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 176.

SOUND, adj.

Now certes ferther wol I never founde (try)
None other helpe my sores for to sounde (heal).
Chaucer. Ann. and Arc. v. 242.

SOUPLE. See SUPPLE.

SOUR.

Thanne the puple tok sprengid meel, or it were sowrid (fermentaretur), and bynding it in chaff putte vpon her shuldres.—Wic. Ex. xii. 34.

The citee restide a litil in mengyng to gydre of soure dowe, til it were sourdowid all (a commistione fermenti, donec fermentaretur totum).—Id. Hoseu vii. 4, et aliter.

And from the smokes sowre
Of Proserpina's bowre.—Skelton. P. Sparrow, v. 82.

SOURDE, v.

There sprange and sourded in rome the same nyght a wel or a fountayne.—The Golden Legend, fo. 5, c. 1.

SOUSE.

Ye slufferd (slobbered) up sowse.—Skelton, v. i. p. 121.

SOUTHLY. See SOOTHE. Words of sooth; soothing words. Tyrwhitt, softly.

And southely than I spake.
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 140.

Unto a bed full soberly,
So as I mighten full southly
Pace after other.—Id. Dreame, v. 1326.

SOW. See SWINE, and see PIG (of lead).

A sow of lead is swifter.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Tamer Tamed, act iv. sc. 1.

SOW, v. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Reap, supra.

Why shuld I sowen draf out of my fist,
Whan I may sowen whete if that me list.
Chaucer. Persones Prologue, v. 17346.

SOWIL (of Potage). See SEW, supra. Lentis edulio. Gen. xxv. 34.

SOWINS, or SEWINS. Common in the North. Grose. Brocket. Sc. Sowens. Flummery made of the dust of oatmeal remaining among the seeds, steeped and soured. Jamieson. A. S. Seawe; gluten, a clammy matter.

Der. But see, where Norah with the sowins comes.
Swift. Pastoral Dialogue.

SOYNED, or SOIGNED. Skinner has the s. Soigne, from Fr. Soigner, curare; which he deduces from the Lat. Somniare. And see Soin, in Menage.

Soyn'd and amaz'd at his own shade for dreede.
Mirrour for Magistrates, p. 261.

SPACE.

Space is nothing else but the mere power, capacity, ponibility, or (begging pardon for the expression) interponibility of magnitude.
Barrow. Mathematical Lectures, lec. x. p. 176.

SPADES. A suit of cards. Our figure is taken from the French, and is that—of the end of a pike. Fr. Piques. The Sp. Espades, is, Swords (Espada, a sword) which they have on their cards; and from them our name. And see DIAMONDS.

SPANIEL.

Prudence throws up her cap, and spaniels at her heels.
Churchill. Conference.

SPANNISHING. Fr. Es, or, E-panouissement, from Epandre, to expand. The expansion, or full blow, of a flower.

And whan I had it longè sene,
I sawe that, through the leves grene,
The rose spred to spannishing.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3633.

SPAR, s. See Quotation from Wiclif, in v. Stud, infra.

SPARE. An opening in a gown or petticoat. Jamieson.

And go in at my spayre,
And crepe in at my gore
Of my gowne before.—Skelton. P. Sparrow, v. 345.

Her sparefull eye to spread his beames denaies.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. iv. st. 30.

SPARK.

And (Abraham) saw a multitude of sparkis (L. V. a spercle, favillam) steiynge vp fro the erthe, as smook of fumeys.—Wic. Gen. xix. 28.

Wottest thou not well that euery shepherde ought by reason to seke his sperkelande shepe that arne ron into wildernesse, emong busshes and perils, and hem to their pasture ayen bring?—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

SPARLYRE, s. A. S. On spear-lirum, in Cruribus. Deut. xxviii. 35. See LIRA, in Sommer.

Smyet thee the Lord with the moost yuel biel in knees and in sparlyuers. (L. V. hyndere partes of the leg, in suris.)—Wic. Deut. xxviii. 35, ut supra.

The knyght smoot with good wylle,
Strokes of thre,
And the ape hym boot (bit) full ylle,
Thorgh the sparlyre.—Octovian, 330, quoted in Halliwell.

SPARPOIL, v. See DISPERPLE.

Forsothe there was the batail sparpoild (L. V. scaterid, dispersum) vpon the face of all the loond.
Wic. 2 Kings xviii. 8.

SPEAK.

My ryuelyngis (rugæ) seien witnessyng aȝens me, and a fals spekere is reisid aȝens my face, and aȝenseieth me.
Wic. Job xvi. 9.

The judges were spoken (i. e. told) to get horses.
N. North. See Campbell, v. ii. p. 310.

SPEAR.

He touched me
Under the side full softily,
That he mine herte sodainly,
Without any doute, hath so spered
That yet right nought it hath me dered.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2099.

SPECIES, s. SPECIOUS, adj. Having, or shewing, promising—fair or good appearances—such as gain favour or confidence—and hence, plausible, prevailing.

Species is frequently written Spices, by Chaucer. See the Quotation from Hobbs.

Therfor if ȝe schulen here my vois, and schulen kepe my couenaunt, ȝe schulen be to me in to a specialte (E. V. my propre tresour, in peculium) of alle puplis.
Wic. Ex. xix. 5.

How many spices ther ben of penaunce.
Chaucer. Persones Tale.

The philosophy schools say—for the cause of vision, that the thing seen sendeth forth on every side a visible species (in English), a visible shew, apparition or aspect, or a being seen: the receiving whereof into the eye is seeing. And for the cause of hearing, that the thing heard sendeth forth an audible species, that is, an audible aspect, or audible being seen; which entering at the ear, maketh hearing. Nay for the cause of understanding also, they say the thing understood, sendeth forth an intelligible species, that is, an intelligible being seen; which coming into the understanding, makes us understand.
Hobbs. Of Man, pt. i. c. 1.

SPECK.

After the reed horsis, and the spekkid, and the white, he myȝte shewe the pore kynge by profesie.
Wic. Bible. Pref. Ep. p. 71.

SPECTACLE.

The sonne perissheth thorow the glasse,
Thorow the cristalle, beralle or spectacle,
Without harme.—The Lyfe of our Ladye, c. 6, col. 2.

SPEED.

But Y seie to ȝou treuthe, it spedith (expedit) to ȝou that Y go.—Wic. John xvi. 7.

Neuerthelesse I tell you the trueth, it expediȝe for you that I go awaye.—Id. Bible, 1549.

Then Olofernes clepyde dukis, and the maister domysmen, and noumbrede mon in to the speding (in expeditionem).—Wic. Judith ii. 7.

A man gladeth in the sentence of his mouth; and the spedful (L. V. covenable, opportunus) sermoun is best.
Id. Prov. xv. 23.

For I, that God of Loves servauntes serve,
Prayen for spede (success) al should I therefore sterve.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 17.

In Chaucer I am sped (versed. Dyce),
His tales I haue red.—Skelton. P. Sparrow, v. 788.

SPELL, v.

Osm. Thor, Freya, Woden, hear, and spell your Saxons,
With sacred Runick rhymes, from death in battle.
Dryden. Arthur, act i. sc. 1.

SPELUNC. Gr. σπηλυγξ σπεος; Lat. Spelunca; a Latinism not observed elsewhere. Fr. Spelongtre; It. Spelonca.

He dwellide (Lot) in a spelunc, or a den, he and his two dowȝterys with hym.—Wic. Gen. xix. 30.

SPEND.

Our spences and spendynge
Sprynge of a trewe wille.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9814.

SPER. See SPAR.

SPERE. } Desire; hope.
SPEYRE. }

The Londreis were in speyr, him for thar kyng uplift, i. e. were in hopes to raise him to be their king.
Hearne. Glossary to Robert of Brunne, p. 653.

SPERE.

I am Spes, quod he, aspie,
And spire after a knyght.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11370.

He had his man go and spir
A place, where she might abide.
Gower. Conf. Am. i. 8, fo. 182.

SPEW.

Of which lond Y schal vysyte the grete synnes, that it spewe out his dwellers. (E. V. caste, evomat.)
Wic. Lev. xviii. 25.

Take what I will of the emetic kind, I could not absolutely swear when the operation is over, that I have spuked at all.—Cowper to Lady Hesketh, July 5, 1788.

SPICE.

Spycers speken with hym
To spien hire ware.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1332.

And there is foundun (in paradis) delium, that is a tree of spicerie.—Wic. Gen. ii. 12.

SPIDER. The common rendering of aranea in the Wiclif Bible, is Attercop; in the var. r. of Job viii. 14, Spither is given.

SPIGOT.

Lo! my wombe is as must with out spigot, ether a ventyng (spiraculo) that brekith newe vessels.
Wic. Job xxxii. 19.

SPILL. A spile, is any thing (spilt or split) small, thin; wood, paper, e. g. to light a candle.

In the var. r. Wiclif's Bible, 4 Kings xviii. 21, is found, "The splyndre or speel therof (a reed) schal, i. e. entre in to hys honde and peerse it."

The greetnes of mysese (inopiæ) is to spille the greetnes of plentithe (perditura est).—Wic. Gen. xli. 31.

Thus from my conforte I giune to spille, sith she that should me solace is ferre from my presence.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

SPINE. SPINNEY. (As Spinet.)

One of our most favourite walks is spoiled. The spinney is cut down to the stumps, even the lilacs and the syringas to the stumps.—Cowper to Newton, March 19, 1785.

SPIR. } See SPERE.
SPIRE. }

SPIRE. A shoot: a spring.

Sche puttide hym (the child Moses) forth in a place of spier, of the brenke of the flood. (E. V. flaggi place, in caricto.)—Wic. Ex. ii. 3.

An oke cometh of a litel spire.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1335.

SPIRIT. d. from (See, &c.) in I. 16 to searching in l. 20, and r. (to spere, qv.) The Lat. Spirare (commonly rendered to breathe), was—to seek after, to pursue eagerly, and, conseq. to breathe or pant after; and then, generally, to breathe.

SPIRIT. SPIRE, v.

The Lord God . . . spiryde into the face of hym, an entre of breth, of lijf.—Wic. Gen. ii. 7.

And in his wil shal spiren (or brethen, aspirabit) out the south.—Id. Ecclus. xliii. 7.

We will stile that part of the generall knowledge concerning man's soule, the knowledge of the spiracle, or inspired substance; and the other part, the knowledge of the sensible or product soule.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 3.

Let us utterly reject that fortuitous jumbling together of light and round atoms, which Democritus, however, maintains to be warm and spirable (spirabilis), that is, animal.—Cicero. Tusculan Disp. b. i. p. 20 (1715).

SPIT, s.

Whiche chapitre we bi oure custom han bifor markid with a spite. (E. V. stric, stroke, obelo.)—Wic. Esth. x. 3.

SPITAL.

Rabi Salomon seith that he (Joab) made in desert a spitele for pore men; wherefore Ebrewis seyen that he is sauyd, and that temporal deth was ȝouun to him into clensin of his sinnes.—Wic. 3 Kings ii. 34. mar. note.

SPITE.

The nobles, spighted at this indignity done them by the commons, firmly united in a body, deposed this prince by plain force (Ser. Tullius), and chose Tarquin, the Proud.—Swift. Contests, &c. at Athens, &c. c. iii.

SPLEEN.

The liuer by the splenike branch, transferreth them (the more earthly parts of our aliment) to the serjeant of the scullery—the splene.—Purchas. Microcosmus, ch. v.

SPOIL.

Who forsothe shul go out, and flee to the Caldeis that besegen ȝou, shal lyue, and be shal to hym his soule as spoile. (L. V. prey, spolium.)—Wic. Jer. xxi. 9.

SPOKE. To put a spoke in his wheel. In Dut. Een spaak in t'wiel steeken, is, To traverse, thwart, cross a design. Spoke is probably a corruption of spike. To put or drive a spike into the nave, so as to prevent the wheel from turning on its axle. The effect is similar to that of spiking cannon.

SPONTANEOUS.

For by spontany will it is dooe, that is to say with good will not constrained.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. iii.

Considering it (a minnow) I found it alive, and endued with spontaneity.—Cowper to Hurdis, Feb. 23, 1793.

SPOT.

And he seuerde that dai the she geyt, and the sheep, and the hyeȝ geyt, and the dyuerse, and spotti. (L. V. spottid, maculosos.)—Wic. Gen. xxx. 35.

SPOUSE.

And if eny man here down (seduxerit) a mayden not ȝit spowsid (L. V. weddid, desponsatam), and he sleep with hir, he shal haue hir to wijf.—Wic. Ex. xxii. 16.

The diademe, bi which hir modir crounede hym in the dai of his spousyng (desponsationis).
Id. Song of Solomon, iii. 11.

An yuel kyndrede, and a spouse brekere (E. V. auoutrere, adultera) sekith a tokene. Id. Mat. xii. 39.

SPRAWL.

And whanne he (Tobit) hadde do this thing; he drow it in to the drie place, and it (a fish) bigan to spraule (E. V. quappe, palpitare) bifore his feet.—Wic. Tobit vi. 4.

And whanne he spraulide (qwappide), ȝit cleuyng in the ook, ten ȝonge squieris of Joab, runnen, and smytiden, and killiden hym (Absolon).—Id. 2 Kings xviii. 14.

SPRENGE, v. A common word in Wiclif's Bible. See SPRENT, infra. Springill is a sprinkling instrument (sc.) of holy water.

Thou doȝtir of my puple, be thou ȝird with an heire and to-sprengid (L. V. spreynt, conspergere) with asken.
Wic. Jer. vi. 26.

Go ȝe fro that hous or citee, and sprenge of (excutite) the dust of ȝoure feet. (E. V. smytith awei.)—Id. Mat. x. 14.

A monk, that took the springill with a manly chere,
And did as the manere is,—moiled al their pates.
Chaucer. Par. and Tap. v. 141.

The Frer feynyd fetously the spryngill for to hold
To spryng oppon the remnaunt.—Id. Ib. v. 142.

The seed is keeted thorough the heate of the sonne and also by the spraynture of dewys.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, e. 8.

SPRING (a shoot), is applied by Piers Plouhman to a sprig or twig, for flogging. It is also applied to a Scion:—by Fairefax to a plantation of young growing trees (the enchanted grove).

Who so spareth the spring
Spilleth his children.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2554.

In the spryng of the day (L. V. sprynging, diluculo) thei reisiden her eeȝen, and loo, myche peple.
Wic. 1 Mac. v. 30.

That tree to set faine would I learne. The first thing, thou must set thy work on ground siker and good accordaunt to thy springes.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. iii. fo. 316[4].

My Lord, not one of vs there is, I grant,
That dares cut down one branch of yonder spring,
I thinke there dwels a sprite in every plant,
There keepes his court great Dis, infernal King.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bullogne, b. xiii. st. 23; also st. 31, 35.

SPRINKLE.

And the litil sprynkil of ysop (L. V. bundel, fasciculum) wetith in bloode, that is in the nethir threswold, and sprengith of it (aspergite) the ouerthreswold, and either post.
Wic. Ex. xii. 22.

SPUE. } See SPEW.
SPUKE. }

SPUNGE, s.

For him is kept a liquor more divine,
Yon, spunges, must be drunk with lees of wine.
Dryden's Juvenal. Sat. v. by Bowles.

SPUR, s.

(Knyght) cometh to be dubbed,
To geten hym gilte spores.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12098.

SPURN.

Y schal brynge hem bi strondis of watris in a riȝtful weie, thei schulen not spurne therein. (E. V. stumble, impingent.)
Wic. Jer. xxxi. 9.

And up they gon, and doun again, anon,
Til that the miller sporned at a ston.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4278.

SPUTE, v. is in Wiclif's Bible, Wisd. xv. 9, used as dispute. L. V. Stryue.

SPY. See ASPY.

Stonde thou not aȝen the face of the strifful; lest he sitte as a spiere (insidiator) to thi mouth.—Wic. Ecc. viii. 14.

SQUANDER.

They charge, re-charge, and all along the sea,
They drive, and squander the huge Belgian fleet.
Dryden. Annus Mirabilis, st. 67.

SQUAT.

The erthe is togidir meued and tremblide; the fundementis of hillis ben togidere smyten, and squat (L. V. schakun togidere, concussa sunt), for he wraththide to hem.
Wic. 2 Kings xxii. 8.

SUEQAMISH.

(He, Edgar, used not) squemishly, frowningly, or skorne-

fully to shun the ragged and tattered sleeue of any suppliant, holding up to him a simple soiled bill of complaint.
Hackluyt, v. 1. King Edgar.

SQUIRE.

Jonathas forsothe seide to the ȝong man his squyer (armigerum), Come, and passe we to the stacioun of these uncercumeidide.—Wic. 1 Kings xiv. 6.

STABLE, v.

I schal reren thi seed aftir thee, that schal ben of thi sonys, and schal stablen the rewme of hym. (L. V. stablische, stabiliam.)—Wic. 1 Par. xvii. 12.

A wis king is the stablete (L. V. stablischyng, stabilimentum) of the puple.—Id. Wisd. vi. 26.

But the life to come is the stablement and the propre house of myne undedly soule.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, i. 1².

STACK.

Seint John sayth, that avouterers shul ben in helle in a stacke brenning of fire and brimstone.
Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

STADDE. See BESTEAD.

STAFF, STAVE. See TAIL, v. infra.

STAGE.

Ne the grete ship of thre stagis (trieris) shal not ouergon it.—Wic. Is. xxxiii. 21.

STAGNATE.

This Sea (the Orkneys) they report to be slow and stagnate.—Gordon. Tacitus Agricola.

STAIN. In Ex. xxxv. 36, Polymitarius is rendered steynour.

Forsothe thei token the coote of hym, and in the blood of a kyde that thei had slayn steyneden (tinxerunt).
Wic. Gen. xxxvii. 31.

Ne ther shal be maad euene to it (wisdom) topasie of Ethiope; ne to the most clene steyning (tincturæ) shal be comparisound.—Id. Job xxviii. 19.

STALK. In Milleres Tale (quoted in Dictionary) Mr. Tyrwhitt thinks Stalkes are the upright pieces, and renges the steps.

STALL, v.

He cast adoun hir stalles
That in chirche chaffareden.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11060.

An hors, a stalown (emissarius), so and a frend a scornere, neiȝeth undur ech sittyng aboue.—Wic. Eccl. xxxiii. 6.

This stalant (Rhodope, a Courtesan) of whom we speake, had her fame bruted in all places.
Herodotus, his seconde booke. Quoted by Beloe, i. 380.

I shall be glad if all these words and more would make such weighty cases clear; and do confess that after all I need more light, and am almost stalled with the difficulties myself.—Baxter. Body of Divinity, p. 160.

STALWORTH.

A wis man is strong, and a taȝt man is stalworthe (robustus) and miȝti.—Wic. Prov. xxiv. 5.

Alle bi name he clepeth, for multitude of strengthe, and of stalworthnesse (roboris), and of his vertue.
Id. Is. xl. 26.

Alas! seide this Frankèlyn,
That ever I was bore!
For tweie stalworthè sones
Iwene I have forlore.—Chaucer. Coke of Gamelyn, v. 403.

STAMP.

Y schal swepe it with a beesme, and Y schal stampe (L. V. treding, terens), seith the Lord of oostis.
Wic. Is. xiv. 23; also xxv. 10.

STANCH.

But ofte is seen, that much slouth,
Whan men ben drunken of the cup,
Doth muche harme, whan the fire is vp,
But if somwho the flame stanche.
Gower. Conf. Am. Prol. 24.

STAND.

And Patience in the palace stood
In pilgrymes clothes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8081.

And God it wot, though I unworthy be,
I have stonden in ful gret degree
Abouten lordes of ful high estat.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9368.

He stood the furious foe, the timid friend.
Pope. Prol. to Sat. v. 343.

STAR.

The winds do sweep his chambers every day,
And clouds do wash his rooms, the ceiling gay,
Starred aloft, the gilded knobs embrace.
G. Fletcher. Christ's Victory after Death.

STARK.

Alle the dwelleres of Canaan weren starke (obriguerunt).
Wic. Ex. xv. 16.

He stood, and smoot Filisties, til his honde failide, and was starke. (E. V. heuy, obrigesceret.)
Id. 2 Kings xxiii. 10.

START.

And God turnede the spirit of the King in to deboner-nesse, and heeȝende (hying) and dredende, he sterte (L. V. skippyde, exiluit) out of the see (scat).—Wic. Esth. xv. 11.

This Duk his courser with his sporres smote,
And at a stert, he was betwix hem two.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1707.

STARVE. STARVATION. We owe this word, it seems, to Henry Dundas, the first Lord Melville, who used it in a speech on American affairs in 1775, and obtained for himself the name of Starvation Dundas. See H. Walpole to Mason, v. ii. p. 396. It is, I think, a solitary instance of this Latin termination to a native English root.

Ye, sterve he shal, and that in lesse while,
Than thou wolt gon a pas not but a mile;
This poison is so strong and violent.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12799.

It happed him, par cas,
To take the botelle ther the poison was,
And dronke; and yave his felaw drinke, also;
For which, anon, they storven bothe two.
Id. Ib. v. 12822.

STATE. STATEMENT.

The cavalcade (of judges on horseback) being once well settled for the march, moved, as the design was, statelily along.—Roger North. Campbell. Life of Shaftesbury, v. ii. p. 310.

There was a common saying in those days (when Lord Mansfield was at the Bar), "Mr. Murray's statement is of itself worth the argument of any other man."
Lord Campbell. Life of Lord Mansfield, p. 562.

STEAM.

His (the monke's) eyen stepe and rolling in his hed,
That stemed as a forneis of a led.
Chaucer, Canterbury Tales Prologue, v. 202.

STEAN, or STENE, s. The Lat. Hydria, is so rendered in the Wiclif Bible, e. g.

Neuerthelatre there weren not maad of the same monee the stenys (L. V. water pottis) of the temple of the Lord.
Wic. 4 Kings xii. 13.

STEEL.

Stelyn legharneis he hadde in the hippis, and a stelyn sheeld (arcus clypeus) couerde the shuldris of hym (Goliath).—Wic. 1 Kings xvii. 6.

And holdeth mine herte under his sele,
As trusty and trewe as any stele.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5149.

Jolite and welfare
Whiles they finden love of stele (true as stele).
Id. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 175.

STEEP. Eyes steep, Mr. Tyrwhitt thinks, are eyes deep set.

Ystope, i. e. steeped. See Quotation from Chaucer, in v. Old, supra.

A large man he was with eyen stepe.
Chaucer. Prologue. The Hoste.

His eyen stepe and rolling in his hed.
Id. Ib. The Monke.

STEER.

And thou shalt ben as (one) slepende in the myddil se, and as the steris man (gubernator) al forslept, the steer staf lost (amisso clavo).—Wic. Prov. xxiii. 34.

STELE.

A ladel . . . .
With a long stele.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13513.

STENCH, i. e. Stanch, qv.

STEP.

And when the formere kien weren deuourid and wastid, the secounde ganen no steppe of fulnesse. (L. V. merke, vestigium.)—Wic. Gen. xli. 21; and Deut. ii. 5.

STEP. STEPMOTHER.

Haue compassiō, oh, christen woman, upon those yonge innocent orphans, which knowe not, nor haue any confort nor helpe upon erth saue only the. Consider that God the Lord hath ordeyned the (in steede of their own mother) to be to thē a righte true mother, and requireth the to loue them and to do thē good.—Miles Coverdale. The Christen State of Matrimony, fo. lxx.

STER, or STRE. Term. was used to denote a female, as trix, in Latin. Tyrwhitt.

STERCORY. Lat. Stercus.

A man is but a sack of stercory.—Skelton, v. i. p. 4. Dyce.

STERN, ad. In Wiclif Bible, the E. V. Luke xix. 22, reads haustern; the L. V. sterne. See AUSTERE.

With steernesse (austeritate) ȝe comaundide to hem and with power.—Wic. Ez. xxxiv. 4.

STERNE. To lay down. Lat. Sternere. See Skinner. Chaucer uses the expression, "Sternyng Death." Test. of Loue, b. i. at the beginning. But the context supplies no clue to the meaning.

STEW.

Peter! so ben the women of the stives,
Quod this Sompnour, yput out of our cure.
Chaucer. The Freres Tale, v. 6914.

STICK.

God of his goodnesse—
Garte the hevene to stekie,
And stonden in quiete.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 703.

Strike me with thi staf,
With stikke, or with yerde.—Id. Ib. v. 7467.

For the Lord shal deme the cause of hym, and he shal stik them, that stekeden (configet, qui confixerunt) the lijf of hym.—Wic. Prov. xxii. 23.

(The candelstyk was) of betan out gold as wel the myddil stok (stipes) as al the thinges of either side.
Id. Num. viii. 4.

STICKLE.

When he sees half of the Christians killed, and the rest in a fair way of being routed, he stickles between the remainder of God's host and the race of fiends.
Dryden in Todd.

STIFF.

Deep water (is) the woordis of the mouth of a man; and a stef strem (L. V. a stronde fletinge ouer, torrens) the reboundende welle of wisdame.—Wic. Prov. xviii. 4.

STILL. STILLATORY.

Newt proude as preehouts beth,
But preyen ful stylle.—Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 770.

And eft his face waishun, goon oute, (Joseph) stillide hym self (L. V. refreynede, continuit se), and seith, Settith looues.—Wic. Gen. xliii. 31.

He forsothe biheelde her stilli (L. V. prineli, tacitus), wilnyng to wite whether the Lord had maad his weye welsome or noon.—Id. Ib. xxiv. 21.

She wente and clepide Marie, her sistir, in silence, or stilnesse (in silentio), seyinge, The Mastir cometh, and clepith thee.—Id. John xi. 28.

His forehed, dropped as a stillatorie
Were ful of plantaine.
Chaucer. The Chanones Yemannes Tale, v. 16048.

There is no better sign of omnia bene, than when the court is in a still.—Bacon. Charge against Mr. Oliver St. John, v. ii. p. 588, 4to.

STING. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Stitch, infra.

Ther ne is no waspe in this world
That wil for loke styngen,
For, &c.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1292.

Sendynge out bifore stynggynge flies, that ben sprungun of deed bodies, hauynge the stonges enuenymd.
Wic. Ex. xxiii. 28.

STINK.

He lifte up Lazar,
That leid was in grave,
And under stoon d . . . and stank.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10753.

To the womman that suffrith flux of blood, thou shalt not goo, ne opne the stynkynges of hir. (L. V. filthe, fœditates.)—Wic. Lev. xviii. 19.

STINT.

And stynte hē to repreue (E. V. leeue he of) an hooly werk with his venemouse tunge.—Wic. Josh. Prol. p. 555.

Now let vs stint (cease to speak) of Troilus astound,
That fareth as a man that hurt is sore.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. the last.

STIR.

Thei shul steringli seyn (tell out, effabuntur), and speke wickidnesse.—Wic. Ps. xciii. 4.

And in Latin I speke a wordes few
To saffron with my predication,
And for to stere men to devotion.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 12280.

STITCH.

They ben y-sewed with whight silke,
And semes ful queynt
Ystongen with stiches
That stareth as siluer.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1101.

Mnason. You have gone a good stitch, you may well be a weary y. sit down.—Pilgrim's Progress, pt. ii.

STITH.

Wite he me not, in to repreuynge of old men, newe thingis to stithie (L. V. to forge), as my freendis putten blame.
Wic. Josh. Prol. p. 555.

So the iren smyth sittende biside the stithie (L. V. anefelt, incudem), the humour (vapor) of the fyr brenneth his flesh.—Id. Ecc. xxxviii. 29.

STOAT. See STOTE.

STOCK. The STOCK-dove is the stock or stirps of the domestic kinds.

STOCK. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Full, supra. Also, MORE, s.

With wo I ligge istocked.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i. fo. 268[1].

But oh! what stock of patience wants the fool,
Who wastes his time and breath in teaching school!
Charles Dryden. Juv. Sat. 7.

STOMACH.

Whether a wise man schal answere, as spekyng ayens the wynd, and schal fille his stomac (stomachum) with brennyng, that is, ire?—Wic. Job xv. 2.

Mor. Sen. Doth no man take exceptions at the slave?
Lan. All stomach him, but none dare speak a word.
Marlow. Edward II.

STONE, i. e. Astone. See STUN.

And they stoneyed al about, and sturbed. (L. V. astonyed, obstupefacti, turbatique.)—Wic. Gen. xlii. 28.

Rijtwis men shul stoneyen (L. V. wondre, stupebunt) vp on that.—Id. Job xvii. 8.

STONE, v.

With stones men sholde hir strike,
And stone hir to dethe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7595.

He forsothe areride a stonen signe (L. V. of stoonys, titulum lapideum) of worship, in the place that God speke to hym.—Wic. Gen. xxxv. 14.

Marvellous great stones of yron (lumps).
Berners' Froissart, v. i. p. 498.

STOP.

Flaw. I declare off! you shan't make a stop-gap of me.
Foote. The Cozeners, A. i. sc. 1.

STORVEN. See STARVE.

STOTE, or STOAT, is applied to an old woman, as an ill name, by the Sompnour. A weasel; a polecat. Tyrwhitt.

Nay, old stote, that is not min entent.
Chaucer. The Freres Tale, v. 7211.

STOUND. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Launde, supra.

(There) shal be symple cryynge of trompes, and not stoundmeel thei shullen ȝolle. (L. V. not sowne departingli, non concise.)—Wic. Num. x. 7.

Stoundmele from the heuen adoun
Goddys aungel came.—Lyfe of our Ladye, e. 3, c. 2.

STRACHY. It. Stratico, or Stradico, was a kind of officer or magistrate. Florio. And Menage, Le Origini, says, That Stratico was the title of the Governor of Messina. The Lat. Strategus, straticus, stratigus, was the prefect or governor of any state or province. Gr. Στρατηγος, Du Cange. And Strachy is by easy corruption, Strategy, stratgy, strachy.

The Lady of the Strachy is, thus, the Lady of the Governor.

STRAIGHT.

Whan Ilion
Was wonne, and Pirrus with his streite swerd,
Whan he had hent King Priam by the berd
And slain him . . . .
Chaucer. Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15363.

STRAIN. Shakespeare, Winter's Tale, To extend beyond; to exceed the bounds of propriety; to transgress (the bound of honour). And in Midsummer Night's Dream, some excess: some transgression.

Or, elles, if free chois be granted me,
To do that same thing, or to do it nought,
Though God forwote it or that it was wrought,
Or, if his weting streineth neuer a del
But by necessitee condicionel.
Chaucer. Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15256.

Her. Since he (Polyxenes) came
With what encounter so uncurrent, I
Haue strayn'd t'appeare thus: If one jot beyond
The bound of honor, or in act, or will
That way enclining, hard'ned be the hearts
Of all that heare me, and my neer'st of kin
Cry fie upon my graue.
Shakespeare. Winter's Tale, act iii. sc. 2.

Por. The quality of mercy is not strain'd,
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heauen
Upon the place beneath.
Id. Merchant of Venice, act iv. sc. 1.

STRAIT.

Al for the love of oure Lord
Lyveden ful streyte.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 52.

Eche shal not streyte (L. V. make streyte, coarctavit) his brother, eche shuln go in his path.—Wic. Joel ii. 8.

The Pistlis streytnesse suffrid not me lengere to passe ouerlargely in this matter (var. r. schertnesse).
Id. Bible. Pref. Ep. p. 66.

Forsothe it was vnable to be ouercummen, and hard in goyng to for streytnesse (angustias) of places.
Id. 2 Mac. xii. 21.

The fourth thynge that foloweth the dome or jugement is the strayteness and rigour of the juge.
The Golden Legend, fo. 3, c. 3.

He (Magellan) continued his voyage toward the South, and at length discovered near the 53rd deg. of latitude, the mouth of a strait which he entered, Feb. 1526.
Robertson. America, b. v.

STRAKE. See STRETCH, infra.

STRANGLE.

Min is the prison in the derke cote (dungeon),
Min is the strangel and hanging by the throte.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2460.

STRAUGHT. See STRETCH, in Dictionary.

STRAW. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Shut, supra.

Sche (Rachel) hastide, and hidde the idols vndur the strewyngis (E. V. literyng, stramenta) of the camel, and sat aboue.—Wic. Gen. xxxi. 34.

STREAK.

Jacob tok roddes of grene popular, hasel, and of chestenottrees, and pylled white strakes in them; and made the white appeare in the staues. And the shepe conceyued before the staues, and brought forth straked (M. V. ringstraked), spotted, and party.
Bible, 1549. Gen. xxx. 37, 40.

STREAM.

Thi welles ben stremed forth (E. V. led out, deriventur), and departe thi watris in stretis.—Wic. Prov. v. 16.

And thei han set tentis ouer the streme of reyn (torrentem), redy for to cum to thee in to battle.
Id. 1 Mac. v. 39.

And firy Phebus riseth up so bright—
And with his stremes drieth, in the greues,
The silver dropes hanging on the leues.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1497.

STREET.

And he schewide to me a flood of quycke water schyning as cristal comynge forth of the seete of God, and of the tombe in the myddil of the street of it (in medio plateæ) and on ech side of the flood the tree of lyf.
Wic. Rev. c. xxii.

STRENE. See STRAIN, s.

STRENGTH.

And loo! thei applieden to day to the hee; rocke in Jerusalem, for to occupie it, and thei strengthide a strengthing in Bethsura (munitionem munierunt).
Wic. 1 Mac. vi. 26.

STREPEROUS.

Nay, such an one perhaps would be more pleased with the streperous noise of a single fiddle or the rustical musick of the country bagpipes, or the dull humming of a Jew's trump, than the fullest and most exquisitely composed harmony.—Cudworth. Immutable Morality, c. ii. § 15.

STRETCH. See Chapman in v. Streak, in Dictionary.

Thei over lond straketh.
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 164.

They strecchet hem brode.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1096.

And his power shal fro royame to royame
The bondes stratche of his ryalte.
Lyfe of our Ladye, h. 8[2].

And with that wordè, right anone
They gan to strake forth.
Chaucer. The Duchesse, v. 1312.

STRIDOUR.

Imperial Agamemnon 'self,
In piercing accents stridulous he charged
With foul reproach.—Cowper. Iliad, b. ii. v. 268.

STRIKE. Tyrwhitt says, a strike of flax is a handful.

This Pardoner had here as yelwe as wax,
Ful smoth it heng, as doth a strike of flax.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales. Prol. v. 678.

And what man that is wounded with the stroke
Shal never be hole, till that you list of grace
To stroken him with the platte in thilke place,
Ther he is hurt (by the sword).
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10476.

The price must be the same with the true market price; the measure according to the common measure stricked.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, pt. ii. c. 7, p. 65.

STRIP.

Upon the pover folke thei geten
Ful muche of that thei spende or kepe;
N'is none of hem that thei n'il strepe.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6820.

STRIVE.

Forsothe Y knowe thi striuynge (contentionem), and thi moost hard not ȝit lyuynge me and goynge yn with ȝowe, euermore stryuyngli (contentiose) ȝe diden ayens the Lord.
Wic. Deut. xxxi. 27.

Stonde thou not ayen the face of the striful (L. V. dispisyng, contumeliosi), lest he sit as a speie to thi mouth.
Id. Ecc. viii. 14.

Whi thanne turned awei is this puple into Jerusalem with striuous turning awei. (L. V. ful of stryf, contentiosa.)
Id. Jer. viii. 5.

STROND.

And thei ȝeden til to the stronde of clustre. (E. V. renynyng watir, ad torrentem.)—Wic. Num. xiii. 21.

Wherfor it is seid in the book of batels of the Lord, As he dide in the reed see, so he schal do in the strondis (E. V. rennynge waters) of Arnon; the harde rochis of the strondis weren bowid, that thei shulen reste in Arnon.
Id. Ib. xxi. 14.

STRONG.

And thei chidden strongli (fortiter), and almest diden violence.—Wic. Judges viii. 1. (Strongliere, fortius.—Id. Ib. xx. 41. Strongheste, firmissime.—Id. Ib. ix. 51.)

Than arne thei folk that han most God in awe,
And strengest faithed ben, I understonde,
And con an errour alderbest withstonde.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 1007.

STROY.

Wallid cites of riche men it stroyede (L. V. destried, destruxit), and the housis of grete men it mynede out.
Wic. Eccl. xxviii. 17.

STRUMPET.

Thei (Symeon and Levi) answeriden, Whether as a strumpet (L. V. hoore, scorto) thei shulden mysuse our sistre?—Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 31.

STUB.

And othere seuen, thinne and smytun with corrupcioun of brennyng wynd, camen forth of the stobil (E. V. stalk, e stipula) and deuouriden the fairenesse of the formere.
Wic. Gen. xli. 23.

STUD.

Betere is the liflode of the pore, vndir the roof of stoodes (L. V. sparres, asserum), than plenteuous shynende metes in pilgrymaging withoute hous.—Wic. Eccl. xxix. 29.

STUDY, v.

They shoulden nowght stodyen biforne,
Ne sturren her wyttes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1171.

And leten hire labour lost,
And al hire long studie.—Id. Ib. v. 360.

STUFF.

Of whiche thyngs old age is bettir prouided and stuffed by experience thenne any othir age.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, c. 2[2].

STULPES. Used by Fabyan, where he relates that Jack Cade drove back the citizens "from the stulpes in Southwark, or brydge foot, unto the drawe bridge. A. D. 1450."

STULTILOQUY.

Fire is chiefe werkere in forthering sustenaunce to mankind.—Shall fire ben blamed for it brend a foole naturally by his own stulty wit in stering (stirring)?
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

STUMBLE.

Poor stumbler on the rocky coast of woe,
Tutored by pain each source of pain to know.
Coleridge. To an Infant.

STUPRATION.

The sones of Jacob answeriden to Sichem, and to the fader of hym in trechery, waxynge cruel, for the stupre of the sister. (L. V. defoulyng of the maidenhood, ob stuprum.)—Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 13; also 27.

STURB, v. i. e. Disturb, qv. And see also Wiclif, in v. Stone, supra.

Whi dreri art thou, my soule, and whi al to-sturbist thou me? (L. V. troublist, conturbas.)—Wic. Ps. xlii. 5. Also written sturblist.

STUT.

And the tunge of stuttyng men (L. V. bufferes, balborum) schal speke swiftli, and pleynli.—Wic. Is. xxxii. 4.

STY, s.

He steigh up to hevene.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1616.

My sty (L. V. path, semitam) he heggide aboute, and I mai not gon ouer.—Wic. Job xix. 8.

Lo, forsothe shorte ȝeris passen, and the sty, bi the whiche I shal not be turned aȝeen, I go.—Id. Ib. xvi. 23.

Be maad Dan an horned eddre in the path, biting the cleen (claws, hoof) of an hors, that the steyer (L. V. stiere, ascensor) vp of hym falle bacward.—Id. Gen. xlix. 17.

Blessid is the man whose help is of thee; he hath disposid stiyngs in his herte, in the vallei of teeris (ascensiones).—Id. Ps. lxxxiv. 3.

STYGIAL, adj. } Lat. Stygius. Stygian pool,
STYGIAN. } i. e. of hell. Stygian oath, i. e. oath by the Styx. See Quotation from Dryden's Virgil, infra.

By the Stygial flode, and the stremes wode,
Of Cocytus bottomlesse well.
Skelton. The Crowne of Lawrell.

Thee (holy light) I revisit now with bolder wing,
Escap'd the Stygian pool, though long detain'd
In that obscure sojourn.—Milton. Par. L. b. x. v. 14.

Son of Anchises, offspring of the Gods,
The Sibyl said, You see the Stygian floods,
The sacred streams, which Heav'n's imperial state
Attests in oaths, and fears to violate.
Dryden. Virgil. Æneid, b. vi. v. 442.

Honest men's words are Stygian oaths, and promises inviolable.—Browne. Christian Morals, pt. iii. § 19.

STYLE.

And that disdayne may not my style beraye,
With humble herte thus to hym I praye.
Lyfe of our Ladye. W. Caxton, c. 5, col. 1.

Be to my style ful dyreccion.—Id. Ib. p. 5.

On these (tables of wood covered over with wax, of which Homer makes mention) they wrote with a bodkin or style of iron, with which they engraved their letters in the wax, and hence it is that the different ways of men's writings or compositions are called different styles.
Prideaux. Connection, pt. i. b. 7, p. 707.

Proper words in proper places make the true definition of a style.—Swift. Letter to a young Clergyman.

SUAGE.

If ther is tunge of euring, ther is and (also) of swaging, and of mercy (mitigationis).—Wic. Ecc. xxxvi. 25.

SUASION.

Forsothe wisdom that is fro aboue, first, sotheli it is chaast, aftirward pesible, myide, suadible (suadibilis), that is, esy for to trete and to be tretid.—Wic. James iii. 17.

SUB-DIAL. See the Quotation.

The Athenian Heliastick, or Sub-dial Court, was rural, and for the most part kept in the open aire (subdio).
N. Bacon, c. iv. p. 15.

SUB-DISTINCTION.

A subdistinction (a semicolon) is a meane breathing.
B. Jonson. Gram.

SUB-FUMIGATION. See SUFFUMIGATION.

SUBJECT, s. } See the Quotation in Dic-
SUBJECTIVE, adj. } tionary from Pearson, and OBJECT, supra.

Forthermore the sonis of Juda and of Jerusalem ȝee wiln subjecten (L. V. make suget, subjicere) to ȝou.
Wic. 2 Par. xxviii. 10.

And thei weren not soietable (redi to be suget, subjectibiles) to hym.—Id. Bar. i. 18.

For ther n'is god in heuen or hel, iwys,
But he hath ben right soget unto Loue.
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 93.

In these words there are two manifest untruths. The one is, that Mr. Bold peremptorily declares—That subjective faith is not enquired into, i. e. spoken of in the reasonableness of Christianity. The other untruth is, his saying—That the animadverter (Mr. Bold) avers that Christian faith and Christianity considered subjectively are the same.—Locke. A Second Vindication, &c. Works, v. iii. p. 265, 4to. ed.

Mr. Bold replies, "His (Locke's) enquiry and search was not concerning Christian faith, considered subjectively but objectively; what the articles be which must be believed to make a man a Christian, and not with what sort of faith these articles are to be believed."—Id. Ib. p. 264.

SUB-LAPSARIAN, also called Infra-lapsarian. They believe the fall permitted, not predetermined. The supra-lapsarians, that it was predetermined from all eternity. The tenets of the Sublapsarians were first asserted by two preachers at Delft, Arnold Cornelius, and Renier Dunteklok, A. D. 1590, against Calvin and Beza, who were of the opposite sect.

SUBLIME.

An ordinary gift cannot sublime an ordinary person to a supernatural employment.
Bp. Taylor. Office Ministerial, s. iii. § 11.

There (in the unclean heart) the impure desires of the flesh are cherished and entertained and sublimated into impurities more exquisite, and yet more filthy than ever the sensual appetite could arrive unto.
Hale. Contemp. The unclean Spirit.

SUBMIT.

He that is lorde and mastre of the lawe submysed hym selfe to the lawe.—The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 7, c. 1.

It seem'd as there the British Neptune stood;
With all his hosts of water at command;
Beneath them to submit the officious flood;
And with his trident shov'd them off the sand.
Dryden. Annus Mirabilis, st. 184.

SUBORDINATE, v.

We esteem it, as enhancing the manifestation of intelligence, that one single law, as gravitation, should, as from a central and commanding eminence, subordinate to itself a whole host of most important phænomena.
Chalmers on the Constitution of Man, Intro. Ch.

SUBSTANCE.

A good man leueth eiris sones, and sonys sones; and is kept to the riȝtwise the substaunce (L. V. catel, substantia) of a synnere.—Wic. Prov. xiii. 22.

SUBTLE.

Each man subtileth a sleighte
Synne for to hide.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13876.

It is with great propriety that subtlety, which in its original import means exility of particles, is taken in its metaphorical meaning for nicety of distinction.
Johnson. Life of Cowley.

SUB-VERT.

Whan forsothe God had subvertid the citees of that regioun, he recordid of Abraham, and deliuered Loth from the subuersion of citees in whiche he had dwellide. (L. V. distriede, distriying; subverteret, subversione.)
Wic. Gen. xix. 29.

SUBURB.

Wher dwellen ye, if it to tellen be?
In the subarbes of a toun, quoth he,
Lurking in hernes and in lanes blind.
Chaucer. Chan. Yem. Tale, v. 16126.

SUCCEED. Success is used by Spenser as succession.

Then all the sonnes of these five brethren raynd
By dew successe.
Spenser. Faerie Queene, b. ii. c. 10, § 45.

Thus high uplifted beyond hope (Satan) aspires
Beyond thus high, insatiate to pursue
Vain warr with Heav'n, and by success untaught,
His proud imagination thus displaid.
Milton. Par. L. b. ii. v. 9.

What to this house successively is done (i. e. fully)
Was full of peril.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. i. st. 24.

SUCCISION, s. Lat. Succisio, An undercutting.

There be two books that seem to cross the authorities touching the interest of the windfalls, 7 Henry VI. and 44 Edward III. f. 44, where upon waste brought and assigned in the succision of trees, the justification is, that they were overthrown by the wind, and so the lessee took them for fuel, and allowed a good plea.—Bacon. Works, v. ii. p. 455. Case of Impeachment of Waste.

SUCK.

Whi was Y takun on knees? Whi was Y suclid (E. V. soukid, lactatus) on teetis?—Wic. Job iii. 12.

And Manaen that was the sowkynge feere (collactaneus) of Eroude tetrarche.—Id. Deeds xiii. 1.

SUCKENY. Fr. Souquenie. A canvas jacket, frock, or gaberdine. Such an one as our porters wear. Cot. See Menage, and Soscania in Du Cange.

And she (Dame Fraunchese) had on a suckiny,
That not of hempe, ne herdes was.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1232.

SUDDEN.

(Thei) shul merueilen in the sodeynesse (sudeynte, subitatione) of the vnhopide helthe.—Wic. Wisd. v. 2.

SUE. } Suit of horses. See in v. River, Quo-
SUIT. } tation from Beaumont and Fletcher, supra.

(Christ) sayde to his sueres
For sothe on this wyse.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 293.

And we answerden to hym (Joseph) sewingly (L. V. suyngli, consequenter) aftir that he askide.
Wic. Gen. xliii. 7.

He shal be repreued bi hise suyngis. (E. V. infolewingis, insectationibus.)—Id. Ecc. xxxii. 23.

That ȝaf hym silf for us that he schulde aȝen bye us fro al wickidnesse, and made clene a peple acceptable to him silf, suere of good werkis.—Id. Titus ii. 14.

SUFFER.

The werk is aboue thi strengthis, thou aloone maist not suffre it. (E. V. susteyne it, sustinere.)—Wic. Ex. xviii. 18.

SUFFICE.

Betere is a pore man, and suffisaunt. (L. V. sufficient, sufficiens.)—Wic. Prov. xii. 9.

SUFFIX, v. and s. In Grammar—To add or subjoin a letter or syllable.

SUFFLATION, s. Lat. Sufflare, to blow under or from below. Sufflatio, A blowing out.

The admission, once, of a perpetual and unerring suffiation (in the Jewish historians), not only in my mind destroys their credibility throughout; but is, moreover, highly injurious to the Supreme Being, as it makes him the primitive author of all they relate.
Geddes. Pref. to second Vol. of Trans. of the Bible, p. v.

SUFFRAGE. Low Lat. Suffragia, orationes; prayers. See Quotations from Leland and Frith in Dictionary.

For thenne we praye and demaunde the suffrages of alle the saynctes.—The Golden Legend, fo. 22, c. 2. Caxton.

SUGAR.

It would have been as well if the Dr. (Johnson) had not recorded his dishes of sugarless tea, or the dinners at which he ate too much.—Cowper to Newton, Aug. 27, 1785.

SUGGEST. In Piers Plouhman and Chaucer, Suggestion is Supplex libellus, Epistola rogatoria. See Du Cange. And in this usage it was probably first introduced into our language.

Beggeres ne bidderes,
Ne beth noght in the bulle,
But if the suggestion be sooth
That shapeth them to begge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4605.

Haue myade of me, whanne it were wel with thee, and mercy thow shalt do with me, and thow make suggestion (suggeras) to Pharao, that he lede me out of this prisoun
Wic. Bible. Gen. xl. 14

And, that thou mayst perceive my fear of this,
Knowing that tender youth is soon suggested,
I nightly lodge her in an upper tower.
Shakespeare. Two Gent. of Verona, act iii. sc. 1.

SUIT. See SUE.

SULLEN.

He sit . . . . . .
. . . by hymself as a soteyn.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7834.

Y schulde reste in my sleep with kingis, and consuls of the erthe, that bilden to hem soleyne places. (E. V. solitarie dwellingus, solitudines.)—Wic. Job iii. 14.

In Isaiah xxiv. 12, soleynte is a various reading of desolacioun.

SULLEVATE. See SUBLEVATION. Fr. Soublever; Sp. Sublevar. To raise, cause a rising or insurrection, or sedition.

He shows . . . .
. . . his secret dangerous practising,
How he his subjects sought to sullevate.
Daniel. Civil Wars, b. i.

SUM, v. To have the full sum, in number or quantity (Milton), e. g. with feathers, infra, and Par. L. b. vii. v. 421.

Inspire
As thou art wont my prompted song, else mute,
And bear through highth or depth of nature's bounds
With prosperous wing full summ'd to tell of deeds
Above heroic, though in secret done.
Milton. Par. Reg. b. i. v. 14.

SUMMITY.

I suppose it would much conduce to the magnanimity and honour of man, if a collect were made of the ultimities (as the schooles' speake) or summities (as Pindar) of humane nature, principally out of the faithfull reports of history. That is: what is the last and highest pitch, to which man's nature of it selfe hath euer reach't in all the perfections both of mind and body.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 1.

SUMMON.

Ac a sisour and a somonour
Sued hire faste.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2415.

And Paul somenyd (citato), Tertulle bigan for to accuse.
Wic. Deeds xxiv. 2.

SUNDER.

Whos hows in sondry men dyuydyng (L. V. in to alle men bi hemself, in singulos diuidens viros) he foonde Achor.
Wic. Josh. vii. 18.

SUP.

The which (Thamar) takynge meele mengide togidir; and meltynge in his eyen she seethid the supettis. (L. V. soupyngis, sorbituncula.)—Wic. 2 Kings xiii. 8.

Go we than soupe, quod he.
Chaucer. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11529.

SUPER-ANNUATION.

A writer, possessed of a genius for hypothesis, like that of Burnet, might construct a plausible argument to prove that the world itself is in a state of superannuation, if there be such a word. If not, there must be such a one as superannuity.—Cowper to Hill, Feb. 15, 1781.

SUPERB.

The wise Saxon king (Ethelred) espying the danger in betrusting the lives and estates of the poorest sort unto the dictate of these superbient humours, settled the law of peers.—N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, c. xxxviii. p. 93.

SUPER-EROGATE.

The doctrine that asserts that it is in men's power to super-erogate, and to do works of perfection over and above what is required of them by way of precept, tends to the undermining and hindrance of a godly life.
South. Ser. vii. v. 8.

SUPERFLUOUS.

Alle men doynge wickyd thingis superfluli (E. V. ouer-veynli, supervacue) be schent.—Wic. Ps. xxiv. 4.

(Thei) gessiden goddis these thingis that ben superflu (E. V. ouer veyne, supervacua) in beestis (mar. n. i. e. vnprofitable to men).—Id. Wisd. xii. 14.

SUPERLATIVE.

Omnipotence, omniscience, infinite power, infinite knowledge, are superlatives; expressing our conception of these attributes in the strongest and most elevated terms which language supplies.—Paley. Natural Theology, c. xxiv.

SUPERNACULUM, s. A slang name for strong spirits, wines, &c.

Load. Levant me, but it is supernaculum.
Speak when you have enough.—Foote. The Minor, A. i.

SUPER-POLITIC. Above or more than politic.

At the Florentine Council the Latins acted their masterpiece of wit and stratagem, the greatest that hath been till the famous and super-politick design of Trent.
Bp. Taylor. Liberty of Prophecy, s. viii. § 2.

SUPER-SEMINATE, v. To sow; to spread or scatter seed over. See SEMINAL.

They that have the guiding of souls must remember that they must render an account; and that cannot be done with joy, when it shall be indifferent to any man to super-seminate what he please.
Bp. Taylor. Office Ministerial, s. iii. § 15.

SUPPER. See SUP.

SUPPLANT, v.

Whether God supplaunteth dom (supplantat judicium), and the Almiȝti turneth vp so doun, that is riȝtwis?
Wic. Job viii. 3.

Simplenesse of riȝtwis men shal riȝt reule them; and supplaunting (L. V. dissciuing, supplantatio) of peruertid men shal waste them.—Id. Prov. xi. 3.

His visage (Satan) drawn he felt to sharp and spare,
His armes clung to his ribs, his legs entwining
Each other, till, supplanted, down he fell,
A monstrous serpent on his belly prone.
Milton. Par. L. b. x. v. 513.

SUPPLE.

His bootes souple, his hors in gret estat,
Now certainly he was a fayre prelat.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales, Prol. v. 203.

SUPPLIANT.

The first letter which he (Pœtus) sent contained nothing of supplicancy or abasement, but was conceived in a strain of expostulation and complaint.
Gordon. Tacitus. Annals, b. xv.

SUPPLY.

It (the quinquagesme) is instituted for supplicion and fulfyllynge.—The Golden Legend, fo. 12, c. 1.

The strong appetite of hunger supplements the deficiency of the rational principle of self-preservation. The strong family affections supplement the deficiency of the moral principle of general benevolence.
Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. i. c. 6.

SUPRA-VISOR.

Feed the flock of God which is among you, doing the office of bishop over them, taking supravision or oversight over them willingly and of a ready mind.
Bishop Taylor. Ministerial Office, s. iii. § 15.

SURD.

The shadowes and figures of the old law were full of reason and signification, much differing from the ceremonies of idolatry and magique, which were surde and mute (surdæ et mutæ).
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. ix. c. 1.

He who hath had the patience of Diogenes, to make orations unto statues, may more sensibly apprehend how all words fall to the ground, spent upon such a surd and earless generation of men, stupid unto all instruction, and rather requiring an exorcist than an orator for their conversion.—Browne. Christian Morals, pt. iii. § 6.

SURGEON.

And dide hym assaie his surgenrie
On hem that sike were.
Piers Plouhman's Vision v. 11013.

SURMISE.

Which by fals accusacions and conspiracyes made hym to be vniustely accused and sklaundered, and surmytted vpon him forged maters.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, Caxton, h. 2.

SURNAME.

Therfor Jacob cam to Lusa, which is in the lond of Canaan, bi sire name Bethel (cognomento).
Wic. Gen. xxxv. 6.

In the name of the Lord, to whom is the sur-name (E. V. to-name) God off Israel.—Id. Ecclus. xlvii. 19.

SURPLICE. The surplice was a female as well as a male vest, and black as well as white, as we learn from Du Cange—who quotes from an old statute—Habeat quælibet monialis quolibet anno duo supplicia (f. superpellicia) alba et duo nigra, quæ terram tangant. The monialis, or monacha—was the female devotee.

Forsothe Samuel seruede before the face of the Lord, a child gird with a surplesse. (L. V. lynnun cloth, ephod linea.)—Wic. 1 Kings ii. 18. (In 2 Par. v. 12, byssinis.)

The minister at the tyme of the cõmunion and at al other times in his ministracion shall use nether albe, vestemẽt, nor cope: but beyng archebishop or bishop, he shall haue and weare a rochet: and being a priest or deacon, he shal haue and weare a surples only.
The Boke of Common Prayer, &c. Whitechurch, 1552.

SURQUEDRY.

They are puffed full of vaynglorious and surcudant elacyon.—Skelton. Replycacion, v. i. p. 209. Dyce.

SURVENUE. Fr. Survenüe. A stepping or coming in unlooked for. Cotgrave. From Survenir. See SURVENE.

Nor did the fundamentals (of government) alter either by the diversity and mixture of people of several nations in the first entrance, nor from the Danes or Normans in their survenue.
N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, pt. i. c. 42.

SURVIVE.

In his (Charlemagne's) institutions I can seldom discover the general views and the immortal spirit of a legislator, who survives himself for the benefit of posterity.
Gibbon. Roman Empire, c. 49.

SUSPECT.

What I can do or offer is suspect.
Milton. Par. Reg. b. ii. v. 401.

SUSPICABLE. } See SUSPECT.
SUSPICION. }

SUSPIRE.

Suspiris, which I effunde in silence.
Chaucer. Cuckoo and Nightingale, v. 305.

SUSTAIN.

Ferthermore and Y axide not the sustenauncis (E. V. ȝeris frutis, annonas) of my duchie: for the puple was maad ful pore.—Wic. 2 Esd. v. 18.

SUSTER. } See SISTER.
SUSTRENE. }

SWA. See SO.

SWAG. } Mr. Mitford thinks that Bel-
SWAGGER. } swagger, qv. is Belly-swagger. One, as Browne expresses it, with a Swaggy belly.—Cursory Notes on Beaumont and Fletcher.

SWALE.

And whan the sunne was sprungen, the Lord comaundide to the hote wynd and brennynge: and the sunne smote on the hed of Jonas, and he swalide (æstuabat).
Wic. Jonah iv. 8.

And the word of the Lord was maad as fier swalynge (E. V. gretly hetende, ignis exæstuans) in myn herte, and cloosid in my boonys.—Id. Jer. xx. 9.

SWALLOW.

Salomon beeldide Mello, and euenede the swelwȝ (L. V. swolowe, voraginem) of the citee of Dauid, his fader.
Wic. 3 Kings xi. 27.

(God) that doth awei the dropis rein, and heeldeth (L. V. schedith) out wederes at the licnesse of swolewis (L. V. floodgatis, gurgitum) that of the cloudis flowen.
Id. Job xxxvi. 27.

SWAN.

And though you have a swannet of your own,
Within the banks of Deven, meditates
Sweet notes to you, and your renown . . .
Daniel. Ded. to Philotas.

SWAP.

And with his grim pawes so stronge,
Within his sharpe nailes long,
Me fleying at a swappe he hent.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 35.

SWART.

An herbe he brought flourelesse, all grene,
All full of small leves and plaine,
Swart, and long.—Chaucer. Dreame, v. 1864.

SWEAR.

This thing was granted, and our othes swore,
With ful glad herte.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales Prol. v. 812.

They falsen ladies traitoursly,
And swerne hem othes utterly,
With many a lesing.—Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 4837.

SWEAT.

In the swoot (in sudore) of thi chere or face, thou shalt ete thi brede.—Wic. Gen. iii. 19.

With myche trauaile it is maad in sweet. (L. V. it was swat, sudatum est.)—Id. Ez. xxiv. 12.

His faire stede in his priking
So swatte, that men might him wring,
His sides were al blood.
Chaucer. Rime of Sir Thopas, v. 13706.

SWEET, adj.

Whiche (the fige tree) answerid to hem, Whether Y may forsake my swetnesse, and swettys fruytis (dulcedinem, fructusque suavissimos) and go, that Y be anaunsid among othere trees?—Wic. Judg. ix. 11.

SWEGH. } See SWOUGH.
SWEIGH. }

SWELL, v.

Thei shul be to moued, and thei shul not moun (L. V. haue power); and to-swelle (intumescent) shul his flodis, and shul not passe.—Wic. Jer. v. 22.

Hire thought it swal so sore aboute hire herte.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6549.

O glory, glory, thou art none other thing to thousandes of folke but a great sweller of ears.
Id. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

SWERE, or SWIRE, qv.

SWERVE, v.

Some more bold swerve upwards.
Dryden. Æn. b. ii. v. 606.

I wish it were as easy to justify our lives as our religion; I mean in comparison of the rules of our holy religion from which we are infinitely swerved.
Tillotson, v. i. ser. 27, p. 253, fo. ed.

SWEVEN.

ȝee forsothe wileth not heren your profetus, and deuynoures, and sweueneres. (L. V. dremers, somniatores.)
Wic. Jer. xxvii. 9.

Why this a dreme, why that a sweven,
I n'ot.—Chaucer. House of Fame, v. 9.

Me mette suche a swevining,
That liked me wonderous well,
But in that swevin is ner a dele
That it n'is afterwarde befal,
Right as this dreme will tell us al
Id. Rom. of the Rose, vv. 26, 28.

SWEYE, i. e. Swough, qv.

SWIG.

The bleating rams
Securely swig the dug beneath the dams.
Dryden. Æn. b. ix. v. 73.

SWIM. See Milton, in v. Walk, infra.

Which trowestow of the two
That is in moost drede!

He that never ne dyved,
Ne noght han of swymmyng?
Or the swymmere that is saaf
By so hymself like.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7754.

Every one of you swimmeth in love.
Bible, 1549. 2 Thess. i.

SWINDLE.

O'Don. After that you turned swindler, and got out of gaol by an act for the relief of insolvent debtors.
Foote. The Capuchin, A. 2.

SWINE. But the Goth. Swein, &c. seem to militate against this etymology (sc. sowen, pl. of sow); and Swyn, Sus, is used by Wiclif in the singular.

A swyn (E. V. sowe, sus) that chewith not code, thou; he departith the clee,—ye schulen not ete the fleisch of.
Wic. Lev. xi. 8.

SWINK.

What! shulde he . . . .
. . . . Swinken with his hondes.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales Prol. v. 186.

He had swonken all night long.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 4233.

SWIPE, i. e. Sweep.

SWIVE, v. From the Ger. Schweben, se movere, agitare. Skinner.

Thus swived was the carpenteres wif,
For all his keping and his jalousie.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3848.

Thus is the proude Miller wel ybette,—
His wif is swived, and his doughter, als;
Lo, swiche it is, a miller to be fals.
Id. The Reves Tale, v. 4315.

SWOON.

Repentedsotow noght, quod Repentaunce,
And right with that he swouned.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3372.

And whan he spac, efte she fel doun, and utterli swounede. (L. V. and was almest deed, pæne exanimata est.)
Wic. Esth. xv. 18.

SWOUGH. } In Sc. Souch, soogh, swooch; to SWEIGH. } emit a rushing or whistling sound,
SWEGH. } from the A. S. Sweg-an, sweog-an, sonare, tinnire. Jamieson. But Lye adds, cum sono irruere. And Chaucer renders the Lat. Turbo, Sweigh; a different way of writing swough, first applied to the motion (the sweepy sway. Dryden), then to the sound caused by or accompanying the motion, perhaps the swaying of waves, trees, &c.

And as I lay and lenede,
And loked on the watres,
I slombred into a slepyng,
It sweyed so merrily.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 20.

First on the wall was peinted a forest,—
In which ther ran a romble and a swough,
As though a storme shulde bresten every bough.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1981.

He wepeth, and waileth, maketh sory chere,
He siketh (sigheth) with ful many a sory swough.
Id. The Milleres Tale, v. 3619.

Oh firste moving cruel firmament,
With thy diurnal swegh that croudest, ay,
And hurtlest all from est to occident,
That naturally wold hold another way.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4716.

Thou, maker of the wheele (orbis) that turnest the heaven with a ravishing sweigh (turbine).
Id. Boecius, b. i. m. 5.

SWOUGH, v. In some Ed. of Piers Plouhman, written Sounye, i. e. swoon. See in v. Swelt, supra.

I have an Aunte to Nonne,
And an Abbesse bothe;
Hir had levere swowe or swelte,
Than suffre any peyne.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2799.

SYLLOGISM, s. A form, in Logic, of stating an argument in distinct propositions, called premises, from which a certain conclusion necessarily follows. And this form is so called because from the premises the conclusion is collected (or deduced).

SYMBOL.

They (the Puritans) pushed matters to a total opposition with the Church of Rome: every compliance, they said, was a symbolizing with Antichrist.
Hume. History. Elizabeth, 1568, c. 40.

SYNCRATISM. Gr. συγ-κρασις, commixtio. The commixtion of different creeds, dogmas, &c. of different sects.

What seems most his own (Bruno) is the syncretism of the tenet of a pervading spirit, as anima mundi, which in itself is an imperfect theism, with the more pernicious hypothesis of an universal monad, to which every distinct attribute, except unity, was to be denied.
Hallam. Literature of Europe, v. ii. p. 154.

SYSTASIS. } Gr. Συστασις, constitutio; συν-
SYSTATICK. } ιστασθαι, constituere; to stand together.

There be also other diversities of methods, vulgar and received; as that of resolution or analysis, of constitution or systasis, of concealment or cryptic, &c. which I do well allow of.—Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. ii.

As for those other methods, analytique, systatique, cryptique, and the like—they have bēn well invented and distributed.—Id. Ib. b. vi. c. 2.

T.

TAAS, s. Fr. Tasser; to pile or heap up. An heape. Speght. See Toss. In some Editions of Chaucer, Tas.

To ransake in the taas of bodies dede . . . .
And so befell, that in the taas they found, &c.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 1067.

TABARD. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Tawny, infra.

TABLE.

And he made the hows with cedre couplis, and bildide a table beeldynge vpon al the hows. (L. V. a bildyng of tablis, tabulatum.)—Wic. 3 Kings vi. 10.

Mak that the Lord hath comaundide, that is, the tabernacle and the roof of it, and the couering, and the ryuges, and the tablid sides. (L. V. bildyngis of tablis, tabulata.)
Id. Ex. xxxv. 11; also, xxxvi. 34.

TACK.

When the Commons suspected that a favourite bill would be rejected, they tacked it to a money bill; and as it was not possible to proceed without the supply, and as it became necessary to reject or receive both the Bills thus tacked together, this expedient perfectly answered its purpose.
Swift. Contests in Athens, &c. n.

TAIL. Rowena is described by Robert of Gloucester, when presenting the cup to Vortiger, as drawing aside her Tail. See in v. Wassail, infra.

TAIL, v. To stave and tail in bear baiting; to stave, or with staves to keep, off, the dogs; to drag them off by the tail.

Meanwhile th' approached the place, where Bruin
Was now engag'd to mortal ruin;
The conquering foe they first assail'd,
First Trulla stav'd, and Cerdon taild,
Untill their mastiffs loos'd their hold.
Butler. Hudibras, pt. i. c. 3, v. 10.

So lawyers, least the Bear, defendant,
And plaintiff, Dog, should make an end on't,
Do stave and tail, with writs of errour,
Reverse of judgment and demurrer.
Id. Ib. pt. i. c. 2, v. 161.

TAILLE. See TALE, TELL, TALLY, infra.

Outtake that which men that weren on the talagis, that is rentis for thingis borun aboute in the lond. (E. V. tollis, vestigallia.)—Wic. 3 Kings x. 15.

TAINT, v.

Clooth . . . .
Y-touked and y-teynted.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10533.

Macb. Till Byrnane Wood remove to Dunsinane
I cannot taint with feare.
Shakespeare. Macbeth, act v. sc. 3.

Do not fear. I have a staff to taint and bravely.
Massinger. Parliament of Love, act iv. sc. 3.

TAKE. See ATAKE, supra.

TAKE.

And took it (the law) Moyses to teche men
Til Messie coome.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10735.

And wynes thei token (duxerunt) doustres of hem, and thei token (L. V. gauen, tradiderunt) her doustris to the sones of hem, and seruеden to the Goddis of hem.
Wic. Judg. iii. 6.

He toke (brought) me certain gold I wote it well.
Chaucer. Shipmannes Tale, v. 13384.

TALE. Chaucer has Tailer, tailing, as we use Talker, talking. To tell the tale, or take the tale, is sometimes, recensere numerum (see the Quotations from Milton and Dryden) in the Georgics rendered —To take a just account. See RETAIL. See Tale-wise (Piers Plouhman), in v. Tickle, and the Quotation from Chaucer's Dreame, in v. Wonder.

Thanne Mede for hir mysdedes
To that man kneled;—
Told him a tale,
And took hym a noble.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1445.

I took it (gold) by tale here,
And told hem there lasse.—Id. Ib. v. 2975.

And the tale (L. V. fame, rumor) of hym wente forth anoon in to al the cuntree of Galilee.—Wic. Mark i. 28.

I wist neuer how ferre thine exile was, if the tale (oratio) ne had yshewed it me.—Chaucer. Boecius, b. i. pr. 5.

Thus endeth now my tale, and God us sende
Taling enough unto our lives end.
Id. Shipmannes Tale, v. 13364.

See that ye delyver the whole tale of bryeke.
Bible, 1549. Exod. v.

And every shepherd tells his tale,
Under the hawthorn in the dale.
Milton. Allegory, v. 67.

But old Anchises, in a flowry vale,
Review'd his muster'd race and took the tale.
Dryden. Virg. Æn. b. vi. v. 921.

TALENT. } The substantive is now applied
TALENTED. } by us to the talent delivered, to the gift, the endowment. It is applied by Chaucer (aliquantum deflexo sensu, as Skinner justly observes, from the Latin, though some etymologies seek a different origin) to the disposition of mind—from that manifested by the different servants—good and wicked, to whom the talents were delivered for use. Chaucer renders the Lat. Affectus, from Boecius—Talent. Gower, and since his time, Clarendon and Swift (improperly, Johnson says), use the word in a similar manner. Lord Clarendon writes: "The nation was without any ill talent towards the Church," i. e. male-talent, as Chaucer also writes, or ill disposition.

Swift. "It is the talent of human nature to run from one extreme to another," i. e. the disposition.

Talented (charged to be an Americanism) was found by Todd to have been used as early as the time of James I. It is regularly formed from the noun: as in the moneyed and landed interest; lilied banks, daisied field, &c.

And all to torne laie eke her here
About her shulders here and there,
As she that had it all to rent
For angre and for male-talent.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 330.

What a miserable and restless thing ambition is, when one talented but as a common person, yet by the favour of his prince, hath gotten that interest, that in a sort, all the keys of England hang at his girdle!—Archbishop Abbot, in Rushworth's Collections, p. 449 (in Todd).

TALL.

Boadicea and her daughters ride about in a chariot, telling the tall champions as a great encouragement, that with the Britans it was usual for woemen to be thir leaders.
Milton. History of England, b. ii.

TALLOW. Is not uncommon in Wiclif's Bible, for fat.

There (thow) shalt not leeue the talowe (L. V. fatnesse, adipem) of my solempnete vnto the morwen.
Wic. Ex. xxiii. 18.

TALLY. See TALE, TAILLE.

He taketh me but a taille,
For ten quarters of otes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2197.

If I bigge and borwe aught,
But if it be y-tailed,
I foryete it as yerne.—Id. Ib. v. 3332.

For whether he paid, or toke by taille,
Algate he waited so in his achate,
That he was ay before in good estate.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales Prologue, v. 572.

TAMARISK. So called, because it grows on the banks of the Tamaris or Tambro, on the borders of the Pyrenees.

TAMPION. Fr. Tampion. A bung or stopple. Cotgrave. Is used by Skelton in the Garlande of Laurell, v. 642.

TAP.

And yet haue I alway a coltes tothe,
As many a yere as it is passed henne,
Sin that my tappe of lif began to renne.
For sikerly whan I was borne anon
Deth drew the tappe of lif, and let it gon.
Chaucer. The Reves Prologue, v. 3888.

TAPET. TAPIS.

He hym silf was a crafti man of trees (lignorum), and a tapesere (polymitarius).—Wic. Ex. xxxviii. 23.

(Thei) offreden to hym couerynge clothis, and tapetis (tapetia), and erthen vessels.—Id. 2 Kings xvii. 28.

TAR.

And loo! the Lord stondynge on a wal teerid or morterd (L. V. plastrid, litum), and in the hond of hym a truel (trulla) of masoun.—Wic. Amos vii. 7.

TARN.

And soon a score of fires, I ween,
From height, and hill, and cliff were seen;
They gleamed on many a dusky tarn,
Haunted by the lonely earn.
Scott. Last Minstrel, c. iii. § 29.

TARR, v.

Therfor thou schalt speke my wordis to hem, if peraventure thei heren and resten, for thei ben terreris to wraththe. (L. V. wraththen, irritatores.)
Wic. Ez. ii. 6; and v. 8, exasperatrix.

Neuerthelatre the Lord is not turned aweye fro the wrath of his grete woodnes, in the whiche his wodnes is wrothe aȝeynas Juda, for the terryngis in the whiche Manasses had terred hym (propter irritationes quibus provocaret eum).—Id. 4 Kings xxiii. 26.

TARRY.

God is redi to ȝyue good, to punshen a tariere.
Wic. Prol. to Jer. p. 342.

What sholde I lenger in this talê tarien?
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1622.

He taryed him there a ten days.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 73.

TART, s. See the second Quotation from Hackluyt, in v. Wreath, in Dictionary.

TAS. See TAAS.

TASTE.

For alle thei were unhardy
To touchen hym (Jesus), or to tasten hym,
Or taken doun of roode.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12242.

This noble clerke with all haste
Began the veynes for to taste,
And saw hir age was of youthe.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 180².

So maie a man by reason taste
How nexte after the god aboue,
The trouthe of women, and the loue,
Is mightiest.—Id. Ib. b. vii. fo. 152².

For tasting is defended (denied) me.—Id. Ib. vi. fo. 128⁴.

He now began
To taste the bow.—Chapman. Odyssey.

Taste is that faculty of the human mind by which we perceive and enjoy, whatever is beautiful or sublime in the works of nature or art.—Alison. Essay, i.

TATA. See DADA.

TATCH. See TETCH, TACK.

Ac I fynde if the fader
Be fals and a sherewe,
That som del the sone
Shal have the sires taches.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5470.

For ever more love his seruauntes amendeth,
And from all evill táches hem defendeth.
Chaucer. Cuckoo and Nightingale, v. 192.

TATTER.

His teeth with toylyng of lether
Tatered as a sawe.—Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 1501.

TAVERN.

Twei spices apperiden harde and perilouse to me; a marchaunt is delyuered of hard (difficile) fro his necgligence, and a tauerner (caupo) schal not be iustified of synnes of lippis.—Wic. Ecclus. xxvi. 28.

TAUELLYS. } An instrument for a silk-woman
TAUELL. } to work with.

Well sped in spyndell and twining of tauellys.
Skelton, v. i. p. 94. Dyce.

TAUNT.

O temerous tauntresse, that delights in toyes,
Jangling iestres (tress), depravresse of sweet ioyes.
Vncertaine Auctors. Against an Vnstedfast Woman.

Heaven's Queen, who favours both, gave this command,
Suppress thy wrath, and stay thy vengeful hand,
Be all thy rage in tauntful words exprest,
And guiltless let thy thirsty falchion rest.
Tickell. Homer's Iliad, b. i.

TAW. See TOW.

TAWNY.

In a tawny tabard
Of twelf wynter age,
Al so torn and baudy.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2863.

TAX. TAXLESS.

They (the Royalists in Rd. Cromwell's Parliament) depicted in glowing colours, the happy, tranquil, taxless times, which the more aged might still remember.
Campbell (Hyde), v. ii. p. 179.

TEACH.

Teche me to no tresor,
But tel me this ilke,
How I may saue my soule.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 624.

A wis man is strong, and taȝt man (L. V. lerned, doctus) is stalwrth and miȝti.
Wic. Prov. xxiv. 5; and Wis. xiii. 11, taȝtli, docte.

Forsothe the techeresse (doctrix) it (wisdom) is of the discipline of God, and the cheseresse (electrix) of the werkis of hym.—Id. Wis. viii. 4.

TEAR, s.

Whan she him sawe, she gan for sorowe anon
Her tery face atwixt hire armes hide.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 821.

TEAR, v. See Wiclif, in v. Unceasing, infra.

Pharao shal take awey thin heed, and shal honge thee in the crosse, and foulis shulen teere (lacerabunt) thi fleisch.
Wic. Gen. xli. 19.

And alle placis, in the whiche she was wont to gladen, with to-tering (L. V. to-breidyng, laceratione) of heris she fulfilde.—Id. Esth. xiv. 2.

TEASE.

Clooth that cometh fro the wevyng
Is noght comly to were, ...
Til,—wasshen wel with water
And with taseles cracched.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10532.

The sendingus out of leitis shal gon euene riȝt, and as at the teising the bowe of cloudis bent (L. V. and as the sidis of a reymbowe, whan the bowe of cloudis is beakid, tanquam a bene curvato arcu nubium), thei shuln ben outlawid.
Wic. Wis. v. 22.

TEEN. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Untidy, infra.

Tiraunty that teneth trewe men.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10460.

There is no manne on liue that may come to a precious thing long coueted but he sometime suffer teneful diseases.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

TEGGYS, i. e. Taggys. Worthless things? See TAG.

TELEOLOGY. } The doctrine of final causes.
TELEOLOGICAL. } —Hallam. Lit. of Europe, ii. 480.

TELL. In Wiclif Bible, Ps. xciii. 4, Effari, is in E. V. rendered to stirringly say; and in L. V. to tell out.

And so it is toold to Joab of tellers (a narrantibus) Abner, the son of Ner, cam to the Kyng.—Wic. 2 Kings iii. 23.

That he (Nero) so litel of his moder told (accounted).
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14404.

Morne had got the start of night . . . .
When the shepheards from their fold,
All their bleating charges told . . . .
Both their sheepe told, and none mist
Of their number.—Browne. Shep. Pipe. Ec. 5.

Com. Here is your niece, whom I have married; witness
These gentlemen, the knight, captain, and parson,
And this grave, politic, tell-troth of the court.
B. Jonson. Magnetic Lady, act iv. sc. 3.

TEMERITY.

By those cryptick wages of institution the ancients did hide a light, and keep it in a dark lanthorn from the temeration of ruder handlings and popular preachers.
Bp. Taylor. Sermon on Ministers' Duty, ser. xi. p. 229, fo. ed.

TEMPER.

And he shal tempre engynes (temperabit) in maner of vynes (vineas), and engynes in maner of wetheres (arietes) in to thi wallis.—Wic. Ez. xxvi. 9.

Sey thou te hem that dawben or leyn morter withouten temperynge (L. V. temperure, temperatura), that it is to fallynge doune.—Id. Ib. xiii. 11.

Who is sweete liueth in temperings. (L. V. temperaunces, vini demorationibus.)—Id. Prov. xii. 11.

Adr. It (the island) must needs be of subtle, tender, and delicate temperance (temperature).
Shakespeare. Tempest, act ii. sc. 1.

TEMPEST. See Quotation from Golden Legend, in v. Terroir, infra.

Forsothe the tabernacle of the Lord that Moyses hadde maad in desert, and the auter of brent sacrifices was in that tempest (tempestate) in the heiȝt of Gabaon.
Wic. 1 Par. xxi. 30.

TEMPORAL.

And prelates thei hem maden
To holden with Antecrist,
Hir temporaltees to saue.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14181.

TEMPT.

I beseche, tempt or assaie (tenta) vs thi seruauntis ten days.—Wic. Dan. i. 12.

TEND.

Tho that weren in heuene
Token stella cometa,
And tendeden it as a torche
To reverencen his burthe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12555.

The which seith, ȝe tenden to ydeleres (L. V. gyuen tent, vacatis otio): and therfor ȝe seyen, Go we, and sacryfye to the Lord.—Wic. Ez. v. 17; also Judg. v. 17.

Now thanne, Son myn, here thou me and tac tente (L. V. perceiue, attende) to the woordis of my mouth.—Id. Prov. vii. 24; and Wisd. xii. 20. Tentifnesse, in the E. V. is perseyuyng, in the L. V. from the Lat. attentio.

TENDER.

Thy tender-hefted nature shall not give
Thee o'er to harshness.
Shakespeare. King Lear, act ii. sc. 4.

TENE. See TEEN.

A quene
That torneth him to mochel tene.
Gower. Conf. Am. fo. 140.

TENEBRES.

Thou shalt dye here in tenebres or derknes.
The Golden Legend. St. Arnolde, fo. 368.

TENET. Also written Tenent.

People of differing religions judge and condemn each other by their own tenents; when both of them cannot be in the right, and it is well if either of them are.
Wollaston. Religion of Nature, sec. 5, § xviii. p. 5.

TENNIS.

Of the tennes to wynne or lese a chace,
May no lyfe wete or that the bal be ronne.
Gower. To King Henry IV. fo. 351¹.

TENOUR.

The king Danyd eatune did his harpe,
And with the tenours and the treblys sharpe,
He to heuen gan enhaunce and reyse
This day of dayes.—Lyfe of our Ladye. Caxton, g. 8².

TENTER, v.

Parchment or leather will stretch, paper will not; woollen cloth will tenter, linen will not.
Bacon. Natural History, § 841.

TEREBYNTH.

As a terebynte and as an oek, that spreadeth out his braunchis, holy sed shal it ben.—Wic. Is. vi. 13.

TERM.

Of briddes and of beestes
Men by olde tymé
Ensamples token and termes,
As telleth the poetes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7903.

Kynges . . . sholde . . . taken transgressores
And tyen hem faste,
Til treuthe hadde y-termyned
Hire trespas to the ende.—Id. Ib. v. 653.

I enuyrounde it with my termes (terminis), and sette the heenglis and doris.—Wic. Job xxxviii. 10.

He (Demophon) falsely gan his termé pace (pass the time limited).—Chaucer. House of Fame, b. i. v. 392.

TERRE. See TAR, s.

TERROIR. Fr. Terroir; the land; the territory.

They toke the vessel wherein the body (Pylate's) was, and sente it for to berye it in the terroir of the cyte of Losane, the whiche also was tempested.
The Golden Legend. Caxton, fo. 18, c. 2.

TERSIS. Is in Wiclif Bible, 1 Kings xviii. 25, rendered from the Lat. Præputia. Also written Tarse. See Teors, in Lye and Somner, and Teers, in Kilian.

TEST.

Nor would they tempt him with their open brests,
And swear their lips were love's assured tests.
Brown. British Pastorals, v. ii. p. 3.

The issue of life and death is put upon our conduct and behaviour; that is, made the test we are to be tried by.
Paley. Sermon 35.

TESTER. See TESTON.

TESTY.

Than were ther ȝonge pour scoleres two,
That dwelten in the halle of which I say:
Testif they were and lusty for to play.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4002.

TETCH.

Such a thing am I!
To anger rapid and as soon appeased,
For trifles mourning, and by trifles pleased,
Break friendship's mirror with a tetchy blow,
Yet snatch what coals of fire on pleasure's altar glow!
Coleridge. To an Infant.

TETTISH. See TETCH.

TEW.

And many dayes he (Peter) dwellide in Joppe at Symound, sum coriour, or tawiēr (quemdam coriarium).
Wic. Deeds ix. 43.

Tuly coloure.
Puniceus, Vel Punieus, Prompt. Par.
Dyce. Skelton, v. ii. p. 319.

THAN is used not only as a conjunction, but as a preposition; and as such affects cases. Thus: "He is wiser than me," is good English. So also is, "He is wiser than I, i. e. than I am;" in the first instance than is a preposition, in the second it is a conjunction. We have various other words which are used both as prepositions affecting cases, and as conjunctions affecting sentences or numbers of sentences. See in Dictionary Since, and supra, But, where an illustration should have been given. "They are all gone out but me." See Diversions of Purley, v. i. p. 324, 4to. ed.

THANK, s. In thank; thankfully, gratefully.

For wete thou well, withoun were (doubt)
In thanke that thing is taken more,
For which a man hath suffered sore.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2741.

And he his knee to grounde bente,
And thongeth him and hir also.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 179[1].

THAR, or THARE, v. } A. S. Thearf-an; Dut. Derv-en; Ger. Darb-en. To need or have need. Mr. Tyrwhitt. Him behoveth not, &c.

And therfore this proverb is sayd, ful soth,
Him thar not winnen wel, that evil doth.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4315.

THAT. See UNDERTAKE.

I find that you make not a due distinction between that and who. A man that is not proper. The relative who is proper. That, ought always to signify a thing; Who, a person.—Dryden to Walsh. Works. Bell's ed. 1853.

THE, v.

Ac I swere now, so thee ik!
(So may I thrive).—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2927.

THEANTHROPISM. Gr. θεος, God, ανθρωπος, man. See ante PSILANTHROPISM.

THEANTHROPOPHAGY. See the Quotation.

Cardinal Penon says, That they (the Primitive Christians) deny anthropophagy (qv.), but did not deny theanthropophagy, saying, that they did not eat the flesh, nor drink the blood of a meer man, but of Christ who was God and man, which is so strange a device, as I wonder it could drop from the pen of so great a wit.
Bp. Taylor. Of the Real Presence, sec. xii. § 14.

THEFT. See THIEVE.

THEME.

This was hir teme and hir text.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6795.

THEOLOGY.

Ac theologie hath tened me
Ten score tymes:
The moore I muse therinne
The mystier it seemeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5971.

THERAPEUTIC. The Gr. θεραπευτης, signifieth a worshipper or servant as well as a physician. And the Therapeutic Essenes were so called because they (a sect of Jews) professed to cure the souls of men; or because they had learnt from the law of Nature, and the sacred laws of the Holy Scriptures, to worship and serve the Supreme. See Prideaux, pt. ii. b. 5.

THERE.

Thou shalt cleep the name of hym Yshmael, therthurȝ that the Lord hath herd thin affliccioun.
Wic. Gen. xvi. 11; also xix. 11.

THERF.

Clense ȝe out cold sourdowȝ, that ȝe ben new spryngynge to gidere, as ȝe ben therf (azymi), or without sour thing.
Wic. 1 Cor. v. 7.

THEW.

Nyle ȝe be disseyned; forsothe yuele spechis corumpen or distroyen goode thewis or vertues (mores).
Wic. 1 Cor. xv. 33.

Al thewes good, as sitteth well to be,
Haue women euer of custome and vsage.
Chaucer. Works, fo. 328[3].

Wel y thewed, &c.—Id. Assemble of Foules, v. 47.

THEY. See HIR, in Tyrwhitt's Essay.

Ac tho heo (when they) were al bi hem selue, and no man hem neyg,
He drow ys knyf, and slow the kyng.
Robert of Gloucester, p. 104.

If thou kepist alle my comaundementis and goist by tho. (E. V. hem, per ea.)—Wic. 3 Kings vi. 12.

THICK.

As thycke as ameten crepeth in an amete (emmet) hulle.
Robert of Gloucester, p. 296.

Wyde wyndowes y-wrought,
Y-wryten ful thikke.—Piers Plouhman's Creed, v. 348.

THIEVE. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Skill, supra; Thieve-thorn, in v. Thorn, infra.

Thef-liche thow me robbedest.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12755.

Theuelich (L. V. theefli, furtim) Y am had a wey fro the lond of Hebrew, and here an ynocent Y am sent into a laak. (L. V. prisoun.)—Wic. Gen. xl. 15.

THIGH. In Wiclif Bible, Gen. c. 32, hip is the reading for thigh. In Lev. xi. 21, Thies (crura) is a var. r. for hips. In Is. xlvii. 2, E. V. thees; L. V. hips.

THIN.

My spirit shal be maad thynne (L. V. feble, attenuabit), my dazis shal be shortid.—Wic. Job xvii. 1.

THINK. Piers Plouhman and Wiclif write, Athink, qv.; the latter also, Othink.

Sorre it me a-thynketh,
For the dede that I have doon
I do me in your grace.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12253.

The entrailes of a fool (præcordia) as the whel of a carre, and as a turnende ful sxtre the thenkingus (L. V. his thouȝtis as an extre able to turne aboute, cogitatus) of hym.
Wic. Ecc. xxxiii. 5.

Thilke Margarite hath been to thee deare in thy heart, and for hast thou suffered many thoughtful diseases.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

Then thoughten they, it was the beste rede
To lede them bothe to the juge again.
Id. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7612.

And tho thought I upon Boece
That writeth, A thought may flye so hie,
With fethers of philosophie,
To passen everyche element.
Id. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 465.

Where shall we sojourne till our coronation?
Where it thinks best unto your royal self.
Shakespeare. Richard III. fo. 136, act iii. sc. 1.

THIRD.

I forȝeue to ȝou the pricis of salt and forȝeue the thriddis (L. V. thridde part, tertias) of seedis.—Wic. 1 Mac. x. 29.

THIRL.

(He) mercy gan graunte
To hem that hengen hym on heigh,
And his herte thirled.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 806.

Of his nose therlis (L. V. nosethirlis, naribus) goth forth smoke, as of a tend pot, and boilende.—Wic. Job xli. 11.

THIRST.

And voide he shal make the soule of the hungrere, and drinc to the thristere (L. V. thirsti man, sitienti) he shal don awei.—Wic. Is. xxxii. 6.

THIS. Wiclif writes Thisis fader. And see HIS.

The aungel seide to Raguel, Tobie, of the whiche thou askest, is thisis fader. (L. V. fadir of this man, pater istius.)—Wic. Tobit vii. 5.

THOLE. } In 1 Tim. iii. 3, Tholmound,
THOLMOUND. } is a var. r. for temperate, modestus; and in Philip. iv. 5, Tholmoundenesse, for temperaunce, modestia.

THORN.

And alle the trees seiden to the thorn (L. V. ramne; ether theue thorn, rhamno), Com, and comaund thow vpon us.
Wic. Judg. ix. 14.

THOROUGH. See THURROK, in Dictionary. Thorough, is in Wiclif Bible, written thurȝ, and is prefixed, as the Latin preposition—per.

Also, To thurȝ-sownd, personare; 'come, pervenire.

Thurȝ-fleer, perfuga; 'dig, perfudere.
Thurȝ-shed, perfundere; 'draw, perlinire.
Thurȝ-trete, pertractare; 'drop, perstillare.
Thurȝ-hilid is thoroughly covered. (L. V. bispreynd, perfusus.) Num. xii. 10.

THORP, s.

Nought fer fro thilke paleis honourable,
Ther stood a thorpe, of sighte delitable,
In which that poure folk of that village,
Hadden hir bestes and hir herbergage.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Tale, v. 8075.

THOST, s.

Eche womman that is lecherous, as a thost (L. V. fen, stercus) in the weie shal ben to-treden.
Id. Ecclus. ix. 10; also in Lament. iv. 5.

THRALL.

Cursid (be) child Canaan, thral of alle thrallis (L. V. seruaunt of seruaunts, servus servorum) he shal be to hise britheren.—Wic. Gen. ix. 25.

Thi seed (Abram's) is to be a pilgrym in the lond not his, and men shulen suget hem to thraldom. (L. V. seruage.)—Id. Ib. xv. 13.

Ther (in Egipt) thow shalt be seld to thin enemyes, into thrallis and thrallessis. (L. V. hand maidis.)
Id. Deut. xxviii. 68.

THRAVE.

Ac I have thoughts a threve
Of thise thre piles,
In what wode thei woxen.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10910.

THREAD. See the Quotation from Spenser, in v. Three, in Dictionary.

THREAT.

For hymself seide,
That sire is of hevene,
If Adam ete the appul,
All sholde deye
And dwelle with us develes;
This thretynge he made.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12641.

And now, Lord, bihold into the thretingis of hem. (L. V. thretnyngis, in minas.)—Wic. Deeds iv. 29.

THREE.

Sotheli the Heli trauht (troth, fides) this isse.
That o God in thrinnesse
And thrinness in onnesse
Wurchip we the more and lesse.
Athanasian Creed in Hickes Thesaurus, v. i. p. 233.

At last appear
Hell bounds high reaching to the horrid roof,
And thrice three fold the gates; three folds were brass.
Milton. Par. L. b. ii. v. 645.

THRESHOLD.

And whan he drough to the dore,
Thanne dymmed hise eighen:
He stumbled on the thresshfold,
And threw to the erthe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3187.

And the litil sprynkil of Ysop wetith in blood, that is in the nethir threswold (L. V. threisfold, limine), and sprengith of it the ouerthreswold (L. V. lintel, superliminare), and either post.—Wic. Ex. xii. 22; also xxiii. 7.

THRILL.

He shal thril his eer with an alle (L. V. perse, perforabit), and he shal be to hym a seruaunt in to the world.
Wic. Ex. xxi. 6

He coude his comming not forbere,
Though ye him thrilled with a spere.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 7638.

THRING.

A thousand of men tho
Thrungen togideres.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3524.

Comaundour, cumpanyes thringen and turmentyng thee (L. V. thristen, comprimunt), and thou seist, Who touchide me?—Wic. Luke viii. 45.

A man throng'd up with cold,
Shakespeare. Pericles, act ii. sc. 1

THROAT.

The whiche (Hieu) seith, Takith hem on lyue. Whom when thei hadden taken alyue, thei throtyden (L. V. strangliden, jugulaverunt) hem in the cystern.
Wic. 4 Kings x. 14.

THRONE, v.

There (in heaven) treuthe is in trinitee,
And troneth hem alle (i. e. soules).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 724.

THROPE, i. e. Thorpe, qv.
The cocke, that horologe is of thropes lite.
Chaucer. Assemble of Foules, v. 350.

THROUGH. See THOROUGH.

THROW, v.
For the Lord hath throwen afar (L. V. cast awei, projecit) and forsaken the ieneracioun of his wodnesse.
Wic. Jer. vii. 29.

THRUM.
And tha thre boc thrumde to ane.
Lagamon's Brut. v. i. p. 3, by Madden.

THRUST, v.
He thurgh the thickest of the throng gan threste.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2614.
With that, his arme all sodainly he thriste
Under hire necke; and at the last hire kiste.
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1574.

THRUST, i. e. Thirst.
(Such) is the thrust of false getting,
That laste ever in coviting.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5716.
My soule for anguishe is now ful thrusty.
Id. Lam. of Magd. v. 570.

THUMB.
And as the hand halt harde,
And alle thyng faste,
Thorugh foure fyngres and a thombe
Forth with the pawme.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11686.

THUNDER.
Ne the way of thonder leite (light) (via fulminis ardentes) that is wont to smiten high toures, ne shall nat moue that man.—Chaucer.—Boecius, b. i. m. 4.

THURIBLE.
Sweet incense from the waving thuribule
Rose like a mist.—Southey. Madoc, pt. i. § 13.

THYME.
The schip of Hiram brouȝte fro Ophir ful many trees of tyme (ligna thymia).—Wic. 3 Kings x. 11.

TICE.
Thanne princes and satraps falsli tysiden or counceyliden (surripuerunt) to the kyng.—Wic. Dan. vi. 6.
Adam eet of the tre forbedun at the tisyng of his wiyf, lest he schuld make her sory, as Austyn seith.
Id. 3 Kings xi. 5, mar. note §.

TICK.
We din'd, supp'd, and wetted five and thirty guineas upon tick.—Foote. The Minor, A. i.

TICKLE.
She is tikel of hire tail,
And tale-wis (wise in tales) of hire tonge.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1619.

TIDE.
But sore I was abashed and astonied
Of al tho folke that there were in that tide (condition).
Chaucer. Court of Love, v. 240.
Him tite (betide) as often harme therof as prowe.
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 333.

TIDIFE. A bird. See Chaucer, in v. Tercel.

TIDY.
I shal telle thee as tid (readily)
What this tree highte.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10922.
Thanne worth Trew-tonge, a tidy man,
That tened me never.—Id. Ib. v. 2013; also 13839.

TIFF, v.
And in the hour of rising tyff (L. V. tifle, trices) thou thee not.—Wic. Ecclus. xxxii. 15.
Make thee no tariyng in araying, ether tiftyng of heeris as wymmen doon.—Id. Ib. mar. note.

TIGHT.
And so alle the sones of Yrael rysynge fro her seetis titten shiltron (L. V. settiden, tetenderunt aciem) in the place that is clepid Baalthamar.—Wic. Judg. xx. 33.

TILE.
Come ȝe and make we tiel stonys (lateres), and bake we tho with fier; and thei hadden tiel for stonus (lateres pro saxis).—Wic. Gen. xi. 3.
Tac to thee in thin hond stones, and hyd hem in the caue that is vnder the tily wal (L. V. wal of til stoon, muro latericio) in the ȝate of the hous of Farao.
Id. Jer. xliii. 9.

TILL, v.
(He) sent the sonne to saue
A cursede mannes tilthe,
As brighte as to the beste man.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13828.
In that dai the tilthis that ben laft (L. V. cornes, segetes) fro the face of the sonus of Israel (shul be forsakun).
Wic. Is. xvi. 10.
And the werk of riȝtfulnesse schal be pees, and the tilth of riȝtfulnesse schal be stilnesse and sikirnese. (E. V. heriyng, cultus justitiæ.)—Id. Ib. xxxii. 17.
Therfor thei tildiden (E. V. strauȝten, tetenderunt) Absolon a tabernacle in the soler.—Id. 2 Kings xvi. 23.
Forsothe he was a man (Osie) giuen to erth tillyinge. (L. V. erthetilthe, agriculturæ.)—Id. 2 Par. xxvi. 10.

TIMBREL.
Taketh (ȝe) salm, and ȝyueth timbre (L. V. tympan, tympanum) a merie sautre with an harpe.
Wic. Ps. lxxx. 3.

TIME. Time-server, one who acts conformably, expediently to times and seasons: who observes and uses times and seasons to suit purposes good or ill. It is now generally applied to those who observe and use it to suit their own selfish purposes. See Trench, On the Study of Words, lec. 2.
Lo! an erthe tilyer abideth precious fruyt of the erthe, paciently suffringe til he receyue tymeful (temporaneum) and lateful (fruyt).—Wic. James v. 7.
There be four kinds of time-serving: first, out of Christian discretion, which is commendable; second, out of humane infirmity, which is more pardonable; third and fourth, out of ignorance or affectation, both which are damnable: of them in order.—Maxim, 1. He is a good time-server, that complys his manners to the several ages of this life; pleasant in youth, without wantonness; grave in old age, without frowardness. 2. He is a good time-server, that finds out the fittest opportunity for every action. 3. He is a good time-server, that improves the present for God's glory and his own salvation. 4. He is a good time-server, that is pliant to the times in matters of mere indifferency. 5. He is a good time-server, that in time of persecution, neither betrays God's cause, nor his own safety.—Fuller. Holy State, b. iii, c. 19.

TIMID.
He (Bridgman) made a very bad chancellor; for his timidous manner of creating and judging abundance of points, some on one side, some on another.
North. Life of Lord Keeper North, v. i. p. 168.
Quoted by Campbell, v. ii. p. 281.
Fortune the audacious doth juvare,
But lets the timidous miscarry.
Butler. Hudibras, pt. i. c. 3, v. 396.

TIN.
Strip thou their meretricious seemliness,
And tinfold glittering bare to every sight,
That we may loath their inward ugliness.
P. Fletcher. The Purple Island, c. viii.

TINE. } See Piers Plouhman, in v. Tow,
TINDER. } infra.
And he clepide the name of that place, Tending (L. V. brenning, incensio), forthi that the fier of the Lord was tende (L. V. kyndlid, incensus fuisset) a3ens hem.
Wic. Num. xi. 3.

TING.
Lo! Y schal brynge in yeuils on Jerusalem and Juda, that who euer herith, bothe hise eeris tyngle. (E. V. tyndym, tinniant.)—Wic. 4 Kings xxi. 12.

TINK. } See TING.
TINKLE. }

TINSEL.
By Thetis' tinsel-slipper'd feet,
And the songs of sirens sweet.—Milton. Comus, v. 887.

TINT. } See TINGE.
TINCT. }

TINY.
I pray you a ligtyl tyne stand backe.
Skelton. Garland of Laurell, v. 505.

TOAD-EATER. Supposed by Bp. Copplestone to be from Sp. Todito, from todo, all and every thing; a factotum.

TODDLE. See DADDLE.

TOE. In Wiclif Bible, Dan. ii. 41, Toes (digiti) are called fingris, or toon; and fingris, only.
This Chaunteclere stood high upon his toos.
Chaucer. Nonnes Preestes Tale, v. 15337.

TOFT.
The tour on the toft, quod she,
Truthe is therinne.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 480.

TOIL. See Piers Plouhman, in v. Tatter, supra.

TOKEN.
Thou hast ȝiue to the dredende thee toknyng (L. V. a signefiyng, significationem), that thei flee fro the face of the bowe.—Wic. Ps. lix. 6.

TOLL, v. Tolled out, qy. toiled or worked out; or told or counted out.
Til ten yerdes or twelue
Hadde tolled out thrittene.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2900.

TOLL, s. A process by which a suit "was brought out of the hundred court" into the county court (raised from a lower to a higher).—Skinner. N. Bacon, Hist. Disc. c. xlviii. p. 133.

TOMBOY. } Tombesteres, dancing women.
TOMBESTERE. } Tyrwhitt.
And right anon in comen tombesteres,
Fetis and smale.
Chaucer. The Pardoneres Tale, v. 124

TON and TOTHER (now common in Notts other parts), i. e. the one and the other.
And ther weren to hym (Job) sene sones and thre doȝtris; and he clepide the name of the ton (unius) Diem.
Wic. Job xlii. 13.
ȝif any shal smyte thee in the riȝt cheeke, ȝeue to hym and the tother (et alteram).—Id. Mat. v. 39.

TO-NAME, i. e. Surname, qv.

TONGUE.
Striue thou not with a tungy man. (L. V. a man, a ianglere, linguato.)—Wic. Ecclus. viii. 4.
As a graueli steeȝing vp in the feet of an old man, so a tungy womman (L. V. a womman, a greet ianglere, linguata) to a quyete man.—Id. Ib. xxv. 27.

TOOT.
Then sayed Laban; Thys heape be wytnes, between the and me this day; and this totehil which the Lord seeth (sayd he) be wytnesse between me and the.
Bible, 1549. Gen. xxxi. (48.)
Forsothe Dauid took the tote hil (arcem) Syon; that is the citee of Dauid. Forsothe Dauid dwellide in the tote hil, and clepide it the citee of Dauid. (L. V. tour, arce.)
Wic. Is. xxi. 5, 8. Specula, 2 Kings v. 7, 9.
And these thingus forsothe seide the Lord to me, Go, and put a tootere (speculatorem), and whateuere thing he shal see telle he.—Id. Ib. xxi. 6.
The other side ben pore and pale—
Who toteth on hem!
Chaucer. Plowmans Tale, v. 2014.
For in your court is many a losengeour,
And many a queint toteler accusour,
That tabouren in your eres many a soun
Right after hir imaginacioun.
Id. Legend of Good Women Prol. v. 353.

TOOTH, s. D. and Sw. Tand; Ger. Zan. Wachter and Ihre notice the Persian Dandan, Gr. ὀ-δοντ-ες, Lat. Dent-es. And see Tugga in Ihre.

TOP.
And thou mow not be heelid fro the sole of the foot til to the top. (E. V. nol, verticem.)—Wic. Deut. xxviii. 35.

TOPAZ.
Wisdam forsothe is drawen of hidde thingis; ne ther shal be maad euene to it topasie (topazius) of Ethiope.
Wic. Job xxviii. 19.

TOPSY-TURVY. When the head or top is where the feet or bottom should be, q. d. tops in turves. Tops or heads in the turf; heads strewed on the ground. Skinner.

TORET, i. e. Turret, qv.

TORMENT.
In what nature soever they are (malice, and envy, and revenge), they are as vexatious and tormentful to itself, as they are troublesome and mischievous to others.
Tillotson, v. iii. p. 192, fo. ed.

TORRENT, adj. See Milton, in v. Rapture.

TORRID. See SINGE, supra.

TORT. Torcencious, in Chaucer; Using extortion. Speght.

TOTTER.

God be thanked I am much better than I was, though something of a totterer.
Swift. Journal, April 21, 1711. Let. 21.

TOUCHABLE. See TREATABLE, from Wiclif, in v. Treat.

TOUGH.

And thei hadden tiles for stoons, and towȝ cley (L. V. pitch, bitumen) for syment.—Wic. Gen. xi. 3.

TOUGHT, i. e. Tight, qv.

The king glosede her, and ther and made it some del tourt (i. e. tought).—Robert of Gloucester, v. 510.

Than shul this churle, with bely styffe and tought
As any tabour, hither ben ybrought.
Chaucer. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7849.

But now the ramme vpon the rampiers sleepe,
On mighty beames his head aduanced hath,
With dreadful hornes of iron tought tree great,
The wals and bulwarks trembled at the threat.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xi. st. 37.

TOUK. }
TOUKER. } See TUCK.

TOURET, or }
TORETTE. } Fr. Touret. A ring.

(Hounds) folwed him; with mosel fast ybound;
Colered with gold, and torettes filed round.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2154.

Thine astrolabye hath a ringe. This ringe runneth in manner of a turet.—Id. Astrolabie.

TOW.

Ac (thow) fir at a flynt
Foure hundred wynter,
But thow haue tow to take it with,
Tonder or broches,
Al thi labour is lost.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11855.

He hadde more tawe on his distaf,
Than Gerveis knew.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3772.

TOWEL.

And Phebus eke a faire towail him brought
To drie him with (Crœsus).
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14663.

And on his mete borde there shal ben borde clothes and towelles many paire.—Id. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

TOWN. See TYNE, infra.

The firste seide, I haue bouȝt a toun (villam), and I haue nede to go out, and to se it; I preie thee, haue me excused.
Wic. Luke xiv. 18.

TRACES. With which a horse or other animal draws.

And as the guise was in his contree,
Ful highe upon a char of gold stood he;
With foure white bolles in the trais.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2141.

TRADE. Junius says, The trade of life, is the way of life,—via vitæ, ὁδος βιȣ—the path pursued to support life. In Dan. Traad, or traad sti, from træde, gradi, caleare; and that the English trade, is the same.

His forward spirit
Would lift him where most trade of danger rang'd.
Shakespeare. King Henry IV. Pt. II. act i. sc. 1.

He (Cromwell) stands in the gap and trade of more preferments.—Id. King Henry VIII. act v. sc. 1.

Rich. Or Ile be buried in the kings high-way,
Some way of common trade, where subjects feet
May hourely trample on their soveraignes head.
Id. King Richard II. act iii. sc. 3.

The winds, when we came to a distance from the shore, seemed to be more steadily against us, blowing almost trade, as we call it, from E. and E. N. E.
Defoe. Robinson Crusoe.

TRADITOR, i. e. Traitor, qv.

I had such experience of one before, who, instead of keeping the flock within the fold, encouraged them to stray—that I was afraid of a traditour.
Ken's Prose Works. Let. xxxvi. p. 81.

TRAGEDY.

Tragedie is to saine, a ditee of prosperite for a tyme that endeth in wretchednesse.—Chaucer. Boecius, b. ii. p. 2.

TRAJET, TRAGETOUR. In Wiclif's Bible, Deut. xviii. 11, Incantator is in the var. r. rendered Enchauntere or Tregitorer.

TRAIL.

For the trailynge of his (Peacock's) tail,
Overtaken is he soone.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 7913.

TRAIN.

The squadrons of the Carthaginians gave ground for the nonce to traine the enemie as farre as the side of the hill.
Holland. Livius, p. 558.

TRAITOR. See TRASH, infra.

He that sekith the lawe schal be fillid therof; and he that doith tretourousli, schal be sclaundrid ther ynne. (L. V. aspiendli, insidiose.)—Wic. Ecclus. xxxii. 19.

TRAMP.

A man apostata . . twinclith with the eȝen, he tramplith (L. V. trampith, terit) with the foot, with the fingir he spekith.—Wic. Prov. vi. 13.

TRANCE. Transition and Transitional, are now common terms—especially in geology.

O where is al the transitorye fame,
Where is your boste?
Lyfe of our Ladye, c. 6, col. 1. Caxton.

Are we not all predestined transiency,
And cold dishonour!—Coleridge. Remorse, A. iii. sc. 2.

TRANSCEND.

All relative and adventive (adventitias) conditions and characters of essences, we have named transcendents (transcendentes), as multitude, paucity, identity, diversity, possible, impossible, and such like.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iii. c. 4.

The most universal conceptions of things are usually stiled transcendental, metaphysicall.
Wilkins. Real Character, pt. ii. c. 1.

TRANSCRIBE, v.

Aristotle tells us, that the world is a copy or transcript of those ideas, which are in the mind of the first Being, and that those ideas, which are in the mind of man, are a transcript of the world; to this we may add, that words are the transcript of those ideas, which are in the mind of man, and that writing and printing are the transcript of words.
Addison. Spectator, No. 166.

TRANS-CUR, v.

I speake plurally through my whole transcursion (voyage).—J. Raymond. Il Mercurio Italico, 1646 and 1647.

TRANS-FIGURE, v.

One noble stroke . . . . . .
May deify the canvas till it shine
With beauty so surpassing all below,
That they who kneel to idols so divine
Break no commandment, for high heaven is there
Transfused, transfigurated.
Byron. Proph. of Dante, c. iv.

TRANS-GRESS.

'Tis time my hard mouthed coursers to controul,
Apt to run riot, and transgress the goal.
Dryden. Ovid, b. xv. The Pythagorean Philosophy.

TRANS-HUMAN. Beyond human.

Words may not tell of that transhuman change.
Cary. Dante. Purgatory, b. i. v. 68.

TRANSIENT. }
TRANSIT. }
TRANSITION. } See TRANCE.

TRANS-LATE.

That translatide hillis, and these wisten not. (L. V. bar fro o place to another, transtulit.)—Wic. Job ix. 9.

I hadde ben as I were not—fro the wombe translatid. (L. V. ether borun ouer.)—Id. Ib. x. 19.

When Maty has done with the copy, &c. you must return it (specimen of Homer) to my translatorship.
Cowper to Lady Hesketh, Feb. 11, 1786.

TRANS-LUCENT. See TRANS-PARENT.

TRANS-PARENT. Transparent is equivalent to translucent; but not translucent to transparent. Glass is both; a mirror is only the latter.

TRANSPECIATE, v. To change from one species (qv.) to another.

I do not credit those transformations of reasonable creatures into beasts—or that the devil hath power to transpeciate a man into a horse, who tempted Christ (as a trial of his divinity) to convert but stones into bread.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § xxx.

TRANSVERBERATE, v. Lat. Transverberare. To beat or strike through.

The appetencies of matter, and the most universal passions (passiones) in either globe are exceeding potent, and transverberate (transverberant) the universal nature of things.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iv. c. 3.

TRAP. Trappers, written Trappures by Chaucer. See in v. Tester.

It is plain you understand trap, as we used to say at school.—Cowper to Bagot, Dec. 1, 1790.

He (J. Johnson) understands booksellers' trap as well as any man.—Id. to Lady Hesketh, Dec. 15, 1785.

TRASHED. Betrayed. Tyrwhitt. See TRAITOR and BETRASHED.

Her (Idlenesse) acquaintaunce is perillous;
First soft, and after-full noious:
She hath the trashed without wene.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3231.

TRATE. See TROT.

TRAVAIL. Qy. Shakespeare, Othello, act i. sc 3. Travel's history—travailous history; see the word in the Quotation from Wiclif.

Myn affliccioun and the traueil of myn hondis (laborem) the Lord bihelde.—Wic. Gen. xxxi. 49.

Forwhi, bodili exercitatioun or traueling, or abstinence (exercitatio) to litil thing is profytable.—Id. 1 Tim. iv. 8.

Sones camen til to the childberyng, and the traveler of childe. (L. V. childberere, parturiens.)
Id. 4 Kings xix. 3.

As an herte desireth shadewe, and as an hirid man abideth the ende of his werk; so and I hadde voide monethis, and travailous (laboriosas) nygtis I noumbride out to me.—Id. Job vii. 3.

Therfore sey to the sones of Yrael, Y, The Lord, that shal lede you out of the traveilous prisoun (ergastulo) of Egipciens.—Id. Ex. vi. 6.

The crockere, the nesshe erthe threstende (premens) trauailously (laboriosè) maketh to oure uses eche vessel.
Id. Wis. xv. 7.

Plato to thilk brynk of Itali, the which sum tyme was seid Grete Grece, ful traveilousli ȝede.
Id. Bible. Pref. Ep. p. 61.

TRAVEL. See TRAVAIL.

TRAVERSE.

Truthe that trespased nevere,
Ne traversed ayeins the lawe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8002.

TRAY, v. i. e. Betray. See TRAITOR.

I am trayid (L. V. takun, traditus sum) and I wente not out.—Wic. Ps. lxxxvii. 10.

Lo! Demophon . . . . .
How he forswore him falsely;
And trayed Phyllis wickedly.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. i. v. 390.

This lechecraft . . . . . .
Were well fitting, if that I were a fiend,
To traien a wight, that true is unto me.
Id. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 437.

TREACHER. See Piers Plouhman in v. Trifler, infra.

TREAD, v.

No man shal mowe withstonde to thee, to the tyme that thow al-to trede hem. (L. V. al-to breke, conteras.)
Wic. Deut. vii. 24.

I shal breke doun his wal, and it shal ben in to to-tredyng (L. V. defoulyng, conculcationem); and I shal setten it desert.—Id. Is. v. 5.

Wyn in the presse he shal not trede, that to treden was wont; the vois of the tredares I toc awey. (L. V. wringeres, calcantium.)—Id. Ib. xvi. 10.

Thou woldest han ben a trede-foul a right,
Haddest thou as grete leve, as thou hast might,
To parfourme all thy lust.
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 13951.

TREAT.

Forsothe ȝe han not come to the tretable fyer. (L. V. able to be touchid; var. r. toucheable, tractabilem.)
Wic. Heb. xii. 18.

When Calchas knew this tretise (treaty) should yholde
In consistorie.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 64.

Here endeth the thirde traytye (treatise).
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, d. 1². Caxton.

They had treated (i. e. entreated) the Erle of Derby to be their kynge.—Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 742.

TREE. Piers Plouhman (as below) writes the pl. trowes. In Wiclif and Chaucer, tree is wood. In Wiclif treen is wooden, and the tree worker, lignarius opifex; and in Chaucer, Cristes tre is the cross; the rood.

That there be corrupte rennyng bloode in al the loond of Egipte, as wel in treen vessel as in stony. (L. V. vessels of tree, ligneis.)—Wic. Ex. vii. 19.

Ful wel ye know, a lord in his houshold
Ne hath not every vessell all of gold,
Som ben of tree.
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Prol. v. 5682.

What Absolon? What—Cristes swete tre!
Why rise ye so rath?—Id. The Milleres Tale, v. 3765.

A quiet, treeless nook, with two green fields.
Wordsworth. Excursion, b. ii.

Thus through all the stages thou hast push'd
Of treeship; first a seedling, hid in grass;
Then twig; then sapling.—Cowper. Yardley Oak.

TREGETOUR. See TRAJET.

TREND. Is in Tooke's Index Expurgatorius. (See in Todd.) To trendle is, to trundle.

Y saw; a swenen, and it seemed to me as a loof of barlich maad undir asshen to be trendlid (L. V. walewid, volvi) and into the tentis of Madyan to goo doun.
Wic. Judges vii. 13.

And Y schal cumpas as a round trendil (E. V. bal, sphæram) in thi cumpasse, and Y schal caste erthes ayens thee.—Id. Is. xxix. 3.

TRENTAL.

Trentals, sayd he, deliveren fro penance,
Hir frendes soules, as wel olde as yonge.
Chaucer. The Sompnoures Tale, v. 7306.

TREPEGET. A military engine. Mr. Tyrwhitt refers to Trebuchetum in Du Cange, who explains, with Cotgrave, A large engine or machine for throwing stones and battering walls. See also Roquefort.

Withouten stroke it might be toke
Of trepeget or mangonell.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 628.

A Frenchman for his aim
He chose, who kneeling by the trebuchet
Charged its long sling with death.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. xiii. v. 198.

TRESS. } Low Lat. Tressorium; Fr. Tres-
TRESSOUR. } soir.

And with a riche golde tresour,
Her hedde was tressed full queintly.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 568.

TRESSEL. In Wiclif's Bible, Ex. xxvi. 20, 25, the Lat. bases is in the texts rendered foundementis; in var. r. trestlis.

TRETIS, adj. i. e. Traictis. Roquefort. Well proportioned, Tyrwhitt. And see Menage.

Hire (the Prioresse's) nose was tretis.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales, Prol. v. 152.

As white as lilie or rose in rise,
Her face was gentil and tretise.
Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1016.

TREW. See TRUE, TRUCE.

TRIACLE. See TREACLE.

TRIBULATION. The Vulg. Lat. Tribulatio is from the Gr. θλιψις, from θλιβειν, to rub; to afflict, to distress. TRIBULATION, or AFFLICTION. So applied by ecclesiastical writers from the classic Lat. Tribulare, to draw a tribule or tribulum (an implement or instrument, quo (frumentum) teritur, Varro,) over the corn in the ear, and by attrition separating the grain from the husk or chaff. Tribulare proprie est hominem calamitatibus terere haud secus ac spicæ tribula teruntur. Voss. See Trench. On the Study of Words, Lect. i.

TRICE, v. i. e. Thrust.

By God! out of his seat I will him trice.
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14443.

TRICHOTOMY. A cutting into three. See DICHOTOMY.

His (Aristotle's) trichotomy into hypotheses, definitions, and axioms, as to what belongs to the members of the divisions in general, and with respect to every science, seems to be most perfect; but as to the explication, otherwise.—Barrow. Math. Lec. viii. p. 119.

TRIDENT.

Nor Juno less then endured, when erst the bold
Son of Amphytrion with tridental shaft
Her bosom pierced.—Cowper. Iliad, b. 5, v. 468.

TRIFLE.

A! Peres, quath I tho,
I pray the thou me telle
More of thise tryflers.
How trechurly they libbeth.
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 945.

Forsothe prine-desceyuyng of trifling (fascinatio nugacitatis) derkneth good thingus.—Wic. Wis. iv. 12.

TRIMMER.

The innocent word, trimmer, signifies no more than this: That if men are together in a boat, and one part of the company should weigh it down on one side, another would make it lean down as much to the contrary; it happens there is a third opinion of those, who conceive it would do as well if the boat went even without endangering the passengers.—Halifax (Marquess). Character of a Trimmer. Preface.

TRINE-COMPASS, i. e. the Trinity; apparently derived from the common emblem of that mystery, a circle circumscribing a triangle. Tyrw.

The eternal love and pees,
That of trine compas Lord and gide is.
Chaucer. The Second Nonnes Tale, v. 15513.

TRINKET.

No trinketry on front, or neck or breast,
Marring the perfect form.
Southey. Curse of Kehama, b. xiii. v. 13.

TRIST.

He loketh how his tyme is lore,
And is so wo begone therfore,
That he within his thought conceiueth
Tristesse, and so himself deceiueth,
That . . . .—Gower. Conf. Am. b. iv. fo. 81[4].
Now hath he ben my synguler refute (refuge)
To my trystesse.
Lyfe of our Ladye, a. iiii, c. 1. Caxton.

TRIST. See TRUST.

TRISTE. A post or station in hunting. Tyrwhitt. Speght, A mark (meta). And see Skinner.

Lo! holde the at thy triste close, and I
Shal wel the dere anto thy bowe ydrive.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1534.

TRIUMPH. To triumph, to conquer.

So oft they (Satan's compeers) fell
Into the same illusion, not as man,
Whom they triumphed, once lost.
Milton. Par. L. b. x. v. 592.

TROLL.

And thus hath he trolled forth
Thise two and thritty wynter.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12676.

TROMP, &c. See TRUMPET.

TRONCHEON. See TRUNCHEON, in v. Truncate, in Dictionary.

TROT.

Fals sat on a sisour
That softeli trotted.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1213.
This Sompnour clappeth at the widewes gate:
Come out, he sayd, thou olde very trate,
I trow thou hast som frere or preest with thee.
Chaucer. The Freres Tale, v. 7164.

TROUBLE.

And a greet troubling (E. V. sturbling; var. r. turbling, turbatio) was maad in that dai, of the weie of the Lord.
Wic. Deeds xix. 23.

They shul crien to the Lord fro the face of the trublere (tribulantis), and he shal send to them a sauueour, and a forfi3tere, that delyuere them.—Id. Is. xix. 20.

At Gessury fro the trubli flood (L. V. troblid, turbido) that weetith Egipt, vnto the teermys of Accharon ayens the North.—Id. Joshua xiii. 3.

TROW. See the Quotation from Ford, in Dictionary. Truage—pledge of truth, or truce granted (on payment of tax). Also, the tax.

Thow shalt drede ny3t and day, and thow shalt not trowe to thi lyf. (L. V. bileue, credetis.)
Wic. Deut. xxviii. 66.

As we do by Jues who dwelleth by truage under us.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 139.

TROWEL.

And the Lord saide to me, What seest thou, Amos? And Y saide, A truel (trulla) of masoun.—Wic. Amos vii. 8.

TRUAND. Truandise is written Trowandise by Chaucer in Rom. of the Rose, v. 3954.

TRUCE.

Sens, wel ye wote, that it is nowe a treuce,
Ye shal ful wel al mine estate yhere;
And ere that truce is done, I shal ben here.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 1312.

TRUCHMAN.

His truchmen now, and now hemselfe doth say
What speyle his folke shall gaine, &c.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xx. st. 24.

TRUE. See TROW.

TRUNK.

Take a trunk, and let one whistle at one end, and hold your ear at the other, and you shall find the sound strike so sharp as you can scarce endure it.
Bacon. Natural History, § 138.

TRUSS.

Under his hed no pilowe was,
But in the stede a trusse of gras.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 4004.

TRUST.

Wo! that gon doun in to Egipt to helpe, in hors hopende, and hauende trost (L. V. trist, fiduciam) vpon foure horsid carres.—Wic. Is. xxxi. 1.

And ther shul be fed the first goten of pore men, and pore men trostly shul resten. (L. V. feithfulli, fiduciaiter.)—Id. Ib. xiv. 30.

And in this tristnynge (L. V. tristyng, confidentia) I wolde firste come to 3ou.—Id. 2 Cor. i. 15. And Eph. iii. 12, E. V. trustnynge; L. V. tristenyng, fiducia.

TRUTCH. See TRUCHMAN.

And about my hearse,
For a trutch sword, my naked knife stick up.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Woman Hater, act i. sc. 3.

TRY. Trie tree,—choice, as tried, proved.

It is a ful trie tree, quod he,
Trewely to telle.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10800.

TUCK. Toukere is in Wiclif used as Fuller or Walkere in various readings.

Cloth that cometh fro the weyyng
Is noght comly to were
Til it be fulled under foot,
Y-touked and y-teynted.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10533.

Thei stoden bisidis the water cundijt of the hi3ere cistern, which is in the weie of the fullere, ethir toukere (fullonis).
Wic. 4 Kings xviii. 17.

Thy grace by bering may set the in such plight, that no jangling may greeue the least tucke of thy hemmes.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

TUCK, s. A net used in the pilchard fishery, to draw up the fish confined in the seine.

TUITION.

Daniel was of age sufficient at his carrying away to Babylon to have been some time before under the discipline and tuterage of that prophet (Jeremiah).
Prideaux. Con. pt. i. b. 4.

TULL, v. Tyrwhitt, To allure; Qy. toil, or, take in a toil.

Gar us have mete and drinke, and make us chere;
And we sal paien, trewely, at the full;
With empty hand men may na haukes tull.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 4132.

TUMBLE.

Thei seyden to hym, This is sche, that Jezabel. And he seyde to hem, Tumblith hyre down (L. V. caste 3e, præcipitate), and thei tumbliden hyre.—Wic. 4 Kings ix. 33.

With a leperesse or tumblere (L. V. daunceresse, saltatrice) be thou not besy, ne here hir. Lest par auenture thou pershe in the delynere doyng of hir.
Id. Ecclus. ix. 4.

TUNE.

He taught hir
Many a tewne, and many a note,
Upon musike, upon measure.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 178[3].

TUP.

The mountain rams topt your hot mothers.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Bonduca, act iii. sc. 5.

TURBID.

In the secund turbe was Maister Coradyn.
Robert of Brunne, v. 188.

And alle the tourbe of deuellis fleying in the ayer fledde backwarde.—The Golden Legend, fo. 24, col. 4.

TURMENT. See TORMENT.

TURN, s.

For coveitise . . . .
Men of holy kirke
Shul torne as templers dide.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10637.

And with oedre al the hows within was clothid, havynge al his turnours (L. V. smethenessis, tornaturas) and his iuneturis forgid.—Wic. 3 Kings vi. 18; and v. 29, turnynge, tornus.

The Lord mengd in his myddel (Egipt's) the spirit of turngidy. (L. V. errour, vertiginis.)—Id. Is. xix. 14.

TWAIN.

The word of God is more able to perse than any tweyne eggid sword (anceps).—Wic. Heb. iv. 12.

A male tweifold on his croper lay,
It semed that he caried lefel array.
Chaucer. The Chan. Yem. Prol. v. 16033.

The pretty shame
Of babe, that tempts and shuns the menaced kiss,
From its twy-clustered hiding place of snow.
Coleridge. The Pang more sharp, &c.

She had there been left
A guard upon the wain, which I beheld
Bound to the twyform beast (the gryphon).
Cary. Dante. Purgatory, b. xxxii. v. 95.

TWICE.

I nam noght shryven som time,
Nought tweys in two yer.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3315.

Enhaunсing, and pride, and shreude weie, and the mouth of the twisil tunge (L. V. double tungid, bilinguis) I wlate (loath).—Wic. Prov. viii. 13, et aliter.

Repref forsothe and strif the euel man shal eritagen, and eche synnere enuyous and twisil tungid. (L. V. double tungid.)—Id. Ecclus. vi. 1.

And many a Jacke of Dover hast thou sold,
That hath been twies hot and twies cold.
Id. The Cokes Prol. v. 4346.

They (Centaurs) their twy-fold bosoms overgorg'd,
Oppos'd in fight to Theseus.
Cary. Dante. Purgatory, b. xxiv. v. 121.

TWIG.

Heel-tap. Now twig him, now mind him.
Foote. The Mayor of Garratt, A. ii.

TWIN.

The girdil forsothe of bijs foldun a3en, iacynct, purpur, and reed clooth, twynned with nedle craft. (L. V. departid.)
Wic. Ex. xxxix. 28.

Now tyme of beryng was comen; and loo! twynlingis (gemini) in the woombe of hir weren foundun.
Id. Gen. xxv. 24.

We may rede and see like thyng in the lyuyng and the condicõns of the bretheren gemellys callid twynlynges.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, g². Caxton, 1481.

TWINK.

A man apostata . . . . twinclith (L. V. bekenith, annuit) with the e3en; he tramplith with foot.—Wic. Prov. vi. 13.

The twynclere (annuens) with the e3e forgeth wicke thingus.—Id. Eccl. xxvii. 25.

TWISSEL, s. "A double fruit, or two of a sort growing together." Nares. See TWICE.

As from a tree, we sondrie times espie
A twissel grow by Nature's subtile might,
And beeing two, for cause they grow so nie,
For one are tane.—Turberville. The Louer wisheth, &c.

TWIST, s. A twig. In Wiclif, a hinge; in Chaucer and Fairefax, a twig.

And the herris, ether twistis (cardines), of the temple shuln gretely soune, in that day, saith the Lord God.
Wic. Amos viii. 3.

He stoupeth doun; and on his back she stood
And caught by a twist, and up she goth.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Tale, v. 10223.

A murdrer, if thou cut one twist, art thou (sc. in the enchanted grove).
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, st. xiii. v. 43.

TWIT. Edwite, edwiting, occurs in various readings of Wiclif, where the text reads upbraid, upbraiding.

His wif gan edwyte hym tho',
How wikkedly he lived.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3213.

Dispise thou not a man turnynge awei hem silf from synne, nether upbreide (var. r. edwite, improperes) thou hym.—Wic. Ecclus. viii. 6.

TWO. See TWAINE.

The tunge of hir (a strumpet, is) sharp as a twei bitende swerd (keruing on ech side, biceps).—Wic. Prov. v. 4.

TYGURY, i. e. Tugury. Lat. Tugurium, from tegere, to cover.

Oh blessyd tygurye or little house.
The Golden Legend, fo. 10, c. 2. Caxton.

TYKE. See TIKE.

TYMPAN.

Take 3e a Psalm, and 3yue 3e a tympan. (E. V. timbre, tympanum.)—Wic. Ps. lxxx. 3.

The princis camen befor ioyned with the singeris; in the myddel of the 3unge wymmen tympanistris (tympanistræ).—Id. Ib. lxvii. 26.

TYND, v. To shut. See TOWN.

TYNE, v. See TOWN, in Dictionary.

Loth gon out to hem bihynde the rigge, and tyndynge to the door (occludens) seith.—Wic. Gen. xix. 6.

TYRAN.

Forsothe it bihouede to them, hauntende tiraundise (L. V. vsynge tirauntrie, tyrranniden) deth to comen on.
Wic. Wis. xvi. 4.

Sotheli the residu of the wordis of Zamri, and of his tresouns, and tyrantrie (E. V. tyraundise), whether these ben not writun in the book of wordis of daies of kyngis of Israel?—Id. 3 Kings xvi. 20.

V. U.

VACUITY. See VACATE.

VAGABOND.

When thou tyllest the grounde she shall henceforth not geue hyr power vnto thee. A vagabunde and a rennagate shalt thou be vpon the earth.
Tyndale. Bible. Gen. c. iv. (1534).

VAGARY. VAGRANT.

Fro thi face I shal be hid, and I shal be vagaunt, and fer fugitif in the erthe. (L. V. unstable of dwellyng, vagus.)
Wic. Gen. iv. 14. Also in Prov. v. 6, vii. 11.

VAGUE, s.

Theyr wanton vagys.—Skelton. Magnyfycence, v. 1968.

VAIL. AVALE. To Vail bonnet, or to bonnet, qv. is to pull off the bonnet; opposed to standing with the bonnet on, i. e. unbonnetted, qv.

VAIL, s. A casual emolument; a wind*fall*. Tooke gives two instances of this noun, from the Schole of Cyrus, translated by William Bercker, 1567. See MS. note in Skinner — in British Museum.

Wee departed before sunne rising and valed down the riuer, sometime sailing, and sometime rowing.
Hackluyt. Voyages, v. i. Southam and Spark, § xxiii.

VAIL. AVAIL.

Y beseche, Lord my king, vaile my pre3eres (L. V. my preyer be worth, valeat) in thi sig3t.—Wic. Jer. xxxvii. 19.

It may not helpe playnely, ne vayle,
For of thy purpoos playnly thou shalt fayle.
Lyfe of our Ladye, k. 5². Caxton.

VAIN.

Vanite of vanitees, seide Ecclesiastes, Vanite of vanytes, and alle thingus vanyte.—Wic. Ecc. i. 2.

VALIANT. Fuller writes, A valiant (i. e. strong) smell of garlick.

VALID.

If the power of an usurper is capable of being validated by the subsequent voluntary sanction of those over whom it is usurped, Cæsar had now that ratification.
Tytler. Universal History, b. iv. c. 2.

VALUE.

For gode dede done thorough prayire (intreaty)
Is solde and bought to dere, i-wis,
To hert that of grete valure is.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5289.

VAMP.

Although our predecessors went (to be installed) upon cloth right sumptuously, we do intend, God willing, to go afoot, without any such glory, in the vamps of our hosen.
Wolsey, A. D. 1539. Tytler, Henry VIII. p. 237.

VANISH.

But thei vanyscheden (evanuerunt) in her thou3tis, and the vnwyse herte of hem is derkid or maad derk.
Wic. Rom. i. 21.

VANQUISH.

And whiddeer euere he (Saul) turnede hym silf, he venkused (superwit).—Wic. 1 Kings xiv. 47.

VAPID.

After the violent ferment in the nation, as remarkable a deadness and vapidity has succeeded.
Burke to Mr. Shackleton, July 31, 1771.

VARY.

Rere up thin eyen, and se alle the malis steying up vpon the femalis, varye (varios), and sprynklid, and spottid.
Wic. Gen. xxxi. 12.

VAVASOUR.

Others serued on horseback, and were called radknights, or knight riders, as Bracton noteth: and these I take to be Vavasours, noted in the Conqueror's laws; for that their relief is a helmet, a coat of mail, a shield, a spear, and a horse.—N. Bacon. Historical Discourse, c. xxxi. p. 76.

VAULT.

Thou voltest it aboue with waters; thou makest the cloudes thy charet.—Bible, 1549. Ps. civ.

VAUNT.

And eke I knowe, of longe time agone,
His thewes gode, and that he n'is not nice,
No vauntour, saine men, certain he is none;
To wise is he to doen so grete a vice.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 724.

For she had led
The infatuate Moor, in dangerous vaunting,
To these aspiring forms.
Southey. Don Roderick, § xx.

VEER. VER. See VERNAL.

VEIN.

The clotered blood, for any leche-craft,
Corrumpeth, and is in his bouke (bulk) ylaft,
That neyther veine-blood, ne ventousing,
Ne drinke of herbes, may ben his helping.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2749.

VENCUSE. See VANQUISH.

VEND.

Licias—camen a3einus Jewis—demynge hymself to haunynge the temple in to wynnynge of money, as other templis of heithen men, and by eche 3eeris prestehode vendible or able to be soold (venale).—Wic. 2 Mac. xi. 2.

VENGE. Written Venie, Veniaunce, &c. in Wiclif and others.

For he schal venie (E. V. wreek, ulciscetur) the blood of his seruauntis, and he schal 3elde veniaunce (vindictam) in to the enemyes of hem.—Id. Ib. xxxii. 43.

To whiche he answeride, Whether 3e ben the venieris (E. V. wrechers, ultores) of Baal that 3e fi3te for him.
Id. Judges vi. 31.

Forsothe, who the wordis of hym that spekith in my name wol not here, I veniesour (L. V. vengere, ultor) shal be.—Wic. Deut. xviii. 19.

And the three goddesses, and vengeresses (ultrices) of felonies, that tourmenten and agasten the soules, by anoy woxen sorrowfull, and sory, and teares wepten for pitee.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. iii. Met. 12.

VENIAL.

Contricion dooth but dryveth it down
Into a venial synne.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9099.

VENKUSE, i. e. Vanquish, qv.

VENOM.

3it the fornycacioun of Je3abel, thi modir, and hyr many venymyngis thryven (venefica).
Wic. 4 Kings ix. 22.

Which schal not here the vois of charmeris, and of a venym makere (venefici), charmynge wiseli.
Id. Ps. lvii. 6.

VENT. In Chaucer (Tyrwhitt), the forepart, from Fr. Avant, before. See in Dictionary.

VENTILATE, v. Met.—To winnow, to sift, to discuss—an old usage (see in Dictionary) lately revived.

VENUE.

To perfect virtue, as to religion, there is required a panoplia, or complete armour; that whilst we lie at close ward against one vice, we lie not open to the veny of another.—Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 55.

VER, or VEER. See VERNAL.

VERAY. } See VERY.
VERAMENT. }

VERDEGRESE. Is named as one of the things appertaining to the Chanons craft, Chan. Yem. Tale, v. 16258.

VERGE. } In Chaucer, the inclosure, the gar-
VERGER. } den.

And by the honde withoutin doubt
Within the hale, right all about,
He lad me with a right gode chere,
All environ on the vergere
That Daunger had me chaced fro.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3618.

VERGE. To turn. Add the following Quotations omitted—

The farther we go on, especially in a bad course, the nearer we verge to the dregs of our life; the more dry, the more stiff, the more sluggish we grow: delay doth therefore steal away the flour of our age, leaving us the bran and refuse thereof.—Barrow, vol. iii. Serm. 17, p. 188

Let fortune empty her whole quiver on me,
I have a soul, that like an empty shield
Can take in all; and verge enough for more.
Dryden. Don Sebastian, act i. sc. 1.

Wish'd Spring returns; and from the hazy south,
While dim Aurora slowly moves before,
The welcome sun, just verging up at first,
By small degrees extends the swelling curve.
Thomson. Winter.

This shews that the Cape de Verde Islands are either extensive enough to break the current of the trade wind, or that they are situated just beyond its verge.
Cook. Third Voyage, b. i. c. 3.

VERMEIL.

Forsothe of iacynt, and purpur, vermyloun (vermiculo, L. V. vermicle), and bijs, he made clothis.
Wic. Ex. xxxix. 1.

Full faire it sprad (the Rose)
(And) soche another as I gesse
Aforne, ne was, ne more vermaile.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3645.

VERNAGE.

He (January) drinketh Ippocras, clarre, and vernage,
Of spices hot, to encresen his corage.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Tale, v. 9681.

VERNAL.

And he goon out thens, com in veer time (verno tempore) to the loond that ledith to Effratam.—Wic. Gen. xxxv. 16.

As the ayenshynende bowe betweene the litle cloudis of glorie, and as the flour of roses in the dayes of ver (vernis).
Id. Ecclus. l. 8.

The time
Of Aprill, when clothed is the mede,
With new grene, of lustie veer the prime.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 157.

VERRE, s. Fr. Verre. Glass.

Ne beholde thou the win, when it floureth (L. V. sparclith), whan schal shine in the verr (vitro) the colour of it.
Wic. Prov. xxiii. 31.

Who that hath an hedde of verre
Fro cast of stones ware him in the werre.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 867.

VERSE.

The whiche thing versifiures more than a symple redere vnderstanden.—Wic. Pref. to Job, p. 671.

So the versor of a mariner's needle applies itself to the poles of the world.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. v. c. 2.

VERY.

These sothely (ben) the mesures of the auter in a cubit most verre. (L. V. in a verieste cubit, cubito verissimo).
Wic. Ez. xliii. 13.

Verrei forsothe that frenship is, and thurȝ the glew of Crist cowplid.—Wic. Bib. Pref. Ep. p. 61.

Poverte a spectakel is, as thinketh me,
Thurgh which he may his veray frendes see,
Chaucer. Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6786.

VESPILLOE. Lat. Vespillo. One who carried out the dead for burial in the evening (in vespertino tempore).

By raking into the bowels of the deceased, continual sight of anatomies, skeletons, or cadaverous reliques, like vespilloes, or grave diggers, I am (not) become stupid, nor have I forgot the apprehension of mortality.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. 1, § xxxviii.

VEST.

I clothid me as (with) a vestyment (vestimento), and with a diademe.—Wic. Job xxix. 14.

Forsothe, thei wenten in a swift paase in the hows of a manner man in Bahurym, that had a pit in his vestiary. (L. V. place, vestibulo.)—Id. 2 Kings xvii. 18.

VIAGE—as Voyage,—by land or water.

This is the point, to speke it plat and plain,
That eche of you, to shorten with youre way,
In this viage shal tellen tales two.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales. Prol. v. 794.

VICAR.

The viker hadde fer (to go) hoom.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13924.

Thanne is many a man lost,
Quod a lewed vicory.—Id. Ib. v. 13782.

Netheles he (an yuel prelate) scorneth God and takith the office of his vikeried, and chargith not of his onour.
Wic. Ecclus. xxxiii. 6, note.

Sire Preest, quod he, art thou a vicary?
Or art thou a person? say soth, by thy fay.
Chaucer. Persones Prol. v. 17333.

VICE.

The bones of hym shul be fulfild with vicis (vitiis) of his wexende ȝouthe.—Wic. Job xx. 11.

VICE. A tool.

The door of the mydil pile in the wal was of the hows of the riȝt side; and by a vyce (cochlea) thei stieden vp into the mydil sowpynge place, fro the mydil into the thridde.
Wic. 3 Kings vi. 8.

VICTUAL.

Ther is right at the west side of Itaille,
A lusty plain—abundant of vitaille.
Chaucer. The Clerkes Tale, v. 7935.

VIE, v. Fr. Avier. To set on the way. See in Cotgrave.

VIGIL.

And vigilies and fastyng-dayes,
Alle thise late (let) I passe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3805.

It is ful fayre to ben ycleped Madame,
And for to gon to vigiles all before,
And have a mantel reallich ybore.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales Prol. v. 379.

VILE.

If a man takith a wiȝf, and hath hir, and sche fyndith not grace bifor hise iȝen for sum vilite he schal write a libel, ethir litil book, of forsakyng. (E. V. filthed, vilitatem.)—Wic. Deut. xxiv. 1.

And so it bifelle, that Antiok after fliȝt viliche turned aȝen. (E. V. loodly, turpiter.)—Id. 2 Mac. ix. 2.

VILLAIN.

For the men weren scheut full villenslȝ (turpiter).
Wic. 2 Kings x. 5.

For Vyllany maketh villayne,
And by his dedes a chorle is seynē.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2181.

These vyllayns arne without pite,
Frendship, and love, and al bounte.—Id. Ib.

VINDICATE.

They extol voluptuousness, wilfulness, vindicativeness, arbitrariness, vain glory.
Shaftesbury. Miscellanies, v. § 3, v. iii. p. 307.

VINE.

May no drinke me moiste,
Ne my thurst slake,
Til the vendage falle,
In the vale of Josaphat.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12820.

And Noe, a man erthe tylyer, bigan to exoercise the erthe, and he planted a vine. (L. V. vixer, vineam.)
Wic. Gen. ix. 20.

Grapes of thi first fruytis and vyndage (vindemiam) thou schalt not gedere.—Id. Lev. xxv. 5.

And he (Nabuȝardan) lefte of the pore men of the lond vyntilieris (E. V. wyne-makers, vinitores), and erthe tiliers.
Id. 4 Kings xxv. 12.

Forsoth it bihoveth a bischop for to be not wrathful, not vynolent, that is, moche ȝouun to wyn. (L. V. drunkelew, vinolentus.)—Id. Titus i. 7.

VIOLOUS. See VIOLATE.

VIRAGO.

And Adam, This is now a boon of my boonys, and fleisch of my fleisch; this schal be clepid virago, for she is takun of man. (L. V. mannus dede, virago.)—Wic. Gen. ii. 23.

VIRELAY.

Of swichè matere made he many layes,
Songes, complaintes, roundels, virelayes.
Chaucer. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11260.

VIRGIN.

Likest she seemed Pomona, when she fled
Vertumnus, or to Ceres in her prime,
Yet virgin of Proserpina to Jove.
Milton. Par. L. b. ix. v. 396.

VIRGULE. Fr. Virgule. A little rod, yard, streak; and thence also, a comma. Cotgrave. Lat. Virga, from virere, to grow.

In the MSS. of Chaucer, the line is always broken by a cæsura in the middle, which is pointed by a virgule.
Hallam. Literature of Europe, v. i. p. 593.

VIRON, i. e. Environ, qv.

We han redde in old stories sum men to han vyrounde prouynces. (L. V. go aboute.)—Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 61.

VIRTUE, s. It is worthy of remark that the adj. Virtuous, and the other sub-derivatives are all of modern formation. The Latin has none of them. Whereas those from the noun Vitium abound in that language. The verb to vitiate, is in common use, but not so—to virtuate. Johnson produces one instance from Harvey, and denounces it—not used. In this Dictionary there is one from Sandys, the learned translator of Ovid. Dr. Chalmers coins the verb to virtuefy. (See below.)

In Milton, the spirits both of Heaven and Hell are addressed by the appellation of virtues, i. e. powers. And see the Quotations from Wiclif, who uses virtues, from the Lat. Virtutes, where the modern version has "mighty works," from the Gr. δυναμεις.

And he (Alexander the Great) gadride vertu (virtutem) and ful stronge oost, and the herte of hym is enhaunsid and lift up.—Wic. 1 Mac. i. 4.

And Symont putte Joon his sone Duyk of all vertues (that is werriowris; mar. note, virtutum).—Id. Ib. xiii. 54.

As Plato said elegantly (in Menone) "That Virtue, if she could be seen, would move great love and affection;" so-seeing that she cannot be shewed to the sense by corporal shape, the next degree is, to shew her to the imagination in lively representation.
Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. ii.

It is this which virtuefies emotion, even though there be nothing virtuous, which is not voluntary.—Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. ii. c. 2. On the Connection between the Intellect and Will.

VISAGE.

For lacke of answere, non of us shul dien,
Al had ye seen a thing with both your eyen;
Yet shul we so visage (face) it hardely,
And wepe, and swere, and chiden subtilly,
That ye shul ben as lewed as ben gees.
Chaucer. The Marchantes Tale, v. 10147.

VISCOUNT.

Other courts also were in the countrey, and were vicontiel or courts of sheriffs, &c.
N. Bacon. Hist. Disc. c. lxi. p. 191.

VISIBLE.

Visible ideas are the language whereby the governing spirit on whom we depend, informs us, what tangible ideas he is about to imprint upon us, in case we excite this or that motion in our bodies.
Berkeley. Principles of Knowledge, § xliv.

VISUAL. See VISION.

VITAIL. See VICTUAL.

VITUPERATION.

Caton answerith, confoundith and repreuith them of the defaulte of vituperacyon opposed ayenst olde age.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, c. 8. Caxton.

Cecilyus saide of olde age—a thyng is no more vituperable and lothyng—thenne is the same that he seeith here below.
Id. Ib. c. 7; also c. 2.

ULTIMITY. See SUMMITY, supra. Quotation from Wats.

ULTION.

Thus to return upon our adversaries is a healing way of revenge; and to do good for evil a soft and melting ultion, a method taught from heaven to keep all smooth on earth.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. iii. § xii.

ULTRAGE. See OUTRAGE.

ULTRONEOUS, adj. Lat. Ultroneus, from Ultro, to a distance, forward, voluntarily. Key.

We have heard the epithet God-like annexed even to human virtue, in its best and loftiest exhibitions; and it must be confessed, that this is the highest of all possible designations. But God is not under the force or authority of any law, that is exoteric to himself. He stands at no bar of jurisprudence; and, save from the ultroneous repugnance to evil of his own native sanctity, there is no obligation upon him for the moralities of that supreme righteousness which marks all the doings and dispensations of heaven's Sovereign.
Chalmers, c. x. General Questions of Moral Science.

ULULATE.

The people now with saddest ululation flew.
Coleridge. Poetical Works, v. ii. p. 68, Mahomet.

UMBRAGE.

Wylt thou, that umbre (L. V. schadewe) steyge up tenn lynys, or that it be turned ageyn as fele grees (many degrees)?—Wic. 4 Kings xx. 9.

Whiche lytil volume I haue empryued ten, prynte under the umbre and shadowe of the noble proteccion of our moost dradde souerayn (Ed. 4).
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, n. 81.

If when we are secure from witnesses and accusers, and not obnoxious to the notices of the law, we think ourselves obliged by conscience and practice, and live accordingly: then our services and intentions in vertue are right; then we are past the twilights of conversion, and the umbrages of the world, and walk in the light of God, of his word, and of his Spirit.—J. Taylor. Sermons, v. ii. ser. xv. p. 143.

Without any accident that could give the least umbrage or suspicion of approaching danger.
Evelyn. Life of Mrs. Godolphin, p. 143.

The handling of final causes in physiques hath intercepted and banisht the inquiry of physical causes, and hath given men occasion to rest satisfied in such specious and umbratilous causes; and not thorowly to urge and presse the inquiry of reall and truly physical causes.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iii. c. 4.

UMBYRAP. Circumdare, to lap round; is a var. r. of enviroun. Heb. v. 2.

UM-GONG. A. S. Ymbe-ȝan, circuire. See Wiclif, in v. Grave.

Made we are repreſe to our neghbors; skorning and hething (illusio) to alle that in our umgong (L. V. cumpas, circuitu) are.—Wic. Ps. lxxviii. 4; also in v. 3, Harl. 1806.

UMPIRE, s. In Piers Plouhman written Nompeyr (Wright's Ed. Nounpere); whence the Fr. Nompair, without peer, and thus sole judge—(Uneven, odd. Wedgewood,) may be preferred, as the true source.

They (two assessors) kouthe noght by hir conscience
Accorden in truthe,
Til Robyn the ropere
Aroos by the southe,
And nempned hym for nounpere
That no debate nere.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5149.

And while thei stryuen thus, the apostil putte him bitwene as a mene, distruynge alle her questiouns as a good noumpere.—Wic. Prol. to Romans, p. 302.

What (qd. she, i. e. Love) most of all did I not make a loueday betweene God and mankinde, and chese a maid to be nompere to put the quarell at ende!
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

UMTHOUGHTE, or UMTHOGHT.

He receyved Israel his childe, he is umthoght of his mercy (havynge mynde, recordatus. Wiclif).—Luke i. 54. Hampole in Lewis. Hist. of Trans. p. 32.

He toke Israel hys chylde, umthoughte of his mercy.
Id. Mr. Bennett.

UN-ABLE.

If for the blyndnesse of the preest, or for other unablete, he that is repentaunt wole go to another preest kunning in this ghostly office, he shal not do this withouten licence axid. Ecclesiæ Regimen, written, as it seems, before 1395.
Wic. Ed. Pref. p. 27.

UN-ACQUIRED.

As to the unacquirableness of virtue, this somewhat resembles Whitfield's day of grace, which being not yet come, or being once past, no man can attain to righteousness.
Tucker. Light of Nature, c. xviii. Virtue.

UN-ADJECTIVED. See To ADJECTIVE, in v. Adject, supra.

As the noun adjective always signifies all that the unadjectived noun signifies, and no more (except the circumstance of adjection), so must the verb adjective signify all that the unadjectived verb signifies, and no more (except the circumstance of adjection).
Tooke. Diversions of Purley, c. vii.

UN-AMENDED.

Ne that to the seuenty remenours, the whiche, ful of the Hooly Goost tho thinges that weren sothe translatiden, bot to the blame of wrijters it is to wijten, while of the vnamendid thei wrijten vnamendide thingis (sc. in the Names of the Books).—Wic. 2 Par. Prol. p. 385.

UNAVISELY. } To blame unavisely (incre- UNAVISED. } pare). Wiclif, 1 Tim. v. 1, in var. r.

Who forsothe is unavysid to speken, shal felen enelis. (L. V. vnwar, inconsideratus.)—Wic. Prov. xiii. 3.

UN-BEGUN. Having had no beginning.

The mighty God which unbegonne
Stonte of hym selfe.—Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 173[a].

UN-BELIEVEFULNESS.

And anon the fadir of the child criynge with teeris seide, Lord, I beleve, help thou myn vnbilievefulness. (L. V. vnbileue, incredulitatem.)—Wic. Mark ix. 23.

UN-BIAS, v.

The truest service a private man may do his country, is by unbiassing his mind as much as possible between the rival powers.—Swift (in Todd).

He claims the liberty of reserving his own judgement, and more especially—where in the close of his tract his unbiassedness is clearly professed.
Pref. to Bp. Hall's Rem. (1660), sign. b. ii. (in Todd).

UN-BIDE. A. S. On-bid-an, manere.

Of which (fruit) the tast and the sauour, is endles blisse to onbide.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. iii.

UN-BINDING.

Alle that weren hardye for to obeye to hym, fallyng down by the vertu of God, weren togidre turnyd in to vnbyndynge or vnstrengthe. (L. V. feeblenesse, dissolutionem.)
Wic. 2 Mac. iii. 24.

I am unbounde; what maiest thou finde
More of my sinnes me to unbinde?
For he, that might hath in his honde,
Of all my sinnes me unbonde.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6415.

UN-BLESSED.

And he (Nicanor) vnblessid (infelix) axide, ȝif there is a miȝti in heuen, that comaundide the day of Sabothis to be don (agi).—Wic. 2 Mac. xv. 3; also Ecclus. xxvii. 24.

UN-BLISSFUL.

Who tormentith the fadir, and fleeth the modir, shenful shal be and vnblisful (infelix).—Wic. Prov. xix. 26.

UN-BOLD. Wic. Judg. ix. 4, note g, in the text, "Havynge no certeyn dwellynge," is said to be, "Ebrew, unbolde, ethir cowardis."

UN-BOLT.

Pain. How shall I understand you?
Poet. I'll unbolt to you.
Shakespeare. Timon of Athens, act i. sc. 1.

UN-BONNETED. See Shakespeare, Othello, in v. To BONNET, supra.

UN-BOWING.

We (hauing) spreynt the hertis fro yuel conscience, and waischyn the body with clene watir, hold the confessioun of oure vnbowynge, or that may not be foldyn (indeclinabilem).—Wic. Heb. x. 23.

UN-BOY, v. To raise above boyhood.

He (Charles I.) began to say, It was time to unboy the prince (Charles II.), by putting him into some action and acquaintance with business, apart from himself.
Clarendon. Hist. of Rebellion, v. ii. p. 559.

UN-BUXOME.

Whether and wee unbuxhum (inobedientes) shul don al this grete evel, that we trespassen in the Lord oure God, and wedden straunge wiues.—Wic. 2 Esd. xiii. 27.

That we be distrying yuele thouȝtis, and alle hiȝnesse enhaunsynge him silf aȝen the kunnynge of God, and holdynge lowe al undirstondyng to obeie to Crist, and redy to underȝoke al unbuxumnesse (unbuxomeness).
Id. Pref. Ep. p. 63.

UN-CAREFUL.

The Bill (Triennial Act) passed in a time very uncareful for the dignity of the crown or the security of the people.
Charles II. to the Parliament, March, 1664.
Campbell, v. ii. p. 220.

UN-CAUPONATED. See To CAUPONIZE.

When great Eliza reign'd,
When our brave sires
Drank valour from uncauponated beer.
Smart. The Hop Garden.

UNCE, i. e. OUNCE. See UNCIAL.

Whose yren of the speere peiside thre hundrid unncis (uncie).—Wic. 2 Kings xxi. 16.

UN-CEASINGLY.

Hou myche more ȝee loouen (Crist), o Poule and Eustoche, so myche more of hym asketh, that for the present backbityng by which me enemys uncesendly to-tern (to-tearen) he to me ȝelde mede in tyme to come.
Wic. Is. Prol. p. 225.

UN-CHARGE.

For charité without challangynge
Uncharageth the soule.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10315.

UN-CHASTISED, UNCHASTISABLE.

An hors vntemyd, ether vnchastisid (indomitus), schal ascape hard, and a son vnchastisid (remissus) schal ascape heedi. (E. V. stumbling doun, præceps.)
Wic. Ecclus. xxx. 8.

And the sones ben of hard face, and of herte vnchaastisable, that wole not ben maad tame or meek (indomitabili), to whom I sende thee.—Id. Ez. ii. 4.

UNCLE. In Jer. xxxii. 7, 8, 9, 12, A various reading is, unclene son.

I schal synge for my derlyng the song of myn vnclis sone of the vynes. (L. V. emes, patruelis.)—Wic. Is. v. 1.

UN-CLOTHE.

(They forgot) how unclothedly they came hither, and with what naked ornaments they were arrayed.
Bacon. Essay on Death.

UN-COMELY.

It is an uncomly couple,
To yeven a yong wenche
To an old feble.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5499.

UN-COMMUNICABLE.

And this was disceyuyng of manuy's lif; for to afeccioun or to kingus men deseruyng, the uncommunicable name (affectui) to stones and trees thei putten. (L. V. name that mai not be comyned, incommunicabile, i. e. of God.)
Wic. Wis. xiv. 21.

UN-CONNING.

An unconnyng and unprofitable manne.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. i. pr.

UN-CONSTANT.

In this place they (yea, yea, &c.) are taken for unconstantness of mynde.—Bible, 1549. 2 Cor. c. i. n.

UN-CONTAMINATE.

The pure and uncontaminate blood
Holds its due course, nor fears the frost of Age.
Cowper. Task, b. vi. v. 789.

UN-CORRUPTIBILITY. UN-CORRUPTION.

But (let it be) the ilke that is the hid man of herte in vncorruptibilite of quyete or pesible (L. V. vncorruption, incorruptibilitate) and mylde spirit, the which is riche in the siȝt of God.—Wic. 1 Pet. iii. 4.

UN-COVENABLE.

Where heryng is not, schede thou not out a word; and nyle thou be enhaunsid uncovenabli (importune) in thi wisdom.—Wic. Ecclus. xxxii. 6.

UN-COUPABLE. See UN-CULPABLE.

UN-COUPLE.

Uncoupled thei wenten.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 324.

UN-COUTH. In old writers, Uncouth, is also—uncommon; not vulgar; elegant. Tyrwhitt. See the Quotation from Chaucer. In Piers Plouhman, uncouth knights, are unknown; foreign.

Daniel seide, Sire Kyng,
Thi dremels bitokneth
That uncouthe knyghtes shul come
Thi kyngdom to cleyme.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11805.

And, ore al this, so wel coulde he devise,
Of sentiment; and in so uncouthe wise,
Al his array: that every lover thought—
That al was well what so he said or wrought.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1797.

She (Idelnesse) had a lustie life in Maie;
She had no thought, by night ne daie,
Of nothing but it were onely
To graceth (dress) her well, and uncouthly.
Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 584.

UN-CREDIBLE. Wic. Judg. xx. 5, a var. r. of untrowable (incredibili), qv.

UNCTION.

But ȝe han vnccioun (L. V. anointyng, unctionem) of the Hooli Goost; and han knowe alle thinges.
Wic. 1 John ii. 20.

UN-CULPABLE. In Wiclif, Uncoupable.

Thanne ȝe schulen be vncoupable anentis God. (L. V. giltless, inculpabiles.)—Wic. Num. xxxii. 22.

UN-CURABLE.

Gal of dragouns (is) the wyne of hem and venym of eddres uncurable. (L. V. that may not be heelid, insanabile.)—Wic. Deut. xxxii. 33.

UN-CUSTOMED, i. e. Un-accustomed.

That the steeds might pass with ease,
Nor start as yet uncustom'd to the dead.
Cowper, Iliad, b. x. v. 583; and also Odyssey, b. viii. v. 553.

UN-DEAD.

For God made man vndeadli (L. V. vnable to be distried; mar. note, vndistriable, inexterminabilem), and to the image of his licnesse made hym.—Wic. Wis. ii. 23.

It nedith not also that I speke euer of the undedlynesse of the soules, but I holde trustely that the soules of men be undedly.—The Boke of Tulle of Old Age, b. 5[1].

UN-DEFOULED. UN-DEFOULYNGNESSE. Wic. 1 Pet. iii. 4 (incorruptibilitate), a var. r. of vncorruptibility, qv.

For it besemyde that sich a man were a bishop to vs hooli, innocent, vndefoulid. (E. V. inpolute; var. r. vnfyled, impolutus.)—Wic. Heb. vii. 26; also 1 Pet. i. 19.

UN-DEPARTABLE.

Bi the entring of the generation of vndepartable God (i. e. indivisible).—Wic. Luke. Prol. p. 141.

UNDER. Wiclif preposes Under (var. written, Undre, undri, undur) to numerous words rendered from the Lat. compounds in Sub.

UNDER-BEAR.

Oon hour with thee he shal abide stille; if forsothe thou bowe down he shal not vnderbern. (L. V. bere up, supportabit.)—Wic. Eccl. xii. 14. And in 2 Pet. i. vndir berynge, subinferentes.

UNDER-BRENNE (burn).

And Y shal vndre brenne (succendam) thi cartis of foure horsis.—Wic. Nah. ii. 13.

UNDER-BRETHE.

He comaundid fyr to be moued to hym, and ȝit vndirbrethinge (spirantem) to be brent, or turnyd in the brasen panne.—Wic. 2 Mac. vii. 5.

UNDER-CAST.

In wrd hym that ouertrauailed hym, he vndircast. (L. V. made suget, se vexabat, subjecit.)
Wic. Wis. xviii. 22.

UNDER-CRAFT.

'Tis an undercraft of authors to keep up a good understanding among words, as politicians do amongst men.
Trist. Shandy, v. vii. c. 19.

UNDER-CREEP.

Be war lest peraventure vndur crepe (subripere) to thee a wickid thouȝt. (L. V. crepe privily.)
Wic. Deut. xv. 9.

UNDER-CUT.

While ȝet I weued He vnderkutte me (succidit).
Wic. Is. xxxviii. 12.

UNDER-DELUE.

He shal vnderdelue thy plantes. (L. V. undermyne thy feet, suffodiet.)—Wic. Ecclus. xii. 18.

UNDER-DIG.

The ylk lond vntilied is maad as a ȝerd of volupte, and citees desert and destitute and vnder-diggid, waardid, or made strong, han setun. (L. V. undurmyned, suffossæ, munitæ sederunt.)—Wic. Ez. xxxvi. 35.

UNDER-DREYNT.

Thi spirit blewe and the see coverde hem; and thei ben vnder dreynt as leed in hidows watris. (L. V. drenchid, submersi sunt.)—Wic. Ex. xv. 10.

UNDER-FOLLOW.

And thi mercy shall vnderfollowe me. (L. V. sue, subsequetur.)—Wic. Ps. xxii. 6.

UNDER-FONG.

He underfongeth a grete pain
Who undertaketh to drinke up Sain (the Seine).
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5712.

UNDER-GO.

Drawe vp to thee water for aseegyng, beelde thi strengthis, entre into fen (lutum) and trede, thou under-ȝoynge (subigens), holde a tyl.—Wic. Nah. iii. 14.

UNDER-GROW.

ȝe seyn that the folk vndur groweth. (L. V. encreessid, succreverit.)—Wic. Ex. v. 5.

UNDER-HEAD, s.

Wiser discretions, that have the thread of reason to conduct them, offend without a pardon; whereas underheads may stumble without dishonour.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § lv.

UNDER-HEAVE.

If thow se an asse of hym that hateth thee lye vnder the charge (a burthen) thow shalt not ouerpasse, but thow shalt vnderheue with hym. (L. V. reise, sublevabis.)
Wic. Ex. xxii. 5.

UNDER-HILE (heal).

If the fadir of hir hadde spitte into hir face, whether shulde she with reedness be under hilid. (L. V. fillid with schame, rubore suffundi.)—Wic. Num. xii. 14.

UNDER-JOIN.

He vnderjoyneth (subjoineth) I shal teche wicke men thi waies, and vnpitous men to thee shul be conuertid.
Wic. Prol. to Psalms, p. 737.

UNDER-LAȝHE (laugh).

Of myche speche he shal tempte thee, and vnder laȝhende (L. V. leige priuyly, subridens) the vnmylde wit of hym shal aske thee of thin hid thingus.—Wic. Ecclus. xiii. 7.

UNDER-LAY.

Aftir alle these wrdus, seiende, vnderleieth (L. V. suget, subjicite) ȝoure neckus vnder the ȝok of the king of Babylone.—Wic. Jer. xxvii. 12.

Brestis ben undirled (made low) in Egipt (subacta sunt).
Id. Ez. xxiii. 3.

UNDER-LIGGE (lye).

Obeye ȝe to ȝoure prouostis (that is, prelatis,) and undirligge (subjacete) to hem. (L. V. be ȝe suget.)
Wic. Heb. xiii. 17.

UNDER-LING.

But ben ȝe ordeyned in the stide of prosolotis and undirlingis, both bi autorite of lawe and of custom.
Wic. Rom. Prol. p. 301.

UNDERLOUTE.

And to Sedechye, kyng of Juda, Y spak, Whether thow shall be oure kyng, either we shal vndirloute to thi bidding? (L. V. be suget, subjiciemur.)
Wic. Gen. xxxvii. 8.

UNDER-MASTER.

And so the lawe was our vndirmaister (E. V. litil maistir, pedagogus) in Crist that we ben iustified of bileue. But after that bileue came, we ben now undur the undurmaister.—Wic. Gal. iii. 25.

UNDER-MINE. } See UNDER-DELVE.
UNDERMINING. }

The wal of Babilon, he the heiest, with undermynyng shal be undermyned. (L. V. mynyd with mynyng, suffossione, suffodietur.)—Wic. Jer. li. 58.

UNDER-MINISTER.

All the werkis of the Lord (ben) good, and eche work in his hour shall vndermynystren. (L. V. serve, subministrabit.)—Wic. Ecclus. xxxix. 39.

UNDER-MIRTH.

No undermirth, such as doth lard the scene
For coarse delight.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Prol. to Coronation.

UNDERMOWE. See MOWE.

UNDER-NOME. UNDER-NYMYNG.

Impatient is he that wol not be taught, ne undernome his vice.—Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

And I am maad as a man not herende; and not hauende in his mouth aȝen undernemyngus. (L. V. repreuyngis, redargutiones, increpationes.)—Wic. Ps. xxxvii. 15. And in Prov. x. 17.

(Thei) to synnen made men in wrd, and the vndernymere. (L. V. repreuere arguentem.)—Id. Is. xxix. 21.

UN-DERN. Variously written Un-dern, -drun, -duren, -dirne, -durne, -dur, in Wiclif, by which he renders tertia hora, and sexta hora; and this in the same chapter of Mark. Lye says (with Wachter), the third hour of the Jews; with us the ninth.

Forsoth it was the thridde our, that men clepen vndrun, and thei crucifieden him.—Wic. Mark xv. 25. Early Version. At verse 33, And the sixte our, or mydday; a various reading is, or undurne.

Sothli the our was, as the sixte or vndurn.
Id. John iv. 6.

Sothely not as ȝe demen or gessen, these be drunkun, whanne it is the thridde our of the day or vndirne.
Id. Deeds ii. 15.

UN-DEROGATING. See UN-DEROGATORY.

The heir, with roses in his shoes,
That night might village partner chuse;
The Lord, underogating, share
The vulgar game of post and pair.
Scott. Marmion. To R. Heber.

UNDER-PIGHT.

With thre piles was it under-pight.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10836.

UNDER-RAVISH.

And now a secounde (tyme) he hath vnder rauishide my benysoun. (L. V. rauischide priueli, surripuit.)
Wic. Gen. xxvii. 36.

UNDER-RERE.

As an armyse, so he shal vnder reren thee. (L. V. reise, sublevavit.)—Wic. Is. xxii. 17.

UNDERSETTE. Gen. xlix. 15, supposuit. See UNDERPUT, in Dictionary.

UNDERSETTINGS.

In the litle vndursettyngis (E. V. shuldris, humerulis) of the porche, bi the sidis of the hous, and bi the breede of the wallis.—Wic. Ez. xli. 26.

UNDER-SINGING, s.

88 forsothe seiden the Palmys and 200 the vndersinging, and Abiud smot the harpe.—Wic. Ps. Prol. p. 738.

UNDER-SPUR.

Get me a staf, that I may underspore,
While that you, Robin, hevest of the dore.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3465.

UNDER-STAND, v. Understood is and has been from the earliest times the common past tense and past particle. But in the Thirty-fifth Article, the Homilies are "judged to be read in churches by the ministers diligently and distinctly, that they may be understanded by the people."—Book of Common Prayer. Baskett. London, 1734.

UNDER-STANDER. See Quotation from Caxton in v. Reduce, supra.

Whider euere he turneth hymself, prudentli he vnderstont. (L. V. vndurstondith, intelligit.)
Wic. Prov. xvii. 8.

The wis herte and vnderstandable (L. V. able to vndurstonde, intelligibile) shal abstenen hymself from synnes.
Id. Ecclus. iii. 32.

And in the understondingus of ther (his) hondis he ladde hem thenes. (M. V. skilfulness, intellectibus.)
Id. Ps. lxxvii. 72.

A maner Latin corrupt was hire speche;
But algate therby was she understonde.
Chaucer. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4940.

The English word, understanding, means not so properly knowledge, as that faculty of the soul, where knowledge resides. Why may we not imagine, that the framers of this word intended to represent it as a kind of firm basis, on which the fair structure of sciences was to rest, and which was supposed to stand under them, as their immoveable support.—Harris. Hermes, c. iv. n. (g).

UNDER-TAKING. Wiclif, Ps. cvii. 9 (susceptio). -taker, Wiclif, Ps. xli. 10 (susceptor). See UPTAKER.

"An acquaintance that would have undertook the business;" true English is, "an acquaintance who would have undertaken the business."
Dryden to Walsh. Bell's ed. 1853.

UNDER-TEND.

Fier is vndurtent in my woodness (furore meo, succensus est).—Wic. Deut. xxxii. 22.

UNDER-TURN.

Thei shulen vndir-turne thi ful clere housis. (L. V. distrie, subvertent.)—Wic. Ez. xxvi. 12.

UNDER-WEAVE.

Thei vndurweuyden Sophym (that is the book of ȝugis.) (L. V. joineden yn.)—Wic. 1 Kings. Prol. p. 3.

UNDER-WEENING.

But the greatest underweening of this life is to undervalue that, unto which this is but exordial, or a passage leading unto it.—Browne. Christian Morals p. 347.

UNDER-WEX.

And loo! oo wether stode before the mareis (paludem) hauynge heeȝ hornys, and oon heeȝer than another, and undrewexynge (succrescens).—Wic. Dan. viii. 3.

UNDER-WINGS.

The admiring girl survey'd
His outspread sails of green;
His gauzy underwings,
One closely to the grass-green body furl'd,
One ruffled in the fall, and half unclosed.
Southey. Thalaba, b. iii. § 33.

UNDER-YOKE.

And he (Nabugodonosor) seide his thenking in hym to ben, that al the erthe he shulde vndurȝoke to his empire. (L. V. make suget, subjugaret).—Wic. Judith ii. 3.

UN-DESTROYABLE. Wiclif, Wis. ii. 23, note g. See UN-DEADLY.

UN-DISCIPLINED.

Forsothe grete ben thi domes, Lord, and vntellable thi wrdis; for these the vndisciplyned soules erriden. (L. V. vnlerned, indisciplinatæ.)—Wic. Wis. xvii. 1.

To the vndisciplynous (L. V. vnreverent, indisciplinatæ) speche vse not thi mouth.—Id. Ecclus. xxiii. 17.

UN-DISCREET. See UN-TEMPERATE.

ȝyve thou not me to a soule unreuerent (irreverenti) and vndiscreet (infrunitæ).—Wic. Ecc. xxiii. 6.

UN-DO.

Daniel of hire undoynge
Devyned and seide.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10765.

(Pharao) tolde (hem) the sweuen, and ther was not that vndide it. (L. V. expownede, interpretaretur.)
Wic. Gen. xli. 8.

And Joseph seide to hem, Whether not of God is the vndoyng. (L. V. expownynge, interpretatio.)—Id. Ib. xl. 5.

So also of interpretouris or vndoeris in to Latyn speche thei were turned truely.—Id. Cath. Ep. p. 594.

An author that hight Macrobes—
That halte not dremes false ne lese,
But undoth us the avision
That whilom mette King Cipioun.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 9.

UN-DOUBTED. Shakespeare, King Henry VI. un-affeared, intrepid.

King. What valiant foe-men, like to autumnes corne,
Haue we mow'd downe in tops of all their pride?
Three dukes of Somerset, threefold renowne (renowned)
For hardy and vndoubted champions.
Shakespeare. King Henry VI. Pt. III. act v. sc. 7.

UN-DWELLABLE.

Be taȝt, Jerusalem, lest par auenture go awey my soule fro thee; lest par auenture I sette thee desert, a loud vndwellable. (L. V. vnhabitable, inhabitabilem.)
Wic. Jer. vi. 8.

UN-EATH.

The Miller, that for-dronken was all pale,
So that unnethes upon his hors he sat.
Chaucer. The Milleres Prol. v. 3123.

UN-EMBOWER.

All unembowered
And naked stood that lonely parsonage.
Wordsworth. Excursion, b. vii.

UN-ENARRABLE. See UN-OUTSPEAKABLE, infra.

I do thankingis to God vpon the vnenarrable (inenarrabili) or that may not be told, ȝifte of hym.—Wic. 2 Cor. ix. 15; also 1 Pet. i. 8.

UN-ENDING.

Braunchis vnendid (L. V. vnperfit, inconsummati) shal be to broken.—Wic. Wis. iv. 5.

UN-EQUAL.

That will be called unequal, which contains in it another (or what is equal to another) and some thing besides; or is so contained in another (or in something which is equal to another) that something remains over and above.
Barrow. Math. Lect. x. p. 233.

UN-EQUITY.

Forsothe if oure wickidnesse or vnequyte (iniquitas) comende (commendat) the rit3wysnesse of God, what shulen we seie?—Wic. Rom. iii. 5.

UN-EVENLY.

And Saray seide to Abram, vneuenli (L. V. wickidli, inique), thow dost a3ens me.—Wic. Gen. xvi. 5.

UN-EXPUGNABLE. Wic. 2 Mac. xii. 21 (inexpugnabile). A various reading of vnable to be overcommen.

UN-EYMABLE.

Lo! God gret, overcomende our kunnyng; the noumbre of the 3eris of hym vneymable. (L. V. without noumbre, inestimabilis.)—Wic. Job xxxvi. 26.

UN-FAILING.

I made in hevenus, that vnfailende (L. V. neuer failynge, indeficiens) li3t shulde springe.—Wic. Ecc. xxiv. 6.

UN-FAMED.

Of the letters one or two
Were molte awaie of every name,
So unfamous was waxe hir fame.
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 56.

UN-FASTEN.

The Lord forsothe of Ostes demede, and who shal moun vnfasten? (L. V. make vnstidfaste, infirmare.)
Wic. Is. xiv. 27.

UN-FATIGUED.

What was from early morning till noon day
The steady travel of a well-girt man,
He with fleet feet and unfatiguable
In three short hours hath traversed.
Southey. Madoc, pt. ii. § ix.

UN-FEAR

In order last, but first in worth and fame,
Unfear'd in fight, vntir'd with hurt or wound.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. i. st. 52.
With heart unfear'd and courage sterne and stout.
Id. Ib. b. vi. v. 8.

UN-FEASTLIKE. Unsuitable to a feast.

Of hire father had she taken hire leue
To gon to rest, sone after it was eve;
Hire list not appalled for to be (made pale),
Nor on the morwe unfestliche for to see (be seen).
Chaucer. The Squieres Tale, v. 10680.

UN-FETTER.

And into a closet for to avise her bettre,
She (Creseide) went alone, and gan hire herte unfettre,
Out of disdainés prison.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1216.

UN-FILED. Wiclif, Heb. vii. 26 (impollutus). See UNDEFOULED.

UN-FILLABLE.

With the proud e3e and vnfillable herte (L. V. that may not be filled, insatiabili): with it I ete not.—Wic. Ps. c. 5; and Ecclus. xiv. 9.

UN-FOILED.

Certain enough it is, that his vertues (Ida's) made him not less noble than his birth, in warr undaunted and unfoiled; in peace, tempring the aw of magistracy with a natural mildness.—Milton. History of England, b. iii.

UN-FORMED.

And thow shalt bild there vp an auter to the Lord thi God of stonus vnfourmed and vnpolished (informibus et unpolitis).—Wic. Deut. xxvii. 6.

UN-FOULED.

For which thing, 3e most dere, abidynge thes thinges (be 3e) bisye for to be founde to him in pees vnspottid and vnfoulia. (L. V. undefoulid, incontaminati.)
Wic. 2 Pet. iii. 14.

UN-FRUITFUL.

Neithir a womman vnfruytful, neither bareyn, schal be in thi lond. (E. V. vnfructuous, infecunda.)
Wic. Ex. xxiii. 26.

UN-FRUSTRABLE. See FRUSTRATE.

The word Grace is used more than 100 times in the Apostolical writings; and after a close and impartial examination of every passage, we can unhesitatingly declare, that in no one of them does it import an irresistible, or, what the schoolmen have called, an unfrustrable power.
Bp. Law. Charge to the Clergy, 1832.

UN-FURNISH. To disfurnish, qv. UN-FURNISHED. Not furnished, &c.

UN-GARMENTED.

With shouts of honour here . . .
. . . They gather'd round me:
Ungarmented my limbs, and in a net,
With softest feathers lined, a pleasant couch,
They laid and left me.—Southey. Madoc, pt. i. § 5.

UN-GENITURED. Not having genitors, or powers of generating. See Quotation from Shakespeare in Dictionary.

UN-GLORIFIED. To Unglorify, to withhold, deny, act or think contrary to, the glory.

Forbid it, O my God, that ever I should be so unhappy as to unglorify my Father, my Saviour, or my Sanctifier, in any of my sentiments or expressions concerning them.
Watts. Remnants of Time, &c. § xxxi.

UN-GLORIOUS, i. e. Inglorious.

He bringeth the prestis of hem vnglorious (L. V. without glorie, inglorios), and the beste men of wrshipe he supplaunteth.—Wic. Job xii. 19.

UN-GLOSE.

Let youre confessour, sire kyng,
Construe this unglosed.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2372.

UN-GODLY.

The remnaunt toke his servauntes and intreated them ungodly and slewe them.—Bible, 1549. Mat. xxii.

UN-GOODLY.

There is no lady so hauteine,
Duchesse, countesse, ne chastèlaine,
That I n'olde holde her ungodely
For to refuse him utterly.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 3741.

UN-GREABLE. See UN-AGREABLE.

UN-GRENE.

Maie devoide of all delite,
With sere braunches, blossoms ungrene.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 4752.

UNGUENT.

(And he is called) Jhesus, in as muche as he is God unged to our humanite.—The Golden Legend, fo. 5, c. 4.

UN-GUILTY.

Kepe 3e 3oure hondes ungilti. (L. V. giltless, innozias.)
Wic. Gen. xxxvii. 22.

UN-HABILE. The Lat. Inhabilis of Bacon, De Aug. b. viii. is rendered Unhabile by Wats.

Solomon hath chosen (as one framed by nature to destroy a state) not a foolish and unhabile person, but a scorner.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. viii. par. xii.

UN-HABITABLE.

And thei seiden not, Wher is the Lord, that made vs to stei3en vp fro the lond of Egipt, that ladde vs ouer by desert by the lond vnhabitable (inhabitabilem) and withouten weie.—Wic. Jer. ii. 6.

UN-HAIRED.

Eche heed (was) maad ballid, and eche schuldre is vnheerid. (L. V. maad bare of heer, decaluatum.)
Wic. Ez. xxix. 18.

UN-HARDY.

Til I se tho sevene
And myself acorde,
I am unhardy, quod he,
To any wight to preven it.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 8283.
He was unhardy—that harlot,
And hid him in inferno.—Id. Ib. v. 11584.

UN-HEAL.

(Envie) That sory is of other mannes wele,
And glad is of his sorwe and unhele.
Chaucer. The Doctoures Tale, v. 12050.

UN-HIDE.

For whoso woll the ending here,
The craft of Love he shall now lere,
If that he woll so long abide,
Till I this Romance maie unhide.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 2168.

UN-HINGE, v.

There is a wretchedness which naturally and essentially belongs to a state of great moral unhingement.
Chalmers. Constitution of Man, Pt. i. ch. 1.

UN-HOLD, i. e. Not held, sc. in any estimation.

Hir seruauntes be to hem unholde,
But they can doublen hir rentall.
Chaucer. The Plowman's Tale, v. 2413.

UN-HONESTLY.

The which, for she was a mayde, hard to hym it semede, that eny thing unhonestly (inhoneste) he shulde do with hir (Thamar).—Wic. 2 Kings xiii. 2.

UN-HOPED.

(Thei) shul merueilen in the sodeynesse of the vnhopide helthe (insperatæ).—Wic. Wis. v. 2.

UN-HOSED.

A rude coat of mail,
Unhosed, unhooded, as of lowly line,
He wore: though here amid the high-born chiefs
Preeminent in prowess.
Southey. Joan of Arc, b. vii. v. 140.

UN-IDEAL.

He (Bacon) received the unideaed page (Villiers) into his intimacy.
Lord Campbell. Lives of Chancellors, v. ii. p. 347.

UNIFORM.

Of the unity of the Deity, the proof is, the uniformity of plan observable in the universe.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. xxv.

UNIFY. } See UNION. Uniable, in Chaucer, in UNITE. } Dictionary, plain, exact. Tyrw.

UNION.

My purpose is not to dispute, but to perswade . . not to enter into curious, but (into) material enquiries, and to gather together into an union all these several portions of truth.—Bp. Taylor. Worthy Communicant, § viii.

Such an idea, I say, that hath something of logick in it, is only conceivable by the unitive, active, and comprehensive power of the intellect.
Cudworth. Morality, b. iv. ch. 2.

UNION, s. Lat. Unio. A pearl of great size and beauty. Why so called, see Quotation from Pliny. And see ONION.

The qualities (of this pearl) orient whiteness, greatness, roundness, smoothness, weight, I may tell you not easily to be found all in one, insomuch that it is impossible to find out two perfitly sorted together in all these points; and hereupon it is, that our dainties and delicates haue deuised this name for them, and call them vnions: as a man would say, singular and by themselves alone.
Holland. Plinie, v. i. p. 255 (l. 9, c. 35).
The king shall drinke to Hamlets better breath—
And in the cup an vnion shall he throw,
Richer than that, which foure successiue kings
In Denmarkes crowne haue worne.
Shakespeare. Hamlet, act v. sc. 1.

UN-ITERABLE.

We came not into the world to run a race of delight, but to perform the sober acts and serious purposes of man; which to omit were foully to miscarry in the advantage of humanity, to play away an uniterable life, and to have lived in vain.—Browne. Christian Morality, P. 3, § xxiii.

UNIVERSE.

Of this we are certain, that whatever the Deity be, neither the universe, nor any part of it which we see, can be he. The universe itself is merely a collective name: its parts are all which can be real; or which are things.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. xxiii.

UN-KETH.

Weston is sadly unked without you.
Cowper to Mrs. Throckmorton, March 21, 1790.

UN-KIND.

Lo, how that dronken Loth, unkindely,
Lay by his daughters two unwetingly—
So dronke he was.
Chaucer. The Persones Tale, v. 12419.

UN-KING.

That government is bound to interfere and unking these tyrants is to me self-evident.
Cowper to Unwin, Jan. 3, 1784.

UN-KNIT.

The vertues of puples it to-heew3 (concidit), and stronge folkys of kinde it vnknytte (dissolvit).
Wic. Ecclus. xxviii. 18.

UN-KNOW, s.

To the vnknowyngus of them he spare not to me. (L. V. vnkunnyngis, ignorationibus.)—Wic. Ecc. xxiii. 2.
But be thou in gladnesse,
And let me sterue, unknowe of my distresse.
Chaucer. The first boke of Troilus.

UN-LAP, v.

Y shal stretch forth myn hond on thee, and Y schal vnwlappe (E. V. turn thee out, evolvam) thee fro stonys.
Wic. Jer. li. 25.

UN-LAW, v.

But the king (Richard II.) was not thus quiet, the sting of guilt still sticks within, and for remedy will unlaw the law.—Nat. Bacon. Historical Discourse, pt. ii. c. 1, p. 11.

And the king (Henry VIII.) hath a power of lawing and unlawing in Christ's kingdom: and the reason is, the king will have it so.—Id. Ib. c. 27, p. 213.

UN-LAWFUL.

He hadde do a thing vnleueful (illicitam) in the defoulyng a douȝter of Jacob.—Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 7.

The maumet forsothe that is maad bi hondys, is cursid, and it, and he that made it, for he forsothe wroȝte vnleefulness.—(L. V. grete trespass.)—Id. Wis. xiv. 8.

UN-LEAVED. Sc. A tree, without leaves, ἄφυλλος.

Stranger, unleav'd, unhonour'd e'en with bark,
See this sad tree, the gibbet of Alcæus!
Langhorne. Plutarch, v. iii. p. 88.

UN-LEEVABLE, i. e. Unbelievable, qv.

Be thou not vnleeuable (L. V. vnbileueful, incredibilis) to the wrd of hym.—Wic. Ecc. xvi. 29.

In the lawe of the heeȝest she was vnleeueful. (L. V. vnbileueful, incredibilis.)—Id. Ib. xxii. 33.

An hard viseoun told is to me: (he) that vnleevende is (L. V. vnfeithful, incredulus), vnfeithfully doth.
Id. Is. xxi. 2.

UN-LETTERED. "Unlettrid and lewide," in the Quotation from Wiclif, in Dictionary, is from sine literis et idiota. In 1 Cor. xiv. 16, An idyote or unlettered, idiota.

UN-LIKEN.

Thanne whanne she (the wijf of Jeroboam) was comen yn, and unlikned hireself to be what she was (L. V. hadde feyned herself to be that womman which she was not, dissimularet se esse quæ erat), Ahias herde the soun of the feet of hire.—Wic. 3 Kings xiv. 5.

UN-LUST.

(Accidie or Sloth) doth all thing with annoye, with wrawnesse, slaknesse and excusation, with idelnesse and unlust.—Chaucer. The Persones Tale.

UN-MAKE.

And matrimeyne for moneie
(Thei) maken and unmaken.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 10107.

Here Salaman spekith of Wisdam vnmaad, that is of the secunde persoone in Trinyte, which is the kyndly Sone of God, with oute bigynnyng and ende.
Wic. Prov. viii. 22, n. *.

UN-MEASUREABLE.

Ye moeven materes unmesurable
To tellen of the Trinitè,
That ofte tymes the lewed peple
Of hir bileve doute.—Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 9744.

A pleasant tunge is the tre of lijf; but the tunge which is vnmesurable (E. V. vntemprit, immoderata) schal defoule the spirit.—Wic. Prov. xv. 4.

If thou seest, (in sekinge richessis vnmesurably,) thou schalt not take (that is, thou schalt not gete sufficience, for whiche richessis ben souȝt).—Id. Ecc. xiv. 10.

UN-MERCIABLE.

Boewe and sheld thei shul take, cruel thei ben and vnmerciable. (L. V. vnmerciful, inmisericors.)
Wic. Jer. l. 42.

UN-MERRY, adj.

Beside a fulke (folk) men clepe Cimerie,
There slepeth aye this God (Sleep) unmerie.
Chaucer. Prol. to House of Fame, v. 74.

UN-MIGHTY.

For whi thin hond almyȝti, that made the world of mater vnseyn, was not vnmyȝti (impossibilis) to sende in to hem a multitude of beris.—Wic. Wis. xi. 18.

UN-MILD.

The vnmylde inwit (immitis) of hym shal aske thee of thin hid thingus.—Wic. Ecclus. xiii. 15.

UN-MINDING, s.

And alle thingus ben mengd togidere . . the vnmynding (immemoratio) of the goodes of the Lord, the vnordeynyng of leccherie and lust.—Wic. Wis. xiv. 26.

UN-MISTAKEABLE. Used by Coleridge. See Biog. Lit. v. i. p. 305. Both adj. and adv. Unmistakeably are now not uncommon.

UN-MOVEABLE.

In the which thing God willynge for to schewe to the eyris of his biheest the vnmouablenesse or sadness of his conseil, put bitwixe an oth, that by tweye thingis vnmouable (L. V. unmeuable, immobiles), by whiche it is impossible God for to lie, we haue the strongest solace or confort.
Wic. Heb. vi. 17, 18.

UN-NUMERABLE.

And a brennynge wynd rerid vp locustes—in alle the coostis of Egipciens vnnoumbrable (innumerabiles).
Wic. Ex. x. 14.

UN-OBEDIENT.

Who delicatli fro childhed nurshith his seruaunt afterwards shal find hym vnobeisaunt. (L. V. rebel, contumacem.)—Wic. Prov. xxix. 21.

The man of God he is, that was vnobeshynge to the mouth of God. (L. V. vnobedient, inobediens.)
Id. 3 Kings xiii. 26.

UN-ORDAINING. See UNMINDING, supra.

UN-ORDINATE.

A girdil of riȝtfulnesse: that is with a girdil made of diuerse colours, which is seid a girdil of riȝtfulnesse, for it streynede togidere the preestis clothis, as riȝtfulnesse of the lawe refreynede vnordinat maneris.
Wic. Ecclus. xlv. 9, note *.

Forsothe, britheren, we denouncen to ȝou in the name of our Lord Jhesu Crist, that ȝe with drawe ȝou fro ech brother wandrynge vnordinatly (inordinate) or aȝens good ordre.—Id. 2 Thes. iii. 6.

UN-OUTSPEAKABLE (Joy). New Testament, 1538, called Coverdale's; in Wiclif, unenarrable (qv.) 1 Pet. i. 8, or that may not be told out.

UN-OVERCOME.

He vndurstood that Ebrews ben vnouercomun (invictos), and tristen to help of Almyȝti God.—Wic. 2 Mac. xi. 13.

UN-OVERPASSABLE.

The vnovercomen of alle men she ouercome, and the vnouerpassable she ouerpassed.—Wic. Judith, Prol. p. 602.

UN-OVERTROWABLE.

Nyne vnouertrowable (L. V. vnsuspect, insuspicabilia) thingus of herte I magnefiede: And the tenthe I shul telle in tunge to man.—Wic. Ecc. xxv. 9.

UN-PATIENT.

Sche is a ianglere, and vnpatient (impatiens) of reste, and may not stande in the hous with hir feet.
Wic. Prov. vii. 11.

Who is pacient is gouerned with myche wisdam; who forsothe is vnpacient enhaunceth hys folie.
Id. Ib. xiv. 29.

Thei forsothe temptaciouns resseyueden not with the drede of God, and broȝten forth ther vnpatience (impatientiam) aȝen the Lord.—Id. Judith viii. 24.

UN-PEACE. Unpeaseably, Wiclif, 2 Thess. iii. 11 (inquiete), a var. reading of inquyet.

How shold euer goodnes of peace haue ben know, but if vnpeace somtime reigne, and mokel euil wrothe.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

UN-PEDANTIC.

Thou, who canst give to lightest lay
An unpedantic moral gay,
Nor less the dullest theme bid flit
On wings of unexpected wit.
Scott. Marmion. To G. Ellis.

UN-PEERED.

Euery myrmidon
Led by the braue heire of the mightie sould
Vnpeerd Achilles, safe of home got hold.
Chap. Homer. Odyssey, b. iii.

UN-PEREGAL. Not Peregal, qv.

I trow not that I be unperegall to the strokes of fortune, as who saith, I dare wel now suffren al thassaultes of fortune, and wel defend me from her.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. iii. pr. 1.

UN-PERFECT.

Thin iȝen sien myn vnperfit (L. V. vnparfit, imperfectum) thing.—Wic. Ps. cxxxviii. 16.

He schal ȝyue his herte in to the perfourmyng of werkis, and by his wakyng he schal ourne the vnperfeccioun. (E. V. enourne the inparfitnesse, qv.)—Id. Ecc. xxxviii. 31.

UN-PITY. Unpitous (life). So Chaucer renders impia vita, Boecius, b. i. m. 1. See in v. Unagreeable.

Abomination to the Lord (is) the lif of the vnpitous (impiorum).—Wic. Prov. xv. 8.

Who forsothe trestith in his thoȝtis vnpitously (L. V. wickidli, impie) doth.—Id. Ib. xii. 2.

If eny after two dayes etith of it, he shal be cursid, and gilti of vnpitousnes (impietatem).—Id. Lev. xix. 7.

He (Samuel) enhaunced his vois fro the erthe in profecie to don awey the vnpitouste (L. V. wickidnesse, impietatem) of the folc.—Id. Ecc. xlvi. 23.

UN-PLEAT.

Droope not for that, man, but unpleat thy browes,
And blithly so;—fold envies up in pleats.
Browne. Willie and Wernock.

UN-PLIABLE. Var. r. of Unbowing, qv. supra.

UN-POIZED.

But he that hath his word unpeised
And handlyth with ronge any thynge,
I preie unto the heuen kynge
Fro suche tonges he me shilde,
And netheless the worlde is wilde.
Gower. To the Reader.

UN-POLISHED. See UNFORMED, supra.

UN-PORTABLE.

Sothely thei bynden to greuouse chargis, and vnportable (insupportabilia), or that mown not be born, and putten into shuldres of men.—Wic. Matt. xxiii. 4.

UN-POSSIBLE.

But thyn hond to fleen is vnpossible (impossibile).
Wic. Wis. xiv. 15.

UN-PRAYABLE.

Wee wickidli diden, and to wrathe terreden; therefore thou art unpreiable, inexorabiles. (L. V. not able to be preied.)—Wic. Jer. Lam. iii. 4.

UN-PROFIT.

Forsoth reprouyng of the maundement bifore going is maad for the vnsadnesse and vnprofit (inutilitatem) of it.
Wic. Heb. vii. 18.

UN-PROLIFIC.

Where now the vital energy that moved
While summer was, the pure and subtle lymph
Through the imperceptible meandering veins
Of leaf and flower? It sleeps; and the icy touch
Of unprolific winter has impress'd
A cold stagnation on the intestine tide.
Cowper. The Task, b. vi. v. 138.

UN-PRUDENCE.

The wisdom of the witti man is to vnderstonde his weie: and the vnprudence of foolis (is) erring. (L. V. vnwarness, qv. imprudentia.)—Wic. Prov. xiv. 18.

UN-PURVEYED.

And what evere thing be hid end vnpurueied (improvisa), I lerned.—Wic. Wis. vii. 21.

UN-PUT.

That night the legion remoued, fires being here and there negligently unput out, part of Turin was burnt.
Savile. Tacitus. Historie, p. 84.

UN-QUENCHABLE.

Chaffis he shal brenne with fyr unquenchable (L. V. may not be quenchid), or that neuer shal be quenchid.
Wic. Mat. iii. 12.

UN-QUIETED.

For which thing I deme hem that of hethen men ben conuertid to God, for to be not vnquieted (inquietari) or diseised.—Wic. Deeds, xv. 19.

UN-READY.

Lest when Macedonyes schulen comen with me, and schulen fynde ȝou vnredy (imparatos), we schamen, that we seye ȝou not, in this substance.—Wic. 2 Cor. ix. 4.

UN-REALIZE.

Its aged boughs,
O'erbower'd upon the travellers, cast upon the leaves
A floating, grey, unrealizing dream.
Southey. Don Roderick, § x.

UN-REASONABLE.

For it is an unresonable religion
That hath right noght of certein.
Piers Ploughman's Vision, v. 4098.

UN-REGARDED.

An unregardant eye,
As one whose thoughts were not of earth, she cast
Upon the turmoil round.
Southey. Don Roderick, § xiv.; also § x.

UN-RELIGIOUS.

With an vnreligious (irreligioso) man trete of holynesse, and with the vnriȝtwis man of vnriȝtwisnesse.
Wic. Ecclus. xxxvii. 12.

UN-REMEDIABLE.

Thanne wepte his moder with vnremediable teris. (L. V. withouten remedy, irremediabilibus.) Wic. Job x. 4.

UN-REST.

Forsothe, thei that weren comende in the tabernacle, and bifore the incomyng of the prine chaumbre makende noise for ende to reren hym, by craft casten vnrest (L. V. vnrestfulnesse, inquietudinem) that not of the rereres but of the noise makeris Olofernes shulde waken.
Wic. Judith xiv. 9.

Forsothe he broȝte vpon hem a folc fro fer, a folc vnsociable or vnrestful (improbam) and of an other tunge.
Id. Bar. iv. 15.

UN-REVERENCE.

The ire and vnreverence (E. V. mys reuerence, irreverentia) of a womman is gret schenschipe.
Wic. Ecc. xxv. 29.

UN-RIGHT.

Wherfore and to them, that in ther lif vnwisly and vnriȝtfulli (injuste) lyneden, by tho thingus, that thei herieden (coluerunt), thou geue grettest tormentis.
Wic. Wis. xii. 23.

Ne shal dwelle stille the vnriȝtwise (L. V. vniust, iniqui) before thin eȝen.—Id. Ps. v. 6.

If vnriȝtwisnesse (L. V. vnriȝtfulnesse, injustitia) abideth not stille in thi tabernacle, thanne thou shalt moun rere thi face without wem.—Id. Job xi. 14.

Thow shalt not do that is wickid, ne vnryȝtwisly (L. V. vnjustli, injuste) thow shalt deme.—Id. Lev. xix. 15.

I am your owen loue, and eke your wif,
I am she which that saved hath your lif,
And certes yet did I you never unright.
Chaucer. The Wif of Bathes Tale, v. 6675.

UN-RIND.

Thanne Jacob takynge green popil ȝerdis, and of almaunders, and of planes a parti vnryendide (decorticavit) hem. (L. V. in parti dide awei the rynde.)
Wic. Gen. xxx. 37.

UN-RIP.

We heard a high contention amongst the beggars, whether it was easiest to rip a cloak or to unrip a cloak? One beggar affirmed it was all one; but that was denied, by asking her, If doing and undoing were all one? Then another said, 'twas easiest to unrip a cloak: for that was to let it alone; but she was answered by asking how she unript it, if she let it alone? And she confest herself mistaken.—Walton's Angler, pt. i. c. 5.

UN-ROASTED.

Adam and Eve
Eten appuls unrosted.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3713.

UN-SACIABLE. See UN-RESTFUL.

UN-SAD.

Forsothe we saddere (firmiores) owen for to susteyne or bere vp the feblenesse of syke men or vnsadde (infirmorum) in feith and not plese to vs silf.—Wic. Rom. xv. 1.

UN-SADDLE.

And he ladde hym into the hows of herbergrye and vnsadelyng dischargide the camells. (L. V. vnsadlide, destrauit.)—Wic. Gen. xxiv. 32.

UN-SAVORY (infrunitos). Wic. Ecc. xxiii. 6. A var. r. of undiscreet, qv.

UN-SCAPABLE.

If forsothe a cherl who were, or a shepperde, or a werkere of feeldis, wern before occupied, vnscapable, or that miȝt not be fled, nede he suffrede. (L. V. he suffride nede that miȝte not be ascapid, ineffugilem.)—Wic. Wis. xvii. 16.

UN-SCHAMED. See UN-SHAMED.

UN-SEARCHABLE.

God shal thundre in his vois marueilously, that doth grete thingus and vnserchable. (L. V. that maien not be souȝt, inscrutabilia.)—Wic. Job xxxvii. 5.

UN-SEEMING.

What maner snoȝ in somer, and reyn in rep time; so vnsemende (L. V. vnsemeli, indecens) is to the fool glorie.
Wic. Prov. xxvi. 1.

UN-SET. Unset; unfixed. (Unappointed, Tyrwhitt.)

It is ful faire a man to bere him even;
For, al day, meten men at unset steven.
Chaucer. Canterbury Tales, v. 1526.

UN-SHAMED.

Forsothe bisyli cure or kepe, for to ȝyue thi self prouable, or able werkman to God, vnschamyd (inconfusibilem), or worthi not for to be shamed, riȝtli tretinge the word of treuthe.—Wic. 2 Tim. ii. 15.

(Thei ben) doumbe dogges not mowende to berken, seinde veyne thingus, slepende and loouende sweuenus: and most vnshamefast (impudentissimi) doggus knewen not fulnesse.
Id. Is. lvi. 11.

A wickid man makith sad his cheer vnschamefastli (E. V. wowendli, procaciter) but he that is riȝtful, amendith his weie.—Id. Prov. xxi. 29.

Unshamefastness (crassitudo) is, in Job xv. 27, a var. r. of fatness.

UN-SHAPEN. Increatus, uncreated. The shaper (qv.) in Piers Plouhman and Wiclif, is the Creator.

Unshapen fader—unshapen son is—
Unshapen heli gost in blis.
Athanasian Creed, in Hickes Thesaurus, v. i. p. 234.

UN-SHED. To shed the hair is to sever or separate it,—in Spenser, "locks unshed," are locks unsevered, unseparated, with a comb, uncombed.

UN-SHIPWRECKED. See Drayton in v. Undrowned, in Dictionary.

UN-SHOD.

My seruaunt Ysaie ȝede nakid and vnschood. (E. V. vnshod, discalceatus.)—Wic. Is. xx. 3.

UN-SIGHTABLE. Wic. 1 Tim. i. 17 (invisibilia). A var. reading of unvisible.

UN-SLAKED. Chaucer, Chan. Yem. Tale, v. 16274, writes unslekked lime as one of the things to the Chanons craft appertaining.

UN-SLOW.

If forsothe vnsloȝ (L. V. not slow, impiger) thou shul be, the rep (harvest) shal com as a wel.—Wic. Prov. vi. 11.

UN-SLY.

She waiteth in the weie as a thef, and whom vnsleiȝ she seeth (L. V. vnwar, incautos) she shal slen.
Wic. Prov. xxiii. 28.

UN-SMYTEN. Wic. Gen. xxxii. 8. Left vnsmyten, a var. reading of residue.

UN-SOW.

He thoughten upon his londes
That layen long unsawe;
And also of his feire okes,
That doune were ydraw.
Chaucer. Court of Gamelin, v. 166.

UN-SPAR.

He biddeth unspere the yates.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12600.

UN-SPEAK.

Of the mouth of unspekende childer (L. V. not spekynge, infantium) and soukende, thou performedist preising for thin enemys.—Wic. Ps. viii. 3; also Wis. x. 3.

UN-SPECKED.

Hence a demeanour holy and unspeck'd.
Cowper's Poems. Truth.

UN-STANCH.

But certes richesses may not restraine avarice unstanched (inexpletam avaritiam).
Chaucer. Boecius, b. ii. pr. 6.

UN-STIGMATIZE.

Nor left unstigmatized those fatal fields
On which the sons of mighty Germany
Were taught a base subinission.
Wordsworth. Excursion, b. vii.

UN-STORMED.

How peaceful and how powerful is the grave
Which hushes all! a calm unstormy wave,
That oversweeps the world.—Byron. Age of Bronze.

UN-STRENGTH. Wic. 2 Mac. iii. 24 (dissolutionem). See UN-BINDING, supra.

UN-SUBJECT.

Forsoth in that thing that he sugetede alle thingis to him, he left no thing vnsuget (non subjectum) to him.
Wic. Heb. ii. 8.

UN-SUFFERABLE.

Thanne Moyses herde the puple wepynge by meynees (per familias), and to Moyses it was a thing vnsuffrable (intoleranda).—Wic. Num. xi. 10.

Also with sauour of hym, and stynkyng, the oost was greeued: and he that a lytil byfore demyde hym to touch the sterris of heuen, no man miȝt beere hym, for vnsuffryng (intolerantiam) of stynke.—Id. 2 Mac. ix. 10.

UN-SUPPED.

And the Kyng wente aweie in to his house vnsoupid. (L. V. without supper, incœnatus.)—Wic. Dan. vi. 18.

UN-SUSPECT. Wic. Ecclus. xxv. 9 (insuspicabilia). See UN-OVERTROWABLE, supra.

UN-SWERVE.

Nature, in generation, must the path,
Trac'd by the generator, still pursue
Unswervingly.—Cary. Dante. Par. b. viii. v. 142.

UN-TAMED.

The vntame hors (L. V. vnteymd, indomitus) shal scapen hard, and the slowe sone shal scape stumbling doun.
Wic. Ecc. xxx. 8.

The plague of Troye, and of her countrey, monster most ontame.—Phaer. Virgil. Æneid, b. ii.

UN-TEACH.

Away! we know that tears are vain,
That death nor heeds nor hears distress!
Will this unteach us to complain?
Or make one mourner weep the less?
Byron. Heb. Mel.

UN-TELLABLE.

Fulfil Syon with thin vntellable (inenarrabilem) vertues, and the puple with thi glorie.—Wic. Ecclus. xxv. 9.

UN-TEMPERATE.

Wakyng, and colore, ether bittir moisture, and gnawing to an vndiscreet, either vntemperat (infrunito) man.
Wic. Ecc. xxxi. 23.

UN-TEMPT.

No man, whan he is temptid, seie, for he is tempted of God; sotheli God is vntempter (intentator) of yuel thingis, forsothe he temptith no man.—Wic. James i. 13.

UN-TILLED.

Y the Lord have bildide the scatered thingus, and haue plantid vntilied thingus (inculta).—Wic. Ez. xxxvi. 35. And see Underdig.

UN-TIMELY.

He sente dercnessis and made dere; and vntymely he fullfillde not his woordis. (L. V. made not bitter hise wordis (non exacerbavit).—Wic. Ps. civ. 28.

UN-TOLERABLE.

Vntolerable drede (L. V. vnsuffrable, intolerabilis) and trembling fel vp on hem, and ther inwittis ben disturbid gretly. And ther is maad an vntolerable (L. V. vncomparable, incomparabilis) cry in the middel tentis.
Wic. Judith xiv. 17.

UN-TRIST. See UN-TRUST, infra.

UN-TROWABLE.

And loo the men of that cytee enuyrounden at nyȝt the hows in the whiche Y dwelte, willynge to slee me, and my wijf traueylynge with vntrowable woodness of lust (L. V. thei bitraueleden my wijf with unbileeueful woodness, incredibili), and therfor she is deed.—Wic. Judges xx. 5.

Forsothe she was ful semeli, and of vntrowable fairnesse. (L. V. that mai not liȝtli be bileued.)—Id. Esth. ii. 15.

UN-TRUST, v. and s. Distrust, qv.

Also in the biheeste of God he doubted not with vntrust (L. V. vntrist, diffidentia), but he is comfortid in bileue, ȝyuynge glorye to God.—Wic. Rom. iv. 20.

Thou (Jealousy) misbeleued, envious folie,
Why hast thou Troilus made me to untrist,
That neuer yet agilte him that I wiste.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 839.

Women han repreſe of you ay new;
Ye con, non other daliance, I leue,
But speke to us as of untrust and repreue.
Id. The Marchantes Tale, v. 10080.

UN-TWAIN, v.

The fynde (fiend) was in thy (the cat's) mynde
When thou my byrde untwynde (i. e. tore to pieces).
Dyce. Skelton. R. Sparrow, v. 284. And in Garland of Laurell, v. 1445.

UN-VENCUSABLE, i. e. Unvanquishable.

He shal clothen for the brest-plate riȝtwisnesse: he shal take the sheeld vnuenkusable (inexpugnabile),—equite—(that may not be ouercomen).—Wic. Wis. v. 20.

UN-VULGARIZE, v.

The quantity of thought which Hogarth crowds into every picture would almost unvulgarize every subject which he might choose.—Charles Lamb.

UN-USAGE.

What for diuersitie of language, and what for defaulte of unusage, and entercommuning of marchandize (commercii insolentia).—Chaucer. Boecius, b. ii. pr. 7.

UN-WALLED. Wic. 1 Kinge vi. 18 (absque muro). A var. r. of "Without wal."

UN-WARDED.

To whom he (Joseph) answeryde, Other weies yt is, the unwardid (L. V. feble, immunita) thingis of this londe ȝe ben comen to biholde.—Wic. Gen. xlii. 12.

UN-WARE. Wic. Prov. xxiii. 28 (incautos). See UN-SLY, supra.

UN-WARENESS. Wic. Prov. xiv. 8 (imprudentia). See UN-PRUDENCE, supra.

Upon thy glade day haue in thy mind
The unware wo of harm that cometh behinde.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4857.

UN-WARNED.

And he aboue cummynge to castels and cytees, vnwarnyd (L. V. vnwarned, improvisas) brente hem.
Wic. 2 Mac. viii. 6.

UN-WATERY.

In to wrathe thei to stiriden hym in vnwatri place. (L. V. without watir, inaquoso.)—Wic. Ps. lxxvii. 40.

UN-WAYED.

It (the land) shal be vnwaied or wayles. (L. V. without weie, invia.)—Wic. Ecc. xiv. 15; also xv. 8.

UN-WEET. See Chaucer in v. Unkind, supra.

Whan that God knoweth any thing to be (betide), he ne unwote not (non nesciat) that thilke thing wanteth necessity to be (he wote well that it hath no necessitie to betide).
Chaucer. Boecius, b. v. pr. 6.

Unweting of this Dorigene at al,
This lusty squier, servant to Venus,
Which that ycleped was Aurelius,
Had loved hire best of any creature
Two yere and more.
Id. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11243.

UN-WELEWABLE. See Welew.

And whan the prince of Shiperdis shal apeere, ȝe schulen receyue the vnwelewable (immarcessibilem) crown of glory, or that shal neuere fasde.—Wic. 1 Pet. v. 4; also i. 4.

UN-WELSUMNESS.

To-brosing and vnwelwmnesse (L. V. sorewe and cursidnesse, infelicitas) (are) in the weies of hem, and the weie of pes thei knewen not.—Wic. Ps. xiii. 3.

UN-WIST.

Ruben ȝede, and slepte with Bala, the secundarye wijf of his fader, that to hym was not vnwist. (L. V. was not hid, non latuit.)—Wic. Gen. xxxv. 22.

Now, quod Pandare, er houres twise twelve,
He shall the ese unwist of it himselve.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1400.

UN-WITTING, s.

And now bretheren, I woot that by unwittinge (L. V. vnwityng, ignorantiam) ȝe diden, as and ȝour princis.
Wic. Deeds iii. 17.

Whi vnwitynge me (L. V. while I wiste not, ignorante), woldest thow fre.—Id. Gen. xxxi. 27.

And the preest shal preye for hym, for unwityngly he synnede (per ignorantiam) before the Lord.
Id. Num. xv. 26.

UNWLAP. See Unlap.

UN-WORSHIPPING, s.

Tac heed in the thingus, lest peraventure thou falle, and bring to thi soule vnwrsheping. (L. V. dishonour, inhonorationem.)—Wic. Ecc. i. 38.

UN-WRY.

For who so liste have heling of his leche,
To him bihoveth first unwrie his wounde.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. i. v. 858.

UN-YIELDED.

And by the force of twenty is he take
Unyolden, and ydrawen to the stake.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2644.

VOCAL.

And as to thirde vocally, for as much as by the voys he was called Jhus.—The Golden Legend, fo. 6, col. 1.

Plato defineth the voice to be a spirit.
Holland. Plutarch, p. 686.

VOICE. See Vocable.

VOID.

As myche as in thee is, thou hast voided drede. (L. V. avoided, evacuasti.)—Wic. Job xv. 4.

Thei ordeyneden that in that time eche ȝer, therafter thei schulden voiden to plentuous metis (L. V. ȝyue tent, vacarent), and to ioye, and to festis.—Id. Esth. ix. 17.

For whi, the voidness of men (E. V. overvoidness, supervacuitas) found these idols in to the world.
Id. Wis. xiv. 14.

After this pastime ended, the king and the embassadours were served at a banket, with 260 dishes, and after that a voidee of spices, with sixty spice dishes of silver and gilt.
Holinshed. Henry VIII. A. D. 1519.

Soon as the tarts appear: Sir Crape withdraw,
Those dainties are not for a spiritual maw,
Observe your distance, and be sure to stand
Hard by the cistern, with your cap in hand;
There for diversion you may pick your teeth
Till the kind voider comes to your relief.
Oldham, in Tatler, No. 258.

VOLATILE.

With him he brought a jubbe of Malvesie,
And eke, another ful of fine Vernage,
And volatile, as ay was his usage.
Chaucer. The Shipmannes Tale, v. 13002.

VOLITABLE. See Volant.

VOLOW, v. } To volow, and bishop; to baptize and confirm. From the answer Volo, in the Baptismal Service. Applied contemptuously by the Reformers.
VOLOWER, s. }
VOLOWING, s. }

They brought them (children) to confirmation straight from baptism, so that now ofttimes they be volowed and bishopped both in one day.—Tyndale. Answer to Sir T. More, p. 72. (Parker Society Ed.)

VOLUBLE.

And he clepide the wheelis volible (L. V. ether able to go al about, volubiles) me herynge.—Wic. Ez. x. 13.

VOLUME.

Thou schalt kepe and do alle the wordis of this lawe, that ben written in this volym, ether book (volumine).
Wic. Deut. xxviii. 58.

If I read aught in heaven,
Or heav'n write aught of fate,—by what the stars
Voluminous, or single characters,
In their conjunction met, give me to spell
Sorrows and labours, opposition, hate
Attends thee.—Milton. Par. R. b. iv. v. 381.

VOLUPTY.

Forsothe and we weren sum tyme vnwyse, vnbileueful, erringe, and seruynge to desyris, and dyuerse voluptees. (L. V. lustis, voluptatibus.)—Wic. Tit. iii. 3.

Whether a britil vessel and a brosid—this man Jeconyas? Whether a vessel without al voluptuouste? (L. V. likyng, voluptate.)—Id. Jer. xxii. 28.

VOMIT.

All forsothe ben fulfild with the vome (vomitu) and filthis.—Wic. Is. xxviii. 8.

He shal hurtle (allidet) the hond of Moab in his vomyng (vomitu).—Id. Jer. xlviii. 26.

VOUCH.

Thanne Achior, duke of alle the sonus of Amon, answerende, seith, If thou vouche saaf (L. V. vouchist saaf, digneris) I schal sei the treuthe in thi siȝt.
Wic. Judith v. 5.

And lord also on me saue thou vouche,
Though I therto haue no worthynesse
That holy mayde to handyl and to touche.
Lyfe of our Ladye, fo. a. 8, c. 2.

Glad mayst thou be that sauf list to vouche
With his softè roundè lyppes lyte,
To haue pleasaunce thy brestes for to touche.—Id. i. 11.

VOURE, v. and VOURER, s. are found in the var. readings of Wiclif's Bible, 2 Kings xviii. 8, Luke vii. 34. In the text, Devour, &c.

VOUTERIES. L. V. Avowtries (adulteria). Wic. Jer. xiii. 27.

VOYAGE, To make your voyage, i. e. make a good voyage; to be successful.

Post. If you make your voyage vpon her, and giue me directly to vnderstand you haue prevayl'd, I am ne further your enemy, shee is not worth our debate.
Shakespeare. Cymbeline, act i. sc. 5.

UP.

The Lord schal ȝelde to me vp my riȝtfulnesse; and he schal ȝelde to me vp, ethir aftir (secundum) the clennesse of my hondis.—Wic. 2 Kings xxii. 21.

Now nyȝ it was that thei shulden vp breke (effringerent) the ȝatis.—Id. Gen. xix. 9.

And of echon thow shalt vpon write (superscribes) to his ȝerde.—Id. Num. xvii. 2.

As an hors courser, so and a frend, priue scornere, vnder eche man vpon sittende neȝeth. (L. V. neiȝeth vndur ech sittynge aboue, sub omni supra sedente hinnit.)
Id. Ecclus. xxxiii. 6.

Marcus Attilius by many a time ouercame, and had the upperhande and victory of the men of Cartage.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, q. 3.

UP-GIVE. Up-heave.

A sweet smell anon the ground up gaf:
And Arcita anon his hond up haf,
And more encense into the fire he gaf.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2430.

UP-HOARD.

It deliteth me to commen (come) to the singuler upheaping (cumulum) of thy welefulness.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. ii. pr. 3.

UP-LIFTED. Met. Elated.

Or that perswasion could but thus conuince me,
That my integritie and truth to you,
Might be affronted with the match and waight
Of such a winnowed puritie in loue:
How were I then vp-lifted.
Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida, act iii. sc. 2.

UP-RAISE.

My God, my strong (fortis), and I shal hoop in hym; my sheeld, and the horn of myn heelth (var. reading, mym upreiser; E. V. rerer; L. V. reisere; Lat. elevator) and my refute.—Wic. 2 Kings xxii. 3.

Hele ȝe seke men, vpreyse ȝee (suscitate) dead men.
Id. Mat. x. 8.

UP-REAR.

Now I shal rise, seith the Lord, now I shal ben enhauncid, now I shal ben vp rered. (L. V. reised vp, subtevabor.)—Wic. Is. xxxiii. 10.

UP-RIST, s.

For to awayte the uprist by the morowe
Of this sterre.—Lyfe of our Lady. Caxton, k. 3.

The uprest (uprist)
Of the third sun brought hunger,—but the crust
Which had been left was to my craving breast
Fuel, not food.—Shelley. Revolt of Islam, c. iii. s. 21.

UP-SO-DOWN. See Piers Plouhman in v. Over-tilt.

Ne tak thou ȝiftes, that also blynden wise men, and turneden vpsedoun (L. V. destryen, subvertunt) the wordis of riȝtwys men.—Wic. Ex. xxiii. 8.

UP-STYE.

And he (Jacob) seide to hym, Leeue me, forsothe now vpsteyeth (ascendit) the morewetide.
Wic. Gen. xxxii. 26.

UP-SUP.

Whan shulde wrathen the wodnesse of hem into vs per auenture water had vp sopen us. (L. V. sope us vp, absorbuisset.)—Wic. Ps. cxxiii. 4.

UP-TAKE.

Y comfortid thee, and helped thee; and the riȝt hond of my iust man vp took thee. (L. V. vndertok, suscepit.)
Wic. Is. xli. 10.

Ephraym is the vptaking of myn heed. (E. V. undertaking, susceptio.)—Id. Ps. cvii. 9.

He schal inwardli clepe me, Thou art my fadir, and the vptaker (E. V. undertakere (qv.), susceptor) of my heelthe.
Id. Ps. lxxxviii. 27.

UP-TRILL.

The long breathed singer's uptrilled strain
Bursts in a squall.
Coleridge. Lines in a Concert Room.

UP-TURN, v. Wic. Tit. i. 11, a var. reading of subvert (subvertere).

URCEOLE, s. In Popish ceremonies—A vessel for water to wash the hands; also to hold wine and water.

URGENT.

His business craves dispatch,
And is of serious urgence.
New Tricke to cheate the Divell. 1639.

USE.

Therfore the ilke womman of Samarie seith to him, How thou, whanne thou ert a Jew, axist of me for to drynke, which am a womman of Samarie? Forsothe Jewis vsen not with Samaritans. (L. V. viden not to dele, non coiuntur.)—Wic. John iv. 9.

A thefe he was forsothe, of corne and mele,
And that a slye, and usuant for to stele.
Chaucer. The Reves Tale, v. 3938.

The Erle of Stafford was marueylously sore dyspleased, and sent incontynent for all his frendes to haue their counsayle, howe he shulde use (i. e. conduct) hymselfe in the reuengynge of his (son's) dethe.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. c. xii. p. 25.

USHER.

And the womman oischer (womman that kept the doris, ostiaria) of the hows clensynge wheete, slepte strongli.
Wic. 2 Kings iv. 5.

USUAL. See Use.

USURE.

Forsothe thou schalt not leene to thi brothir without vsure (usura) that that he nedith.—Wic. Deut. xxiii. 20.

I vsured (L. V. lente, fœneravi) not ne to me vsurede any man.—Id. Jer. xv. 10.

UTILITY.

The Utilitarians are for merging all the particular virtues into one; and would substitute in their place the greatest usefulness, as the alone principle to which every question respecting the morality of actions should be referred.
Chalmers. On the Constitution of Man, pt. i. ch. 8.

UTIS.

The other octaves or utases (as of the paske, &c.) ben of deuocion.—The Golden Legend, fo. 5, c. 4.

UTOPIAN. Gr. Ου,—τοπος.

Me—Utopie—cleped antiquity,
Void of haunt and harbour.
Now am I like Plato's city,
Whose fame flieth the world through, &c.
Wherefore not Utopia but rather rightly
My name is Eutopia; place of Felicity.
A short Metre of Utopia. Sir Thomas More. Dibdin's edit. v. ii. p. 254.

UTTER. UTTERANCE, to fight at (Berners, in Dictionary), is—to the utmost extremity.

Syngeth to the Lord, a newe song, his preising to the utmosts of the erthe (extremis terræ; var. r. vttermostis).
Wic. Is. xlii. 10.

Forsothe the sonys of the rewme shulen be cast out in to vttremest derknessis. (L. V. vtmer, tenebras exteriores.)
Id. Mat. viii. 12.

His houdis and feet bounden, send ȝe hem into vttermore derknessis. (L. V. vtmer.)—Id. Ib. xxii. 31.

Who so that listeth uttren his folie,
Let him come forth.
Chaucer. Chan. Yem. Tale, v. 16302.

And he straytly charged them that they should not utter hym.—Bible, 1549. Mark iii. 12.

Even so now, when we have uttered (driven out) him (Antichrist) he will change himself once more, and turn himself into an angel of light.
Tyndale. Doctor D'Aubigné. Tr. p. 42.

VULPONY. A word formed by South—apparently on Ben Jonson's character of Volpone.

Come to an old greedy Vulpony.
South. Sermon. The Will for the Deed.

VULTURE.

A brid knewe not the weie, and the iȝe of a vultur, ethir rauenouse brid (vulturis), bihelde it not.
Wic. Job xxviii. 7.

UXORIOUS.

The speech (of Zipporah, Ex. iv. 25) is not a speech of reproach or indignation, but of uxorial endearment.
Geddes. Crit. Rem. p. 172.

W.

WADE.

Deep waters of the streme of reyn wexiden grete, which may not be ouer wad. (L. V. waad ouer, transvadari.)
Wic. Ez. xlvii. 5.

WAG. See VACILLATE, and Quotation from Wiclif in v. Wave.

Who makith redi to the crow his mete, whanne his briddis crie to God, hidder and thidder waggende (L. V. wandren aboute, vagantes), for thi that thei han no metis.
Wic. Job xxxviii. 41.

Who evere shal wageren (L. V. doutith, titubaverit) shal not togidere sorewen to thee.—Id. Ecclus. xxxvii. 16.

When shul be moued the keperes of the hous, and the most strong men wageren. (L. V. tremble, nutabunt.)
Id. Eccles. xii. 3.

Fro hym that vsith blu silc, and berth the croune, vn to hym that is couered with rawe lynen, wodnesse, enuye, noyse, wagering (L. V. doutyng, fluctuatio), and dred of deth.—Id. Ecclus. xl. 4.

WAGE, v. To wage war; Goth. and A. S. Wigan, bellum gerere; Ger. Wag-en; D. Waegh-en; Sw. Wæg-a, periclitari; Fr. Gager,—to lay a wager. Ger. Wetten; D. Wedd-en, to bet, qv.

For I wol wage . . . .
He wol do so na-moore.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2275.

WAGET. See WATCHET.

WAIL.

Esau seide in his herte the dayes of weilyng (L. V. morening, luctus) of my fader shal come, and I shal slee Jacob, my brother.—Wic. Gen. xxvii. 41.

Beholdeth, and clepeth weilende wymmen. (L. V. wymmen that weilen; var. reading, weileresses, lamentatrices.)
Id. Jer. ix. 17.

WAILED. Wailed wine. Goth. Waljan; Ger. Welen, eligere,—Electum vinum. Choice wine. See Skinner.

For wailed wine and meates thou had tho',
Take mouled bread, pirate, and sider soure.
Chaucer. Complaint of Creseide. Speght, fo. 196¹.

WAIMENT.

I am Arnault, and with songs
Sorely waymenting for my folly past,
Thorough this ford of fire I wade.
Cary. Dante. Purgatory, b. xxvi. v. 135.

WAIN.

Nowthanne takith and makith a new weyn (plaustrum), and ioyneth two kyen, that han calued in the weyn.
Wic. 1 Kings vi. 7.

The shinyng judge of things, stable in hym selfe, gouerneth the swift cart or waine, that is to saine, the circular mouyng of the sonne.—Chaucer. Boecius, b. iv.

WAIT.

And the child weyter (L. V. aspiere, speculator) heuede vp his eyen, and behelde.—Wic. 2 Kings xiii. 24.

Thanne the wayte (spiere) that stode vpon the towre of Jezrael, see the glub (globum) of Hieu comynge, and seith, I see a glub.—Id. 4 Kings ix. 17.

Sophonyas, the wayter and the knower of the priuetees of the Lord, herith a cry.—Id. Pref. Ep. p. 76.

But whan two hertes fallen in one,
So wise a waite was neuer none
That at sometime they ne mete.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. v. fo. 87².

Beryne cleped a maryner, and bad him sty on loft,
And weyte after our four shippis after us doeth dryve,
For it is but grace of God yf they be alive.
Chaucer. The Merchantes Second Tale, v. 857.

WAKE.

Sevene slepe, as seith the book,
Sevene hundred wynter,
And lyveden withouten liflode,
And at the laste thei woken.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 9052.

And as Y wok vp on hem (L. V. wakide, vigilavi) that I schulde pullen out and destroien . . . . so Y shal waken vp on hem that I bilde vp and plaunte.
Wic. Jer. xxxi. 28.

Thanne to thenken of it is ful endid wit, and he that shal wake for it (vigilaverit) soone shal be sikir.
Id. Wis. vi. 16.

Wakeres (E. V. waccheres, vigiles) that kepen the citee, founden me.—Id. Song of Solomon, iii. 3.

The waking (vigilia) of honeste shal dwyne the flesh.
Id. Ecclus. xxxi. 1.

WALK, v. D. Walcken; Sw. Walka, premere, calcare; as fullers do; A. S. Wealcere; D. Walcker. And see Grose.

And which maner clothis a fullere, or walkere of cloth (fullo) may not make white on erthe.—Wic. Mat. ix. 2.

Looke now what people hast thou serued, which of hem all in time of thine exile euer thee refreshed by the value of the least coined plate, that walketh in mony.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i. fo. 292².

Wherefore long in procession
Many a pace arme under other,
He welke, and so did with none other.
Id. Dreme, v. 830.

Earth in her rich attire
Consummate—lovly smil'd; aire, water, earth,
By fowl, fish, beast, was flown, was swum, was walkt
Frequent.—Milton. Par. L. b. vii. v. 503.

Lady Hesketh is our good angel, by whose aid we are enabled to pass into a better air, and a more walkable country.—Cowper to Bagot, Aug. 31, 1786.

WALL. Is written in the Early Version of the Wiclif Bible, Wough, Ps. lxi. 4, et aliter.

Oldam, prophetisse; the whiche dwellide in Jerusalem in the secounde wollynge (var. r. enuironynge of the wall), and thei speken with hire.—Wic. 4 Kings xxii. 14.

WALNUT. Walsh, Galsh, or Gallic nat. See Wallis, Pref. and Ihre to the same purpose. Sw. Wælnut; Dan. Walnöd.

WALTER.

He (Sisara) felde bitwixe the feet of hir, he failide and diede; he was waltryd bifor hir feet (E. V. wrappid, volvebatur), and he lay with out soule, and wretchidful (miserabilis).—Wic. Judges v. 27.

WAN, adj. Wan is applied also to the colour or complexion of persons and things. As the waters wax wan (Dyce, Skelton), i. e. pallid, sallow.

WANE.

The water is lekned to the world,
That wanyeth and wexeth.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4978.

As the riȝtwis man in openyng his hondis shal gladen, so the lawe brekeres in the ende shulen wanen. (L. V. faile, tabescent.)—Wic. Ecclus. xl. 14.

Here ȝe my vois, wifes of Lameth, herken ȝe my word, for I slow a man into my wound, and a little waxen man into my wannesse (adolescentulum in livorem meum).
Id. Gen. iv. 23.

Whan forsothe we beholden Dauid, a man sleere, and auotrer, bi penaunce maad a doctour and a profete, to no man doende penaunce is laft place of wanhope.
Id. Prol. to Psalms, p. 738.

O wantrust, ful of false suspecion,
Wher was thy wit and thy discretion.
Chaucer. The Manc. Tale, v. 17230.

WANG. See Quotation from Chaucer, in Dictionary.

And the Lord opnede a woong tooth (L. V. wang, molarem dentem) in the cheek boon of the asse, and watris wenten out of it.—Wic. Judges xv. 19.

WAN-HOPE. } See WAN, in Dictionary, and WAN-TRUST. } supra.

WANT. Also (as in Milton)—to do without.

Those happie places thou hast deignd a while
To want.—Milton. Par. L. b. 5, v. 365.

Now learn from me thy near approaching grief,
Nor think my wishes want to thy relief.
Dryden. Æneid, b. xii. v. 225

WANTON.

Cupide, whiche of loue is God,
In chastisynge hath made a rod
To drive away her wantonnesse.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. iv. fo. 70¹.

WARD.

Thanne he took hem to warde. (L. V. kepynge, custodiæ.)
Wic. Gen. xlii. 17.

With alle warde (L. V. kepynge, custodia) kep thou thin herte, for of it lif goth forth.—Id. Prov. iv. 23.

And he wardide it (the hil of Syon) (munivit) for to kepe Bethsura, that the peple shulde haue wardyng, or strengtheing, agein the face of Ydume.—Id. 1 Mac. iv. 61.

Forsothe thei distroyeden the hous of Baal, and thei maden for it wardropis. (L. V. priuyes; M. V. a draught house, latrinas pro ea.)—Id. 4 Kings x. 27.

I say that in a ward-rope they him threwe.
Chaucer. The Prioresses Tale, v. 13502.

WARE. } See WEAR.
WORE. }

WARE.

Thow sholdest ben y-war.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 543.

Wrapped in a wynwe shete
To weren hire fro wederes.—Id. Crede, v. 865.

War to thee (L. V. be war, cave), and tac heed bisili to thin heering.—Wic. Ecclus. xiii. 16.

And Dauid did warli (E. V. wiseli, prudenter) in alle hise weyes, and the Lord was with hym.
Id. 1 Kings xviii. 14.

Ne no man shal unto his felaw ride
But o cours, with a sharpe ygrounden speare:
Foin if him list on foot, himself to were.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2552.

WARISON.

And Piers the Plowman
. . . lered hym lechecraft . . .
To warisshen hymselue.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11012.

And not so mych is myn hows anentis God, that euerlastynge couenaunt he sholde go in with me, stable in alle thingis and warnyschit. (L. V. maad strong, munitum.)
Wic. 2 Kings xxiii. 5.

He schal not comen into this cytee, ne senden arowe in to it, and targett schal not ocupien it, and warnyschynge (L. V. strengthing, munitio) schal not enuyroun it.
Id. 4 Kings xix. 32.

WAR-LOCK.

Wenest thou ther wolde so fele
Swich warlawes worthen?
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1562.

WARM.

He too has flitted from his secret nest,—
Hope's last and dearest child—without a name!
Has flitted from me, like the warmth-less flame,
That makes false promise of a place of rest
To the still pilgrim's still believing mind.
Coleridge. The Pang more sharp, &c.

WARN.

In our chosun berielis birye thi deed, and no man shal mow wern thee. (L. V. forbede, prohibebit.)
Wic. Gen. xxiii. 6.

Thus wilt thei not the loue werne
Of him and hir in no wise.
Gower. Conf. Am. l. 8, fo. 179¹.

WARP.

The firste word that he (Gloton) warpe
Was—Where is the bolle?
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 3211.

Ech a word that he warpe
Was of a neddres tonge.—Id. Ib. v. 2647.

WARREN.

Uncoupled thei wenten,
Both in wareyne and in waast.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 325.

WARRY, or } See WEARISH. Goth. Warjan;
WARY, v. } A. S. Wirȝian, Wirian, Wærȝian,
WARIABLE. } maledicere, execrare, malignari.
WARYING. } To worry, by word or deed; to
WARIER. } abominate, condemn, damn, curse,
WAREHED. } execrate. (Skinner and Grose.)

A Lancashire word. Cotgrave includes it in his explanation of March-dire. See Chaucer in v. Work, in Dictionary, Quotation 3.

They wolden awyrien that wight
For his wel dedes.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1319.

Com, he seith, and curs to Jacob, go forthe, and wari to Israel. (L. V. greetli curse, detestare.)
Wic. Num. xxiii. 8.

In oure wariedhed (L. V. malice, malignitate) forsothe wee ben wastid.—Id. Wis. v. 13; also v. 24.

The mouth of whom is ful of cursyng, or warying (maledictione), and bitternesse.—Id. Rom. iii. 14.

A lecchour, or coueitous,—or curser, or wariere (maledicus), or ful of drunkennesse or rauenyour, with siche nether for to take mete.—Id. 1 Cor. v. 11.

For ther wenten about me manye houndis; the counsail of warieris (L. V. wickid men, malignantium) besegide me.
Id. Ps. xxi. 17.

Occasioun he secheth, that wil gon awei fro a frend: alle time wariable (L. V. despisable, exprobabilis) he shul be.—Id. Prov. xviii. 1; also Ecclus. xxvii. 33, Wrathe and wodnesse ben wariable (execrabilia).

But tourned is (for whiche my life I warie)
Every joie or ese in his contrarie.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 1378.

This Soudannesse, whom I thus blame and warrie.
Id. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4792.

What begger art thou, that thou dost ban and wary.
Skelton. Magnyfycence, v. 2266.

WASH.

They asked for the water,
And wishen them anon.
Chaucer. Coke of Gamelyn, v. 1083.

O holy crois!
Red of the Lambes blood, ful of pitee,
That wesh the world fro the old iniquitee.
Id. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4373.

WASTE.

He hath maad my couenaunt wast. (L. V. voide, irritum.)—Wic. Gen. xvii. 14.

Thei shal ete hem priuely, for the scaarsnesse of alle thingis in the seege and wastetee. (L. V. distrying, vastitate.)—Id. Deut. xxviii. 57; also ver. 53.

And ther shal feerli falle vp on the wastnesse (L. V. wrecchidnesse, calamitas) that thou shalt not moun purge.
Id. Ib. xlvii. 11.

Egipt forsothe waster (L. V. in veyn, frustra) and in veyn (L. V. idili, vanè) shal helpen.—Id. Is. xxx. 7.

Moab, be thou the lurkyng place of hem fro the face of the waster. (L. V. distriere, vastatoris.)—Id. Ib. xvi. 4.

Who 3af Jacob in to pulling awei, and Irael to wasteres. (L. V. distrieres, vastantibus.)—Id. Ib. xlii. 24.

WASTE. Waste of a ship. See the Quotation from Falconer, in Dictionary.

But it was too late, for already it (fire) did embrace and devour from the stern to the waste of the ship.
Sidney. Arcadia, b. ii.

WATE. See WEET.

WATER.

We mouen awei the stoon fro the mowth of the pit, that we watren. (L. V. to watir, ut adequemus.)
Wic. Gen. xxix. 8.

Thei biheelden sum hauene hauynge a water bank (littus), into which thei thouȝten, if thei myȝten for to caste the schipp.—Id. Deeds xxvii. 39.

Water lechis (sanguisugæ) two ben dotris, seiende, Bring on, Bring on.—Id. Prov. xxx. 15.

(Paul tells them that) though another had come and watered what he had planted, yet neither planter nor waterer could assume any glory from thence, because it was God alone that gave the increase.
Locke. On 1 Cor. iii.

WAVE.

Lik . . . . .
To the grete wawes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4979.

What wenten ȝe out in to desert for to se, a reed wawid (L. V. waggid, agitatam) with the wynd?
Wic. Luke vii. 24.

Like the vague sighings of a wind at even,
That wakes the wavelets of the slumbering sea,
And dies on the creation of its breath.
Shelley. Queen Mab, s. 8.

So, as I stood, one blast of muttering thunder
Burst in far peals along the waveless deep,
When gathering fast around, above, and under,
Long trains of tremulous mist began to creep.
Id. Revolt of Islam, c. i. s. 2.

WAVE, or WAIVE.

(He) hem warned . . . .
To waiven her wikkedness
And werkes of synne.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1055.

(Some) chalangen bise (the king's) dettes
Of wardes and of wardemotes,
Weyves and streyves.—Id. Ib. v. 188.

By waving of goods—a property is gotten thus—A thief having stolen goods, being pursued, fleeth away, and leaveth the goods. This is called waving. The property is in the king, &c.—Bacon. Use of the Law.

WAX, v. See Quotation from Wic. Gen. in v. Wan, supra.

WAX, s.

Wex and weke
And hoot fir togideres
Fostren forth a flawmbe.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11780.

I nurshede not ȝung childer, ne to ful waxing (L. V. fulli to encreesyng, ad incrementum) broȝte forth maidenes.
Wic. Is. xxiii. 4.

And finally, whan it was woxen eve,
And al was wel, he rose and toke his leve.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 1014.

WAY. A furlong way, a mile way. The time required to go a furlong or a mile.

It shal be unwaied or wayles (L. V. without weie, invia), for that there is no passynge bi it for beestis.
Wic. Ez. xiv. 15.

And now it is plauntid ouere in deserrt, in loond not wayed (or not hauntid).—Id. Ez. xix. 13.

And sittynge for to eet breed, thei seen Ysmaelites weiegoers (viatores) to comen fro Galaad.
Id. Gen. xxxvii, 25.

Sche sat in the weilot (E. V. place of two weies, bivia) that ledith to Tampna.—Id. Gen. xxxviii. 14.

Thow shalt not suffre (hym) to goon awey voyd: but thow shalt ȝyue weyfode (L. V. lyflode in the weye, viaticum) of the flockis, and of the flore, and of thi presse.
Id. Deut. xv. 14.

They sitten stille wel a furlong way.
Chaucer. The Milleres Tale, v. 3637.

WEAL. WEALTH (supposes the verb, to Weal). That which wealeth; causes or promotes the weal or well-doing, &c. See the Quotations from Tyndale and the Bible. The same usage occurs in a Letter from Anne Boleyn to Wolsey, quoted in D'Aubigné, vol. iv.

For now is Palamon in alle wele,
Living in blisse, in richesse, and in hele.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 3103.

Every wise man dreadeth his enemie. And Salomon sayth, Weleful is he that of alle hath drede.
Id. Tale of Melibeus.

The amiable (prospera) fortune bindeth with the beautie of her false goodes the hartes of folkes that usen them. The contrary (adversa) fortune unbindeth hem with the knowing of freel welefulnesse (felicitas).
Id. Boecius, b. ii. pr. 8.

Let kings, if they had leuer be Christians indeed than so to be called, give themselues altogether to the wealth of their realms after the ensample of Jesus Christ.
Tyndale. Obedience of a Christian Man. Works, v. i. p. 212. (Russell's ed.)

Let no man seke his owne profyte: but let euerye mã seke anothers wealth.—Bible, 1549. 1 Cor. x. 24.

And they that were nedy sholde rather desire the helpe of frendship than they that were weleful.—Tullius de Amicitia. Wurcestre, Erle of, b. 6; also d. 6.

WEAN.

(The child) that is wenyd (E. V. taken awei fro soc, ablactatus) schal put his hond in the caue of a cocatrice.
Wic. Is. xi. 8.

WEAR. In Berners, to ware weary, is—to become weary through wear. In Shakespeare "Wearing the Hearer," is to weary, to wear out. See in Dictionary. Wear, infra, is—the fashion (worn).

Clooth that cometh fro the wevyng
Is noght comly to were
Til it be fulled, &c.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10528.

Clothis and shoon, with the whiche we ben clothid, and the whiche we han in feet, for the lengthe of lenger weye, ben to troden, and almeest wered. (L. V. wastid, consumpta.)—Wic. Josh. ix. 13.

There mete him a certaine man out of the citie, which had a deuil long time and ware no clothes.—Bible, 1549. Luke, ch. viii. So com. version, waré no clothes, v. 27.

The Spaniards began to ware weary, for winter drew on.
Berners' Froissart, v. i. p. 671.

Luc. No indeed will I not, Pompey, it is not the wear.
Shakespeare. Measure for Measure, act iii. sc. 2.

Hel. The composition. that your valour and fear makes in you, is a virtue of good wing, and I like the wear of it.
Id. All's Well that ends Well, act i. sc. 1.

WEAR. For fish.

This streme you ledeth to the sorowfull were,
There as the fishe in prison is all drie.
Chaucer. Assemble of Foules, v. 138.

WEARISH. See WARY, supra.

WEARY. The adj. Weariless, found only in the Ettrick Poet, is worthy of preservation.

Why chatters yon magpie on gable so loud?
Why flits yon light vision in gossamour shroud?
How came yon white doves from the window to fly,
And hover on weariless wing in the sky?
Hogg. The Queen's Wake, Night 1, st. ix.

WEATHER. See To WRIE, infra.

Flowe as dewe my speche, as wedre upon herb (lytil reyn, imber), and as dropes vpon cornes.
Wic. Deut. xxxii. 2; and Job xxiv. 8.

WEAVE, v. See Piers Plouhman in v. Wear.

I heeue vp myn hond to the Lord, the heye God, welder, (possessor) of heuene and erthe, that fro a threed of the weeft (L. V. oof, i. e. woof, subtegminis) vnto the garter of an hoos, I shal not take of alle thingis that ben thin.
Wic. Gen. xiv. 22.

But with a pennè she ne could not write,
But letters can she weven to and fro,
So that by that the yere was all ago,
She had ywoven, in a stamen large,
How she was brought fro Athens in a barge;
And in a cave, how that she was ybrought,
And all the thing that Tereus ywrought,
She wave it wel.
Chaucer. Legende of Philomela, v. 2359.

WEB, s. A Webbe, or Weaver, was one of Chaucer's Pilgrims.

My wif was a webbe,
And wollen cloth made.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2901.

And he abood as half an our almest, and the web (L. V. ryme, albugo) as the litil skyn of an ey (egg) bigan to go out of his ijen.—Wic. Tob. xi. 14.

Forsothe the schaft of his spere was as a beem of webbis. (E. V. webster, liciatorium toxentium.)
Id. 1 Kings xvii. 7.

My dayes swiftliere passiden than a web is kit down of a webstere. (L. V. weuere, atexente tela.)—Id. Job vii. 6.

WED. "To legge a Wed," is to lay a wager, to lay a Bet, qv.

To legge a wed and lese it.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2960; also v. 11351.

Judas seith, What to thee wolt thow be ȝouun for a wedde? (pro arrhabone.)—Wic. Gen. xxxviii. 18.

If a man disseyueth a virgin not ȝit weddid (E. V. spowsid, desponsatam), and slepith with hir, he shal ȝyue dower to hir.—Id. Ex. xxii. 16.

WEDDER. See WEATHER.

WEED, s. n. A.S. Wœde, Weod; Ge-wede, Ge-wedan, Ge-weddian—Vestis, vestire. D. Waede, Ghe-waede, Ghe-wand; Ger. Wad-wand, Ge-wand; Sw. Wad.

The weedery, which through
The interstices of those neglected courts
Uncheck'd had flourish'd long, and seeded there,
Was trampled then and bruised beneath the feet
Of thronging crowds.—Southey. Don Roderick, b. vi.

WEEK.

I hadde this wouke ywonne
A weye of Essex cheese.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2667.

The solempnite of weekis (L. V. woukis, hebdomadarum) thow shalt make to thee, in the first bigynnyng of fruytis in thi whete heruest.—Wic. Ex. xxxiv. 22.

She hath now caught a thorne,
She shall nat pul it out this nexte wike;
God sende hir mo such thornes for to pike.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. ii. v. 1273.

WEEN. See Piers Plouhman in v. Imagination.

Now if men with leasinges put on the enfame, wenest thyself thereby ben empeired? that wening is wrong.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. i.

WEEP.

Forsothe the vncouenable vois of enemyes sounede, and wepful (flebilis) wellinge of bewepte ȝunge childer was herd.
Wic. Wis. xviii. 10.

While that I stil recorded these thynges with my self, and marked my wepelie complainte (lacrymabilem querimoniam).—Chaucer. Boecius, b. i. pr. 1.

WEET.

For woot God, thei wolde do moore
For a doȝeyne Chicknes, . . .
Than for the love of oure Lord,
Or alle his leeve seintes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2153.

That he trespasseth, wel I wote.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 5102.

And I was with him weetless of assent,
But as a man that weets his thought ere speaking.
Cary. Dante. Par. x. 31.

WEFT. See WEAVE.

WEIGH.

Wikkedly to weye
Was my firste lesson.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2879.

And thei weyʒeden (appenderunt) my meede, thritti platis of siluer.—Wic. Zech. xi. 12.

A treccherous weȝe (L. V. balaunce, stetera) abominacioun is anent God, and an euen weiȝt (pondus) the wil of hym.—Id. Prov. xi. 1; also Is. xl. 12. L. V.

And as she woke hire bedde she felten presse:
What best is that, quoth she, that wayeth thus?
Chaucer. Legend of Lucrece, v. 1788.

WELAWAY.

Ther that pees regneth
Til weylawey! hym teche.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12535.

WELD. See WIELD.

WELK, WELKIN, v. See Quotation from Drayton in v. Suppose, in Dictionary.

Shipmen and shepherdes,
That with ship and sheep wenten,
Wisten by the walkne
What sholde bitide.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 10348; wolkne, v. 12553.

Quaketh my penne, my spirite supposeth
That in my writing ye find woll offence:
Min hert welkneth thus sone; anon it riseth.
Chaucer. A Balade, No. ii. v. 52.

So when the saile was sprade, and the shippe gan to moue, the winde and the water gan for to rise and ouerthwartlye to tourne the welken, the wawes semeden as they kiste together, but often under colour of kissinge, is mokell old hate priuileye closed and kepte.—Id. Test. of Loue, b. i. fo. 288[1].

WELL. } WELSOMELY. } Weel feelende (sensatus), not uncommon in Wic. E. V., L. V. Wise. See Mys-feeling.

The gyuyng of God abideth stille to rigtwis men, and the profitus of it welsum aftircomyngus shal han into withoute ende. (L. V. prosperitees.)—Wic. Ecclus. xi. 17.

He biheelde her stilli, wilnyng to wite whether the Lord had maad his weye welsum or noon.—Id. Gen. xxiv. 21.

I moneste ȝou to comen with wel willingnesse, and more bisy study to do lessoun. Id. Prologue to Ecclus. p. 123.

(Y) shal be turned aȝen welsumli. (L. V. in prosperite, prospero.)—Id. Gen. xxviii. 21.

Of all thingis Y make preyer, that thou entre and fare welefulli, as thi soule doth welefulli. (E. V. welsumly, prospere.)—Id. 3 John v. 2.

Thei diggiden in the stronde and thei foundun wellynge watir. (E. V. quyk watir, aquam vitæ.)—Id. Gen. xxvi. 19.

Venus I mene, the wellwilly planete.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1257.

WELT, s.

She (a louse) sholde noght
Han walked on that welthe,
So was it thred-bare.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2869.

WEM.

(A maiden) weex greet with childe
Withouten wem,
Into this world she broghte hym.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12338.

Sle thou and ete, bi the blessyng of thi Lord God, which he ȝaf to thee in thi citees, whether it is vnclene, that is spottid ether wemmed (maculatum) and feble, ether clene.
Wic. Deut. xii. 15.

That other bowe was of a plant
Withouten wemme, I dare warant.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 930.

WEND.

Weend to Amalec with thyn oost,
And what thow fyndest there sle it.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1899.

(The Jewes) wenten away for shame.—Id. Ib. v. 7605.

Aftir this maner that othir shal doo, ȝollynge the trompes into weendynge forthe. (L. V. goyng forth, in profectionem.)—Wic. Num. x. 6.

The irrecuperable joy is went, and anoy endlesse is entred.—Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

But when he saw her gentle soul was went,
His manly courage to relent began.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xii. st. 70.

WENE. See WEEN.

WERE, s. Debate, doubt, hesitation (mental strife). Skinner knows not whether from A.S. Wære, caution; Wær, cautious; and explains—A maze or doubt; Mr. Tyrwhitt from Guerre, of the same meaning, and observes: that in Rom. of the Rose, v. 5702, Were is in the original Guerre.

And in a weer gan I wexe,
And with myself dispute
Wheither I were chosen or noght chosen.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6805.

As yit I am in a weer
What charité is to mene.—Id. Ib. v. 10799.

And whan that Love gan nigh me nere,
He drough it (an arrow) withouten were,
And shote at me with all his might.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1776.

His herte (a marchaunt's) in such a were is set
That it quick brenneth for to get.—Id. Ib. v. 5702.

Tho gan I wexen in a were.
Id. House of Fame, b. ii. v. 471.

WERE. See WAS.

WERK. See WORK.

WERNE. See WARN.

WERRE. See WAR.

WERRIE. See WAR.

WERSE. See WORSE.

WER-WOLF. A. S. Were-wulf; Vir Lupus, Lycanthropos. See LYCANTHROPY.

Thei ben werwolves
That wiln the folke robben.
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 913.

When as by night, with a devout intent,
About the field religiously they went,
With hallowing charms the war-wolf thence to fray,
That them and theirs awaited to betray.
Drayton. Man in the Moon, v. 13.

WERY. See WEARY.

WESH. See WASH.

WET.

At Gessury fro the troubli flood that weetith (L. V. moistith, irrigat) Egipt.—Wic. Josh. xiii. 3.

Therwith his poulce and paumes of his hondes
Thei gan to frote, and wete his temples twain.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1114.

WETHER. See WEATHER.

WETHER. (Sheep.)

And he seuerde that day the she geyt, and the sheep, and the wetheres. (L. V. rammes, arietes.)
Wic. Gen. xxx. 37.

WEVE. } WEIVE. } See WEAVE.

WHEAL. Whey welled, is whey heated till scalding hot, in order to take off the curds. Welling or walling is, in Old English, boiling. See RAY. A. S. Weall-an, ebullire. See To WELL, in Dictionary.

That our people had beene fedde with gall of dragons instead of wine, with wheale instead of milke.
King James's Bible. Translator to the Reader.

WHEEL. In Chaucer's Boecius, b. i. m. 5, O stelliferi conditor orbis, is rendered—O maker of the wheele, that beareth the sterres.

WHELK.

This is the lawe of al lepre and of litle whelkis. (E. V. bleynes, popularum.)—Wic. Lev. xiv. 56.

There nas
Ne ointment that either would cleanse or bite,
That would him helpe of his whelkes white
Ne of his knobbes.—Chaucer. Prol. v. 634. The Sompnour.

WHELM.

Oh! the faintest sound
From time's light footfall, the minutest wave,
That swells the flood of ages, whelms in nothing
The unsubstantial bubble (Fame).
Shelley. Queen Mab, st. 3.

WHELP.

(He) scraped the dorr welp-lick.
Chaucer. Par. and Tap. v. 481.

Her eye shot forth with all the living fire
That haunts the tigress in her whelpless ire.
Byron. Lara, c. ii.

WHER. See WHETHER.

WHERE. Wide where, a wide space. See in v. Violence the Quotation from Gower, in Dictionary.

In Surrie, whilom, dwelt a compagnie
Of chapmen rich, and thereto sad and trewe,
That wide where senten hir spicerie,
Clothes of gold, and satins riche of hewe.
Chaucer. Man of Lawes Tale, v. 4556.

WHET.

Iren with iren is whettid out, and a man whettith out (exacuit) the face of his frend.—Wic. Prov. xxvii. 17.

WHEY, s.

Ser. There is ten thousand.
Mac. Geese, villaine!
Souldiers, sir.
Shakespeare. Macbeth, act v. sc. 3, fo. 149[1].

His tawny beard was th' equal grace
Both of his wisdom and his face;
The upper part whereof was whey,
The nether orange, mixt with grey.
Butler. Hudibras, pt. i. can. 1, v. 245.

WHICH was used as equivalent to What, and Wicliffe renders Qualis, What.

WHILE.

But the Lord ȝeelde to thee this while (vicissitudinem hanc), for that, that to day thou hast wrought in me.
Wic. 1 Kings xxiv. 20; also, 2 Kings xix. 36.

And he (Solomon) sent hem into the wode, ten thousand by eche moneth whilmele (L. V. bi whilis, vicissim), so that two monethis whilmele they weren in her howsis.
Id. 3 Kings v. 14.

ȝif ȝe vengen ȝou aȝeinus me, soon swiftly Y shal ȝeelde the wilenesse (L. V. while, vicissitudinem) to ȝou on ȝour hed.—Id. Joel iii. 4.

Ech best thing ȝouun, and al parfit ȝift, fro aboue, comyng doun of the fadir of liȝtis, anentis whom is not ouerchaungynge, nether schadewing of whileness, or tyme. (L. V. reward, vicissitudo.)—Id. James i. 17.

To go a step farther, the word while, take it in the gross, has been the father of a verb, which gives me an opportunity of lamenting that I should have caused you to while so much time in perusing this disquisition.
Pegge. Anecdotes, p. 229.

WHINID. Vinew'd, fennowed; Vinny, or (A. S.) Finie, are the same word. See VINNY, fennowed.

Ajax. Speak then, thou whimd'st leaven, speak.
Shakespeare. Troilus and Cressida, act ii. sc. 1.

WHIR.

Aȝen hem the spirit of vertue shal stonde, and as a whirl puff of wind deuyden hem. (L. V. whirlyng of wind, turbo venti.)—Wic. Wis. v. 24.

WHIST.

Many thingus grvcchendli whistrende (L. V. he schal speke priuili, susurrans) shal with chaunge (qv.) his chere.
Wic. Ecclus. xii. 19.

The whistrende grucchere (L. V. a preuy bachiter, susurro), and the twisil tunge (are) curside.
Id. Ib. xxviii. 15.

WHISTLE.

And Y shal sette this citee into stoneying, and in to whistling (L. V. hissing), and eche that shal passe by shal stoneyn and whistlen vp (L. V. hisse, sibilum sibilabit) on al the veniaunce of it.—Wic. Jer. xix. 8.

WHIT.

(Heli) seide to hyr, How long schalt thou be dronken? Defye a litil wiȝt (digere paulisper) the wyn, bi the which thou art dronken.—Wic. 1 Kings i. 14.

And the womman answerde to hem, Thei wenten hyingli (hastily), a litil wiȝt water taastid (paululum).
Id. 2 Kings xvii. 20.

WHITE.

For whiit, in trowthe, bytokeneth
Clennes in soule.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 1383.

God helpe me so ye causen all this fare,
Trowe I, quod she, for all your wordes white,
O who so seeth you, knoweth you full lite.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iii. v. 1568.

On heven yet the steres weren sene,
Although full pale iwoxen was the mone,
And whiten began the horizon shene
All estwardes as it is wont to doen.—Id. Ib. b. 5, v. 276.

If the inquiry be made in metaphysique (for the forme of whiteness), you shall finde some such rule as this: That two diaphonous bodies being intermixt, their optique portion in a simple order, or equally placed, doe determine and constitute whitenesse.
Wats. Bacon. Advancement of Learning, b. iii. c. 4, § 6.

WHITHER.

And Helisee seyde, Whens comyst thou, Giezi? The whiche answerde, Thi seruaunt ȝeede not o whydre. (L. V. to ony place, quoquam.)—Wic. 4 Kings v. 25.

WHITTLE. Ray says: To whittle sticks, to cut off the bark with a knife, to make them white. Hence also a knife is, in derision, called a whittle.—Preface to Collection of Words not generally used.

WHOLE. See HOLEFULL, in v. Visit, Quotation from Fabyan, in Dictionary.

Ac alle that beth myne hole bretheren.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12836.

I dide me to chirche
To here holly the masse.—Id. Ib. v. 12964.

WHORE. See Piers Plouhman in v. Hire, supra.

To alle hooris hijris ben ȝouen (meretricibus mercedes), forsothe thou hast gouun hijre, or mede, to all thi loueris.
Wic. Ez. xvi. 32.

WHY.

For whi (nam quoniam), God woot that in what euere dai ȝe schulen ete therof, ȝowre iȝhen schulen be opened.
Wic. Gen. iii. 5.

WICK.

The waxe bytokeneth his manhede,
The weke his sowle, the fyre his god hede.
Chaucer. Lyfe of our Ladye, fo. m. iii. c. 2.

WICKED.

Forsothe I haue knowun that after my deeth wickidlich (L. V. wickidli, iniquo) ȝe shulen doo.—Wic. Deut. xxxi. 29.

His wickenesses (L. V. wickidnissis, iniquitates) taken the vnpitous; and with the cordis of his synnes he is togidere streyned.—Id. Prov. v. 22.

(The flore) was plated halfe a foté thicke
Of gold, and that ne was not wicke (base, impure).
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. ℣. 256.

WIDE. See WAIVE, in Piers Plouhman, supra.

(I landed) in a small creek about the wideness of my canoe.—Voyage to Laputa, ch. i.

WIDOW.

And sche dide awei the clothis of widewehod (viduitatis).
Wic. Gen. xxxviii. 14.

WIELD. At Welde, in Robert of Brunne, is, at command, in plenty. Hearne. Weldere, see WEAVE, supra, and ZETE.

Vitaile inouh at weld thei fond of corn and hay.
Robert of Brunne, p. 160.

The bem (sufflatorium) failide, leed is waastid in the fier, the wellere wellide in veyn (conflator conflavix).
Wic. Jer. vi. 29.

Thei schulen welle (L. V. bete, conflabunt) togidere her swerdis in to scharris.—Id. Is. ii. 4.

ȝelle, ȝeockis of Basan, for the stronge welde wode is kit doun (saltus munitus).—Id. Zech. xi. 2.

Lo! Adam, in the felde of Damascene,
With Goddes owen finger wrought was he,
And welte al Paradis saving o tree.
Chaucer. The Monkes Tale, v. 14016.

The timè that hath all in welde,
To elden folke, hath made her elde
So inly, that to my weting
She mighten helpe herself nothing,
But tourned ayen unto childhede.
Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 895.

WIFE.

For this thing a man shall leeue fadir, and modir, and shal cleue or drawe to his wif (L. V. wijf), and thei shulen be two in oo flesh.—Wic. Mat. xix. 4.

Men, loue ȝe ȝoure wyues, and nyle ȝe be bitter to hem.
Id. Colos. iii. 19.

WIGHT.

Than drede went wyghtlyche,
And warned the Falso.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1298.

He wissed hem to wynne it ayein
Thorugh wightnesse of handes.—Id. Ib. v. 13446.

WILD. WILDERNESS. Somner writes, Wild deora fernesse, a Wildernesse. Dut. Wildernisse. And Lye agrees that of Wild deora, and of the last syllable of fernesse (desertum), or of Nesse itself, is composed the A.S. Wild-deora-nesse, our English Wilderness. Wachter forms the Ger. Wildnüss (of the same meaning) of the adjective, Wild, and the termination Nüss, our Ness. "A wilderness," says Archdeacon Hoare, "is a Wild-deer-ness; Deer (see in Dictionary) being a general name for beasts of all kinds."—English Roots, p. 203.

The wild father thus devoureth
His own flesh.—Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 175³.

Isab. Such a warped slip of wilderness
Ne'er issued from his blood.
Shakespeare. Measure for Measure, act iii. sc. i.

These paths and bowers doubt not but our joint hands
Will keep from wilderness with ease, as wide
As we need walk, till younger hands ere long
Assist us.—Milton. Par. L. b. ix. v. 245.

WILL. See Quotation from Hooker in v. Appetite, supra. Also Warburton in v. Random, supra.

For into an euell willi soule (malevolam) shal not gon in wisdom.—Wic. Wisd. i. 4.

(While) Ruben (was) aȝens hym (self) diuided, of greet willi men (L. V. greet hertyd, magnanimorum), is foundun stryuynge.—Id. Judg. v. 15.

For I bere witnessinge and to hem, vp vertu, or power, and above vertu thei weren wilful (voluntarii).
Id. 2 Cor. viii. 3.

The wilsumnesse (animositas) of drunkenhed, the offensioun of the vnprudent, lassende vertue, and makende woundis.—Id. Ecclus. xxxi. 40.

God saue swiche a lord that is so good,
He wilneth no destruction of blood.
Chaucer. The Knightes Tale, v. 2565.

As the will of God is our rule, to enquire what is our duty or what we are obliged to do in any instance, is in effect to enquire what is the will of God in that instance, which consequently becomes the whole business of morality.
Paley. Moral and Political Philosophy, b. ii. c. 4.

WIND. WINDFALL, is applied lit. and met., whether productive of loss or gain. See the Quotation below from Bacon, and the Quotation from him in v. Succision, supra.

The Spartans were a nice people, in point of naturalization; whereby, while they kept their compasse, they stood firme; but when they did spread, and their boughes were becommen too great for their stemme, they became a windfall upon the suddaine (potentia eorum subito corruit).
Bacon. Of Kingdomes and States. Essay 29.

When as the hermit comes out of his homely cell,
Where from all rude resort he happily doth dwell;
Each little village yields his short and homely fare;
To gather windfall'n sticks, his great'st and only care;
Which every aged tree still yieldeth to his fire.
Drayton. Polyolbion, st. 13.

WIND, v.

Thei washe hym, and wypede hym, and wonde hym in cloutes.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, p. 35, 4to. Edition.

WINDOW. See WINNOW.

Windewe thee not (ne ventiles) in to ech wynd, and go thou not in to ech weie.—Wic. Ecclus. v. 15.

WINE.

And Noe, a man erthe tylyer, bigan to excercise the erthe, and he plauntid a vyne, and drynkynge wyn was drunkun.
Wic. Gen. ix. 20.

WING.

As for those wingy mysteries in divinity, and airy subtleties in religion, which have unhinged the brains of better heads, they never stretched the pia mater of mine.
Browne. Religio Medici, pt. i. § 9.

WINNOW. See WINDOW, as the word is written in the Wiclif Bible.

His wiif walked hym with,
With a long gode, ...
Wrapped in a wynwe shete,
To weren hire fro wederes.
Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 865.

And Y schal send into Babiloyne wyndeweris (E. V. wyneweres), and thei schulen wyndewe it (E. V. wyneue, ventilatores, ventilabunt), and thei schulen destrie the lond of it.—Wic. Jer. li. 2; et aliter.

Afterward Y sawe the wether (ram) with hornys windowyng, or castynge down (ventilantem).—Id. Dan. viii. 4.

In thee oure enemys we shal wynewe (ventilabimus) by the horn.—Id. Psalm xliii. 6.

WINTER.

And whan the hauene was not able for to dwelle in wynter (ad hiemandam), ful manye ordeyneden counseil for to seile thennis, if on ony maner thei myȝten come to Fenyce, for to wynterne (L. V. to dwelle in wynter, hiemare) in the hauene of Crete.—Wic. Deeds xxvii. 12.

Adam forsothe lyuede an hundrid and thretti wynter. (L. V. ȝeer, annos.)—Id. Gen. v, 3.

WIS. Wis, Ywis, qv. Certainly. As wis,—as certainly.

I frayned ful ofte,
Of folk that I mette,
If any wight wiste
Wher Do-wel was.—Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4906.

Nay, nay, quod she, God helpe me so, as wis
This is to much, and it were goddes will.
Chaucer. The Frankeleines Tale, v. 11730.

WISH or WYSH, i. e. Wash, qv.

WIT. To see, provide, guard against. See WOOT, in Dictionary.

Whi stonde thise piles here?
To witen it fro fallyng.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 13843.

ȝyue ȝe of ȝou men wise in dyuyn thingis and witti (gnaros) in mennus thingis worthi to be don.—Wic. Deut. i. 13.

Understondeth, ȝee litle childer, witnesse (L. V. wisdom, astutiam); and, ȝee unwise men takith heed. (L. V. wisdom.)—Id. Prov. viii. 3; and Ecclus. i. 5; var. r.

But and thei most wrecchid herien bestes, witles (L. V. unresonable, insensata) forsothe, comparisouned to these, ben wers than tho.—Id. Wis. xv. 18.

And for he was not witlesse (insensatus).
Id. 2 Mac. xi, 13.

Shewende the Jewis forsothe and the paynymes greuously to han trespassid, and witendely. (L. V. wityngly.)
Id. Bible. Prol. to Romans, pp. 299, 302.

WITCH.

Crucifige! quod a cachepol:
I warrante hym (Jesus Christ) a wicche.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12166.

There was a man in that citee whos name was Symound, a wicche, that hadde disseyued the folk of Samarie: . . .
for long tyme he had maddid hem with hise wicche craftis. (E. V. wicchingis, magiis.)—Wic. Deedis viii. 11 (ix. 11).

WITH. In composition, in old English writers (see the Quotations from Wiclif), as in A. S. retains its meaning (join), and is constantly used as a prefix equivalent to the Lat. Cum (or I should rather say, is used pre-posed, without being fixed). The Lat. Comes is rendered by Wiclif a With follower, and a Co-heir is a With-heir, a follower or heir with one or more. When With follows a verb, it is the custom of lexicographers to explain according to the context. Thus, "to agree with me," "to fight with me;" in the first instance they imply, Cum; in the latter, Contra: though in both cases the actors join in one purpose. So to withstand, in A. S. With, and Wither-standan, implies two parties joined in one purpose; keeping or gaining a stand or position; though adverse to each other. And hence the usage may have been extended to cases, not admitting such an explanation. In the three,—With-draw, With-hold, With-stand, there is a strong coincidence of With and the Lat. Re, Re-trahere, re-tinere, re-sistere.

WITH, s. (Withy.)

Shadewis coueren his umbre; withiene trees (L. V. salewis, salices) of the strem enuyrounen hym.
Wic. Job xl. 17.

And ȝe shulen take to ȝow withies (L. V. salewis, salices) of the rennyng water.—Id. Lev. xxiii. 40.

I remember in the beginning of Queene Elizabeth's time of England, an Irish rebell condemned put up a petition to the deputie, that he might be hanged in a with, and not in an halter, because it had been so used with former rebels.—Bacon. Essays. Of Custome.

WITH-BEAR.

And (thei) that with bern it (wine) (L. V. beren it togidere, comportant) shul drinken in myn heeli porches.
Wic. Is. lxii. 9.

WITH-CHANGE.

And many thingis gruechendli whistrende shal with change (commutabit) his chere.—Wic. Ecclus. xii. 19.

WITH-DEPART.

Kunnyng and understonding of prudence wisdam shal with departen (compartietur).—Wic. Ecclus. i. 24.

WITH-DRAW.

(I) pass over the absurdity of denominating Mr. Lindsey a silenced and ejected minister, merely on account of his withdrawment from a community, whose distinguishing tenets he had abandoned.
Robert Hall. Review of Belsham's Memoirs of Lindsey.

WITHER.

But we must wander witheringly,
In other lands to die.—Byron. Hebrew Mel.

WITH-FIX.

I am turned in my myseise, whil with ficchid is the thorn. (L. V. set in, configitur.)—Wic. Psalm xxxiii. 4.

WITH-HIE.

And the daȝis of hem failiden in vanytee, and the ȝeeris of hem in withheȝing. (L. V. haste, festinatione.)
Wic. Psalm lxxvii. 33.

WITH-HILD. See To HILD.

And the watris of the flood al abowt with hilden the erthe (L. V. ouerȝeden, obtinuerunt) an hundryd and fifti dayes.
Wic. Gen. vii. 24.

WITH-LAWE, i. e. Laugh.

The Lord hath lawing (laughing, risum) maad to me, and who so euer shal here shal with lawe (corridebit) to me.
Wic. Gen. xxi. 6.

WITH-PRAISE.

I shal preisen (laudabo) thi name bysyly, and I shal with preisen (collaudabo) it in confessioun.—Wic. Ecclus. li. 15.

WITH-RISE.

Thanne Abram on the nijt with-rysyng (consurgens) dijte his asse.—Wic. Gen. xxii. 3.

WITH-SAY.

That he be myjti to much styre in holsum doctryne, and the withseieris to with stonde. (L. V. aȝenseiris.)
Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 63.

If forsothe anoon as the fadir herith, he withseith it (L. V. aȝenseide, contra), and the vowis and the oothis of hir shulen be at nouȝt.—Id. Num. xxx. 6; et aliter.

WITH-SIT.

Men of voluntarious will withsit that heauens gouerneth.
Chaucer. Test. of Loue, b. ii.

Lasse than a flie (han) mokel might in greeuance and annoying, withouten any withsitting, for all mannes mights.
Id. Ib.

WITH-STAND.

And he broȝte alle the sonus of Madian, and spoilide alle the richessis of hem; and alle with stonden to hym (L. V. aȝenstonden, resistentes), he sloȝ in the mouth of the sweord.
Wic. Judith ii. 16.

WITTOL.

To call a man a cuckold was not an ecclesiastical slander, but wittol was, for it imports his knowledge of, and consent to, his wife's adultery.—Salkeld. Reports 692 (C. J. Holt).

WLAP.

And thei schulen wlap in it (E. V. wrap, involvent) the arke of witnessynge.—Wic. Num. iv. 5.

WLATE, WLATYNG, WLATTID, WLATSUM. } See LOATHE.

WO.

Was nevir wight yet halfe so wo
As that her semed for to be,
Nor so fulfilled with yre as she.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 312.

WODEWOSE. } A hairy wild man. See
WOODTHEVES. } in Dictionary the Quotation from Robert of Brunne.

And aȝen come shul deueles, the beeste party an asse, and a party a man, and the wodewose. (L. V. an heeri, pilosus.)—Wic. Is. xxxiv. 14; so also xiii. 21. In Jer. l. 39, woode theves (L. V. wielde men, fauni furarii).

WOL. See WILL, Would.

WONDER. A Wondred father; that is,—A father able to perform wonders so rare.

Thou turnest aȝen, and turmentest me wonderli. (E. V. merueilously, mirabiliter.)—Wic. Job x. 16.

And the man is maad ryche wonder myche. (L. V. ful riche, ultra modum.)—Id. Gen. xxx. 43.

So rare a wondred father, and a wise
Makes this place Paradise.
Shakespeare. Tempest, act iv. sc. 1.

WONE, s. A dwelling, &c.; also, the people dwelling; a multitude.

And he broȝt hem themus in to a riȝt weye; that thei shulde go in to the cite of wonyng. (L. V. dwellyng, habitationis.)—Wic. Psalm cvi. 7; also v. 36.

Who forsothe ben riȝte, shul dwelle in the erthe, and the symple shul parfitli wone in it. (L. V. dwelle, permanebunt.)—Id. Prov. ii. 21.

(Men) haue their eyen so wont to the derckneesse of earthly thyngs that they ne may nat lyfte hem up to the light of cleare soothfastnesse.
Chaucer. Boecius, b. iv. pr. 4.

Of roses there weren grete wone,
So faire weren never in Rone.
Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 1673.

Of countre folke, a ful gret wone.
Id. Lay of Ariadne, v. 2161.

There was enough within the wones
Of wepyng.—Gower, b. viii. fo. 177².

WONES, qv. Things won.

He gaf hym gold good woon,
That gladede his herte.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 14266.

But for to speke of riches and stones
And men and horse, I trow the large wones
Of Prester John, ne all his treasory
Might not unneth have bought the tenth party.
Chaucer. The Floure and the Leafe, v. 201.

WOO.

Ye faren lik thise wooveris,
That wedde none widwes,
But for to welden hir goodes.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 6717.

Forsothe the wyf of hym (Samson) took an housebond, oon of hir freendis and wowers. (L. V, keperis, de pronubis.)—Wic. Judges xiv. 20.

And the caȝte ȝunge man she kisseth; and with wowende (L. V. wowynge, precaci) chere she flatereth.
Id. Prov. vii. 14.

The vnpitous man wowendli (L. V. unschamefastli, procaciter) stablith his chere.—Id. Ib. xxi. 29.

For wisè folke in bokès it expresse,
Men shall not wowe a wight in hevinesse.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5. v. 791.

To slepe rather than to wowe
Is his (Somnolence) maner, and thus on nightes,
When he seeth the lusty knightes
Reuelen, where these women are,
(He) gothe to bed.—Gower. Conf. Am. b. iv. fo. 78¹.

WOOD or WODE. See WODE, supra.

This is not understondan of wode men in which the wickid spirit spekith without her procuryng, but of hem that procuren that the deuel speke in hem.
Wic. Lev. xx. 27; note.

WOOD, s.

Lo he (Ysaac) seith, Fier and wode (ligna), where is the sacrifice of that that shal be brent?—Wic. Gen. xxii. 7.

How feyr thi tabernaclis, Jacob, and thi tentis, Yrael! as wodi valeys (L. V. ful of woodis, nemorosæ), as moiste gardyns bisidis floodis.—Id. Num. xxiv. 6.

WOOL. Woolward Mr. Wright explains, miserable, plagued. Skinner knows not whether from A. S. Wol, Pesis, and secondarily, Any great evil, and Ward, as homeward, &c.

Wolleward and weet shoed
Wente I forthe after.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12071.

Also wulle graithers and fullers and other . . . (in L. V. makers of wollen cloth) mowe not be with outen a techer, that thei coueten.—Wic. Bible. Pref. Ep. p. 67.

WORD, in Chaucer, Motto.

(Thei) wordeden wel wisely
A gret while togideres.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 2173.

My woordi frendis (L. V. ful of wordis, verbosi), myn eye droppith to God.—Wic. Job xvi. 21.

I thanked hire, and prayed hire come nere,
Bycause I woulde se how she was araide;
Hire gown was blewe, dressed in good manere,
With hire devise, hire worde also, that saide,
Tant que je puis.
Chaucer. Assemble of Ladies, v. 207.

Above al erthly créatúres
The high maker of natúres
The worde to man hath youe alone;
So shulde he be the more honest,
To whom God yave so worthye a yifte,
And loke well that he ne shifte
His wordes to none wicked use;
For worde the teacher of vertuse
Is cleped in philosophie.—Gower. Conf. Am. fo. 150¹.

The study of the mind (is) a study, where the chief source of errour is the imperfection of words; where every improvement in this great instrument of thought may be justly regarded in the light of a discovery.
D. Stewart. Dissert. i. Sup. to Ency. Brit.

WORMWOOD. Rather Wormwort (says Skinner). A. S. Wyrm-wyrt, Wærmede; Ger. Wermud; Du. Wermmœdt, Wermœdt; from its property of destroying worms. Skinner. From Wærmen, to warm; from its warmth—strengthening the stomach. Wachter.

WORRY.

He (the wolfe) would hem (lambes)
Wirry, and drinke the blode.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 6267.

WORSE.

In alle thingis take ȝe the scheld of feith, in whiche ȝe moun quenche alle the firy dartis of the worste. (E. V. worste enmye, nequissimi.)—Wic. Eph. vi. 16.

WORSHIP. In the Marriage Service, With my body I thee worship (i. e. honour).

If ony man schal mynistre to me, my fadir schal worshipe him. (M. V. honour, honorificabit.)—Wic. John xii. 26.

And he (Jacob) seide dredyng, How worschipful is this place. (E. V. feerful, terribilis.)—Id. Gen. xxviii. 7.

That I may of you here men saine
Wurshippe, or that yé come againe.
Chaucer. The Duchesse, v. 1032.

How long by tyrants shall thy land be trod!
How long thy temples worshipless, O God!
Byron. Hebrew Mel.

WORSTED.

His cope . . . .
Of double worstede ydight
Doun to the hele.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 453.

WORT.

ȝif to me (Achob) thi vyneerd, that I make to me a wort ȝerd (L. V. a garden of wortis, hortum olerum), for it is niȝ, and biside myn hows.—Wic. 3 Kings xxi. 2.

WORT-WORM. See ERUKE.

WORTH.

He took all in worth, for he had no other remedy.
Berners' Froissart, v. ii. p. 314.

WOUL, i. e. Howl, variously written ȝoul, ȝell, qv.

Woule ȝe in Bethaulen. (L. V. ȝelle, ululate.)
Wic. Hos. v. 8; also vii. 14.

WOULD.

Yet sayde he (Job) thus: Oure lord hath yeue it to me, oure Lord hath beraft it me: right as oure Lord hath wold, right so is it don: yblessed be the name of oure Lord.
Chaucer. Tale of Melibeus.

But al of woldes, and of wisshes,
Theref haue I my full disshes.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. vi. fo. 83³.

WOUND.

Tim. If you won't ha' me, I'll tell father so.
Jenny. You are in a woundy hurry, methinks.
Foote. The Knights, act ii.

WOX. See WAX.

WRACK or WRECK. Some modern editors of note, uninfluenced by the reasoning of Tooke in support of the reading, Racke, (qv.) in the first folio, substitute Wrack. But see Diversions of Purley, vol. ii. p. 389; et seq.

Wrack. Old editions of Milton read Rack, in b. iv. v. 994, "All the elements at least had gone to Rack;" b. xi. v. 821, "A world devote to universal Rack." But in b. vi. v. 670, "All heav'n had gone to Wrack."

WRAP, v.

Al aboute feris shal gasten hym, and within wrappen his feet. (L. V. biwlappe, involvent.)—Wic. Job xviii. 11.

WRATH.

The wrathfulnesse (iracundia) of his pride is the destroyng of hym.—Wic. Ecclus. i. 28.

Therfor thou shalt speke my wordis to hem, if peraventure thei heren, and resten, for thei ben wrathfulthers. (L. V. terreris to wrathe, irritatores.)
Id. Ez. ii. 7; also v. 8, exasperatrix.

WREAK, v.

Preyse ȝe, gentils, the puple of hym, for the blood of his seruauntis he shal wreek. (L. V. venie, i. e. venge, ulciscetur.)—Wic. Deut. xxxii. 43.

Agast was all the prees,
As mased folk they stonden every on
In drede of wrecke, save Custance alone.
Chaucer. The Man of Lawes Tale, v. 5099.

WREATHE.

(Two chains) of wreathen work shalt thou make.
Wic. Ex. xxviii. 14.

Bi miȝt he wrooth (E. V. pultide, extorsit) out the spere fro the hond of the man of Egipt.—Id. 2 Kings xxiii. 21.

And (Pharao) clothide Joseph with a stoole of bijs, and puttide a goldun wrethe (torquem) about the necke.
Id. Gen. xli. 42.

The hegge also—
With sycamor was set, and eglatere
Wrethen in fere well and cunningly.
Chaucer. The Floure and the Leafe, v. 57.

WRENCH. In Robert of Gloucester, "Withouten any wrench," is, without any wrong, qv. See in Dictionary.

WRENE. WREN. } See WRIE.

WREST.

Abacuc, a strong wristeler (L. V. wrastelere) and a sharp, stondith vpon his waarde.—Wic. Pref. Ep. p. 70.

And loo! a man wristlide (L. V. wrastlide, luctabatur) with hym vnto the morwe.—Id. Gen. xxxii. 24.

But yet to let hire go,
His hertè misforgave him evermo:
But finally he gan his hertè wrest
To trusten hire, and toke it for the best.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 14, 27.

And as me thoughten, that the nightingale
With so great might hire voice began to wrest,
Right as hire herte for love would all to brest.
Id. The Black Knightes Tale, v. 48.

WRETCH.

He (Sisara) lay out of lijf and wretchidful (miserabilem).
Wic. Judges v. 27.

At the riȝt of the est my wrecchenesses (L. V. wretchidnessis, calamitates) anoon risen.—Id. Job xxx. 12.

WRIE.

Nakid thei leue men, takende awei clothis, to whom is no kouerynge in cold; whom wederes (imbres) of hillis moisten, and not hauende wrielys (L. V. hilyng, velamen) clippe stones.—Wic. Job xxiv. 8.

And well the hoter ben the gledes rede,
That men hem wrien with ashen pale and ded.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. 5, v. 539.

For there is neither huske nor hay
In Mey, that n'ill shrouded bene,
And it with newè leves wrene.
Id. Rom. of the Rose, v. 56.

WRIGHT.

It is for to cure or bisie (curandum est), to the wriȝt of the new hous of al the beeldyng. (L. V. cheef carpenter, architecto.)—Wic. 2 Mac. ii. 30.

WRING.

He that was wont to wringe out, schal not wrynge out wyn in a pressour; Y haue take awei the vois of wryngeris out. (L. V. trederes, calcantium.)—Wic. Is. xvi. 10.

WRINKLE.

And sche took a roket (roket cloth with many wrinklis, var. r.)—Wic. Gen. xxxviii. 14.

WRITHE.

The pawme is pureliche the hand,
And hath power by hymselue
Otherwise than the writhen fust
Or werkmanship of fyngres.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11721.

For if ther might yben a variaunce
To writhen out fro goddes purveying,
There n'ere no prescience of thing comming.
Chaucer. Troylus and Cressida, b. iv. v. 986.

This same stede shal bere you evermore
Without harme, till ye be ther ye lest,
(Though that ye slepen on his back or rest)
And turne again with writhing of a pin.
Id. The Squieres Tale, v. 10441.

WRONG. In Wiclif, Lev. xxi. 19, Tortus nasus is, in E. V. crokid noose, and in L. V. wrong nose.

Lest perauenture he drawe thee to the domesman, and the domesman bitake thee to the wrongful axere, and the wrongful axere sende thee in to prisoun. (L. V. mastirful axer, qv. exactori.)—Wic. Luke xii. 58.

WUST. Mr. Tyrwhitt says: scared, driven. (See WHIST.)

With wepen wolves from shepe he wust.
Chaucer. The Plowman's Tale, v. 3032.

Y.

Y is also a corruption of the A.S. Ge, as Y-bore, Y-clept, &c. i. e. bore, clept, &c See Tyrwhitt, Glossary. In Dictionary.

YARD. To be under the Yerd or rod; under rule, &c. Chaucer, in Dictionary.

Thow forsothe arere thin ȝerde (virgam), and strecche out thin hoond vpon the see.—Wic. Ex. xiv. 16.

YARE.

For He that yeveth, yeldeth,
And yarketh hym to reste.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 4638.

(He) bad the maister make hym yare
To fore the wynde, for he wolde fare
To Ephesum.—Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 183.

YATE.

(He) biddeth unspere the yates.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 12600.

Thi seed shal weeld the ȝatis of his enemyes.
Wic. Gen. xxii. 17.

YAVE. i. e. Gave.

YAW'D. i. e. Hewed.

Ye prechers shall be yaw'de,
And some shall be saw'de.
Skelton. Colin Clout, v. 1206.

YAWN. Written Yane, and by Skelton Gane also.

And thei ȝeneden (L. V. made large, dilataverunt) their mouth upon me; thei seiden, Wen, Wen, oure eȝen han seen.—Wic. Ps. xxxiv. 21.

Therfor Eleasarus, a man wexun in age, and fair in cheer was compellid, ȝanyng (hians) with open mouth for to ete swynes fleisch.—Id. 2 Mac. vi. 18.

She began to yane and gaspy.
Skelton. E. Rummyng, v. 331.

Why do ye gane and gaspe?
Id. Ib. b. i. v. 117; Dyce Edition.

YE. YOUR.

Thanne we schulen ȝyue and take togidre our dowȝtris and ȝouren. (L. V. ȝoure.)—Wic. Gen. xxxiv. 16.

Ne leue ȝe not eny thing of eny purtenaunce to ȝoure howshild, for al the riches of Egipte shal be ȝouren (ȝoure).
Id. Ib. xlv. 20.

YEARN. Yerne, adv. Eagerly, willingly, readily. See Piers Plouhman in v. Taille.

YEARTH. } Chaucer, Test. of Loue, b. i.
YEARTHLY. } i. e. Earth, Earthly, qqv. and see Chaucer in v. Abound. In Percy's Reliques, Introduction to b. iii. are extracts from a poem in which the p.p. Yearded is used in the sense of buried.

YEDE.

Ridynge ful rapely,
The right way we yeden.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 11469.

And Ephron answerȝde to Abraham, alle men herynge, the which ȝede into the ȝaat of the cite (ingrediebantur portam).—Wic. Gen. xxiii. 10.

In his right hand a rod, and on the flood,
Against the streame he marcht, and drie shod yode.
Fairefax. Godfrey of Bulloigne, b. xiv. st. 33.

YEELS. So Holland writes Eels, qv.

YELL. See second Quotation from Wiclif in v. Record, supra.

And with a great ȝowlyng (L. V. ȝellyng, ejulatu) he wepte.—Wic. Gen. xxvii. 38.

YELLOW.

Turne abowt alle thi flockis, and sever alle thi speckid sheep, and with speckyd flese and what evere ȝolow. (L. V. dun, furvum.)—Wic. Gen. xxx. 32.

YELP. Exponitur,—Prate, talk. Skinner. A. S. Gilpan, jactare, gloriari; valde desiderare.

Fortune, though she will not yelpe,
All sodeinly hath sent him halpe,
Whan him thought all grace aweie.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. viii. fo. 177².

YER. See ERE.

YERD. See Yard.

YES.

Thei that token tribut, camen to Petre, and seiden to hym, ȝoure maister payeth not tribute? And he seith, ȝhe. (L. V. ȝhis, etiam.)—Wic. Mat. xvii. 23.

YETE, v. A. S. Ge-otan, fundere; Ge-otere, fusor, flator; not uncommon in Wiclif's Bible. And see WIELD, supra.

And he made to it a goldun crown by enuyroun, ȝetynge (L. V. and ȝetide, conflans) foure goldun rynges by foure corners of it.—Wic. Ex. xxxvii. 2.

The whiche (eer rynges) whanne he (Aaron) hadde takun, he fourmed with ȝetun work (L. V. werk of ȝetyng, opere fusorio), and made of hem a ȝotun calf (conflatilem).
Id. Ib. xxxii. 4.

Also he made a ȝotun see (mare fusile), that is, a waischinge vessel for preestis, round in cumpas.—Id. 3 Kings vii. 23.

Failede the meltende vessel, in fyr wastid is the led, in veyn meltide togidere the ȝeetere. (L. V. the wellere wellide, conflavit conflator.)—Id. Jer. vi. 29.

Fool is mad eche man of kunnyng, confoundid is eche ȝeeteere (L. V. wellere) in grauen thing, for fals is his ȝeting (L. V. wellyng), ne ther is spyrit in hem.—Id. Ib. li. 17.

YEVE. ȝif (if).

That fir shal falle and brenne . . .
The houses and homes
Of hem that desireth
Yiftes or yeres yeues,
By cause of hir offices.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 1557.

In myn eres ben these thingus, seith the Lord of ostes; but ȝif (L. V. if not, nisi) many houses grete and faire shul be desert.—Wic. Is. v. 9.

Take that that is thine, and go; forsothe I wol ȝeue (L. V. ȝyue, volo dare) and (et) to this the last man as and (sicut et) to thee.—Id. Mat. xx. 14.

Of thi seruaunt Iacob, ȝiftis (munera) he hath sent to his Lord, Esaw.—Id. Gen. xxxii. 18.

See! Y haue ȝouun to ȝow al erbe bryngynge seed vpon the erthe.—Id. Gen. i. 29.

YEX.

And Elisee stiede, and lai on the child, and the child ȝoxide (E. V. brethed, oscitavit) seuen sithes, and openede the eeȝen.—Wic. 4 Kings iv. 25.

This shal not be to thee, my Lord, into ȝoxynge (L. V. siȝyng, singultum), and into scripil of herte, that thou hast shed giltlesse blood.—Id. 1 Kings xxv. 31.

YIELD.

(He sent me) to preche the ȝeer of the Lord plesaunt; and the day of ȝeldyng (retributionis).—Wic. Luke iv. 19.

God of oure fadris, whos vertue thou hast prechid, he ȝeldere to thee this recompensacioun shal ȝiue, that thou rather see the deth of hem.—Id. Judith vi. 17.

YLE. i. e. Idle, qv.

YOKE.

And his possessioun was, seven thousend of shep and 3000 of camailis, and 500 ȝokis of oxen (juga).—Wic. Job i. 3.

YOLK.

The white and white only is expended in the formation of the chicken. The yolk, very little altered or diminished, is wrapped up in the abdomen of the young bird, when it quits the shell; and serves for its nourishment till it have learnt to pick its own food.
Paley. Natural Theology, c. xx.

YORE.

Alle scorneden me, for now ȝore Y speke (L. V. a while ago, olim) eriende out the wickidnesses.—Wic. Jer. xx. 7.

YOU. See YE.

YOULE. See YELL, WOULE.

YOUNG.

And knowynge the voys of the ȝongȝynge Leuyte (L. V. ȝong wexynge dekene, adolescentis), and vsynge the restynge place of hym, thei seiden to hym, Who brouȝte the hidir?
Wic. Judges xviii. 3.

And the ȝonglynge roos (L. V. ȝong man) for to goo with his wijf and child.—Id. Ib. xix. 3.

God that fedde from my ȝongthe (L. V. ȝong wexynge age, adolescentia) into the day that is now.
Id. Gen. xlviii. 15.

And in especial unto them that ben passed theyr grene yongthe, and eke theyr middle eage callyd Virylyte.
The Boke of Tulle of Old Age. Caxton, b. i. p. 3; also b. iii.

So that the being of them bore some certain date, and had a youngness in them.—Cudworth. Morals, p. 249.

The children free
In youth-head, happy season, from all care
That might disturb the hour.
Southey. Don Roderick, §. xvii.

YOUR,—OUR—were used as we now use Ours, e. g. "Our is the dishonour"—"Our is the Maistry."—King Alesaunder, v. v. 3867—2162. "This Hill of our."—Spenser, July. "I wot be your."—Chaucer. C. Yem. T. v. 16716. "Your is the charge."—Id. v. 12029.

YREN. i. e. Iron.

Y-TEMEN. Mr. Tyrwhitt says, To bind, to deposit. Sp. Tomar, to take. See TAME.

(It) mought ytemen us on bere (bier).
Chaucer. House of Fame, b. iii. v. 654.

YTIGHT. See Tie.

And a curwus cros
Craftly entayled,
With tabernacles y-tight
To toten al abouten.—Piers Plouhman's Crede, v. 333.

YUEL. i. e. Evil, qv.

YVOIRE. i. e. Ivory (for the sake of rhyme).

Hire throte, as I have nowe memoire,
Semed as a rounde tour of yvoire.
Chaucer. The Duchesse, v. 946.

Z

ZEAL. In the Latin fathers we find the verb Zel-are. Bacon uses the verb, To Zeal. In the Latin Vulgate we find Zelantes the plural of the participle Zelans, and on this Bacon forms the substantive Zelant, which in the Latin version stands Zelo fervidus, glowing with Zeal.

You might have done, but for that zeald religion
You women bear to swoonings.
Beaumont and Fletcher. Love's Pilgrimage, act. iv. sc. 1.

To certain zelants all speech of pacification is odious. Is it peace, Jehu? What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me.—Bacon. Essays. Of Unity in Religion.

No casuist is sufficient to enumerate or resolve the many intricate niceties, and endless scruples of conscience, which some men's and women's more plebeian zelotry makes, as about ladies' cheeks and faces, &c.
Bishop Taylor. Artificial Handsomeness, p. 63. (Todd.)

ZOILISM.

Bring candid eyes unto the perusal of men's works, and let not zoilism or detraction blast well-intended labours.
Browne. Christian Morals, pt. ii. § 2.

ZOUNDS. A common oath; corrupted from God's wounds.

So also 'ZNAILS or 'SNAILS, God's nails.

ADDENDA.

LUCENT, adj.

Sorceress of the Ebon throne! (Night)
Thy power the Pixies own,
When round thy raven brow
Heaven's lucent roses glow,
And clouds in watery colours drest,
Float in light drapery o'er thy sable vest.
Coleridge. Song to the Pixies.

MOLIMINOUS.

(One of) two pre-eminences of Nature above humane art (is), that whereas humane art acts upon the matter without, cumbersomely, and molimínously, and in a way of tumult, or hurlyburly; Nature, acting upon the same from within more commandingly, doth its work easily, cleverly, and silently.
Cudworth. Intellectual System. Contents (b).

MORTAL.

According to the words just preceding, your scheme ought to have been, on the contrary, that the soul is by nature immortal, but must be mortalized by the omnipotence of God, if ever it perish; and not that it is by nature mortal, and must be immortalized by a new act of omnipotence, to enable it to subsist for ever.
Clarke. Letter to Dodwell. Works, v. iii. fo. 723.

MUTTON. } Mutton (laced), Sherwood
MUTTON-MONGER. } interprets by, Une garce, putain, fille de joye. See Nares, who doubts whether so called, because dressed in lace. Mutton alone was a name for a loose wench, a harlot.

Bel. Is not your name Mattheo?
Math. Yes, lamb.
Bel. Baa! lamb, there you lie; for I am mutton.
Dekkar. The Honest Whore, pt. i. sc. 3.

Orl. Is't possible the Lord Hippolito, whose face is as civil as the outside of a dedicatory book, should be a mutton-monger?—Id. Ib. Pt. ii. act i. sc. 1.

OVERLOOK, v. i. e. by the eye of the witch. See Mr. Singer's Note, and Forespeak, supra.

Fist. Vile worme, thou wast ore-look'd euen in thy birth.
Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor, fo. 59², act v. sc. 5.

PIE, s.

Cokes and hise knaves
Cryden, "Hote pies, hote!"
Goode Gees and Grys (grice).
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 449.

POINT. Point of War.

But, though my father was very fond of instructing me in beating all the marches and points of war, I made no very great progress, because I naturally had no ear for musick.—Goldsmith. Essays. The Strolling Player.

PRAY. Prayerful and Prayerless are now of common occurrence in religious writings and discourses.

PROFLIGATE, adj.

Courage, the day at length is ours,
And we, once more, as conquerours,
Have both the field and honour won;
The foe is profligate, and won.
Butler. Hudibras, pt. i. c. iii. v. 728.

RIB.

(God) made man likkest
To himself one,
And Eve of his ryb-bon,
Withouten any mene.
Piers Plouhman's Vision, v. 5221.

He took oon of his ribbis, and fulfillide flehs for it. And the Lord God ediftede the rib, which he toke of Adam, into a woman, and brouȝte her to him.—Wic. Gen. ii. 21, 22.

ROYNE.

To them (arrows) was well sitting and able,
The foulè croked bowe hidous
That knottie was and all roinous.
Chaucer. Rom. of the Rose, v. 988.

SENSE. Sensational is now in common use; also Sensationalism, and Sensationalist; the latter is a name given to a School of Philosophers, with Condillac in France, and Hartley in England at their head, who hold that man is a mere creature of Sensation. The compounds, Anti-sensational, &c. are also used. See Morell's Historical and Critical Review.

He, whose eye is so refined by discipline that he can repose with pleasure upon the serene outline of beautiful form, has reached the purest of the sensational raptures.
F. W. Robertson. Sermon I. First Series.

SHANK. See SLADE, infra.

SLADE. In Wiclif, supra, is in Mod. Version, hill's side.

And how he (Somnolence) sitteth by the fire,
And claweth on his bare shankes,
And how he clymeth up the bankes,
And falleth in the slades deep.
Gower. Conf. Am. b. iv. fo. 78².

ERRATA.

In v. ALL, l. 13, r. couere.
BEIGH, r. Bough.
BORROW, l. 2, r. borwe.
BOUGH, last line, r. Beeȝe.
BIBL, l. 1, Pincerna.
SOW. See SWINE.
SOW. See SOUGH, in Dictionary, and see PIG (lead), supra.

THE END.

CHISWICK PRESS:—PRINTED BY WHITTINGHAM AND WILKINS, TOOKS COURT, CHANCERY LANE.

00050234

Digitized with financial assistance from

H T Parekh
FOUNDATION

An Initiative by HDFC
WITH YOU, RIGHT THROUGH

on 27 November, 2018